ARMS PROGRAM IS CONFIRMED (AP)

Briton Says U.S. And Britain Agree On Standardization

WM. B. KING

London, Jan. 1 (AP)—A Government official confirmed today that the United States and Britain had agreed to standardize "certain items of military equipment," and British newspapers said the armies of both nations would be trained so that they could swing into action under one supreme commander.

Simultaneously, the Paris Socialist newspaper Aurore declared that British and American armies would soon be forged into a single fighting arm, extending from the North Pole to the Rio Grande, from Asia Minor to Japan.

Expanding a previous account in which it said that Britain and the United States would sign a secret accord March 15 to fight together in the event either was attacked, Aurore said that equipment and training for all English-speaking armies would become uniform.

Says Arctic Would Play Part

The eventual unification of British, American and probably Dominion troops will begin in the United States, Aurore said, where methods of West Point will be used as a model for training future British officers.

Canada has been selected as the first proving ground of future British-American unity, the Paris newspaper asserted, adding that Arctic regions would play a vital role in any future conflict.

British newspapers front-paged accounts from New York that Britain and the United States were rapidly completing plans for air, sea and land co-operation in the event of another war.

The reports pointed out that standardization of equipment and training would enable British and American troops to operate efficiently under one command.

Confirms Small Arms Report

The British Government official, who declined use of his name, confirmed for the first time that military experts of the two nations are discussing the standardization of small arms to fixed United States sizes and patterns.

While emphasizing that no "all-embracing decision" had been taken to standardize all military equipment of the two countries, he did not rule out the possibility of such a decision.

Military experts from Britain and the United States are "starting at the bottom and working their way upward," he explained.

In response to a question, the informant said that Field Marshal Lord Montgomery, chief of the imperial general staff, was not slated to discuss arms reduction between Russia and Britain when he visits Moscow this month.

"Not Averse To Standardization"

The official added, however, that Montgomery would report to the British Government any proposals that the Russians might care to make about standardization, and that the Government would give consideration to any such report.

"Britain is not averse to standardizing military equipment with the Russians," the informant said. "... British policy is based on the United Nations Organization, and any plans that do not conflict with United Nations policy will always receive the Government's sympathetic consideration."

Britain has not yet placed before the United Nations details of her standardization with America, the official said. He added that military co-operation between the nations did not mean that Britain and America were preparing to sign any full-scale military agreement such as that described by the newspaper Aurore.

The informant said that the United States and Britain had decided to continue air force co-operation, started during the war, but that no discussions had "yet started" on whether to institute co-operative army and navy training programs.

Washington dispatches saying that the United States Army Air Forces confirmed the continuation of joint air programs received banner headlines in London newspapers.

"Britain and the United States are rapidly completing plans for land, sea and air co-operation if they are involved in another war," the News Chronicle stated.

Britain Confirms Standardization Of Small Arms (AP)

London, Jan. 1 (AP)—A Government spokesman confirmed today for the first time that Britain and America had agreed in principle to the standardization of "certain items of military equipment" to fixed United States sizes and patterns.

British and American military experts are discussing the standardization of small arms, the spokesman said, but emphasized that no decision had been taken to standardize all military equipment.

The disclosure came two months after authoritative military sources had told the Associated Press of the arms-standardization plan. Publication of the story in the United States prompted questions in Parliament and a charge by the Communist Daily Worker that a secret British-American military pact had been reached.

Wider Decision Possible

The Government informant did not rule out the possibilitay that a wider standardization might be decided on in the future. He said the two countries' military advisers were "starting at the bottom and working their way upward."

British newspapers, meanwhile, front-paged reports from New York that Britain and America were rapidly completing plans for land, sea and air co-operation "if they become involved in another war."

These reports added that the forces of both nations, trained and equipped under a standardization system, would be able to move into action under one supreme commander.

Not On Monty's Agenda

Asked whether Field Marshal Lord Montgomery wauld discuss arms standardization between Britain and Soviet Russia when he visited Moscow this month, the spokesman said the chief of the Imperial General Staff was not scheduled to talk about it, but would certainly report any standardization proposals the Russians might care to make, and this report would receive the consideration of the British Government.

The informant said Britain had not yet placed details of her military discussions on standardization with America before the United Nations. He said, however, that the military staff committee of the Security Council could ask for details of any agreement between the two countries and, presumably, would get them.

No Anglo-U.S. War

The informant said military co-operation did not mean that Bri and America were preparing to sign a full-scale military economic or political agreement. A French newspaper earlier this week reported that such an alliance would be signed on March 15.

The informant, together with Foreign Office spokesmen, repeated that British foreign policy was based on the assumption there could never be war between Britain and America.

He said that while a decision had been taken to continue air force co-operation, started during the war by a joint training program for British Empire and United States airmen, discussions on joint army and naval training programs had not yet started.

BRITAIN AWAITS (AP) PALESTINE MOVE

Voices Willingness to 'Seriously Consider' Proposal for Jewish State.

A. GAVSHON

LONDON, Jan. 1.—(AP) First indications of a possible settlement for troubled Palestine came today when a British official source promised "full and serious consideration" of proposals to divide the Holy Land into independent Jewish and Arab states.

The source implied, however, that Britain would not offer such a plan herself. He said the plan would be studied if Jews or Arabs offered such a proposal at the scheduled Jan. 21 resumption of the London conference on Palestine.

British Press for Solution

Other indications of an approaching effort to solve the problem were announcements that the British cabinet will concern itself almost solely with the problem at a meeting next week, and that Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, Palestine high commissioner, was flying to London for conferences. Reports from Jerusalem said Gen. Sir Evelyn Barker, commanding general in Palestine, would accompany the commissioner.

Government quarters said Cunningham's mission was to give Colonial Minister Arthur Creech Jones a complete up-to-the-minute report on Palestine conditions.

Also due before the weekend was Moshe Shertok, head of the Jewish Agency's political department. Dr. Chaim Weizmann, former World Zionist president, already is in London, and David Ben-Gurion, chairman of the Jewish Agency Executive, is to hold a conference with Creech Jones tomorrow.

These indications of quickening negotiations were highlighted today by New Years Day consultations between Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Creech Jones.

The question of Zionist participation in the Jan. 21 conference on Palestine and partition of Palestine were hotly disputed points in the World Zionist Congress just concluded at Basel, Switzerland.

In that Congress Rabbi A. H. Silver of Cleveland, Ohio, who contended for a Jewish state in all Palestine, won a point when the Congress voted not to participate in the conference unless there are changed circumstances.

Some Favor Partition

Some Jews, however, unable to make progress in their demands for all of Palestine as their independent home, have swung in favor of partition, and Ben-Gurion is one who advocated Jewish participation in the London conference. He was expected in his meeting with Creech Jones to ask Britain to back the creation of a sizeable Jewish state.

The official informant said Creech Jones was unlikely to risk prejudicing the outcome of the conference by giving Ben-Gurion such a guarantee beforehand, even though the government might now favor such a course.

The informant said leaders at No. 10 Downing street—Prime Minister Attlee's official residence — the colonial office and the foreign office, the three government agencies most closely concerned with Palestine, were becoming increasingly inclined toward partition as the only feasible solution.

British political and administrative leaders have received advice also that many chieftains of the seven Arab states are ready to accept partition if they are convinced it is the only solution to the "impossible situation" of present strife and bloodshed, the government informant added.

New Holy Land Bid Reported (AP)

London, Jan. 1 (AP)—An official source said today that Britain was prepared to give "full and serious consideration" to the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine if the Jews presented such a plan at the London conference due to reassemble on January 21.

He added, however, that it was unlikely that the British Government would prejudge the outcome of the conference by guaranteeing the establishment of a Jewish state in the Holy Land.

The Basel conference of the World Zionist Congress, resolved last month not to participate in the London conference on Palestine unless Britain would give such a guarantee.

Partition Sentiment Strong

Other sources indicated that official British opinion was inclining increasingly to the view that the only feasible and final settlement for Palestine would be on the basis of partition.

These sources said British experts on Palestine had reported to the Government that the present situation in the Holy Land "just cannot be allowed to go on indefintely as it is at present."

They declared that, in their opinion, many Arab leaders would accept partition if it was made clear to them that this was the only possible way of ending an "impossible situation."

BRITAIN PLANS MINE CHANGES (AP)

Takes Over Coal Pits—Announces Modernization

J. WILLIAMS

London, Jan. 1 (AP)—The British Government, opening the New Year with its most ambitious experiment in socialism, took over the ownership of the nation's coal mines today and immediately announced a comprehensive modernization program to increase production.

Prime Minister Attlee and his entire Cabinet participated in formal ceremonies giving the Government monopolistic control of some 1,500 collieries, valued at $658,000,- 000 and rated as the kingpin of British economy.

Simultaneously, but without ceremony, the Government also took possession of the globe-circling communications system of Cable and Wireless, Ltd., valued at $120,000,000.

Employs 690,000 Miners

In the two transactions, the Government became the employer of approximately 690,000 miners and 10,000 communications workers. These figures are expected to be increased substantially through better working conditions, better pay and a five-day week.

Signifying that the Government had entered the coal business, a blue-and-white flag of the National Coal Board was run up over the board's headquarters in London.

Shortly thereafter, the board announced that most of the collieries would be converted from hand to mechanical loading—an undertaking which may take from ten to twenty years, officials said.

Prime Minister Attlee urged the nation to co-operate in making a success of the nationalization program.

Emanuel Shinwell, Minister of Fuel and Power, said that if Britain "had plenty of coal to sell, there is little or nothing it would not buy in the world today."

Figures were cited showing that Britain mined 287,000,000 tons of coal in 1913 and exported 73,000,000. In 1945, she mined only 174,000,000 tons and exported only 3,000,000. A decrease in the number of miners was given as the main reason for the drop.

To prevent disturbing production at a time when many important industries are faced with possible shutdowns because of a coal shortage, few changes will be made in the management of the collieries.

Under its long-range plan, the board expects to close inefficient workings and move the men to more productive mines.

British-Made Machines

Members of the board said that British-made machinery would be used to modernize the mines, and that it was hoped this would triple the production per miner.

Besides coal and communications, the Labor Government previously had brought civil aviation and the Bank of England under public ownership. A bill for the nationalization of inland transport—including trains, busses and barges—is pending in Parliament.

Owners To Receive Stock

The mine owners will be recompensed with Government stock which will guarantee them an income of dividends probably at two and one half per cent—the current prevailing interest rate paid by the Government—on the value of their holdings.

It will be about two years, however, before the Government arbitration board settles the amount of stock coming to each individual and they, meantime, will receive cash payments equal to half of last year's profits with an adjustment after the final figures have been arrived at.

The figures will be based on the net maintainable revenue and the board's valuation of what the mines would have brought if sold by a "willing seller to a willing buyer."

The nationalization act contains no ban against mine workers striking and specifically provides for the transfer to the coal board of present contracts for personal services.

Britain Now Runs All Coal Mines

London, Jan. 1 (AP)—The British Labor Government took possession of the nation's coal industry today, promising a new deal for the miners and more fuel for consumption and export.

Prime Minister Attlee and all members of his Cabinet were present as the blue and white banner of the National Coal Board was hoisted over the board's headquarters in Berkeley Square.

This week it will be run up over 1,500 mines.

Simultaneously, but without formal ceremony, the Government launched another experiment in socialism, assuming ownership of Cable and Wireless, Ltd., a globe-circling communications system.

Transport Is Next On List

Civil aviation and the Bank of England already are operating under Government ownership and nationalization of inland transport is before Parliament.

The taxpayers are paying $658,640,000 for the coal industry. The Coal Board must get more miners. In 1913, the 1,107,000 British miners produced 287,000,000 tons of coal, 73,000,000 tons of which were for export. In 1945, some 708,000 miners dug 174,000,000 tons, and only 3,000,000 tons were shipped aboard.

Emauel Shinwell, Minister of Fuel and Power, called for production increases to speed the restoration of exports.

Benefits Promised

"If we had plenty of coal to sell," he declared, "there is little or nothing it would not buy in the world today."

Promising higher wages, improved medical and social welfare services and modernization of the pits, he warned the miners that institution of the long-sought five-day week depended upon increased production.

Miners throughout the country celebrated.

Silver bugles echoed through the pit-scarred valleys of Wales, where even now Government-encouraged industrial development is under way to combat unemployment while the rest of the nation is experiencing manpower shortages.

BRITISH RETIRE GENERAL MORGAN

'Certainly Not At My Request,' High Officer Asserts

R. TOMPKINS

London, Jan. 1 (AP)—The British War Office unexpectedly announced today it has retired Lieutenant General Sir Frederick Morgan, 52-year-old top ranking officer who was deputy chief of staff of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's supreme headquarters and one-time head of UNRRA operations in Germany.

Morgan said his retirement was "certainly not at my request"—a direct contradiction of a War Office spokesman's statement that Morgan retired "of his own volition."

In the face of Morgan's statement to the British Press Association, the War Office backed away from its earlier statement and declined further comment except to deny an Evening News report that Morgan was shelved in the course of normal reduction of army strength.

International Episodes

There was no indication whether the War Office announcement that he was retired two days ago was linked with two international episodes last year.

Morgan became a storm center on both sides of the Atlantic when he told newspaper men in Frankfurt that he believed thousands of Polish Jews were flooding into the American zone in a "well-organized" exodus from Europe.

He refused unofficial suggestions that he resign. He was called to the United States where he conferred with Herbert Lehman, then director general of UNRRA, and UNRRA headquarters later announced that a decision to terminate his appointment had been suspended. He returned to his post in Germany.

Released By LaGuardia

Then last August he was released from his post by the director general, F. H. LaGuardia, after LaGuardia had challenged an unnamed "high authoritative source"—identified in press reports as Morgan—to prove the statement that Russian spies were using UNRRA as a means of gathering information in western Allied territory.

Reaching England after that episode, Morgan said he was "still friends" with LaGuardia, and praised British-American co-operation in UNRRA affairs in Germany.

Morgan, a top planner of the Normandy invasion, said today he was concentrating on "trying to get myself a job."

"No reasonable offer will be refused," he added.

Reorganization Result

When he was released from the UNRRA post, LaGuardia issued a statement saying Morgan's separation from the organization was the result of reorganization and should not be considered a "reflection" on the General.

The War Office statement today was unaccompanied by any such softening. It merely said:

"Major General Sir Fre[illegible]k E. Morgan, G.C.B., retires on [illegible]tired pay on December 29, 1946 [illegible]nd is granted honorary rank of [illegible]ten[illegible]ant general."

Britain Appoints Treaty Deputies

London, Jan. 1 (AP)—The Foreign Office announced today that Sir William Strang would be Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's deputy for consideration of a German peace treaty and that Viscount Hood would act in a similar capacity for the Austrian treaty.

Sir William, 53, is political adviser to Marshal of the RAF Sir Sholto Douglas, British commander in Germany. Lord Hood, 36, was one of Bevin's aides at the Paris and New York conferences of Foreign Ministers.

Special deputies appointed by the four major powers will meet January 14 in London to lay the groundwork for the treaties which the four Foreign Ministers will discuss in Moscow in March.

Highest Possible British Award Given Winant

London, Jan. 1 (AP)—John G. Winant, former United States Ambassador to Britain, received a royal accolade from King George VI in the annual New Year's honors list, which included persons ranging from British aristocrats to Sarawak headmen. Two new viscounts and barons were among the numerous titles created.

Winant, who received an honorary Order of Merit, which ranks just below knighthood—the highest award for which an American is eligible—was the only United States citizen listed. The Order of Merit also was awarded to Prime Minister Jan Christiaan Smuts, of South Africa.

The new viscounts are Stanley M. Bruce, chairman of the International Emergency Food Council, and William Allen, Baron Jowitt, Lord High Chancellor of Britain.

Those Made Barons

The title of baron was conferred on Sir Hastings Ismay, who played a major role in maintaining cordial relations between Britain and the United States during the war; Charles Dukes, vice chairman of the Trades Union Congress; Fred Kershaw, member of the Labor party's public health advisory committee; Sir Ernest Simon, housing expert and chairman of the Manchester University Council; also Capt. Morgan Garro-Jones, former member of Parliament and a director of several companies; Sir Walter Thomas Layton, chairman of the London News Chronicle and London Star; Sir John Maffey, British representative in Eire, and Lord Justice Sir Geoffrey Lawrence, president of the International Military Tribunal which tried the Nazi leaders at Nuernberg.

Shunned By Indians

In New Delhi, Viceroy Lord Wavell announced that no recommendations for awards had been submitted from India "in view of the attitude of the major political parties in India to honors and titles."

The Moslem League previously had renounced all British titles, and leaders of the Congress party reportedly had declined to submit any list.

A total of 38 new knights was created with many of the awards going to scientists, educators, lawyers, industrialists, commercial men and public officials. Among those upon whom knighthood was bestowed was Wilfrid Walter Nops, clerk of the Central Criminal Court.

New Advisers Named

Five new privy counsellors—honorary advisers to the King—who were named, are: William Glenvil Hall, member of Parliament and financial secretary of the Treasury; Arthur Henderson, parliamentary under secretary of state for India and Burma; Clement Edward Davies, chairman of the Liberal Parliamentary party; James Garfield Gardiner, Canadian Minister of Agriculture, and Ian Mackenzie, Canadian Minister of Veterans' Affairs.

The title of Knight of the Grand Cross of the Order of St. Michael and St. George was bestowed upon Sir Ronald Ian Campbell, British Ambassador in Cairo, and Sir Maurice Drummond Peterson, Ambassador to Moscow.

A number of theater personalities also were on the honors list, including Ralph Richardson, famed British actor, who was made a knight bachelor.

Bugles, Prayers, Radio: The World Greets 1947

London, Jan. 1 (AP)—Bugles echoed through the valleys of Wales this morning, as the old world greeted the new year on a keynote of hope, following revelries last night in Europe's capitals, where many persons also prayed for a brighter future.

The silver bugles marked the start of Government ownership of coal mines. A union leader, Will Lawther, called it "the end of an epoch of turmoil, strife and suffering" for 700,000 miners, the biggest bloc yet to call the Government boss.

The bugles sounded the hope of the whole devastated Continent for 1947. The Moscow radio expressed a feeling that 1946 had brought victory to the Soviet Union's foreign policy and defeat for "atomic diplomacy," thus improving the hope for peace.

5 P.C. Cut In Prices

In France, where a hard-pressed people somehow found a little wine and festive food to celebrate another new year, Premier Léon Blum ordered a flat five per cent cut in the marked prices of all goods and declared that another five per cent cut would be ordered in 60 days.

In Argentina, where there was a record heat wave, a $1,625,000,000 five-year plan became effective, with objectives including new roads, dams and irrigation reservoirs, new school buildings, low-cost housing and nationalization of industries.

President Enrique Adolfo Jimenez of Panama decreed amnesty for all persons charged with political offenses, while refugees throughout the world gained a little hope when the preparatory commission of the International Relief Organization came into being at Lake Success, N.Y. The commission is to take over certain functions of UNRRA, which died at midnight, and to take steps for operating the IRO.

The bugles in the Welsh valleys took up where the accordion in the hands of the happy reveler in Piccadilly Circus left off early today in one of the wildest nights London has seen since VE-day.

Crowds packed the streets from wall to wall, singing, dancing and kissing as Big Ben bonged the hour. Quieter thousands thronged St. Paul's Cathedral, symbolizing the countless places about the world where prayers welcomed the new year.

But in London, Rome, Paris, Brussels, Copenhagen, Stockholm and the rest, the fuel shortage dictated an early end to revelry. Celebrants had to get home before transportation stopped running.

Few Parties In Reich

In Germany, where the economic merger of the American and British occupation zones became effective today, parties were few, and chilly. In Hamburg, for instance, theaters, cinemas and restaurants were ordered closed at 7 P.M., beginning today, to save fuel.

For the Russians, it was the night for Father New Year to play Santa Claus and the Moscow radio said that joy was general throughout the Soviet Union. But the Russians also made it clear that even then they were not forgetting politics. Much of the Moscow radio's morning broadcast was given over to greetings from Czechoslovakia and Romania, thanking the Soviet Army again for their liberation.

CAMBODIAN REVOLT ENDED, PARIS SAYS

Rebellion Reported Launched By 2,000-Man Army

MEL MOST

Paris, Jan. 1 (AP)—The French Press Agency reported today that French forces had overcome another rebellion in Indo-China, this time in western Cambodia, at the opposite extremity from strife-torn Tonkin, in the north.

The dispatch said the rebellion was launched by a "2,000 or 3,000" man army of Cambodians calling themselves "Issaraks," or "Free Men," who have now been broken into small guerrilla bands after three weeks of fighting, in which they lost a large number of followers through desertion.

The report said the rebels, operating in the region of Battambang, which was ceded back to French Indo-China by Siam a few weeks ago, were armed by Siamese sources and were trained by representatives of the Viet-Namese from the embattled north.

Red-Turbaned Fighters

Issaraks, picturesque red-turbaned fighters, who were said to include some Japanese Army fugitives, were reported to have begun their rebellion December 9 when they attacked the rear of a column of 300 French and colonial troops which entered Battambang—normally a city of 230,000—and found it deserted.

Since then the insurgents have burned villages, destroyed bridges and massacred more than 100 inhabitants of a "pro-French Catholic village," the press agency said.

Battambang was visited by Marius Moutet, Colonial Minister, who returned to Saigon today with the declaration he found southern Indo-Chinese loyal to France.

Reinforcements Landing

It was announced that the first French reinforcements from Europe were landing at Cape St. Jacques, near Saigon, in southern Indo-China from the transport Pasteur.

The Pasteur was scheduled to continue to Haiphong with infantry and cavalry from the 1st Regiment of the French Foreign Legion as reinforcements for the French at Hanoi.

Press dispatches from Hanoi, still beleaguered by the fighting Viet Namese, said the Pasteur Institute there had been so badly damaged it would take "many months" to restore it. The institute is a leading research organization in colonial diseases.

French May Ease Indo-China Rule

Paris, Jan. 1 (AP)—A French press agency dispatch from Saigon said willingness to give up direct control of Indo-China and let native leaders administer it under a French-sponsored Indo-Chinese federation was expressed today by French Colonial Minister Marius Moutet.

"We have, on the other hand, assumed a duty of protecting the mass of the people and we must not abandon this duty," Moutet was quoted.

Back from a trip through Cambodia and Laos, Moutet said he found the southern Indo-Chinese loyal to France and grateful for her protection, in sharp contrast to northern Indo-China, where fighting still went on between French troops and nationalists.

BLUM ASKS SUPPORT OF PRICE CUTTING PLAN

PARIS, Jan. 1. — (AP) President Leon Blum appealed to the nation tonight to support his new price cutting program to save France "from financial disaster."

Blum said his plan for a five percent cut in the prices of all agricultural, commercial and industrial goods wiped out all recent price advances ordered by the government for such things as fares and postage.

Blum, 74, appealed for "patriotic cooperation" with the government. Before he spoke by radio, he called a press conference and begged the newspapers for support.

Blum's plan called for another mandatory five per cent cut in prices—which have skyrocketed steadily since the war—after 60 days.

Blum said he had persuaded French labor unions to withhold their demand for a 30 per cent wage increase to give his plan a chance at bringing living costs down within the range of present salaries.

He said a main object of his plan was "to create a psychological atmosphere" in which he hoped prices would start dropping normally, but was also aimed at dislodging hoarded stocks, from producers waiting for still higher price rises.

German Leaders Look To 1947 As Year Of Decision

R. NASISCHKE

Berlin, Jan. 1 (AP)—German leaders, hailing 1947 as "the year of decision," expressed qualified optimism today over the outlook for the forthcoming conference of foreign ministers, which will meet in Moscow next March to discuss a peace treaty for Germany.

Editors and politicians alike urged Germans to buckle down to the task of rebuilding their country.

"United and confidently into the new year," said a proclamation from the rightist liberal Democratic party. "Over our ruins, forward."

The middle-of-the-road Christian Democratic Union party's newspaper said that while it was "hard to have to wait so long for peace terms, this is not entirely unfavorable for Germany."

Most Call For German Unity

"Old friends in neutral lands again take up friendships with Germans as before," the paper said. "Mutual trust between the German and Russian peoples is slowly growing since the end of the war. And Americans are sending Germans gift relief packages."

Most of the leaders called for a unity of Germany, but in so doing emphasized the vast differences in the political philosophies of the four occupation zones—particularly the differences between the Soviet and the three Western zones.

For instance, the New Year's message of the Soviet-indorsed Socialist Unity party called for a "single, indivisible Germany," and at the same time said that "reactionary tendencies" still prevail in the British and United States zones. An economic merger of the British and United States zones became effective today.

Soviet Paper's Prediction

The Soviet military administration's official newspaper Taegliche Rundschau predicted that the new year would "bring Germany the peace," and added that Germany's principal problems were "democratization and demilitarization."

It was learned, meanwhile, that the United States Military Government planned to issue an order soon requiring all enterprises employing more than 10,000 persons in the United States zone to split up into smaller units.

The "decartelization" action will be taken unilaterally, since the Americans failed after eighteen months of negotiations to reach an agreement for a four-power plan, British sources indicated, however, that a similar measure would soon become effective in their zone.

The measures are in line with a Potsdam declaration calling for the decentralization of the German economy at the "earliest possible" time.

Actually, the "decartelization" will have little effect in the United States zone, since most of Germany's big industries are situated elsewhere, particularly in the British-occupied Ruhr.

U. S. Acts Alone To Stamp Out German Cartels

Will Order Dissolution of Enterprises Employing Above 10,000 Persons

BERLIN, Jan. 1 (AP).—The American Military Government will soon announce for its occupation zone of Germany a law requiring the dissolution of all enterprises employing more than 10,000 persons, it was learned from a high official source today.

By order of Lieutenant General Lucius D. Clay, deputy military governor, the Americans are going to act alone on decartelization after about eighteen months of effort to reach an agreement on a four-power plan, this source said. The Potsdam declaration called for decentralization of German economic and industrial combines at the "earliest possible" time.

However, the Americans express hope that their arrangement will become the basis for a Germany-wide anti-trust code. British sources said the British are expected to follow suit with a similar law for their zone, which today was formally merged economically with the American zone.

The heart of the American law is an outlawing of all arrangements for cartels, monopolies and restraints of trade. It requires that enterprises employing more than 10,000 persons be split up on the ground that they are excessive concentrations of economic power "unless it can be proved otherwise to the satisfaction of military government."

The law's effect in the American zone will not be large. Most of Germany's big industries and combines are centered in other occupation zones, especially the Ruhr, in the British zone.

Saar Held Future Key

RICHARD O'REGAN

Saarbruecken, Germany, Jan. 1 (AP)—French-approved German political leaders in the coal-producing Saar say that the question of whether France or conquered Germany becomes the power second to Russia on the European continent depends upon the future of this rich industrial basin.

The controversial issue of the Saar is a subject that probably will be decided by the four-power Foreign Ministers Conference in Moscow next March. The question in this smog-shrouded area is: "Will the Saar be allotted to France or Germany?"

French officials here hold that economic reunion of the Saar with France probably will be approved by the United States and Great Britain.

Communist Party View

On the other hand, the Communist party of Germany, in opinions expressed by the Soviet-sponsored Communist newspapers of Berlin, has openly opposed any union on the grounds it would hinder the economic and political regrowth of Germany.

French military authorities, speaking unofficially, say the retention of the great coal-rich area by Germany would be "disastrous" for Europe and would force France to reduce her industrial production by one third. In official terms, the French declare: "The Saar's industrial outlook is better with France than with Germany."

Danger From Past

Representing certain French and German points of view, George Schulte, vice president of the Social Democrat party of the Saar, declared:

"Certain political leaders feel a danger from the past. If there is an ultimate desire to establish a United States of Europe under the dominance of the United States, France must acquire the Saar coal to maintain her industrial independence."

Schulte said "this opinion is that of certain thinking people."

The Saar Communists, on the other hand, declare that the "Saar's economic future rests with Germany and that only with Germany can the future well-being of the Saar people be secured."

17 Big Mines

Steps taken by France to insure possession of the seventeen big mines of the Saar include: Establishment of an "economic frontier" separating the Saar from the rest of Germany, attempts to win the German population to a French way of thinking and the importation of food.

Antoine Plassard, technical supervisor of the Mission Francaise des Mines de la Sarre, said about 55 top-flight French engineers, most of whom worked in the Saar mines during France's administration from 1919 to 1935, were again spurring production.

Bishop Seeks Return Of Land To Germany

Frankfurt, Germany, Jan. 1 (AP)—Bishop Maximilian Kaller appealed today for return from Poland of "at least" part of Germany's former eastern territory to be used as a home for Germans expelled from the Sudetenland and other areas.

The appeal was contained in a New Year's Day radio address by the Catholic bishop, himself expelled from East Prussia. He has been named by the church to serve the religious interests of the expelled Germans, whose number he estimated at 13,000,000.

Without homes or jobs, the bishop said, "they are suffering for the guilt of the whole German people."

PLANE CRASH KILLS FAMILY

Pilot, Wife, Daughter Die in Craft 'Borrowed' in Germany

FRANKFORT ON THE MAIN, Germany, Jan. 1 (AP)—A United States Army Air Forces pilot, his wife and their 14-year-old daughter were killed yesterday when a liaison plane he had borrowed from an infantry regiment for an apparent "joyride" crashed and burned near Augsburg, air force headquarters announced today.

The victims' names were withheld until notification of the next of kin. The pilot was assigned to a fighter group in Lechfeld, Bavaria.

Franco's New Year's Message

Madrid, Jan. 1 (AP)—Generalissimo Franco, in a New Year's message to Spaniards, declared today the outstanding event of 1946 was the "great act of Spanish unity" of December 9 "against foreign injustice."

December 9 was the date of the Government-sponsored demonstration against the United Nations' recommendation for withdrawal of ambassadors and ministers from Madrid.

"Our peace and the security of our wellbeing are an undeniable reality which our enemies seem to cover with a curtain of insults and slanders," Franco said in a broadcast.

He said the "proof of our rightness and the rightness of our unity" were the "best and securest flag which Spaniards have raised in the course of centuries," and called for a "resurgence of our fatherland."

"The shrewdness of twisted men," he added, "is one thing and that of the peoples of good will is another very different thing. For this reason our affection and gratitude go out today to all those in the world who understood and helped us."

He asked for Spain's preservation from "the hates which churn in the air of the world," and said "we enter the new year with soul well tempered, ready to overcome difficulties and rancors and in it we shall continue that prodigious work of carrying out the economic and social reform of our towns and cities."

Guerrillas Infiltrating South, Athens Hears

Athens, Jan. 1 (AP)—Military intelligence reports of an Allied power said today that armed guerrillas were infiltrating southward from the northern frontiers to the Peloponnesus and central Greece. There has been a lull in partisan activity the last ten days.

The reports tended to uphold the assertion of Stephan Stephanopoulos, Minister of Co-ordination, that the guerrillas would shift operations from the border to central Greece in order to create the "propaganda" impression that Greece's troubles are internal while the United Nations investigating commission is at work.

The military intelligence report said there had been steady reports of armed guerrilla movements into the Pindus Mountains and Thessaly. One large band was reported already grouped in the mountains between Lamia and Leviadia in position to cut communications between Athens and Thessaly.

Russ Paper Optimistic

E. GILMORE

Moscow, Jan. 1 (AP)—An optimistic New Year's editorial in the foreign-policy weekly New Times today stressed the favorable prospects fo ra great power accord on Germany in 1947, provided no attempts are made to apply what it called "methods of atomic diplomacy and power politics."

"Despite the gloomy prophecies of the reactionaries," the editorial said, "The possibility under definite conditions of fruitful international collaboration in the present epoch has been practically proved."

New Times said the great Allied powers now faced the problem of Germany "which must be solved in the spirit of the principles of its democratization and demilitarization."

Finds Cheering Notes

Ilya Ehrenburg, the Prussian commentator, also found a few cheering notes in the world scene, although he found plenty of things to criticize.

"Some persons in 1946 tried to make this postwar year a prewar year. I remember particularly an article in the Hearst press," he said.

"A million Nazis have been amnested in the American zone," he continued. "It has been discovered it would take ten years to determine the degree of their guilt. . . . The Nuernberg criminals did not escape the noose, but their compatriots in the course of the year received pardons and good posts. . . .

"In the first postwar year military operations have not halted. Battles went on in Indonesia, Greece, China, Egypt, Palestine, India.

Buy Rich Trifles

"Peace is the dearest thing for all the world. I talk not only about Europe where tanks have rumbled, but America, too, wants peace. The people buy rich trifles and try not to think about the fence under which they will be in three months or three years. Gigantic strikes flare up. Trains cease running. Cities fall into darkness.

"The demobilized have brought home with them not only German shoulder straps and French perfume but they have brought experience. They can still vote for a hypocrite who shouts about a new war, who will compel them to die for the grandeloquence of a humbug."

"But," he concluded, "even in America the people have begun to think over the lessons of the past and over the dangers of the future. Never before were such ardent rallies, such ardent speeches."

Political Cartoons

The Soviet New Year's press devited its political cartoons to the theme that it is time to get rid of warmongers and Fascists from the international scene.

Izvestia had a Kremlin clock at midnight with a banner on which was the slogan, "Real democracy. For peace and security to all peoples."

In one corner was a group of vultures tagged a swarmongers and slanderers.

Trud's cartoon showed the Old Year telling the New he was sick of a group pictured as Bernard Baruch with atom bombs. Winston Churchill, the Turkish journalist, Yalchin, Franco and a Greek monarchist.

Another of Russia's central newspapers, Pravda, Communist party organ, attacked the economic merger of the British and American zones in Germany. It raised most of the same points as was done yesterday by Izvestia, the Government newspaper.

Jew Is Doomed In Jerusalem; 'War' To Continue, Irgun Says

Jerusalem, Jan. 1 (AP)—Dov Gruner, 33-year-old member of Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground resistance organization, was sentenced to hang by a military court today for participating in an attack on a police station, and the Irgun organization issued a note to Hebrew newspapers declaring "our warfare" would go on.

Gruner, who has a sister in America, was charged with firing a gun in the attack of April 23 on the Ramat Gan Police Station in which two police officers were killed and fifteen members of the resistance organization wounded. Gruner himself was wounded in the attack in which the armed group carried off two dozen automatic pistols.

Was In British Army

Gruner, a Hungarian Jew who came to Palestine six years ago without an immigrant permit and who was discharged from the Jewish brigade of the British Army just ten days before the attack on the police station, adopted customary Irgun practice in court. He refused to recognize the court's jurisdiction and demanded treatment as a prisoner of war.

His sentence is subject to confirmation by the Palestine military commander.

Irgun, in its note to newspapers, replied to United States Representative Joseph Clark Baldwin (R., N.Y.), whose message was published last Saturday in the Palestine Post asking the resistance group to "halt operations in the Holy Land until I have acquainted the American Government and people with your fight and the fight of Jewry at large." Baldwin is administratative chariman of the Political Action Committee for Palestine.

Thankful For Help

Irgun said it was thankful for Baldwin's "help in the campaign to free Palestine" but said "nothing must stop our fight."

Referring to agreements between American oil companies and Arabia, Irgun said "every barrel of oil resulting from that agreement contains a drop of Jewish blood."

Military officials announced that searches in Tel Aviv, instituted after the floggings of four British officers and soldiers, had ended with the questioning of 2,242 persons and the detaining of 47.

India Takes Communications

BOMBAY, Jan. 1 (AP)—India today took over the Indian Radio and Cable Communications, Ltd., which has been handling nearly 80,000,000 words annually. The company was renamed the Government of India Overseas Communications Service.

Iranian Deputy Is Arrested

TEHERAN, Iran, Jan. 1 (AP)—Ghassem Fooladvand, Deputy in the Fourteenth Mejlis (Parliament), was arrested today by order of Premier Ahmad Ghavam on a charge of "activities against the Government."

CHINESE BEAT YANK OFFICER

Shanghai Students Stage Anti-American Demonstrations

Shanghai, Jan. 1 (AP)—An American army officer was beaten on the head with bamboo canes, an attempt was made to disrobe his girl companion and an Associated Press photographer seeking to film the incident was given a black eye by Chinese students today in a continuation of anti-United States demonstrations.

[The girl's nationality was not given, but the area where the attack took place is popular with the Russians, French and other Europeans.]

The officer, a lieutenant, and the girl were walking along Avenue Joffre in the former French concession when set upon by some of the 1,000 Chinese students who staged a parade in protest against the retention of American military forces in China.

Photographer Gets Black Eye

While the demonstrators, shouting obscene words at the pair, struck the officer on the head and grabbed the girl's clothing, the photographer was given a black eye and forcibly prevented from taking a picture of the incident.

The lieutenant, grabbing the girl by the hand, began forcing his way through the cane-wielding crowd which abruptly ceased the attack. The photographer swung his camera at his assailants and reached safety.

Louis F. Roth, American manager of an import firm, but a resident of this country for so long that he considers China his home, was grabbed by the neck and shaken up.

"Get Out, You Beasts"

The demonstrators carried signs reading "China is not an American colony" and others warning "Get out or we'll throw you out; get out, you beasts."

The violence here was in contrast with the orderly if noisy demonstrations earlier in the week by thousands of students at Peiping.

It was at Peiping on Christmas Eve that a Chinese girl reported to police that two United States Marines raped her. Today a Marine board investigating the incident made its report to Col. Julian Frisbe, Marine commandant at Peiping.

Two Marines Held At Peiping

Contents of the report were not disclosed, but it was learned from Marine sources that Colonel Frisbe will order a court-martial on a basis of its findings. Sources said that failure of Chinese police to offer their evidence weakened the case.

The two Marines are in custody, one denying he was involved with the girl, the other saying she agreed to intimacies on a professional basis.

A spokesman at Peiping headquarters of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek said the students were justified in demanding punishment of the Marines but were unreasonable in demanding the withdrawal of American forces from China. The spokesman said the two demands were unrelated.

"Painfully Short Memories"

American service men exercised great self-restraint in Shanghai as the demonstrators roamed the streets, placarding buildings with crude cartoons depicting an American sailor stabbing a Chinese man and a Marine walking on a prostrate Chinese woman.

Abusive leaflets were stamped with the names of the universities of National Fuhtan and National China, both in Shanghai.

Angry Americans, recalling how United States soldiers in the recent past had been greeted with thumbs-up signs and shouts of "Ting Hao" (very good), said the Chinese appeared to have painfully short memories.

Chinese Molest U.S. Officer, Newsman

Shanghai, Jan. 1 (AP)—Several Americans, including an army lieutenant and an Associated Press photographer, were molsted in a particularly vehement anti-American demonstration by 1,000 Chinese univeristy students today.

A lieutenant, walking with a girl on Avenue Joffre in the former French concession, was assailed by paraders, who struck him over the heda with light bamboo canes. They also tried to pull off the girl's colthing and shouted obscenities.

The lieutenant, clasping the girl's hand, forced a path by using his body as a shield. The demonstrators suddenly left them.

Photographer Beaten

An Associated Press photographer forcibly was prevented from taking pictures by demonstrators who blacked one of his eyes and beat him on the back and shoulders with fists. He swung his camera to clear a path and made his way to safety.

Louis F. Roth, an American national and a longtime resident who considers China his home, said some students grabbed and shook him. He is manager of an export firm.

Americans were more disgusted than angry. They pointed out it wasn't so long ago that Chinese greeted every GI with a thumbs-up salute and shouts of ting hao (very good)!

Offensive Posters

Several posters in the Bund were particularly offensive. Some were taken as an oblique but pointed insult to womenfolk of military personnel who pass that thoroughfare to and from Broadway Mansions, one of the main hotels for service men and their families.

American soldiers and sailors visibly exercised great restraint as paraders shook fists and shouted, "Get out, you beasts!"

Whipped to a frenzy by cheer leaders, the demonstrators demanded immediate withdrawal of American forces and a change in United States policy in China.

"Get out or we'll throw you out" and "China is not an American colony" read two of their banners. They placarded buildings, busses, trucks and even private automobiles.

Buildings Placarded

They grew especially vociferous as they passed Broadway mansions, where 200 United States service men and their dependents live, and at United States naval shore headquarters on the Bund. They placarded buildings there.

One of their themes was "American GI's are worse than Japanese troops." Crude cartoons placarded on buildings depicted an American sailor knifing a Chinese man and a United States Marine trampling a Chinese woman underfoot.

A leaflet distributed in the name of National Fuhtan University, Shanghai, called Americans hypocrites who preach Christian principles in China, but who lynch their Negro citizens at home "on the slightest complaint."

Other Flareups Noted

A leaflet distributed in the name of National China University here accused Americans of "beating and cheating our honest traders and coolies; violating and abusing our decent women."

The demonstration was a flareup of similar student parades at Peiping, Tientsin and Hongkew over the week end. They originated in Chinese accusations that two United States Marines raped a Chinese girl but later generally were attributed to anti-American sentiment, inspired in part by Chinese Communist propaganda against United States help to the Nanking Government.

Marine officials, investigating the rape charge, unofficially exonerated one leatherneck; said the other insisted his relations with the Chinese girl were on a professional basis.

Students Called Unreasonable

[A Marine inquiry board completed its secret report in Peiping. Officers said the accused Marines would face a court-martial, but did not say on what charge.

[A spokesman at Chiang Kai-shek's Peiping headquarters said the students were unreasonable in demanding withdrawal of American forces but they had reason to demand punishment of the two accused Marines.

[Professor Hsiang Ta of national Peiping University, assaulted when he tried to dissuade demonstrating students Monday, resigned.

[Two grenades were thrown into a crowded Y.M.C.A. auditorium last night during a benefit musical concert at Peiping but no one was injured as the panicked crowd fled. The concert was sponsored by the Police Affairs department of the 89th division of the Chinese army.]

Rival China Rule Reports Doubted

By JOHN RODERICK

Peiping, Jan. 1 (AP)—Reports carried by China's Central News Agency that Communist chiefs at Yenan have decided to form a rival Government appear to be wishful thinking.

Such a move would supply the Government with an unanswerable reason for branding them as non-Chinese and Russian-controlled.

Yenan is excessively careful to avoid any grounds for such a charge. Its sole interest is to maintain a scrupulous correctness in its entire attitude toward Nanking.

When I left Yenan recently, the Communists had not even considered calling a rival congress of border-region representatives, much less of establishing a rival Government.

Confident Of Success

Chinese Communist leaders such as Mao Tse-tung know that to do so would mark a definite abandonment of all hope of gaining control of all China.

The Communists are confident they will be at the helm of a coalition government within a year, and believe democratic elements are arising within the Kuomintang (Government party) which will elminate its extreme Right wing.

Communists repeatedly have refused to set up their own central government in China—sometimes in periods of far greater stress than this. They are unlikely to do so now, when they view themselves as stronger than ever.

Mobilizing Resources

That the Communists are mobilizing their every resource for continuing battle is certainly true. Civilians are tightening their belts and going without new clothing to strengthen their army. A split within the party, about which there has been much talk outside the Communist areas, seems highly improbable.

The Communists have agreed unwaveringly upon Mao's program for democracy now and socialism later.

In the six months I spent in Yenan, I saw no sign of any split.

Strikes Irk Allies, Yoshida Tells Japs

Tokyo, Jan. 1 (AP)—Premier Yoshida in a New Year's message attacked labor elements he said instigated industrial strikes and warned that the Allied nations as a result "may cease to consider with sympathy a material importation plan in the future."

He expressed fear that actions of those "who are trying to avail themselves of the current economic crisis to further their political ends" may bring about a change in the attitude of the Allies.

Hirohito Ignored, M'Arthur Featured

Tokyo, Jan. 1 (AP)—All major Tokyo newspapers printed General MacArthur's picture on Page 1 today, but many wholly ignored Emperor Hirohito.

Such a slight to the throne once would have earned the thoughtless publisher a rebuke, at the least.

MacArthur's picture accompanied his New Year's statement to the Japanese people.

Filipinos Told '47 Will Test Ability To Survive As Nation

Manila, Jan. 1 (AP)—Six months old and still convalescing from war wounds, the Philippines republic opened the fateful new year with President Roxas frankly declaring it "will determine whether we can fully use the implements at hand to achieve our national salvation."

While Filipinos as a whole greeted the new year gayly, forgetting inflation and disorders which cling to their daily lives, Roxas made no effort to gloss "the desperate obstacles ahead."

Facing Decisive Year

In a New Year's message he said, 'Decisions which we make during the coming year will determine our national fate for generations."

The year's most important decision, perhaps, will come from a national plebiscite March 11 to determine if Americans will receive parity rights for 28 years in developing the country's resources. Although most Filipinos resent granting such rights, Roxas's vigorous campaigning is expected to win approval of the measure.

Roxas celebrated the new year—and his birthday today—by signing an agreement providing preferential trade relations with the United States for 28 years—eight years of free trade, followed by 20 years of gradually increasing tariffs on goods to and from the States.

The agreement is effective immediately. President Truman previously had signed it.

Manila Service Club Closes

MANILA, Jan. 1 (AP)—The world's largest Red Cross club—the Roosevelt—returned to civilian hands today preparatory to restoration to its pre-war status as the elaborate Jai Alai Fronton. The club closed after its daily attendance dropped from 35,000 to 2,000 because of the demobilization of most American forces here.

OIL DEALS TO STAND

Indonesian Minister Says That Agreements Are Recognized

BATAVIA, Jama, Dec. 31 (Delayed) (AP)—Economics Minister A. K. Mani announced today that the Government of the Indonesian Republic "will recognize the terms of pre-war contracts for the exploitation of oil concessions in Indonesia on condition that the Indonesian Republic replaces the Netherlands East Indies Government as party to these contracts."

"Contingent upon this we recognize our responsibility under international law to maintain the continuity of pre-war contracts," Mr. Mani declared, adding that arrangements would be made immediately for key foreign personnel to inspect oil fields in the interior of Java and Sumatra.

British 'Know All A-Secrets'

Sydney, Jan. 1 (AP)—The British atomic scientist, Prof. M. L. Oliphant, said today that Britain knew "all there was to be known" about the production of atomic bombs, because her scientists, including himself, had worked on production of the missiles in the United States.

Oliphant added that atomic energy could be harnessed for industrial purposes within five years, and said that "big firms in England are showing tremendous interest in the economic use of atomic energy."

Oliphant, who was born in Australia, plans to remain here for several weeks investigating the development of nuclear-energy studies.

GOP Asks Quick Action On Rest Of War Laws

Washington, Jan. 1 (AP)—Republicans kept their lawbooks handy today while awaiting word from President Truman on which cast-off war powers he wants back and which additional ones he is willing to junk.

While generally applauding the Chief Executive's surprise action in declaring World War II hostilities at an end yesterday, GOP lawmakers made clear they want a quick and full-scale review of the nearly 500 emergency controls still in effect.

"Repeal All Not Vital"

Representative Michener, of Michigan, who is slated to head the House Judiciary Committee when the Republicans take control of Congress Friday, said:

"I'm for repealing all the laws that are shown to be not essential to the functioning of the Government."

Other party leaders echoed Michener's views but said they preferred to wait until they have given the complex subject more study before citing specific examples of which wartime restrictions should be added to the eighteen Mr. Truman threw overboard yesterday, with 33 others set to die June 30.

Most Congress members said they hoped the President would go into greater detail in his State-of-the-Union Message scheduled for Monday.

Agencies Taken By Surprise

The end-of-hostilities proclamation caught not only Capitol Hill, but most Government agencies as well completely off guard. In retrospect, however, it appeared that at least two factors dictated the timing:

1. By acting when he did, Mr. Truman made the sharp excise-tax cuts called for correspond with the Government's fiscal year. Thus the new lower rates—such as $6 instead of $9 a gallon on liquor and 10 per cent instead of 20 per cent on furs—will go into effect July 1. Any other date would serve to complicate the Treasury's bookkeeping system.

2. If he had waited a single day longer, the Government's vast agricultural price support program would have been carried through three more full years. This program, which could cost as much as $1,500,000,000 a year, now will expire Dec. 31, 1948.

New Strike Law Expected

While yesterday's proclamation put an immediate end to the Government's power to seize strike-threatened industrial facilities and marked the whole Smith-Connally War Labor Disputes Act for death on June 30, the general view on Capitol Hill appeared to be that new strike-control legislation will be enacted before then.

One example of the surprise element in Mr. Truman's pronouncement was provided by the Veterans Administration.

One agency spokesman first said the action meant that, so far as VA is concerned, "the war is over." Hence, he added, definite time limits would begin to run on such things as education, loan and jobless pay benefits for ex-GI's.

Later, however, this was described as a "snap judgment," and officials said no formal interpretation would be issued until further study is made.

May Cut Civilian Employes

At the War Department, too, officials went into quick huddles to determine what the termination of hostilities would mean to the Army's vast establishment.

Later, it was said the proclamation "doesn't seem to affect any vital, basic authority." One effect, however, might be to clamp ceilings on the number of civilian employés permitted both the Army and Navy, although the probable limits could not be determined immediately.

Most other Government departments already are under such payroll ceilings.

Curb On Harbor Work Ends

One thing Mr. Truman's action did was to lift the wartime restrictions on rivers and harbors and flood-control projects—all of which come under War Department supervision.

But army engineers said this would not alter the fact that the extent of such work will be controlled by the money made available.

The original presidentially approved program for the current year totaled about $185,000,000, but subsequent relaxations lifted this to $290,000,000.

Mr. Truman said in his statement that some of the powers he was casting off in a single stroke are "desirable" either indefinitely or for the remainder of the reconversion period.

TWO DEMOCRATS JOIN REPUBLICANS IN SIGNING REPORT

No Recommendation Made Regarding Allowing Bilbo to Take Seat.

STRONGLY WORDED

Acceptance of Gifts from Contractors Assailed by Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1 — (AP) A majority of the Senate War Investigating Committee reported tonight that Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo (D-Miss) "misused his high office for personal gain" and violated Federal statutes.

Along with this finding the Senate was advised in a statement by Chairman Kilgore (D-W.Va.) that the report and evidence have been sent to the Attorney General "for such action as may be just and proper."

A Justice Department official said earlier an independent inquiry into Bilbo's affairs by the department "has been in progress in Mississippi and Washington for some time."

The report, indicated that Republicans may be joined by some Democrats in a battle to oust Bilbo. The Mississippian was elected to a third term last November after serving 12 years as a United States senator and eight years as governor of Mississippi.

2 Democrats Approve Report

Kilgore and Senator Mead (NY), another Democrat, joined four Republicans—Brewster (Me), Ferguson (Mich), Ball (Minn) and Knowland (Calif)—in approving the strongly-worded report. Mead, however, will not be a member of the new Senate.

Senator Connally (D-Tex) was the only member to disapprove the Bilbo criticism although two other Democrats, Tunnell (Del) and Briggs (Mo), neither approved nor disapproved.

Kilgore summarized the report this way:

"The report finds that Senator Bilbo, in return for the aid he had given certain war contractors and others before Federal departments, solicited and received political contributions, accepted personal compensation, gifts, and services and solicited and accepted amounts of money for a personal charity administered solely by him."

The 22-page report itself stated:

"The evidence presented to this committee clearly indicates that Senator Bilbo improperly used his high office as United States Senator for his personal gain in his dealings with war contractors."

No Recommendation Made

No recommendation was made to the senate as to what it should or should not do regarding allowing Bilbo to serve. But the committee noted that its lengthy investigations, followed by both closed and open hearings, had sought facts that "might have a bearing upon his fitness to serve as a Senator."

It was perfectly proper for Bilbo as a senator to aid Mississippi contractors in obtaining nearly $26,000,000 worth of war jobs, the committee found, but added:

"The impropriety of Senator Bilbo's actions consists in the acceptance of gifts, services and political contributions from these same contractors whom he aided. The committee is unable to accept the theory that Senator Bilbo's aid to those dealing in government contracts and the benefits he received were unrelated."

Listing "gratuities or benefits" from war contractors to Bilbo as worth from $57,089.05 to $88,721.44, the committee singled out for comment a sedan valued at $1,907, an artificial lake and swimming pool on "his estate at Poplarville, Miss., and a $48,042 loss by a contractor friend in operation of the Bilbo farm.

Bilbo Urges "Open Minds"

Bilbo told his colleagues, in a letter he made public tonight, that "I certainly have no objection" to submitting the record and testimony to the Justice Department. He urged the senators to approach his case with open minds.

"Please read the evidence on all of the charges before making any decision," he wrote.

The letter accompanied a response to the investigating committee's report, prepared on Bilbo's behalf by his attorney, Forrest B. Jackson. The response declared:

"The true evidence presented to the committee clearly indicates that Senator Bilbo was guilty of no impropriety as a United States senator and that he did not in any instance use his high office for his person al gain in his dealings with war contractors or any other persons."

The response declared that charges against the senator were "tried before the bar of public opinion" in the election, resulting in his being "acquitted by the people of Mississippi."

Jackson added that "there may be sharp differences of opinion as to their ideologies which Senator Bilbo entertains, but if the constitution and congressional precedents are to prevail he is entitled" to the Senate seat.

No Decision on Action

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said today a majority of the Senate Republican policy committee favors trying to bar Bilbo at the door of the senate Friday, but had come to no final conclusion.

Taft told reporters that such action would require only a majority vote of the senate. It would not require bringing formal charges, he added.

Taft said the policy committee will meet at 11 a.m., (EST) tomorrow in an attempt to reach a decision on policy to lay before the conference of all Republican senators scheduled for 2:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Should the Republicans bring up the Bilbo fight when he marches down the aisle on opening day to take his oath it would find only 56 holdover senators in their seats, a slight majority of them Democrats.

Army Occupation Hopes Are Blasted

Washington, Jan. 1 (AP)—Any idea occupation troops might have had about getting home early because of President Truman's proclamation of the end of hostilities was dashed tonight by the War Department.

An announcement by Robert P. Patterson, Secretary of War, said that "troops serving overseas will not be affected for the present by the restoration of the statutory provision of the two-year maximum for duty in certain foreign stations."

The statute was one of a number which again became operative with the presidential proclamation. It stipulates a two-year limit on foreign service of troops in the Philippines, the Asiatic station, China, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Panama Canal Zone.

Longer Service Exception

It contains, however, an exception which provides longer service in the discretion of the Secretary of War when necessary for "temporary emergencies."

Patterson said these "temporary emergencies do exist in the areas listed and therefore the statute will have no effect at this time" for those troops, and he then added:

"Troops stationed in areas not listed in the act, such as Germany, Austria, Italy, Japan, Korea and Alaska, were not affected by the President's proclamation inasmuch as they had never been within the scope of the act."

VETERANS' AID PROBE URGED

V.F.W. Head Asks Congress To Check On Waste

Washington, Jan. 1 (AP)—Louis E. Starr, national commander of Veterans of Foreign Wars, charged the Government with waste today in the administration of veterans' affairs and called for a congressional investigation.

Starr's assertions drew immediate counterfire from Paul Benedict, an official of the Veterans Administration, who declared:

"Starr's figures are all wet."

"Costs Are Unduly High"

The V.F.W. chief said in a statement, "it is evident that overhead and administrative costs are unduly high," and declared that Veterans Administration "salaries and personal expenses alone will eat up better than eleven per cent of the total budget."

Benedict termed Starr's eleven per cent estimate "nonsense," asserting that current administrative expenses are only 3.4 per cent.

In addition, he said Starr's figure of $557,287,000 for 1947 "salaries and personal expenses" also included expenses for hospitalization and rehabilitation of disabled veterans, all burial allowances, outpatient treatment and other items.

"Salaries and expenses of those who handle veteran affairs for 1947 are larger than the total veteran budget for 1940," Starr said.

Printing Costs Cited

"Around 215,000 officials and employés will be paid out of the $557,287,000 recommended for salaries and personal expenses. Printing and binding will cost another $2,000,000. Penalty-mail costs will total $3,500,000. And rental floor space and construction is another huge item which eats into the veteran dollar."

Starr said it was only reasonable to expect the new Congress to look into "all avenues of public expenditure," and urged the lawmakers to investigate "the costs of administering veterans' affairs with the purpose of making sure that veterans receive every penny possible out of the appropriations."

Groves Says Americans Should Read Canadian Report On Spies

Washington, Jan. 1 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, lately the custodian of the atom bomb, put on the list of recommended reading for Americans today the Canadian Government's report on spy activities in the Dominion.

The General, who stepped down yesterday from the command of the Manhattan Engineering District upon its transfer to the Atomic Energy Commission, was asked by reporters if he thought some atomic secrets had leaked into unauthorized foreign hands.

He referred to his previous comments on that subject, saying "that is undoubtedly true." He did not discuss how he thought leaks might have occurred, but called attention to the Canadian report which he said was "a most illuminating document, but one which no one in the United States seems interested in reading."

Industrial Uses Predicted

That report grew out of arrests in an alleged conspiracy to communicate wartime secrets, including a superexplosive designated as R.D.X., to a Russian espionage ring.

[The United States presumably has shared atomic secrets only with the codeveloping nations, Britain and Canada.

[In Sydney, Australia, the British nuclear physicist, Prof. M. L. Oliphant, said that Britain "knew all there was to be known" about producing bombs because her scientists, including himself, had worked with the United States in the development. Atomic power can be harnessed for industrial use within five years, Oliphant predicted.]

To Keep Security Group

The elaborate security organization which Groves set up to protect the bomb secret in the plants and laboratories operated by the Manhattan District has been transferred intact, with all its personnel, to the new Atomic Energy Commission, officials of that agency said today. A number of the non-regular Army and Navy officers in the security unit are expected to remain with the commission as civilians after uniformed personnel moves out of the propect, it was said.

The wartime link between the security force of the Manhattan District and the Federal Bureau of Investigation is continued by terms of the Atomic Energy Act.

The security force also utilizes the services of any other Government agency needed. In general, guards at the plants of the commission are civilians.

Provides Death Penalty

The atomic-energy law exacted last summer incorporated into the legal code of the nation drastic security regulations which prior to that time had existed only under terms of a letter written by the late President Roosevelt. The new law provides, among other things, death or imprisonment for life for anyone convicted of turning over atomic information to a foreign power with intent to injure the United States.

Tight injunctions also are placed on the commission itself. The law provides that until Congress by joint resolution declares that effective international safeguards have been established against destructive use of atomic energy "there shall be no exchange of information with other nations."

Messersmith Mum After Parley With Byrnes on Argentine Policy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1—(AP) Secretary of State Byrnes today talked over Argentine and other Latin American matters with Ambassador George E. Messersmith in a meeting which apparently averted for the moment any showdown on Argentine policy.

The two conferred for one hour and 20 minutes on this New Year's holiday. Talking to reporters, Messersmith left unchallenged reports that he was in sharp conflict with Assistant Secretary of State Braden over State Department handling of relations with Argentina.

Of his meeting with Byrnes in the full secrecy of the secretary's office, the veteran envoy would say only that "we discussed problems of the American republics in general rather than any specific problem."

He will see Byrnes again, he said, and expects also to see Braden and to talk with President Truman before he leaves on his return trip to Buenos Aires.

Meanwhile, he has been undergoing examination and treatment at Naval Medical Center here for stomach ulcers and reported himself to be in much improved health. His trip to Washington was his first since the assignment to Argentina as Braden's hand-picked trouble shooter and tough-handed diplomat for dealing with President Juan Peron last spring.

Since that time, virtually all responsible informants agree, Messersmith has departed sharply from Braden's day-to-day management of relations with Argentina. However, both subscribe in principle to the same basic statement of American-Argentine policy as laid down by Secretary Byrnes last April 8.

The critical question thus appears to be whether Messersmith can persuade Byrnes to modify the application of this policy. Modification might provide easier business relationship with Argentina and eventually the purchase by Argentina of United States arms—something which many army officials have been working for as part of a plan to standardize arms throughout the hemisphere.

When he met reporters outside Byrnes' office today, Messersmith was reminded of the widely-published reports of his conflict with Braden and asked for comment.

"Well," he said, "that's what I read in the papers. I've consistently refused to make any comment."

While neither Byrnes nor Messersmith divulged any information on their talk, there was speculation that it may have included not only discussion of Argentine relations but also (1) the broader problem of arms standardization as applied to all Latin America and (2) questions of another Pan American conference to arrange for a hemispheric defense system.

LA FOLLETTE SEEN FOR U.N.

Senator Reported Chosen For Winant's Economic Seat

Washington, Jan. 1 (AP)—President Truman and Secretary of State Byrnes were reported today to have decided upon appointment of Senator La Follette (Prog., Wis.) to succeed former Ambassador John G. Winant as American member of the United Nations Economic and Social Council.

Winant submitted his resignation several days ago and it will be accepted, according to responsible informants.

Second GOP Leader Named

Months ago, when he was Ambassador to London, there was speculation that the former New Hampshire governor might desire to leave foreign affairs and enter domestic politics.

Selection of La Follettee would add a second Republican to this country's top United Nations representation. President Truman designated Senator Austin, of Vermont, a colleague of La Follette on the Foreign Relations Committee, to be United States representative on the Security Council and ranking United Nations delegation member last year, but could not make the nomination formally to the Senate until the start of the new Congress.

Defeated In Primary

It is expected that Mr. Truman will send the names of Austin and La Follette to the Capitol in a few days.

After 21 years in the Senate, La Follette was defeated for renomination in the Wisconsin primaries after he switched his party designation from Progressive to Republican.

LANDON PROPOSES 3-NATION PACT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1. — (AP) Alf M. Landon, the 1936 Republican nominee for President, came out today for a proposal that Congress invite the British and Canadian parliaments to join in forming a combined committee on joint affairs of the three countries.

Landon's views were published in Freedom and Union, a publication edited by Clarence Streit, leader in the movement for "Union Now" with Great Britain.

Landon recalled that in October, 1945, he advocated an American-British-Canadian committee on atomic policy, and added:

"The only question is whether we should leave such tripartite affairs to the diplomats, generals and admirals exclusively, or have the elected representatives of the three peoples also meet together to discuss them. Since these latter are the real policy-makers in the end in these democracies, they, too, should exchange views."

The magazine listed as among three-sided affairs needing joint attention: The atomic bomb, U. S. loans to Britain and Canada, German occupation, Italian occupation, the Palestine problem, production, and world trade.

Message Curbs For Axis Relaxed

Washington, Jan. 1 (AP) — Some wartime curbs on business communications with Germany and Japan have been relaxed, the State and Treasury departments announced today.

Some examples of messages which may freely be exchanged:

Reports on the status of property in Germany and Japan, information on trade prospects, and "other messages looking toward resumption of business relations" with those countries.

Also authorized was transmission of wills, legal notices, and birth, death and marriage certificates.

Still banned are messages putting into effect any financial or business transaction. Nor can checks, currency, money orders or powers of attorney be sent.

Business communications will be subject to censorship in Germany and Japan, and censors will not pass correspondence with Germans or Japanese concerning German or Japanese external assets.

Limited telecommunication service with Japan has now been opened, but payment for messages must be made in dollars.

Treasury officials said the arrangements do not affect existing press communication arrangements.

Government Removes Cheese Export Curb

Washington, Jan. 1 (AP)—Export licensing controls have been removed from cheese, unsweetened evaporated milk, some forest products, synthetic chemical cleansing agents and other commodities, the Commerce Department announced today.

This brought to more than 150 the number of items decontrolled—thus permitting them to be exported freely—in the last two months.

Greeting To 1947 Is Hopeful

New York, Jan. 1 (AP)—A world facing the manifold problems of postwar reconstruction greeted the New Year today with expressions of hope and prayers for guidance as well as with traditional year-end revelry in lands most favored by the fortunes of war.

The trumpeting of silver bugles in Wales, marking the start of Government ownership of coal mines, heralded Britain's hope for a new and better life for its peoples through Socialist postwar planning.

London's New Year's Eve was the wildest night since V-E day, with thousands packing Picadilly Circus to cheer as Big Ben, their revered old clock, tolled the midnight hour.

At home millions of United States citizens had their biggest and costliest New Year's blowout, which was marred by at least 32 air and ground holiday fatalities.

Truman Works On Message

President Truman worked on his state-of-the-Union message for the new Congress after returning to the White House from the yacht Williamsburg, anchored in the Potomac, where he greeted 1947.

Russia said in a radio message that hope for peace was improved by a victory won for her foreign policy and a defeat handed "atomic diplomacy." Father New Year played Santa Claus to Soviet children.

German newspapers termed 1947 the "year of decision" for that nation and the Rightist Liberal Democratic party proclaimed, "United and confidently into the new year: Over our ruins—forward."

King George II of Greece told his chilly and hungry subjects that "some of our allies" had made "an unfair and hostile diplomatic and press attack" on Greece.

Franco's Conscience At Ease

In Spain Generalissimo Francisco Franco told his people in a New Year's message that "our conscience rests on the exquisite and recognized gentlemanliness, nobility and high-mindedness with which our policy has been carried out."

Premier Yóshida of Japan warned in Tokyo that Japan's industrial strife might alienate the Allied nations and in Manila President Roxas of the Philippines said the new year would determine "whether we can fully use the implements at hands to achieve our national salvation."

King Greets Subjects

King George of England sent greetings to his subjects through the Lord Mayor of England and said he and Queen Elizabeth "sincerely reciprocate their good wishes for the coming year."

The Dutch, with all cafes, restaurants and theaters closed, began the new year eating home-baked apples and drinking gin and punch at home.

Young King Mihai of Romania, his nation's celebration shadowed by widespread starvation, broadcast an appeal for unity and solidarity and thanks to Russia for helping Romania re-establish herself in world politics.

In Paris the merriest New Year's celebration since liberation kept up until 5.30 A.M. yesterday.

Rome, her streets deserted after the gayest and most expensive New Year's in six years, slept off the celebration before facing today's general strike in the south in protest against unemployment and rising food costs.

$58,000,000 To Aid Jews

New York, Jan. 1 (AP)—Chairman Edward M. M. Warburg, of the Joint Distribution Committee, said today his organization had appropriated more than $58,000,000 to aid nearly 1,000,000 distressed Jews in other countries during 1946.

HAMBURG, GERMANY, JAN. 1-(AP)-JOHANN SCHWARZHUBER, FORMER ASSISTANT COMMANDANT AT THE RAVENSBRUCK CONCENTRATION CAMP, TESTIFIED IN AN AFFIDAVIT TODAY THAT WOMEN INMATES TOO SICK TO WORK WERE GASSED BECAUSE SHOOTING WAS "TOO SLOW."

HE AND 15 OTHER STAFF MEMBERS OF RAVENSBRUCK, LARGEST WOMAN'S PRISON ON RECORD, ARE ON TRIAL BEFORE A BRITISH MILITARY COURT ON WAR CRIMES CHARGES.

SCHWARZHUBER SAID HITLER ORDERED THE WOMEN PUT TO DEATH IN THE GAS CHAMBER. HE SAID 150 WERE ORDERED TO DISROBE AND MARCHED NAKED INTO THE CHAMBER ON THE PRETEXT THAT THEY WERE TO BE DELOUSED. THE DOOR WAS LOCKED. A GAS CONTAINER WAS THROWN THROUGH A WINDOW. "FOR TWO MINUTES, I HEARD WHIMPERING AND MOANING, THEN ALL WAS QUIET," THE AFFIDAVIT SAID. SCHWARZHUBER ESTIMATED 200 WOMEN WERE SHOT AT THE CAMP, BUT THAT 2,400 WERE EXECUTED BY GAS IN THE INTEREST OF SPEED.

THE AFFIDAVIT SAID 14 AMERICAN WOMEN, 10 BRITISH, 10,000 RUSSIAN, 8,000 POLISH, 4,000 GERMAN AND HUNDREDS OF FRENCH, BELGIAN AND LUXEMBOURG WOMEN CROWDED THE STOCKADES TOWARD THE END OF THE WAR. BERLIN,JAN.1-(AP)-EFFECTIVE JAN. 15, PARCEL POST RELIEF PACKAGES FROM THE UNITED STATES AND ALL OTHER COUNTRIES OF THE WORLD EXCEPT SPAIN AND JAPAN MAY BE SENT INTO ALL FOUR OCCUPATION ZONES OF GERMANY.

ON THAT DATE THIS ONE-WAY SERVICE WILL BE EXTENDED TO BERLIN AND THE SOVIET ZONE. THE RUSSIANS WERE THE LAST TO AUTHORIZE IT FOR THEIR ZONE AND DID SO AFTER MONTHS OF NEGOTIATION IN FOUR-POWER COUNCILS HERE.

GIFT RELIEF PARCEL SERVICE FROM THE UNITED STATES WAS FIRST INSTITUTED FOR THE AMERICAN OCCUPATION ZONE LAST JUNE 1 AND SUBSEQUENTLY WAS EXTENDED TO THE BRITISH AND FRENCH ZONES.

UP TO DEC. 27, A TOTAL OF 3,065,000 PARCELS HAD BEEN RECEIVED FOR DISTRIBUTION TO GERMAN ADDRESSEES.

SINCE MOST OF THEM WERE OF THE MAXIMUM PERMISSABLE WEIGHT--ELEVEN POUNDS--THIS MEANT A CONTRIBUTION OF MORE THAN THIRTY MILLION POUNDS OF FOOD, CLOTHING, SOAP AND MEDICAL SUPPLIES.

THE FOLLOWING RULES APPLY TO THE EXTENDED, GERMANY-WIDE PARCEL SERVICE, WHICH IS HANDLED THROUGH REGULAR POSTAL CHANNELS:

1-ONLY ONE GIFT PARCEL PER WEEK MAY BE SENT BY OR ON BEHALF OF THE SAME SENDER TO OR FOR THE SAME ADDRESSEE.

2-CONTENTS ARE LIMITED TO SUCH RELIEF ITEMS AS NON-PERISHABLE FOODS, CLOTHING, UNDERCLOTHING, SOAP, SHOES AND PHARMACEUTICAL PRODUCTS. NO WRITING OR PRINTED MATTER OF ANY KIND MAY BE EITHER ATTACHED OR ENCLOSED.

3-PARCELS MUST NOT EXCEED 11 POUNDS IN WEIGHT NOR EXCEED 71 INCHES IN LENGTH AND GIRTH COMBINED NOR 35.5 INCHES IN GREATEST LENGTH.

4-PARCELS ARE LIABLE TO CENSORSHIP AND CUSTOMS EXAMINATION IN THE ZONE OF THEIR DESTINATION. EACH PARCEL MUST BE ACCOMPANIED BY A CUSTOMS DECLARATION WITH CONTENTS, WEIGHT AND VALUE ITEMIZED.

5-UNDELIVERED PARCELS WILL NOT BE RETURNED TO SENDERS, BUT TURNED OVER TO AUTHORIZED GERMAN RELIEF ORGANIZATIONS FOR DISTRIBUTION TO THE NEEDY.

THE GIFT PARCEL POST SERVICE IS NOT TO BE CONFUSED WITH CARE (COOPERATIVE AMERICAN REMITTANCES FOR EUROPE) PACKAGES, WHICH ARE ORDERED AND PAID FOR IN THE UNITED STATES AND DELIVERED FROM WAREHOUSED STOCKS IN WESTERN GERMANY AND AMERICAN SECTOR OF BERLIN.

EXCLUSION OF SPAIN AND JAPAN FROM THE PARCEL SERVICE IS IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE RESTORED INTERNATIONAL POSTAL SERVICE FOR GERMANY AUTHORIZED BY THE ALLIES, WHICH ALSO EXCLUDES LETTER MAIL FROM THESE TWO COUNTRIES.

NUERNBERG, GERMANY, JAN.1-(AP)-ABEL POMERANZ SAID TODAY HE HAD RESIGNED AS CHIEF OF THE STAFF PROSECUTING GERMAN INDUSTRIALISTS FOR WAR CRIMES BECAUSE, HE CHARGED, THE INDUSTRIALISTS' CASES ARE BEING RUSHED TO TRIAL WITHOUT ADEQUATE PREPARATION AND EVIDENCE.

SEVERAL OF GERMANY'S WARTIME INDUSTRIAL LEADERS ARE TO FACE AN AMERICAN WAR CRIMES COURT HERE FEB. 1.

SUCCESSFUL PROSECUTION OF THE COMPLEX CASES CAN NOT BE PREPARED ON SUCH SHORT NOTICE, THE FORMER NEW YORK CITY ATTORNEY SAID. HE COMPLAINED THAT THE STAFF GIVEN HIM TO ASSEMBLE THE EVIDENCE WAS INADEQUATE, WITH A SERIOUS LACK OF RESEARCH ANALYSTS AND BI-LINGUAL LAWYERS.

WARNING THAT THERE IS DANGER THE TRIALS "MIGHT BE TURNED INTO A SHOW" UNLESS A SOLID CASE IS PRESENTED, POMERANZ STRESSED THAT IT IS NOT SO IMPORTANT THAT INDUSTRIALISTS BE CONVICTED, AS THAT A COMPLETE PICTURE OF THE WORKINGS OF GERMAN INDUSTRY AND ITS LEADERS' ALLEGED COOPERATION WITH NAZISM BE PRESENTED.

A SPOKESMAN FOR THE OFFICE OF THE CHIEF COUNSEL FOR WAR CRIMES, CONFIRMING POMERANZ'S RESIGNATION, ACKNOWLEDGED THAT PREPARATION OF THE INDUSTRIALISTS'S CASE WAS DIFFICULT AND HAMPERED BY DIFFICULTY IN FINDING BI-LINGUAL LAWYERS, BUT DESCRIBED THE LAWYERS WORKING ON THE CASE AS "ABLE, INTELLIGENT AND ENERGETIC."

MOSCOW, JAN. 1-(AP)-A TASS DISPATCH FROM BERLIN CHARGED TODAY THAT UNITED STATES AND BRITISH AUTHORITIES THUS FAR HAD FAILED TO IMPLEMENT LAND REFORM SYSTEMS IN THEIR ZONES IN GERMANY AND CRITICIZED DRAFT PROJECTS APPROVED BY THE TWO WESTERN POWERS AS INCONSEQUENTIAL, HALWAY MEASURES.

CITING STATISTICS ON THE SCOPE OF MEASURES UNDERTAKEN IN THE SOVIET ZONE TO DIVIDE UP LAND AMONG SMALL PEASANTS, THE DISPATCH SAID:

"CONTRARY TO THE SITUATION IN THE WESTERN ZONES WHERE SABOTAGE BY BIG LANDOWNERS HAS BROUGHT IT ABOUT THAT THE POPULATION IS STARVING, THE SOVIET ZONE NOT ONLY SUPPLIED ITSELF WITH FOOD AT ESTABLISHED NORMS BUT EVEN WAS ABLE TO ASSIST X X X THE POPULATION IN THE BRITISH ZONE.

"IN OTHER OCCUPATION ZONES IN GERMANY, DESPITE THE CATASTROPHIC FOOD SITUATION, LAND REFORM THUS FAR HAS NOT BEEN CARRIED OUT AND AT BEST ONLY PROJECTS FOR IT HAVE BEEN DRAWN UP."

Bombay, Jan. 1-(AP)-Commenting on the Bombay government's New Year "gift" of a province-wide total prohibition plan, the Times of India said today that the proper way to achieve prohibition was not by the drastic extinction of the liquor trade but by the promotion of temperance.

"It is an axiom, as the United States of America found to its cost, that the social habits of a people cannot be changed overnight by legislative fiat," the Times commented, "Any attempt to ~~x~~ do so inevitably leads to defiance of the law."

The newspaper drew attention to the huge financial burden prohibition ~~xxxx~~ entailed on ~~the xxxxxxx~~ provincial treasury and the possibility of new taxes ~~on the public~~. The Times urged uniformity of policy on liquor throughout India, observing that for one province to have prohibition while its neighbor was wet placed a premium on bootlegging.

WASHINGTON, JAN. 1-(AP)-SCIENTISTS SAID TODAY THAT SEARCH FOR THE WARHEAD OF A V-2 ROCKET FIRED TO A RECORD HEIGHT OF 114 MILES DEC. 17 WILL BE RESUMED AFTER THE HOLIDAYS.

EXPERTS OF THE JOHNS HOPKINS PHYSICS RESEARCH LABORATORY AT SILVER SPRING, MD. SAID THE HUNT FOR THE MISSING WARHEAD WAS SUSPENDED TEMPORARILY BECAUSE MANY OF THE WORKERS AT THE WHITE SANDS, N. MEX., ROCKET TESTING BASE WERE ON VACATION.

THEY EXPRESSED CERTAINTY THAT THE WARHEAD, WHICH CONTAINED SCIENTIFIC INSTRUMENTS, HAD LANDED IN THE TESTING AREA AND SAID THE SEARCH WAS NARROWING DOWN TO A LOCALIZED SECTION. IT IS QUITE POSSIBLE, THEY ADDED, THAT THE WARHEAD MAY HAVE BROKEN UP BEFORE HITTING THE GROUND AFTER BEING BLOWN FREE OF THE ROCKET BODY.

THEY WERE AMUSED BY SUGGESTIONS THAT THE WARHEAD MAY BE SUSPENDED IN MIDAIR, POINTING OUT THAT THE LEVEL AT WHICH GRAVITY BECOMES NEUTRALIZED IS MANY THOUSANDS OF MILES BEYOND THE 114-MILE ALTITUDE. AS AN EXAMPLE, THEY EXPLAINED THAT EVEN AT 4000 MILES IT IS BELIEVED GRAVITY OPERATES AT ABOUT ONE-FOURTH THE PULL AT THE EARTH'S SURFACE, DIMINISHING IN GEOMETRIC REGRESSION AS THE DISTANCE FROM THE EARTH DECREASES.

IT ALSO IS POSSIBLE THAT THE ROCKET PARTS MAY HAVE SO SCATTERED IN THE DESERT THAT THEY NEVER WILL BE FOUND.

(EDITORS: A RECENT STORY FROM WELLESLEY, MASS., REFERRING TO MISS EMILY G.BALCH, CO-WINNER OF THE NOBEL PEACE PRIZE, OMITTED REFERENCE TO THE PEACE EFFORTS OF MME ROSIKA SCHWIMMER DURING WORLD WAR I. THE ATTACHED STORY COVERS THESE OMISSIONS.)

(ADVANCE) NEW YORK, JAN.1-(AP)-MME.ROSIKA SCHWIMMER, A VICE-PRESIDENT OF THE WOMENS INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE FOR PEACE AND FREEDOM, SAID TODAY THAT SHE WAS WORKING AS ARDENTLY FOR A PERMANENT PEACE AS AN AFTERMATH OF WORLD WAR TWO AS SHE DID AFTER THE CONFLICT OF 1914-18.

THE OFFICIAL REPORT OF THE INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF WOMEN, HELD AT THE HAGUE IN THE SPRING OF 1915, STATED THAT "IN THE FIRST MONTH OF THE WAR ROSIKA SCHWIMMER OUTLINED A SCHEME FOR A CONFERENCE OF NEUTRALS FOR MEDIATION AND WENT TO THE UNITED STATES TO ENLIST HELP AND SYMPATHY."

MME.SCHWIMMER WAS A DELEGATE FROM HUNGARY AND A PRINCIPAL FIGURE OF THE CONGRESS AT WHICH MISS EMILY G.BALCH, OF WELLESLEY, MASS., WHO RECENTLY WAS CO-WINNER OF THE NOBEL PEACE PRIZE, WAS IN CONTACT WITH WOMEN'S INTERNATIONAL PEACE EFFORTS.

TODAY MME.SCHWIMMER WORKS IN HER BOOK-LINED LIBRARY OVERLOOKING NEW YORK'S HUDSON RIVER DRIVE (54 RIVERSIDE DRIVE) WHERE SHE STILL SEEKS TO FURTHER THE CAUSE OF PERMANENT PEACE BY WORKING FOR WORLD FEDERAL GOVERNMENT WITH THE SAME VIGOR THAT SHE DISPLAYED IN 1915. THAT YEAR, ENROUTE TO THE HAGUE, SHE OBTAINED THE SIGNATURES OF 24,151 SWEDISH WOMEN AND 24,000 NORWEGIAN WOMEN ON DOCUMENTS ENDORSING HER PROGRAM.

EVENTUALLY MME.SCHWIMMER WON HER FIGHT AND THE CONGRESS ADOPTED HER RESOLUTION ON MEDIATION, WHICH ASSERTED IN PART THAT "THE INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF WOMEN RESOLVES TO ASK THE NEUTRAL COUNTRIES TO TAKE IMMEDIATE STEPS TO CREATE A CONFERENCE OF NEUTRAL NATIONS WHICH SHALL WITHOUT DELAY OFFER CONTINUOUS MEDIATION."

MME.SCHWIMMER WAS INSISTENT THAT WOMEN SHOULD HAVE AN EQUAL SHARE WITH MEN IN THE STRUGGLE FOR PERMANENT PEACE. HER RESOLUTION THAT PEACE ENVOYS "SHALL BE WOMEN OF BOTH NEUTRAL AND BELLIGERENT NATIONS" WAS ALSO ADOPTED.

AS THE FINAL RESOLUTION OF THE CONGRESS, MME.SCHWIMMER MOVED THAT "THE INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF WOMEN OF DIFFERENT NATIONS, CLASSES, CREEDS AND PARTIES IS UNITED IN EXPRESSING SYMPATHY WITH THE SUFFERING OF ALL, WHATEVER NATIONALITY, WHO ARE FIGHTING FOR THEIR COUNTRY OR LABORING UNDER THE BURDEN OF WAR.

"SINCE THE MASS OF THE PEOPLE IN EACH OF THE COUNTRIES NOW AT WAR BELIEVE THEMSELVES TO BE FIGHTING, NOT AS AGGRESSORS, BUT IN SELF-DEFENCE AND FOR THEIR NATIONAL EXISTENCE, IT URGES THE GOVERNMENTS OF THE WORLD TO PUT AN END TO THIS BLOODSHED, TO BEGIN PEACE NEGOTIATIONS AND IT EMPHATICALLY DEMANDS THAT THE PEACE WHICH FOLLOWS MUST BE PERMANENT..."

MME.SCHWIMMER SAID TODAY THAT "BRAINS HAVE SO FAR RULED THE WORLD. BUT, IF BRAINS HAVE BROUGHT US TO WHAT WE ARE IN NOW, I THINK IT IS TIME TO LET OUR HEARTS SPEAK TOO."

JEWISH STATE HOPES RAISED BY BEN-GURION

LONDON, Jan. 2—(AP) David Ben-Gurion, chairman of the Jewish Agency Executive, said tonight he was sure a Jewish state would be created in Palestine, now facing the possibility of what a British government source said might be martial law and small-scale war.

Ben-Gurion, emerging from a two-hour conference with Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech Jones, said he thought creation of a Jewish state in Palestine would take place "within my lifetime," whether it was within the framework of an Arab-British-Jewish agreement or a still wider accord backed by the United Nations.

The problem seemed headed for a climactic week as the Palestine high commissioner, Lt. Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, hurried toward London with a full report on the tense situation in the Holy Land. One informed source said a British decision on Palestine's future had to be made soon.

Situation Is Dangerous

The situation in the Holy Land now is such that one more incident "might blow the lid off," a government source said.

Even as he spoke, police in Palestine were hunting for men who exploded pamphlet bombs in Jerusalem, spreading leaflets signed by the underground organization, Irgun Zvai Leumi.

"Civilly," the government source said, "the situation is out of hand, and if Irgun Zvai Leumi carries out its threat (broadcast yesterday) to launch a new 'offensive' against Britain's armed forces, it may become necessary to proclaim martial law in certain parts of the country."

Britain, in order to maintain her position in the Holy Land, might be forced to resort to a "small-scale war," the informant continued, adding that in the past, Irgun threats generally have been carried out.

The situation was being reviewed in detail by cabinet ministers, in preparation for what well might be a decisive meeting next week, as Ben-Gurion conferred with Creech Jones. Ben-Gurion is an advocate of Jewish participation in the London conference on Palestine's future, up to now boycotted by the Jews and Palestine Arabs alike. The conferences will be resumed here Jan. 21.

Certain of State

"I am not hopeful but certain that the creation of a Jewish state in Palestine will take place within my lifetime," the Jewish leader said as he emerged from the meeting.

The 60-year-old Jewish statesman would not elaborate, but this was the most optimistic statement on the situation he has made to date, and it suggested he was not dissatisfied with the results of the meeting with Creech-Jones.

The colonial office itself would not comment on the conference other than to say that the situation had been discussed "in the light of the decisions reached by the world Zionist Congress at Basle."

The Zionist Congress in Switzerland voted not to attend the resumed Palestine conferences in London unless circumstances dictated otherwise. This had been interpreted as meaning the Jews wanted some indication that Britain would support creation of a sizeable independent Jewish state.

An authoritative British informant said Ben-Gurion had impressed upon the colonial secretary Jewish willingness to accept partition as a basis for settlement, provided the Jews had complete independence within their area.

Military Action Seen Possible In Palestine

London, Jan. 2 (AP)—A Government source said today that Britain was faced with the necessity of finding an immediate, final solution in Palestine or conducting a full-scale military operation to maintain her mandatory position in the Holy Land.

"Civilly, the situation is out of hand," the source said. "And if Irgun Zvai Leumi carries out its threat (broadcast yesterday) to launch a new 'offensive' against Britain's armed forces, it may become necessary to proclaim martial law in certain parts of the country."

Martial law would suspend courts and civil administrations.

Two Possible Solutions

As the informant outlined the situation, Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech Jones were believed to be considering two possible solutions to their Palestine problem.

First, and most favored, was formulation of a partition plan which would create independent Jewish and Arab states and allow Britain to exercise trusteeship control over certain sacred areas.

The second was for Britain, fall-ccessful partition, to seek an international solution through the United Nations. Strong support was said to exist for this course among some high Whitehall officials—and it has been suggested, too, by Winston Churchill.

Explaining why a "small-scale war" might be necessary for Britain to maintain herself in the Holy Land, the Government source said in the past Irgun threats of terrorism had always been carried out.

Inflamed By Floggings

He added that it was impossible to exaggerate the extent to which feeling among troops in Palestine was aroused by Sunday's floggings of four Britons. In many areas men had to be confined to their barracks for fear they would carry out their own reprisals.

"Another 'incident' may blow the lid off Palestine and anything might happen," the source stated.

Recourse to the United Nations presumably would involve British surrender of the Palestine mandate, held for nearly 24 years. The Government source said the Palestine situation was seriously affecting the stability of the entire Middle East. He said everything possible would be done to bring the Jewish Agency into the London Conference, due to be resumed January 21.

Informed diplomatic observers said Britain's preference for partition was based on her desire to protest the security of the Suez Canal and of oil pipelines which terminate in Haifa.

Cabinet Summoned Again

The British Cabinet was summoned to its second meeting in three days.

Matters appeared to have been brought to a head by the failure of efforts to bring Jewish representatives to round-table conferences with Arab leaders here and by recent developments in Palestine.

BRITONS TREK OVER AFRICA

Sudan Government Halts Veterans' Hunt For Homes

RICHARD TOMKINS

London, Jan. 2 (AP)—The Government of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan called a halt today to the "covered wagon" movement of Britons seeking to cross the deserts in search of new homes in South and East Africa.

Scores of British families, most headed by ex-service men, have attempted the 10,000-mile trek from London to Capetown in poorly financed jalopy convoys. Hundreds more were planning a try when the Sudanese Government announced that no more permits for the crossing would be granted "until the situation has been reviewed."

Expense Underestimated

The Government statement released here—without mentioning the dangers—said the trekkers underestimated expenses of a Trans-African expedition. Some of the conveyances were so old and overloaded they broke down repeatedly and "so far all have failed to cross the desert stretches."

The adventurers were not "oakies." On the average they spent $800 before arriving at Khartoum, capital of the Sudan, the statement said.

The exodus from Britain's post-war austerity in search of a promised land of jobs and new homes began last August.

Bought Old Army Trucks

The travelers bought used and often defective army trucks, transferred their funds to East or South African banks with the exception of $300—all they were permitted to carry with them—and set out.

First they ferried their vehicles across the channel to France, pushed south to Marseille and sought passage across the Mediterranean to Algiers or Tunis.

Then they followed the British 8th Army's desert route across North Africa—in reverse.

Warnings Disregarded

When they turned south into the Sudan they struck the real testing ground. Despite warnings from the Royal Automobile Club in London of the "highly hazardous" undertaking—the possibility of getting lost in the desert, the risk of typhoid, malaria and other diseases, and wild animals and crocodiles in the jungles south of the desert—many of the would-be settlers attempted it.

The Sudan Government received all kinds of requests. One man wanted to cycle to South Africa. He was turned down. A motorcyclist received permission on condition that he stay with a convoy.

The Sudan Government sought to help the adventurers by giving directions and instructions.

The Royal Automobile Club said it had been receiving 200 to 300 inquiries a month, but that, partly as a result of its dissuasions, the movement is subsiding.

Burmese to Ask Freedom By Jan. 31 at London

Delegates Also to Seek April Poll on Assembly

LONDON, Jan. 2 (AP).—Burmese delegates to a London conference on their nation's independence said today they will insist that Great Britain concede freedom to Burma before Jan. 31.

General U Aung Saw, deputy chairman of the Burmese Executive Council, said at Calcutta he would demand also that the council be turned into a national government and that the elections set for next April in Burma choose a constituent assembly.

While these demands conform in spirit with promises already made the Burmese by Prime Minister Attlee, their phrasing left no doubt that the Burmese want no leisurely transition from colony to independent nation. The London conference is scheduled to open Jan. 13.

The Prime Minister, announcing Dec. 20 that he had called the conference, said then that the Burmese would be free to choose whether they would remain within the British commonwealth, which has held Burma for sixty years, or cut itself completely free of the British.

Air Blows Paved Victory's Path, Says Report

London, Jan. 2 (AP)—Strategic bombing by British and American planes successfully paved the way for the invasion of Normandy despite "overlapping and complications" in the overall command, according to a hitherto secret report by the late Air Chief Marshal Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory.

The British Air Ministry published the report tonight in the official London Gazette.

Submitted to General Eisenhower in November, 1944, shortly before the Air Chief Marshal's death in a plane crash, the 50,000 word report describes what Leigh-Mallory, air commander in chief of the Allied Expeditionary Air Force, calls "ten and a half months of the most heavy and concentrated air war in history"—from November 15, 1943, to September 30, 1944.

"Events Justified Policy"

"Events thoroughly justified our strategic bombing policy and your insistence upon an adequate preparatory period of air operations for Operation 'Neptune,'" Leigh-Mallory told Eisenhower.

Neptune was the code name for the cross-Channel assault.

"The air war had, by the day of the assault, completely disorganized the enemy's dense and complex network of rail lines of communication within France and Belgium," the report said.

"This having been accomplished by D-day, it was soon possible to seal off the battle area through air action, and in this way the area was prepared for the employment of ground forces, with the enemy at a critical disadvantage."

Staff Handicap Cited

Leigh-Mallory complained, however, of Eisenhower's administrative setup under which, he said, the air commander in chief and the staff of the Allied Expeditionary Force were "required to work on two levels with two large army staffs."

"This arrangement," he said, "severely taxed the staffs of Allied Expeditionary Air Force and inevitably led to overlapping and complications and at times interference with the planning of the tactical air forces and their opposite army and navy formations."

Shot Down Own Planes

On a number of occasions, Leigh-Mallory said, "our own anti-aircraft guns, both naval and military, shot down friendly aircraft"—a situation that he blamed in large measure on the lack of an air-defense commander to direct fighter planes and A.A. guns at the same time.

Leigh-Mallory said the German air effort "was mediocre throughout," especially during the critical assault stage, because of the strategic bombing of German airfields, radar stations and aircraft factories.

Morgan Insistent Retirement Not Asked

London, Jan. 2 (AP)—Lieutenant General Sir Frederick Morgan, once deputy chief of staff to Supreme Commander Eisenhower and later UNRRA head in Germany, is insistent that his retirement from the British Army was "certainly not at my request."

His statement to that effect yesterday followed the War Office's announcement, without explanation, that Morgan, whose permanent rank was major general, had been retired Sunday with the honorary rank of lieutenant general.

Morgan, now 52, helped plan the Normandy invasion and later was put in charge of German operations of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

Lend-Lease Ships British Problem

London, Jan. 2 (AP)—British shipping interests sought today to determine whether President Truman's proclamation of the termination of hostilities meant that lend-lease ships must be returned to the United States, or purchased.

An American Embassy source said legal interpretation of the proclamation was awaited, but that the lend-lease method of turning ships over to the British was devised before the United States was involved in hostilities, so that the formal end of hostilities probably would have no bearing on the contracts.

More than 200 lend-lease ships, many of the Liberty type, are still being operated by the British Government and private companies, and it was admitted that taking them out of service now, or within six months, would handicap British commerce. Paying for the vessels would also present difficulties.

The shipping correspondent of the Daily Telegraph wrote that President Roosevelt had intended to permit the British to use American chartered ships until builders were able to replace war losses.

PARIS REBUFFS HO PEACE PLAN

Moutet Reported On Way To Meet Viet Nam Leader

REMBERT JAMES

Paris, Jan. 2 (AP)—A French Government spokesman rebuffed overtures from Ho Chi Minh today, declaring negotiations were impossible under "existing conditions" and questioning the authority of his northern Indo-China regime even as Marius Moutet, Colonial Minister, was reported en route to meet the Viet Nam chieftain.

The spokesman said "we cannot negotiate when Viet Nam snipers are firing at French officials," implying that a mutual cease-fire order and restoration of calm was the first prerequisite to any French-Viet Nam parley.

A second condition to any negotiations, the official continued, was that France must verify the powers of persons with whom she would be negotiating.

Hanoi Shelling Continues

While a day-old Associated Press dispatch from Hanoi, former Viet Nam capital, reported continued shelling of the city by Viet Nam artillery and mortars and repeated attacks by the Viet Nam forces, the spokesman asserted that no one knew where the Ho Chi Minh government was hiding or who still was with it.

He said a group of "dissident" Viet Nam officials had established what apparently is a rival regime across the border in China under a former Foreign Affairs Minister. Still another Viet Nam official, Nguyen Manh-ha, a leading Catholic and Minister of National Economy, was said to have refused to fight the French and is now in Hanoi under the protection of French troops.

Moutet Leaves By Plane

A French press agency dispatch from Saigon said Moutet left Saigon by plane, despite dangers from the weather and Viet Nam anti-aircraft fire, intending to go to Hanoi, and hinted that he might meet Ho.

"I shall have gained a great victory if I return to Paris with a peaceful solution," Moutet was quoted as saying to a Saigon interviewer.

His departure came after Ho was quoted by his clandestine radio as saying he hoped to meet Moutet in Hanoi.

Whether such a meeting would be arranged was not certain, but French authorities in Hanoi were reported authoritatively to be in touch directly with members of the Viet Nam government, and Ho's radio reported that the Viet Nam government planned an "underground session somewhere in Hanoi."

Moutet Lacks Full Powers

French officials here pointed out, however, that Moutet did not possess full powers to negotiate a settlement on the spot, and could only make inquiries for a report back to the French Cabinet.

Moutet's son and chief aide, Gustave Moutet, already was in Hanoi gathering data on the situation.

French Minister On Indo-China Peace Trip (D)

Paris, Jan. 2 (AP)—Dispatches from Indo-China said today that French Colonial Minister Marius Moutet, investigating trouble with Viet-Nam Nationalists in that country, was going north where he had an invitation to peace talks.

The French Press Agency reported that Moutet had left Saigon in the south by plane for Hanoi, capital of Indo-China and of the Viet-Nam Republic Ho Chi Minh, president of the republic, was said to have invited Moutet, over the underground Viet Nam radio, to meet with him and discuss ways to end fighting between Viet-Namese and French troops. Ho was believed in hiding near Hanoi.

Risky Trip

French circles would not venture any predictions as to whether Moutet would receive Ho. Authorities termed his flight risky because of bad weather and possible anti-aircraft fire from Viet-Namese entrenched in Hanoi's outskirts. News of the trip was delayed for security reasons, and the agency did not give the exact times of his departure and expected landing.

Moutet had just returned to Saigon after a tour of Laos in western Indo-China and Cambodia in the southwest. He reported the two protectorates loyal to France, but at the same time disclosed that a rebellion had been quelled in Western Cambodia.

Some Fugitive Japs

The French Press Agency reported yesterday that French troops had taken three weeks to put down that rebellion, involving 2,000 to 3,000 self-styled Cambodian "Issaraks," or "free men," armed from Siam, trained by Viet-Namese and numbering some fugitive Japanese soldiers in their ranks.

The agency said that the outbreak began December 9 with an attack on 300 French and colonial troops near Battambang in an area Siam ceded back to French Indo-China a few weeks ago. Most of Battambang's normal population of 230,000 was found to have fled, the dispatch reported, and the "Issaraks" later destroyed bridges, burned villages and massacred more than 100 persons in a "pro-French Catholic" community.

Troop reinforcement brought from France aboard the transport Pasteur were landed yesterday—the first to debark in Indo-China since the outbreak began—at Cap St. Jacques, southeast of the southern city of Saigon. Others were taken on to Hanoi.

ALLIED AREA DEMANDS HEARINGS SCHEDULED

PARIS, Jan. 2—(AP) Four-power deputy foreign ministers will take up all Allied demands for German territory at a meeting in London, Jan. 14, French foreign office quarters said today in response to questions concerning the Saar valley.

The foreign office spokesman denied reports that Luxembourg had requested France for a rectification of the Saar-Luxembourg frontier to give the Duchy the towns of Bittberg and Vianden.

Such a demand, he said, would have to be presented to the deputies, since this would be a four-power matter.

The deputies are to report back to the foreign ministers by Feb. 25 in preparation for the March meeting in Moscow, the spokesman said.

St. Lo Mayor Flying Here

Paris, Jan. 2 (AP)—Mayor Georges Lavalley, of St. Lo, France, left by plane today for the United States to visit Baltimore, the home of many American soldiers killed in the St. Lo breakthrough.

Lavalley said he had been invited to Baltimore by the Mayor. While in the United States he also will visit Boston and several other cities.

U.S. Halts Reich Move

DANIEL DE LUCE

Berlin, Jan. 2 (AP)—The industrial disarmament of the two thirds of Germany under British-American occupation hung suspended tonight as authorities went forward with plans to spend about $1,000,000,000 in two years to speed recovery in the two economically merged zones.

Col. Lawrence Wilkinson, acting director of the economics division of the United States Military Government, told a news conference that the United States and Britain would not put into effect the Allied Control Authority's level of industry plan, often referred to as an industrial disarmament plan, so long as the Soviet Union and France refrained from treating Germany as an economic whole.

Next Move Is Theirs

"It's up to the Russians and French to move next," Colonel Wilkinson said.

"The quadripartite level of industry plan is not scrapped, but we are going ahead with our own bizonal economic revival, leaving the door open at all times for the Russians and French to join. If we happen to crash through the ceilings set on German production by the Allied plan—as for instance, in steel—we will notify the other occupation powers.

"But we will not implement the Allied plan for reduction of Germany's industrial potential in our economically fused United States and British zones so long as the Russians and French delay its application to the entire country."

To Continue Until March

The American "freeze" on dismantling of reparations plants not marked for advance delivery will be maintained until after the March meeting of the four-power Foreign Ministers Council in Moscow.

Under the Allied Control Authority plan, Germany in 1949 would have a steel plant capacity of 7,500,000 tons, of which 5,500,000 tons actually would be produced. The British zone's output for 1949 was set at 4,300,000 tons, as compared with the present level of 2,200,000 tons.

Colonel Wilkinson said he did not expect the bizonal program would "largely exceed" the 1949 limitation placed upon the British zone, but he added that new tonnage targets for the two zones together had not yet been set.

Table Shows Imports

A trade table for the two zones showed that in 1947 imports, including food and raw materials, would approximate $1,042,000,000, compared with exports of $350,000,000. The deficit is to be paid on an equal basis by the United States and Britain.

The table shows a prospective deficit for 1948 of $300,000,000. But it is hoped that by the end of 1949 imports and exports will balance at $900,000,000 each.

American and British loans approximating $100,000,000 are expected to be arranged this month. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which already has made $7,750,000 available for the purchase of American raw materials, is expected to increase its advances to $50,000,000 or more in January, and the British have agreed to match American loans, either through the Government or private banks.

40 Million In Two Zones

Colonel Wilkinson said the 40,000,000 Germans in the two zones would receive a gradual increase in consumer goods to develop their physical stamina and their morale.

"We believe German manufacturers will co-operate in the export program," he said, "regardless of being paid in Reichsmarks of little value, because they expect to derive such benefits as repair and maintenance of their plants and re-entry into prewar foreign markets.

Anglo-U.S. Loan For Reich Is Expected (D)

Berlin, Jan. 2 (AP)—American and British loans approximating $100,000,000 are expected to be arranged this month for the revival of foreign trade of the economically fused United States and British zones of Germany, American officials said today.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which has already made $7,750,000 available to purchase American raw materials for the United States zone, is expected to increase its advances to $50,000,000 or more during January.

Textile Industry Cited

Don D. Humphrey, deputy director of the American military government's economic division, said probably $35,000,000 would be allocated for materials for the textile industry.

Humphrey said he was confident the American loan could be arranged within a month, but that it would take several months for raw materials actually to arrive.

Col. Lawrence Wilkinson, acting director of the economics division, disclosed that the United States and Britain would not put into effect the Allied Control Authority's level of industry plan—often referred to as "an industrial disarmament plan"—so long as the Soviet Union and France refrained from treating Germany as an economic unit.

"The quadripartite level of industry plan is not scrapped," Wilkinson said, "but we are going ahead with our own bizonal economic revival, leaving the door open at all times for the Russians and French to join. If we happen to crash through the ceilings set on German production by the Allied plan, as, for instance, in steel, we will notify the other occupation powers."

Hans Fritzsche To Face De-Nazification Court

Nuernberg, Germany, Jan. 2 (AP). Hans Fritzsche, former chief of the German Radio Propaganda Service, will be brought to trial before a German De-Nazification Court here January 27, Camil Sachs, Nuernberg's De-Nazification chief, said tonight.

Fritzsche, acquitted last October by the International Military Tribunal which convicted Hermann Goering and other Nazi chieftains, will be charged with playing an active role in the Nazi party.

Conviction could carry a prison sentence of up to ten years and confiscation of property.

Franz von Papen, former German diplomat, and Hjalmar Schacht, the financial wizard, also await German De-Nazification trials.

Goering's Deputy on Trial

Marshal Milch Called Key Planner in German War of Aggression

NUERNBERG, Jan. 2 (AP).—Opening the war crimes prosecution of Field Marshal Erich Milch, Prosecutor Clark Denney today denounced the former Luftwaffe officer as a key planner of Germany's war of aggression. Milch also was declared a principal in Nazi exploitation of slave labor and medical experiments on living prisoners.

Milch's life is "a story of personal and professional betrayal," Denney told the three-judge American court trying Hermann Goering's one-time deputy on charges of war crimes and crimes against humanity.

DESCRIBES KILLING OF 14 NUNS BY NAZIS

Hamburg, Jan. 2 (A. P.).—The prosecution closed its case against Ravensbruck concentration camp personnel today with the reading of a deposition that drunken guards once shot fourteen nuns in cold blood. The deposition was given by Vera Salvequart, a pretty brunette internee who is among the sixteen defendants.

She said she was going about her assigned task of knocking gold teeth from the mouths of executed inmates when a guard tried to kiss her, threw her on a bed and twisted her arm. Hardly had she fought him off, she said, when other guards brought out the nuns and shot them.

"It was a horrible picture," she said.

The first defense witness before the British military court was Ludwig Ramdohr, camp interrogator, who is accused of beating inmates. He testified that he was a civilian policeman and was assigned to the camp against his wishes.

ART TREASURES GO HOME

U. S. Restores Hungarian Property Stolen by Germans

MUNICH, Germany, Jan. 2 (AP)—A trainload of paintings and other art treasures was shipped home to Hungary today by the American Military Government's fine-arts and monuments section.

Retreating German armies had hidden the loot in Bavarian caches, where American troops discovered it. The lot included a "Madonna" by Raphael and paintings by Rembrandt, Rubens, Goya, van Dyck, El Greco, Giorgione and Tintoretto. E. C. Rae, chief of the section, said American art experts had identified and returned to the rightful owners $350,000,000 worth of art, jewels and other valuables since the war. All had been looted by the Germans.

Fritz Mandl Seeking Interests, Vienna Told

Vienna, Jan. 2 (AP)—An editor of Oesterreichische Volkstimme said today that Dr. Ludwig Draxler, former Finance Minister of Austria, was en route from Vaduz, Liechtenstein, to Vienna as a business emissary for Fritz Mandl, former Austrian munitions manufacturer.

The editor said Mandl apparently was trying to buy into Austrian industry, but that he probably would not attempt to return to the country. Austrian officials denied all knowledge of reports of Mandl being in the tiny principality of Liechtenstein, which borders on Austria.

[A Russian dispatch by Tass from Vienna Tuesday said Mandl had returned to Europe from Argentina and was in Liechtenstein near the Austrian border.]

Italian Political Clash Injures 3

Rome, Jan. 2 (AP)—The Italian news agency Ansa reported today that three persons were injured by pistol fire last night when a group of about 100 Communists clashed with adherents of the Right Wing Uomo Qualunque party at Bara, near Naples.

Police intervened and broke up the battle, Ansa said.

GREEK BANDS MOVE SOUTH

Guerrillas' Shift Away From Border Noted At Salonika

Athens, Jan. 2 (AP)—A general southward movement of Leftist guerrillas from Macedonia and eastern Thrace into central Greece is under way, dispatches from Salonika said tonight.

With the coming of the United Nations investigating commission it had been predicted that Leftist groups would shift their activities from Macedonia and Thrace to central Greece in order to divert attention from the nation's trouble-ridden northern borders.

The Salonika correspondent of the newspaper Embros said groups had been passing through the Kalambaka region and regrouping in the mountains. There has been no violence reported in Macedonia for the past 48 hours.

Supports Allied Report

Tonight's reports coincided with confidential intelligence forwarded to an Allied government as recently as yesterday by its observer.

Meanwhile, Constantine Kalkanis, Minister of Public Order, issued orders for the arrest of Panayotis Katsareas, noted leader of a Rightist guerrilla group. The 45-year-old retired army captain allegedly was involved in a series of battles in the Parnon Mountains several weeks ago.

Referring to the order, the Minister said: "It is the irrevocable determination of the Government and the Ministry of Public Order to apprehend and prosecute without discrimination both Rightist and Leftist bands."

GEORGE II PLANS TRIP

Athens, Jan. 2 (A. P.).—Informed persons said today that King George II was planning to visit Salonika soon in trouble-ridden northern Greece. It would be his first formal visit outside Athens since his return to the throne in September.

Athens business houses, meanwhile, announced their intention of closing tomorrow in protest against a Government order that rents be doubled immediately. Previously, average rentals were approximately twenty-five times the pre-war rates.

RUSSIANS NAME STALIN

Nominate Him for Deputy in Federated Republic

MOSCOW, Jan. 2 (AP)—Prime Minister Stalin was nominated tonight as a Deputy to the Supreme Soviet of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, the largest of the sixteen republics in the Soviet Union.

Mr. Stalin already is a Deputy to the Supreme Soviet of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, his last election having been Feb. 10, 1946. (The supreme soviet of the U.S.S.R. is the central parliamentary body of the Soviet Union.)

In addition to Mr. Stalin, other nominees to the Russian Republic's Supreme Soviet included Foreign Minister Molotov; A. A. Zhdanov, chairman of the Council of Union of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. and a secretary of the Communist party; G. M. Popov, also a secretary of the Communist party, and P. S. Popkov, secretary of the Leningrad Communist party.

Soviet Writer Says Americans Like Russians

Back in Moscow, He Reports New York Streets Dirty, Praises U. S. Techniques

MOSCOW, Jan. 2 (AP).—Victor Poltoratsky, back from New York, told his "Izvestia" readers today that Americans in the mass are "gay, sociable, hard-working people, who in spite of all newspaper propaganda have a sympathetic attitude toward the Soviet people."

Poltoratsky, the Russian government newspaper's special correspondent at the United Nations Assembly, reported that New York streets were dirty, that he had trouble getting trousers altered when he bought them and that American films were standardized.

"Of course, along with the dark and negative sides of life," he added, "we saw in America things worth emulating. The Americans, for example, have magnificent techniques. The roads are excellently built."

Moscow, Jan. 2 (A. P.).—An informant said today that A. A. Lavrishchev, chief of the Balkan section of the Soviet Foreign Ministry, would head an eight-member Russian delegation which will inspect and report on the Greek frontier situation.

Russ Coal Workers Build 7,500 Houses

Moscow, Jan. 2 (AP)—The Government newspaper Izvestia reported today that more than 7,500 houses had been built by workers in the coal industry in western Russia during 1946.

The Government allocated 90,000,000 rubles for housing for these workers. (The official ruble rate is 5.3 to the dollar.)

JEWISH FIGHTERS STRIKE AT BRITISH IN HOLY LAND AREA

Military Installations Are Attacked in Five Wide-Spread Blows.

LONG LULL ENDS

Jewish State in Palestine Seen by Agency Executive Chairman.

JERUSALEM, Friday, Jan. 3—(AP) Jewish underground fighters launched a series of wide-spread attacks on British military installations in Palestine last night and early today, striking in Jerusalem, Tel Aviv, Tiberias, Hedera and Kiryat Haim near Haifa.

In Tiberias, on the sea of Galilee, 75 miles northeast of Jerusalem, the attackers used home-made flame throwers before they were beaten off. The assault there was directed at a military car park.

Lull Comes to End

The outbreaks ended a lull in the Holy Land which had continued since Dec. 5. They also came after the recent world Zionist Congress at Basel, Switzerland, had condemned the use of violence in strong terms.

(Earlier a British government source in London had declared that the situation in Palestine was such now that one more incident "might blow the lid off.")

Observers said it was possible that these blows would be followed by further "operations" in the next few days since the Jewish underground organization, Irgun Zvai Leumi, had distributed pamphlets in several Jewish towns announcing further day and night attacks on British military objectives. The leaflets also alleged that "Great Britain was maintaining military bases in Palestine against all international legislation."

Heavy shooting broke out in the center of Jerusalem presumably between police and military units and the attackers who earlier threw three grenades at British army quarters in the "Syrian orphanage" vicinity. This Jewish quarter is in the western part of the city.

An official said the grenades caused no casualties and no damage.

Lines Are Cut

British military headquarters in Citrus house in Tel Aviv also was placed under fire. During the heavy exchange which followed the electric wires apparently were cut throwing the entire city in darkness for a time.

British reinforcements were sent to Tel Aviv and troops subsequently cordoned off the area around Citrus house.

The underground fighters opened fire on Citrus house while British oficers were at dinner. The ceilings and walls were pockmarked with bullet holes. Hand grenades were thrown at the house from a nearby railroad yard.

British soldiers fired back from rooftops and other posts.

Reports from Tel Aviv suggested that attacks on an armored car park in Hayarkon street and on a district police headquarters in the Jaffa-Tel Aviv road were diversionary moves while the main blow was directed at Citrus house. The fighting around the military headquarters was said to have lasted 10 minutes.

Complete Report Lacking

Complete accounts on the number of casualties in the various outbreaks were not immediately available.

A paratrooper, an Arab constable and a girl were wounded in the Citrus house encounter.

During the fighting near the Army camp at Kiryat Haim one British officer was killed and four soldiers were wounded. A Bren gun carrier was blown up.

Irgun Vows Unceasing War.

Jerusalem, Jan. 2 (A. P.).—The threat of new violence hung over the Holy Land today as Irgun Zvai Leumi, rejecting an American Congressman's plea for a truce, promised unremitting warfare to achieve its goal of a free Palestine.

Irgun's action coincided with the verdict of a military court condemning a member of the Jewish underground organization to be hanged for participating in an armed attack on a police station in which two police officers were killed last April 23.

The promise of continued strife was contained in a note transmitted to newspapers by Irgun leaders in reply to a message from United States Representative Joseph Clark Baldwin (R.-N. Y.) which was published last Saturday in the Palestine Post. Baldwin, administrative chairman of the Political Action Committee for Palestine, asked Irgun to "halt operations in the Holy Land until I have acquainted the American Government and people with your fight and the fight of Jewry at large."

GANDHI BEGINS BENGAL TOUR

Walking To Villages And Fields In Moslem Area

Calcutta, Jan. 2 (AP)—Mohandis K. Gandhi, 77 and still weakened from a recent fast, set out today on a village to village walking tour through the paddy fields and betelnut groves of the Noakhali district in east Bengal, carrying his doctrine of Ahimsa (nonviolence) into the Moslem-dominated area swept by communal bloodshed last October.

His march, which the Congress party press compares in importance to his famous walk in 1930 to break the Salt Law, will take the wizened old patriarch of Indian politics and independence into 26 villages this month. He will visit all the villages in the area except those in the Rambunj police district where the communal trouble was the worst.

To Take Portable Hut

A portable thatched hut, made of straw and leaves and weighing 200 pounds, is part of the travel equipment of himself and his party of four personal assistants. The hut will be used in villages unable to provide him with accommodations.

Precautions will be taken for his protection while on the tour of Moslem-dominated villages.

Some concern has been expressed in the Congress party as to the advisability of the tour in his present health. Several weeks ago he went on a reduced diet because of the massacres of Moslems in Bihar province where Hindus are in a majority. He abandoned plans to fast, but he remains in a weakened condition.

Theory On Trial

Gandhi has said his nonviolence theory is on trial, however, and that the only way he can restore confidence between Hindus and Moslems is to visit the villages and talk with the people.

The villages in Noakhali district are dotted among the rice paddy fields where they are accessible only by boat and a few almost impassable roads.

In the "salt march" of 1930, Gandhi agitated against the tax on salt and led 70 volunteers by a circuitous route from Ahmadabad to Dandhi on the Gulf of Cambray where he waded into the sea, dipped up water and boiled out illegal salt. He was jailed but the episode eventually led to a series of round-table conferences in London and British promises of dominion status for India.

CHINESE FORCES DEMAND AMERICAN MILITARY LEAVE

NANKING, Jan. 2—(AP) Chinese students marched on the United States embassy and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's government headquarters today, demanding immediate withdrawal of American troops from China, but decided later to cancel further demonstrations.

Leaders of the 1,000 marchers had said they intended to go to the Chinese foreign office and the home of General Marshall, special presidential envoy to China, but a mass meeting of students voted without explanation to call off this program.

Strike is Hinted

Leaders said, however, that three formal "manifestoes" would be issued and that they might call a student strike when a three-day holiday ends Friday.

An incident of alleged rape in Peiping, involving a Chinese girl and two U. S. Marines, was the basis for the demonstration, which students have staged in Peiping and Shanghai as well as Nanking.

The government-controlled Central news agency said official circles deplored the fact that the girl's case had been "exploited by certain elements to arouse anti-American feeling" and that the public was "perplexed to find it magnified out of all proportion, particularly when they remember with gratitude American aid during and after the war."

(The agency heretofore had made no editorial comment, while many Chinese papers had played up the case with inflammatory stories and headlines.)

At the American embassy, Minister Walton Butterworth received leaders of the student marchers and gave them a letter from Ambassador J. Leighton Stuart, promising a prompt court martial if investigation provided any basis for rape charges.

At the government building the students addressed a petition to Chiang Kai-shek demanding full details of the rape charges, ouster of U. S. forces from China, and presentation of the affair to the United Nations Security Council.

At a mass meeting preceding the march, the majority of students of Central University, Nanking's largest, refused to participate unless the demonstrators also demanded the withdrawal of Russian troops from Dairen, Manchuria. Individuals from the university joined the march, however.

Shanghai Is Quiet

Shanghai remained relatively quiet after a noisy anti-American demonstration Wednesday by 6,000 to 7,000 students, who posted placards showing American servicemen in Japanese uniforms.

U. S. Army authorities said that an officer who, with a woman companion, was roughed-up by the demonstrators had not reported the incident and they thus were unable to identify him.

A Chinese-owned English-language paper in Shanghai today reported a new incident in which it said an American seaman critically stabbed a Chinese pedicab operator Wednesday night in an argument over the fare, but American authorities had no information on such an attack.

A small section of the Chinese press rebuked the anti-American element, pointing out that the alleged rape case in Peiping was under investigation and would be settled by regular judicial procedure.

Marine officers in Peiping said that Chinese police had not cooperated in the inquiry and that, of two Marines held in connection with the case for the past week, one Marine denied any connection and the other said his relations with the girl were on a professional basis.

Chinese Students Take Protest To Marshall

Nanking, Jan. 2 (AP)—One thousand Chinese students today carried their demands for ouster of American service men from China to the United States Embassy and Chiang Kai-shek's headquarters.

They said they would march to the home of General Marshall, United States peace envoy to China, and to the Chinese Foreign Office tomorrow with their demands.

Chanting "Americans, go home" and ignoring a Ministry of Education order banning such parades, the students carried petitions to Chiang's headquarters and the United States Embassy.

Demand Withdrawal

The petitions demanded withdrawal of United States troops from China, and requested that the United Nations Security Council order United States troops moved, and that full details of the alleged rape of a Peiping girl by two United States Marines be published.

United States Ambassador Stuart was absent, but Minister Walton Butterworth received the paraders' chairman and the petition. He gave the students Stuart's reply:

"United States Marine authorities are proceeding with the case as rapidly as the demands of justice and a democratic trial will permit."

Court-Martial Planned

In Peiping, Marine officials are preparing to put the charges before a court-martial. They said, however, the Chinese police have not co-operated in the investigation; that one Leatherneck denies any relations with the girl and the other insisted he had relations with her on a professional basis.

Some students at Central University, Nanking's largest, participated individually after a group at a mass meeting refused to parade unless the demonstration also demanded withdrawal of Soviet troops from Chinese soil.

Russians control Dairen, declared a free port in the August (1945) Sino-Soviet treaty, and Port Arthur, which the treaty specified should be administered jointly by the Russian and Chinese governments.

Shanghai Relatively Calm

Shanghai was relatively calm today after a vehement "quit China" anti-American demonstration yesterday by some 6,000 Chinese students.

Cartoons posted on buildings—one depicted American service men in Japanese Army uniforms—remained as reminders of the outburst.

Some Shanghai papers rebuked the students editorially.

REDS TAKE LIAOCHENG

Nanking, Jan. 3 (A. P.).—Dispatches to pro-Government newspapers said today that Communist troops have captured the Western Shantung province railway city of Liaocheng. The accounts said that the Government garrison was forced to withdraw New Year's Day from the city, which is sixty miles west of Tsinan, the provincial capital.

The Government troops retreated to Jenping, which is eighteen miles northeast of Liaocheng. The city has long been under siege.

MORE HORRORS LAID TO JAPS

High Officers Are Accused of Cannibalism.

Tokyo, Jan. 2 (A. P.).—Testimony about mutilations, vivisection, beheading and cannibalism by Japanese in the Southwest Pacific was presented to the international war crimes tribunal today. The testimony was presented to show that Japanese disregard of the rules of warfare and excesses by individual soldiers were condoned by higher officers.

An Indian prisoner of war in a labor battalion at Totabil, New Britain, set forth in an affidavit this story of cannibalism which he witnessed, he said, from behind a tree:

An unidentified 19-year-old American fighter pilot, forced down, was captured and beheaded within thirty minutes, November 12, 1944. "I noticed a Japanese cut flesh from the arms, legs, chest and hips and carry same to their quarters. I was shocked and followed the Japanese to find out what they would do to the flesh. They cut the flesh into small pieces and fried it. At about 1800 hours (6 P. M.) a Japanese major-general addressed about 150 Japanese, mostly officers. At conclusion of the speech, a piece of the flesh was given to all present who ate it on the spot."

Medical Demonstration.

"why we had to fight."

The Kyodo news agency said the appeal was issued by a spokesman for the Japanese defense lawyers and that U. S. Army censorship had approved its publication.

Observers long have anticipated that the defense would be based on an attempt to prove that Japan was forced to go to war, but a general appeal for public aid had not been expected.

Sir William Webb, tribunal president, declined comment.

A Japanese soldier captured near Buna, New Guinea, January 13, 1943, testified by affidavit that at Khandok, New Guinea, he saw a "healthy, unwounded prisoner of war" tied to a tree outside Japanese secret police headquarters. While a Japanese doctor and four Japanese medical students stood around him they cut open his chest and removed his heart, on which the doctor gave "a practical demonstration."

Other affidavits said that beheadings, machine-gunnings and bayonetting of prisoners tied to trees was common.

Major Charles Henry Bicks of Hawthorne, Australia, said he found the bodies of six Australian soldiers in the Milne Bay area in August, 1942, with hands tied behind their backs and all bayonetted through the stomach. Another Australian officer said he found the bodies of two Australians tied up within fifty yards of Japanese headquarters in the Milne Bay area in September, 1942, both bayonetted and also mutilated. Still another prisoner's affidavit described the execution of seven Australians, including a boy about 7 and four women, in the vicinity of Buna in August, 1942.

Sgt. Hamir Singh of the Indian army, swore by affidavit that four Indian officers were shot to death by Japanese guards in their hut near Yapano, New Guinea, in February 1945 because they were unable to rise for work in a labor battalion. The court studied two photographs taken by a Japanese soldier which depicted the beheading of an Australian and two Ambonese natives near Aitape, New Guinea, in September 1943. Testimony that four Europeans, including a Catholic priest, were executed at Tarawa and that more than twelve Europeans were executed at Nauru and Ocean Island also was presented.

Chinese Drive Red Guerrillas From Suburbs Of Peiping

Peiping, Jan. 2 (AP)—Communist guerrillas have been driven from the suburbs of Peiping and fresh Government reinforcements have arrived at Communist-besieged Paoting, 90 miles southwest, Gen. Chen Chi-cheng, deputy commander of the Eleventh War Zone, announced today.

Chen said the guerrilla attacks along the Peiping-Hankow railway had generally failed or slackened and that conditions were easier along the Peiping-Tientsin line.

PROSECUTION NEARS END IN JAP TRIALS

TOKYO, Jan. 2—(AP) As the prosecution neared the end of its case, counsel for Premier Hideki Tojo and 26 other Japanese defendants before the international war crimes tribunal appealed to the public today for help in showing

JAPAN'S PUBLIC ASKED TO DEFEND WAR ACTS

TOKYO, Jan. 2 (AP)—Japanese attorneys defending former Premier Tojo and twenty-six other former Japanese leaders against war crimes charges appealed through the Kyodo news agency today for public cooperation to help show "why we had to fight" the Pacific war.

The startling story quoted an unidentified spokesman for the Japanese lawyers. The plea was issued on the eve of the expected conclusion Jan. 13 of the prosecution case before an international court. Kyodo editors said the story had passed United States Army censorship but it was too early to determine whether any Japanese papers would print it.

Sir William Webb, tribunal president, declined to comment.

Although it had been expected that the defense would attempt to prove Japan was forced into hostilities, no appeal to the public had been expected. Kyodo quoted a spokesman for the defense attorneys as having said: "It is extremely difficult to gather the necessary material in a short period with a minimum of personnel and handicapped by a shortage of funds, lack of transportation, suitable quarters and food."

Defense attorneys previously said they had more than 1,000 volunteer witnesses. The court recently granted them a two weeks' recess after the prosecution completes its case to prepare their phase.

Private Trade With Japs Still Banned: M'Arthur

Tokyo, Jan. 2 (AP)—General MacArthur said today that President Truman's relaxing of some wartime curbs did not mean that private trade transactions might be conducted between Japanese and foreigners.

A headquarters statement said: "Private commercial transactions will be authorized when arrangements for resumption of private trade have been made."

It is possible such authorization will not be made until a formal peace treaty is signed. Meantime, trade will be conducted through Government agencies.

JAP LAWYER FOILED TRYING TO FREE SON

Yokohama, Jan. 2 (A. P.).—The military police today discovered a Japanese defense attorney attempting to pass a nail file to his defendant son and ousted him from an Eighth Army courtroom.

Kakuichiro Yoshizawa, the attorney, returned later in the spectators' gallery after Defense Counsel W. E. Peters of Cleveland, Ohio, apologized to the court. The son, Kunio Yoshizawa, and six other Japanese are accused of fatally mistreating eighteen American and twenty British prisoners of war at Mitsushima camp.

Dixie Tighe Buried In Yokohama

Tokyo, Jan. 2 (A. P.).—Dixie Tighe, New York Post correspondent who covered all of the world's battlefronts in the last five years, was buried in a Yokohama cemetery today. She died Tuesday of a brain hemorrhage.

2100 Replacements Arrive in Japan

Yokohama, Jan. 2 (A. P.).—The United State Army transport Gen. A. W. Greely docked today with 2,100 replacements.

Five ships—the Hope, Republic, Marine Falcon, Gen. Langfitt and Fred Funston—are due this month with 671 Army families.

WAINWRIGHT SWORD RECOVERED IN LUZON

Manila, Jan. 2 (A. P.).—Gen. Wainwright's treasured West Point saber, lost on the retreat into Bataan and later picked up by a Filipino beside the body of a Japanese general, was recovered today. It will be sent to Wainwright.

The saber was a gift from his mother upon his graduation from West Point in 1906. After the war, a friend told Wainwright that Roberto Garcia, a chauffeur in Northern Luzon, had found it. Garcia told United States Army agents that he had intrusted it to a friend, who in turn had given it to two other men under threats.

The sword was finally discovered in possession of Jose Calma in a small village near Natividad, in the Rampanga River swamps, thirty miles northwest of Manila.

findings of several subcommittees in the expiring Congress, said the policy on ship building and repairing should be one that would insure against falling below the levels justified by "the international situation and this country's commitments."

It asserted that desire for "minimun expense" must be tempered "by the realization that the most expensive thing in the world is a cheap Army and Navy.

In laying its case against a repetition of the "scrapping policies of the twenties," the full committee stamped its okay on a subcommittee's report which offered these general recommendations for an American policy on Pacific bases:

1. For our own security, the security of the Western hemisphere, and the peace of the Pacific, the United States should have at least dominating control over the former Japanese mandated islands of the Marshalls, the Carolinas and the Marianas, and over the outlying Japanese islands of the Izus, Bonins and Ryukyus.

2. The United States should be given specific and substantial rights to the sites where American bases have been constructed on island territories of the Allied nations.

3. With respect to Manus, Noumea, Espiritu Santo, Guadalcanal and other sites of American bases on islands mandated to or claimed by other nations, full title should be given to the United States because they are links in our chain of security."

4. The United States must not permit its Pacific bases to lapse back into a state of unpreparedness, as in the instances of Guam and Wake, prior to the present war."

In discussing the Bikini atom-bomb test to which it sent four observers, the committee acknowledged that far more damage might have been done had patterns of bombs been dropped.

Tactics Cited

But it argued that the Bikini fleet, on the other hand, "was concentrated beyond any formation of

House Unit Questions Power Of A-Bomb

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—The House Naval Committee today formally declared against any sacrifice of security for economy and mildly challenged the effectiveness of the atom bomb as a weapon against fleets.

The committee, wrapping up the ships that would be operating in time of war. The fleet was anchored. Therofore no evasive tactics were taken, no defenses provided and no counter measures taken."

It reached the conclusion that the "atomic bomb is not most effective against fleets, but rather that it is most potent against large land installations and concentration of troops. The potential destruction of naval operating and supply bases would appear to be a greater problem than to fleets themselves."

The committee, however, termed the atom bomb "the most deadly weapon that man has ever employed," and said that the public should not be lulled into a "sense of false security" because the results of the test "did not live up to some of the fantastic claims made for it in advance."

More A-Bomb Power Held Possible

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—Former Assistant Secretary of War John J. McCloy says a tenfold increase in the power of the atom bomb is possible within the next decade—and that new methods could produce one a thousand times stronger.

In an article in the current issue of the Infantry Journal, unofficial service publication, McCloy said it is certainly possible to increase "the quantity of the fissionable material in the bomb."

Efficiency Heretofore

[The amount of fissionable material in the atom bombs used on Japan and at Bikini was estimated to be only one tenth of one per cent efficient, the remainder merely burning up in the explosion.]

McCloy wrote:

"From first-hand information given me by the scientists whose prophecies were uncannily perfect during the course of the war, there can be little doubt that within the next ten years, to be conservative, bombs of a size of the power equivalent to 100,000 to 250,000 tons of T.N.T. can be made, something over ten times more powerful than the bomb dropped on Hiroshima.

1,000 Times More Powerful

"And if we move to the other end of the periodic table and utilize hydrogen in the generation of energy, we would have a bomb somewhere around 1,000 times as powerful as the Nagasaki bomb.

"I have been told by scientists . . . that, given the same intensive effort which was employed during the war toward the production of that (the New Mexico test) bomb, we were within two years' time at the close of the war of producing a bomb of the hydrogen-helium type, i. e., a bomb of approximately 1,000 times the power of the present bombs."

[The bombs exploded up to now have been of uranium or plutonium material.]

Prevention Of War Urged

McCloy asserted that the only way really to win an all-out war of the future is to prevent it, because such a war would be synonymous with suicide. Then he said:

"Today, and for some time past, the doctrine has been preached that the capitalistic and democratic countries of the West constitute a menace to world peace. Such was the gist of Premier Stalin's speech of February last, and it was a seriously argued contention. He argued that the disruptive gyrations of our business and economic cycles created potentials of disorder and violence.

"These inevitably resulted in war, or so it was contended by Stalin. His thesis was that the dictated planning of the Soviet state only could maintain peace. This seems supremely anomalou.. to us in the light of the dictatorship history and particularly when peace is to be maintained by a NKVD or by any form of secret police oppression."

The Army's Manhattan district, under which the atomic bomb was developed and manufactured, was transferred to the new civilian Atomic Energy Commission at the start of the New Year, together with all of its personnel, plants and the data on how to produce nuclear energy and manufacture bombs.

CHEAP ARMY, NAVY OPPOSED

House Group Says Economy Would Be Expensive

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—In an apparent effort to block an economy drive at the expense of the armed forces, the House Naval Committee cautioned Congress today that "the most expensive thing in the world is a cheap army and navy."

The assertion was incorporated in a lengthy report which indorsed a subcommittee's recommendation for American retention of Pacific island security bases and which urged preservation of a "healthy" aircraft industry.

The full committee acknowledged that "scientific research will shape the navy of tomorrow," but, in effect, challenged the contention advanced in some quarters that the atom bomb has made this nation's navy obsolete.

More Effective On Land

Basing its findings upon the first-hand observations of five of its members, the committe said that the bomb "is not most effective against fleets, but rather it is most potent against large land installations and concentrations of troops."

The committee emphasized that the nation's shipbuilding and ship-repairing potentials should not be "dissipated below those levels which the international situation and this country's commitments justify."

In dealing with the nation's plans for the Pacific, the committee stamped its okay upon a series o recommendations previously mad public by a special subcommittee which made an on-the-spot survey of this country's defensive requirements there.

The committee offered several recommendations for specific changes in naval administration, including use of cost accounting in naval yards, tighter organization to prevent duplication of personnel, modification of the court-martial system to make it more closely approximate that of civil trials, and Federal reimbursement to local communities of taxes lost through expansion of naval shore establishments.

10 New Plane Types In 1946

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—The Army Air Forces developed ten new planes last year, ranging from a tiny liaison craft to the 139-ton B-36 and including a rocket-powered strongbox built to fly at the speed of sound.

Summarizing 1946 in a statement, the AAF said today it was "outstanding, so far as new research and new developments in the field of military aviation were concerned."

"It was a year which saw the transition of the jet airplane from the novelty stage to the category of accepted and proven aircraft," the AAF said; "a year which saw the birth of the 10,000-mile super bomber; a year which launched America's first rocket-powered airplane."

All Have Flown

Here briefly are the new AAF planes that flew in 1946:

XP-81 — A long-range fighter built by Consolidated-Vultee with a jet engine in the tail and a turbine-driven propeller in the nose, the first of its type in the United States.

XP-84—A jet fighter built by Republic Aviation that holds the national speed record of 611 miles an hour.

XP-83—A two-engine jet fighter built by Bell Aircraft.

XF-12—A four-engine photographic plane built by Republic with its propellers aided by an exhaust boost and having top speeds well above 400 miles an hour and a range of 4,500 miles.

Flying Wings, Too

XB-43—A two-engine jet bomber with a speed of about 500 miles an hour built by Douglas Aircraft.

XP-79—A two-engine flying wing, built by Northrop Aircraft, in which the pilot lies prone.

L-13—A three-place liaison plane, built by Consolidated-Vultee, which can be used for observation, communication, photography, light hauling and ambulance work. It cruises at 92 miles an hour.

XB-35—A giant conventionally-powered flying wing, first of its kind, with a gross peak load of 104 tons. It was built by Northrop along the lines of smaller experimental types.

World's Largest Bomber

XB-36—A six-engine conventionally-powered bomber built by Consolidated Vultee and weighing at gross loading 178,000 pounds. It can carry five tons of bombs 10,000 miles, and is the world's largest bomber.

XS-1—A rocket-powered research plane, built by Bell, with the strongest structure for size of any aircraft. It is intended to explore the regions of speeds near that of sound. The AAF said it might approach such speeds late next year.

ANGLO-AMERICAN MILITARY MERGER DEFINITELY OUT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2—(AP) Responsible officials tonight ruled out for the predictable future any full-scale merger of British and American armed forces, but indicated that the United States is seeking an extensive standardization of arms in some foreign countries, based on U. S. armaments.

The question of arms standardization, as explained here, is based on the broad political principle that countries which might some day have to fight together should prepare in advance to do that.

But officials threw cold water on reports by the Paris Socialist newspaper Aurore that British and United States armies will soon be forged into a single fighting arm, extending from the North Pole to the Rio Grande and from Asia Minor to Japan.

Aurore asserted that Britain and the United States would sign a secret accord on March 15 to fight together if attacked, and said equipment and training for the armed forces of both nations would become uniform.

Agreement Confirmed

In London, a British government official confirmed that the United States and Britain have agreed to standardize "certain items of military equipment." As a step in that direction, he said, the standardization of small arms to American patterns is being discussed.

Some of the proposals for standardization will require congressional approval, it was pointed out here. And President Truman is expected to urge again the necessary legislation.

Primarily his military and diplomatic advisors want enactment of measures partially approved by Congress last session to (1) allow government disposal of arms to Latin American countries and Canada and (2) allow assignment of military missions to foreign governments.

These are part of a program which government advisors consider necessary to buttress this nation's position as a world power and prepare it against future possibilities which may develop either inside the United Nations in connection with plans for international peace forces or outside the United Nations in connection with great power rivalries.

The arms standardization project wos explained on high authority to cover primarily the equipping of South American forces with American rather than European, chiefly British, weapons which they now use.

U. S. System For Canada

The War and State departments have been working since last fall through the joint Canadian-United States Defense commission to standardize American and Canadian arms. This mainly involves making arrangements by which the Canadians would give up their traditional British military system and weapons and adopt the American system.

In the third and less urgent category is the question of cooperation between the United States and British military forces. British sources here and in London said the limit of formal agreement so far reached is for the exchange of 100 officers each between the American and Royal Air Forces for training.

No plans have yet been made for maintaining permanently the combined chiefs of staff of which Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson is the British member and General Dwight D. Eisenhower the American Army member. But ranking officials here expect that the organization will go on. President Truman said it will function for at least another six months.

The function of the military missions, similar to that headed by Col. H. Norman Schwartzkopf in Iran under the President's war powers, is to build goodwill, help maintain order in the American interest in such nervoys countries as those of the Middle East and on occasion help train foreign armies to the American way of doing things when that seems politically desirable.

personnel good, although "it is quite evident that both enlisted men and officers are rather promiscuous in their association with German women."

U.S. Flatly Denies Troops In Turkey, Iraq

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—A State Department press officer today flatly denied a report in the Moscow magazine New Times which said that many American troops are in Turkey and Iraq.

"There are absolutely no troops there," Lincoln White, the press officer, told a news conference.

The Soviet magazine had said that American troops, aviators and port specialists were in the two countries and that the number would be increased in the "nearest future."

China Reds Attack 'U.S. Imperialism'

San Francisco, Jan. 2 (AP)—The Chinese Communists' official newspaper, Emancipation Daily, declared today in a New Year's editorial: "The Chinese people must avow to struggle to death with Chiang Kai-shek and American imperialism, for the sake of independence, peace and democracy."

The editorial was broadcast by the party's Yenan radio and recorded here by the Associated Press. It declared that after the Japanese surrendered "an American imperialism came to replace Japanese imperialism, desiring to obliterate the Chinese nation, to transform China into its colony.

Yanks In Europe's Black Mart Held A 'Vast Majority'

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—The House Military Committee today approved a staff report stating that a "vast majority" of American military personnel in Europe seem to be "involved one way or another" in black-market activities.

The original report was made public by a committee member several weeks ago.

The committee suggested that "it should be possible to check the bank accounts or income-tax returns of various officers or enlisted men who were in Germany a year ago to ascertain the present state of their fortunes."

The committee expressed the hope that a new army currency control program now in operation will halt the activities.

Reaction to the program, it said, "was similar to a situation in which the bottom is hit by a drop in the Stock Market."

"Many people who have obviously been living on black-market profits will now have to use real money," the committee commented.

The committee said its investigators found health conditions and morale among American foreign

U. S. to Pay Italy $50,000,000 More

Will Be Second Installment on Bill for Services

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP).—The United States is preparing to turn over within the next few weeks a second payment of about $50,000,000 to the Italian government, United States officials disclosed today.

The sum will pay for services and supplies bought by American forces in Italy with lira.

A third installment probably will be handed over to the Italian government several months later after War Department officials have completed necessary accounting of expenditures. This payment probably will range from $30,000,000 to $40,000,000.

The second installment will raise American dollar payments to the Italian government for lira, including troop pay, to the round sum of $260,000,000, United States officials said.

They added that American government agencies were speeding work on the payments because it now appears that Congress cannot act until perhaps March on an expected Administration request for funds to finance relief operations in Italy, Austria and Greece.

U.S. Again Prods Russia On Lend-Lease Account

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—The United States has prodded Russia for a third time in an effort to get the Soviets to settle their $11,000,000,000 lend-lease account, Government officials said tonight.

Lieut. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, American Ambassador to Moscow, is reported to have taken up the matter personally yesterday with the Soviet Foreign Office. Two previous notes from the State Department suggesting Russo-American discussions to settle these wartime obligations have gone unanswered, it was said.

These officials said Ambassador Smith intended to follow up his first conversations on the subject by calling again on the Soviet Foreign Office in an effort to speed the talks.

POLISH VISAS SPEEDED

Byrnes Orders Warsaw Embassy to Aid Trips to U. S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP)—Secretary of State Byrnes has instructed the emabssy in Warsaw, Representative George G. Sadowski of Michigan said today to expedite action of visa applications of nonquota and preferred-status residents of Poland desiring to enter the United States.

There are persons in Poland who have members of their immediate families living in this country.

Mr. Sadowski said Mr. Byrnes had advised him that he had directed the embassy to open its visa section for these people "at the earliest possible date."

Four Nations Fail To Join World Bank

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—Russia, Australia, New Zealand and Liberia have passed up the chance to become "charter members" of the World Bank and the World Monetary Fund, officials of those organizations and today.

All four took part in the Bretton Woods conferences founding the two 40-nation institutions, but let the new year deadline pass without signing the articles of agreement, these officials said.

Any of the four can still apply for membership at any time.

'PURGE' IS URGED OF UN-AMERICANS

House Group Would Oust Agents From Organizations

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—The House Committee on Un-American Activities urged tonight that patriotic Americans everywhere "purge" un-American agents from organizations and activities with which they are in contact.

For its part, the committee recommended eleven legislative steps to combat subversive elements, including a requirement that only American citizens be allowed to hold office "in any labor unions subject to Federal laws." Federal employment also should be limited to citizens, the committee said.

Legislation Recommended

The members recommended legislation to:

1. Deny second-class mailing privileges to all foreign-language newspapers and periodicals which do not carry in adjoining columns a full English translation.

[Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R.,N.J.), slated to succeed Wood as chairman, refused to go along on this on grounds that it would encroach on freedom of the press.]

2. Prohibit membership by persons using an alias or assumed name in any organization using the United States mails or subject to Federal laws.

3. Deny second-class mailing rights to anyone publishing, distributing or promoting subversive or un-American propaganda.

Would Discharge Disloyal

4. Create an independent commission to investigate and order the discharge of any Government employé or official whose loyalty to the United States is "in doubt."

5. Require the Justice and State departments to name and identify every six months all agents of foreign governments in this country.

6. Establish in the Justice Department a special division to prosecute subversive elements.

7. Order deportation of all "alien Communists and other subversive aliens" and a strict "screening" of aliens entering the country.

8. Take away tax-exemption privileges from "Communist Fronts" posing as educational, charitable and relief organizations.

It filed the legislative proposals with the House as part of a final report on its work during the past year. Representative Wood (D., Ga.), retiring chairman, said he felt that "we have done great work for the American people."

But the report said neither the committee nor the FBI by themselves can prevent growth of un-Americanism in this country. It said active co-operation of the people is necessary and urged that:

"Throughout America there . . . be an active and accelerated attempt by patriotic Americans everywhere to purge the ranks of organizations and activities with which they are in contact from the presence and influence of un-American agents of every type and description."

Adamson Report Toned Down

The report toned down greatly a preliminary draft written by Ernie Adamson, who is bowing out as chief counsel. Adamson's draft had placed Communist or subversive brands on various unions, Government agencies, individuals and organizations.

Omitted, too, was a statement in Adamson's version that Communists hope to achieve control of the United States by means of a general strike through Communist-controlled unions which would "ultimately result in a revolution."

The committee-approved report—signed by all members—did not fail to take a few swings at communism on its own.

To Let Others Alone

"We have no desire to change the system of government now operating in Soviet Russia nor to impose our American freedoms and our free enterprise system upon any other country.

"However, we are equally firm in our determination to resist the attempts of those who would impose upon us a philosophy of government and economics as grossly foreign to our concepts of constitutional liberties as those advocated by Communists."

It said the "most effective" method of curtailing communism in this country is for all organizations, activities and groups to purge from their ranks the "Communist, Fascist hatemongers and other subversive elements."

HOOVER STRESSES RED CURB NEED

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—(AP) The Communist party in the United States, with "power and influence out of proportion to its membership," unless halted "will bring the same terror, oppression and tyranny that the forces of Fascism would impose upon us," says J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

In an article in the current American Magazine, "Red Fascism in the United States today," Hoover discusses the "stealth, trickery and deceit" through which party members seek to conceal their real goals of violent revolution, atheism and support of Russia and the Red flag in preference to the United States and the American flag.

"The disloyalty of American Communists is no longer a matter of conjecture," Hoover says in discussing the "flip-flops" through which the party has consistently supported the Soviet Union and opposed the United States in all disputes between the two countries.

The Communists are currently intensifying their work in the United States. They believe the "moment is not far off when a revolutionary situation will develop in America." And last fall they "launched an intensive training program for the 15,000 new party members, as well as for the older ones."

Probe Of RFC's War Activities Is GOP Aim

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—A sweeping inquiry into the RFC's handling of war plants and contracts was under discussion today by Republican members of the Senate War Investigating Committee.

The Republicans talked of undertaking the inquiry into the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as the first of several to be carried out if the life of the group is continued by the GOP-controlled Senate.

If RFC's war activities are probed, a committee member said, it is likely that Jesse Jones, former head of the agency and former Secretary of Commerce, will be the first witness.

All Might Testify

The organization provided much of the financing for wartime industrial development either directly or through an interlocking maze of subsidiaries.

Also high on the list of prospective witnesses would be George E. Allen, who resigned last week as an RFC director after laying before President Truman a comprehensive plan to streamline the agency and take away many of its wartime powers.

There were indications that the Republicans have been looking critically at the RFC for some time with the idea of shearing off much of its authority before deciding whether to give it a new lease on life. Its present congressional authorization expires June 30.

Senator Brewster (R., Me.), who is expected to head the new War Investigating Committee, said that Allen's suggestions seemed to be an invitation for the new Congress to look thoroughly into the agency's operations.

Four Vacancies To Fill

Under a resolution passed by the last Senate, the committee will be continued until January 30. There are four membership vacancies, caused by the retirement of Senators Mead (D., N.Y.), Tunnell (D., Del.), Briggs (D., Mo.) and Mitchell (D., Wash.).

Mitchell's place may go to Senator Harry Cain (R., Wash.), who defeated him. Republican leaders are also considering the appointment of Senator Joseph McCarthy (R., Wis.) as a new member.

Appointments to the committee will be made by Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) as the Senate's presiding officer. Since only two Democrats, Senators Kilgore (W.Va.) and Connally (Texas) remain as members, two additional will be named from that party.

Winant Resigns From U.N. Post

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP) — The White House today announced the resignation of John G. Winant as United States representative on the United Nations Economic and Social Council.

From State Department sources, it was learned that retiring Senator Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, will probably succeed Winant on the council.

Winant, former American Ambassador to London, is leaving his United Nations post January 10.

In his letter of resignation, Winant said that the work of organization and co-ordination of the Economic and Social Council was almost completed and that he desired to return to private pursuits.

"It is nearly ten years ago that I accepted service in the foreign field, and I would like to be free to pick up private life again as a citizen of my own country," he told President Truman.

After 21 years in the Senate, La Follette ran for nomination as a Republican in the last Wisconsin primary and was defeated by Joseph R. McCarthy. Mr. Truman is expected to send his nomination to the Senate next week.

SURPLUS-SALE SETUP SCORED

Disposal Cost May Top Monetary Return, Probers Warn

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—In a report hitting at "sloppy business methods," a House committee warned today that it may cost the Government more to dispose of its vast stocks of surplus war property than it realizes on sales.

Prepared by a special committee which inquired into the disposal job, the report also alleged "favoritism, if not downright corruption."

The committee said the responsibility for the situation must be attributed in large measure "to the early handling of the program and to the constant shifting of responsibility for its accomplishment among various agencies."

Recommendations Made

The committee is headed by Representative Slaughter (D., Mo.), who was defeated for renomination by Enos A. Axtell, Democrat backed by President Truman. Axtell in turn lost to a Republican.

Since it started its inquiry, the committee said, it has noted that the program is being handled in a "far more efficient manner than was the case when the committee began its deliberations." It gave credit to Robert M. Littlejohn, present war assets administrator, for the improvement.

To improve the disposal job, the committee recommended:

1. Elimination of most existing priorities for the purchase of property other than real estate.

2. Removal of international organizations from a position "where they enjoy a preferred status over American business."

3. Insurance against speculators forming so-called "nonprofit" schools to make themselves eligible for "enormous discounts in the aquisition of surplus property."

To date, the committee said, the monetary return to the Government from surplus sales "has been minute."

Committee "Jolted"

It said property costing approximately $12,500,000,000 already has been disposed of for about $2,500,000,000 gross, or 17.5 per cent, "before charging off the hundreds of millions of dollars which have been spent in the disposal program."

The total surplus, it added, probably amounts to about $29,000,000,000 (original cost).

The committee said it was "jolted" to learn that some "scrap" sold included several thousand small bombs.

Regional offices, the committee said, have been in a state of "complete disorganization, and, in many instances, favoritism, if not downright corruption, was apparent in their operation."

Littlejohn said, "In general I agree with the recommendations contained in the report, but there is one thing they haven't covered."

This, he said, was that "the law is basically designed to effect the social distribution of surplus property, and that brings on the priority system."

"The two things together," he added, "cause a low return to the Government."

Parents Give Jap Scholarship; Son Killed In Pacific

Easton, Pa., Jan. 2 (AP)—A Downingtown (Pa.) couple's belief that only good will will prevent repetition of the war that claimed their son's life opened the way today for a Japanese student to study at Lafayette College.

The couple, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McC. Johnstone, whose son, Private Robert S. Johnstone, was killed by a Japanese in the Ipo Dam sector on Luzon in May, 1945, have founded a scholarship upon the $10,000 Government insurance their son carried. Young Johnstone had requested the scholarship be set up in event of his death to bring about a better understanding between the Americans and Japanese.

The scholarship has been awarded to Robert Y. Nishiyama, 22, who was in training in the Kamikaze corps at the end of the war. He is the first Japanese to receive a scholarship to an American college since Pearl Harbor. He will come to the United States as soon as the ban on Japanese travel to this country is lifted.

LONDON,JAN.2-(AP)-BRITISH OFFICIALS USHERED IN THE NEW YEAR WITH THE DISCLOSURE THAT BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES ARE AT WORK ON ARMS STANDARDIZATION AND JOINT OFFICER TRAINING, AND THE PARIS NEWSPAPER AURORE SIMULTANEOUSLY FORECAST EVENTUAL UNIFICAT

STANDARDIZATION AND JOINT OFFICER TRAINING, AND THE PARIS NEWSPAPER AURORE
SIMULTANEOUSLY FORECAST EVENTUAL UNIFICATION OF THE TWO ARMIES UNDER A SECRET ACCORD IT SAID WOULD BE SIGNED MARCH 15. INS.

A GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL, CONFIRMING IN PART REPORTS HEARD SINCE OCTOBER, SAID THE TWO COUNTRIES HAD AGREED TO STAMDARDIZE "CERTAIN ITEMS OF MILITARY EQUIPMENT" AND ALREADY HAD EXPERTS TALKING OVER STANDARDIZATION OF SMALL ARMS TO U.S. SIZES AND PATTERNS.

THE AIR MINISTRY ANNOUNCED LAST NIGHT THAT THE ROYAL AIR FORCE AND THE U.S. ARMY AIR FORCES WERE PLANNING TO START JOINT TRAINING WITH THE EXCHANGE OF 30 TO 40 OFFICERS EACH, TO BE EXPANDED TOWARD AN UPWARD LIMIT OF 100 EACH. THE EXCHANGE WAS EXPECTED TO BE EFFECTED "IN THE NEAR FUTURE."

AURORETN A SOCIALIST PAPER, HAD REPORTED EARLIER THAT THE PREDICTED MARCH 15 AGREEMENT WOULD CALL FOR JOINT DEFENSE IN EVENT EITHER BRITAIN OR THE U.S. WAS ATTACKED.

YESTERDAY IT ADDED THAT EQUIPMENT OF THE TWO ARMIES WOULD BE MADE UNIFORM; THAT BRITISH OFFICER TRAINING WOULD BE PATTERNED AFTER WEST POINT TRAINING, AND THAT CANADA WOULD BECOME THE FIRST PROVING GROUND OF UNIFICATION. THE GOAL, THE PAPER SAID, IS A SINGLE FIGHTING ARM, WITH POSTS FROM THE NORTH POLE TO THE RIO GRANDE AND FROM ASIA MINOR TO JAPAN.

A BRITISH OFFICIAL, WHO ASKED REPORTERS NOT TO GIVE HIS NAME, SAID EXPERTS DISCUSSING ARMS STANDARDIZATION WERE "STARTING AT THE BOTTOM AND WORKING THEIR WAY UPWARDS." HE REPORTED NO DECISION YET TO STANDARDIZE ALL BRITISH AND U.S. MILITARY EQUIPMENT, BUT HE DID NOT RULE OUT THIS POSSIBILITY.

BRITAIN, HE SAID, "IS NOT AVERSE TO STANDARDIZING MILITARY EQUIPMENT WITH THE RUSSIANS." HE TOLD NEWSMEN THAT FIELD MARSHAL LORD MONTGOMERY, BRITISH CHIEF OF STAFF, WOULD BRING BACK ANY SOVIET PROPOSALS ON THE SUBJECT FROM HIS VISIT TO MOSCOW THIS MONTH BUT DID NOT PLAN TO TALK ARMS REDUCTION.

INFORMED QUARTERS SAID THAT U.S. FLYING COLONELS AND RAF GROUP CAPTAINS--THE EQUIVALENT RANK--WOULD LEAD SMALL GROUPS OF OFFICERS EXCHANGED UNDER THE NEW JOINT AIR TRAINING PLAN.

THE OFFICERS, THE AIR MINISTRY SAID, ARE TO BE PUT INTO SCHOOLS OR ATTACHED TO COMMANDS AND STAFFS TO BE TRAINED IN STAFF METHODS, TACTICS, EQUIPMENT AND RESEARCH.

WHETHER U.S. AIRMEN WOULD SERVE ONLY IN THE BRITISH ISLES WAS NOT YET DECIDED, IT WAS UNDERSTOOD, BUT THE LABORITE DAILY HERALD FORECAST THAT THEY "WILL BE ABLE TO SERVE WITH OUR UNITS OVERSEAS."

"BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES ARE RAPIDLY COMPLETING PLANS FOR LAND, SEA AND AIR COOPERATION IF THEY ARE INVOLVED IN ANOTHER WAR," SAID THE NEWS CHRONICLE.

THE COMMUNIST DAILY WORKER DECLARED THAT YESTERDAY'S ANNOUNCEMENTS PROVED THAT "BRITISH ARMED FORCES ARE BEING RAPIDLY TIED HAND AND FOOT BEHIND ALL THE MOST RUTHLESS AND AGGRESSIVE TENDENCIES IN AMERICAN CAPITALISM."

TITO TOLD HIS COUNTRYMEN, MOSCOW SAID, THAT THE STEPS WHICH YUGOSLAVIA HAS TAKEN TOWARD RECOVERY ARE DUE TO THE FACT THAT "THE POWER IS NOW IN THE HANDS OF THE PEOPLE" AND "ALL THE MOST IMPORTANT MEANS OF PRODUCTION ARE IN THE HANDS OF THE WORKERS."

LISTING THE ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF THE PAST YEAR, HE SAID THAT 250,000 HOMES HAD BEEN BUILT, SEVERAL HUNDRED MILES OF RAILWAYS REPAIRED, MANY RUINED FACTORIES RESTORED TO OPERATION
AND MANY NEW ONES ERECTED BY "SELF-SACRIFICING LABOR." THERE WAS NO MENTION IN THE MOSCOW VERSION OF HIS SPEECH OF UNRRA'S CONTRIBUTIONS TO YUGOSLAV RECOVERY.

"AFTER THE WAR," TITO WAS QUOTED AS SAYING, "WE HAD NOT THE NECESSARY MONEY, BUT TO THIS DAY WE HAVE NOT BORROWED ANY MONEY WITHIN THE COUNTRY NOR HAVE WE REQUESTED ASSISTANCE FROM ABROAD."

TITO ADDED THAT "THIS YEAR WE SHALL LAUNCH A PLANNED ECONOMY AND START ON THE FIVE YEAR PLAN FOR INDUSTRIALIZATION AND ELECTRIFICATION OF OUR COUNTRY." HE CALLED ON THE YUGOSLAV PEOPLE TO "EXERT EVERY EFFORT TO COPE WITH THIS DIFFICULT TASK."

ISTANBUL, TURKEY, JAN. 2-(AP)-A SPECIAL COMMISSION OF MENTAL EXPERTS, APPOINTED BY THE SYNOD OF THE GREEK ORTHODOX CHURCH, HAS OFFICIALLY REPORTED MAXIMOS V, THE 51-YEAR-OLD PATRIARCH, TO BE SUFFERING FROM A NERVOUS DISORDER. 1947

HIGHLY COMPETENT SOURCES SAID THE RIGIDLY CLOISTERED LIFE A PATRIARCH MUST LEAD HAD CAUSED MAXIMOS' ILLNESS LESS THAN A YEAR AFTER HE BECAME THE SPIRITUAL LEADER OF THE CHURCH.

THE COMMISSION'S REPORT WAS RETURNED DEC. 30.

THE COMMISSION SAID THAT IT BELIEVED MAXIMOS' "INTELLIGENCE IS NORMAL" AND THAT HE PROBABLY WOULD BE CURED. HE NOW IS UNDERGOING SPECIAL TREATMENT AND WILL BE EXAMINED AGAIN, PERHAPS WITHIN TWO WEEKS, INFORMED SOURCES SAID.

MAXIMOS IS ONE OF THE YOUNGEST PATRIARCHS IN THE HISTORY OF THE CENTURIES-OLD ORTHODOX RELIGION. SHORTLY AFTER HIS ELECTION FEB. 20, 1946, HE WAS REPORTED TO HAVE PACED ACROSS A ROOM IN THE PATRIARCHATE AND CRIED OUT TO AN ASSOCIATE:

"I KNOW NOW THIS IS NO LIFE FOR A YOUNG MAN."

USUALLY RELIABLE INFORMANTS SAID THAT, SINCE THEN, THE HEAD OF ONE OF THE MIGHTIEST THRONES OF RELIGION HAD SUFFERED FROM WHAT WAS DESCRIBED BY HIS ASSOCIATES AS A "RESTRICTION PHOBIA."

COUPLED WITH THIS HAS BEEN THE HEAVY BURDEN OF THE OFFICE, 1947 PARTICULARLY NOW WHEN THE PATRIARCH IS CONFRONTED WITH THE CAUTIOUS MOVES BY THE RUSSIAN ORTHODOX CHURCHMEN TO EXPAND THEIR ORBIT OF INFLUENCE.

MANY REPORTS HAVE SAID MAXIMOS MIGHT RETIRE FROM OFFICE, BUT NO ONE WELL INFORMED WOULD SAY THAT SUCH ACTION IS LIKELY IN THE NEAR FUTURE. ONE REASON GIVEN IS THAT IT REQUIRES CONSIDERABLE TIME TO PREPARE FOR A NEW ELECTION. THE SOURCE SAID MAXIMOS, OF COURSE, MIGHT RECOVER ENTIRELY AND BE ABLE TO CARRY ON.

THE CHURCH IS ADMINISTERED NORMALLY BY A PATRIARCH AND 12 ARCHBISHOPS WHO COMPOSE THE SYNOD. VITAL ISSUES REQUIRE THE APPROVAL OF BOTH POWERS, BUT THE SYNOD ITSELF CAN DISPOSE OF ROUTINE MATTERS. PERSONS CLOSE TO THE PATRIARCHATE SAID THE MORE IMPORTANT ISSUES HAD BEEN PUT ASIDE AT PRESENT.

A NOTICEABLE IMPROVEMENT IM MAXIMOS' CONDITION WAS REPORTED IN THE LAST TWO DAYS. FOR THE FIRST TIME IN WEEKS, MAXIMOS ASKED FOR FOOD ON NEW YEAR'S DAY AND WALKED IN THE GARDEN OF THE HALKO SEMINARY, WHERE HE IS CONFINED. THE PATRIARCH HAD BEEN ENTIRELY WITHOUT APPETITE

ANCIENT CUSTOM AND LAWS MAKE THE PATRIARCH'S LIFE RIGIDLY CONFINED. HE MUST ALWAYS WEAR THE CLOTHES OF HIS OFFICE, BUT, BECAUSE THE WEARING OF RELIGIOUS GARB IN PUBLIC IS PROHIBITED GENERALLY BY THE TURKS, MAXIMOS NEVER GOES OUT IN PUBLIC EVEN THOUGH HE IS EXCUSED FROM THAT EDICT.

FOR TRIPS FROM THE PATRIARCHATE AT FENAR, ON THE GOLDEN HORN, TO HALKI SEMINARY, ON A MARMARA SEA ISLAND, HE CHARTERS A FERRY BOAT WHICH PICKS HIM UP AT FENAR AND TRAVLES WITH ONLY THE PATRIARCH AND HIS SUITE ABOARD. HE IS SURROUNDED ALWAYS BY HIS ADVISERS AND HAS VIRTUALLY NO PRIVACY.

THE PATRIARCH IS ELECTED FOR LIFE. HENCE, SHOULD MAXIMOS RETIRE, 1947 HE STILL WOULD BE ENTITLED TO THE FULL HONORS OF THE OFFICE AND BE KNOWN AS THE EX-PATRIARCH OF CONSTANTINOPLE.

SPECULATION OVER A POSSIBLE NEW PATRIARCH EXTENDED TO NEW YORK, WHERE SOME SOURCES SAID ARCHBISHOP ATHINAGORAS MIGHT BE A CANDIDATE. HE IS WELL LIKED HERE, ESPECIALLY BY THE TURKISH GOVERNMENT. OTHER

Three Officials Discuss Way To Smash Underground Violence

C/W 1947

London, Jan. 2 (AP)—Field Marshal Lord Montgomery and Lieutenant General Sir Alan Cunningham met tonight with Arthur Creech Jones, Colonial Secretary, to consider, a Government source said, how British troops can smash Jewish underground violence which has flared anew in Palestine.

Both Government informants and Jewish Agency sources predicted that Cunningham, High Commissioner for Palestine, who arrived in London by air earlier in the day, would ask for authority from the British Cabinet to launch an all-out offensive against Jewish underground resistance.

Meet For More Than Hour

They attached special importance to the presence at the meeting of Montgomery, chief of the Imperial General Staff, who conferred recently with British military authorities in Palestine.

They met for more than an hour. Creech Jones said: "I cannot make any statement, except that I have had a discussion with Field Marshal Montgomery and the High Commissioner."

A Jewish Agency spokesman declared that "all Whitehall knows that if the army in Palestine gets its head, the last hope of British-Arab-Jewish settlement will vanish."

An authoritative informant said that Creech Jones would report on tonight's meeting to Clement R. Attlee, Prime Minister, and Ernest Bevin, Foreign Secretary, tomorrow, and that a meeting of the Cabinet to consider the whole Palestine situation will be held next week.

Montgomery To Visit Moscow

Montgomery is scheduled to leave tomorrow for a visit to Moscow. Observers said that Montgomery's presence at the meeting pointed to the possibility that important military proposals were being considered.

In Rome, Louis Segal, general secretary of the Jewish National Workers Alliance of America, declared that the Jews would participate in the London conference on Palestine only if the British increase Palestine immigration quotas before the conference ends, stop "terrorizing the Jewish community," and permit "the normal economic development of Palestine."

Segal, who attended the recent Zionist conference in Basel, asserted that the United States State Department had officially informed Britain that the United States favored a partition plan to create an autonomous Jewish state incorporating 60 per cent of Palestine.

Position Of United States

He said the State Department's position was defined in a note to the British Government from Dean Acheson, Acting Secretary, prior to the Zionist conference.

He said the Jews believe they could bring between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 Jews into Palestine with establishment of a sizable autonomous state.

R. H. S. Crossman, Labor member of Parliament who served on the British-American Inquiry Committee on Palestine, attacked the "outlook, tactics and policy" of the United States delegation to the Zionist congress, which he said were more American than Jewish.

Writing in the leftist periodical New Statesman and Nation, Crossman said American Jewry had become a self-assertive power with a financial strangle hold on the Zionist movement.

He attacked Rabbi A. H. Silver, of Cleveland, Ohio, a leader of the United States delegation at Basel, as "an ambitious politician whose primary aim was to oust Dr. Chaim Weizmann from the presidency," and challenge the policy of British-Jewish co-operation.

He said that to Silver and his colleagues, "most of whom are completely ignorant of the Middle East, but expert in the arts of American politics," the Palestinian Jews were "colonists" forced to obey orders of American Zionists.

British Palestine Chief May Seek Attack Right

London, Jan. 3 (AP)—British Government and Jewish Agency sources expressed the belief today that Lieut. Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, Palestine High Commissioner, would ask the Cabinet for authority to launch an offensive to smash Jewish resistance in the Holy Land.

The prediction came as new violence erupted in Palestine. An official announcement in Jerusalem said an underground threat had been made to kidnap British soldiers, and that all ranks had been ordered, for their personal safety, to carry arms at all times, and to venture out of baracks only in pairs.

Three British Soldiers Hurt

Three British soldiers were injured near the coastal village of Kfar Sirkin early today when their jeep was blown up, evidently by an electrically-detonated mine.

Searchers still hunting for the men who recently flogged four British soldiers found a quantity of dynamite in a house in Jerusalem, on a route believed taken by underground forces who attempted a flame-thrower attack in the area.

Government On Spot

The attack had the British Government on the spot with two alternatives in prospect—either to find a final solution to the Palestine problem or to put the Holy Land under complete military rules.

The renewed battling in Palestine cast a pall of pessimism in the British capital as officials awaited the arrival of Sir Alan.

With a whole chain of conferences on tap to wrestle with the problem, British opinion seemed to be leaning gradually and cautiously toward Arab-Jewish partition of Palestine as a possible solution. David Ben-Gurion, chairman of the Jewish Agency Executive, said last night after a conference with Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech Jones that he was certain a Jewish state would be created in Palestine "within my lifetime." He is 60.

New Blows Follow Plea For Peace In Holy Land

Jerusalem, Jan. 3 (AP)—Fervent pleas from the Jewish Community Council imploring Palestine Jews to help quell the latest outbreak of Holy Land violence were met today with new blows from the underground forces which increased British troop casualties to eight wounded and one killed in the last 24 hours.

The underground forces launched one of their biggest attacks against British military installations last night. In a quick answer to the challenge, British troops arrested 61 Jews in searches of three Tel Aviv sections as they screened 3,251 persons. Searches continued in two other quarters of the modern all-Jewish metropolis.

Attacks Seen Continuing

It was officially announced that because of the "terrorist activity and the threat to kidnap British soldiers," all troops had been ordered for their personal safety to carry arms at all times and to walk at least in pairs when they were outside of barracks.

In addition to the British soldiers a score of civilians, including Jews and Arabs, were injured as a result of last night's outbreak, in which the underground used homemade flame throwers, grenades, mines and automatic weapons in attacks in at least twelve places.

Leaflets distributed by Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground organization, intimated the attacks would be continued against British military installations. The leaflets accused the British of "maintaining military bases in Palestine against all international legislation."

Violence Condemned

There was speculation that Irgun Zvai Leumi had spent the last three weeks in co-operation with the Stern Gang, the most extreme of all Jewish underground groups, planning the assault which was launched last night.

The emergency committee of Vaad Leumi, the Jewish Community Council, plastered housewalls in Jerusalem with its pleas, condemning violence in the strongest terms, and urging Palestine Jews to do their utmost to end these "irresponsible acts."

Despite the pleas three British soldiers were injured today when their jeep was blown up near Kfar Sirkin, about 9 miles east of Tel Aviv. Last night's major troop casualties were suffered in similar incidents in the Haifa area, with three soldiers and an officer killed when their Bren gun carrier struck a mine and overturned.

Flame Throwers Still Used

Searches went on today in Jerusalem. A small quantity of dynamite was found near the Orion movie theater, where last night a police patrol car was attacked by extremists using homemade flame throwers.

Another attack in which flame throwers were used occurred at an army car park in Tiberias, on the Sea of Galilee 75 miles northeast of Jerusalem.

The most sustained assault was against "Citrus House" in Tel Aviv, the location of British military headquarters. For at least ten minutes the attackers directed hand grenades and machine-gun fire at the headquarters from a near-by store.

Fire Directed At Police Station

The attack was believed aimed at a dining hall where many British soldiers were gathered. It resulted in the wounding of one Jewish girl employé, two Arab watchmen, a British sergeant and a Jewish police officer. Afterward, the building from which the attackers directed their fire was blown up. Cause of the explosion was not determined.

Other incidents last night included an attempt to blow up the army fire station at Hedera, about midway on the coast between Tel Aviv and Haifa, in which an Arab constable was hurt.

Automatic fire was directed at the police station on the Jeffa-Tel Aviv road, three grenades were hurled at the RAF billet in the street of the Prophets in Jerusalem, an army police car was blown up near Petah Tikva on the coastal plain, two jeeps were blown up north of Hedera, the Acre-Kiriath Hain road, an important military highway leading to Lebanon, was heavily mined and hand grenades were thrown in the vicinity of the Syrian orphanage in Jerusalem.

NEW VIOLENCE IS REPORTED IN PALESTINE

Jerusalem Jewish Council Appeals for an End to Irresponsible Acts.

3 BRITISH SOLDIERS WOUNDED

Lt.-Gen. Cunningham Expected to Ask Cabinet Authority to Smash Resistance.

Jerusalem, Jan. 3 (A. P.).—New violence occurred in Palestine today and the Jewish Community Council in Jerusalem issued an urgent appeal for an end to "irresponsible acts."

In the wake of a large-scale operation by Jewish underground units last night against British military establishments, an official British announcement said that all British troops were ordered to carry side arms at all times and to venture out of barracks only in pairs. The announcement said that a kidnap threat had been made against all British soldiers.

The Jewish Community Council's appeal, plastered on walls throughout the city, condemned violence in the strongest terms.

Three Tommes Wounded.

But in the village of Kfar Sirkin three British soldiers were wounded when a mine blew up their jeep.

The British search for perpetrators of the flogging of four Britons last week continued today in the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv, where 3,251 thus far have been screened. An official announcement said that sixty-one Jews were detained there.

In Jerusalem dynamite was found in a house believed to have been on the route taken last night by persons who launched the widespread attacks in which at least one British officer was killed and a score or more persons were wounded.

It was one of the bigger simultaneous operations ever launched in the Holy Land by the underground, which used mines, grenades, automatic weapons and homemade flame throwers in twelve or more separate attacks in Jerusalem, Tel Aviv, Tiberias, Hedera and Kiryat Haim.

Strong "Reaction" Predicted

Political observers predicted the attacks—which some sources said presumably were launched co-operatively by Irgun Zvai Leumi and the so-called Stern Gang—would draw strong reaction from the British in the form of combouts, curfews and other measures.

[The attacks followed by only a few days strong World Zionist Congress condemnation of the use of violence in Palestine and occurred only a few hours after David Ben-Gurion, chairman of the Jewish Agency Executive, declared in London that he felt sure a Jewish state would be created in the Holy Land.]

Attacks Described

Reports gave this picture of the blows struck by the underground:

At Tiberias, on the Sea of Galilee, 75 miles northeast of Jerusalem, the attackers used two homemade flame throwers in an assault on a military car park, but were beaten off.

At Kiryat Haim, in the vicinity of Haifa, one British officer was killed and at least five wounded.

British military headquarters in a Jewish section in western Jerusalem and in Tel Aviv were attacked by persons using grenades and automatic weapons. Tel Aviv was plunged into darkness during the attack, apparently because electric wires were cut. Ten persons were wounded in Tel Aviv and three in Citrus.

Jerusalem Firing Heavy

Heavy firing in the center of Jerusalem followed the attack there, but no casualties were reported. The attack in Tel Aiv was accompanied by simultaneous blows against an armored car park and a district police headquarters, which officials believed to be diversionary moves. A paratrooper, an Arab constable and a girl were wounded in the ten-minute fight.

Another flame thrower was used in Jerusalem, where a police patrol car was attacked with fire, but without casualties. At Hedera an attempt was made to blast the Army fire station. Only slight damage resulted, but an Arab constable was wounded.

Three grenades were thrown at RAF billets in the Street of the Prophets in Jerusalem. There were no casualties.

A number of British soldiers were hurt as a result of road mines in scattered areas of the Holy Land. Two policemen were hurt when their radio car was blown up at Sarona.

U.S. For Splitting Palestine, Report

Rome, Jan. 3 (AP)—Louis Segal, general secretary of the Jewish National Workers' Alliance of America, said today that the State Department of the United States had informed Britain officially that it favored the partition of Palestine to create an autonomous Jewish state incorporating 60 per cent of the Holy Land.

Segal attended the recent World Zionist Congres in Basel, Switzerland.

[Secretary of State Byrnes, announcing United States willingness to send an observer to a London conference on Palestine planned for this moth, said in New York on December 6 that "Jewish leaders . . . now regard the partition proposal as the most practical long term solution" of the Palestine problem.

Parley Conditions Listed

[He had conferred with British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and with Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, United States Zionist leader who later attended the Basel meeting.]

Segal, who declared that "under present conditions Palestine can justly be called a police state," said that Jews would participate in the London Conference only on these conditions:

1—That Britain increase Palestine immigration quotas before the end of the conference.

2—That she stop what he termed "terrorizing the Jewish community."

3—That she allow "the normal economic development of Palestine."

Segal, who lives in New York, also is chairman of the Labor Zionist Relief and Rehabilitation Committee. A recent visitor to Poland, he said that of the 3,500,000 Jews there before the war, only 100,000 had survived.

Poland A "Cemetery"

"Each of them considers Poland a permanent cemetery," Segal said.

He added that the State Department's position was defined in a note to the British Government from Acting Secretary Dean Acheson, "before" the Zionist Congress convened.

With this backing, Segal said, the Zionist Congress expressed the desire that the basis of negotiations in London should be the establishment in Palestine of two autonomous states, one Jewish and one Arab.

[A Basel dispatch dated December 24 said that the Zionist Congress had voted not to participate in the London conference.]

"The proposed Jewish portion would comprise approximately 60 per cent of present Palestine," he said. "The United States government, through the State Department, gave its approval to this plan before the congress met, in the belief that it would give both the Jews and the Arabs independence. This was expressed in a formal message to the British government from Dean Acheson, Acting Secretary of State."

Segal represented the Labor Zionist Movement of the United States at the congress session.

TREATY VIEWS SOUGHT

London, Jan. 3 (A. P.).—Eighteen countries have been invited to submit their views on the proposed peace treaty with Germany.

A foreign office spokesman said today that the four-Power Deputy Foreign Ministers would receive January 14 the views of Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, China, Czecho-Slovakia, Denmark, Greece, India, Luxembourg, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, South Africa, Ukraine, Poland, White Russia and Yugoslavia. The deputies by February 25 will decide what recommendations to make to the March meeting of Foreign Ministers.

Joint Chiefs' Abolition Urged

LONDON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Konni Zilliacus, Labor Member, called on Parliament today for abolition of the British-American Joint Chiefs of Staff, saying he felt "alarm" over the "increasingly close military cooperation" between the two nations. Mr. Zilliacus was a leader in the November Laborite revolt against the Government's foreign policy.

Defer African Visit; Royal Family Urged

London, Jan. 3 (AP)—The British Students' Labor Federation, an association of college students, urged today that the Royal family postpone its planned visit to South Africa because of what it called "racial discrimination" there.

The federation adopted a resolution, with seven dissenting votes among 250 delegates, asking that the trip be deferred "until a more progressive policy is evident in that country."

British Rail Service Cut

London, Jan. 3 (AP)—Railway lines announced the suspension of many passenger trains today to save coal as fuel shortages continued to plague British industry. The locomotives taken off passenger runs will be used to move essential freight.

BREAD RATIONING IN EIRE JANUARY 18

DUBLIN, Jan. 3—(AP) Eire, looked upon throughout the war by hungry Europeans as a land of plenty, bowed to a poor wheat harvest tonight and ordered country-wide bread rationing effective Jan. 18.

The government also drafted a plea to the international wheat control board for larger imports from the United States.

Sean Lemass, minister of commerce and industry, announced in a broadcast that the ration would be six pounds of bread or 4 1-2 pounds of flour per person per week—nearly twice the ration in Britain.

The Irish, for whom bread traditionally forms a major item in the diet, were told however, that current milling regulations would be changed on Jan. 18 to make bread whiter and more palatable.

Lemass said Eire was getting only about half of her needs in imported wheat, which supplements the home harvest, and the nation risked draining its stocks unless steps were taken to conserve.

Eire has rationed sugar, tea, fuel and clothing but has been able to buy most of its dinner table needs without coupons, while parts of Europe were on near-starvation rations.

French Minister Returns To Saigon From Fact-Finding Mission

JOSEPH E. DYMAN

Paris, Jan. 3 (AP)—Marius Moutet, Colonial Minister, returned to Saigon today from a fact-finding peace mission to Hanoi, where he got a first-hand view of eerie street warfare in that city and twice escaped what the French said was the fire of Viet Nam snipers.

Dispatches from Saigon in southern Indo-China did not mention any conferences by Moutet with Viet Nam officials, leading to the surmise that the Minister abandoned any intention he may have had of meeting with insurgent spokesmen after encountering hostile manifestations in the northern city.

First Concern Security

At the end of his tour of Hanoi he was quoted as saying: "Our first concern will be to guarantee the security of our nationals and soldiers."

Two French soldiers guarding the Minister's party on its tour of the city were killed within 100 yards of the Minister himself, the dispatches said.

Robert Guillain, prewar chief of the bureau for the French Havas News Agency in the Orient who accompanied Moutet, said the Colonial Minister saw a checkerboard warfare of indefinite lines across streets and blocks, with "danger everywhere."

Lines Infiltrated

Each side was continually infiltrating the other's lines, he said, and nude Viet Nam forces occasionally stole silently upon French blockhouses and succeeded in wiping out whole detachments.

A French communiqué said French military losses from the outbreak of fighting December 19 to December 31 totaled 183 dead, 396 wounded and 28 missing. No official figures were given on civilian casualties.

Snipers first opened fire on the Minister's party as it was crossing a hospital compound near the perimeter of the French-held zone. Neither Moutet nor any members of his party was hit by the fire which the French said came from an Annamite house.

Then, when the Minister and his party resumed their tour, snipers opened fire a second time at a street intersection. Two soldiers dropped dead and the caravan came to a sudden halt. A house along the route suddenly burst into flames.

At a jail where 500 Viet Nam prisoners were held, the warden showed the Minister pictures of mutilated bodies of Frenchmen which the warden said was proof of Viet Nam cruelties.

Outside the town were large Viet Nam concentrations armed with considerable artillery and mortars. Violent fighting raged at Namdinh, 50 miles southeast of Hanoi, the site of Indo-China's most important cotton mills, and at Bacninh, northeast of Hanoi on the Cau River.

Suburbs Reported Bombed

A Viet Nam radio broadcast heard at Bangkok, Siam, said four French planes bombed the northern Hanoi suburbs, killing women and children.

The broadcast declared Viet Nam troops were still holding their positions in southern Hanoi despite attempts of the French to storm their barricades and fill in trenches in front of the positions.

Moutet's mission to Hanoi had been preceded by a broadcast from Ho Chi Minh, president of the Viet Nam Republic, inviting a conference. Yesterday, however, a spokesman for the French Foreign Office said Moutet had no authority to negotiate a treaty, declared it was impossible to negotiate while Frenchmen were being killed and questioned whether Ho was in control of the situation.

The Viet Nam radio today directed a new appeal for a settlement to General Leclerc, sent from Paris to take over military control. Calling Leclerc a "soldier and a great patriot" who could add nothing to his laurels by fighting the Viet Nam troops, the broadcast said "an equitable peace is still possible."

Bullets Miss French Envoy, but Kill Two Bodyguards—Indo-China Seethes (D)

Paris, Jan. 3 (A. P.).—Snipers' bullets missed Colonial Minister Marius Moutet and killed two French soldiers guarding his official party during an inspection trip through embattled Hanoi in French Indo-China, dispatches reported today.

The Cabinet Minister, who flew to Hanoi to explore the possibility of making peace with the rebellious forces of the Viet-Nam Republic, was believed to have been the target of the bullets.

French Losses Listed.

A French communique said that French military losses from the time the fighting started in the Far Eastern colony on December 19 until December 31 totaled 183 dead, 396 wounded and 28 missing. No official estimate of casualties among French civilians was available.

Moutet, completing his tour of Hanoi, which Viet-Namese have abandoned as their capital, said that "our first concern will be to guarantee the security of our nationals and soldiers."

Moutet's departure from Saigon for Hanoi aroused considerable speculation as to how far each side was willing to go in meeting the other's demands, and whether the Minister would grant a request for a meeting made by the fugitive Viet-Nam President, Ho Chi Minh.

A new bid for a settlement was broadcast by the Viet-Nam clandestine radio to France's most renowned armored force warrior, Gen. LeClerc, now in Hanoi's port of Haiphong.

Equitable Peace Possible.

"We have the same ideals," the radio said. "Your victory, if you defeat us, would be only a very small addition to your glory and your dignity. An equitable peace is still possible."

Outside Hanoi were large Viet-Nam troop concentrations, armed with considerable artillery and mortars.

A French communique said that violent fighting was raging at Nam Dinh, fifty miles outside Hanoi and site of Indo-China's most important cotton mills. French troops there were reported still holding their positions, but Viet-Nam reinforcements were arriving.

An Associated Press dispatch from the Indo-Chinese capital, dated yesterday, said that soon after Moutet's arrival by plane from Saigon French officials reported that he and his party, visiting a hospital, had been shot at, but not hit, evidently from a nearby Annamite house.

Rebels Use Artillery

Moutet, sent out by the French Government, is investigating fighting between the French and Viet-Nam Republicans that broke out December 19, shortly before Republican President Ho Chi Minh fled the city. The fighting has since spread.

Yesterday Ho, from his unknown hiding place, was reported to have issued a bid for peace talks with Moutet. There has been no definite announcement that Moutet would accept.

Before leaving Saigon, Moutet was quoted as saying, "I shall have gained a great victory if I return to Paris with a peaceful solution." But French officials here emphasized that he was under instructions only to report back to the Cabinet and had no power to work out an on-the-spot settlement.

"Dissident" Regime

Further, a Government official said here yesterday that negotiations were impossible under "existing conditions"—while Viet-Nam snipers were firing at French authorities—and implied that it would remain so until shooting stopped and until the French were sure of the authority of Viet-Namese they might meet.

He said that nobody knew what Viet-Nam ministers were with Ho, that at least some Viet-Namese under a one-time Foreign Minister had set up an apparent "dissident" regime beyond the Chinese boundary and that the Catholic National Economy Minister, Nguyen Manh-Ha, was reported to have put himself under French military protection in Hanoi.

Moutet was preceded to Hanoi by his son and chief aide, Gustave. General LeClerc, sent from here as military commander, was in Hanoi's port of Haiphong, expected to visit the capital while Moutet was there.

De Gasperi Is En Route To America

E. BRIA (N)

Paris, Jan. 3 (AP)—Premier Alcide de Gasperi of Italy flew toward the Azores tonight en route to the United States where it was reported he hoped to find for his cold and hungry people a loan of $1,000,000,000.

Leaving Rome this morning with a party that included Maria Romana, his 23-year-old daughter who speaks English better than himself; five officials and three newspaper correspondents, de Gasperi spent three hours in Paris with French, American and Italian diplomats, then roared off on the last leg of the journey in a regularly scheduled United States Army Air Transport Command plane.

De Gasperi and his party paid for their own tickets and the plane carried other passengers and mail.

Outlined Program

Before leaving Rome he outlined a program for his mission in Washington which included requests for food and a loan.

There has been no official figure announced concerning the amount of the loan de Gasperi is seeking, but a well-informed source said that the amount discussed when negotiations were opened here during the peace conference last summer was $1,000,000,000.

It was understood at the conference that none of the funds which might be forthcoming from the United States could be used for paying Italy's war reparations bill of $360,000,000.

Pietro Campilli, Foreign Commerce Minister, said in an interview aboard the plane that the mission also will seek aid to revitalize the Italian tourist trade which before the war ranked as Italy's "biggest industry."

Hotel Destruction

He said the tourist trade is crippled because of hotel destruction and requisition, lack of transport, and the need of a more favorable rate of exchange for the tourist.

One third of Rome's hotels still are under military requisition, he said. The Italian Government has a plan for a 500,000,000,000 lire rehabilitation of the railroads by 1949, he said, but passenger cars at present are 32 per cent short of the prewar number.

The American dollar now buys 225 lire at the official rate compared with 600 on the black market. Campilli said de Gasperi's mission would discuss setting the official rate about midway between the two.

Shipping Facilities Short

He said the shortage of shipping facilities also retarded recovery of the tourist industry, with Italy's passenger fleet practically nonexistent and with freighters receiving top priority in construction plans. He said hotel reconstruction had to wait on housing for the homeless, but eventually it was planned to build hotels at Cassino and other famed battlefields.

Others in the party were Vittoria Zoppi, director general of political affairs in the Foreign Ministry; Bonato Menichelli, head of the Bank of Italy; Guido Carlio, the bank's lawyer; and Paolo Canale, the Prime Minister's secretary.

In Rome the Foreign Ministry made public a New Year's telegram from James F. Byrnes, United States Secretary of State, expressing regret that Pietro Nenni, Foreign Minister, could not accompany de Gasperi. Nenni remained behind as acting premier.

Paris, Jan. 3 (AP)—Italian Premier Alcide de Gasperi arrived here by plane from Rome today en route to the United States to seek American financial and economic aid for his country.

De Gasperi was apparently in good spirits as he left Rome on his mission, during which, he said, he would discuss with officials in Washington the possibility of an American loan to Italy and try to obtain some kind of "guarantee" of minimum food shipments to this country following the end of the UNRRA.

A chilled crowd of several hundred Italians and Americans bade good-by to the Premier as he stepped into a big ATC transport plane piloted by Capt. J. L. Bogart, of Baker, Ore.

Accompanied By Daughter

De Gasperi—first head of a former enemy nation to visit the United States since the war—was accompanied by his 23-year-old daughter, Maria Romana; five Italian Government officials and three newspaper men, including George Bria, of the Associated Press Rome Bureau.

Provisional President Enrico de Nicola and Foreign Minister Pietro Nenni—who will serve as acting Premier during de Gasperi's absence—headed the Italian delegation at the airport. The American delegation included Charge d'Affaires David McK. Key, the military, naval and air attaches and virtually the entire embassy staff.

Blum Price-Drive Fight Nation-Wide

Paris, Jan. 3 (AP)—President-Premier Leon Blum put his drive on high prices on a completely nation-wide basis tonight by enlisting departmental prefects of all France in the Government's campaign to lower living costs.

Blum outlined the Government's "five-and-ten" reduction program before the chief administrative officers of 90 districts who came from all parts of the country to hear his statement.

The Government decreed a five per cent reduction in prices on New Year's Day and said it would be followed by another five per cent cut on March 1, making a ten per cent reduction in the first two months of the year.

Blum said he had received notification of the support of employers, merchants' groups, farm organizations and labor unions for the program.

At Nantes, some large department stores posted notice of an immediate ten per cent instead of five per cent reduction. Stores in all other large cities observed the five per cent cut and a report from Lyons said that even the black-market price of coal was down eight per cent.

Small retail shops of Paris appeared reluctant to observe the Government's decree.

11 GERMANS LAUGH AT U.S. TRIBUNAL

Accused Of Joining Or Aiding Violent Pro-Hitler Ring

Stuttgart, Germany, Jan. 3 (AP)—Eleven guffawing Germans charged with joining or aiding a violent pro-Hitler resistance ring in the American zone went on trial before a United States military court today.

Activities of the gang were broken up several weeks ago after the members allegedly bombed an American military jail and three de-Nazification courts.

Don S. Farrens, prosecutor, of Decatur, Neb., told the court that the youthful leader, Siegfried Kabus, who had the SS rank of major, bombed and burned down the church of the anti-Nazi pastor who confirmed him.

Kabus Grinning and Insolent

Grinning and insolent, Kabus turned and smiled at German spectators when the pastor, the Rev. Ernst Dippon, testified that the newly reconstructed church near Stuttgart went up in flames under mysterious circumstances on August 9. He said he confirmed Kabus in the Protestant church in 1938, but the youth was "subject to Nazi influence" and finally withdrew from the church.

The prosecutor said he would show Kabus fired the church with a bomb because he had learned his old pastor was "teaching children that Hitler was a criminal."

Ten of the defendants are charged with plotting anti-American resistance, and "keeping alive and promotion of the military and Nazi spirit." One, a 17-year-old boy, was accused of knowing the gang had weapons. Nine of the defendants are under 20 years of age.

9 Reich Youths, Oldster On Trial For Bomb Plot

Stuttgart, Germany, Jan. 3 (AP)—Nine grinning German youths and a confused man of 57 went on trial here today on charges of organizing a secret Nazi resistance movement in United States-occupied Germany and conducting terror bombings in the Stuttgart area.

Also arraigned before the American Military Government court was one 17-year-old German charged with "knowledge of the possession of weapons by others."

All were seized by army investigators after the October bombing of three German de-Nazification courts and a United States military police jail.

Charges Cited

The man and the nine youths were formally accused of "creating, joining and engaging in an unauthorized secret organization dedicated to death, violence, destruction and persecution and intimidation" of persons carrying out the occupation.

"Keeping alive and promotion of the military and Nazi spirit and institutions, endangering the security of the Allied forces and frustration of the Allied occupation of Germany" were defined as further aims of the group.

United States Prosecutor Don S. Farrens, of Decatur, Neb., presented the case to the five-man court.

23-Year-Old SS Major

Throughout the reading of the charges, the Nazi youths laughed or looked amused, despite the presence of four armed constabulary troopers in the courtroom.

The Germans' alleged leader is a 23-year-old SS major named Siegfried Kabus. He admitted having possessed a forged document indicating he had been released by American authorities from internment as a prisoner of war.

Apparently bewildered by his presence among the youthful gang, 57-year-old Friedrich Engelhardt, bald and ill-dressed, admitted having forwarded conspiratorial letters through private channels to avoid American military censorship.

LIQUID GAS CRIMES CHARGED TO NAZIS

Nuernberg, Jan. 3 (A. P.).—Screaming victims died in lingering agony during Nazi concentration camp experiments in which they were burned with liquid gas, a former prisoner-nurse testified today in the War Crimes trial of twenty-three Nazi doctors.

"Those who survived the experiments were then sent to another concentration camp for extermination," the witness, Ferdinand Hall, told the American military tribunal.

Those who died from the experiments often lingered as long as five days, he added. Hall testified that the camp doctors also carried out experiments with poison gas on at least 150 prisoners. He said that German Air Force officers supervised the experiments.

Reich AMG Employe Is Linked To Goebbels

Frankfurt, Germany, Jan. 3 (AP)—The American Military Government of Greater Hesse announced tonight the arrest of an attractive German girl who had been using her military government job to protect Nazi party members and said her apprehension also led to the capture of a former Nazi Propaganda Ministry official.

Although Hildegard Wendt's record appeared clear of Nazi taint, army officers said, a careless remark she made aroused official suspicion and a trap was set.

She was caught destroying a letter which exposed the Nazi affiliations of a German and during questioning revealed that she was a personal friend of Joseph Goebbels and was a Propoganda Ministry employé, officers said.

Further questioning resulted in the arrest of her friend, Wolfgang Eduard Schaefer, described by military government officials as former chief of the Italian section of the Propaganda Ministry.

Greeks Capture Rebels, Arms

Athens, Jan. 3 (AP)—Press dispatches said today that fifteen members of an insurgent band and three truckloads of munitions and supplies had been captured by the Greek Army in the mountainous region west of Trikkala.

Thirty villagers who allegedly helped the guerrillas destroy a railroad bridge and a highway bridge were arrested and acknowledged their guilt, the dispatches said.

Another band raided a railway station halfway between Larisa and Volos and looted storehouses, the reports said, while a third group of guerrillas burned ten houses in a village near Sparta, seized four persons identified as Rightists and robbed eighteen heavily laden pack animals.

Albanian Charges Against U.S.

Belgrade, Jan. 3 (AP)—An Albanian news agency report of Premier Enver Hoxha's New Year's message published here today said Hoxha asserted that American policy toward Albania was unfriendly and consisted of continuous diplomatic notes of threats and intimidation.

The report quoted Hoxha as stating the American attitude was negative and unjust and that United States representatives in Albania not only failed to show a conciliatory spirit but even "behaved incorrectly toward a sovereign people."

Referring to the British charge that Albania violated The Hague convention in failing to announce mining of the Corfu Straits where two British destroyers were damaged and 44 British seamen were killed last October, Hoxha said if the charge were put before the United Nations Security Council Albania was prepared to reply.

"We are prepared," he said, "because we have to say and show the world many things. For the sake of the friendship that links us to the English people we never wanted to disclose these facts, but I assure you that the progressive world, and with it the English people, will be surprised at the very facts themselves and the activity of British officials with regard to Albania."

Of the Security Council's decision to send a commission to the Balkans to investigate Greek charges against Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, Hoxha said:

"We Albanians have nothing to hide because our attitude toward Greece was always clear. The provocations and accusations against our country are quite unfounded."

Foreign Correspondents Protest Leader's Arrest

Budapest, Jan. 3 (AP)—The executive committee of the Foreign Correspondents' Syndicate filed a formal protest today with Hungarian Foreign Minister Janos Gyongyosi in connection with the arrest of the syndicate's president, Jeno Szatmari, held without charge by political police.

Szatmari, Hungarian correspondent for the newspaper Basler Nachrichten, of Basel, and Svenska Dagbladet, of Stockholm, was arrested Monday night. The Swedish Legation said today that its charge d'affaires had been refused admittance to political police headquarters, where he was believed held.

United States Minister H. F. Arthur Schoenfeld, asked by a member of the syndicate to request the Government to clarify charges against Szatmari, said he could not "do anything," since the correspondent was a Hungarian national arrested by Hungarian police.

Military Missions Near End Of Bucharest Task

Bucharest, Jan. 3 (AP)—United States and British military missions are winding up their work in Bucharest.

Economic services of the missions will be transferred to commercial secretaries. United States military, naval and air attachés are already in the Romanian capital, but their appointments and names have not been officially disclosed.

The British and American military missions were removed from the ration list of the Allied Armistice Commission on January 1.

Owing to the shortage of foodstuffs in Romania, austerity measures were recommended to mission personnel and it was suggested that entertaining be curtailed.

Molotov Gets U.S. Bid To Settle Lend-Lease

Moscow, Jan. 3 (AP) — United States Ambassador General William Bedell Smith called upon Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov today and presented the United States' latest invitation to settle its lend-lease account with the Soviet Union.

Embassy quarters said the call was a routine visit, at which the Ambassador renewed his friendship with the Foreign Minister and paid his respects.

Moscow Officials Plan Monty's Visit

Moscow, Jan. 3 (AP)—British military officials in Moscow conferred with Soviet Army leaders today to draft final plans for Field Marshal Lord Montgomery's forthcoming six-day visit to Moscow.

He is to be the guest of Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky, former chief of staff of the Soviet Army and now supreme commander of Soviet forces in the Far East, and will stay at the British Embassy, across the river from the Kremlin.

Weather permitting, Lord Montgomery is to arrive Monday.

Confirms U. S. Stand On Iceland Bases

Stockholm, Jan. 3 (A. P.).—Alouis G. Dreyfus Jr., United States Minister to Sweden, said today the United States has dropped its request for bases in Iceland and that all American troops should be out of Iceland within six months under the terms of an agreement reached last October.

He made the statement at a news conference after presenting his credentials to King Gustaf. Dreyfus formerly was Minister to Iceland.

Prominent Arabs Honored

Jerusalem, Jan. 3 (AP)—Two prominent Palestine Arabs, it was announced today, have been elected members of the powerful Arab Higher Committee, headed by Jamal Effendi Husseini, nephew of the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem.

The new members are Muneir el Mahdi of Haifa, who recently returned to Palestine after nine years of exile, and Rafiq al Tamimi, a well known Arab school director from Jaffa.

Libya-Egypt Unity Move Reported

Cairo, Jan. 3 (AP)—Al Kotla, organ of the Wafdist bloc, said today that a newly organized political party in Tripoli had issued a communique demanding "unity of Libya with Egypt under the Egyptian crown."

The Egyptian Tripolitanian party, the newspaper added, said it had no objection to El Said Idri el Senussi, Libyan leader, becoming the "Libyan viceroy."

"If such a plan is achieved," Al Kotla said, "it will destroy British maneuvers in Libya because Britain is demanding the independence of Libya and at the same time increasing its influence and building military establishments in the country."

Libya is the former Italian colony to the west of Egypt now occupied by British troops.

U. S. ENVOY TALKS WITH PROTESTING CHINESE STUDENTS

NANKING, Jan. 3 — (AP) The Chinese student uproar over a controversial rape case in Peiping brought a meeting of U. S. Ambassador J. Leighton Stuart with leaders of the demonstrations today while outside the embassy 1,000 others shouted demands that American forces withdraw from China immediately.

The crowd plastered the embassy walls and doors with anti-American posters while Stuart was counseling the leaders to wait for a full report on the Peiping incident involving a Chinese girl and two U. S. Marines.

After conducting demonstrations in Peiping, Shanghai and Nanking for the past several days, the students eased off to the extent of cancelling plans to march on the Chinese foreign office and on the home of General Marshall, special presidential envoy to China.

In Shanghai, however, 36 university professors issued a statement charging that American policy endangered world peace and that Americans regarded China as "a semi-colonial nation."

Ambassador Stuart, who has spent many years in China and founded Yenching university in Peiping, where the demonstrations began, told the student delegation, "I love China as much as you do. I have spent a lifetime working to improve Sino-American relations. I am deeply grieved over any incident which damages these relations."

Taking a personal hand in the inquiry, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek ordered Peiping municipal authorities not to withhold any information from the Marines. The Marines are holding two men, one of whom has acknowledged relations with the girl on a professional basis. The Marine headquarters has said its inquiry was hampered by lack of cooperation from Chinese police.

The student march to the embassy and the call on Stuart ended a few minutes before foreign and Chinese officials arrived to attend a cocktail party in honor of Maj. Gen. Samuel Howard, Marine commandant in China.

Chinese Appeal To U.S. Envoy

Nanking, Jan. 3 (AP)—United States Ambassador Stuart today received a delegation of Chinese students and listened to their plea that American troops be withdrawn from China, while outside more than 1,000 students yelled, "GI's, go home!" and plastered embassy walls and doors with anti-American placards.

Stuart told the students he love China as much as [illegible] I have spent a lifetime working to improve Sino-American relations. I am deeply grieved over any incident which damages these relations."

Awaits Full Report

The Ambassador, who has spent most of his life in China, repeated his yesterday's statement that he is awaiting a full report of the Peiping incident that provided the springboard for demonstrations in Peiping, Shanghai and here.

Chiang Kai-shek, also taking a personal interest, sent a message to the Mayor of Peiping not to withhold any information of police officials from United States Marine authorities investigating Chinese charges that two American Marines raped a Chinese girl.

Court-Martial Slated

One of the Marines insisted that the girl is a prostitute; the other denied that he had relations with her. The case is scheduled to go before a court-martial.

Maj. Gen. Samuel Howard, United States Marine commander in China, arrived today but a spokesman said his visit had no connection with the Peiping affair.

Howard was guest of honor at a cocktail party given by Stuart for foreign and Chinese military officials.

Japanese Ex-Suicide Pilot Will Study Here As Memorial to U. S. Private Killed on Luzon

TOKYO, Jan. 3 (AP)—A former Kamikaze pilot who "naturally wanted to kill as many Americans as possible" during the war, is going to America for a college education offered by the parents of a United States Army private who was killed on Luzon.

The scholarship at Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., was set up by Mr. and Mrs. Robert McC. Johnstone of Downingtown, Pa., with the $10,000 Government insurance paid for the death of their son, Robert.

The Johnstones said the scholarship was suggested by their son before he was killed in 1945, in the hope that it would cause better understanding between Japanese and Americans.

The award was made to Robert Yukimasa Nishiyama, 22-year-old formal Naval flier who received his first name from his Christian father. He will go to Pennsylvania whenever the ban on Japanese travel is lifted. In an interview today, he said:

"I want to try my best to repay Mr. and Mrs. Johnstone for the loss of their son. I can do this only by giving my small bit toward establishing good-will between our two countries.

"I was surprised that the Americans were so nice as to offer such a scholarship and more surprised when I got a quick answer acknowledging the application I made last February."

Mr. Nishiyama, who is married to a 1940 graduate of Stanford University, said he hoped to take his wife and their 4-month-old daughter to America with him. His wife's parents live in Berkeley, Calif.

Speaking excellent English with a slight accent, Mr. Nishiyama said:

"I want to forget my time in the Navy. As a midshipman in the Naval Air Force I naturally wanted to kill as many Americans as possible. I couldn't stand by when my country was in danger."

Nevertheless, he said, after volunteering for the Kamikaze suicide air corps in August, 1944, he was relieved when the war ended before his first mission, scheduled for October, 1945.

Mr. Nishiyama, who now is a superintendent in an officers' club construction job for the United States Army Air Forces, was a third-year foreign language student in Tokyo when he joined the Navy. When he gets to Lafayette he hopes to enroll in economics and technological courses with view to becoming a teacher.

Ex-Kamikaze Changes His Idea Of U.S.

Tokyo, Jan. 3 (AP)—A Japanese who once "wanted to kill as many Americans as possible" today eagerly awaits an opportunity to use an American scholarship established by the parents of a GI killed by a Japanese on Luzon.

Robert Yukimasa Nishiyama, 22, said: "I want to try my best to repay Mr. and Mrs. Robert McC. Johnstone, of Downingtown, Pa., who established the scholarship at Lafayette College, Easton, Pa. Their son, Private Robert S. Johnstone, had asked that his $10,000 GI insurance be used for such a good-will cause if he were killed.

The mild-mannered, bashful Nishiyama is superintending Japanese workers building a United States Army hall and Air Force officers' club. He was in his third year at a foreign-language college in Tokyo when he volunteered for the Kamikaze Corps. Scheduled to make his first Kamikaze flight in October, 1945, he was very happy, he said, but the war ended in August that year.

JAP ACCUSES TOJO

Tokyo, Jan. 3 (A. P.).—Former Premier Tojo insisted that officer prisoners of war be forced to work in violation of the Geneva Convention, the International War Crimes Tribunal was told today.

Gen. Ryokichi Tanaka, who was the top ranking officer at Japanese General Headquarters, testified that Tojo ordered all P. O. W.'s "be required to engage in forced labor to enhance the labor effort in Japan."

He said that the chief of the P. O. W. Information Bureau protested that officers of warrant rank or higher could not be used at hard labor without violating the Geneva pact, but Tojo personally overruled all objections. He said that the decision was made in April, 1942, after the fall of Bataan.

S/Sgt. Michael J. Robertson of Beaumont, Tex., testified in an affidavit that he bailed out of a B-29, lost consciousness and was revived by a beating with rocks, sticks and fists by a Tokyo mob.

The prosecution introduced a Japanese Government report that "the situation came to a point where even Japanese airmen who parachuted down were in danger of harm because the people did not take time to make distinctions."

MACARTHUR GETS NEW RED QUERIES

Tokyo, Jan. 3 (A. P.).—The Soviet member of the Allied Council, who frequently has been accused of sharpshooting at occupation policies, today leveled another series of trenchant inquiries at Gen. MacArthur and the Japanese Government.

Lieut.-Gen. Kuzma Derevyanko submitted a request for replies to six questions concerning projected municipal elections throughout Japan:

What are the reasons for delay in carrying out the program of purge of local municipal organs which was announced by the Government?

How will the purge be conducted?

What is the make-up of the control commissions which will rule on eligibility of possible purges?

When does the Government intend to finish the purge of municipal officials?

What are the reasons for the repeated postponement of elections to local municipal organs?

What is the proposed date of conducting elections to local municipal organs?

The last two inquiries contrasted sharply with pronouncements from Moscow that elections were being conducted too soon in Japan. Some of these pronouncements said that such early elections would result in return to office of Japanese who had ruled the country before and during the war and contributed to ultra-nationalism and militarism.

HODGE DENIES PLAN TO DIVIDE KOREANS

U. S. Commander in the South Says He Will Continue to Work for United Nation

SEOUL, Korea, Saturday, Jan. 4 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge, commanding American forces in southern Korea, issued a statement today denying "assumptions" that the United States was working toward a separate government for its occupation zone.

These "are incorrect and dangerous conclusions," fostered by "certain elements," General Hodge said. He did not elaborate on this reference, but he and other American spokesmen in the past have blamed Communists for disorders, sabotage and other unrest in southern Korea.

United States State Department officials in Washington last week conceded that the tug-of-war between the United States and Russia, which occupies the northern half of Korea, had almost hopelessly stalled any prospects of early unification of that country.

General Hodge said, however, that he and his staff were following American policy as expressed at the Cairo and Potsdam Conferences and last week by the State Department: "To continue to work for democratic provisional government which will lead to the independence of Korea as a nation united — north and south — into one."

The interim legislature for the American half of Korea, which opened Dec. 12, "is not a government within itself, nor is it the governing body of southern Korea," General Hodge said. "It is exactly what the name implies, an interim legislative assembly with legislative powers to make laws for enforcement by the executive branch of the government," pending establishment of a provisional government, he declared.

As executive head of the Government of southern Korea, General Hodge said he had been "progressively drawing Koreans into governmental activities that they may gain experience to take over governmental responsibility pending establishment of their unified government."

This, he added, does not mean that he can or intends to shirk responsibility as the executive or completely to transfer the executive power to Koreans.

When the interim legislature opened, a score of its ninety members stayed away in protest against the virtual exclusion of the Rightist Han Kook party from appointive positions and invalidation of elections in Seoul and Kang Won province. Nine days later, having "saved face," the missing members took their seats.

Forty-five of the legislators were elected and forty-five were apointed by General Hodge.

Indonesian Revolt Flares in Sumatra

Serious Clashes at Medan; Soekarno in Radio Appeal

BATAVIA, Java, Jan. 3 (AP).—The Dutch Army reported today that serious clashes had occurred at Medan, Sumatra, and that the military situation elsewhere in Sumatra was growing worse in spite of an appeal broadcast last night by President Soekarno of the Indonesian Republic for a peaceful solution of the deteriorating situation.

The Army said that Dutch aircraft and artillery broke up Indonesian troop concentrations advancing toward the western sector of Medan, and that later large-scale infantry action had cleared the entire city of Indonesian forces.

A delayed Antara News Agency dispatch from Siantar said the Dutch had dropped thirty bombs Monday in five air attacks on Medan, killing five and wounding fourteen Indonesians. The city was said to be without water.

Palembang, the center of Dutch and American oil interests and for six months one of the quietest cities in Indonesia, was also reported to be the scene of renewed fighting. The Dutch said eighty Indonesians and three Dutch were killed in clashes on Dec. 28 and 29. Fighting was also reported in Java.

President Soekarno's speech, one of the most conciliatory he has made, called for ratification of the agreement providing for a virtually independent United States of Indonesia. "For the sake of democracy the world must not prevent this former colony from becoming a new democratic state," Soekarno said.

U.N. Balkan Inquiry...

New York, Jan. 3 (AP)—The United Nations announced today that a special commission investigating the Balkan situation would hold its first meeting in Athens on January 30.

The United Nations also reported that the Security Council would reconvene next Tuesday with a crowded agenda, including the Trieste question, the basic arms reduction resolution passed by the General Assembly, and the Atomic Energy Commission's report.

Follows Greek Complaint

The Balkan Commission, named as the outgrowth of a Greek complaint to the Security Council that Bulgania, Yugoslavia and Albania were fomenting border incidents, will include representatives of the eleven nations in the Council.

Secretary General Trygve Lie's announcement said the group would visit Greece, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania and would be accompanied by a staff from the United Nations secretariat. Mark Ethridge, of Louisville, will be the chief United States representative.

The Security Council must accept formally the decision of the Council of Foreign Ministers to place Trieste under United Nations control and determine the manner in which the city shall be governed under Security Council supervision.

Details Of British Complaint

The arms-atomic discussion brings up for debate the latest American and Soviet proposals, with the United States insisting that atomic control should be given priority and the Russians asking for drafting within 90 days of an arms reduction program.

Meanwhile, the British Government handed the United States, Russia, China and France the details of a complaint to be filed with the Security Council against Albania. The charges, to be offered formally within a few days, will ask an apology and compensation for loss of life and property in the damaging of two British destroyers with 44 casualties. The vessels struck mines in the Corfu straits off Albania last October.

UN PARLEY RAPPED BY VIVIEN KELLEMS

Trade Conference in Geneva Is 'Scheme' to Control U.S. Economy, She Says.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3—(AP) Miss Vivien Kellems, Westport, Conn., industrialist, today said the UN conference on trade and employment to be conducted in Geneva in April was "a scheme to completely control our economy for the benefit of the rest of the world."

In an address to the Executives club of Chicago, Miss Kellems said the plan "is all set, although great secrecy covers the details and if it goes through, we're through."

She continued: "Frothing at the mouth at monopolies and cartels here at home, these bright boys in our State department have planned one, gigantic, world-wide cartel and are going to tell us exactly how much we can export and import and where and when and what and why; and tell the American laboring man where and when he can work."

One of the steps recommended by Miss Kellems for action by the new Congress was "an announcement to the whole world, including our own State department, that our Senate passes on any and all treaties negotiated with foreign countries and that any flossy schemes for control of world trade and domestic employment cooked up in Geneva next April come right back here for approval or rejection by the Senate."

"And while we're about it we might exhume all secret deals made at Tehran, Yalta and Quebec and let the Senate cast its eye over them, too."

"Then let's treat ourselves to a good, substantial tax cut. This will not only let us save something for ourselves, for a change, but put a crimp in the world-spender boys and cut the ground out from under the present Murray, Lewis, Reuther drive for high wages.

"Congress had better get out of the labor business. Where in the constitution is there any authority for the Wagner Act, the Norris-LaGuardia Act or the Smith-Connolly Act? Let's throw them all out of the window, take this whole labor union business out of national politics and hand it back to the states where it belongs.

"At one stroke we could slap down labor dictators, rid the nation of paralyzing strikes and give the decent, American working man the first real break he's had in 14 years."

She also urged that Congress "declare the end of the war and to immediately rescind all wartime emergency powers granted to the executive." President Truman recently proclaimed an end to hostilities but not to the end of the war.

"America isn't turning to the right," Miss Kellems said, "America is turning about face."

Miners' Journal Scores U.N. For Business Link

Washington, Jan. 3 (AP)—The United Mine Workers Journal asserted today that the United Nations "is closely linked" with Wall Street and business interests seeking to "shackle American labor."

Commenting that there are still millions of prisoners of war being used as "slave labor" and that the United Nations has done nothing to stop it, John L. Lewis's publication said:

"The United Nations is not only a shield for slavers abroad, it is closely linked here with Wall Street and the big business gangs who seek to shackle American labor.

"The cat was let out of the bag when John D. Rockefeller, Jr., offered to give $8,500,000 to buy five blocks in New York city to be used as the site of the United Nations' capitol and home offices."

Clay Is Expected To Head U.S. Zone

Washington, Jan. 3 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay is expected to become commander of American forces in Europe and military governor of the United States occupation zone in Germany.

An official said today that, barring a last-minute change, orders probably will be issued in a few days giving Clay the top United States military role in Europe.

In addition, he said, these other key changes may be expected:

1. Transfer of Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, present European commander, to the United Nations Military Staff Committee.

Keyes May Replace Clark

2. Replacement of Gen. Mark W. Clark as commander of United States forces in Austria by Lieut. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes, now commanding the United States 3d Army in Germany.

Clark has been assigned as deputy for James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State, at the forthcoming Moscow peace treaty talks in March. He has also been under War Department consideration for appointment as commander of the 6th Army with headquarters at San Francisco. The California post was vacated by the death of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell.

As deputy military governor in Germany since April, 1945, Clay has been the active member of the four-power Allied Control Council in Berlin.

Atomic Group Names 3 Labor Consultants

Washington, Jan. 3 (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission announced today the appointment of three labor consultants as part of a program "to insure the soundest possible labor-management relationships in the far-flung atomic energy facilities."

The three are:

Dr. George H. Taylor, of the University of Pennsylvania, former chairman of the War Labor Board; Lloyd K. Garrison, former general counsel of the board and a New York city attorney, and David A. Morse, Assistant Secretary of Labor.

The commission said the three already have made a preliminary survey of industrial relations problems at the major atomic energy facilities and will make recommendations on standardization of contract provisions "consistent with the security restrictions imposed on the commission by the Atomic Energy Act."

House Bill Asks $4 and $5 a Day Veterans Bonus

Would Also Pay Terminal Leave in Cash March 15; Hawaii Statehood Urged

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP).—A bill to pay all World War II veterans a bonus of $4 a day for home service and $5 for every day overseas was ready today for introduction by Representative Stephen Pace, Democrat, of Georgia.

Representative Pace also planned measures to make terminal leave of enlisted personnel payable in cash March 15 and to raise the salary limits for veterans participating in the government's on-the-job training program.

World War I veterans were paid a bonus of $1 daily for home service and $1.25 for overseas duty, but Representative Pace declared that civilian wages were higher during World War II and that the cost of living was up tremendously now.

A bill to create a "veterans R. F. C." with loaning authority up to $5,000,000,000 was introduced today by Representative Jesse P. Wolcott, Republican, of Michigan, chairman of the House Banking Committee. It would authorize loans to veterans who want to enter business or industry, and "is designed to aid small business," Representative Wolcott said. It sets no ceiling on the amount that could be loaned to a veteran.

Introducing legislation to enable Hawaii to become the forty-ninth state, delegate Joseph R. Farrington, Republican, of Hawaii, today asked that Congressional hearings be started by Feb. 1.

"Public sentiment in the country favors statehood for Hawaii," Mr. Farrington declared in a statement, asserting: "The last remaining objection to statehood was eliminated by the record of the people of Hawaii during the war. It proved beyond question their loyalty as American citizens."

Representative Frank B. Keefe, Republican, of Wisconsin, a member of the Senate-House Pearl Harbor investigating committee of the last Congress, said today he sees "nothing to be gained" by reopening the case.

Senator George D. Aiken, Republican, of Vermont, reported today President Truman is "as strong as he ever was" for development of St. Lawrence seaway and power project—one of the first proposals brought before the new Congress. After a White House visit, Senator Aiken, who unsuccessfully sponsored the St. Lawrence development in the Seventy-ninth Congress, told a reporter: "The need was never so apparent, and I was happy to receive the President's assurance that he is back of it and will support any move toward bringing about the development."

Court-Martial Inquiry Urged

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—A Congressional investigation of the entire Army court-martial system, with special reference to the Litchfield brutality trials, was proposed today by Representative Mike Mansfield, (Democrat, Montana).

The measure, as prepared by Mr. Mansfield, would create a five-man House committee to carry on the inquiry, which would include all courts-martial, general, special and summary, and would "extend to a full investigation of any wrongdoing in the administration of military justice, by any person, under purported authority of law."

Widow Gets Medal Awarded Gen. Patton

Washington, Jan. 3 (A. P.).—The Navy Distinguished Service Medal posthumously awarded Gen. George S. Patton Jr., commander of the Third Army in Europe was presented to his widow today by Secretary Forrestal.

Patton, who died from injuries received in an automobile accident a year ago, was cited for meritorious service as commanding general of the Western Task Force during the Sicilian landings and subsequent amphibian operations during the advance from Palermo to Messina.

After Forrestal read the citation, Mrs. Patton of South Hamilton, Mass., said simply, 'I thank you with all my heart."

HE SAID THAT THE REASON THE CONGRESS WANTED THE LONDON NEGOTIATIONS BASED UPON THE ESTABLISHMENT OF AUTONOMOUS STATES WAS THAT "TAKING STOCK OF PAST CONFERENCES, THE CONGRESS DID NOT HAVE MUCH FAITH IN THE OUTCOME OF THIS ONE."

THE JEWS BELIEVE THAT WITH THE PROPOSED AUTONOMOUS STATE THEY COULD BRING BETWEEN TWO AND THREE MILLION JEWS INTO PALESTINE IN THE NEXT QUARTER CENTURY, SEGAL SAID.

SEGAL DECLARED: "I AM OPPOSED TO THE TACTICS OF THE IRGUN ZVAI LEUMI. THEY ARE DOING GREATER HARM TO THE JEWISH PEOPLE BY NOT PLACING THEMSELVES UNDER NATIONAL DISCIPLINE. BY WORKING ON THEIR OWN, THEY MAY LEAD TO DEMORALIZATION OF THE JEWS IN PALESTINE, AND TO EVENTUAL CIVIL WAR THERE."

HE SAID, HOWEVER, THAT HE "HEARTILY FAVORED" THE HAGANAH (JEWISH HOME DEFENSE ORGANIZATION), BECAUSE THIS ORGANIZATION MADE IT POSSIBLE FOR JEWS TO IMMIGRATE TO PALESTINE "WITH OR WITHOUT VISAS."

"THE ACTS OF THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT IN CONNECTION WITH IMMIGRATION," HE CONTINUED, "ARE CONSIDERED BY THE JEWISH PEOPLE AS BREACHES OF THE BALFOUR DECLARATION (1917) AND OF THE MANDATE, AND WHICH NO JEW IS REQUIRED TO RESPECT."

Bombay, Jan. 3--(AP)---Indian news agency reports today said a strict censorship had been established in the Portuguese colony of Goa on India's southwest coast. The reports said censors demanded scrutiny of every item before local newspapers were allowed to go to press.

A recent announcement by the governor general in Goa that a new political statute would be granted the colony is reported unsatisfactory to Goa nationalist leaders who are demanding a political amnesty and the appointment of a Portuguese ambassador at New Delhi as a sign of Portugal's good intentions. These leaders were reported as regarding the latest Portuguese announcement as "mere propaganda" designed to show the world Portugal is giving Goa a new deal and to clear the way for Portuguese membership in the United Nations.

TEHRAN, JAN 3-(AP)-U.S. AMBASSADOR GEORGE ALLEN, ENGAGED IN A TOUGH DIPLOMATIC TUG-OF-WAR FOR SIX MONTHS WITH SOVIET AMBASSADOR IVAN SADCHIKOV, APPEARED TODAY TO BE WINNING THE TUSSLE.

"AMERICAN PRESTIGE IS UP 1,000 PER CENT," A U.S. CONSULAR OFFICIAL SAID.

SIX MONTHS AGO WHEN THIS CORRESPONDENT LEFT IRAN AFTER REPORTING ON THE REBELLION IN THE NORTHWESTERN PROVINCE OF AZERBAIJAN, ALL QUARTERS HERE CONSIDERED SOVIET SYMPATHIZERS FIRMLY ENTRENCHED. AZERBAIJAN "DEMOCRATS" HELD THE RICH NORTHLAND. THREE TUDEH (LEFTIST) PARTY LEADERS WERE IN THE CABINET. TUDEH PARTY SECRETARY IREJ ISKANDARI GLEEFULLY PREDICTED THE SEATING OF 60 MEMBERS IN THE MAJLIS (PARLIAMENT).

THE LEFTWING PRESS DAILY ATTACKED "CAPITALIST FASCISM." IT FEATURED CARTOONS OF AN OPULENT UNCLE SAM PIPING IRANIAN OIL AND MONEY INTO BULGING POCKETS AND DEMANDED DISSOLUTION OF THE IRAN NATIONAL POLICE, DIRECTED BY NORMAN SCHWARTZKOPF OF NEW JERSEY.

MOST RIGHT-WING LEADERS WERE IN PRISON. MANY POLITICALLY IMPORTANT PERSIANS AVOIDED SOCIAL CONTACT WITH AMERICANS AND BRITISH. DIPLOMATIC OBSERVERS ACCEPTED AS FACT THE RUMORS THAT SADCHIKOV WAS INFLUENCING NATIONAL POLICY THROUGH PRINCE MOZAFFAR FIROUZ, THEN

PROPAGANDA AND LABOR MINISTER AND NOW AMBAS[illegible]R TO MOSCOW. PREMIER AHMED QAVAM HAD FORBIDDEN IRANIANS TO VISIT FOREIGN EMBASSIES, "EXCEPT ON OFFICIAL BUSINESS."

LAST AUGUST AT AN AMERICAN EMBASSY DINNER ATTENDED BY SEVERAL IRANIAN MINISTERS, AMBASSADOR ALLEN WHISPERED TO THIS CORRESPONDENT: "IT'S BEEN A TOUGH FIGHT. I'M AFRAID WE LOST. BUT WE HAVEN'T GIVEN UP."

SEVERAL EMPTY CHAIRS AT THE DINNER HAD TESTIFIED TO IRANIAN OBEDIENCE TO QAVAM'S EDICTS.

ON NEW YEAR'S EVE, AT ANOTHER EMBASSY PARTY, ALLEN WAS REMINDED OF HIS REMARK. SMILING, HE REPLIED:

"I WAS WRONG. THE WHOLE PICTURE IS CHANGED."

THE EXTENT OF THE SHIFT IN THE FORTUNES OF THIS DIPLOMATIC BATTLE, WHICH MANY FOREIGN OBSERVERS BELIEVE HAD A STRONG BEARING ON THE DELAY IN IRANIAN NATIONAL ELECTIONS, WAS INDICATED BY RECENT EVENTS.

"ALLEN AND QAVAM CONFER TWICE A WEEK," A FOREIGN MINISTRY OFFICIAL SAID, "AND THE AMERICAN AMBASSADOR AND THE KING PLAY TENNIS TOGETHER EVERY WEEK."

THE TUDEH PARTY'S HEADQUARTERS IS CLOSED, AND A PARTY OFFICIAL SAID "WE'VE GONE UNDERGROUND." TUDEH MEMBERS HAVE BEEN DROPPED FROM QAVAM'S CABINET. ALL RIGHT-WING LEADERS, EXCEPT FOR ARCH CONSERVATIVE SAYYED ZIA TABATTABIE, ARE OUT OF PRISON.

SCHWARZKOPF, SINCE PROMOTED FROM COLONEL TO BRIGADIER GENERAL IN THE U.S. ARMY, HAS SIGNED A NEW CONTRACT TO TRAIN IRAN'S GENDARMERIE.

ALLEN HAS LEASED THE PALATIAL FERDOWSI AVENUE BUILDING WHICH FORMERLY HOUSED THE GERMAN EMBASSY, AND ANNOUNCED PLANS FOR CONSTRUCTION OF A NEW AMERICAN EMBASSY.

THE TEHRAN PRESS NOW FEATURES--IN A COMPLETELY FRIENDLY MANNER--NEWS FROM THE UNITED STATES. MEMBERS OF THE AMERICAN COLONY ENJOY NEW POPULARITY AND HOSPITALITY. NEW AMERICAN-MADE AUTOMOBILES CRUISE THE CAPITAL'S STREETS.

TEHRAN WOMEN WEAR NEW AND SMART AMERICAN-MADE CLOTHING.

SOURCES CLOSE TO THE PREMIER SAID HE WELCOMED THE RECENT AMERICAN CONTRACT FOR OIL WITH THE ANGLO-IRANIAN OIL COMPANY. ONE HIGHLY PLACED FOREIGN MINISTRY OFFICIAL SUGGESTED THAT "QAVAM MIGHT USE AMERICA'S FRIENDLY APPROACH TO OIL NEGOTIATIONS AS A WEDGE FOR TRIMMING RUSSIAN DEMANDS ON IRAN'S NORTHERN RESERVES."

A FOREIGN MINISTRY OFFICIAL TOLD THE ASSOCIATED PRESS:

"QAVAM IS EXTREMELY SENSITIVE OF WORLD POLITICAL TRENDS AND CONSCIOUS THAT THE PRESENT PRO-AMERICAN SWING APPEARS UNNEIGHBORLY TO RUSSIA. RUSSIA'S FORCES FAVOR A DELAY IN THE ELECTIONS BECAUSE A RIGHT-WING VICTORY PROBABLY WOULD PRESAGE MAJLIS REJECTION OF AN OIL COMPANY PROPOSAL. AMERICA'S OFFICIAL LINE SUPPORTS 'FREE AND DEMOCRATIC ELECTIONS.' I THINK THE ELECTIONS WILL BE HELD AS SOON AS QAVAM SUCCEEDS IN SHAPING PUBLIC OPINION TO A DOWN-THE-MIDDLE COURSE, WHICH WOULD CAUSE THE LEAST CONCERN TO ALL INTERESTED PARTIES."

MONTHS AGO, THE RUSSIANS NEGOTIATED FOR THE FORMATION IN THE NORTH OF A SOVIET-IRANIAN OIL COMPANY, 51 PERCENT CONTROLLED BY SOVIET INTERESTS. ACTIVATION OF THE COMPANY HINGES UPON APPROVAL BY A MAJLIS STILL TO BE ELECTED, BUT AT THE TIME THE APPARENT POPULARITY OF THE TUEDEH PARTY AND THE OBVIOUS INFLUENCE OF RUSSIAN DIPLOMATS IN TEHRAN HAD MADE APPROVAL SEEM A FOREGONE CONCLUSION.

NEW YORK, JAN.3-(AP)-THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT TODAY HANDED RUSSIA, THE UNITED STATES, FRANCE AND CHINA THE DETAILS OF A COMPLAINT TO BE FILED WITH THE UNITED NATIONS AGAINST ALBANIA.

THE CHARGES, TO BE OFFERED FORMALLY TO THE SECURITY COUNCIL WITHIN A FEW DAYS, WILL ASK AN APOLOGY AND COMPENSATION FOR LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY FROM ALBANIA IN THE DAMAGING BY MINES OF TWO BRITISH DESTROYERS WITH 44 CASUALTIES. THE VESSELS STRUCK MINES IN THE CORFU STRAITS OFF ALBANIA LAST OCTOBER.

A SPOKESMAN FOR THE BRITISH DELEGATION SAID THAT NOTES WERE BEING DISPATCHED BEFOREHAND TO THE OTHER FOUR POWERS IN KEEPING WITH THE BELIEF OF THE LONDON GOVERNMENT THAT SUCH PROCEDURAL COURTESY SHOULD BE FOLLOWED ON ALL COMPLAINTS TO THE U.N.

THESE WILL BE THE FIRST FORMAL CHARGES PUT FORWARD IN THE U.N. BY BRITAIN.

THE SPOKESMAN SAID THAT THREE PRELIMINARY STEPS HAD VIRTUALLY BEEN COMPLETED. HE DESCRIBED THESE AS AN ATTEMPT TO SETTLE THE CASE BY DIRECT NEGOTIATIONS WITH ALBANIA, COMPLETE DOCUMENTING OF THE CHARGES, AND PRIOR NOTIFICATION TO OTHER MEMBERS OF THE BIG FIVE.

THE ALBANIAN GOVERNMENT ASKED SECRETARY-GENERAL TRYGVE LIE TO SEND AN INVESTIGATING GROUP TO DETERMINE THE LIMITS OF TERRITORIAL WATERS OFF THE COAST OF THE BALKAN NATION. NO APPEAL HAS BEEN MADE TO THE SECURITY COUNCIL.

BARUCH RESIGNS UN ATOMIC POST; WORK COMPLETED

Sees No Reason Why U. S. Should Not Continue to Make Bombs.

Austin, Member of Security Council, to Carry on Atomic Fight.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. — (AP) Elder statesman Bernard M. Baruch, completing the job that he once said might close out his public career, resigned tonight as United States member of the United Nations Atomic Commission. In a letter to President Truman he said there is no reason why the United States should not continue to make atomic bombs.

Baruch expressed his view on continued manufacture of the bomb, which is contrary to Russia's urgings to outlaw the weapon promptly, in his letter of resignation to the president.

Mr. Truman, accepting the resignation, wrote that at first he was reluctant to let Baruch go but he finally agreed that from here on, American atomic representation at the United Nations should be centered in Warren R. Austin, member of the Security Council. That was what Baruch proposed.

Pushed U. S. Plan

In resigning, Baruch acted promptly after the United Nations Atomic Commission had adopted, under his constant pressure, the main essentials of the American plan as its own. The commission finished its work a few days ago and the whole vast issue of atomic control and disarmament moved actively into the Security Council.

Austin, former Republican senator from Vermont, has been designated by Mr. Truman to be American member of the council and is slated to be nominated to the Senate next week. Prompt confirmation is expected.

There was no suggestion of any difference of opinion on any point of atomic policy among Baruch, the president, Secretary of State Byrnes or other high government officials here. All had backed Baruch's negotiations to the hilt.

However, Baruch was closely identified with an uncompromising insistence on abolition of the Security Council veto in punishment of atomic treaty violators. Russia opposed the veto curtailment. Transfer of the negotiations to Austin may allow greater flexibility of American policy on this point, some diplomatic authorities said.

Baruch's resignation included those of the whole staff who have served with him since he first took over the atomic assignment, including John Hancock, Ferdinand Eberstadt and Herbert Bayard Swope.

Baruch Praised

The president and Byrnes both praised Baruch's work. Mr. Truman wrote him:

"That our proposal should finally be accepted by a vote of 10 to nothing, with two states abstaining, is a tribute to the fairness of our proposal. At the same time, it is convincing evidence of your skill and patience in presenting the proposal."

Byrnes, noting that Baruch had served the country in two wars, told him that "the intelligent and courageous manner in which you have represented the United States on the commission is responsible for the general acceptance of the United States proposal."

Baruch's letter was in the nature of a report to the president, reviewing the veto right and the development of the atomic control work into the Security Council stage. He said he is convinced that "the job now should be taken over by Senator Austin."

He concluded on this note:

"I see no reason why this country should not continue the making of bombs, at least until the ratification of the treaty (providing for international atomic controls.)

"I have drawn your attention before to the necessity of preserving the atomic secrets. Particularly is this wise as to our design, know-how, engineering and equipment. The McMahon Law (for domestic control) carries authority for this protection. If this authority should be found to be inadequate, it should be broadened to meet any needs, until a treaty is ratified by our Senate.

"While science should be free, it should not be free to destroy mankind."

The 76-year-old, silvery-haired financier was named to the United Nations Atomic Commission last March. Mr. Truman and Byrnes reportedly chose him because of popular confidence in his ability to protect America's interests.

May End Public Career

Baruch once suggested that the job might be his last major undertaking and that it promised the kind of accomplishment with which he would like to cap his career.

He finally achieved his goal of putting over the American plan but not without much battling.

An outstanding bout was with former Commerce Secretary Henry Wallace over the provisions and meaning of the American atomic plan. Wallace argued it should be modified for Russian acceptance. He urged an end to bomb manufacture.

As the fight with Wallace was brief and fierce, so Baruch's contest with Soviet Representative Andrei A. Gromyko in the atomic commission was long and trying. The elderly financier could make no substantial progress against Russian opposition until Foreign Minister Molotov showed up in New York in October and began revising Russian policy all along the line.

Molotov and Stalin eventually came out for strong international controls—the essence of the American plan—but they still insisted first of all on a resolution to outlaw the bomb and obviously stop its manufacture. Finally Russia got around the problem of allowing the commission to proceed without committing herself to its progress by abstaining from critical votes.

Thus the American plan finally was adopted 10 to 0 but Russia and Poland abstained. It remains to be seen whether the United States and the Soviet Union can finally agree on an actual control plan.

Sen. McMahon (D-Conn.), chairman of the joint congressional committee on atomic energy, commented that "Mr. Baruch has made a most valuable contribution to this country's effort to obtain international control of atomic energy."

Baruck's Work Lauded By Warren R. Austin

New York, Jan. 4 (AP)—Warren R. Austin, senior United States delegate to the United Nations, said tonight that "the nation and the world owe a great debt of gratitude" to Bernard M. Baruch.

Austin praised Baruch's work as American representative to the United Nations Atomic Energy Committee, from which he resigned today, and said all should not the "mantle he has worn with such high distinction."

out a system for supplying forces to the United Nations to assure peace and security.

Trieste Issue Coming Up

"It also would be inadvisable to start cutting down on arms until the peace treaties are signed. And the control of atomic energy must be given prior consideration."

El Khoury, president of the Syrian Parliament and former Prime Minister, will take his Security Council seat for the first time at a meeting Tuesday, along with delegates from Belgium and Colombia. Mexico, the Netherlands and Egypt retire from the eleven-nation body.

At next week's session, the Security Council will tackle Russia's plan to speed arms cutting, consider a counter United States proposal to give priority to atomic control, and take up the long-debated question of United Nations administration of Trieste.

Byrnes Letter Released

The United Nations released a letter from James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State, signed as chairman of the Council of Foreign Ministers, to the Security Council asking its approval of the Trieste agreement by January 15. The letter said speed was essential in that the signing of the Italian peace treaty was "to occur at the beginning of February."

Byrnes's letter said the treaty "establishes a free territory of Trieste whose independence and integrity would be insured by the Security Council."

Under provisions of the treaty, the Security Council will appoint a governor over the territory.

feverish activity aimed at obtaining new sources of oil and at extending and fortifying the positions that American capital had already occupied in the Middle East."

Oil Pact Was Forced On Britain, Russ Say

London, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Moscow radio said today that the recently announced oil agreement between the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Company and two Standard Oil groups was forced upon Britain "by the bonus of a loan and by a number of political treaties."

"Britain . . . is now forced to make concessions," the commentator, G. Danilov, said.

Danilov asserted that the vague announcement of the agreement issued in London on December 26 by the Anglo-Iranian Company said that the firm agreed to sell oil "for a period of years" to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the Socony Vacuum Oil Company and that a condition of the agreement was an investigation into the building of a pipeline across Arabia from the Persian Gulf to the Mediterranean.

To Haifa?

Although the announcement did not say where the pipeline would terminate, Danilov said it would go to Haifa, on the northern end of the Palestine coast.

Before the war, Danilov said, the Anglo-Iranian company was "considered to be an inaccessible British fortress."

"The fact that the Americans have penetrated this 'inaccessible fortress' testifies to American capital's endeavor to play a leading role in the Middle East," he added.

Danilov attached "a semi-official character" to the agreement "inasmuch as the British Government itself is a large shareholder in the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company."

Stock Ownership

Britain owns 55 per cent of the company's common stock and the Government appoints two directors, who may not interfere with the company's commercial management, but may veto decisions affecting political or other policies.

"The American monopolists, who enriched themselves during World War II, are now facing the problem of expanding their raw material and export markets," Danilov said, "The Middle East occupies quite an important place in the American expansionist schemes."

During the war, he said, "American monopolists displayed a

MONTGOMERY OFF TO VISIT STALIN

London, Jan. 4 (A. P.).—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, chief of the Imperial General Staff, left today on a military-inspection mission to Moscow saying, "I want to establish friendly contact with the Soviet Army." Asked if he would see Prime Minister Stalin, Montgomery said, "I hope very much to see him, but it is a matter that lies in his hands."

The War Office said that Montgomery, traveling by Royal Air Force transport plane, would stop at British headquarters in Berlin for the week end and arrive in Moscow early next week to spend about four days, the guest of the Russian Army but quartered in the British embassy.

Stalin himself invited Montgomery to visit Moscow at their last meeting at the Potsdam conference in July, 1945. Last October, Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky, former chief of the Russian General Staff, repeated the invitation, making it definite for late December or early January.

London political observers attached some significance to the fact that the renewed invitation was issued between Stalin's two conciliatory statements to newspaper men on world affairs.

London, Jan. 4 (AP)—Teetotaler Field Marshal Lord Montgomery left for Moscow today to make a four-day military inspection and life a few toasts with his Russian hosts.

Bundled in a white sheepskin coat in readiness for Moscow's cold, Britain's imperial chief of staff said he went "to establish friendly contact with the Soviet Army" and hoped to see Marshal Stalin.

He took off in an RAF transport plant with his general staff and Col. I. P. Gorshko, Soviet military attache in London who will act as his interpreter. He landed shortly after in Berlin for a two-day stay. He expects to arrive on Monday in Moscow where he will be the guest for six days of Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky, former chief of staff of the Soviet Army.

English Girl, 15, Flies To U.S. To Wed Ex-GI

New York, Jan. 4 (AP)—Fifteen-year-old Isabel Mary Butwell arrived from England by plane today and said she had the written consent of her mother to marry Paul Sinclair, 22, of Youngstown, Ohio, an ex-GI she met at a dance in April, 1944.

Asked how she knew she was in love when only 13, the girl replied: "Oh, you just know."

Miss Butwell said she became engaged to Sinclair, now a steel worker, in May, 1945, and that they had corresponded since he returned from England in November of that year. She said she would leave immediately by train for Youngstown.

Former Nazi Court Officials Indicted

Nuernberg, Germany, Jan. 4 (AP). Sixteen former officials of the Nazi Ministry of Justice, many of them once connected with Adolf Hitler's ruthless "People's Court," were indicted today for war crimes and crimes against humanity. They likely will face an American military court next month.

One of the highest-ranking defendants is Franz Schlegelberger, Secretary of State in the Justice Ministry from 1933 to 1941, and Acting Minister until 1942, when the post was taken by Otto Georg Thierack. Thierack committed suicide last October.

Other defendants:

Kurt Rothensberger, Thierack's Secretary of State.

Former Judge

Herbert Klemm, former Hamburg judge and friend of the missing deputy Führer, Martin Bormann.

Oswald Rothaug, president of the Nazi special court in Nuernberg.

Rudolf Oeschey, Rothaug's successor and later senior prosecutor of the People's Court.

Josef Altstoetter, divisional chief in charge of civil law and procedure in the Ministry.

Karl Engert, vice president of the People's Court and chief of the Penal Administration Division.

Wolfgang Mettenberg, deputy chief of the Criminal Division.

Counsellors On List

Wilhelm von Ammon, ministerial counsellor.

Carl Westphal, ministerial counsellor.

Guenther Joel, legal adviser.

Guenther Nebelung, chief justice of the People's Court.

Hans Petersen, former Elite Guard lieutenant general and lay judge of the People's Court.

Ernst Lautz, former public prosecutor.

Paul Barnickel, former public prosecutor.

Hermann Cuhorst, former president of the Stuttgart Special Court.

"Ruthless Suppression"

Many of these defendants will be accused of using their positions to suppress ruthlessly in secret trials any political opposition to Hitler and of turning prisoners over to the Gestapo for extermination. Some will be charged with helping draft and execute laws providing for sterilization of Jews, diseased persons and criminals.

Schlegelberger, when he was a witness in the International Military Tribunal trial of leading Nazis here, admitted he had urged sterilization of half-Jews.

transferred to the Soviet Union to help establish and operate a similar plant there.

Meanwhile, American authorities are planning to remove members of the German General Staff, the Reich's Cabinet and the SA (storm troops)—the organizations acquitted of criminal charges at Nuernberg—from the "automatic arrest" category of directives for the apprehension of Germans, a high military government official said today.

Free For A While

This means that when these persons—who number thousands—are released from United States Army custody, they remain free until formal proceedings are brought against them by the de-Nazification courts to judge individual guilt.

The official emphasized that there would be no interference with German attempts to try them on de-Nazification charges under which maximum penalties include ten years of confinement, confiscation of property and loss of civil rights.

Before releasing members of the three groups that were judged non-criminal as groups, the Army will screen and retain those in whom it has a special interest. Some would be retained to face trial for specific war crimes, some held as witnesses and others confined as security threats.

SYRIANS MOVE FOR SECURITY 1947

Would Have Program Precede Arms Reduction Plan

New York, Jan. 4 (AP)—Syria, one of the new members of the United Nations Security Council, insisted today that a world-wide system of collective security must precede the immediate arms reduction program demanded by Russia.

Taking note of a Soviet proposal that the Security Council implement the United Nations Assembly's arms-slashing resolution within 90 days, Faris El Khoury, Syrian delegate, declared that nations first need be assured of security.

"This will have to come about by treaties and agreements between the individual countries and the United Nations," he said. "We shall need information on how many troops the members have and work long debates in the Foreign Ministers' Conference where controversial details were settled.

El Khoury, a white-haired lawyer, has been president of the Syrian Parliament since it was set up in 1936 and has been in diplomatic service for 35 years. Now 68, he also has served as professor of law at Syria University.

The Syrian delegate indorsed the Baruch plan for control of atomic energy, put forward by Bernard M. Baruch, American representative, and passed in the Atomic Energy Commission without opposition but with Russian and Polish abstentions.

El Khoury also will represent his country on the [illegible]mic Commission when it goes back into session later this month.

"Syria, which has been highly honored, will take its seat on the Council with one motto 'stand by the Charter,'" El Khoury said. "We must first establish the principle of justice and then peace will come automatically.

"We will operate in no so-called bloc. We will study every case on

Jena Optical Work Stops; Russ Blamed 1947

Berlin, Jan. 4 (AP)—Dispatches to the Berlin press said today all production had ceased at the famed Zeiss-Schott optical and glass works at Jena, in the Soviet zone of Germany, as a result of its complete dismantling by the Russians and removal to the U.S.S.R. for reparations.

The dispatches said that in response to a petition by Jena citizens to spare at least part of the great industry, Russian authorities had agreed last October to let some departments continue for an unspecified period to supply glass for the German population.

Thus window-glass production was maintained until January 1 and the workers labored day and night over the Christmas holidays to donate their entire output to the needs of the damaged city.

FRENCH BAR PAPERS ENTERING SAAR ZONE

BERLIN, Jan. 4 (AP)—The French have thrown an information-control barrier around the Saar, which prevents that disputed territory from receiving German newspapers published in the United States and British zones, American Military Government officials said tonight.

American officials announced several weeks ago that they had negotiated an agreement for the exchange of German newspapers published in the American and French occupation zones, but it developed that the French had excluded the Saar from their zone, maintaining that the territory represented a "separate administrative unit" and thus required a separate agreement.

Subsequently, the French established a customs frontier between the Saar and the remainder of Germany.

According to American officials, the French told them that even papers from the French zone could not enter the Saar "without permission of the Commissioner for the Saar, who is responsible to Paris."

Petain Reported As Seriously Ill

Paris, Jan. 4 (AP)—Marshal Henri Philippe Pétain was reported seriously ill today at his isolated exile in a barren cell on the Atlantic Isle D'Yeu, but sources close to the 85-year-old veteran said they had little doubt but that he would recover.

"There is always cause for worry when the Marshal gets sick because of his age," said a friend of the family.

The present illness was variously described as a "very bad cold" and as an infected lung.

Toasted as the "Hero of Verdun" in World War I, Pétain was condemned to death as the "Villian of Vichy" after the second war. The sentence was reduced to life imprisonment.

76,497 Soldier Cases in Germany Treated in 11 Months

FRANKFURT AM MAIN, Jan. 4 (AP).—There were 76,497 cases of venereal disease treated in American Army hospitals in occupied Germany in the first eleven months of 1946, the Army newspaper "Stars and Stripes" reported today. Officers in the Surgeon General's office explained that the total number of cases included repeaters and recurrences.

There were 65,141 cases of gonorrhea and 9,442 of syphilis, with 1,914 cases described as "miscellaneous."

Greek Communists Kill 5 Policemen

Athens, Jan. 4 (AP)—Press dispatches said today that five gendarmes were killed and two wounded when their truck was ambushed by a Communist band on the island of Lesbos.

Five members of another band were reported killed and four wounded during a clash with gendarmerie in Epirus.

The Ministry of Public Order announced that a road bridge near Elasson, north of Larisa, was blown up by insurgents.

Press reports from Salonika said guerrillas operating in Western Thrace had crossed the border and entered Bulgaria.

Slav Exile Army In Reich: Russ

Moscow, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Soviet Army newspaper Red Star charged in a Berlin dispatch today that "a Royal Yugoslav Army" was in existence in the British occupation zone of Germany, under command of a general who was under sentence of death by a Belgrade People's Court for treason.

The dispatch, from the newspaper's special correspondent, said the army was commanded by Gen. Peter Zhikovic. The writer said the force was started by the British military command after the capitulation of Nazi troops in 1945.

[General Zhikovic, who once served as a member of King Peter's Government in Exile, was condemned in absentia last July by the Yugoslav military court which doomed Chetnik Gen. Draja Mihailovic.]

"Quislings Included"

The dispatch added that the "Royal Army" included "quislings, war criminals and Volksdeutsche."

The correspondent charged that this army's military missions were accredited to the command of the British occupation forces, with independent units attached to the British Army of the Rhine and employed as military police under British direction.

"Such a situation in the British occupation zone contradicts the decision of the Allies which prohibits any kind of activity directed against United Nations on territory of Germany," the correspondent wrote.

ROME PREMIER ARRIVES TODAY

Loan Negotiations May Fix Fate Of His Government

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP)—Alcide de Gasperi, Italian Premier, arrives tomorrow in quest of American financial and economic assistance which some officials believe may decide his country's immediate political future.

Accompanied by four key aides, de Gasperi is scheduled to arrive by plane about noon for five days of visits which include calls on President Truman and Secretary Byrnes.

De Gasperi's main aim, although not openly acknowledged, will be to prod the American Government into a decision on a $100,000,000 American loan which the Export-Import Bank has been considering for nearly a year.

Party's Standing Involved

Government officials familiar with Italian problems said the 65-year-old Prime Minister's success in getting American aid can well determine whether the middle-of-the-road Christian Democratic party he heads stays in office.

If de Gasperi fails, they foresee the possibility of increased riots among Italy's unemployed which could swing the country to the extreme left or right politically—something the United States wants to avoid.

Indications are that the State Department will do its utmost to provide needed food shipments and financial and commercial assistance. But the big question among Italian diplomats is: Will it be enough?

American figures on how much outside help Italy will need during 1947 have scaled down the Italian Government's estimate of about $900,000,000 to $426,000,000. But even if the $100,000,000 loan is granted, they acknowledge that American help may fall short of these requirements.

Congress May Help

Additional help for Italy may come from Congress, providing it approves an expected Administration request for about $350,000,000 to finance relief in Italy, Austria and Greece. About $150,000,000 would go to Italy.

A third source of revenue for Italy's treasury definitely will be a second payment by the United States for goods and services bought by American forces with lira. This is expected to total about $50,000,000. A third and smaller installment may be paid later.

One outgrowth of de Gasperi's commercial talks may be a decision to negotiate a reciprocal trade agreement with the United States and to enter the international trade organization the American Government is sponsoring.

U. S. WILL GIVE ITALY HUGE FOGGIA AIRBASE

ROME, Jan. 4 (AP)—Italian and United States authorities have reached a "verbal agreement" on turning over to Italy the huge United States-built heavy bomber base in Foggia, once mentioned as a possible center for the proposed air arm of the United Nations, it was disclosed today.

A spokesman at the headquarters of Lieut. Gen. John C. H. Lee, United States commander in the Mediterranean theatre, said that formal transfer of the base in southern Italy would take place probably late this month.

The airport has two-mile-long runways capable of handling the world's biggest airplanes, four miles of taxi strips, 400 buildings now being completed, including service shops, warehouse facilities and fuel storage tanks. A railway spur connecting the field with Foggia and a fuel pipe line from Macedonia on the coast go with the airport.

Air Minister Mario Cingolani and the Air Chief of Staff Gen. Mario Aimone-Cat, predicted the field might become the European terminus of transatlantic air travel "with feeder routes radiating out from it to all other European capitals."

mean "tolerance for illegality" but "realism." He said the Government would permit the small black-market operators to get rid of perishable commodities and avoid waste of scarce items, but that the campaign would be resumed again after January 31.

The campaign against the big operators, he declared, would continue unabated.

Ration Increase Urged

Many housewives, who depend upon the black market because the Government can't meet Italian food needs from its own meager supply of stores, grew irate over the Government action.

Today's marchers carried signs reading "increase rations" and "respect the price freeze." Some of their number succeeded in getting an interview with Salvatore Aldisio, interim Interior Minister, who listened to their demands. It was the first large-scale demonstration by Roman women in the city's modern history.

Many Government officials heard about the complaints from their wives, who go to the black market for their supplies just like the wives of Romans who are not working for the Government.

The year-end campaign against the black market saw 900 stores inspected in searches for violation of the rationing code, 200 of them closed and hundreds of pushcart vendors driven off the streets.

Whisper From Doorway

Dealers in extralegal spaghetti, macaroni, bread, oil and other rationed foods were forced to whisper at prospective buyers from darkened doorways and to ring doorbells of trusted customers.

Prices soared, and the black marketeers told their customers the Government's action was the cause.

Yesterday Corsi mapped out the new Government strategy in conferences with Pietro Nenni, acting Premier, and Aldisio. They discussed also methods for keeping order in the south of Italy, where food shortages and high prices have provoked rioting and strikes.

Roman Housewives Protest Drive Against Black Market

Rome, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Government's war on the black market, resulting in increased black-market prices, prompted several hundred housewives today to brave icy winds in a march on Viminale Palace, where they presented officials with formal complaints against the high cost of living.

In the face of 10 to 35 per cent increases on the black market which sent sugar from $1.30 to $1.80 a pound and bread from 40 to 50 cents per pound, the Government announced a temporary truce in its campaign against small-fry black-market vendors.

"Realism," Not "Tolerance"

Angelo Corsi, Under Secretary of the Interior, said the move did not

Coal In Poland Costly Despite Labor Peace

Warsaw, Poland, Jan. 4 (AP)—There aren't any coal strikes in Poland, but the fuel is expensive.

The Central Sales office of the coal industry, trying to reduce coal prices on the free market which sometimes during the winter have reached $140 per ton, has just placed 5,000 tons of coal on the open market to be sold at $17.80 per ton.

ALBANIAN PREMIER CALLS U. S. UNJUST

Belgrade, Jan. 4 (A. P.).—Premier Enver Hoxha of Albania is quoted by the Albanian News Agency as accusing the United States of an unfriendly, unjust and negative policy toward his country.

An agency report published yesterday in this Yugoslav capital said that Hoxha's New Year's message declared that United States diplomats in Albania had "behaved incorrectly toward a sovereign people" through a series of threatening notes.

Hoxha was quoted as saying that Albania was prepared to reply to any British complaint to the United Nations Security Council concerning the mining of the Corfu Channel, where two Royal Navy destroyers were damaged and forty-four British sailors lost last October.

"The progressive world, and with it the English people, will be surprised at the very facts themselves and the activity of British officials with regard to Albania," he was reported to have said.

Hoxha was said also to have taken note of the Security Council's dispatch of a commission to investigate Greek charges that Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria had violated Greek borders.

Hungary Reds Report 55 Held In Horthy Plot

Say Russia's Departure Was to Launch It; Foes See Communist 'Frame-Up'

By The Associated Press

BUDAPEST, Jan. 4.—Lazzlo Rajk, Minister of the Interior, a Communist, said today that fifty-five persons had been seized in a plot to overthrow the government and re-establish the regime of Admiral Nicholas Horthy by an armed revolt. He said it was to have been touched off the moment Russian troops left the country.

Anti-Communists immediately charged that the plot was a Communist "frame-up," designed to eliminate the opposition and intrench the present political order for the time when the Russian occupation troops depart.

Rajk said the plot was engineered by a "committee of seven," six of whom are under a[illegible]. The committee had at [illegible]sal "several" disassemb[illegible]es, and had establishe[illegible]-ground chief command" for the armed uprising, he added.

Horthy, Regent of Hungary for fourteen years, was released from jail at Nuernberg a year ago. He had been held as a possible prosecution witness for the International Military Tribunal. He was last reported living on an estate near Munich. He and his Cabinet resigned near the end of the war, because, he said, they had sought and failed to get an armistice with the Allies. He was taken into custody by the Nazis at that time.

Rajk's announcement came a week after Josef Bogmar, Minister of Information, disclosed that "many persons" had been arrested in what some informants described as a Communist-sponsored purge of politicians and army officers favoring a Western version of democratic government.

Bogmar said the arrests were carried out by the War Ministry's political department, which is Communist-controlled.

Rajk asserted that "the date set for the revolt was the day set for the signing of the peace treaty or the moment of the departure of the Red Army."

He named the six arrested members of the committee of seven as Gyorgy Donath, Domokos Szentivanyi, Istvan Szentmiklossy, Balint Arany, Karoly Kiss and Dr. Jano Heder.

Szentivanyi is a strongly pro-American minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary, who passed nine years at Washington as a diplomat and who aided in drafting the first armistice between the Soviet Union and Hungary.

At least two of the six are members of the Small Holders party, which, despite a decisive victory in the November, 1945, elections, has been under strong Communist pressure. They are Szentmiklossy, a major on the Hungarian general staff, and Arany, a party organizer.

Rajk said all those arrested "have reactionary and Fascist pasts."

Budapest, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Communist Minister of the Interior, Laszlo Rajk, announced today that 55 persons have been arrested in connection with a plot to seize power in Hungary by means of an armed military uprising, and "re-establish the regime" of Admiral Nicholas Horthy, the former regent.

The official statement said "the date set for the revolt was the day set for the signing of the peace treaty or the moment of the departure of the Red Army."

The statement was issued just a week after initial reports of wholesale arrests of persons described by some officials as politicians and army officers favoring the western democracies.

Aimed At Opposition

Informed of Rajk's statement, anti-Communists repeated their contention that it was part of an attempt to dispense with the powerful opposition within the Government and entrench the present Communist-dominated political order against the time when Soviet occupation troops leave the country.

The Interior Minister said the plot was organized by "the Committee of Seven," six of whose members already were in custody. All, he said, "have reactionary and Fascist pasts."

Rajk's statement said that since the end of 1945 "the Committee of Seven" has met regularly each week to discuss "how to influence our political life in the interests of the plot."

Says Planes In Storage

He said the plotters contemplated the appointment of Geza Lakatos, retired general and Horthy's premier during the occupation, to head a new government.

The statement said the committee had several airplanes disassembled and stored for use later in the plot. The committee also had created an "underground chief command," the statement continued, headed by former generals and other high officers.

Last October 1, Rajk continued, a person signing himself as "Fofov, underground chief commander," took over command of these underground forces, comprising "the units of the Hungarian army in the west (outside Hungary), former members of the army at home, the present army and police, and members of the former county gendarmerie and police."

Turks Recalling Envoy to Spain

Ankara, Jan. 4 (A. P.).—Turkey is recalling Ambassador Esat Altiner from Madrid for consultation, it was reported today. Most observers expressed doubt that he would return in view of recent United Nations action against Spain.

Rabbi Wise Quits Zionist Office

New York, Jan. 4 (AP)—Rabbi Stephen Wise, one of the founders and former head of the Zionist Organization of America, announced last night his withdrawal from "all office" in the organization because of what he termed its "imperiling" leadership.

At the same time, Dr. Wise, now vice president of the ZOA, told his congregation at the Free Snagogue that the recent World Zionist Congress in Switzerland was "nothing less than tragic in its inadequacy." He described it as "a collection of personal hatreds and rancors and private ambitions."

"Fallen On Evil Ways"

Dr. Wise further declared the Zionist cause had "fallen on evil days and ways" and that the recent congress had been "a terrible defeat for the cause, nothing less than a disaster."

"We have gone along with the Congress too long," he said. "Our patience has been misused. I do not, I cannot, withdraw from Zionism, but I withdraw from all office in the Zionist Organization of America."

Doubts Rebuke To England

In his report on the Congress, the veteran Zionist leader said he found it hard to believe that the meeting "rebuked and rebuffed" England and America and that Dr. Chaim Weizmann "would be dropped as pilot when most needed."

At the Congress, Dr. Wise was elected senior member of the Presidium of the General Council—the interim authority of the world Zionist congress. He said last night he had no intention of resigning that post.

Iran Elections Slated To Begin Within Week

Tehran to Vote Jan. 11 to 17 After Long Delay

TEHRAN, Jan. 4 (AP).—The Ministry of the Interior announced today that the frequently postponed national elections in Iran would get under way late next week, with voting at Tehran extending from Jan. 11 through Jan. 17.

A new Iranian Parliament was to have been elected lastyear, but the voting was deferred, mainly because of disorders in Azerbaijan Province, touched off by the arrival there last month of government troops to supervise the elections. Azerbaijan Province is now in the hands of government forces.

Acid Throwers Hurt 16 in Bombay Strife

Bombay, Jan. 4 (A. P.).—Police reported that sixteen persons were injured by acid throwers in Hindu-Moslem disorders today They arrested twenty-seven persons in connection with a stabbing in line with a program of mass roundups to catch culprits and induce people to drive away troublemakers. Last night they fired twice at stone throwers.

NehruPondersFounding Of Atomic Laboratory

New Delhi, Jan. 4 (AP)—Jawaharlal Nehru, vice president of India's Interim Government, said today India might "have to follow other countries in establishing a great atomic laboratory." India has large deposits of thorium, important to atomic research.

"I do not see how we can lag behind in this very important matter, because atomic energy is going to play a very important part in the future of our country," the Congress party leader said during a ceremony in which the cornerstone was laid for a new national physical research laboratory.

4-Day Battle In Sumatra Ended

Batavia, Jan. 4 (AP)—A Netherlands spokesman said today the four-day battle in Medan, Sumatra, had finally ended after small Indonesian attacks were repulsed before dawn yesterday.

Meanwhile, the general military situation in Indonesia took a turn for the better, with only minor brushes reported on other fronts.

Paris, Jan. 4 (AP)—The French Press Agency reported today that Colonial Minister Marius Moutet, now in Indo-China, has decided that Viet-Nam nationalists there must be crushed by the French army before peace can be restored.

"It is necessary to have a military decision before any negotiations can be conducted," the agency quoted Moutet at Hanoi.

Moutet now has returned to Saigon after a trip to Hanoi where he and his party repeatedly came under sniper fire. He said he had no contacts with Viet-Nam representatives.

Two In Guard Killed

Dispatches yesterday said two soldiers in the guard accompanying the minister's party were killed within 100 yards of Moutet.

Just before Moutet went to Hanoi, president Ho Chi Minh of the Viet-Nam Republica broadcast an invitation for a conference on the situation and yesterday another Viet-Nam broadcast appealed to General LeClerc, sent from Paris to take over military control, for a settlement. The broadcast said: "An equitable peace is still possible."

"Hopes Destroyed"

Moutet's Hanoi statement, as quoted by the French Press Agency, said:

"Those responsible for this tragedy have systematically destroyed many hopes and compromised efforts in which we have put all out good will.

"Before any negotiations today it is necessary to have a military decision.

"I am sorry, but one cannot commit such follies as the Viet-Namese have done.

Premeditation Charged

"If I had come to Indo-China a fortnight earlier could I have done more? I do not believe so. It is too clear that things would have evolved in the same way. The premeditation is too obviously clear.

"To stay longer here would not teach me more. The contrary in fact. The impressions I gathered are clear; in a way they are more or less photographic, and they cannot be retouched."

This last may have been in reference to photographs he was shown by the warden of a prison, depicting the mutilated bodies of Frenchmen which the warden said was proof of Viet-Nam cruelties.

French Army Must Crush Viet-Nam, Moutet Says

PARIS, Jan. 4—(AP) Full scale war in Indochina was foreseen today when Colonial Minister Marius Moutet sent word that France would have to fight it out there.

"It is necessary to have a military decision," Moutet told the semi-official French press agency. The interview at Saigon followed his return from an eyewitness view of fighting in the northern city of Hanoi where he twice was fired upon by snipers, said by the French to be Viet-Namese.

Full Scale War Seen

Saying he was convinced the Viet-Namese started the fighting at Hanoi Dec. 19 with premeditation as part of a plot against French control of any sort, Moutet declared:

"Those responsible for this tragedy have systematically destroyed many hopes and compromised the efforts in which we have put all our goodwill. Before any negotiations today it is necessary to have a military decision. I am sorry, but one cannot commit such follies as the Viet-Namese have done."

News of Moutet's plans to cut short his fact-finding trip to France's Oriental empire, reached Paris simultaneously with the arrival on official visits of the French resident generals of Tunis and Morocco. Another high French official was flying to Paris from Dakar in French West Africa.

The arrival of these colonial officials focused attention on the widely held belief that the natives of these lands were watching closely the outcome of the challenge to French rule by the Viet-Namese.

North African native groups have shown repeated signs of restlessness in recent years of French weakness, and few Frenchmen doubted but that the interim government of Leon Blum was fortifying itself with up-to-the-minute information on the state of affairs in the colonial empire.

French Forces Quit 2 Towns

Hanoi, Indo-China, Jan. 4 (AP)—French garrisons were reported tonight to have been evacuated from Bacninh and Pulangthuong northeast of here, where they had fought off Viet-Nam attacks since December 19.

Some 300 civilians — French, Chinese, Annamites and, in Phulangthuong, Spanish Catholic missionaries—were said to have been evacuated with them last night.

Authorities said the garrisons had been guarding the line of supplies to the Langson garrison near the Chinese border.

Road Is Opened

The French command, they reported, decided to pull out of the towns when a mountain road was opened from Langson to Tienyen on the coast, enabling Langson to be supplied through the small port of Walhut, 50 miles northeast of Haiphong.

No news came from Viny, where 30 French soldiers and 200 civilians surrendered to Viet-Nam Republican troops December 20.

Tanks Drive Mile

French tanks and infantry were reported to have advanced a mile today against Viet-Namese on Hanoi's eastern outskirts. "Paper village," center of home paper production, was burning tonight after a day of fierce fighting there.

Viet-Nam shelling of Hanoi has been erratic. Several shells were reported to have exploded in the Viet-Nam-held Chinese-Annamite district.

STUDENTS AID U.S. IN CHINA 1947

Demand End Of Anti-American Demonstrations

Nanking, Jan. 4 (AP)—Strong opposition to anti-American demonstrations developed today among Chinese university students as they returned to classes after two days of minority parades demanding that United States military forces quit China.

In Christian Nanking (Ginling) University, the first Nanking school to take up anti-American movements begun in Peiping a week ago, hundreds of students formed an Anti-Demonstration Association.

They issued long statmenst charging that the demonstrators had been utilized as a cat's-paw by "a certain political party." They distributed the statements to pedestrians and posted them at strategic street corners.

Party Is Not Named

The statement did not name the political party. Previously, some Chinese had charged that the demonstrations were Communist inspired.

One statement asked students if they realized the danger of isolation if China loses the friendship of the United States which "presently is the only good friend of China."

"We are eating out of UNRRA relief kitchens, but we beat UNRRA officials during the demonstration," they said. "American pressmen had no share in the raping, but we stoned them while they followed our procession. Is there anything in the world more paradoxical?"

[These references were not clear. Nanking has not reported attacks on Americans there. In Shanghai, demonstrators beat an American army lieutenant; an Associated Press photographer and an importer wit' bamboo canes and fists.]

Marines Face Trial

The rape charge, springboard for demonstrations in Peiping, Nanking and Shanghai, was made by Chinese against two United States Marines and will be reviewed by a court-martial. One Marine said the Chinese girl involved was a prostitute; the other virtually was absolved.

"Dairen has been 'specialized' by a certain continental power (Russia), but the students (demonstrators) didn't fuss about that. Also, Hong Kong still is in the hands of the British, though it is part of Chinese territory from every consideration and the students didn't care."

Parade As Individuals

The Students Association at the National Academy of Dramatic Arts released an announcement to Chinese papers calling attention of the public to the fact that the association did not vote to join the demonstration. It said students who paraded did so as indiviuals.

New posters appearing among anti-American placards on bulletin boards at National Central University urged students to remain "rational", and to view the situation in "a more realistic light."

Chinese Ask U.S. Apology, Russ Are Told

Moscow, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Soviet press and radio gave further attention today to reports from China of student demonstrations against Americans, this time reporting incidents at universities over the alleged molestation of Chinese girls by United States sailors.

Newspaper readers and radio listeners were told that Chinese students had demanded a United States Government apology for reported acts of violence against Chinese citizens.

Withdrawal Demanded

Manila, Jan. 4 (AP)—Two Left-wing Chinese groups—the Cultural Workers' and the Literary Association—today demanded, in a message to President Truman, withdrawal of United States troops from North China and "rectification" of American policy toward China.

Chiang's Son Flies To Changchun

Peiping, Jan. 4 (AP)—Chiang Chin-kuo, the Generalissimo's eldest son, conferred hurriedly in Mukden yesterday with Government officials, then flew to Changchun, Chinese press dispatches reported today.

One dispatch said flatly the son had gone to Manchuria "to assist in taking over Dairen." Another said the nature of the mission was not disclosed.

Dairen, decreed an open port in the August, 1945, Sino-Soviet treaty, has been Soviet controlled since the Russians occupied that area at war's end. Chinese Government troops that recently drove Chinese Communists from that region halted 15 miles or more outside Dairen to avoid possible incidents with the Russians.

Cut In Chinese Army Is Forecast

Nanking, Jan. 4 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Lin Yu, Vice Minister of National Defense, today told critics of China's National Army that "if conditions permit" its strength will be cut from 4,900,000 to 3,000,000 within a year.

Lin did not amplify. [One condition, however, undoubtedly is the possibility of peace between the Kuomintang—Government party—and the Communists, with a resultant nationalization of the army, agreed upon a year ago but never effected because civil war flared anew.]

Lin was replying to the People's Political Council, which criticized the Army's request for 50 per cent of the national budget.

"The Army is so filled with red tape and inefficiency that soldiers get winter uniforms in summer and summer uniforms in winter," the council charged.

Ho at Buchmanite Meeting.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 4 (A. P.).—Gen. Ho Ying Chin, head of the Chinese military delegation to the United Nations and for seventeen years Chinese Chief of Staff, arrived today to attend the Moral Rearmament Assembly here. Accompanying him were Dr. N. G. Wei, Chinese representative to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, and three staff officers.

China Reds Attack Strategic Road

Peiping, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Chinese Communists, employing skip-about tactics in their harassment of Government troops, struck today along the strategic Linfen-Taning highway in southern Shansi province.

Government sources said the Communists were trying to cut off a national threat against the Shansi-Shensi border. Government troops recently captured the 55-mile highway between Linfen and Taning.

The Communists already have recaptured several villages on the highway.

Government reports said 6,000 Communists renewed their assault against Fenyang, 60 miles southwest of Taiyuan, the Shansi capital.

Paoting Gains Reported

The Government reported successes in the Paoting sector of Hopeh province. The official Central News Agency reported that 74,000 Communist troops are in that area.

For the first time in six months, Government sources said, there is no fighting—and has not been for three days—along these North China railroads: Peiping-Mukden, Peiping-Kupeikow, Peiping-Suiyuan, the northern sector of the Peiping-Hankow and the northern section of the Tientsin-Pukow.

In Shantung province, the Communists captured Chuyeh, surrounded Chinhsiang and opened an assault on Hsiancheng.

Japanese Launch New Purge Of Ultra-Nationalists

Tokyo, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Japanese Government, prodded by Russian inquiries, today announced a new purge of ultranationalists and tightened loopholes against evasions.

However, it averted a possible Cabinet crisis with specific safeguards protecting three of four ministers whose war records otherwise would have come under scrutiny.

Japanese sources said today's order, long under consideration, was hastened when Lieut. Gen. Kuzma Derevyanko, Russian member of the Allied Council, inquired yesterday about progress of a recent rural purge.

Jingoists Affected

Only a comparatively small number of individuals was expected to be affected by today's order, designed to minimize flagrant violations. The Japanese said it would round out four previous directives affecting perhaps 400,000 wartime Jingoists.

It prohibits blood relatives from inheriting purgees' positions; extends the journalistic purge to officials of newspapers and magazines with a circulation of 20,000 or more who wrote ultranationalistic articles during the war, and adds 22 financial concerns to an extensive list.

The blood relatives section did not apply to wives. At least two women elected to the House of Representatives are the wives of purged Diet members.

Cabinet Change Still Possible

The possibility of a Cabinet reorganization still exists but current Ministers were saved by orders providing that certain officials should retain their positions until the new constitution becomes effective May 3. The Cabinet must resign then, anyhow.

Here's an example of how the order works: A previous purge directive affected the Japanese-Russian Fisheries Company, of which Transportation Minister Hiratsuka once was president. The new order eliminated the company from that list, so the Minister is no longer affected.

Tokyo, Jan. 4 (AP)—Goaded by Soviet inquiries, the Japanese government today ordered an extended purge of ultranationalists of the war era, but exempted high government officials and drafted the terms in such a way that the staff of an influential leftist paper was subject to screening.

It was exactly one year ago that General MacArthur first directed the Japanese to remove from positions of influence all persons responsible for the war.

Journalists Included

The new order dug more reeply into journalistic circles, sought to prevent purged officials from passing influence along to their relatives, and added some financiers to those under scruntiny.

Japanese said it had been contemplated for some time, as a means of rounding out the previous four directives affecting about 400,000 wartime jingoists, but conceded that it was hastened by Russian inquiries in the Allied Advisory Council yesterday concerning progress of a previous purge of rural officials.

The extension, expected to affect comparatively few persons, added 22 financial concerns to the already extensive list of those whose officials will be investigated and possibly ousted; extended the inquiry to newspapers and magazines of 20,000 or more circulation; and forbade close blood relatives of purged individuals (wives not counted) from taking over any of their positions.

Cabinet Shifts Possible

Three or four members of the shaky Cabinet of Premier Shigeru Yoshida would have been affected because of their former connections, but the Government order specifically exempted them. Despite this, some Cabinet reorganization may result. In any event, the Cabinet is due to resign May 3, when the new constitution becomes effective.

The lowered circulation figure for the newspaper inquiry, which heretofore has touched only the largest papers, included Tokyo Mimpo, one of the most influential leftist publications in the country.

Those holding positions of assistant managing editor or higher will be fired if, between the outbreak of the China war and Pearl Harbor day, they wrote in support of Japanese aggression, in support of the militarists or advocated elimination of foreign influence in Japan.

Persons still below the rank of assistant managing editor and all whose propaganda activities followed the start of the Pacific war are exempt.

Japs Plan To Hike Cigarette, Sake Prices

Tokyo, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Japanese, as tobacco hungry and liquor thirsty as any people on earth, groaned today at a report the Government is planning to boost the prices of cigarettes and sake.

Kyodo news agency said the Government plans to raise additional income by increasing the price of a package of ten cigarettes as high as 25 yen ($1.67) and adding 10 yen (67 cents) to the current 30 yen ($2) per bottle for ordinary sake.

Yokohama, Jan. 4 (A. P.).—The Gen. Greely is scheduled to leave late today for San Francisco with 1,039 military personnel for discharge.

RED DETRACTOR'S SURRENDER ASKED

Moscow Requests U. S. to Hand Over Russian Who Assailed Soviets.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—(AP) Russia asked the United States today to hand over "as a criminal" one of its citizens who walked out of his trade mission job in Mexico and decided to stay in America and blast what he called "the hell of dictatorship" in his homeland.

The Soviet Union asked the U. S. State Department to launch a regular manhunt for Kirill Alekseev, accusing him of embezzlement, treachery, treason, provocation, slander and failing to go home when he was supposed to.

Request Studied

The State Department took the request under consideration. It said a decision would be made later. Such officials as were at work Saturday afternoon doubted that the United States has an extradition agreement with Russia, but were searching the records.

In New York, Martin Richmond, the attorney who last Tuesday made public Alekseev's statement, said tonight the Russian "emphatically denies any charges of financial or other irregularities and states that they are fantatic concoctions of the Soviet officials."

Alekseev, in the earlier statement, had accused the Russian government of being a dictatorship hated by its people and said he wouldn't put his family in its power again.

Richmond has not disclosed the whereabouts of Alekseev and his family, other than to say that they are in the United States.

In its first recognition of Alekseev's existence the Soviet Embassy here sent a note around to the State Department today accusing its citizen and former employe of having "embezzled a considerable amount of money, property of the state," when he was employed on a Russian trade mission in Mexico.

Early this week in New York Martin Richmond, an attorney, issued a statement in behalf of a man he identified as Kiril M. Alekseev, formerly a Soviet commercial employe in Mexico.

The statement sharply criticized the Soviet Union on many points and declared the writer would not "return to my homeland and doom my family, which has become accustomed to breathe the fresh air of freedom, to a life under the hell of dictatorship."

Richmond said the Russian, his wife and two children were living with friends in the United States. A Soviet Embassy spokesman said in Mexico City that the man they seek had left there two months ago to return to the Soviet Union by way of the United States.

Fedor Orekhov, Soviet Embassy counselor here, delivered to the State Department his government's request for American action against "Alekseev."

OPPENHEIMER TOPS ADVISERS ON ATOM

Washington, Jan. 4 (A. P.).—J. R. Oppenheimer of the University of California was elected chairman today of the general advisory committee of scientists for the Atomic Energy Commission. Oppenheimer, a 42-year-old physicist, was among the top ranking researchers who developed, then constructed, the atomic bombs. He was war-time director of the Los Alamos, N. M., laboratory, where the first detonating test was made.

The atomic energy law requires a minimum of four meetings of the advisory committee a year, but it was said that the group would confer much more frequently than that. The committee met for the first time yesterday and continued in session today.

In addition to Oppenheimer, the committee includes James B. Conant, president of Harvard; Prof. Enrico Fermi of the University of Chicago; Lee A. du Bridge, president of the California Institute of Technology; Hartley Rowe, vice-president and chief engineer of the United Fruit Company; Glenn T. Seaborg, professor of chemistry at the University of California; Cyril Stanley Smith, director of the Institute of Metals, University of Chicago, and Hood Worthington, chemical engineer of the Du Pont Company.

GETS BYRNES IDEAS ON TRAINING PLAN

Washington, Jan. 4 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Byrnes has presented his views on universal training to the President's advisory commission, but his exact stand was not disclosed in an official announcement today.

The announcement, made by Dr. Karl T. Compton, commission chairman, said Byrnes gave his views at a meeting yesterday. The Secretary, he added, dealt with the "relationship of a universal training program to the requirements of national security and the implications of such a program in terms of American foreign policy."

Dr. Compton said the commission also heard from Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, general secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, who discussed the general problem and presented resolutions passed by various denominations and church bodies within the council.

By request, the commission received the views of the National Catholic Welfare Conference in the form of a letter from the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Howard J. Carroll, general secretary to the commission chairman. The letter set forth a resolution adopted by the Archbishops and Bishops of the United States at their annual meeting in Washington last November 13.

The commission's next session will be held January 10 and 11.

Senator Butler Assails Trade Charter Redraft

Sees Free Commerce Sought, With U. S. as Example

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP).—Senator Hugh Butler, Republican, of Nebraska, attacked the proposed charter of the International Trade Organization today, calling it "an attempt to bring about world free trade by the example of the United States."

"We tried to bring about world disarmament by example in 1922, and it didn't work then," he said in a statement.

"I see no evidence that it will work today with international trade. If the State Department really expects other countries to make valuable concessions, it should keep a little 'trading stock' in reserve," added the Nebraskan, a consistent critic of State Department policy.

The proposed redraft of the organization's charter, Senator Butler asserted, shows that "we do not receive from other nations the same benefits that the State Department wants to grant to them."

BRITISH DELEGATION SOURCES CONTEND THAT LONDON'S FORTHCOMING COMPLAINT TO THE SECURITY COUNCIL AGAINST ALBANIA WILL BE A MODEL OF PRECEDURE. IN IT THE BRITISH WILL DEMAND AN APOLOGY AND COMPENSATION FOR LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY IN THE DAMAGING OF TWO BRITISH DESTROYERS IN THE CORFU STRAITS WITH 44 CASUALTIES. THE VESSELS STRUCK MINES LAST OCTOBER.

THE BRITISH CHARGES, ALREADY CIRCULATED TO OTHER MEMBERS OF THE BIG FIVE, WILL BE COMPLETELY DOCUMENTED WITH PHOTOGRAPHS, CHARTS AND MINUTE DETAILS, A SPOKESMAN EXPLAINED. GREAT BRITAIN, WHICH IS PRESENTING ITS FIRST COMPLAINT, LONG HAS CONTENDED THAT CASES HAVE BEEN BROUGHT BEFORE THE COUNCIL WITHOUT INCLUSION OF EVIDENCE AND SPECIFIC DETAILS.

NEW YORK, JAN 4-(AP)-RUSSIA AND THE UNITED STATES "CAME TO A BETTER UNDERSTANDING WITH EACH OTHER" DURING THE RECENT UNITED NATIONS GENERAL ASSEMBLY SESSION AND SOVIET REPRESENTATIVES "MET US HALF WAY," WARREN R. AUSTIN, CHIEF UNITED STATES DELEGATE, DECLARED IN A RADIO INTERVIEW (NBC) HERE TONIGHT.

"MY OWN JUDGMENT IS THAT ONE DOES NOT HAVE TO BE AN APPEASER IN ORDER TO BE ABLE TO COME TO AGREEMENT," AUSTIN SAID IN HIS REMARKS ON THE "OUR FOREIGN POLICY" PROGRAM, REVIEWING THE ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF THE U.N. ASSEMBLY.

AUSTIN SAID THAT THE ASSEMBLY SESSION HAD OPENED IN AN ATMOSPHERE OF SKEPTICISM, BUT "ALL MEMBERS REALIZED THAT THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY MUST SUCCEED." HE RECALLED THAT AT THE START OF THE SESSION THERE HAD BEEN "SOME BITTER WORDS," BUT THAT THESE "WERE ALLOWED TO PASS WITHOUT ANSWER AND WITHOUT RECRIMINATION--THUS WAS AVERTED A MAJOR CAUSE OF FAILURE."

"FREE AND OPEN DEBATES WERE DEFINITE FACTORS IN THE SPEED WITH WHICH HARMONY DEVELOPED," HE CONTINUED, "PARTICULARLY ON SUCH SUBJECTS AS THE VETO, THE ATTITUDE TO BE TAKEN WITH RESPECT TO SPAIN, PROVISION FOR THE RELIEF OF STRICKEN PEOPLES AND REFUGEES, LOCATION OF THE SITE OF PERMANENT HEADQUARTERS IN NEW YORK, ESTABLISHMENT OF THE TRUSTEESHIP COUNCIL AND THE CONSTANT ADHERENCE OF THE GREAT POWERS IN ALL THINGS TO THE PRINCIPLE OF SOVIEREIGN EQUALITY OF NATIONS BOTH GREAT AND SMALL."

AUSTIN SAID THAT THIS HARMONY, TOGETHER WITH THE FACT THAT THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY SHOWED IT WAS A POWERFUL "VOICE OF THE CONSCIENCE OF THE WORLD" AND THE DEFINITE GOALS THE ASSEMBLY REACHED, HAD PRODUCED A MORE OPTIMISTIC OUTLOOK IN INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS.

"WE TURNED FROM THE QUESTION 'WHO IS RIGHT?' TO THE QUESTION 'WHAT IS RIGHT' AND BASED OUR RECOMMENDATIONS ON THAT RATHER THAN ON POWER," AUSTIN SAID, ADDING THAT U.N. MEMBERS "WILL NOT LIGHTLY DISREGARD RECOMMENDATIONS WHICH EXPRESS THE WILL OF AN ALERT AND AROUSED WORLD OPINION."

"PROBABLY THE MOST SIGNIFICANT INTANGIBLE GAIN WAS THE DEVELOPMENT IN EIGHT WEEKS AMONG THE MEMBERS OF CONFIDENCE IN THE GOOD FAITH OF EACH OTHER AND BELIEF IN THE CAPACITY OF THE UNITED NATIONS TO OPERATE SUCCESSFULLY," HE DECLARED.

MOSCOW,JAN.4-(AP)-A ROUND OF BANQUETS PROBABLY WILL BEGIN MONDAY UPON THE ARRIVAL HERE OF FIELD MARSHAL VISCOUNT MONTGOMERY, AND WITH THEM THE USUAL ENDLESS RUSSIAN TOASTS. BUT MONTGOMERY IS A TEE-TOTALER.

IT SEEMED EXTREMELY DOUBTFUL THAT EVEN THE ABSTINENCE OF A MAN AS IMPORTANT AS THE CHIEF OF THE BRITISH IMPERIAL STAFF WOULD INTERFERE WITH THE RUSSIANS' BELOVED CUSTOM OF TOASTING. MONTGOMERY MAY DRINK NARZON OR BORSHOM (RUSSIAN MINERAL WATERS), HOWEVER STRANGE AND BARBARIAN THAT MAY APPEAR TO THE RUSSIAN MIND -- BUT TOASTS THERE WILL BE.

BERLIN, JAN. 4-(AP)-THE FRENCH HAVE THROWN AN INFORMATION CONTROL BARRIER AROUND THE SAAR WHICH PREVENTS THIS DISPUTED TERRITORY FROM RECEIVING GERMAN NEWSPAPERS PUBLISHED IN THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH ZONES IN A PROPOSED FREE EXCHANGE OF NEWSPAPERS BETWEEN THE THREE WESTERN ZONES, AMERICAN MILITARY GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS SAID TONIGHT.

OFFICIALS OF THE AMERICAN MILITARY GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCED SEVERAL WEEKS AGO THEY HAD NEGOTIATED AN AGREEMENT FOR THE EXCHANGE OF GERMAN NEWSPAPERS PUBLISHED IN THE AMERICAN AND FRENCH OCCUPATION ZONES, BUT IT DEVELOPED THAT THE FRENCH EXCLUDED THE SAAR FROM THEIR ZONE, MAINTAINING THAT THE TERRITORY REPRESENTED A "SEPARATE ADMINISTRATIVE UNIT" AND THUS REQUIRED A SEPARATE AGREEMENT.

SUBSEQUENTLY, THE FRENCH ESTABLISHED A CUSTOMS FRONTIER BETWEEN THE SAAR AND THE REMAINDER OF GERMANY.

ACCORDING TO AMERICAN INFORMATION CONTROL DIVISION OFFICIALS, THE FRENCH TOLD THEM THAT EVEN PAPERS FROM THE FRENCH ZONE COULD NOT ENTER THE SAAR "WITHOUT PERMISSION OF THE COMMISSIONER FOR THE SAAR, WHO IS RESPONSIBLE TO PARIS."

"THE FRENCH INFORMED US," SAID A.D.EGGLESTON, THE CHIEF OF AMG'S PRESS SECTION "THAT IN ORDER TO GET OUR NEWSPAPERS INTO SAAR WE WOULD HAVE TO OBTAIN PERMISSION FROM THE SAAR COMMISSIONER, WHO, THEY SAID, WAS NOT RESPONSIBLE TO THE FRENCH MILITARY GOVERNMENT FOR GERMANY, BUT TO PARIS."

FRANKFURT, JAN.4-(AP)-GEN.JOSEPH T.MCNARNEY DECLINED COMMENT TODAY ON PUBLISHED REPORTS THAT HE MAY SOON BE REPLACED AS COMMANDER OF UNITED STATES FORCES IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER BY HIS DEPUTY, LT.GEN. LUCIUS D.CLAY.

AN OFFICIAL IN WASHINGTON SAID YESTERDAY THAT MCNARNEY MIGHT BE TRANSFERRED WITHIN A FEW DAYS TO THE UNITED NATIONS MILITARY STAFF COMMITTEE, AND THAT LT.GEN.GEOFFREY KEYES MIGHT SOON REPLACE GEN. MARK CLARK AS COMMANDER OF OCCUPATION FORCES IN AUSTRIA.

KEYES IS NOW IN COMMAND OF THE THIRD ARMY WITH HEADQUARTERS AT HEIDELBERG, GERMANY. CLARK HAS BEEN NAMED DEPUTY TO SECRETARY OF STATE JAMES F.BYRNES AT THE MOSCOW CONFERENCE OF FOREIGN MINISTERS IN MARCH.

BERLIN, JAN.4-(AP)-AMERICAN AUTHORITIES ARE PLANNING TO REMOVE MEMBERS OF THE GERMAN GENERAL STAFF, THE REICH'S CABINET AND THE SA (STORM TROOPS)-- THE ORGANIZATIONS ACQUITTED OF CRIMINAL CHARGES AT NUERNBERG--FROM THE "AUTOMATIC ARREST" CATEGORY OF DIRECTIVES FOR THE APPREHENSION OF GERMANS, A HIGH MILITARY GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL SAID TODAY.

THIS MEANS THAT WHEN THESE PERSONS--WHO NUMBER THOUSANDS--ARE RELEASED FROM U.S. ARMY CUSTODY, THEY REMAIN FREE UNTIL FORMAL PROCEEDINGS ARE BROUGHT AGAINST THEM BY THE DENAZIFICATION COURTS TO JUDGE THEIR INDIVIDUAL GUILT.

THE OFFICIAL EMPHASIZED THAT THERE WOULD BE NO INTERFERENCE WITH GERMAN ATTEMPTS TO TRY THEM ON DENAZIFICATION CHARGES UNDER WHICH MAXIMUM PENALTIES INCLUDE 10 YEARS OF CONFINEMENT, CONFISCATION OF PROPERTY AND LOSS OF CIVIL RIGHTS.

BEFORE RELEASING MEMBERS OF THE THREE GROUPS WHICH WERE JUDGED NON-CRIMINAL AS GROUPS, THE ARMY WILL SCREEN AND RETAIN THOSE IN WHOM IT HAS A SPECIAL INTEREST. SOME WOULD BE RETAINED TO FACE TRIAL FOR SPECIFIC WAR CRIMES, SOME HELD AS WITNESSES AND OTHERS CONFINED AS SECURITY THREATS.

A SELECT GROUP, ESPECIALLY MEMBERS OF THE GENERAL STAFF, IS ALSO KNOWN TO BE RATAINED FOR "SPECIAL SKILLS" THEY ARE CONTRIBUTING TO THE U.S. ARMY. THESE CONTRIBUTIONS INCLUDE RESEARCH ON WEAPONS AND STRATEGIES OF WORLD WAR TWO.

MEMBERS OF THE FOUR ORGANIZATIONS CONVICTED AS CRIMINAL AT NEERNBERG--THE SS, GESTAPO, SECURITY SERVICE AND NAZI LEADERSHIP CORPS-- FACE AUTOMATIC TRIAL BY THE OCCUPYING POWERS TO DETERMINE THE DEGREES OF THEIR INDIVIDUAL GUILT.

STUTTGART, GERMANY, JAN 4-(AP)-U.S. ARMY OFFICIALS SAID TODAY THAT SIEGFRIED KABUS, 23, ON TRIAL HERE AS THE ALLEGED BRAINS BEHIND AN ANTI-ALLIED RESISTANCE GANG, APPARENTLY HAD FORGED HIS OWN DEATH CERTIFICATE AND FOOLED HIS FELLOW GERMANS INTO THINKING THAT HE WAS A WAR HERO.

THE SMIRKING KABUS MANAGED IN THE CLOSING YEARS OF THE WAR TO DECEIVE THE WHOLE CITY OF STUTTGART, INVESTIGATORS DECLARED.

KABUS AND MEMBERS OF HIS PRO-HITLER RESISTANCE MOVEMENT ARE CHARGED WITH THE RECENT TERROR BOMBINGS OF STUTTGART BUILDINGS, AND OF ATTEMPTING TO REAWAKEN THE NAZI IDEOLOGY IN AMERICAN OCCUPIED GERMANY.

OFFICIALS GAVE THIS VERSION OF HIS WAR RECORD:

AS A DESK SERGEANT IN THE NAZI ARMY, KABUS HAD ACCESS TO OFFICIAL PAPER AND RUBBER STAMPS. HE "APPEARED" TO HAVE PROMOTED HIMSELF TO THE RANK OF MAJOR AND AWARDED HIMSELF THE RITTERKREUZ, DECORATION OF THE NAZI PARTY.

WHEN WORD OF THIS SPREAD THROUGH STUTTGART, HE RECEIVED LETTERS OF PRAISE AND CONGRATULATION FROM CITY OFFICIALS AND "STALKED AROUND STUTTGART IN FULL OFFICER'S UNIFORM."

IN 1944, HE FAKED AN ANNOUNCEMENT THAT HE HAD DIED AS A HERO, AND SENT IT TO HIS FATHER. REPORTS OF THE DEATH THEN WERE PRINTED IN STUTTGART NEWSPAPERS.

TRIAL PROSECUTOR DON S.FARRENS OF DECATUR, NEB., TOLD NEWSMEN THAT THERE STILL "ARE MANY UNSOLVED FACTS OF KABUS' PAST," AND THAT IT WAS POSSIBLE "HE MAY CHANGE HIS STORY AGAIN WHEN HE REACHES THE STAND."

WARSAW, JAN 4-(AP)-VICE-PREMIER STANISLAW MIKOLAJCZYK, CHARGING THAT POLISH VOTERS WERE BEING INTIMIDATED BY THE SECURITY POLICE AND DISENFRANCHISED ILLEGALLY BY VOTING COMMISSIONS, DECLARED TODAY THAT "THERE CAN BE NO FREE, UNFETTERED ELECTION" IN POLAND ON JAN.19 UNDER PRESENT CONDITIONS.

MIKOLAJCZYK, LEADER OF THE POLISH PEASANT PARTY WHICH OPPOSES THE GOVERNMENT, TOLD A NEWS CONFERENCE THE GOVERNMENT HAD ASSUMED COMPLETE CONTROL OF THE NATIONAL ELECTIONS BY DENYING HIS PARTY REPRESENTATION ON THE ELECTION COMMISSIONS.

THE COMMISSIONS, HE SAID, HAD BEEN REQUIRING THAT POLL WATCHERS APPOINTED BY THE POLISH PEASANT PARTY FIRST BE RECOMMENDED BY COUNTY SHERIFFS, ALL BUT FOUR OF WHOM, OUT OF APPROXIMATELY 300, BELONG TO THE GOVERNMENT BLOC OF POLITICAL PARTIES.

UNLESS THE GENERAL ELECTIONS COMMISSION REMOVES THAT REQUIREMENT, MIKOLAJCZYK SAID, IT WOULD BE A POWERFUL FACTOR IN INFLUENCING HIM TO URGE THAT MEMBERS OF HIS PARTY BOYCOTT THE POLLS ON ELECTION DAY.

TO THIS, A GOVERNMENT SPOKESMAN REPLIED THAT POLISH LAW AND TRADITION HELD THAT POLL WATCHERS ALL MUST HAVE CERTIFICATES OF GOOD CONDUCT SIGNED BY COUNTY SHERIFFS.

"THAT DOESN'T MEAN," HE SAID, "THAT A SHERIFF WILL DENY SUCH A CERTIFICATE TO A MEMBER OF THE PSL (CAPS)"--MIKOLAJCZYK'S PARTY.

MIKOLAJCZYK'S NEWS CONFERENCE CAME A DAY AFTER A GOVERNMENT SPOKESMEN TOLD NEWSMEN THAT 31 OFFICIALS OF DISTRICT ELECTION COMMISSIONS HAD BEEN KILLED BY UNDERGROUND BANDS UP TO DEC.27.

THE SPOKESMAN, REFERRING TO CHARGES BY THE GOVERNMENT THAT UNDERGROUND ORGANIZATIONS WERE SUPPORTING MIKOLAJCZYK, SAID THAT THE VICE-PREMIER'S NEWSPAPER FAILED TO PUBLISH NEWS OF THE SLAYING OF EIGHT MEMBERS OF THE WORKERS' PARTY BY THE UNDERGROUND.

MIKOLAJCZYK REPLIED THAT CENSORSHIP PREVENTED PUBLICATION OF THE STORY AND SAID HE REPEATEDLY HAD CONDEMNED THE KILLING OF GOVERNMENT PARTY MEMBERS, AS WELL AS OF MEMBERS OF HIS OWN PARTY.

PRIDONOFF IS ONE OF THREE FORMER EMBASSY STAFF MEMBERS NAMED IN THE BELGRADE COURT AS HAVING PAID YUGOSLAVS FOR SPYING ON THEIR OWN GOVERNMENT.

AMONG THE ACCUSED ARE MILUTIN STEFANOVIC, FORMER BELGRADE NEWSPAPERMAN, MISHA TRIFUNOVIC, FORMER PREMIER OF THE YUGOSLAV GOVERNMENT, IN EXILE, AND ZHELJKO SUSHIN, FORMER YUGOSLAV ARMY OFFICER.

STEFANOVIC WAS CHARGED WITH HAVING RECEIVED ESPIONAGE INSTRUCTIONS FROM PRIDONOFF; HAROLD SHANTZ, FORMER COUNSELOR AND LATER CHARGE D'AFFAIRES AT THE EMBASSY; AND LIEUT. JOHN KASUNICK, ASSISTANT NAVAL ATTACHE.

PRIDONOFF SAID HE CAME IN CONTACT WITH STEFANOVIC ONLY IN CONNECTION WITH THE LATTER'S DUTIES AS AN EMBASSY TRANSLATOR. HE SAID TRIFANOVIC, A MAN 75 YEARS OLD WAS KNOWN TO HIM ONLY SOCIALLY, AND SUSHIN HE DID NOT KNOW AT ALL.

NEW GREEK POLICY PUT UP TO BRITAIN

Recall Of Troops, Guarantee Of Frontiers Recommended

Italian Premier Alcide de Gasperi flies to United States to seek aid for Italy ..... Page 4

London, Jan. 5 (AP) — A parliamentary committee recommended today "an entirely new policy" toward Greece. It urged withdrawal of British troops, support of an all-party government with new elections, and guarantee of Greece's present frontiers.

The recommendations were made to the Cabinet by four Labor party members of Parliament, two Conservatives and one Liberal, who visited Greece for two weeks last August. The report was submitted also to King George of the Hellenes and the present Greek Government.

Early Withdrawal Recommended

Withdrawal of the British occupation forces "at an early date" was recommended "subject to considerations of strategy and high policy."

Envisaging an increased role for Britain in Greek affairs, the report said that "the guaranteeing by Britain of the present frontiers of Greece would gratify the Greek people and remove many of their anxieties."

The delegation recommended that Britain support formation of an all-party government, possibly excluding the extreme left, with new elections on "an up-to-date register" to follow. One of the demands of Leftists opposing the present Greek régime has been for new elections without supervision by any outside power.

"It is advisable to ask the Greek Government to accept the appointment of a British financial adviser with the duty of recommending a drastic reform of the present system of taxation," the report said.

Comment On Greek Strife

Commenting on current warfare between Government forces and Leftist bands, the delegation observed:

"It is said that some of these bands receive aid and encouragement from the other side of the frontier, and it is probable that this is the case. It would be a mistake, however, to assume that the activities of these bands are entirely due to foreign inspiration."

Right-Wing bands, the report added, "never engage the Communist bands in battle, but devote themselves to terrorizing the villages and exacting blackmail from anyone rich enough to pay it."

Official announcement in Salonika said four guerrilla bands recently crossed the border from Yugoslavia with instructions not to make any attacks until they reached central Greece and Thessaly.

For General Policy Of Clemency

The parliamentary delegation said that the all-party government which it recommended "should it not be practicable to declare a general amnesty, should at least adopt a generous policy of clemency towards political offenders."

"The first object of the new government should be the establishment of law, order, internal peace and the restoration of constitutional liberties," the report said.

"The action of the present Government in appointing a new general council of labor and nominating new trade union executives should be rescinded. Pending new elections, the former elected representatives should be allowed to return to their duties."

Fatal Clashes In Athens

Athens, Jan. 5 (AP)—Guns blazed in the Plaka section of Athens in the shadow of the Acropolis last night, killing four persons and wounding another in what police said were a Communist attack in a tavern on "Xites," a Rightist group, and subsequent Rightist reprisals.

Other dispatches said troops and gendarmerie clashed with remnants of a guerrilla band at Arakhova, 15 miles northeast of Sparta, resulting in the killing of four guerrillas and one soldier and the wounding of a civilian guide.

Another band tried to penetrate the outskirts of Grevena, 25 miles southwest of Kozane, but was repulsed by Greek soldiers.

Police today gave this version of the Athens violence:

Three persons identified as Communists drove up to a tavern. One, armed with a pistol, fatally wounded the proprietor, Dynosius Messolora, 22, and his cousin, Emanuel Tsassis, 24, a waiter, both members of the extreme Rightist organization, Xites. An unidentified diner was wounded severely.

A few hours later a group of Xites blasted away through the barricaded door of the home of James Poladis, commander of ELAS (Left Wing) forces in the Plaka district during the December, 1944, revolution. They killed him and his widowed sister, Mary Douna.

ARAB LEAGUE TO BE REPRESENTED AT LONDON MEETING

LONDON, Jan. 5—(AP) The Arab League announced today that its member nations would be represented at the London conference on Palestine opening Jan. 2.

The league's decision came despite the recent appeal by the Palestinian Arab executive committee to Arab states to boycott the sessions unless the British government accepted the committee's demands. These terms were that the British invite Haj Amin el Husseini, exiled Mufti of Jerusalem, to attend and that Palestine's independence be the basis for the conference.

Arabs State Demands

Abdel Rahman Azzam Pasha, league secretary-general, said in Cairo that "Arab representatives will go to the conference united against any partition scheme or continuation of Jewish immigration to Palestine." The secretary general, who is not expected to come to London because of bad health, added the Arabs would "demand again the independence of Palestine and the establishment of Arab government there." Azzam said that in the event the conference failed to solve the Palestine problem, "we will go to the United Nations; we are sure of the justice of Palestine's cause."

British newspapers, on the eve of a cabinet meeting expected to deal with Palestine, demanded a stronger policy there, to curb violence.

The London Sunday Dispatch said the "employment of all-out methods by the British military authorities" could be expected in Palestine if Jewish leaders failed to curb attacks by extremists.

"What are wanted," the Sunday Times said, "are much sterner, direct methods against the terrorists themselves. The severest penalty should be incurred by any unauthorized person caught wearing a British uniform. The use of a car to commit an outrage should be similarly penalized, and so should the carrying, under any circumstances, of guns, grenades or mines."

The Sunday Times expressed doubt that a settlement of the Palestine problem satisfactory to both Jews and Arabs could be found and added that Britain might have to adopt its own solution and impose it on both sides.

U.S. Officers Would Oust 2 Men From UNRRA Posts

Bamberg, Germany, Jan. 5 (AP)—United States constabulary officers today demanded the dismissal of two UNRRA officials whom they accused of attempting to "protect" operators of an asserted "Jewish black market" at the Landsberg camp for displaced persons.

In making the dismissal demands, the military constables disclosed that they themselves had been accused by one of the UNRRA officials of employing third degree tactics on a group of eight Jews. These accusations were designed to discredit the constabulary, its officers declared.

Maj. Gen. E. N. Harmon, constabulary chief, made public the charges and countercharges.

"Nothing To Hide"

"We have nothing to hide," he said. "Any troopers who mistreat anyone will be punished and any who strike back in self defense will be protected."

Harmon issued a report drafted by Col. Charles H. Reed and naming the two Landsberg UNRRA officials as Joe Buda and "Mr. Korn."

Reed said that Buda had insisted on the release of any Jewish displaced persons arrested by the constables, no matter what the charge, and had threatened to "get" certain officers if this were not done.

No Evidence, He Says

Reed asserted that Buda had obtained affidavits from eight Jews that they had been manhandled by constables while being questioned in connection with a murder case. He added that there was no evidence to support the third-degree charge.

UNRRA Director Sussman, of the Bavarian area, which includes Landsberg, said no statement would be made by UNRRA at least until tomorrow.

He added that the "case is not closed" and was still under investigation by UNRRA authorities.

Could Not Be Reached

Attempts to reach Buda or Korn by telephone at Landsberg were unsuccessful.

Major Rollin T. Steimetz, who investigated the case for Colonel Reed, wrote that the allegations of brutality "are in the main an attempt to discredit the authority of the constabulary and gain a hands-off policy in the area of Landsberg to allow complete freedom of operation of Jewish black market and other criminal dealings."

The report "strongly" recommended the discharge of Buda, Korn and "others found allied with them in their control of the Landsberg displaced-persons camp.

Purposes Alleged

"Mr. Joe Buda, by his entire attitude, has shown disrespect for American authority," the report said, "His purposes are:

"1. To protect the Landsberg camp inmates, no matter what offense they commit—witness his statement to officers that he could, through appeal to Rabbi Bernstein, General McNarney or the President, get anyone arrested. (Rabbi Philip S. Bernstein is advisor on Jewish affairs to Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, commander of United States forces in the European theater.)

"2. To discredit the American forces to such an extent that he and his confederates be given a free hand."

Quizzed After Murders

The manhandling affidavits arose following questioning of the eight Jews in connection with the garroting December 14 of a woman and her 9-year-old son.

Reed submitted statements from a dozen troopers and several German policemen that none of the eight was subjected to the third degree. One suspect lunged at a lieutenant, who struck him in the eye, Reed said.

"The suspects were subjected to search, made to stand at attention and keep silent, but there is no evidence of brutal treatment," the report said. "The action of the lieutenant in selfdefense was justifiable."

Charges Termed Unfounded

Harmon said that the Central Jewish Committee had complained several times about the conduct of constabulary raids on Jewish D-P camps but that in each case inquiries proved the charges were unfounded.

He cited a raid on a camp here, in which a quantity of black-market material and narcotics was seized. The committee filed seven charges of mistreatment of inmates, and Harmon said each was found to be false.

He said he was required to obtain permission from higher headquarters before raiding a Jewish camp "although even the camp directors ask me to put on raids to stiffen their authority and keep the population peaceful for a while."

Harmon said UNRRA officials had made at least 25 requests to raid camps in a black-market shakedown, and that he had carried out only three, each authorized by army headquarters.

EX-NAZI OFFICIAL COMMITS SUICIDE IN NUERNBERG JAIL

NUERNBERG, Germany, Jan. 5—(AP) Karl Westphal, former official in the Nazi Ministry of Justice, committed suicide by hanging today in the Nuernberg jail. He was the fourth high ranking Nazi to commit suicide in the jail and the second from the Justice Ministry who ended his life rather than stand trial.

Westphal was one of 16 former officials in the Justice Ministry indicted yesterday on war crimes charges. Otto Georg Thierack, Hitler's former minister of justice, committed suicide several weeks ago in an internment camp.

Hermann Goering, sentenced to hang by the international military tribunal, cheated the gallows by swallowing poison in the Nuernberg jail. The others who took their lives there were Dr. Leonardo Conti, head of the Nazi medical experimenters on helpless concentration camp inmates, and Robert Ley, the Nazi labor boss.

Last month Lt. Col. Frederich Karl Lechler, witness for forthcoming war crimes trials, tried to commit suicide by diving from a 35-foot catwalk in the jail. He suffered a broken neck and skull fracture.

Today's official announcement said Westphal, former ministerial counsel in the Justice Ministry, apparently tore a strip from a woolen scarf, tied one end around an iron bar and the other around his neck. He stood on a suitcase, kicked it over and chocked to death.

Trials of the other 15 defendants before the all-American court are scheduled for February.

16 NAZIS INDICTED FOR WAR CRIMES

NUERNBURG, Germany, Jan. 5—(AP) Sixteen former officials of the Nazi Ministry of Justice, many of them once connected with Adolf Hitler's ruthless "people's court", were indicted yesterday for war crimes and crimes against humanity. They likely will face an American military court next month.

One of the highest ranking defendants is Franz Schlegelberger, secretary of state in the Justice ministry from 1938 to 1941, and acting minister until 1942, when the post was taken by Otto Georg Thierack. Thierack committed suicide last October.

Other defendants:

Kurt Rothenberger, Thierack's secretary of state.

Herbert Klemm, former Hamburg judge and friend of the missing deputy fuehrer, Martin Bormann.

Oswald Rothaug, president of the Nazi special court in Nuernberg.

Rudolf Oeschey, Rothaug's successor and later senior prosecutor of the people's court.

Josef Altstoetter, divisional chief in charge of civil law and procedure in the ministry.

Karl Engert, vice president of the people's court and chief of the penal administration division.

Wolfgang Mettenberg, deputy chief of the criminal division.

Wilhelm von Ammon, ministerial counsellor.

Carl Westphal, ministerial counsellor.

Guenther Joel, legal adviser.

Guenther Nebelung, chief justice of the people's court.

Hans Petersen, former elite guard lieutenant-general and lay judge of the people's court.

Ernst Lautz, former public prosecutor.

Paul Barnickel, former public prosecutor.

Hermann Cuhorst, former president of the Stuttgart special court.

Many of these defendants will be accused of using their positions to suppress ruthlessly in secret trials any political opposition to Hitler and of turning prisoners over to the Gestapo for extermination. Some will be charged with helping draft and execute laws providing for sterilization of Jews, diseased persons and criminals.

Joint Mass For Fascists, Antis In Rome Today

Rome, Jan. 5 (AP)—A joint mass for men who fought beside and against the Allies will mark celebration of the Epiphany in Rome tomorrow.

The mass, at the Piazza Venezia, will be specifically for 25 men who served with Mussolini's diehard "Republican" army in northern Italy and 25 others who fought as Allied cobelligerents late in the war.

The newspaper Il Tempo, calling the service an "Epiphany of Reconciliation," said the invited Fascists had fought from conviction as sincerely as the pro-Allied soldiers.

Cardinal Schuster Likens Reds to Islamic Advance

Milan Prelate Says West Faces Moscow 'Religious System'

ROME, Jan. 5 (AP).—Alfredo Ildefonso Cardinal Schuster, Archbishop of Milan, declared today that the "power of atheo-communism" is the greatest danger facing Western civilization since the advance of Mahometanism, the Italian news agency, Ansa, said tonight.

Ansa said Cardinal Schuster urged the Western powers to realize they must "either defend our traditional civilization, inspired by the Vatican, or enter into the orbit of the Kremlin, in the political and religious system of Moscow."

The statement, contained in a diocesan publication, was prompted by the recent wave of anti-clericalism in Italy centered in Leftist-guided anti-church publications, Ansa said.

Aranda May Testify At Spanish Hearing

Madrid, Jan. 5 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Antonio Aranda, who had been mentioned by Republicans abroad as a possible head of the Spanish Government if Generalissimo Francisco Franco should be deposed, may be called as a witness Thursday in the trial of fourteen Leftist leaders allegedly involved in a conspiracy against the Franco regime two years ago.

One of the exhibits expected to be introduced in the trial is a document—attributed to Aranda—outlining the Spanish political situation at the end of October, 1944, and proposing a change of Government. In private testimony before Col. Enrique Eymart, special judge for the suppression of Communism, Aranda has denied any knowledge of this document.

Former Priest Among Group

Among those scheduled to be tried is Regulo Martinez Sanchez, 49, a former Roman Catholic priest who allegedly headed the "National Republican Committee of Spain."

The document found during the arrests and expected to be introduced proposes "putting the Government in the hands of a provisional entity without prejudice to the eventual form of Government" and urges the Army to ask Franco for dissolution of the Falange party in order to expedite a change of regime.

All fourteen are charged with military rebellion, for which they may be sentenced to death, but the prosecution has asked tentatively for a maximum sentence of twelve years imprisonment.

'Pravda' Insists on Veto To Solve Atom Control

Says 'Unanimity Principle' Is Key to the Problem

MOSCOW, Jan. 5 (AP).—"Pravda," Communist party organ, re-examining the whole question of atomic energy control in its weekly international review by Y. A. Viktorov, said today that the problem was "unquestionably soluble." It made a new plea for continuing "the unanimity principle" among the great powers as the key to the solution.

Supporting criticism by Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko of the Atomic Energy Commission's report to the United Nations Security Council, "Pravda" said the American atomic control plan was an indirect attack on the U. N. Charter.

The article denied that, "together with the Security Council, which preserves the unanimity principle, there can exist another specially created independent organ exercising control over atomic energy to which the unanimity principle would not be extended."

The paper contended that the real issue was whether the veto right would be applicable in punishing future violators of the atomic energy convention.

Setting forth the Russian view, Viktorov said the great powers should not be regarded as "potential violators" of this convention, adding that "it is a matter of creating conditions which exclude the possibility of both manufacturing and preserving and applying atomic weapons."

BRITONS HURT BY GRENADES

11 Soldiers Attacked In Cairo-Palestine Train

Cairo, Jan. 5 (AP).—Eleven British soldiers were wounded tonight, two of them critically, in a grenade attack on a train en route from Cairo to Palestine.

The attack on the train, which consisted of civilian passenger cars and several coaches of British troops, occurred near Benha, 25 miles north of Cairo, shortly after it left here.

One of two or three grenades hurled by the unknown attackers exploded inside one of the troop coaches.

Premier Urges Aid

The engineer was reported to have heard the explosion and stopped the train, but started again and continued to Benha where the wounded were transferred to a hospital.

Premier Mahmoud Fahmy Nokrashi Pasha telephoned the hospital and asked the staff to do everything possible to aid the injured.

The attack marked a renewal of anti-British outbreaks which have occurred sporadically during the prolonged negotiations between the British and Egyptian governments over Egyptian demands for the evacuation of British troops and the unity of Egypt and the Sudan under the Egyptian crown.

JEWISH GROUP HITS TERRORISM TACTIC OF UNDERGROUND

JERUSALEM, Jan. 5.—(AP) The Jewish defense organization Haganah in a broadcast from its secret transmitter today denounced strongly Irgun Zvai Leumi and the Stern Gang, extremist organizations blamed for the latest outburst of Holy Land violence.

Haganah called for an end to the violence and declared it would "not allow Zionist work all over Palestine and the hopes of a Jewish nation to be destroyed." The broadcaster said he knew that "the British government just now is preparing a solution of the Palestine problem."

Violences Continues

An explosion today blew a deep crater in a highway north of Reheboth, disrupting traffic. No one was hurt. Three mines and other arms and ammunitions were found at Hadera, between the coastal cities of Haifa and Tel Aviv.

A number of shots were directed at the Hadera railway station on the Haifa-Tantura line, but the attackers withdrew when the police guard returned fire. There were no casualties.

A government announcement said 33 persons, including four women, were arrested during searches in Hadera and at Kafar Atta, north of Haifa.

Meanwhile, an announcer broadcasting from the secret radio station of Irgun Zvai Leumi said underground forces in Palestine would make further use of flame throwers in their fight against the British.

The flame throwers used in last Thursday's wide-spread attacks in the Holy Land originally were British-made fruit tree sprayers which were readapted in Irgun Zvai Leumi's own underground workshops, the announcer said. He claimed that only two underground fighters were wounded in Thursday's attacks while one British officer was killed and 20 British soldiers and five policemen were wounded.

An official government announcement today confirmed the imposition of a stricter censorship on Palestine's Jewish and Arab press during the past 24 hours with a view to "eliminating everything that might arouse already tense public feeling."

Local newspapers, one English language, three Arabic and eight Hebrew, have been censored on "controversial items" since before the war.

There still is no censorship of news sent abroad from Palestine.

IRAN RIOT HALTS AT PALACE GATES

Pre-Election Demonstration Laid To Student Protest

1 Soviet Plot

Tehran, Iran, Jan. 5 (AP)—Fierce fighting broke out at the gates of the King's palace today when police halted a demonstration in connection with the coming Iranian national elections. Officials said that eleven policemen and "four or five" demonstrators were injured.

Six of the policemen were reported in a serious condition.

Minister of Propaganda and Labor Aramesh said the demonstration was begun by striking university students seeking to make "certain claims" regarding the elections.

Interference Denied

Earlier, Aramesh denied at a news conference what he described as "rumors circulated here" that the Government is interfering in the elections. He said the reports were being spread by "people opposing the Iran Democratic party" (the party of Premier Ahmed Qavam).

The minister said that all local and foreign newsmen were invited to "observe" the balloting, scheduled to begin in Tehran Saturday, and "see" that the elections are completely free and the voters uninfluenced.

He added that any political party or group is free to meet and campaign publicly, and that the "only function of military law in Tehran is to insure security and prevent violence."

Heckled By Secret Radio Station

The Government, meanwhile, was heckled by a secret radio station, which called itself "The Voice of Azerbaijan Democratic Party," and broadcast a 45-minute program accusing Qavam's party of illegal methods.

The so-called Azerbaijan "Democrats" came into power in that province during the Russian occupation, and were overthrown last month by Government troops who arrived in Azerbaijan to "supervise" the parliamentary elections.

The announcer, in urging Tehran residents to stay away from the polls next Saturday, charged the Central Government with "torture and brutal murders."

India Congress Members Oppose Constitution Plan

Object to British Grouping of Provinces for Draft

1947

NEW DELHI, Jan. 5 (AP).—Considerable opposition developed tonight within the All-India Congress (Nationalist Party) to acceptance of the British government's statement of Dec. 6, which declared that grouping of provinces for the drafting of a constitution was compulsory under the British Cabinet Mission's plan for India's independence.

As a result of this opposition, the Congress executive committee recessed until tomorrow without reaching a decision. The committee is debating a proposed resolution accepting the British government's interpretation of the plan, but containing a qualification which is expected to be unacceptable to the Moslem League.

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, vice-president of the executive council in the India interim government, urging adoption of the resolution, said the Congress wanted Moslem League co-operation in drafting the constitution, and that ousting British rule was a primary consideration.

CHINESE REDS KILL PRIEST, IS CHARGE

PEIPING, Jan. 5. — (AP) Government dispatches reported today that the Communists had surrounded and were assaulting Chenkuantun, 28 miles southwest of Tientsin on the important Tientsin-Pukow railway, and that fighting was raging.

Earlier government reports had claimed that the Communists had been driven to points 60 miles southwest of Tientsin.

In westernmost Shantung Province, government accounts said fighting was in progress at six points and that government troops had recaptured Puhsien, 117 miles southwest of Tsinan, provincial capital.

The Communists were acknowledged to have seized Chiahsiang, 107 miles southwest of Tsinan, and were attacking Chinhsiang, nearby.

Communists, estimated by the government to total 30,000, were said to be attacking the outer defenses of Yihsien, 150 miles south of Tsinan.

The Peiping paper Shih Chieg Jih Pao said the government had captured two more of the Changshan islands off the north coast of Shantung. These islands were used as Communist stepping stones between Shantung and Manchuria.

On the land route to Manchuria, government reports said 3,000 Communists were massing near Tangshan on the Peiping-Mukden railway, for an attack on Tzetou, 90 miles northeast of Tientsin.

CHINESE REDS PERIL VITAL RAIL TOWN

NANKING, Jan. 5. — (AP) The burning to death of a Polish Catholic priest and detention of a score of other priests and nuns by Chinese Communists at a mission near Singtai was reported today by the Polish embassy.

Charge d'Affaires Michal Derenicz said he had "protested sharply" to Communist headquarters at Yenan, demanding liberation of those held, restitution of stolen mission property and protection for the future, but had received no reply as yet.

Derenicz said the report of the burning received by the embassy was the latest development in what church officials called widespread anti-foreign anti-Christian violence in Communist-held territory.

This report, from two Poles who escaped, said Father Casimir Skowyra, 38, was beaten and tortured and finally burned to death in a pool of gasoline when he refused to confess to accusations of pro-Japanese and pro-Fascist activities.

It said Bishop Igancy Krause, 55, chief of the mission, and a score of Polish priests and nuns plus some Chinese priests were stripped, imprisoned and held for trial before a Communist court.

One priest, Father Francis Starwaski, and a Polish doctor attached to the mission, escaped to government territory with the story, the embassy stated.

The mission, in operation for 17 years, is in southern Hopeh Province near Singtai, also known as Shuntehfu, a city on the Peiping-Hankow railway 242 miles southwest of Peiping.

U.S. Officers Decorated

Guatemala, Guatemala., Jan. 5 (AP)—Col. Fred T. Cruse, of Madison, Wis., was awarded the Order of Quetzal, grade of knight commander, and Lieut. Col. Rudolph Morgan, of Pittsburgh, the same order with the grade of official today by the Guatemalan Government for "personal merit and valuable collaboration with the Guatamalan armed forces."

Philippine Guerrillas Are Reported Routed

Manila, Jan. 5 (AP)—The Manila Times reported today that Hukbalahap guerrillas had suffered considerable, but uncounted casualties from Government shellfire in three villages in the Santa Lucia area 50 miles southwest of Manila.

It said the Huks had been observed carrying their dead and wounded from the scene while military police sought to prevent their escape into the mountains.

It said other Government forces suffered light casualties in a brush with the Huks in Tarlac province, central Luzon.

BARUCH ACTION EFFECT VIEWED

U.N. Circles Consider Possible Results Of Resignation

1947

New York, Jan. 5 (AP)—Reaction in United Nations circles to Bernard M. Baruch's resignation as American representative to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission today centered around any effect on the differences still splitting Russia and the United States.

Delegates, expressing regret at Baruch's leaving, were slow to comment on the possible political implications, but one factor was worth noting.

From the first Baruch has stood firm on the major points of his (the Baruch) plan for control of atomic energy and has stated repeatedly in no uncertain terms that he would not give way.

More Leeway Hinted

In some quarters passing of the United States representation from Baruch to Warren R. Austin, who will take over the permanent Security Council seat, was viewed as opening the way for more leeway in the American stand. This was said despite frequent support given Baruch by the Government from the President down.

Baruch has been especially firm in insisting that there be no right of veto to protect violators of any control system. He held his ground despite temporary switches in the final prevoting days which for a time found Great Britain, France the Netherlands and Canada ready to oppose him in the drive for unanimity.

In the ballot, however, Baruch's proposal, with the veto as the hottest issue, received ten votes with no opposition and Poland and Russia abstaining.

One Must Yield, Is View

It has been apparent to observers throughout the atomic discussions that there can be no final agreement unless the United States or Russia yields on the veto issue, on which the Soviet's Andrei Gromyko has been equally firm.

On the other hand, Baruch has been extremely friendly with Gromyko since the two of them sat down at the table last spring. Often the American statesman has expressed to friends high admiration for Gromyko and this feeling generally was considered to be reciprocated.

Persons emphasizing this factor feel now that perhaps agreement will be slower in coming with the personal relationship gone. However, there are those who contend that Russian policy is laid down in Moscow without regard for relationships in New York.

Divided Over Manufacture

Another point on which Baruch and Gromyko remained apart to the end was the matter of continuing the manufacture of atomic bombs. Russia has declared through Gromyko—and Foreign Minisster V. M. Molotov and Deputy Andrei Y. Vishinsky emphasized it, too—that no nation should continue to turn out the bombs while seeking a system for abolition of the weapon.

In his letter of resignation, Baruch commented:

"I see no reason why this country should not continue the making of bombs, at least until the ratification of the treaty."

Although sources close to Baruch said the resignation had been discussed in advance with President Truman and James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State, the action surprised the American United Nations delegation here.

In Different Sections

Offices of the United States delegations to the United Nations itself and to the United Nations Atomic Commission were operated separately, being situated in different parts of Manhattan.

For the past several weeks Baruch has shown evidences of the daily grind and his close friends had believed that he might step down when the opportunity came.

Amid tense debate in one of the last meetings preceding the vote, Baruch came out of the chamber, plopped down in a chair, and said:

"You know I'm too old for this battling. But I'm going to stick until the plan gets through because those men in there are deciding the future of mankind—and how can a person stay out of a fight like that?"

'Delusion Of Security' Is Feared By Baruch

Charleston, S.C., Jan. 5 (AP)—Bernard M. Baruch, who resigned yesterday as American representative to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, said tonight that mankind will be "deluded into a false sense of security" unless all portions of the American program for control of atomic energy are written into a final treaty.

The 76-year-old statesman gave his statement to the Charleston News and Courier from his Georgetown plantation where he is vacationing.

"Study of the atomic energy report," the statement said, "will show that a way has been found and pointed out to control atomic energy for peace and prevent its use for war.

"Way Is Marked"

"The way is marked by buoys and lighthouses showing clearly the dangers and how to avoid them.

"The program is before the Security Council, where it must be carried forward by the nations favoring the report. If they agree, there is a drafting committee fully informed on all details who can proceed to draft the treaty which must contain all, not parts of the program.

"Otherwise, mankind will be deluded into a false sense of security.

"The dangers are great, but the way is clear if man but wills it so."

MARSHALL LEAVES CHINA SOON; MAY ACCEPT NEW POST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5—(AP) Gen. George C. Marshall is expected home from China soon, barring unexpected developments, to review Chinese affairs with President Truman and Secretary of State Byrnes.

Whether that will wind up his 13-month diplomatic assignment or whether he will return to China for new efforts to unite the Nationalists and Communists may depend on the outcome of his talks here and particularly his own decision as to whether anything more can be accomplished.

May Not Go Back

Most informed persons say the odds are against his going back. This would raise a question of future American representation there, for diplomats believe that when Marshall quits the China scene his close associate, Ambassador John Leighton Stuart, also may retire.

Two other results of Marshall's expected return here are foreseen in authoritative quarters:

1. His name, political observers expect, will be brought into 1948 presidential election talk just as soon as there are indications he is back in this country to stay.

2. When he does return for keeps, his friends agree the 66-year-old soldier and diplomat would prefer to retire to private life on his Virginia farm, but officials predict Mr. Truman will try to keep him in high public office.

One job which has been rumored for him in some talk among administration officials is that of chief of staff to the President succeeding Admiral William D. Leahy, 71. Leahy soon may leave the White House desk he has held since early in the war to take a diplomatic post, or to retire.

Marshall just retired as wartime army chief of staff in November, 1945, when American diplomacy in China was wrecked by a split between Ambassador Patrick J. Hurley and American career diplomats. Mr. Truman asked Marshall to pick up the pieces and try his skill at unifying China. In December, 1945, with a sweeping grant of authority from the President, he went to China.

Deny Mission Failed

One idea which White House and State Department officials are prepared to blast in connection with Marshall's expected return is the idea that he has "failed" in his mission because China is still split between the Nationalist government of Chiang Kai-shek and the Communist forces in the north.

The official view is that Marshall went to China to proffer his "good office" to both sides but that unity and peace can be accomplished only by the Chinese themselves.

He worked with Chiang to bring about the adoption last month of a new Chinese constitution virtually the same as one the Communists earlier had declared acceptable. Marshall's hope is reported to be that eventually the Communists will come into a national government based on this constitution.

Any development of a real opportunity to help accomplish this soon would delay Marshall's return home but the chances of such a development are considered by authorities here to be very slight.

One of the unsolved problems is what is to be done about American-Chinese economic relations. With lend-lease ended, UNRRA aid ending and commercial credits stalled, the Chinese are in process of being cut off from American assistance. Mr. Truman had promised them help if they unify.

ATOM-BOMBPROOF FACTORIES URGED

Expert Proposes That Industry Begin Designs Now

Washington, Jan. 5 (AP)—Robert Wood Johnson, production expert and retired brigadier general, urged today that industry start now, with Government aid, to design new factories for protection against atomic attack.

War Department officials at the same time said progress is being made in studies of methods for industrial protection and civilian defense against mass destruction attacks.

Civilian Leadership Urged

Johnson, board chairman of Johnson & Johnson, New Brunswick, N.J., and wartime vice chairman of the War Production Board, said the job of factory design "calls for civilian leadership" with the military defining the problems to be solved. The military advisory group, he said, might be a five-man commission of "top-flight" generals and admirals.

In an article for the magazine Army Ordnance, Johnson declared that "the widespread belief that business leaders are unwilling or unable to proceed is in error. The bottleneck to progress is government. We in business are ready to develop a defense." Then he wrote:

"Hundreds of new factories are being erected throughout the United States. Thousands more are on the drafting boards and will be built within the next three years. The modern factory is vulnerable. Production people must be brought in now. The whole story should be laid on the table.

"Should Start Now"

"If we are to influence, guide, direct, persuade, co-ordinate and otherwise irritate business into collaboration with military authorities, we should start now to impinge on those who are building new plants.

"Should these plants be dispersed, and if so where? . . .

"Which of these plants should go underground and where?

"To what extent and by what means should the armed services contribute to the obviously increased costs of such installations? What new laws are necessary? Where is the authority to be centered?"

Two Studying Defense

Two agencies now are conducting defense studies.

The Army-Navy Munitions Board last winter began preparing plans for storage in caves and mines of production epuipment and spotting around the country underground sites which could be used by munitions industries in case of war.

An underground sites committee has been delegated the job of planning the sites.

A civil defense board was announced last month.

Interested In Defense

This board of five general officers is interested primarily in national defense planning—precautions against chaotic conditions among the people, in industry and in transportation arising out of a sudden attack by atomic bombs, bacteriological weapons or widespread aerial attack with conventional bombs.

War Department planners have cautioned that the studies of these two agencies should be considered only as spadework to assist any future civilian or nonmilitary governmental agency established to undertake the problems of industry dispersion, cave factories and civilian defense in general.

These problems, they contend, involve national economics and other questions beyond the peacetime responsibility of the military.

De Gasperi, Italian Premier, Flies To U.S. To Request Funds

Washington, Jan. 5 (AP)—Italian Premier Alcide de Gasperi arrived today by plane to seek an American loan and post-UNRRA help for his riot-plagued country.

The 65-year-old Italian leader stepped off a four-motored American Army Air Transport after a rough trans-Atlantic trip and said "this help can be tremendous."

During the flight from Rome, de Gasperi told George Bria, Associated Press correspondent aboard the plane, of his aim of closing a deal for an American credit and of asking for additional food for his people.

The Premier will call upon Secretary of State Byrnes at noon tomorrow.

Has Eventful Trip

De Gasperi and his party reached Washington after an eventful 41-hour trip during which his plane turned back once because of a 60-mile-an-hour headwind. The C-54 was almost forced to turn back a second time during the flight from Azores to Bermuda.

The lean, hawk-faced Premier was accompanied by his 23-year-old daughter, Maria Romana, who said she had many requests from friends for "those famous fountain pens that write for two years—and Nylon stockings."

The Export-Import Bank has been considering a $100,000,000 loan for Italy for the last year. Despite State Department urging, however, the bank up until now has declined to approve it for fear it might prove a poor financial risk.

Needs Raw Materials

"Italy is poor in capital, and to rehabilitate herself needs and wishes to work," De Gasperi told Bria. "But she is also poor in raw materials and connot purchase them without capital and by dint of labor alone. She needs coal, iron, grain."

DeGasperi said if the outside assistance Italy has been receiving since liberation were to be cut off completely "Italy would find it difficult not to be swept off her feet."

Dr. Donato Menichella, director of the Bank of Italy who is one of the four key aides with de Gasperi, expressed hope that the American Government would renounce claim to Italian assets in the United States. Under the peace treaty with Italy, the United States is entitled to expropriate them, Menichella said.

Paying On Old Loan

The Italian financier disclosed that Italy was willing to continue payments on loans received from the United States from 1925 to 1932, "which she has always honored up to the outbreak of war."

These loans include the Morgan loan of $100,000,000 granted the Italian Government in 1925. Italy already has paid back $34,000,000, Menichella said.

Other members of de Gasperi's party included his Minister of Foreign Commerce, Pietro Campilli, and Count Vittorio Zoppi, political-affairs chief of the Foreign Ministry.

James C. Dunn, American Ambassador to Italy, who currently is in Washington for conferences, headed the State Department delegation that greeted the Premier.

Italian Ambassador Alberto Tarchiani shook de Gasperi's hand and embraced him when he stepped off the plane.

De Gasperi said American economic help can aid Italy "to struggle out of the present critical period of emergency."

He also urged the United States to back his country "in her drive to become an active element in the world policy of pacification and collaboration."

De Gasperi left the airport shortly after his arrival for the Blair House, traditional residence for distinguished foreign visitors. He plans to see President Truman and Secretary of State Byrnes for discussions of financial and economic problems later in the week.

No. 1 topic on his agenda undoubtedly will be an attempt to hasten an American Government decision on the $100,000,000 loan the Export-Import Bank is considering for Italy.

Speaks In English

In his statement de Gasperi added:

"I have confidence in the people of America. Their war was the war for freedom and for the independence of all nations, large and small.

"I hope my trip will help to strengthen the confidence of American public opinion in Italy's resolve and capacity to recover.

"I consider it highly significant that Italy's first international contact of this kind since the war should be with the United States of America, to whom we are bound by so many ties of history and civilization."

The Premier spoke in English.

Photographers Perplex Premier

Washington, Jan. 5 (AP)—Italian Prime Minister Alcide de Gasperi wondered today whether "I came here for the photographers or the photographers for me."

Asked to pose yet again as he laid a wreath at the Jefferson Memorial, the Premier grinned, "You know in this country I get the feeling that the photographers are directing the show instead of the other way around."

Here to ask for American post-UNRRA assistance, the Italian leader officially began his visit with a brief tour of the capital's landmarks.

Escorted by motorcycle policemen and several Secret Service agents, de Gasperi's party first drove to the Lincoln Memorial, where the Premier laid a wreath inscribed "The Italian Prime Minister" at the base of the gigantic statue of the liberator.

The motorcade then sped through a drizzle to Mount Vernon, where he placed another wreath on Washington's tomb and briefly visited the first President's mansion.

Treason Suspects Face Court Today

BOSTON, Jan. 5—(AP) Robert H. Best and Douglas Chandler, former American newspapermen accused of broadcasting Nazi propaganda from Berlin during the war, will make their first court appearance tomorrow when they are arraigned before U. S. District Court Judge Francis J. W. Ford.

Best, 51, and Chandler, 54, are charged by the government with treason.

Relatives of the pair are expected to be present at the first treason arraignment in New England since the Revolutionary period.

Ford is expected to act on the two men's pleas, setting bail and a date for the trial.

The two men have been granted permission to obtain Massachusetts counsel but as yet had made no effort to do so.

Danish Cadets to Visit Coast

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 5 (AP).—The three-masted Danish sailing ship Danmark will arrive here tomorrow on its annual training cruise with 115 cadets aboard. An official welcome and reception will honor the crew.

HOUSING PROGRAM SHORT OF 1948 GOAL; REPORT REVEALS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5—(AP) An estimated 1,000,000 new dwelling units were started in 1946, Housing Expediter Frank R. Creedon announced Saturday—200,000 short of Wilson Wyatt's goal.

Creedon estimated that 665,000 dwellings were completed during the year. His predecessor, Wyatt, had set no specific goal for completions.

More Building Materials

Creedon reported sizeable increases in the output of building materials, ranging from 50 to 100 percent above the level of a year ago, give an "encouraging" outlook for 1947.

"More privately financed new permanent homes and apartments were begun during the first eleven month of 1946 than in any full year since 1928," Creedon said.

Complete figures covered only the months ended Nov. 30. They showed 946,000 dwellings begun and 584,300 completed before Wyatt's departure. He resigned a month ago in a break with President Truman over the administration's decision to drop priority controls and price limits on new houses.

Of the estimated 665,000 starts for the full year 1946, the report estimated that 450,000 wer 'new, permanent houses and apartments," the rest temporary units, trailers or remodeling jobs.

The report set no new target for 1947 to replace Wyatt's goal of 1,500,000 starts. It noticed without comment that the "most significant development" was the upheaval of December 14 which relaxed building controls and opened new-home construction to non-veterans, after Wyatt's departure.

(In his first public utterance since his resignation, Wyatt last night denounced what he called the administration's return to a "trickle" theory of housing, which he said he supposed had "gone out with Herbert Hoover." The new policy, he observed, "amounts to a confession of inability to meet the housing problem.")

Creedon's report said that "relaxation of federal controls comes at a time when virtually all critical building materials are being produced at record levels."

Shortages Still Exist

Lumber and brick no longer are scarcity items, the report said, but severe shortages still exist in hardwood flooring, millwork and some other materials. Construction cannot go ahead rapidly, it was stated, until the output of all materials is balanced.

The eleven-monh record showed 630,300 new permanent dwellings begun, 55,200 homes remodeled for additional accommodations, 41,900 trailers produced, 193,000 temporary re-used war housing units erected, and 26,000 other temporary shelters provided.

The completions totalled 584,300 of which new permanent homes and apartments number 395,800.

"New permanent units completed during November totalled 55,100, the largest number of new permanent homes completed in any month of 1946," Creedon reported.

Shipments of factory-built houses continued to lag far behind schedule totalling only 3,700 in November. The eleven-month total of pre-fabricated homes was below 35,000 as compared with an original of 250,000 for the full year.

An acute shortage of construction labor is anticipated in many areas this spring, the report went on, but some relief may be brought by the improved flow of materials which will shorten building time and make for more efficient use of the building craftsmen available.

BRIDGEND, WALES, JAN. 5-(AP)-MRS. MARGARET CHAPMAN, 23-YEAR-OLD G.I. BRIDE, SAID TODAY THAT SHE HAD BEEN NOTIFIED THAT HER HUSBAND, CHARLES EDWARD CHAPMAN OF SPRINGFIELD, O., HAD SUED HER FOR A DIVORCE AND SHE WOULD "FIGHT THE CASE TO THE BITTER END, EVEN IF I HAVE TO GO TO AMERICA TO DO IT."

MRS. CHAPMAN SAID THE SUIT ALLEGED NEGLECT AND DECLARED, "EDDY'S ACCUSATIONS ARE ENTIRELY FALSE BECAUSE I DID NOT NEGLECT HIM DURING THE 25 DAYS WE WERE TOGETHER AFTER OUR MARRIAGE."

SHE SAID THEY WERE MARRIED IN MAY, 1945, AND HAD NO CHILDREN.

"IF HE SAYS I HAVE NEGLECTED HIM, I SHALL SAY THAT HE HAS FAILED TO MAINTAIN ME SINCE HE LEFT THIS COUNTRY BECAUSE I'VE RECEIVED ONLY 15 POUNDS ($60) FROM HIM."

MRS. CHAPMAN ADDED THAT SHE WAS READY TO SAIL FOR THE UNITED STATES LAST AUGUST WHEN SHE RECEIVED TWO CABLES FROM CHAPMAN TELLING HER NOT TO SAIL AND THAT HE HAD FALLEN IN LOVE WITH ANOTHER GIRL.

NEW DELHI, JAN 5-(AP)-GEN.U AUNG SAN, CHAIRMAN OF THE BURMA EXECUTIVE COUNCIL, DECLARED TODAY THAT HE WOULD DEMAND AN IMMEDIATE INTERIM NATIONAL GOVERNMENT AND ULTIMATE COMPLETE INDEPENDENCE FOR HIS COUNTRY WHEN HE CONFERS WITH BRITISH LEADERS IN LONDON THIS MONTH.

AUNG SAN-GUEST OF PANDIT JAWAHARLAL NEHRU, HEAD OF THE INDIAN INTERIM GOVERNMENT, UNTIL HIS DEPARTURE FOR LONDON ON TUESDAY-TOLD A NEWS CONFERENCE HERE THAT BURMA WANTED COMPLETE INDEPENDENCE FROM BRITISH RULE.

HE SAID HE WOULD PRESS FOR "STRAIGHT ELECTIONS" FOR A CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY AND A CABINET AND GOVERNMENT IMMEDIATELY AFTER THE ASSEMBLY WAS CHOSEN.

"I HOPE FOR THE BEST BUT AN PREPARED FOR THE WORST," HE SAID OF HIS IMPENDING CONFERENCES IN LONDON.

THE BURMESE LEADER SAID HIS DELEGATION WAS GOING TO BRITAIN ON THE BASIS OF PRIME MINISTER ATTLEE'S DEC. 20 STATEMENT "TO DISCUSS QUESTIONS RELATING TO BURMA'S INDEPENDENCE, AS WELL AS INTERIM MEASURES TO BE PUT INTO OPERATION. X X X X THERE IS NO QUESTION OF DOMINION STATUS. COMPLETE INDEPENDENCE IS OUR DEMAND."

ASKED WHETHER HE THOUGHT THERE MIGHT A "VIOLENT" STRUGGLE FOR INDEPENDENCE IN BURMA, AUNG SAN REPLIED, "WE HAVE NO INHIBITIONS OF ANY KIND IN BURMA."

HE SAID THE ANTI-FASCIST PEOPLE'S FREEDOM LEAGUE, OF WHICH HE IS PRESIDENT, HAD DECIDED THAT IF THERE WAS NO SATISFACTORY SETTLEMENT WITH BRITAIN BY JAN. 31, ITS REPRESENTATIVES MUST WITHDRAW FROM THE BURMA EXECUTIVE COUNCIL.

"I MUST GET A SETTLEMENT," AUNG SAN EXPLAINED, "OR OTHERWISE THERE WOULD BE A DEADLOCK (IN BURMA) BEFORE JAN. 31."

POLL ON VET HOUSING NEEDS PROPOSED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 — (AP) Franklin D. Roosevlet, Jr., American Veterans Committee national housing chairman, today proposed a country-wide poll of veterans to determine their "exact" housing needs.

In a letter to National Housing Expediter Frank Creedon, Roosevelt declared that such a survey could be conducted quickly by sending a housing questionnaire to discharged veterans through selective service.

'BOLD APPROACH' ASKED IN SOLVING LABOR PROBLEMS

1947

Seeks Law That Would End 'Indefensible' Jurisdictional Walkouts.

IGNORES RENT ISSUE

AFL Head Says President Shows 'Statesmanship'; Praises His Objectives.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 — (AP) Smiling and conciliatory, Democratic President Truman today laid before the Republican 80th Congress a program to curb strikes, and asked continued high taxes.

His state of the union message, applauded frequently by the joint Congressional session, called for legislation to outlaw jurisdictional strikes, check secondary boycotts and for a commission to devise machinery for the prevention of "paralyzing" nation-wide strikes.

The message was in large part a generalized one. It renewed only in broad outline many recommendations previously made in specific form, leaving details this time to Congress.

Minimum wage, farm program, health insurance, refugee immigration and civil rights legislation were some of the issues Mr. Truman raised for Congress to consider without telling it in detail what he feels should be done. Other problems, notably the Rent Control Act expiring June 30, were not mentioned at all.

Presents Labor Program

The President asked for labor laws that would:

1. End jurisdictional strikes.

2. Prevent unions—in certain instances but not in all—from extending a labor dispute beyond the boundaries of the company where the dispute began.

3. Prevent strikes or lockouts that arise out of a conflict in interpreting an existing contract.

4. Strengthen the labor department's ability to help settle disputes.

5. Give workers more social security and better housing in order to lessen their reasons for striking.

6. Make a thorough study of the whole field of labor relations.

In the first comment from an important labor leader, William Green, president of the AFL, said the President showed "real statesmanship." He praised Mr. Truman's objectives.

But of the specific proposals to outlaw jurisdictional disputes and other practices, Green said they would "require further study."

Most labor leaders were cautious and unwilling to comment. One said privately there seemed to be some "double talk" in the message.

Hits at Strikes Peril

Mr. Truman did not mention John L. Lewis by name, but he said "national disaster" can result from "the paralyzing effects of a nation-wide strike in such industries as transportation, coal, oil, steel or communications."

He said we have been able to avoid such disaster only through the use of special war powers. He said "all those powers will soon be gone," and then he declared:

"In their place there must be created an adequate system and effective machinery in these vital fields."

He asked for a "bold approach," though consistent with preserving "the rights of the people."

He proposed the creation of a 20-man "temporary joint commission" that not only would make a long-range study but would immediately examine the problem of "how to settle or prevent" the vital nation-wide strikes and make recommendations for specific legislation by March 15.

Hints at Plan

The President did not specifically ask for compulsory arbitration in nation-wide vital strikes. But he hinted at it when he said "industrial peace cannot be achieved merely by laws directed against labor unions."

He said management as well as labor was to blame for failure to reach agreements that would have averted the big strikes of 1946.

Mr. Truman called jurisdictional strikes "indefensible". He dealt with two different kinds of jurisdictional disputes:

1. Where a minority union in a plant tries to force an employer to recognize it, despite the fact that the employer is already required by law to deal with another union. The President wants this type outlawed.

2. Where two unions quarrel over which will perform a certain job. This is the case in the Hollywood film industry. Two A.F.L. groups, the stage-hands on the one hand and the building craft unions on the other, are disputing over which shall handle movie sets. The President said in such a case "provision must be made" to determine the issue and force both sides to accept it.

Without mentioning the 20 per cent income tax cut planned by G.O.P. house leaders, Mr. Truman declared he anticipates a "substantial surplus" which should be used to reduce the debt. He urged Congress to continue until June 30, 1948, the wartime excise taxes which some legislators propose to slash immediately. They are slated for automatic reduction this coming June 30 under the proclamation which ended hostilities Dec. 31.

The president, wearing the same garb of dark coat and trousers and black four-in-hand in which he addressed the United Nations in New York, read his address from a loose-leaf notebook to the senators, representatives and cabinet members crowded into the House chamber.

His wife and daughter watched from the crowded gallery. He was cheered for two minutes when he entered at 1 p.m., and applauded as he bowed out 51 minutes later.

Seen Conciliatory

Reaction of many Republicans was that he had made an effort at conciliation, and some members of his own party called it a strong speech. All seemed to agree that it assures some labor measure quickly, although there was criticism that his labor proposals did not go far enough.

The chief executive used the labor section of his message to declare the need for social legislation—"the extension and broadening of our social security system, better housing, a comprehensive national health program, and provision for a fair minimum wage."

Except for housing, he said nothing more specific on these issues. At the last session, although the Democrats were in control, he asked in vain for compulsory health insurance and an increase in the statutory minimum wage from 40 to 60 cents an hour.

On housing, he said that a law like the Wagner-Ellender-Taft Bill which passed the Senate last session but died in the house "is urgently required."

Calls For Housing Drive

"At a minimum," he continued, it should provide for rebuilding "blighted areas," incentives for private capital to invest "billions" in big rental housing projects and construction of 500,000 units of low-rent public housing in four years.

On two issues—civil rights legislation and universal training—the president has commissions at work studying the problems. He mentioned this, and indicated recommendations on these subjects will be forthcoming after they report.

Thus, on the problem of civil rights, he omitted any mention of a fair employment practices commission, anti-lynching and anti-poll tax legislation.

But he reminded Congress that "we have recently witnessed in this country numerous attacks upon the constitutional rights of individual citizens as a result of racial and religious bigotry. Substantial segments of our people have been prevented from exercising fully their right to participate in the election of public officials, both locally and nationally."

Military Problems

Of universal military training, he said he expects the recommendations of his commission, due in March, "will be of benefit to the Congress and to me in reaching decisions on this problem."

Unification of the army and navy in a single department, another short subject, was treated in one paragraph emphasizing the economy angle. The president said he will send a separate message to Congress on the subject "in the near future."

As for the future of the draft act, due to expire March 31, Mr. Truman reported that the army cannot tell yet whether it can get along on voluntary enlistments but will make its recommendations before the deadline.

"The responsibility for maintaining our armed forces at the strength necessary for our national safety rests with the Congress," the president declared.

Still another separate message was indicated in connection with the ending of presidential war powers. Mr. Truman said he will recommend the repeal of some and the continuance of others, without giving details now, and urged Congress to consider them individually.

He noted that "nearly all wartime controls" already have been removed and said that "the operation of our industrial system depends to a greater extent on the decisions of business men, farmers, and workers." He urged that these decisions "be wisely made with genuine concern for the public welfare."

Views on Wages, Prices

Then, obviously mindfulof the current controversy over whether industry can afford to raise wages without boosting prices, and whether it should raise wages or lower er it should raise wages or lower ident added this:

"It is up to industy not only to hold the line on existing prices, but to make reductions whenever profits justify such action.

"It is up to labor to refrain from pressing for unjustified wage increases that will force increases in the price level."

Turning to the problems of the veterans, the president said he believes "that our program of benefits for veterans is now complete," except for minor adjustments. This appeared significant in view of bills already introduced to pay a bonus, higher subsistence and training grants and other benefits.

In foreign affairs, the president reported that the peace treaties for Italy, Bulgaria, Rumania and Hungary will be submitted to the senate for ratification after they are signed next month, an implied bid in advance for the senate's approval. He conceded they are not "completely satisfactory" but insisted "that they are as good as we can hope to obtain."

He urged that "we should continue to strive for an international trade system as free from obstructions as possible." Already some Republicans have been talking of halting the reciprocal tariff reduction program.

Voices Plea for DPs

The president also urged that congress "turn its attention" to the problem of admitting displaced foreigners to this country. He told the United Nations Assembly in New York he would recommend legislation easing the immigration laws for this purpose, but no specific recommendation on this was contained in the current message.

Mr. Truman observed, as he entered the chamber, that "a good many of you moved over to the left since I was here last time"—the left side facing the rostrum being the Republican side. And he opened with a new appeal for cooperation.

"On some domestic issues we may, and probably shall, disagree," he said. "That in itself is not to be feared. It is inherent in our form of government. But there are ways of disagreeing; men who differ can still work together sincerely for the common good. We shall be risking the nation's safety and destroying our opportunities for progress if we do not settle any disagreements in this spirit, without thought of partisan advantage."

State Of Union Message Outlines 5 Main Policies

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP) — Following is the text of President Truman's message today to Congress on the State of the Union:

I come before you today to report on the state of the Union and, in the words of the Constitution, to recommend such measures as I judge necessary and expedient.

I come also to welcome you as you take up your duties and to discuss with you the manner in which you and I should fulfill our obligations to the American people during the next two years.

The power to mold the future of this nation lies in our hands—yours and mine, joined together.

If in this year, and in the next, we can find the right course to take as each issue arises, and if, in spite of all difficulties, we have the courage and the resolution to take that course, then we shall achieve a state of well-being for our people without precedent in history. And if we continue to work with the other nations of the world earnestly, patiently and wisely, we can—granting a will for peace on the part of our neighbors—make a lasting peace for the world.

Must Co-operate

But if we are to realize these ends, the Congress and the President, during the next two years, must work together. It is not unusual in our history that the majority of the Congress represents a party in opposition to the President's party.

I am the twentieth President of the United States who, at some time during his term of office, has found his own party to be in the minority in one or both houses of the Congress.

I realize that on some matters the Congress and the President may have honest differences of opinion. Partisan differences, however, did not cause material disagreements as to the conduct of the war. Nor, in the conduct of our international relations, during and since the war, have such partisan differences been material.

On some domestic issues we may, and probably shall, disagree. That in itself is not to be feared. It is inherent in our form of government. But there are ways of disagreeing; men who differ can still work together sincerely for the common good.

We shall be risking the nation's safety and destroying our opportunities for progress if we do not settle any disagreements in this spirit, without thought of partisan advantage.

General Domestic Economy

As the year 1947 begins, the state of our national economy presents great opportunities for all. We have virtually full employment. Our national production of goods and services is 50 per cent higher than in any year prior to the war emergency. The national income in 1946 was higher than in any peacetime year. Our food production is greater than it has ever been.

During the last five years our productive facilities have been expanded in almost every field. The American standard of living is higher now than ever before, and when the housing shortage can be overcome, it will be even higher.

During the past few months we have removed at a rapid rate the emergency controls that the Federal Government had to exercise during the war. The remaining controls will be retained only so long as they are needed to protect the public. Private enterprise must be given the greatest possible freedom to continue the expansion of our economy.

End Of Hostilities

In my proclamation of December 31, 1946, I announced the termination of hostilities. This automatically ended certain temporary legislation and certain executive powers.

Two groups of temporary laws still remain: the first are those which congressional mandate are to last during the "emergency"; the second are those which are to continue until the "termination of the war."

I shall submit to the Congress recommendations for the repeal of certain of the statues which by their terms continue for the duration of the "emergency." I shall at the same time recommend that others within this classification be extended until the state of war has been ended by treaty or by legislative action.

Consideration Urged

As to those statutes which continue until the state of war has been terminated, I urge that the Congress promptly consider each statute individually, and repeal such emergency legislation where advisable.

Now that nearly all wartime controls have been removed, the operation of our industrial system depends to a greater extent on the decisions of business men, farmers and workers. These decisions must be wisely made with genuine concern for the public welfare. The welfare of business men, farmers and workers depends upon the economic well-being of those who buy their products.

An important present source of danger to our economy is the possibility that prices might be raised to such an extent that the consuming public could not purchase the tremendous volume of goods and services which will be produced in 1947.

Prices Vs. Wages

We all know that recent price increases have denied to many of our workers much of the value of recent wage increases. Farmers have found that a large part of their increased income has been absorbed by increased prices. While some of our people have received raises in income which exceed price increases, the great majority have not.

Those persons who live on modest fixed incomes—retired persons living on pensions, for example—and workers whose incomes are relatively inflexible—such as teachers and other civil servants—have suffered hardship.

In the effort to bring about a sound and equitable price structure each group of our population has its own responsibilities.

Up To Industry

It is up to industry not only to hold the line on existing prices, but to make reductions whenever profits justify such action.

It is up to labor to refrain from pressing for unjustified wage increases that will force increases in the price level.

And it is up to Government to do everything in its power to encourage high-volume production, for that is what makes possible good wages, low prices and reasonable profits.

In a few days there will be submitted to the Congress the economic report of the President, and also the budget message. Those messages will contain many recommendations.

Today I shall outline five major economic policies which I believe the Government should pursue during 1947.

Two Purposes

These policies are designed to meet our immediate needs and, at the same time, to provide for the long-range welfare of our free enterprise system:

First—Promotion of greater harmony between labor and management.

Second—Restriction of monopoly and unfair business practices, assistance to small business and the promotion of the free competitive system of private enterprise.

Third—Continuation of an aggressive program of home construction.

Fourth—The balancing of the budget in the next fiascal year and achieving of a substantial surplus to be applied to the reduction of the public debt.

Fifth—Protection of a fair level of return to farmers in postwar agriculture.

Labor-Management Relations

The year just past—like the year after the first World War — was marred by labor-management strife.

Despite this outbreak of economic warfare in 1946, we are today producing goods and services in record volume. Nevertheless, it is essential to improve the methods for reaching agreement between labor and management and to reduce the number of strikes and lockouts.

We must not, however, adopt punitive legislation. We must not, in order to punish a few labor leaders, pass vindictive laws which will restrict the proper rights of the rank and file of labor. We must not, under the stress of emotion, endanger our American freedoms by taking ill-considered action which will lead to results not anticipated or desired.

We must remember, in reviewing the record of disputes in 1946, that management shares with labor the responsibility for failure to reach agreements which would have averted strikes. For that reason, we must realize that industrial peace cannot be achieved merely by laws directed against labor unions.

During the last decade and a half, we have established a national labor policy in this country based upon free collective bargaining as the process for determining wages and working conditions.

This is still the national policy.

It should continue to be the national policy.

Not All Have Learned

But as yet, not all of us have learned what it means to bargain freely and fairly. Nor have all of us learned to carry the mutual responsibilities that accompany the right to bargain.

There have been abuses and harmful practices which limit the effectiveness of our system of collective bargaining. Furthermore, we have lacked sufficient governmental machinery to aid labor and management in resolving differences.

Certain labor-management problems need attention at once and certain others, by reason of their complexity, need exhaustive investigation and study.

We should enact legislation to correct certain abuses and to provide additional governmental assistance in bargaining. But we should also concern ourselves with the basic causes of labor-management difficulties.

In the light of these considerations, I propose to you and urge your co-operation in effecting the following four-point program to reduce industrial strife:

Point number one is the early enactment of legislation to prevent certain unjustifiable practices.

First, under this point, are jurisdictional strikes. In such strikes the public and the employer are innocent bystanders who are injured by a collision between rival unions. This type of dispute hurts production, industry, and the public—and labor itself. I consider jurisdictional strikes indefensible.

The National Labor Relations Act provides procedures for determining which union represents the employés of a particular employer. In some jurisdictional disputes, however, minority unions strike to compel employers to deal with them despite a legal duty to bargain with the majority union. Strikes to compel an employer to violate the law are inexcusable. Legislation to prevent such strikes is clearly desirable.

Jurisdictional Strike

Another form of interunion disagreement is the jurisdictional strike involving the question of which labor union is entitled to perform a particular task. When rival unions are unable to settle such disputes themselves, provision must be made for peaceful and binding determination of the issues.

A second unjustifiable practice is the secondary boycott, when used to further jurisdictional disputes or to compel employers to violate the National Labor Relations Act.

Not all secondary boycotts are unjustified. We must judge them on the basis of their objectives. For example, boycotts intended to protest wage rates and working conditions should be distinguished from those in furtherance of jurisdictional disputes. The structure of industry sometimes requires unions, as a matter of self-preservation, to extend the conflict beyond a particular employer.

There should be no blanket prohibitian against boycotts. The appropriate goal is legislation which prohibits secondary boycotts in pursuance of unjustifiable objectives, but does not impair the union's right to preserve its own existence and the gains made in genuine collective bargaining.

A third practice that should be corrected is the use of economic force, by either labor or management, to decide issues arising out of the interpretation of existing contracts.

Collective bargaining agreements, like other contracts, should be faithfully adhered to by both parties. In the most enlightened union-management relationships, disputes over the interpretation of contract terms are settled peacefully by negotiation or arbitration.

Machinery Needed

Legislation should be enacted to provide machinery whereby unsettled disputes concerning the interpretation of an existing agreement may be referred by either party to final and binding arbitration.

Point No. 2 is the extension of the facilities within the Department of Labor for assisting collective bargaining.

One of our difficulties in avoiding labor strife arises from a lack of order in the collective-bargaining process. The parties often do not have a clear understanding of their responsibility for settling disputes through their own negotiations.

We constantly see instances where labor or management resorts to economic force without exhausting the possibilities for agreement through the bargaining process. Neither the parties nor the Government have a definite yardstick for determining when and how Government assistance should be invoked.

There is need for integrated governmental machinery to provide the successive steps of mediation, voluntary arbitration, and—ultimately in appropriate cases—ascertainment of the facts of the dispute and the reporting of them to the public. Such machinery would facilitate and expedite the settlement of disputes.

Point No. 3 is the broadening of our program of social legislation to alleviate the causes of workers' insecurity.

In June 11, 1946, in my message vetoing the Case bill, I made a comprehensive statement of my views concerning labor-management relations. I said then, and I repeat now, that the solution of labor-management difficulties is to be found not only in legislation dealing directly with labor relation but also in a program designed to remove the causes of insecurity felt by many workers in our industrial society.

Congress's Part

In this connection, for example, the Congress should consider the extension and broadening of our social security system, better housing, a comprehensive national health program and provision for a fair minimum wage.

Point No. 4 is the appointment of a temporary joint commission to inquire into the entire field of labor-management relations.

I recommend that the Congress provide for the appointment of a temporary joint commission to undertake this broad study.

The President, the Congress, and management and labor have a continuing responsibility to co-operate in seeking and finding the solution of these problems. I therefore recommend that the commission be composed as follows: Twelve to be chosen by the Congress from the members of both parties in the House and the Senate, and eight representing the public, management and labor, to be appointed by the President.

The commission should be charged with investigating and making recommendations upon certain major subjects, among others:

First, the special and unique problem of nation-wide strikes in vital industries affecting the public interest. In particular, the commission should examine into the question of how to settle or prevent such strikes without endangering our general democratic freedoms.

Upon a proper solution of this problem may depend the whole industrial future of the United States. The paralyzing effects of a nation-wide strike in such industries as transportation, coal, oil, steel or communications can result in national disaster. We have been able to avoid such disaster, in recent years, only by the use of extraordinary war powers. All those powers will soon be gone.

Study Needed

In their place there must be created an adequate system and effective machinery in these vital fields. This problem will require careful study and a bold approach, but an approach consistent with the preservation of the rights of our people. The need is pressing. The commission should give this its earliest attention.

Second, the best methods and procedures for carrying out the collective bargaining process. This should include the responsibilities of labor and management to negotiate freely and fairly with each other, and to refrain from strikes or lockouts until all possibilities of negotiation have been exhausted.

Third, the underlying causes of labor-management disputes.

Some of the subjects presented here for investigation involve long-range study. Others can be considered immediately by the commission and its recommendations can be submitted to the Congress in the near future.

I recommend that this commission make its first report, including specific legislative recommendations, not later than March 15, 1947.

Private Enterprise

The second major policy I desire to lay before you has to do with the growing concentration of economic power and the threat to free competition in private enterprise. In 1941, the temporary National Economic Committee completed a comprehensive investigation into the workings of the national economy.

The committee's study showed that, despite half a century of anti-trust law enforcement, one of the gravest threats to our welfare lay in the increasing concentration of power in the hands of a small number of giant organizations.

During the war, this long-standing tendency toward economic concentration was accelerated. As a consequence, we now find that to a greater extent than ever before whole industries are dominated by one or a few large organizations which can restrict production in the interest of higher profits and thus reduce employment and purchasing power.

Against Trusts

In an effort to assure full opportunity and free competition to business we will vigorously enforce the anti-trust laws. There is much the Congress can do to co-operate and assist in this program.

To strengthen and enforce the laws that regulate business practices is not enough. Enforcement must be supplemented by positive measures of aid to new enterprises. Government assistance, research programs and credit powers should be designed and used to promote the growth of new firms and new industries.

Assistance to small business is particularly important at this time when thousands of veterans who are potential business and industrial leaders are beginning their careers.

We should also give special attention to the decentralization of industry and the development of areas that are now underindustrialized.

Housing

The third major policy is also of great importance to the national economy—an aggressive program to encourage home construction. The first Federal program to relive the veterans' housing shortage was announced in February, 1946.

In 1946, one million family housing units have been put under construction and more than 665,000 units have already been completed. The rate of expansion in construction has broken all records.

In the coming year the number of dwelling units built will approach, if not surpass, the top construction year of 1926. The primary responsibility to deliver housing at reasonable prices that veterans can afford rests with private industry and labor.

The Government will continue to expedite the flow of key building materials, to limit nonresidential construction and to give financial support where it will do the most good. Measures to stimulate rental housing and new ypes of housing construction will receive special emphasis.

Legislation Needed

To reach our long-range goal of adequate housing for all our people, comprehensive housing legislation is urgently required, similar to the nonpartisan bill passed by the Senate last year.

At a minimum, such legislation should open the way for rebuilding the blighted areas of our cities and should establish positive incentives for the investment of billions of dollars of private capital in large-scale rental housing projects.

It should provide for the improvement of housing in rural areas and for the construction, over a four-year period, of half a million units of public low-rental housing.

It should authorize a single peacetime Federal Housing Agency to assure efficient use of our resources on the vast housing front.

Fiscal Affairs

The fourth major policy has to do with balancing the budget. In a prosperous period, such as the present one, the budget of the Federal Government should be balanced. Prudent management of public finance requires that we begin the process of reducing the debt. The budget which I shall submit to you this week has a small margin of surplus.

In the budget message, I am making recommendations which, if accepted, will result in a substantially larger surplus which should be applied to debt retirement. One of these recommendations is that the Congress take early action to continue throughout the next fiscal year the war-excise tax rates which, under the present law, will expire on June 30, 1947.

Expenditures relating to the war are still high. Considerable sums are required to alleviate world famine and suffering. Aid to veterans will continue at a peak level. The world situation is such that large military expenditures are required. Interest on the public debt and certain other costs are irreducible. For these reasons I have had to practice stringent economy in preparing the budget; and I hope that the Congress will co-operate in this program of economy.

Agriculture

The fifty major policy has to do with the welfare of our farm population.

Production of food reached record heights in 1946. Much of our tremendous grain crop can readily be sold abroad and thus will become no threat in our domestic markets. But in the next few years American agriculture can face the same dangers it did after World War I.

In the early '20's the nation failed to maintain outlets for the new productive capacity of our agricultural plant. It failed to provide means to protect the farmer while he adjusted his acreage to peacetime demands.

Must Meet Problems

The result we all remember too well. Farm production stayed up while demand and prices fell, in contrast with industry, where prices stayed up and output declined. Farm surpluses piled up and disaster followed.

We must make sure of meeting the problems which we failed to meet after the First World War. Present laws give considerable stability to farm prices for 1947 and 1948, and these two years must be utilized to maintain and develop markets for our great productive power.

The purpose of these laws was to permit an orderly transition from war to peace. The Government plan of support prices was not designed to absorb, at great cost, the unlimited surpluses of a highly productive agriculture.

We must not wait until the guarantees expire to set the stage for permanent farm welfare.

The farmer is entitled to a fair income.

Ways can be found to utilize his new skills and better practices, to expand his markets at home and abroad, and to carry out the objectives of a balanced pattern of peacetime production without either undue sacrifice by farm people or undue expense to the Government.

Health And General Welfare

Of all our national resources, none is of more basic value than the health of our people. Over a year ago I presented to the Congress my views on a national health program. The Congress acted on several of the recommendations in this program—mental health, the health of mother and children, and hospital construction.

I urge this Congress to complete the work begun last year and to enact the most important recommendation of the program—to provide adequate medical care to all who need it, not as charity but on the basis of payments made by the beneficiaries of the program.

One administrative change would help greatly to further our national program in the fields of health, education and welfare. I again recommend the establishment of a well-integrated Department of Welfare.

Veterans

Fourteen million World War II service men have returned to civilian life. The great majority have found their places as citizens of their communities and their nation. It is a tribute to the fiber of our service men and the flexibility of our economy that these adjustments have been made so rapidly and so successfully.

More than two million of these veterans are attending schools or acquiring job skills through the financial assistance of the Federal Government. Thousands of sick and wounded veterans are daily receiving the best of medical and hospital care. Half a million have obtained loans, with Government guarantees, to purchase homes or farms or to embark upon new businesses.

Compensation is being paid in almost two million cases for disabilities or death. More than three million are continuing to maintain their low-cost national service life insurance policies. Almost seven million veterans have been aided by unemployment and self-employment allowances.

Exclusive of mustering-out payments and terminal-leave pay, the program for veterans of all wars is costing over $7,000,000,000 a year—one fifth of our total Federal budget. This is the most far-reaching and complete veterans' program ever conceived by any nation.

Except for minor adjustments, I believe that our program of benefits for veterans is now complete. In the long run, the success of the program will not be measured by the number of veterans obtaining financial aid or by the number of dollars we spend.

History will judge us not by the money we spend but by the further contribution we enable our veterans to make to their country. In considering any additional legislation, that must be our criterion.

Civil Rights

We have recently witnessed in this country numerous attacks upon the constitutional rights of individual citizens as a result of racial and religious bigotry.

Substantial segments of our people have been prevented from exercising fully their right to participate in the election of public officials, both locally and nationally. Freedom to engage in lawful callings has been denied.

The will to fight these crimes should be in the heart of every one of us.

For the Federal Government that fight is now being carried on by the Department of Justice to the full extent of the powers that have been conferred upon it.

While the Constitution withholds from the Federal Government the major task of preserving the peace in the several states, I am not convinced that present legislation reaches the limit of Federal power to protect the civil rights of its citizens.

I have, therefore, by executive order, established the President's Committee on Civil Rights to study and report on the whole problem of Federally secured civil rights, with a view to making recommendations to the Congress.

Natural Resources

In our responsibility to promote the general welfare of the people, we have always to consider the natural resources of our country. They are the foundation of our life.

In the development of the great river systems of America there is the major opportunity of our generation to contribute to the increase of the national wealth. This program is already well along; it should be pushed with full vigor.

I must advise the Congress that we are rapidly becoming a "have-not" nation as to many of our minerals. The economic progress and the security of our country depend upon an expanding return of mineral discovery and upon improved methods of recovery. The Federal Government must do its part to meet this need.

Foreign Affairs

Progress in reaching our domestic goals in closely related to our conduct of foreign affairs. All that I have said about maintaining a sound and prosperous economy and improving the welfare of our people has greater meaning because of the world leadership of the United States.

What we do, or fail to do, at home affects not only ourselves but millions throughout the world. If we are to fulfill our responsibilities to ourselves and to other peoples, we must make sure that the United States is sound economically, socially and politically. Only then will we be able to help bring about the elements of peace in other countries—political stability, economic advancement and social progress.

Peace treaties for Italy, Bulgaria, Romania and Hungary have finally been prepared. Following the signing of these treaties next month in Paris, they will be submitted to the Senate for ratification. This Government does not regard the treaties as completely satisfactory.

Whatever their defects, however, I am convinced that they are as good as we can hope to obtain by agreement among the principal wartime Allies. Further dispute and delay would gravely jeopardize political stability in the countries concerned for many years.

During the long months of debate on these treaties, we have made it clear to all nations that the United States will not consent to settlements at the expense of principles we regard as vital to a just and enduring peace.

No Isolationism

We have made it equally clear that we will not retreat to isolationism. Our policies will be the same during the forthcoming negotiations in Moscow on the German and Austrian treaties, and during future conferences on the Japanese treaty.

The delay in arriving at the first peace settlements is due partly to the difficulty of reaching agreement with the Soviet Union on the terms of settlement.

Whatever differences there may have been between us and the Soviet Union, however, should not be allowed to obscure the fact that the basic interests of both nations lie in the early making of a peace under which the people of all countries may return, as free men and women, to the essential tasks of production and reconstruction. The major concern of each of us should be the promotion of collective security, not the advancement of individual security.

Our policy toward the Soviet Union is guided by the same principles which determine our policies toward all nations. We seek only to uphold the principles of international justice which have been embodied in the Charter of the United Nations.

We must now get on with the peace settlements. The occupying powers should recognize the independence of Austria and withdraw their troops.

The Germans and the Japanese cannot be left in doubt and fear as to their future; they must know their national boundaries, their resources, and what reparations they must pay. Without trying to manage their internal affairs, we can insure that those countries do not rearm.

International Relief

The United States can be proud of its part in caring for peoples reduced to want by the ravages of war, and in aiding nations to restore their national economies. We have shipped more supplies to the hungry peoples of the world since the end of the war than all other countries combined.

See next col, over

However, insofar as admitting displaced persons is concerned, I do not feel that the United States has done its part. Only about 5,000 of them have entered this country since May, 1946. The fact is that the executive agencies are now doing all that is reasonably possible under the limitation of existing law and established quotas. Congressional assistance in the form of new legislation is needed. I urge the Congress to turn its attention to this world problem, in an effort to find ways whereby we can fulfill our responsibilities to these thousands of homeless and suffering refugees of all faiths.

International Trade

World economic co-operation is essential to world political co-operation. We have made a good start on economic co-operation through the International Bank, the International Monetary Fund, and the Export-Import Bank. We must now take other steps for the reconstruction of world trade and we should continue to strive for an international trade system as free from obstructions as possible.

Atomic Energy

The United States has taken the lead in the endeavor to put atomic energy under effective international control. We seek no monopoly for ourselves or for any group of nations. We ask only that there be safeguards sufficient to insure that no nation will be able to use this power for military purposes.

So long as all governments are not agreed on means of international control of atomic energy, the shadow of fear will obscure the bright prospects for the peaceful use of this enormous power.

In accordance with the Atomic Energy Act of 1946, the commission established under the law is assuming full jurisdiction over our domestic atomic energy enterprise. The program of the commission will, of course, be worked out in close collaboration with the military services in conformity with the wish of the Congress, but it is my fervent hope that the military significance of atomic energy will steadily decline.

We look to the commission to foster the development of atomic energy for industrial use and scientific and medical research. In the vigorous and effective development of peaceful uses of atomic energy rests our hope that this new force may ultimately be turned into a blessing for all nations.

Military Policy

In 1946, the Army and Navy completed the demobilization of their wartime forces. They are now maintaining the forces which we need for national defense and to fulfill our international obligations.

We live in a world in which strength on the part of peace-loving nations is still the greatest deterent to aggression. World stability can be destroyed when nations with great responsibilities neglect to maintain the means of discharging those responsibilities.

This is an age when unforeseen attack could come with unprecedented speed. We must be strong enough to defeat, and thus to forestall, any such attack. In our steady progress toward a more rational world order, the need for large armed forces is progressively declining; but the stabilizing force of American military strength must not be weakened until our hopes are fully realized.

When a system of collective security under the United Nations has been established, we shall be willing to lead in collective disarmament, but, until such a system becomes a reality, we must not again allow our weakness to invite attack.

For these reasons, we need well-equipped, well-trained armed forces and we must be able to mobilize rapidly our resources in men and material for our own defense, should the need arise.

The Army will be reduced to 1,070,000 officers and men by July 1, 1947. Half of the Army will be used for occupation duties abroad and most of the remainder will be employed at home in the support of these overseas forces.

The Navy is supporting the occupation troops in Europe and in the Far East. Its fundamental mission—to support our national interests wherever required—is unchanged. The Navy, including the Marine Corps, will average 571,000 officers and men during the fiscal year 1948.

Force Is Small

We are encountering serious difficulties in maintaining our forces at even these reduced levels. Occupation troops are barely sufficient to carry out the duties which our foreign policy requires.

Our forces at home are at a point where further reduction is impracticable. We should like an Army and a Navy composed entirely of long-term volunteers, but in spite of liberal inducements the basic needs of the Army are not now being met by voluntary enlistments.

The War Department has advised me that it is unable to make an accurate forecast at the present time as to whether it will be possible to maintain the strength of the Army by relying exclusively on volunteers. The situation will be much clearer in a few weeks when the results of the campaign for volunteers are known.

The War Department will make its recommendation as to the need for the extension of selective service in sufficient time to enable the Congress to take action prior to the expiration of the present law on March 31. The responsibility for maintaining our armed forces at the strength necessary for our national safety rests with the Congress.

The development of a trained citizen reserve is also vital to our national security. This can best be accomplished through universal training.

I have appointed an advisory commission on universal training to study the various plans for a training program and I expect that the recommendations of the commission will be of benefit to the Congress and to me in reaching decisions on this problem.

Cost Is High

The cost of the military establishment is substantial. There is one certain way by which we can cut costs and at the same time enhance our national security. That is by the establishment of a single department of national defense. I shall communcaite with the Congress in the near future with reference to the establishment of a single department of national defense.

National security does not consist only of an army, a navy and an air force.

It rests on a much broader base. It depends on a sound economy of prices and wages, on a prosperous agriculture, on satisfied and productive workers, on a competitive private enterprise free from monopolistic repression, on continued industrial harmony and production, on civil liberties and human freedoms—on all the forces which create in our men and women a strong moral fiber and spiritual stamina.

But we have a higher duty and a greater responsibility than the attainment of natural security. Our goal is collective security for all mankind.

If we can work in a spirit of understanding and mutual respect, we can fulfill this solemn obligation which rests upon us.

The spirit of the American people can set the course of world history. If we maintain and strengthen our cherished ideals, and if we share our great bounty with war-stricken people over the world, then the faith of our citizens in freedom and democracy will spread over the whole earth and free men everywhere will share our devotion to these ideals.

Let us have the will and the patience to do this job together.

May the Lord strengthen us in our faith.

May He give us wisdom to lead the peoples of the world in His ways of peace.

Labor Proposals Called Weak

1947

Lawmakers Welcome Truman Program as Start in Right Direction, but Inadequate.

Washington, Jan. 6 (A. P.).—Congressmen generally interpreted President Truman's message today as a big boost for the prospect of getting new labor laws on the statute books soon.

Long before Congress convened, Republicans were getting set to pass new laws, but there was a question whether they might run into a veto at the White House. Many comments were to the effect that Mr. Truman's message had reduced that possibility, although some Republicans termed his proposals "inadequate."

Senator Taft (R.-Ohio), who will serve as chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, commented to reporters that the President "apparently indorses about half of the Case bill and doesn't rule the rest out." That anti-strike legislation, named for Representative Case (R.-S. D.), was vetoed last year by Mr. Truman.

In comment on the President's message, Case said: "We offered him some of those (labor objectives) last spring in the Case bill and he turned them down. I am glad to see that he is now moving in that direction."

Hoffman Assails Proposals.

Similarly, Representative Smith (D.-Va.) said the President "is going further on labor legislation than he ever has before," adding: "Of course, I propose to go much further than he does."

But Representative Hoffman (R.-Mich.) called the proposals "grossly inadequate."

Representative Landis (R.-Ind.) said: "The President has failed to deal adequately with the main issue, which is the settling of the big nationwide strikes that hurt the whole country."

Senator Ferguson (R.-Mich.), said that much of the labor legislation recommended by the President had been sent to him in the past by Congress. "I agree that we should go into the overall field of labor," he said, "but I have discovered that the appointment of commissions is only a stalling process which gets you nowhere. Congress itself should study the situation." He said something must be done immediately to settle the portal-to-portal pay issue, so that companies can proceed with advance plans.

Senator Bridges (R.-N. H.) termed the President's labor program "too general—not specific enough for attacking the fundamentals underlying the entire scene." He added that he thought the same criticism applied to the whole speech.

Taft for Excise Tax Study.

On another angle of the address Senator Taft said he thought Congress should study excise taxes carefully before passing on their continuation. He said he would be inclined, at present, to support continuation of the liquor tax at $9 a gallon, rather than permitting it to drop to $6. He said Congress should make its own study of other luxury taxes, now slated to decline or go off entirely June 30.

Representative Vorys (R.-Ohio) said Mr. Truman's discussion of foreign affairs "smacked of peace at any price." "I don't think that's the way to get a just and lasting peace," he added. "Unless and until we can arrive at a just and lasting peace with the Soviets, we're not going to have peace."

Some other comment was as follows:

Representative Hope (R.-Kan.)—"I am in entire harmony with Mr. Truman's desire to expand domestic and foreign markets to absorb this country's farm output. That's the direction I think we ought to go and that's the way I expect to shape my program."

Representative Taber (R.-N. Y.), chairman of the House Appropriations Committee—"The President's comments on the budget are wabbly. He doesn't say a great deal about it, but from what's there I can see he is not cutting expenditures far enough. There's another thing that some people don't seem to Mich.)—"At first hearing, Mr. Truman's message seemed constructive. It should be given consideration at the earliest opportunity. But while we may not all be able to agree with everything, it is objective."

Senator Saltonstall (R.-Mass.)—"If the President means what he says, as I am sure that he does, it will make very necessary the co-operation and working together of the Executive and Congress for the welfare of the whole country. I hope, personally, that this will be carried out."

MESSAGE WINS WIDE FAVOR

Republicans Find Little With Which To Take Issue

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—Republicans generally considered President Truman's message today a conciliatory one, applauded the spirit of co-operation and found little with which to take issue.

Of the criticism, most was centered on the labor proposals. Many Republicans thought Mr. Truman did not go far enough, and some Democrats thought so, too.

Here is a cross-section of the congressional comment:

SENATOR VANDENBERG (R., Mich.), Presiding Officer of the Senate—It was a very constructive speech. It ought to open the way for helpful legislative co-operation.

SPEAKER MARTIN (R., Mass.)—We shall study the program in the same fine co-operative spirit in which it was presented.

Halleck-Rayburn United

REPRESENTATIVE HALLECK, OF INDIANA, House Republican Leader—I think that Sam Rayburn on his side and I upon my side join in expressing to the President our firm intention of co-operating for the welfare of our beloved country.

REPRESENTATIVE RAYBURN, of Texas, House Democratic Leader—The President made a courageous and statesmanlike statement throughout.

REPRESENTATIVE DIRKSEN (R., Ill.)—The President made a frank, diligent and earnest effort to secure the co-operation of Congress.

Taft Has One Doubt

SENATOR TAFT (R., Ohio)—The President apparently indorses about half of our labor bill and does not rule out the other half, so there apparently is little difference between his recommendations and the proposals we made last year. I am not too certain about the suggested labor commission.

SENATOR BRICKER (R., Ohio)—He anticipated the Republican program. There were a number of constructive and helpful things suggested. Some were controversial. Most of his labor recommendations were in the bill he vetoed last year, so this gives indications that he won't veto it this year. The best thing is his offer of co-operation with the Republicans. I am sure that offer will be met by the majority.

REPRESENTATIVE CASE (R., S.D.)—He didn't get very much farther in his labor objectives than he did a year ago. I am inclined to agree with his objectives, but there are other things in that field equally important and the need for them is equally clear.

Good Speech, Curtis Says

REPRESENTATIVE CURTIS (R., Neb.)—It was a good speech. There will be disagreement on some issues, such as the plan for a national health program, but it will be an honest disagreement and the public should have both sides of such issues fully discussed.

SENATOR STEWART (D., Tenn.)—A very well-balanced speech except I don't like the idea of moving displaced persons to this country in large numbers.

SENATOR WILEY (R., Wis.)—It was very constructive and very clear. If the spirit of the speech is followed, there will be more co-operation than most folks anticipate.

SENATOR FULBRIGHT (D., Ark.)—It was very good. He covered everything thoroughly. It is a sound document.

Barkley Has Only Praise

SENATOR BARKLEY (D., Ky.), Minority Leader—It was a very level-headed, constructive message well delivered.

SENATOR REED (R., Kan.)—On the whole, it was a very sound message. Some parts of it I agree with.

SENATOR BUCK (R., Del.)—It was a good speech. He ought to have put some of those recommendations into effect when the Democrats had control of Congress.

REPRESENTATIVE VORYS (R., Ohio)—The speech was as good as possible considering the fix he is in. I oppose the proposed labor commission which would give the Democrats fourteen of the twenty members. I was a little dismayed at his ideas on foreign problems. He apparently is saying that the prospective treaties are no good but the best that can be had—in other words, peace at any price.

Another Republican Agrees

REPRESENTATIVE KIRWAN (D., Ohio)—It was a very good speech. I agree with the President that we shouldn't penalize workers for actions of poor union leaders.

REPRESENTATIVE CLARENCE BROWN (R., Ohio)—Some of the things the President said anyone can agree with; others merely suggest continuance of socialistic ideas advanced previously. The President did not go far enough on labor.

REPRESENTATIVE BENDER (R., Ohio)—The President's message offers hope that we shall achieve the objectives of the Republican party as they were presented in the last campaign and approved by the nation. Mr. Truman has accepted the Republican viewpoint on many controversial issues.

REPRESENTATIVE EATON (R., N.J.)—He only touched the fringe of the labor-management problem. We can't settle that one by sprinkling rose water on it.

REPRESENTATIVE J. PARNELL THOMAS (R., N.J.)—I thought it was a fine speech, but he left a lot out.

REPRESENTATIVE HARTLEY (R., N.J.)—He left a lot open on labor. While he was discussing monopolies, I noticed he avoided any discussion of strikes, he avoided any mention of the right of any man to go to his job. The President's speech, so far as labor is concerned, was far from punitive—it was puny.

REPRESENTATIVE SCHWABE (R., Okla.)—Put side by side with the President's message in September, 1945, we see that the Chief Executive's policy remains unchanged.

understand. That is unless we give some tax relief business is going to be stifled."

Representative McConnell Jr. (R.-Pa.) — "The President's proposals are far from an adequate program. They are fragmentary and constitute nothing but a rehash of some things he has said before with a few additional matters added."

'Doesn't Go Far Enough.'

Representative Cox (D.-Ga.)—"The President starts out in the right direction on labor but he doesn't go far enough."

Representative Michener (R.-

House Gets Excise-Cut Bill As President Asks Extension

1947

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—A bill to end immediately the special war-time excise taxes—estimated at $1,500,000,000 a year—was rushed before Congress today even as President Truman urged a year's extension of these levies.

Representative O'Toole (D., N.Y.) introduced the measure to roll back the excise levies, and a strong Republican move was afoot for similar action.

Representative Knutson (R., Minn.), chairman of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, said the excise subject would get quick consideration.

These are war taxes on liquor, telephone bills, furs, luggage, cosmetics and some other so-called "luxury items." As the law now stands, the taxes will drop back July 1 to prewar rates.

$3 Liquor Tax Included

The liquor tax, for instance, will slide from $9 to $6 a gallon. That on furs from twenty per cent to ten per cent.

Instead of letting them end July 1, Mr. Truman asked their continuance for twelve months after that. Congress members who want to end them now say they interfere with business.

The Administration vs. Congress fight on these taxes developed as Mr. Truman sidestepped direct comment on Republican proposals to cut individual income taxes by $3,500,000,000 this year—an overall reduction of twenty per cent.

His failure to mention income taxes led to surmise by some congressmen that he is opposed to the proposed cuts. Mr. Truman is expected to speak his mind on that in his economic or his budget message, to be sent to Congress later this week.

Some GOP Concurrence

Some Republican leaders indicated an inclination to go along with the President part way on the excise taxes.

Senator Taft, of Ohio, for one, agreed that it might be wise to hold the liquor tax at $9 instead of letting it drop July 1 to $6, but he commented that the remainder of the excise list "must be considered carefully."

The liquor levy brings in about $2,500,000,000 annually, and a $3 reduction would mean a revenue loss of over $800,000,000 a year.

Although Mr. Truman was silent on the GOP proposal to shear 1947 personal income taxes, he hammered hard on arguments for a balanced budget and debt retirement.

Representative Cannon (D., Mo.), retiring Democratic Appropriations Committee chairman who has proposed a minimum $500,000,000-a-year payment on the debt, commented:

"It is significant that the President did not recommend a reduction in taxes on corporations and big businesses and that he insisted on a balanced budget and reduction of the national debt."

Representative Taber (R., N.Y.), chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, commented on the President's recommendations

Truman's Plans And Republican Program Differ

Major Parts of President's Proposals Are Compared With Views in Congress

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP).—Here is a comparison of the major parts of the program outlined by President Truman today with Republican proposals:

LABOR

Truman—Proposed ban on jurisdictional strikes and "unjustified" secondary boycotts, arbitration of disputes over interpretation of contracts, and commission to report by March 15 on any other necessary legislation.

Republicans—Senate group offers bill creating mediation board with power to delay strikes sixty days, requiring union financial reports, banning jurisdictional strikes, eliminating foremen's unions, and broadening the right to sue unions on contracts. Promises action later on bills to change the Wagner act and outlaw the closed shop.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Truman—Asked Senate to ratify treaties with Italy, Bulgaria, Romania and Hungary as the best "we can hope to obtain."

Republicans—Indicate general approval of treaties, following lead of Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan.

MILITARY

Truman—Called for universal training and unification of armed services, but said continuation of draft still under study.

Republicans—No party policy, but they gave most applause when Mr. Truman said "we must not again allow our weakness to invite attack."

TAXES

Truman—Urged continuation of war excise tax rates through June 30, 1948.

Republicans—House group plans 20 per cent income tax reduction and urges cutting back some excises now instead of waiting until next June 30 when automatic reductions are due.

HOUSING

Truman — Urged "comprehensive" legislation similar to Wagner-Ellender-Taft measure which died in House last year.

Republicans—No formal program, but Chairman Wolcott, Michigan, of House Banking Committee says he favors only portions of Wagner-Ellender-Taft bill, wants "no socialization of housing."

HEALTH-WELFARE

Truman—Recommended medical program based on payments made by beneficiaries; urged Cabinet Department of Welfare.

Republicans—Senate group preparing bill for Federal aid to states, based on voluntary contributions, for medical care and hospitalization.

CIVIL RIGHTS

Truman—Appointed commission to study question, since he was "not convinced that present legislation reaches the limit of Federal power to protect the civil rights of its citizens."

Republicans — Senate group studying anti-poll tax, anti-lynching and F. E. P. C. legislation.

DISPLACED PERSONS

Truman — Asked Congress to "find ways whereby we can fulfill our responsibility to these thousands of homeless and suffering refugees."

Republicans—Senate group's report admonishes Congress to go slow in making any changes in immigration laws.

GREEN BACKS TRUMAN TALK

Lewis And Murray Make No Immediate Comment

Congressional comment on President Truman's message is generally favorable.....Page 9

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—William Green, president of the AFL, said tonight that the objectives outlined in President Truman's message to Congress "should be endorsed by all the American people."

Green's statement added, however, that "two big questions" confront organized labor.

"The first is whether Congress will see fit to enact it as it stands and as a whole, or whether the lawmakers will reject the constructive recommendations and limit their actions to the passage of restrictive legislation, perhaps far more sweeping than the President suggests.

No Comment From Lewis

"The second question is just how far the President intends to carry the fight for his program as a whole.

"These matters must be given due weight before the trade union movement can make any final commitment."

Philip Murray, CIO president, in New York, had no immediate comment. Nor did John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers.

Green agreed that "the need for a greater measure of industrial peace is unquestioned."

He said that as the President stated, "industrial peace cannot be achieved merely by laws directed against labor unions." Nor can it be achieved, Green said, if "our general democratic freedoms" are endangered by "punitive legislation."

To Be Put Before Council

"In emphasizing these fundamental principles, the President has shown real statesmanship and has rendered the nation a great service," Green said. "Hasty and ill-considered action by Congress in a spirit of revenge will accomplish more harm than good."

Green said the recommendations would be placed before the AFL Executive Council on January 29 in Miami for determination of the AFL's future policy.

He said the organization shared Mr. Truman's view "that jurisdictional strikes are indefensible and his insistence that such disputes be settled by peaceful means."

Eight More Truman Messages on Way

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—The 80th Congress, hearing its first message from President Truman today, got word from him at the same time that at least eight more are on the way:

An economic report, probably Wednesday.

The annual budget message, probably Friday.

Recommendations for the repeal of some war powers and continuance of others. Whether these will be in one or several messages was uncertain.

The Italian, Bulgarian, Rumanian and Hungarian peace treaties for Senate ratification. This might make one or four messages.

Recommendations on whether to continue the draft, due by March 31.

Civil rights proposals.

Universal training recommendations.

Unification of the Army and Navy.

BRITISH SEND MORE TROOPS TO PALESTINE

Cabinet Approval Sought For Full Offensive Against Terrorists

A CAPTION

London, Jan. 6 (AP)—Tanned veterans of desert campaigning rolled into Palestine from Egypt today as British army officers awaited Cabinet permission to launch a full-scale offensive against Jewish extremists.

Government sources said the offensive, if approved by the Cabinet, would be the greatest in Palestine's modern history and would smash underground groups which have killed and flogged British troops, bombed public buildings and mined highways and railroads.

Arrive By Road And Rail

They added that the reinforcements were reaching the Holy Land by road and rail, to join nearly 100,000 tommies already on duty there.

Prime Minister Attlee presided today over the first of four critical Cabinet meetings on British foreign policy. The Palestine question was said to be slated for consideration either tomorrow or Thursday.

The Government sources predicted that the Cabinet would reach a final decision on Palestine some time during the week. Besides determining whether to take "energetic" action against the extremists, the ministers also will decide the long-term policy of Palestine's future, informants said.

Plans Drawn In Parley

The Holy Land proposals were formulated last week in conferences attended by General Sir Alan Cunningham, High Commissioner for Palestine; Field Marshal Lord Montgomery, Chief of the Imperial General Staff; Prime Minister Attlee; Ernest Bevin, Foreign Secretary, and Arthur Creech Jones, Colonial Secretary.

The informants said complete unanimity existed among the conferees on the necessity of restoring law and order in Palestine.

They pointed out that Britain would have to act swiftly if she wished to liquidate the Jewish extremists before the resumption January 21 of the London conference on Palestine.

King Consults Cunningham

She also must decide whether to create Arab and Jewish states within Palestine or to surrender her Palestine mandate to the United Nations, the sources added.

King George VI disclosed the situation today with Cunningham. The High Commissioner also held separate conferences with Attlee and Jones.

A War Office spokesman, meanwhile, described the movement over the week end of a troop train from Egypt to Palestine as "normal." Whitehall informants said this was one of the reinforcement trains. Eleven soldiers were injured when the train was bombed 25 miles north of Cairo.

Viewed As Bar To Parley

London members of the Jewish agency executive will meet tomorrow to discuss various aspects of the Palestine situation.

An agency spokesman said there was little or no chance the agency would attend the January 21 Palestine conference if the British army was ordered into action.

The Arab League announced yesterday that its seven member nations—Egypt, Syria, Trans-Jordan, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon and Yemen—would be represented at the conference.

Scotland Yard police, meanwhile, sought two youths who stoned a London synagogue today a few hours after Jews from all parts of the city had attended the ceremonial burial of sacred scrolls burned by vandals a week ago. The attack was the third on a London synagogue in recent weeks.

British Prepare To Crush Holy Land 'Revolt' (D)

London, Jan. 6 (AP)—Government sources said today British military authorities were preparing the biggest offensive in modern Palestine's history to crush what they called "the open rebellion against law and order" by Jewish extremists.

All branches of Britain's army in the Holy Land, estimated to total about 100,000 men, will take part, these sources said. Troops from Egypt are reaching the Holy Land by road and rail as reinforcements.

Held First Obligation

The trigger for the operation is expected to be British Cabinet ratification of proposals formulated in conferences among Palestine's high commissioner, Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, Field Marshal Lord Montgomery, Prime Minister Attlee, Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech Jones.

The informants said the British Government took the view that whatever settlement finally emerged for Palestine, the reimposition of law and order was Britain's first obligation.

"No Need To Tell U.S."

Asked whether the United States State Department would be informed if large-scale operations were put into effect, a Foreign Office spokesman said:

"There would be no advantage in informing the American authorities of whatever day-to-day measures we may be contemplating for the Holy Land."

A final decision on Palestine's fate also may come from Britain this week. The possibilities include:

1. A partition plan for the Holy Land, which would create independent Arab and Jewish states there.

2. Considered a last resort solution, British surrender of the League of Nations mandate to the United Nations Organization.

U.N. Okay Needed

Whatever solution is finally adopted, with or without Arab and Jewish consent, government sources said the United Nations would have to ratify the new arrangement.

Earlier, the Arab League said that its seven member nations would be represented at a conference on Palestine scheduled to start here January 21 under sponsorship of Britain.

At the same time Haganah, relatively moderate Jewish underground defense organization, broadcast from Palestine a secret-radio plea for an end to violence and professed knowledge that "the British Government just now is preparing a solution of the Palestine problem."

Jews Have Not Accepted

The Jews, however, still have not accepted an invitation to the London conference. The World Zionist Organization voted in Basel, Switzerland, December 24, not to participate "under existing circumstances," but left the final decision up to its General Council, "if a change should take place in the situation."

The Arab League's decision to come to London was made public by Secretary General Abdel Rahman Azzam Pasha in Cairo. He said league delegates would demand an independent Arab Government in Palestine and oppose "any partition scheme" or further Jewish immigration.

The league represents Egypt, Syria, Trans-Jordan, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon and Yemen. Yesterday's announcement came in the face of a Christmas plea of the Palestine Arab Executive Committee that the league boycott the conference unless Britain invited Haj Amin el Husseini, exiled mufti of Jerusalem, and agreed to discuss Arab independence.

Haganah Urges Patience

Jerusalem, Jan. 6 (AP)—Haganah, largest and most moderate of the Jewish underground organizations, asked the British army tonight to avoid any "large-scale retaliatory operations" in Palestine.

In a broadcast over the secret radio station "Voice of Israel," Haganah asserted that retaliation against terroristic outbreaks "only tend to create more terrorism." Haganah reiterated its appeal to Irgun Zvai Leumi and the Stern gang, the two most extreme underground groups, to halt their attacks against the British.

Palestine remained tense today. A road mine blew up two blocks ahead of a military truck, near Tel Aviv, the fourth "near miss" in 24 hours.

Another Mine Explodes.

Jerusalem, Jan. 6 (A. P.).—The British military authorities announced that a road mine exploded at dawn today about 100 yards in front of a troop-laden truck near 'Petah Tikvah, but caused no casualties.

Three soldiers were wounded near the same spot when their jeep struck a mine three days ago.

BRITISH SCAN PLEA FOR NEW GREEK POLICY (N)

Recommendation By All-Party Group Elicits Press Approval — 1947

London, Jan. 6 (AP)—A Foreign Office statement said today an all-party parliamentary report urging that Britain adopt an entirely new policy toward Greece was being "studied with care," but otherwise there was no comment from Government officials.

Expressions of approval, however, came from a Greek Leftist representative in London, the Liberal Manchester Guardian and the Communist Daily Worker.

Early Withdrawal Urged

The report recommended early withdrawal of British troops from Greece, guarantee of the country's frontiers and formation of an all-party government with new elections.

Theodore Doganis, London correspondent for the EAM press, organ of the Greek Leftist coalition termed the recommendations "a basis for the restoration of law, order and democracy in Greece."

He said that "the rapid implementation of the report's recommendations—except for those which threaten to fasten still further British control on Greek affairs—will now be keenly demanded by all Greek Democrats."

Refers To Finance Adviser

Doganis apparently referred to a recommendation that a British financial adviser be appointed to the Greek Government.

The Manchester Guardian saw in the report, made by six members of Parliament who visited Greece, a picture of "deplorable conditions."

"The British Government should ask itself how long our troops can stand by while the Greek army and gendarmery, both newly organized and trained by British missions, are turned into political instruments whose use does nothing to remove the real causes of the present troubles in Greece," the Guardian said.

Pravda Attacks Anglo-American Armaments Pact

T. WILLIAMS

London, Jan. 6 (AP)—The Communist newspaper Pravda charged today that the recently announced British-American agreement on standardization of armaments is "absolutely different and incompatible" with the creation of a United Nations force to maintain world peace.

A Pravda editorial broadcast by the Moscow radio asserted that "legitimate suspicions and fears" had been aroused by "backstage military and political activity" in London and Washington.

"Shrouded In Mystery"

Recalling United Nations approval of Russia's disarmament proposal, the editorial, as broadcast, added:

"Under these conditions any steps aimed at the conclusion of new military alliances or agreements, which, in addition, are shrouded in mystery and concluded outside the existing international organization for preserving peace, cannot fail to evoke legitimate wonderment."

The comment appeared in Moscow coincident with the arrival of Field Marshal Lord Montgomery, British Chief of Staff.

The British disclosed officially last week that Britain and the United States were working on arms standardization and joint officer training. A British official said at the time that his country was "not averse" to also standardizing military equipment with the Russians, and that Montgomery would bring back with him any such Soviet proposals.

"No Immediate Danger Of War"

Taking note of the story carried by a Paris newspaper that a political, military and economic pact between Britain and the United States would be announced March 15, Pravda said such an alliance was not needed because "immediate danger of a new war does not exist."

"Foreign observers cannot fail to notice the indubitable connection existing between such facts as the Anglo-American agreement on the standardization of armaments, the decision prolonging the functioning of the joint Anglo-American staff committee in the United States and the recently published agreement on continuation of the 'wartime' co-operation between the British and American air forces," the editorial said.

British Mines Belong To King, Not People

LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP).—Great Britain's newly nationalized coal mines are popularly pictured as the property of the people, but English law puts the ownership on a different basis.

Sir Rouald W. Matthews, placing a Sheffield man on probation for one year for stealing 30 cents' worth of coal, told him: "Coal is now the property of the King, and your offense is a serious one."

Soviet Denies Aiding Chinese

LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP)—Tass, Soviet news agency, said today that it had been authorized to deny a Chinese newspaper report that the Soviet Union was supplying ammunition, much of it sent from the United States under lend-lease, to Chinese Communist forces. It said the report was "utterly groundless and is being circulated obviously for purposes of provocation."

FRENCH SEND MORE TROOPS

Foreign Legion Units Arrive In Indo-China Ports — 1947

Paris, Jan. 6 (AP)—Important elements of the French Foreign Legion have arrived in Indo-Chinese ports to reinforce military units against insurgent Viet Nam forces, dispatches received here said today. The dispatches added that troop and cargo planes were reaching Indo-China in considerable numbers.

Meanwhile, the Viet Nam radio, according to the French Press Agency, has broadcast a statement that Ho Chi Minh, president of the fugitive Viet Nam Government, has formally invited French Colonial Minister Marius Moutet to meet him at Hanoi. The letter of invitation, the broadcast said, was dispatched January 3 to Moutet in Hanoi and saluted him as "a messenger of peace."

Described As Propaganda

In Saigon today Moutet told a news conference that broadcasts of Ho's appeals for a meeting were "just propaganda."

Moutet, who said he would leave for Paris to report to the French Parliament within 48 hours, expressed hope that a cease-fire order would be issued in Indo-China soon. But he said it was up to the French Government to determine whether steps should be taken to open negotiations for a settlement with the Viet Nam leaders.

Moutet said that while he was in Hanoi, Ho easily could have arranged a conference but had failed to do so.

The Minister reiterated his statement made at Hanoi that the principal French consideration at this point was the military situation, the first responsibility of the French authorities being protection of French citizens "and their friends."

Doubts Ho's Authority

Moutet indicated that perhaps the French did not consider Ho responsible for the outbreak of violence in Indo-China, saying that he was not sure Ho was free to act on his own authority.

French Army sources in Hanoi, meanwhile, reported that their troops had thrown back three Viet Nam attacks in that area, and also had captured a strong point south of Haiduong.

Heavy losses were inflicted on the Viet Nam forces in the assault near Haidoung, which is situated 30 miles east of Hanoi, the nominal Viet Nam capital, the French sources said.

Normal Life Begins To Return

The fighting at Namdinh, 50 miles south of Hanoi, was reported to have lapsed into "patrol activity."

The Associated Press correspondent at Hanoi said that life there gradually was beginning to return to normal, despite repeated clashes on the fringes of the European area.

Less than 600 yards from Hanoi's main street, barricades block smaller streets leading to the Chinese and Annamite quarters where several hundred Viet Nam troops are entrenched among the homes of approximately 10,000 Chinese and 8,000 Annamites. French forces guard the area closely, but have made no attempt to mop it up.

DOLLARS, POUNDS DROP

Paris Black Market Reports Fall of Third in Values

PARIS, Jan. 6 (AP)—American dollars and British pounds have dropped more than one-third in value on the Paris black market during the last week, operators reported today. They asserted the crash in their business stemmed from the program of Premier Léon Blum, who has set out to save the franc.

Dollars today were bringing 250 francs against 360 a week ago and British pounds have tumbled from 1,000 francs to 800. The official rate is 119 francs to the dollar and 480 to the pound.

ARMY'S EUROPEAN LEADERS SHIFTED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—(AP)The War Department today officially confirmed reports of a major three-way shakeup in the Army's European command.

Involved are Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, raised to the top American command in Europe, and Gen. Mark W. Clark, who was called home from Austria.

Clay succeeds Gen. Joseph T. McNarney as chief of all U. S. forces in Europe and commander of the American occupation zone in Germany.

McNarney has been named U. S. Army air forces representative on the United Nations military staff committee, effective about March 15.

As McNarney's deputy, Clay has been executive military governor of the U. S. zone in Germany and American representative on the four-power allied coordinating committee in Berlin since last April.

Clark, wartime ocmmander of the U. S. 5th Army in the Italian campaign and subsequently commander-in-chief of American occupation forces in Austria, will take over command of the U. S. 6th Army with headquarters in San Francisco. This command has been vacant since the death of Gen. Joseph W. Stillwell.

(Clark is not expected to take over his new post, until after the Moscow talks on the Austrian peace treaty. He will serve as deputy for Secretary of State Byrnes at the Moscow discussions, which begin in March.)

Clark will be succeeded in Austria by Lt. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes, now commander of the U. S. 3rd Army in Germany.

In his new assignment, McNarney succeeds Lt. Gen. Harold L. George whose retirement from active service was announced recently.

CLAY TAKES OVER MCNARNEY'S POST

Says He'll Move Offices From Frankfurt To Berlin (N)

L. HEINZERLING

Berlin, Jan. 6 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, new commander in chief of American forces in Europe, said today he would move his headquarters from Frankfurt to Berlin but had no immediate plans for reorganizing the military-government setup in Germany.

Clay said he would confer at length with the retiring commander, Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, before making any changes. McNarney has been named senior representative to the Military Staff Committee of the United Nations.

Clay said he intended to name a troop commander to relieve him of details in connection with that function of the European Theater command, but only after talking first with McNarney.

. . . Supports Moratorium

Several hours before a Washington announcement of his appointment, Clay held a news conference in his capacity as deputy military governor. He disclosed that:

1. The industrial output in the United States zone had been cut at least 25 per cent because of a sub-zero cold wave now gripping this battered and fuel-short country.

2. The United States State Department had informed him that the French action in establishing a customs frontier around the coal-rich Saar would be threshed out at the March meeting of the Foreign Ministers Council in Moscow. He said he had received no reply from the French to his query about whether German machinery from elsewhere in the French occupation zone was being moved into the Saar.

3. The United States is advocating a moratorium on all foreign investments in Germany, until the German economy becomes stabilized.

To Concerve Coal

4. German handling of the de-Nazification program has improved to such an extent that the United States is withdrawing its threat to take over the job.

The 90-day plan of economic retreat involves the conserving of coal by closing down the least essential industries, and is designed to keep food production and transport in operation.

The German Meteorological Institute at Potsdam recorded a low of 4 degrees below zero Fahrenheit today. The winter in Berlin has been the most severe since 1940-41.

Concerning the proposed moratorium, Clay said under present chaotic currency conditions in Germany, it would be possible for foreign investors to acquire holdings all out of proportion to those of the Germans.

Murphy Gives Interview

"We are not carpet baggers," he said.

Clay pointed out that American investments in Germany exceeded $1,000,000,000 at the outbreak of the war, and said the Military Government would continue to encourage certain types of United States business men to come to Germany in the hope of promoting exports.

At another news conference held here, United States Ambassador Robert Murphy said that it still had not been decided what German authority—if any—would sign the proposed German peace treaty. He added that one suggestion was that there be no German signature, and that the treaty simply be imposed on the Germans.

Inspection Tours Start

Meanwhile, four-power inspection teams finally entered each of the four occupation zones to check on progress made in eliminating Germany's war potential.

The inspections were authorized by the Allied Control Council after charges and countercharges among the occupying powers that war materials still were being made in German plants.

The teams originally were slated to start their rounds November 25, but the Russians obtained a postponement on ground that transportation facilities in their zone were clogged by redeployment of Soviet troops.

Consolidation Expected

The appointment of General Clay one of the United States Army's ablest administrators, to his new post appeared to foreshadow a new consolidation of commands which will reduce the number of United States troops in Germany to a small supervisory force.

The transfer of General Keyes to Austria is the first step in the close-out of the 3d Army in Europe, authoritative sources said.

The 3d Army, which the late Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., commanded in speculator dashes across Europe, is the last of the five Armies of the United States which were in Europe when the war ended.

The closeout of the 3d Army will leave in Germany only a drastically reduced constabulary force and the First Infantry Division, which is largely occupied with gaurd duties, as a combat force.

Son Of Former Senator

It is planned that even these small forces will be further reduced and merged with the Military Government until only a small supervising corps of Americans is left on occupational duties.

Clay has been the chief proponent of the policy of permitting the Germans to learn the Democratic way of life by practicing it and has led all the other occupation zones in turning back governmental functions to the Germans to execute under only advisory control.

Saar Issue To Go Before Foreign Ministers (D)

Berlin, Jan. 6 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, Deputy American Military Governor in Germany, said today that the Foreign Ministers Council, and not the Allied Control Authority for Germany, would handle the Saar controversy.

Clay announced to a news conference that the United States State Department had told him that the matter would be taken up on a Government level by the Foreign Ministers at their meeting in Moscow next March.

The French, whose German occupation zone includes the coal-bearing Saar, established a customs frontier on the German side a few weeks ago.

Action "Unilateral"

Subsequently, Clay said the action was "entirely unilateral" and the Allied Control Council here had not been informed of it. The French said they had given the Foreign Ministers, then meeting in New York, advance notice of the action.

Clay said the United States was urging that all the Allies put a moratorium on postwar foreign investments in Germany until the economy was stabilized. American investments in Germany at the outbreak of war exceeded $1,000,000,000.

Present chaotic currency conditions, Clay said, would enable any foreign investors to acquire holdings out of all proportion to those of the Germans.

Stimulating Exports

"We are not carpetbaggers," he commented.

At the same time, he pointed out that the Military Government was encouraging certain types of United States business men to visit Germany to stimulate exports and provide industry with needed dollars.

Passports, with no time limit, are being granted to 150 a month.

Clay told the news conference that a cold wave had aggravated the chronic coal shortage, had frozen waterways and forced a 25 per cent reduction in industrial production.

Withdraws Threat

Last November, Clay told the Germans that unless they improved their handling of de-Nazification in 60 days he would take the job out of their hands. Today, he said that in view of an improvement, he had withdrawn the threat.

"We are going to let the new minister-presidents in the Laender (states) show what they can do," he said.

UNRRA Denial (N)

Bamberg, Germany, Jan. 6 (AP)—Joe Buda, Polish civilian UNRRA official, denied today charges contained in a United States Constabulary report that he had attempted to cover up "black market activities" at the Landsberg camp for displaced persons.

The report, made public yesterday by Maj. Gen. E. N. Harmon, chief of the United States Constabulary, also accused Buda of attempting to bring pressure to bear against the constabulary, and asked that he and another UNRRA official named Korn be dismissed.

"It is not true that I had the intention of covering up black market activities," said Buda. "I have no interest in this at all. In all investigations concerning such activities I was helpful to the authorities in charge as well as to the constabulary and others."

Renews Own Charges

Buda renewed accusations of his own—which also were announced yesterday by Harmon—that eight Jewish displaced persons were beaten and ill-treated by constabulary troopers during questioning concerning a double killing.

"I have in my possession an affidavit signed by every one of the (eight) displaced persons and it is stated that they have been beaten and ill-treated," he said.

The constabulary report denied that third degree methods had been employed, and said that Buda had made his accusation simply to discredit the United States troops.

Harmon, in a statement issued today at Frankfurt, said he would permit no intimidation of his men, who would "continue to carry on . . . without prejudice to any particular race, color or creed."

Allies To Inspect German Industries

Berlin, Jan. 6 (AP) — Inspection teams representing the Allied Control Authority entered each of the four occupation zones of Germany today to check on the progress made in eliminating Germany's industrial war potential.

Each team is to visit from six to nine factories on this first of a series of inspection tours. The tour will last about two weeks. Plants to be inspected were selected from lists compiled for the control council by each of the occupying powers.

For later trips each power may request to inspect specific plants in any other zone.

May Inspect Any Plant

"This provision that any plant may be inspected upon request is obviously the only one to give meaning to these trips," commented Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, deputy American military governor.

The agreement for inspection of factories was obtained after there had been a series of charges and countercharges among the occupying powers that war products were still being manufactured in German plants, contrary to Allied declarations.

The inspection teams, including a technician from each occupying power, were originally scheduled to enter all four zones November 25. The Russians obtained a postponement, stating that transport in their zone would be strained by demands of redeployment. This troop movement is now believed substantially completed.

German Food Imports Up

U. S. Shipments Double In Month to Meet Zone Ration

BERLIN, Jan. 6 (AP).—Food imports from the United States to feed Germans increased to 80,000 metric tons (81,260 long tons) during December, or more than double the monthly average for the preceding three months, Lieutenant General Lucius D. Clay said today in his weekly report on the American Military Government. He added that January shipments also were running at a high rate.

The increase is expected to relieve the food shortage in the American occupation zone, where for the last three months it had been necessary to draw upon reserve stocks to meet the official ration of 1,550 calories daily for the normal consumer.

UNRRA Official Denies Charge (D)

Bamberg, Germany, Jan. 6 (AP)—Joe Buda, Polish UNRRA official accused by United States constabulary officers of attempting to protect operators of an alleged "Jewish black market" in a displaced persons camp, made a denial today and renewed his charge that American troops had mistreated eight Jewish displaced persons.

Buda, stationed at Landsberg, said the Jews were beaten and treated "in a brutal manner" during a murder investigation.

Constabulary officials denied this and said Buda was one of several UNRRA officials who tried to exert pressure on American troops to give Jewish black market operators a free rain.

Two Dismissals Requested

Col. Charles H. Reed reported to Maj. Gen. E. N. Harmon, chief of the constabulary, that Buda insisted on the release of any Jewish displaced person who was arrested regardless of charges, and that Buda had threatened to "get" certain officers if they did not comply.

Reed proposed that Buda and another UNRRA civilian official, identified only as "Korn," be dismissed. He said they had sought to undermine the constabulary.

The eight displaced persons mentioned by Buda were questioned in connection with the deaths of a woman and her 9-year-old daughter.

Affidavits Claimed

Bud said in a public reply to the charges:

"I have in my possession an affidavit signed by everyone of the displaced persons and it is stated they had been beaten and ill treated in a brutal manner. It is not true that my attitude to the constabulary police was lacking in respect. My attitude was absolutely helpful and I have done my best to assist the investigation of the constabulary in this case.

"It is not true that I had the intention of covering up black market activities. I have no interest in this. In all investigations concerning such activities, I was helpful to the authorities in charge as well as the constabulary and others."

German Signatory To Peace Undecided

Berlin, Jan. 6 (A. P.).—It has not been decided what German authority, if any, will sign the peace treaty for the Reich.

Ambassador Robert Murphy, in noting this today, said that one suggestion was that the treaty simply be imposed upon the Germans, with no German signature. He expressed the belief, however, that there would be a signature, and said that the Deputy Foreign Ministers, meeting this month in London, will probably discuss the question and make recommendations to the Moscow Conference on Peace With Germany.

4th Nazi Suicide In Nuernberg Jail

Nuernberg, Jan. 6 (AP)—Karl Westphal one of sixteen former officials in the Nazi Ministry of Justice who were indicted on war-crime charges Saturday, strangled himself to death yesterday with a woolen scarf in his Nuernberg jail cell. He was the fourth prominent Nazi to commit suicide in the jail.

The other Nazis who took their lives at Nuernberg were Hermann Goering, who took poison just before he was scheduled to hang; Dr. Leonardo Conti, head of the Nazi medical experiments on concentration camp inmates, and Robert Ley, the Nazi labor boss.

Otto Georg Thierack, former Minister of Justice, committed suicide several weeks ago in an internment camp. Last month Lieut. Col. Frederich Karl Lechler, a future witness, tried to end his life by diving from a 35-foot catwalk in the Nuernberg jail. He suffered a broken neck and skull fracture.

Writers Ask Right To Travel in Reich

Berlin, Jan. 6 (A. P.).—American correspondents in Berlin petitioned Secretary of State James F. Byrnes today to help all accredited Allied correspondents obtain freedom of travel throughout all four occupation zones of Germany. They asked Byrnes to present their request to the forthcoming Foreign Ministers Council at Moscow.

American correspondents are barred from the Soviet Zone except on occasional conducted tours.

Special 'Forgive And Forget' Rites

S.P. MCINTOSH 1947

Rome, Jan. 6 (AP)—A group of repentant Fascists and their former partisan enemies knelt today before an altar decorated with white and red roses and leaves of laurel in a special "forgive and forget" services in the Church of St. Augustine.

Afterward 25 picked former die-hard followers of Il Duce and 25 partisans who fought for the Allies marched together down the Corso Umberto, Rome's main avenue, and placed flowers at the monument to the unknown soldier on the snow-covered steps of the Vittorio Emanuele Monument.

Among those who witnessed the ceremonies were many black-clad mothers of men who fell in the final months of the war, when the Black Shirts of Mussolini's northern "Socialist Republic" clashed with pro-Allied guerrillas.

The rites of conciliation here were inspired by similar exercises last week at Perugia. Former Fascists there renounced their fidelity to Mussolini and were accepted into "the brotherhood of Italians."

A group of former Fascists called at the Rome headquarters of the partisan's army of allegiance and suggested that the capital emulate Perugia in a similar demonstration of Italian unity.

THREE YUGOSLAVS TO DIE AS U. S. SPIES

Belgrade, Jan. 6 (A. P.).—Two former newspaper men, Milupin Stefanovic and Branko Yovanovic, and a young ex-Army officer, Zteljko Sushin, were convicted by the Serbian Peoples Court today of working for foreign espionage and were sentenced to be shot. Five other defendants, including Misha Trifunovic, former Prime Minister of a Yugoslav government in exile, were sentenced to hard labor in prison.

Officials of the United States embassy in Yugoslavia were named at their trial as having received material which involved the prosecutor said, military and aviation data. Stefanovic was formerly employed at the United States embassy.

Trifunovic was sentenced to eight years at hard labor on being adjudged guilty of having delivered a forty-page report on military matters to his son-in-law, Constantin Stankovic, an engineer.

'Prominent' Red, 24 Other Greeks Listed Slain

Athens, Jan. 6 (AP)—Press dispatches reported today that 24 persons had been killed in clashes between authorities and guerrillas over the week end and the Government announced that a prominent Communist had been slain in Athens.

Five irregulars were killed, three wounded and four captured in a battle with gendarmes at Vovousa, 25 miles northeast of Yannina.

Gendarmes raided a mountain hideout of guerrillas near Chalkis, killing eleven, news dispatches said.

Clash On Ægean Isle

Three rebels were reported killed and three wounded on Mt. Tsoumerka, 25 miles southeast of Yannina, and two were killed in a village near Grevena.

Another clash was reported on Mytilene, an Aegean Island off the Turkish coast, in which one gendarme and two rebels were killed.

The prominent Communist reporter killed in the Koukaki section of Athens was not identified by name. The Ministry of Public Order said he was probably slain in revenge for the killing of two extreme rightist Xites adherents in a tavern Saturday night. The ministry said the Communist had a son in Yugoslavia and another operating with a rebel mountain force.

Probers' Delay Hit

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said meanwhile that Greece's representative to the United Nations had been instructed to protest against the delayed arrival of the United Nations investigation commission.

It was understood that Greek anxiety over the delay arose from fears that evidence concerning alleged border violations by neighboring countries might be concealed.

Montgomery Arrives in Moscow

London, Jan. 6 (A. P.).—The Moscow radio reported that Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, chief of the British Imperial General Staff, arrived in Moscow today as a guest of the Soviet Army.

MONTGOMERY GETS MOSCOW WELCOME

British Chief Of Staff Received By Soviet Marshal

E. GILMORE

Moscow, Jan. 6 (AP)—Field Marshal Lord Montgomery, chief of the British Imperial Staff, told the Russians upon his arrival in Moscow today that "I want to establish friendly contact with the Soviet Army" from which might grow mutual understanding and respect "for the mutual benefit of us all."

He was met at the airport by Marshal A. M. Vasilevsky, chief of staff for the Soviet Army, at whose invitation Montgomery came to the Russian capital. The two men shook hands warmly and in less than five minutes Montgomery had established a warm, friendly contact with his host.

Will Present Gift

Montgomery was clad in a white British warfare coat with a sheepskin collar and wearing his familiar black Royal Tank Corps beret. He looked about the snow-swept airport and said: "I'm very lucky to be here."

Montgomery and Vasilevsky held their first conversation tonight, remaining together for an hour and twenty minues. The British commander presented his Russian host with a case of Scotch whisky and his photograph.

Tomorrow Montgomery is to address the Voroshilov Higher Military Academy of the Soviet general staff. Tomorrow night he will be Vasilevsky's guest at the Bolshoi Theater where a new ballet is to be presented.

The two men planned to hold their first conversations tonight, when Montgomery will present Vasilevsky a gift he brought from London.

Speaking into a microphone, Montgomery said in a prepared statement:

"I come to Russia as a soldier. I want to pay my respects to the Soviet Army—that mighty army which played such a big part in the victory of the Allies over the Axis powers in the late war.

"That war was long and terrible and great devastation was caused. When peace came we had to build a new world out of the ruins of the old, and during the early days of peace some nations were apt to plead that they had suffered in war more severely than any other nation and must therefore be given preferential treatment.

Uses Russian Phrase

"But my view, for what it is worth, is that the nation which suffered most severely was Soviet Russia, and her people bore the suffering in brave silence and just fought against the treacherous German invader.

"I salute the brave Russian people. I want to establish a friendly contact with the Soviet Army and hope that, from that friendly contact, there may develop a mutual understanding, a mutual respect, a happy relationship which will be for the mutual benefit of us all."

Then he said in perfectly good Russian, "Dobre dyen (good day)."

He turned to Vasilevsky and asked: "Do you understand what I said?"

"I heard it, but I did not understand it all," the Marshal replied.

"I would like what I said to be put in the Russian papers," Montgomery said. "I would like for the Russian people to know what I said. I think it is true."

Band Plays British Anthem

The Soviet Marshal assured Montgomery that his remarks would be carried in the Soviet press.

While the two men stood on the snow-swept field they talked with one another through translators.

"Are you an artilleryman?" Montgomery asked.

"No," said Vasilevsky, "I'm an infantryman."

Beaming, Montgomery replied: "All the best soldiers are infantrymen."

The Soviet military band played "God Save the King" and then the Soviet National Anthem. All saluted.

To Stay At Embassy

Montgomery then inspected a guard of honor, walking down a long line of Russian soldiers. Later the guard of honor paraded past the two military leaders, saluting them and a group of Soviet military men, members of the Moscow diplomatic corps and military attachés.

Vasilevsky told Montgomery he had a special house in which he might stay, but Montgomery, expressing his thanks, said he felt he would cause less trouble if he stayed at the British Embassy with Ambassador Sir Maurice Peterson.

Gen. Georges Catroux, French Ambassador to Russia, was among those present at the airfield. Lieut. Gen. W. B. Smith, the American Ambassador, did not appear.

Montgomery drove off from the airfield in the long, shiny car of the Soviet Marshal. Before getting in he remarked: "It's a lovely car. I haven't seen one like it in a long time. In battle I traveled around in a jeep."

'Pravda' Irked By Anglo-U. S. Military Talks

E. GILMORE

Soviet Writer Says Reports of Alliance Are Cause of 'Warranted Perplexity'

MOSCOW, Jan. 6 (AP).—A commentary in "Pravda" today said that reports, denials and discussions of a new military alliance between the United States and Great Britain "cannot fail to cause warranted perplexity."

The commentary appeared under the headline, "On Reports about Anglo-American Military Collaboration."

"The foreign press continues to pay great attention to reports of Anglo-American military collaboration which, according to some information, has become or is to become a formal military alliance," said the article, signed with the initials E. M.

"The unquestionable connection which exists between such facts as the Anglo-American agreement on armament standardization, the decision on the prolongation of the validity of an Anglo-American unified staff committee in the U. S. A. and the agreement on prolonging collaboration between the air forces of England and the United States, published recently, could not have skipped the attention of foreign observers.

"The immediate threat of a new war does not exist. Representatives of an overwhelming majority of the countries of the world acclaimed the proposal on universal reduction of armaments introduced by the U. S. S. R. delegation at the United Nations. In such a situation any steps directed to the conclusion of new military alliances or agreements, besides being surrounded by secrecy and negotiated outside an existing international organization for securing peace, cannot fail to cause warranted perplexity."

Reds Urged To Watch Distribution Of Food

Moscow, Jan. 6 (AP)—Pravda, in its leading editorial today, called upon party members and members of the Young Communist League to show greater interest and diligence in protecting consumer interests, particularly in the distribution of food.

"Local party organizations should radically change their attitude toward the work of trade organizations," the Communist party organ declared. "Tried and trained Communists should be sent to trade organs, including the posts of salesmen. Party political work among trade workers should be increased and their education bettered in spirit, preserving state discipline especially toward the plundering or embezzlement of food."

India Congress Adopts British, Moslem Plan

New Delhi, Jan. 6 (AP)—The Hindu-led All-India Congress today accepted the British principle of compulsory grouping of provinces for constitution writing, but indications were that not even this would bring the Moslem League into the current constituent assembly to draft a charter for an independent India.

The Congress Committee, the party's delegate body, passed, 99 to 52, a working-committee resolution agreeing to the British interpretation that province-grouping under the cabinet mission plan was compulsory rather than optional as the Congress previously had insisted.

Demanded By Moslems

This interpretation was made public last December 6 in the course of fruitless London negotiations—among British, Hindus and Moslems—to end the Moslem League boycott of the constitution-making assembly. The Cabinet Mission plan for Indian independence, basis of the negotiations, was issued last May.

The Moslem League, though differing somewhat from the British view, also has insisted that grouping is compulsory.

Amendments Rejected

In adopting the resolution, the Congress Committee rejected all but one of the amendments offered, but included some points to which the Moslem League was likely to take exception.

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, vice president of the Indian interim government called for approval of the resolution as a step in getting Moslem League co-operation in drawing up the constitution. He said he wanted to avoid a struggle in India.

Iranian Politics

J. GOODWIN

Tehran, Jan. 6 (AP)—The left-wing Tudeh party, often accused by its opponents of being pro-Soviet, was reported reorganizing today for the coming parliamentary elections, which it had previously threatened to boycott.

Newspaper reports of such a reorganization were accompanied by an announcement by a Foreign Office spokesman that Premier Ahmed Qavam was sending an investigator into Mahallat province, southwest of Tehran, to investigate reports that clashes between rival parliamentary candidates had caused the deaths of two persons and injuries to fourteen.

Voting Begins Saturday

The Tudeh party has not offered any candidates for the elections, which start in Tehran January 11 and are to run through January 17. Dates for balloting in other provinces will be announced later. Tudeh members have remained mostly in the background since recent attacks on their party headquarters.

Newspaper announcement said the party was drafting a platform based on "a form of government enjoyed by England, Norway and Sweden that is parliamentary democracy" and a policy of "peace and international co-operation."

In reporting the violence in Mahallat one Right-wing newspaper said the casualties occurred during a clash at Khumain when national police sought to arrest Major Hossain Heshmati, one of three parliamentary candidates. The newspaper said 100 persons were arrested.

Arrest Announced Friday

The arrest of Heshmati, charged with "subversive activities against the government," was announced Friday.

Today the government here said Emadadine Sezvar had withdrawn from the race in Mahallat. Shahab Eahostrovani, a close personal friend of Premier Qavam, is the third candidate.

Meanwhile, lists of candidates from Qavam's new Democrat party for the twelve Tehran seats were circulated here and the Right-wing newspaper Attash carried a list of Independent candidates. Candidates on both lists were described by political observers as "members of the Iran aristocracy."

'Fair Trial' For Marine In Case Stirring Chinese

Shanghai, Jan. 6 (AP)—The American Marine accused of raping a Chinese girl at Peiping "must and will be given a fair trial," Maj. Gen. Samuel L. Howard, commanding United States Marine forces in China, declared yesterday. The case has stirred widespread anti-American demonstrations by Chinese students.

"He must not be tried and convicted by public opinion or by the stories appearing in some newspapers," Howard said.

Before the Marine can be brought to trail, Howard added, both prosecution and defense must be given time to prepare their cases.

Girl Has "Disappeared"

Sentences in such cases, he added, are very serious, running to as high as 25 years in prison.

Peiping reports meanwhile indicated that the girl who made the complaint had disappeared. One report said she had left a statement with "a friend who would represent her at the Marine's court-martial."

"There has been a great effort on the part of some elements of the public to give this incident a political implication," Howard said. "It has no political bearing whatsoever, but is simply an alleged crime that shall and will be handled in a legal manner.

"The public, through the press, will be given accurate information concerning this case, but I repeat that trials of all criminal cases take time and this is no exception."

Claims Professional Bases

The Marine under investigation, earlier reports said, has denied the rape charge. He said he had relations with a girl on a professional basis.

Howard's statement was made while the press controversy over the case was continuing. Some newspapers told students not to be cat's paws of "certain political elements." They evidently referred to Chinese Communists, whose demand that Americans leave China was echoed by the demonstrators.

One writer, in a letter to the editor of an English-language newspaper, referred to the demonstrators as "stoogents."

Chinese Police Close Shanghai Soviet Radio

Shanghai, Jan. 6 (AP)—Radio station XRVN, "the voice of the Soviet Union" in Shanghai, was closed today by Chinese police under a regulation forbidding operation of foreign radio transmitters in China.

The American station XMHA continued to operate, and its future was not known.

[The New York edition of the Shanghai Evening Post and Mercury said on November 29 that the Chinese Catholic Archbishop Paul Yu-pin had purchased the American station from United States Harkson, thus exempting it from the anti-foreign regulation.]

The Soviet station was closed by seven uniformed members of the Shanghai police and Woosung military garrison, accompanied by a representative of the Foreign Ministry and by N. S. Ananieff, Soviet vice consul.

The station first went on the air in 1941, shortly after the German attack on Russia.

Operating as a neutral, it continued to broadcast throughout the war, untouched by the Japanese occupation authorities, and was one of the main sources of non-Japanese news for Shanghai's 4,000,000 inhabitants.

Besides its broadcasts in Russian, Chinese, English and German, it had an extensive musical program which listeners said was the best in the Orient.

Sentenced For Murder, Ex-Jap Leader Faints

Shanghai, Jan. 6 (AP)—Haruyoshi Kanimura, former captain in the Japanese Kempei Tai (military police) was sentenced to death today by a Chinese military tribunal which convicted him of murder of civilians during the war.

Kanimura, who was known as "the wolf of Changshu," after the district where he killed several hundred Chinese, fainted when sentenced was pronounced.

Purge May Oust 250,000

Tokyo, Jan. 6 (AP)—At least 250,000 rural Japanese officials will be swept from office by the latest purge of ultranationalists and more than 1,000,000 others will be subject to investigation, authoritative sources said today.

This purge, more extensive than was indicated in its announcement on Saturday, is designed to clear away prefectural and municipal leaders who have "entrenched power" before rural residents vote within the next few months in their first free election, these sources explained.

If "fully implemented" by the Japanese, it will be the last sweeping purge to be ordered by General MacArthur's headquarters.

High-ranking American sources, meanwhile, denied Japanese reports that the date of the purge announcement had been speeded by Russian questions on rural housecleaning presented for consideration by the Four-Power Council.

Jap Admits Being Known As 'Monster'

Tokyo, Jan. 6 (AP)—A prosecution witness told the international war crimes tribunal today that yes, he was known to Japanese as "The Monster," because of his wartime disciplane of troops and position as internal defense chief.

Gen. Ryukichi Tanaka acknowledged the nickname on cross-examination after a wrangle between opposing attorneys was settled by the decision of Chief Justice Sir William Webb that:

"If a man is known as 'The Monster,' he can so state."

Tanaka's testimony held former Premier Hideki Tojo—top defendent—responsible for a decision to ignore international treaties in the treatment of prisoners of war.

Palace Guard Changed

Tokyo, Jan. 6 (AP)—The 66th Australian Infantry Battalion, under command of Lieutenant Colonel Colvin, of Sydney, relieved the Punjabis on guard duty at the gates of the Imperial Palace in a smart ceremony today. The Australians will be on duty for one month.

Japs Export Raw Silk

Tokyo, Jan. 6 (AP)—Export of an initial 1,000 bales and 212 cases of assorted grades of raw silk to the United Kingdom was reported today by Allied headquarters. A shipment of 340 cases of raw silk is en route to Australia and New Zealand.

Dutch, Natives Cease Firing In Palembang

Batavia, Java, Jan. 6 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Buurman van Vreeden, Dutch Army chief of staff, and Dr. A. K. Gani, Republican Cabinet Minister, flew to Sumatra today in an effort to reconcile the warring Dutch and Indonesian forces at Palembang, where fighting was said to have finally ceased after three days.

A Netherlands Army communiqué announced, however, a new outbreak of fighting at Padang, where the Nationalists were reported reinforcing their positions. Dutch convoys were said to be encountering heavy sniping, with three Dutch killed and three wounded since January 1.

In Java Nationalist artillery was reported firing into the Semarang area.

Calm Follows Battle

An Associated Press dispatch from Medan said that complete calm had been restored there after last week's four-day battle.

Indonesian Premier Sutan Sjahrir yesterday took a serious view of the fighting in Southeast Sumatra.

Sjahrir said he had been advised by Dr. Mohammed Isa, Republican governor of South Sumatra, that the Palembang fighting occurred after the Dutch had ordered Indonesian forces to withdraw from an area 20 miles around the town, as well as from Palembang itself.

Dutch Safeguard Objectives

A spokesman for the Netherlands Army said that no military reports had been received from Palembang since Thursday, when "necessary measures were taken by the Dutch forces to safeguard Netherlands objectives."

Palembang has been the most vital port for the Republican export trade, which funnels through Singapore to the outside world. The Standard Vacuum Oil Company's $70,000,000 Soengi Goerong refinery and Shell Oil Company's Pladgoe plant are both located within 20 miles of the port. Under the Dutch-Indonesian agreement they were occupied by the Dutch when Palembang was divided into Dutch and Indonesian sectors.

The Netherlands Army confirmed yesterday that Lieut. Gen. Siem Spoor, commander of Dutch forces in the Indies, would return to Holland this week to confer with the Government.

Fires Still Rage In Java Harbor

Batavia, Java, Jan. 6 (AP)—Fires still raged tonight in the market and harbor areas of Palembang, oil refining center of southeastern Sumatra, where Indonesian Nationalist and Dutch forces agreed yesterday to a cease-fire order pending results of a conference between Dutch and Indonesian Republican officials at Batavia on Tuesday. The agreement came after a three-day battle.

"This is the gravest situation since the two governments signed a truce on October 15," Republican Minister A. K. Gani said tonight on his return from a visit to Palembang.

Make Bombing Charges

"The Dutch used Mitchell bombers and artillery and mortars," he declared. "A destroyer and gunboats shelled the city from the Moesi River. At least 200 Indonesians were killed or wounded. Virtually the entire population fled from the city and the camp where these civilian refugees were housed was bombed."

He said half the Palembang market area was destroyed, an entire block of two-story buildings having been razed, and that damage generally was "very heavy," especially in the harbor area.

Grenade Attack Blamed

The Netherlands Indies Government said in a communiqué today that the Palembang fighting was touched off when a grenade was thrown into a Dutch vehicle December 28 and that it grew worse when Indonesians violated the previous cease-fire agreements.

The Indonesians countered with an assertion that Dutch violations of the cease-fire agreements were responsible for the fighting.

The Dutch communiqué said the fighting had spread to Padang on the west coast of Sumatra and that Indonesian artillery was firing on Semarang on the north Java coast.

Chinese-Philippine Treaty To Be Signed

Manila, Jan. 6 (AP)—A treaty of general relations between China and the Philippine Republic is to be signed here this week, the Government disclosed, and is expected to check the anti-Chinese feeling which has been developing in these islands.

The treaty would permit the immediate resumption of Chinese immigration, which recently was ordered suspended.

The final draft of the treaty was completed after six months of consultations between Nanking and Manila.

U.S. To Pay Philippines $25,000,000

Manila, Jan. 6 (AP)—United States Ambassador Paul V. McNutt is due back in Manila from Baguio tomorrow to present a check to President Manuel Roxas for $25,000,000 as final settlement of an agreement between the United States and the Philippine Republic.

The United States already has turned over to the Philippines surplus property with a book value of $600,000,000 at various military bases in the islands.

Of the $25,000,000 in cash, $15,000,000 is earmarked for the redemption of guerrilla notes; $5,000,000 more is set aside to meet the obligations of USAFFE (United States Army Forces Far East) troops, most of them Filipino veterans, for back pay during the Bataan and Corregidor campaigns; $3,000,000 is to be used by the Philippine Government to purchase sites for the United States Embassy and consulates in the islands, and the final $2,000,000 is to be devoted to a cultural program.

Truman Puts Draft's Future Up to Congress

Avoids Direct Stand, but Says Nation Must Have Force to Avert Attack

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP).—President Truman put squarely up to Congress today the decision on whether the draft should be continued after March 31, when the present law expires.

In his state-of-the-Union message the Chief Executive avoided a direct recommendation one way or the other but told the law makers:

1. In a world where "strength on the part of peace-loving nations is still the greatest deterrent to aggression," this nation must be strong enough to defeat, and therefore to forestall, any attack.

2. The services are "encountering serious difficulties" in maintaining even the reduced post-war man-power levels.

3. The War Department will make its recommendations as to the fate of the selective service act, based on the results of the current recruitment campaign, in plenty of time for action before March 31.

Then he added: "The responsibility for maintaining our armed forces at the strength necessary for our national safety rests with the Congress."

Mr. Truman coupled that resume of the draft situation with two direct recommendations:

A trained citizens' reserve which he said can "best be accomplished through universal training."

Merging of the armed forces into a single department as a way to "cut costs and at the same time enhance our national security."

"In our steady progress toward a more rational world order," the President said, "the need for large armed forces is progressively declining; but the stabilizing force of American military strength must not be weakened until our hopes are fully realized.

"When a system of collective security under the United Nations has been established, we shall be willing to lead in collective disarmament, but, until such a system becomes a reality, we must not again allow our weakness to invite attack."

He said the Army, cutting down toward a projected July 1, 1947, total of 1,070,000 men, and the Navy and Marine Corps, planning to average 571,000 for the current fiscal year, are "barely sufficient to carry out the duties which our foreign policy requires."

"We should like an Army and Navy composed entirely of long-term volunteers," the President said, "but in spite of liberal inducements the basic needs of the Army are not now being met by voluntary enlistments."

House Republicans under the leadership of Speaker Martin soon may launch a drive for an international ban on peace-time military conscription.

Opposition To Draft By GOP Seen

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—House Republicans under the leadership of Speaker Martin soon may launch a drive for an international ban on peacetime military conscription.

And, until such a drive meets either success or failure, the membership of the new dominant party is expected to oppose any kind of universal-training program for this country.

Martin provided a strong hint that he still feels universal training should be sidetracked in his speech last Friday formally accepting the House speakership.

Calls For Disarmament

In that keynote address he called for an "adequate, efficient national defense, while we endeavor to persuade the rest of the world to adopt a practical formula for disarmament and the outlawing of war."

It was Martin's opposition last year that weighed heavily in the House Military Committee's decision to defer action on President Truman's request for universal training.

Then minority leader, Martin told the committee he believed the United States first should "work for the abolition of compulsory military service" through the United Nations, meanwhile maintaining "a strong army and a strong navy and a strong air force in being."

Early Action Expected

Now under Republican domination, the Military Committee is expected to give early consideration to Martin's 1946 resolution calling for international arms reduction and renouncement of conscription.

One of the most ardent backers of this idea is Representative Arends, of Illinois, third-ranking majority member of the merged Armed Services Committee and Republican whip of the House. Another is Representative Short (R., Mo.), next only to Chairman Andrews (R., N.Y.) in committee ranking.

"The world will never be sure of peace until we have reduced armies and military establishments to a reasonable level," Martin said last year. "I propose that the most simple and logical step in that direction is to work for the abolition of compulsory military service. It is a step which would cost no nation a single dollar, but, on the contrary, would reduce every nation's burden."

Rush On To Vote More Billions To Vets 1947

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—The rush is on in Congress to shell out more billions to veterans.

Lawmakers are tossing in bills and getting campaigns under way for such things as:

1. A soldier's bonus;

2. Immediate cashing of terminal-leave bonds, and

3. A boost in Government payments to veterans going to school or learning new jobs by working at them.

Cost Put At 20 To 30 Billion

Eighteen of the first 157 bills received by the House would do something for those who served in the armed forces. These eighteen cover programs that might total $20,000,000,000 or $30,000,000,000 in new outlays to ex-GI's.

And Representative Edith Nourse (R., Mass.), the new chairman, is concentrating on plans to keep the House Veterans Committee busy.

"One of the first things," she said, "will be to lift the $200 ceiling on allowances for on-the-job training. It is manifestly unfair."

She Plans Five-Way Aid

Mrs. Rogers introduced a bill on that. So did several other legislators.

Furthermore, Mrs. Rogers has ideas about:

Increasing the number of amputees eligible for free cars (Congress provided $30,000,000 for this purpose last year); expanding out patient treatment to help more veterans and relieve the shortage of hospital beds; extending educational provisions of the GI Bill of Rights, and improving arrangements for supplying artificial limbs.

For Terminal Pay In Cash

Judging by the number of new bills, a heavy demand is building up for immediate redemption some $2,700,000,000 worth of terminal leave bonds. These were given to enlisted men by the last Congress to make up for the fact that officers got long leaves with pay before they were discharged. But enlisted men have to hang on to their bonds for at least five years even though the bonds draw two and a half per cent interest.

Representative Patman (D., Texas), author of one bond-cashing bill, said it "wouldn't cost the Government a cent, because the Government can borrow money to redeem the bonds at less than the interest it pays on them."

Pace Sponsors Bonus Bill

Patman, along with Representative McCormack (D., Mass.) and former Representative Fred M. Vinson, new chief justice of the United States, was co-sponsor of the World War I bonus bill.

Representative Pace (D., Ga.) has come forward with a World War II bonus bill. It would ante up $4 a day for service at home and $5 for service overseas.

Representative Landis (R., Ind.) figuring on reintroducing a bonus bill for $1 a day for duty at home and $1.50 for overseas service, said the cost of such payments has been estimated at $4,000,000,000. On that basis, the check for the Pace bill might reach $12,000,000,000 or $15,000,000,000.

Would Extend Pension System

Some of the new legislation would go back to help veterans of World War I. Representative Beckworth (D., Texas) would extend the pension system to cover partially disabled veterans of that war whose disability was not service connected.

This would extend to these men the same benefits, ranging from $25 to $100 a month, now granted Spanish-American war veterans.

Another Beckworth bill would transport overseas all families of soldiers serving there and provide housing for them, all for free.

PRESIDENT URGES VET BENEFITS HALT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—President Truman proposed today that the government stop where it is on benifits to veterans, even as a rush developed to allot more billions for them.

"Except for minor adjustments," Mr. Truman said in his annual message to Congress, "I believe that our program of benefits for veterans is now complete."

But members of Congress are tossing in bills and starting campaigns for such things as a soldier's bonus, immediate cashing of terminal leave bonds, and bigger government payments to veterans attending school or learning new jobs while working at them.

The president cited what the government is doing already for former servicemen—schooling, job-training, hospitalization, disability payments, loans, insurance. Aside from terminal leave and mustering-out pay, he said, the program for veterans of all wars is costing more than $7,000,000,000 a year—a fifth of the government's budget.

"In the long run," he said, "the success of the program will not be measured by the number of veterans obtaining financial aid or by the number of dollars we spend.

"History will judge us not by the money we spend, but by the further contribution we enable our veterans to make to their country. In considering any additional legislation, that must be our criterion."

U.S.-Made Artificial Eye Replace German Makes

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—The war and the plastic industry have given the German glass optic a black eye in the American market.

The Army said today that the plastic artificial eye, developed in 1943, has been used by more than 7,500 former soldiers, been adopted by the Veterans Administration and has "almost completely replaced glass eyes" which, until the war, were largely of German manufacture.

The Army Medical Corps listed among other advantages of the plastic eye its ability to withstand breakage, resistance against corrosion and close simulation of the human eye.

The plastic eye was developed by a former major in the Dental Corps, Stanley F. Erpf, of San Francisco.

Asks Corporate Aid to Veterans

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP).—A $500,000,000 government corporation to assist war veterans was proposed today by Representative James E. Van Zandt, Republican, of Pennsylvania. The legislation, a revision of a measure sponsored last year by Representative Bernard W. Kearney, Republican, of New York, would create the Veterans Employment and National Economic Development Corporation. It would make loans to veterans, "create business opportunities," help municipalities with self-liquidating projects of benefit to veterans and purchase surplus war materials for resale. It also would guarantee loans made to veterans by private banks.

Terminal Pay For Survivors

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—Widows, children and other survivors of former soldiers who died after honorable discharge from the Army and who did not claim their terminal leave pay prior to death are entitled to collect these payments, the War Department announced today. An estimated $40,000,000 is due eligible survivors.

Baruch Praises Soviet Plan for Disarmament

Says It Could Bring Warless Age if Provision Is Made for Strict Enforcement

CHARLESTON, S. C., Jan. 6 (AP).—Bernard M. Baruch, author of the American plan for atomic energy control, declared today that Russian disarmament proposals could lead the world into a warless age if they include necessary iron-clad enforcement provisions.

In an interview at Hobcaw Barony, his winter home overlooking Georgetown Harbor, Mr. Baruch said:

"If the Russian proposals for disarmament are based upon a study that will result in a commission which will say how many troops, how many constabulary and how many various agents each country can have, with limitations of various kinds of arms to each nation, with a system of international control and international inspection, without interference and with full access into each country to see that there are no violators—and if any are found, swift and sure punishment is set up for violators of any of the terms, with no escape of a violator by veto or otherwise—they will have led the world into a warless age.

"War will have been eliminated and mankind will be free, free as we have never been before, to give more time to intellectual and spiritual pursuits that will lift it higher than ever before above the other animals."

Mr. Baruch resigned Saturday as American representative on the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission. He came to his home here for a vacation.

Referring to former Senator Warren R. Austin, American member of the United Nations Security Council, Mr. Baruch said: "I am satisfied that Senator Austin understands the problem. I have full confidence he will carry it out thoroughly and wisely."

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—Warren R. Austin, American member of the United Nations Security Council, headed here today for top-level conferences on the atomic-disarmament problems shoved at him by Bernard M. Baruch's surprise resignation.

Baruch stepped down as this Government's atomic energy spokesman at United Nations headquarters with the two-fold explanation to President Truman that: since the United Nation's special atomic commission had adopted the United States' plan for world-wide nuclear controls and since the whole issue now moves into the Security Council as part of the disarmament task, Austin should take over.

Change In Tactics Seen

The week-end change touched off immediate speculation here about a possible softening of American tactics in negotiating with Russia on the whole atomic-energy question.

Austin has made a reputation at New York United Nations sessions as an advocate and practitioner of co-operation with his Soviet colleagues, particularly Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Baruch, on the contrary, often dealt bluntly with the Soviet and other commission members, stating an American plan or proposal and declaring they could take it or leave it.

10-To-0 Vote

Against adamant Russian opposition, he insisted that the great powers in the Security Council relinquish their right to veto punishment for infraction of atomic controls.

While Russia had previously accepted the principle that the proposed Atomic Development Authority should operate on some majority basis, devoid of a veto, Gromyko stubbornly fought any modification of the veto in the Security Council.

The twelve-member Atomic Commission last week voted only 10 to 0 for the American control plan because Russia and Poland abstained.

Halt In Bomb-Making?

The punishment-veto issue thus remains, and there is some belief that Austin's methods in trying to settle it, while adhering to Baruch's policies will differ vastly from his methods.

On another matter, some authorities are wondering whether Baruch, in his letter of resignation to the President, may have hinted a deadline after which the United States may stop making atomic bombs.

For the most part, the letter reviewed the accomplishments of the Atomic Commission and the reasons why Austin should not take over. Then it said:

"I see no reason why this country should not continue the making of bombs, at least until the ratification of the treaty."

Those Now In Control

Under the American plan, world atomic control would be established by a new international treaty under which the United States would slowly yield up its atomic information.

With Baruch's withdrawal, control of atomic policy passes to a group of men under the President, notably Secretary of State Byrnes, Under Secretary of State Acheson and David E. Lilienthal, chairman of the domestic Atomic Energy Commission.

Acheson and Lilienthal drafted an atomic report months ago that laid the basis for the so-called Baruch plan.

However, they laid less emphasis than Baruch did on the need for rigid punishment for atomic violators and on the veto question. Their chief theory, which may be the basis of the Government's instructions to Austin now, is this:

If ever a major nation kicks over the atom-bomb traces, every other nation will have a warning of that country's warlike intention, and the reality of war will ensue regardless of vetos and punishments.

Centralized U.N. Effort Foreseen Under Austin

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—The American delegation to the United Nations began a campaign today to centralize its efforts under former Senator Warren R. Austin, of Vermont, when the Senate confirms his appointment as chief delegate and Ambassador of the United States.

His widespread staff was reported busy with plans to consolidate offices as much as possible in crowded New York and to rally around for a changeover in the leadership affecting the American representation on important United Nations organs.

Chief among these is the Atomic Energy Commission, from which Bernard M. Baruch resigned unexpectedly Saturday with the recommendation that Austin carry on his work.

Johnson To Continue Debate

The resignation of Baruch, whose presence as an "elder statesman" had tended to discourage any idea of one-man command of the United States delegation, left Austin facing enormously increased responsibilities.

When he finally becomes eligible to sit at the Security Council table at Lake Success, however, he is expected to leave much of the actual debate to Herschel V. Johnson, who has served as interim delegate and now becomes Austin's chief deputy and retains ambassadorial rank.

Austin is expected to divide his time between new offices to be set up for him here and at the State Department in Washington and trips about the country to win support for international co-operation.

Austin was expected to retain some of Baruch's chief associates and technical advisers among a personnel of 50 to 60 in the United States atomic delegation, especially John M. Hancock.

Two Offices To Fill

The atomic office has been maintained separately in the Empire State Building, while the remainder of the American delegation is now in a building on Broadway, in upper midtown Manhattan, and elsewhere.

Still to be filled are the place on the new United Nations Trusteeship Council for League of Nations mandates and the spot on the Economic and Social Council from which John G. Winant resigned to retire to private life.

The Security Council, with Johnson still in the American seat, was scheduled to meet tomorrow to take up a crowded calendar topped by the Council of Foreign Ministers' plan for United Nations administration of Trieste under the Italian peace treaty.

Marshall Flies Tomorrow

NANKING, Tuesday, Jan. 7 (AP)—General Marshall will leave Wednesday morning by air for Washington. When asked if the general would return to China, his spokesman said: "No comment."

General Marshall called on Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek Monday night to say good-by.

General Marshall will be accompanied by his executive officers, Col. J. Harte Cauthey. He is expected to fly to the United States via Honolulu where Mrs. Marshall is spending the winter.

New York Architect To Plan U.N. Capital

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—The United Nations today placed the planning of its permanent capital in the hands of Wallace K. Harrison, New York skyscraper architect and Rockefeller associate.

The sixteen-nation headquarters advisory committee, in a statement declaring "speed is of the essence," prompted an unofficial estimate that the first building unit might be completed on the East River bank within three years rather than five to seven years as originally estimated.

The committee memorandum suggested that Harrison and his aides look into the possibilities of housing and related facilities for personnel and families "on or off the site" donated by John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Harrison, president of the Architectural League, had a hand in designing Rockefeller Center, Bush House in London, the new Idlewild airport here and other projects including the Theme Building of the 1939-1940 World's Fair (Trylon and Perisphere).

RUSS REQUEST CONSIDERED

U.S. Has No Extradition Treaty Affecting Alexico

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—The State Department said today the United States lacks any extradition treaty with Russia which might call for the forcible return of Kyril Alexiev, former Soviet trade official, to what he termed "the hell of a dictatorship" in his homeland.

Pending further study of international law, however, the State Department left open the decision on whether to accede to the Soviet Embassy's request that Alexiev be turned over "as a criminal."

Not Bar By Itself

The absence of an extradition treaty alone would not bar the surrender of a foreign national if his Government submitted clear proofs of criminality, officials told a reporter. The United States lacks extradition treaties with several other nations.

Political as well as legal considerations are involved in the case of the former employé of the Soviet Embassy in Mexico, who is the latest in a series of voluntary expatriates from Soviet Russia.

Officials indicated the decision would not be based entirely on legalistic grounds.

Thus far they have found no direct precedent to govern this country's reply to. A demand made Saturday by the embassy, charging Alexiev or "Alekseev" had "embezzled a considerable amount of money" before quitting his post in November. Alexiev is now in hiding in the United States along with his wife and two children, according to an attorney, Martin Richmond.

Other Charges Added

The embassy, in a statement, also accused him of treachery, treason, provocation, slander and failure to go home when he was supposed to.

The search for precedents showed that in one case Alexandre Barmine, Soviet diplomat who fled from his post in the Balkans, came to the United States as an immigrant from Greece and thus had a different status than Alexiev.

The United States declined to hand Barmine over to Soviet authorities, as it did Victor Kravchenko, former technical expert of the Soviet Purchasing Commission. Soviet authorities contended Kravchenko was a member of the Russian armed forces.

PRESIDENT CALLS MARSHALL HOME

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6— (AP) President Truman today summoned Gen. George C. Marshall home from China to report on conditions in that war ravaged country where American hopes for early unification of the Nationalist and Communist forces suffered a major setback.

The White House announced the President's action, but when reporters inquired of Press Secretary Charles Ross whether Marshall would return to China, Ross said he could not amplify the official disclosure in any way.

Marshall, the Army's wartime chief of staff and one of the architects of allied victory over Germany and Japan, went to Nanking in December, 1945, as President Truman's special ambassador to try to promote unity of the two great factions dividing the country.

Hasn't Failed, Is Claim

Officials here do not feel that he has failed in his effort but say rather than in the American view it is the Chinese who have thus far failed to achieve the political organization of their country which the United States considers essential to peace in the Far East.

Indications were that the President's action in directing Marshall to come home was based on the general's estimate that at least for the time being he had done all he could toward the accomplishment of a uniform political order throughout China.

It is felt by authorities here that if there had been the slightest chance in the near future of persuading the North China Communists to enter the government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and give up their independent armed forces, Marshall would have remained in China to see that possibility through.

His order to come home follows what diplomatic authorities consider his prime work there. He is credited with assisting Gen. Chiang in winning acceptance last month of a new Chinese constitution which may provide the framework for bringing the Communists into the government later on. The constitution in its main provisions had earlier won approval of Communist leaders though they had refused to participate in the assembly that finally adopted it.

Effective Next December

The constitution will become effective next December. Meanwhile, it is expected here that the government will be progressively reorganized under Chiang and if this proceeds along relatively liberal lines American officials still hold some hope that an atmosphere favorable for Communist participation in a Chinese coalition government will be created.

In the meantime, there is the more immediate problem of American assistance for the distressed Chinese economy. Lend lease shipments to China ended late last year, UNRRA assistance is now rapidly tapering off and the American government is still withholding the $500,000,000 loan which Marshall had promised the Chinese would be theirs if they could achieve political unity.

GOP Congress Eager To Watch Foreign Policy

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—The new Congress is showing signs of a determination to keep a constant finger on this country's foreign-policy pulse.

A survey of legislation thus far proposed in the House produces evidence that Secretary of State Byrnes will have to watch developments on Capitol Hill closely in coming months to prevent a conflict between diplomatic and legislative policies.

"Ample Precedent"

Some sentiment has already developed in the House Foreign Affairs Committee behind a move to call Byrnes before a joint congressional session, public or private, for a comprehensive review of such issues as tariffs, trade, cartels, disarmament and universal training.

Representative Mundt (R., S.D.), a member of the House Committee, said there is "ample precedent for such a session."

"We have heard about foreign policy from former Prime Minister Churchill of Britain and from Madame Chiang Kai-shek of China. Let's hear about it now from an American," Mundt said.

Four Resolutions Cited

Illustrating the interest of Congress members in foreign affairs, resolutions already have been introduced calling for:

1. The establishment of "appropriate" international machinery for control and reduction of armaments and weapons of war.

2. Congressional instructions to all future United States delegations to international conferences to "advocate and urge" freedom of religion, speech and the press.

3. An expression of formal disapproval of Yugoslavia's action in imprisoning Archbishop Aloysius Stepinac "and in other persecutions of Roman Catholics."

4. Authority for the House Interstate Commerce Committee to investigate the "effect of cartels on commerce with foreign nations."

Immigration Fight Looms

Simultaneously, prospects of a fight over immigration, an issue in which the State Department has a direct and deep interest, became virtually certain.

Representative Celler (D., N.Y.) called for emergency liberalization of immigration laws to permit the immediate admission of 250,000 of Europe's homeless.

As a countermove, Representative Pace (D., Ga.) introduced a measure that would bar immigration altogether at any time when more than 100 persons in the United States are unemployed.

Italian Premier's Hopes Rise

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—Prime Minister Alcide de Gasperi of Italy called on James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State, today and said afterward it was a "good beginning" for his mission of getting America economic aid.

The Italian Government leader was reported by informed officials to have emphasized to Byrnes Italy's need of financial assistance during 1947.

Hopes For Further Talk

De Gasperi said afterward that he had not gone into detail but hoped to continue his talk with Byrnes. A formal dinner tonight in his honor was sponsored by the Secretary of State. Five Cabinet officers, and Senate and House Republican leaders were invited to the official function.

As de Gaspari began his round of official calls, Government officials disclosed that Italy's chances for a $100,000,000 loan had improved substantially over the weekend.

The Export-Import Bank, heretofore an opponent of the loan, was reported to have switched to approval after a change in the Italian application.

To Make Export Goods

A revised request, making it certain that the American funds would be used almost exclusively by Italian industries manufacturing goods for export, was reported to have been the deciding factor in the bank's switch.

Embassy attaches said de Gasperi, disturbed by food riots in his homeland, hopes to convince American authorities they should allocate more wheat and other grains to Italy.

BYRNES HAILS GASPERI AS ITALY'S MAIN HOPE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—Secretary of State Byrnes, declaring Premier Alcide de Gasperi of Italy was "confronted with the extremists of Right and Left," said tonight that "we are anxious to help in the dark days ahead."

"I know of no man in the world who today is faced with more difficult tasks," said Mr. Byrnes at a dinner for the Christian Democrat leader and his delegation of economic experts here to seek a loan and post-UNRRA help.

Italian industries "have no coal and the people have no food," Mr. Byrnes said. "Unemployment has led to unrest and unrest has led to riots." Mr. Byrnes declared the task of reconciling the Italian Government to sign the peace treaty "calls for a great man of courage."

"In Italy there is no man of stouter heart and greater courage," he added. "If he can't do it, it can't be done."

Dr. de Gasperi, seated between Mr. Byrnes and Senator Arthur Vandenberg, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, voiced "the hope that the American nation will continue to be the champion of liberty and justice."

DE GASPERI UNABLE TO VISIT NEW HAVEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 — (AP) The State department informed Representative Foote (R-Conn) today that Prime Minister de Gasperi of Italy will be unable to visit New Haven, Conn., on his current trip to the United States.

Foote, at the request of Frank Mongillo, chairman of the New Haven Relief for Italy Drive, had invited the prime minister to visit that city to aid in raising its $100,000 Italian relief quota.

Secretary of State Byrnes wrote Foote that a strict schedule must be followed by the prime minister which will not permit acceptance of such invitations.

Two Bills Are Proposed For Easing Immigration

Entry of Polish Veterans and D. P.s Is Asked

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—Measures to relax immigration barriers for displaced persons and Polish war veterans were introduced today by Representatives Adolph J. Sobath, Democrat of Illinois and George G. Sadowski, Democrat of Michigan.

Mr. Sabath's measure would permit the entry of displaced persons equal to the total of unused immigration quotas for all nationalities during the fiscal years ending next June 30 and June 30, 1948. The displaced persons would be admitted without regard to the country of their birth.

Mr. Sadowski proposed that any person who fought in the Polish Army between Dec. 7, 1941, and May 8, 1945, be admitted to the United States as a non-quota immigrant. The bill would apply also to wives of these veterans and their unmarried children younger than eighteen years from the date the bill became law.

New Head Of War Probe Body

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)—Senator Brewster (R., Maine) today was elected chairman of the Senate War Investigating Committee, replacing Senator Kilgore (D., W.Va.).

Kilgore said he would remain a member of the committee.

Polish Assets In U. S. Unfrozen By Treasury

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Treasury today "unfroze" Polish assets in the United States. They had been frozen since early in the war.

They were valued at $9,300,000 at that time. The Treasury said there was no newer estimate.

The Polish Government designated the National Bank of Poland as its agent to certify which claimants are entitled to the assets. The certifying procedure is used to keep the assets out of the hands of former enemies.

Discrimination Laid To British On Sales

New York, Jan. 6 (AP)—Dr. David Tannenbaum, director of the economic bureau of the Palestine Foundation Fund, says Palestinian business men are unable to buy $50,000,000 worth of goods in the United States "because of the discrimination practiced by the British against American manufacturers and business men."

Tannenbaum said the would-be purchasers include both Arabs and Jews and that they are in the market for raw materials and machinery.

Business men in Palestine, he declared, have $45,000,000 in dollar credits in the United States, but they cannot import except under license. "The British don't grant the licenses," he said. "The Palestinians must buy in England, and their deliveries are very slow."

BRITAIN DRAWS ON BIG CREDIT HERE

Washington, Jan. 6 (A. P.).—Great Britain drew upon her $3,750,000,000 loan from this country for another $200,000,000 in spending funds as the year began, Treasury reports showed today. This draft, paid by the Treasury on January 2, brought Britain's total use of the credit to $800,000,000.

The $200,000,000 also sent this country's deficit on the first operating day of 1947 to $230,916,549 for the fiscal year, which ends next June 30.

The British are expected to draw another $400,000,000 or $500,000,000 before the end of June.

2 DEFENDANTS DENIED BAIL IN TREASON CASE

Best And Chandler Are Given Time To Obtain Counsel, However

1947

Boston, Jan. 6 (AP) — Douglas Chandler, 54, and Robert Henry Best, 51, American newspaper men, were denied bail today, but given time to obtain counsel before pleading to charges of aiding the Nazis "willfully and traitorously."

Chandler, a Chicagoan known as "Paul Revere" of Radio Berlin, and Best, a native of Sumter county, South Carolina, were returned to East Cambridge jail after Federal Judge Francis J. W. Ford postponed their arraignment.

Judge Ford did not set a date for the trial—New England's first treason hearing since the Revolutionary era—changed from Washington to Boston because the plane carrying the defendants from imprisonment in Germany made a forced landing at Westover Field in Massachusetts.

Bail Is Opposed

Tom DeWolfe, special assistant to the United States Attorney General, argued against bail and told the court the Government must make elaborate preparations to bring witnesses from Germany and other parts of Europe.

Best told the judge he was "not interested" in bail, but Chandler, his hands clasped and fingers moving nervously, requested it because, he said, he needed hospitalization or medical attention for "my present physical and psychical condition."

Without that, he added, "I do not feel myself capable of organizing my defense properly."

Talks To Daughter

After leaving the courtroom, Chandler was permitted to talk for more than an hour to a young woman identified by United States marshals as his daughter, Laurette Chandler, of Baltimore.

Presecutor DeWolfe told newsmen he thought the pair would be arraigned "in about a week."

When booked in Boston, Chandler described himself as a journalist "representing the National Geographic Society of Washington" and Best said he was a journalist "representing the United Press."

The death sentence is mandatory upon conviction of treason for which Best and Chandler were originally indicted in 1943 and again on December 30 last by a Federal grand jury in Boston.

STATUS FOR GUAM SOUGHT

Bill Would Create Territory—Asks Marianas Control

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP) — The bill to give Guam territorial status and place the former Japanese mandate of the Marianas Islands under a United States Development Commission, has been introduced by Representative Robert A. Grant, Republican, of Indiana.

It would provide for appointment of a governor for Guam by the President of the United States. A unicameral legislature, with power to override a gubernatorial veto, would hold legislative authority for the island.

The United States Secretary of the Interior would have control of all fisheries in the Marianas, and could grant no exclusive fishing rights to anyone. The Federal Security Administration would appoint a medical officer to serve as surgeon general of the island.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS RULING ON RENT CEILINGS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. (AP)—The Supreme Court gave its backing today to a lower court finding that nothing in the Price Control Act requires rent ceilings to be set high enough to assure property owners "an adequate fixed return on the investment."

The court refused to review a decision, given by the Emergency Court of Appeals in a landlord's test case from New York City, that the proper standard for determining such ceilings is whether they will provide the rental housing industry with a net return equal to that "enjoyed in the most recent period in which rents had not been influenced by defense activities."

Leaves Finding in Force

Actually the Supreme Court had nothing of its own to say on the point but its bare order left the emergency court's finding in full force. The emergency court was set up to consider price control questions.

The petitioners attacked the whole basis on which rent ceilings generally have been determined. They have argued that since the law requires that rents be "fair and equitable" they are entitled to the same sort of treatment given utilities under the rule of a fair return on investment.

The high court's refusal to review the case took on particular importance in view of the current pressure from property owners for revision of ceilings.

In other rulings today the court:

1. Overturned an order by the Interstate Commerce Commission which had sought to limit the type of service to be rendered by Seatrain Lines, inc., a freight car carrying ship route between New York and New Orleans and Texas City.

2. Ruled in a sharply disputed 5-4 decision that manufacturers making and selling patented articles under license from the patent holder, can attack the validity of the patent in litigation to recover royalties if their agreements with the patent holder include price fixing revisions.

Other Decisions

The court also:

Dismissed a petition by the Chronicle and Gazette Publishing Company, Inc., of Portsmouth, N.H. for review of a state law holding maximum charges for political advertising down to the rates charged commercial advertisers. The newspaper contended that the law violates the rights of freedom of the press. A majority of the high court held that there was no substantial federal question involved. Justices Douglas, Murphy and Rutledge dissented.

Denied the Interstate Natural Gas Company, inc., a pipeline supplier operating in the Monroe field of Louisiana, a review of a decision that the Federal Power Commision may regulate its rates.

In the rent case the petitioners argued that 1939, chosen as the base year for fixing rents in the New York area, was a depression year for apartment owners there and that 1940 would be a proper base.

The government replied that net return at the time of the appeal was more than twice that of 1939.

The rent control test was instituted by the 315 West 97th Street Realty Company, inc., the Odem Corporation, Maple-81st Street, inc., and 1165 Park Avenue Corporation.

Drop Is 10 To 30% With Added Declines Expected

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP) — That spoiled darling of the war and post-war years—the used car—has suddenly slipped from earlier towering prices by from 10 to 30 per cent in most sections of the nation, and many dealers agree that further declines are in the offing.

One of Boston's largest dealers in used cars predicted that "prices will be down 20 to 40 per cent from recent peaks within 30 to 90 days."

In a crossnation survey today by the Associated Press, most dealers reported the biggest decline in the last month was in prices of slightly used 1946 models, which have dropped by from $300 to $1,000.

Gradual Drop Expected

In this they saw at least a start toward a "buyer's market." Some regarded it as a "stop" sign on how high factory prices could go without cutting off a sizable part of the market.

The sharp drop in the demand for "just anything that'll run" was ascribed to several causes.

A Los Angeles dealer said "people don't come in with rolls of bills any more."

"People can't go the prices," said Bert Baker, Detroit dealer. "Before the public was taking them away; now you have to go out and sell them."

A Philadelphia dealer said, "the public is sitting it out," and Henry Naytorena in San Francisco expected a gradual drop corresponding to increased production.

Wait For Newer Models

However, Washington dealers reported sales falling off considerably, while buyers wait for newer models, but predicted "no drastic decrease in prices on used cars at present."

Atlanta and New Orleans dealers agreed prices were likely to go lower in the latter part of the year as new car production steps up.

Here is the current used car situation in brief in a number of key points:

New York—Ten to twenty-five per cent decline, with "jalopies" off 50 per cent or more.

Chicago—Generally fifteen per cent under the peak.

Detroit — "Considerable drop, especially on 1946 models."

Philadelphia — Twenty-five per cent decline "across the boards" and few takers.

Conditions In Washington

Washington — No drastic decrease, but old models lower.

Atlanta—Fifteen to eighteen per cent drop.

New Osleans—Most models $150 to $300 lower.

Boston—Ten to thirty per cent from top.

Kansas City—Down $150 to $300; 1941 models holding up best.

Los Angeles—Light cars off ten per cent, heavier cars more.

Dallas—Old model large cars off one third; light cars off $300.

Denver—Old cars off 25 per cent; later models ten per cent.

San Francisco—Two hundred dollars under black market peaks, but $200 to $400 above former ceilings.

The situation in the "1946 used car" field was described by one source as due to about a fourth of the 1946 factory production being syphoned off almost at once by offers of from $500 to $2,000 more than factory list prices.

Sharp Cut In Premiums

The sharp cut in the premiums over factory list prices was shown in these reports of prices:

New York found 1946 used cars 25 per cent off in the last month.

Kansas City reported 1946 Fords that brought $2,250 were now sold at $1,950. In Philadelphia the price dropped from $1,900 to $1,500, in Detroit from $2,200 to $1,850. Philadelphia reported a Chevrolet 1946 Sedan that formerly brought $2,100 now was cut to $1,700.

Los Angeles reported 1946 De Soto's were marked down $300. Philadelphia quoted prices of a 1946 Buick super sedan at $2,400, against its peak of $3,000, and 1946 Cadillac sedans at $3,500 to $4,000, against a peak of $5,000.

Used-Car Prices Drop Here

Drops of 10 to 25 per cent in the prices of used cars in Baltimore in the last three months growing out of a sharp falling off in demand were reported last night by representative automobile dealers.

Not only are fewer retail prospects coming to showrooms and used-car lots, said dealers, but the previously heavy demand from Southern buyers for used motor cars in wholesale lots of four to six at a clip has slumped badly.

The feeling here is that prices of used cars will seek even lower levels.

Feeling Effects Of Strike

Dealers declare that many prospective buyers who make a down payment by trading in their old car "just can't keep up the relatively stiff monthly payments."

The situation is relatively better here than in the rest of the country generally, said one dealer, who added, however:

"The working man is just now beginning to feel the effects of the strikes of last year. He misses the wages he lost, and he has drawn savings out of the bank to live on.

"Now that his car is worn out and he must have new transportation he is finding it difficult to get enough cash to put down to bring the monthly payments within his reach to meet. It's all a question of supply and demand, and the demand isn't here."

U.S. DEMANDS REDS GIVE UP MILITARY CONTROL OF DAIREN

Calls for an Open World Port Under Chinese Civilian Administration.

TERSE NOTE SENT

First Formal Reaction to Ousting of U. S. Naval Ship from Port.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. — (AP) The United States vigorously prodded Russia and China today with a demand that the Manchurian port of Dairen be opened to the world under Chinese civilian administration and free of Soviet military control.

The State Department published the text of a crisply worded note which American diplomats delivered last Friday to the Soviet and Chinese foreign offices in Moscow and Nanking.

Answer to "Ship Incident"

This was the first formal reaction in Washington to the Soviet order of Dec. 20 which summarily ended the stay of a United States naval ship on a diplomatic mission in Dairen. The vessel was sent hurrying to sea under what some Americans called an out-and-out ultimatum.

The ship had overstayed its leave while officers and Consul General H. Merrell Benninghoff tried to get Soviet permission for three American civilians, a businessman and two newspapermen, to enter Dairen. Permission was refused.

The note published today informed the Chinese and Russian governments that the United States considers the present situation in Dairen to be "unsatisfactory" and believes it should be changed in line with a Soviet-Chinese agreement of Aug. 14, 1945.

Skipping over any diplomatic inquiries of the usual kind about whether the Russians and Chinese had done anything about the situation, the United States pointedly commented:

"This government perceives no reason why there should be further delay in reopening the port, under Chinese administration, to international commerce as contemplated in the aforementioned agreement.

"The government of the United States, while fully appreciating that this is a matter for direct negotiation between the Chinese and Soviet governments, feels that it has a responsibility to American interests in general to raise the question with the two directly interested governments.

"It hopes that the abnormal conditions now prevailing at Dairen may be terminated at an early date and that normal conditions may be established which will permit American citizens to visit and reside at Dairen in pursuit of their legitimate activities.

" x x x This government also wishes to express the hope that agreement can be reached soon for the resumption of traffic on the Chinese Changchun railway."

Dairen a Key Port

Dairen is one of the key ports opening on Manchuria. The railway, which is supposed to carry both Russian and Chinese traffic, leads north to the city of Changchun. Under the treaty Dairen was slated to be put under Chinese civilian administration as soon as arrangements could be made between the Moscow and Nanking governments. But Russian military and naval forces will remain, by treaty, in control of nearby Port Arthur, a naval base.

At the time the naval courier ship, carrying supplies and mail for Consul General Benninghoff, was ordered out of Dairen the State Department said the Russians acted within their legal rights and declined to go further into the incident. Today's message, it was noted avoided any complaint about the vessel's being ordered out.

In some ways, however, it represented a stronger American policy than that initially apparent when the incident of Dec. 20 occurred.

Officials emphasized that the note's language was directed at both the Chinese and the Russians and said they did not intend to interfere between those two responsible governments. They also said they had no reason to believe that the Russians would reject the proposition to get out of Dairen.

LONDON, JAN.6-(AP)-BRITAIN GOT A BLUEPRINT FOR AN "ENTIRELY NEW POLICY" TOWARD GREECE TODAY EVEN AS COMMUNIST-RIGHTIST FEUDING WAS REPORTED TO HAVE SPREAD TO ATHENS ITSELF, RESULTING IN THE DEATH OF FOUR PERSONS.

A COMMITTEE OF FOUR LABORITES, TWO CONSERVATIVES AND A LIBERAL IN PARLIAMENT, ON THE BASIS OF A TWO-WEEK VISIT TO GREECE LAST AUGUST, YESTERDAY URGED THAT BRITAIN PULL HER TROOPS OUT OF GREECE, GUARANTEE GREEK FRONTIERS AND SUPPORT FORMATION OF A NEW ALL-PARTY GREEK GOVERNMENT FOR "THE ESTABLISHMENT OF LAW, ORDER, INTERNAL PEACE AND THE RESTORATION OF CONSTITUTIONAL LIBERTIES."

ATHENS POLICE MEANWHILE REPORTED THAT THREE MEN AND A WOMAN WERE SLAIN AND A FIFTH PERSON WOUNDED SATURDAY NIGHT IN GANG-STYLE SHOOTINGS BETWEEN COMMUNISTS AND MEMBERS OF XITES, EXTREME RIGHTIST GROUP, IN THE PLAKA SECTION NEAR THE ANCIENT ACROPOLIS.

THE PARLIAMENTARY COMMITTEE'S REPORT WENT TO THEBRITISH CABINET, KING GEORGE II OF THE HELLENES AND THE GREEK ROYALIST-POPULIST GOVERNMENT OF PREMIER CONSTANTIN TSALDARIS.

THE REPORT RECOMMENDED THAT BRITAIN SUPPORT THE SETTING UP OF AN ALL-PARTY GOVERNMENT TO REPLACE THE TSALDARIS REGIME, WITH THE EXTREME LEFT POSSIBLY KEPT OUT, AND SUBSEQUENT NEW ELECTIONS ON "AN UP-TO-DATE REGISTER." TROOP WITHDRAWAL, IT SAID, SHOULD BE "SUBJECT TO CONSIDERATIONS OF STRATEGY AND HIGH POLICY," AND THE GREEK GOVERNMENT SHOULD ACCEPT A BRITISH FINANCIAL ADVISOR TO RECOMMEND "DRASTIC" TAX REFORM.

THE DELEGATION SAID IT WAS PROBABLE THAT SOME LEFTIST BANDS FIGHTING THE GOVERNMENT "RECEIVE AID AND ENCOURAGEMENT FROM THE OTHER SIDE OF THE FRONTIER," BUT TERMED IT A MISTAKE "TO ASSUME THAT THE ACTIVITIES OF THESE BANDS ARE ENTIRELY DUE TO FOREIGN INSPIRATION." IT ACCUSED RIGHT-WING BANDS OF "TERRORIZING VILLAGES AND EXACTING BLACKMAIL FROM ANYONE RICH ENOUGH TO PAY IT."

"THE GUARANTEEING BY BRITAIN OF THE PRESENT FRONTIERS OF GREECE," THE REPORT SAID, "WOULD GRATIFY THE GREEK PEOPLE AND REMOVE MANY OF THEIR ANXIETIES."

GREECE AND NEIGHBORING BULGARIA PRESENTED OPPOSING TERRITORIAL CLAIMS DURING NEGOTIATION OF THE TREATY WITH BULGARIA TO BE SIGNED BY THE ALLIES NEXT MONTH. GREECE ALSO HAS COMPLAINED OF ALLEGED FRONTIER VIOLATIONS BY ALBANIA, BULGARIA AND YUGOSLAVIA, AND THE UNITED NATIONS SECURITY COUNCIL HAS APPOINTED A COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE.

THE PARLIAMENTARY DELEGATION RECOMMENDED THAT ANY NEW GREEK GOVERNMENT OFFER CLEMENCY IF NOT GENERAL AMNESTY TO POLITICAL OFFENDERS AND RESTORE THE GENERAL COUNCIL OF LABOR AND TRADE UNION EXECUTIVES DEPOSED BY THE TSALDARIS GOVERNMENT.

LONDON NEWSPAPERS MEANWHILE DEMANDED STRONG MEASURES TO END VIOLENCE IN THE HOLY LAND. THE SUNDAY DISPATCH CALLED FOR "ALL-OUT METHODS," THE SUNDAY TIMES FOR "STERNER, DIRECT METHODS AGAINST THE TERRORISTS THEMSELVES." THE NEWS OF THE WORLD, DECLARING BRITAIN NEEDED "MORE PRACTICAL SUPPORT FROM THE U.S," SAID THE FACT OF "NEWS IN NEW YORK STATE" SEEMED TO "COLOR THE VIEW OF THE WHITE HOUSE."

IN ITS BROADCAST, HAGANAH BLAMED IRGUN ZVAI LEUMI AND THE SO-CALLED STERN GANG, EXTREMIST JEWISH UNDERGROUND GROUPS, FOR RECENT ATTACKS ON BRITISH TROOPS. ITS ANNOUNCER SAID HAGANAH WOULD "NOT ALLOW ZIONIST WORK ALL OVER PALESTINE AND THE HOPES OF A JEWISH NATION TO BE DESTROYED." ADD ADU-(D) - PALESTINE - XXX INDEPENDENCE

IRGUN ZVAI LEUMI, HOWEVER, IN ANOTHER UNDERGROUND-RADIO BROADCAST, SAID FLAME THROWERS WOULD BE USED FURTHER AGAINST THE BRITISH, AS THEY WERE LAST THURSDAY. THE BROADCASTER LISTED BRITISH CASUALTIES IN THURSDAY ATTACKS AS ONE OFFICER KILLED AND 20 SOLDIERS AND FIVE POLICEMEN WOUNDED. HE SAID UNDERGROUND CASUALTIES WERE ONLY TWO WOUNDED. HE REPORTED THAT THE FLAME THROWERS WERE CONVERTED FRUIT-TREE SPRAYERS.

MEANWHILE, TRAFFIC WAS STOPPED BY THE BLASTING OF A DEEP HOLE IN A HIGHWAY NORTH OF REHOBOTH, AND A POLICE GUARD CHASED OFF A GROUP THAT FIRED AT THE HADERA STATION OF THE HAIFA-TANTURA RAILWAY. NO CASUALTIES WERE REPORTED FROM EITHER INCIDENT.

THE GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCED 33 ARRESTS, FOUR OF THEM WOMEN, IN SEARCHES IN HADERA AND KAFAR ATTA, NORTH OF HAIFA, AND CONFIRMED THE TIGHTENING OF PALESTINE JEWISH AND ARAB NEWSPAPER CENSORSHIP IN THE PREVIOUS 24 HOURS TO AVOID HEIGHTENING "ALREADY TENSE PUBLIC FEELING." THE CENSORSHIP DOES NOT APPLY TO NEWS SENT ABROAD.

IN EGYPT, 11 BRITISH SOLDIERS WERE HURT, TWO DANGEROUSLY, IN A HAND-GRENADE ATTACK NEAR BENHA, 25 MILES NORTH OF CAIRO, ON A TRAIN TRAVELING TOWARD PALESTINE. UNKNOWN ASSAILANTS THREW TWO OR THREE GRENADES INTO ONE OF SEVERAL TROOP COACHES IN THE PASSENGER TRAIN, AND ONE GRENADE EXPLODED.

ON THE MEDITERRANEAN ISLAND OF CYPRUS, SOME 10,000 JEWS WERE BEING MOVED FROM TEMPORARY QUARTERS AT CARAOLOS INTERNMENT CAMP TO

30.24-72 43

A NEW WINTER SETTLEMENT OF NISSEN HUTS ON THE COAST AT XYLOTYMBOU. THEY STILL WILL BE BEHIND BARBED WIRE AND UNDER ARMED GUARD. THEY WERE TAKEN OFF SHIPS ON WHICH THEY TRIED TO ENTER PALESTINE IN DEFIANCE OF BRITISH IMMIGRATION QUOTAS.

HARMON ALSO MADE PUBLIC A SERIES OF CHARGES AND COUNTER CHARGES IN WHICH THE CONSTABLES SAID THAT THEY THEMSELVES HAD BEEN ACCUSED BY ONE OF THE UNRRA OFFICIALS OF EMPLOYING THIRD DEGREE TACTICS ON A GROUP OF EIGHT JEWS. THE OFFICERS ASSERTED THAT THESE ACCUSATIONS WERE DESIGNED TO DISCREDIT THE CONSTABULARY.

"WE HAVE NOTHING TO HIDE," SAID HARMON. "ANY TROOPERS WHO MISTREAT ANYONE WILL BE PUNISHED AND ANY WHO STRIKE BACK IN SELF DEFENSE WILL BE PROTECTED."

REED'S REPORT SAID THAT BUDA HAD OBTAINED AFFIDAVITS FROM EIGHT JEWS THAT THEY HAD BEEN MISTREATED BY CONSTABLES WHILE BEING INTERROGATED IN CONNECTION WITH THE GARROTING DEC. 14 OF A WOMAN AND HER NINE-YEAR-OLD SON. HE ASSERTED THAT THERE WAS NO EVIDENCE TO BACK UP THE "THIRD DEGREE" CHARGE.

REED ADDED THAT BUDA HAD INSISTED ON THE RELEASE OF ANY JEWISH DISPLACED PERSONS ARRESTED BY THE CONSTABLES, NO MATTER WHAT THE CHARGE, AND HAD THREATENED TO "GET" CERTAIN OFFICER IF THIS WERE NOT DONE. ADD-BAMBERG-(D)-UNRRA-XXX OTHERS

REED'S REPORT INCLUDED A STATEMENT BY MAJ. ROLLIN T. STEIMETZ, WHO INVESTIGATED THE CASE, THAT THE ACCUSATIONS OF BRUTALITY "ARE IN THE MAIN AN ATTEMPT TO DISCREDIT THE AUTHORITY OF THE CONSTABULARY AND GAIN A HANDS-OFF POLICY IN THE AREA OF LANDSBERG TO ALLOW COMPLETE FREEDOM OF OPERATION OF JEWISH BLACK MARKET AND OTHER CRIMINAL DEALINGS."

THE REPORT "STRONGLY" RECOMMENDED THE DISCHARGE OF BUDA, KORN AND "OTHERS FOUND ALLIED WITH THEM IN THEIR CONTROL OF THE LANDSBERG DISPLACED PERSONS CAMP."

BELGRADE, YUGOSLAVIA, JAN 6-(AP)-THREE YUGOSLAVS CHARGED WITH FURNISHING U.S.EMBASSY ATTACHES INFORMATION ON MARSHAL TITO' MILITARY FORCES WERE SENTENCED TODAY TO DEATH BEFORE A FIRING SQUAD.

A HIGH COURT OF THE SERBIAN PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC CONVICTED THE TRIO OF WORKING FOR FOREIGN ESPIONAGE. FIVE OTHER ALLEGED MEMBERS OF A SPY RING--INCLUDING FORMER PREMIER MIMILOS TRIFUNOVIC--WERE SENTENCED TO PRISON.

THE DEFENDANTS ARE ALLOWED TO APPEAL, BUT THERE WAS NO IMMEDIATE INDICATION THAT THEY WOULD.

SENTENCED TO DEATH WERE TWO FORMER NEWSPAPERMEN, MILITIN STEFANOVIC AND BRANKO YOVANOVIC, AND A FORMER YUGOSLAV ARMY OFFICER, ZHELJKO SUSHIN. STAFANOVIC FORMERLY WAS EMPLOYED BY THE PRESS SECTION OF THE U.S.EMBASSY IN BELGRADE.

THE INDICTMENTS IN THE CASES SAID THAT HIGHLY SECRET INFORMATION, INCLUDING THE DISPOSITION OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT BATTERIES AND THE STRUCTURE OF THE POWERFUL PEOPLE'S DEFENSE CORPS, WERE TURNED OVER TO THE ATTACHES.

STEFANOVIC, THE PRINCIPAL DEFENDANT, WAS ACCUSED OF GIVING "ESPIONAGE REPORTS" TO ERIC PRODONOFF, FORMER SPECIAL ECONOMIC ATTACHE AT THE EMBASSY, AND AS ACTING AS THE PAYOFF MAN FOR SECRET PLANS ALLEGEDLY BOUGHT BY PRIDONOFF FROM SUSHIN.

STEFANOVIC PLEADED INNOCENT, AND SAID THAT HIS ONLY CONNECTION WITH PRIDONOFF WAS "JOURNALISTIC." HE ADMITTED THAT HE HAD MADE A NUMBER OF REPORTS TO PRIDONOFF, BUT SAID THEY WERE ON EVERY DAY "PRESS" MATTERS.

TRIFUNOVIC, WARTIME PREMIER OF THE YUGOSLAV GOVERNMENT-IN-EXILE IN LONDON, WAS ACCUSED OF SUPPLYING PRIDONOFF WITH A 40-PAGE REPORT "WHICH INCLUDED STATE SECRETS" SUCH AS "THE NUMERICAL SIZE OF THE YUGOSLAV ARMY." HE WAS SENTENCED TO EIGHT YEARS AT HARD LABOR.

THE FORMER PREMIER SAID THAT HE HAD GIVEN THE REPORT TO HIS SON-IN-LAW, AN ENGINEER, AND HAD NOT READ IT HIMSELF AND DID NOT REALIZE ITS MILITARY IMPORTANCE.

HIS SON-IN-LAW, CONSTANTIN STANKOVIC, WAS SENTENCED TO FOUR YEARS IMPRISONMENT.

ALEXANDER ILIC, PREWAR OFFICIAL OF THE YUGOSLAV LEGATION AT VIENNA, AND SILISHA ZDRAVKOVIC, AN ENGINEER, EACH WERE SENTENCED TO EIGHT YEARS. GRUR KISTIC, FORMER NEWSPAPERMEN, WAS SENTENCED TO SEVEN YEARS.

BRUSSELS, JAN.6-(AP)-HAROLD J.LASKI, FORMER CHAIRMAN OF THE BRITISH LABOR PARTY, DECLARED TONIGHT THAT "RUSSIA WANTS PEACE AND WE MUST TRY TO REACH THAT PEACE WITH HER."

SPEAKING TO AN AUDIENCE WHICH INCLUDED PAUL-HENRI SPAAK, PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED NATIONS, LASKI CONTINUED: "THE RUSSIANS NEED US AS WE NEED THEM. NONE OF US, EITHER HERE OR IN ENGLAND, HAS TO FEAR BOLSHEVISM."

TEHRAN, IRAN, JAN.6-(AP)-LISTS OF CANDIDATES IN THE APPROACHING PARLIAMENTARY ELECTION WERE CIRCULATED TODAY FOR THE NEW DEMOCRATIC PARTY OF PREMIER AHMED QAVAM AND THE INDEPENDENT PARTY OF DR.MOHAMMED MOSADEGH.

OBSERVERS SAID ALL CANDIDATES ON BOTH LISTS WERE "MEMBERS OF THE IRAN ARISTOCRACY." VOTING IS TO START IN TEHRAN SATURDAY.

THE LEFT-WING TUDEH PARTY WAS REPORTED BY NEWSPAPERS TO BE REORGANIZING AS A "LAST MINUTE MOVE" TO GAIN ELECTION SUPPORT. THE PARTY WENT UNDERGROUND AFTER RECENT ATTACKS ON ITS HEADQUARTERS, HAS NAMED NO CANDIDATES AND ANNOUNCED RECENTLY IT WOULD "BOYCOTT" THE ELECTIONS. RIGHTIST NEWSPAPERS HAVE ATTACKED TUDEH AND ITS LEADERS AS "PAID SERVANTS OF SOVIET RUSSIA."

THE FOREIGN OFFICE SAID QAVAM HAD SENT AN INVESTIGATOR TO MAHALLAT PROVINCE, SOUTHWEST OF TEHRAN, TO PROBE CHARGES THAT CLASHES BETWEEN RIVAL PARLIAMENTARY CANDIDATES HAD RESULTED IN TWO DEATHS AND INJURIES TO 14.

OFFICIALS SAID 11 POLICEMEN AND FOUR OR FIVE CIVILIANS WERE INJURED IN A DEMONSTRATION OUTSIDE THE ROYAL PALACE IN TEHRAN.

MINISTER OF PROPAGANDA AND LABOR ARAMESH SAID THE DEMONSTRATION WAS STAGED BY STRIKING UNIVERSITY STUDENTS, BUT DECLARED THE FIGHTING WAS STARTED BY "LOW CLASS IDLERS SEEKING TO ADVANCE THEIR OWN NEFARIOUS SCHEMES."

THE GOVERNMENT, MEANWHILE, WAS HECKLED BY A SECRET RADIO STATION, CALLING ITSELF "THE VOICE OF THE AZERBAIJAN DEMOCRATIC PARTY" WHICH ACCUSED PREMIER AHMED QAVAM'S REGIME OF "TORTURE AND BRUTAL MURDERS" AND URGED TEHRAN RESIDENTS TO STAY AWAY FROM THE POLLS SATURDAY.

THE SO-CALLED AZERBAIJAN "DEMOCRATIC PARTY", WHICH CAME INTO POWER IN THAT PROVINCE DURING THE WARTIME RUSSIAN OCCUPATION, COLLAPSED LAST MONTH AFTER GOVERNMENT TROOPS ARRIVED FOR THE ANNOUNCED PURPOSE OF SUPERVISING THE FORTHCOMING PARLIAMENTARY ELECTIONS.

connections.

This was not believed to be the reason for the change, however. The senate, which rules heavily on foreign relations already had shown a disposition to follow Byrnes' policies.

Congressional leaders were swift to heap praise on both men when the news reached Capitol Hill. Republicans and Democrats alike joined in.

The change in the top diplomatic post was a surprise. It had been known that Byrnes had grown tired some months ago, but the 67-year-old South Carolinian looked to be in very good health lately.

For Byrnes, the secretaryship was the last in a string of distinguished posts. He had served as a senator, as a Supreme Court justice and as "assistant president" to Franklin D. Roosevelt in the role of war mobilizer.

With senate confirmation of Marshall—and no one doubted that it was sure—the change means that Marshall instead of Byrnes stands next in line for the presidency in the next two years. There is no vice president now and the Secretary of State heads the line of succession under law.

Marshall Is 66

Marshall turned 66 last Dec. 31, having retired earlier as chief of staff. Hailed as one of America's military geniuses, the five-starred general was President Truman's pick to try to unsnarl the affairs of unhappy China.

In a report today, Marshall said that China won't be saved until extremists of the right and left give way in the government to middle-of-the-roaders.

Now, he will transfer his talents to the world. Foremost among the jobs he faces is getting along with the Russians with anything like the success he did during the war.

Incidentally, a longtime military associate of Marshall, W. Bedell Smith, is now ambassador to Russia. In the early part of the war Smith was secretary of the Army general staff under Marshall. In September, 1942, he became chief of staff to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The White House made public an exchange of telegrams in which the President accepted "with great reluctance and heartfelt regret" Byrnes' resignation, to become effective Jan. 10.

Marshall, who has been Mr. Truman's special envoy to China, is now enroute to Washington from Nanking. He will stop several days in Hawaii enroute to Washington.

Told to "Slow Down"

The correspondence disclosed that Byrnes first sought to resign on April 16 in a letter in which he told the President that he was advised after a medical examination that he must "slow down." He wanted that resignation to become effective last July 1.

Again on Dec. 19, Byrnes wrote the President that he had intended to leave his post July 1, hoping that the peace conference would have concluded its deliberations at that time.

"When it became obvious that I was too optimistic as to the completion of the work upon the five treaties with the Axis satellite states, I told you I would continue until they were finally agreed upon," Byrnes wrote.

"Now that we have reached complete agreement and the treaties are scheduled to be signed February 10 I should like to be relieved." He ended by saying that "no man serving as secretary of state could ask or receive greater support and encouragement than you have given me."

Disclosure of the resignation and its acceptance by the President came a few hours after Byrnes paid an unscheduled call upon Mr. Truman.

Praised Mr. Truman

The President, in accepting the resignation, wrote:

"I realize full well how arduous and complex have been the problems which have fallen to you since you took office in July, 1945."

He complimented the South Carolinian, a former Senator and Supreme Court justice, on his work, particularly his "rare tact and judgment and—when necessary—firmness and tenacity of purpose."

"Yours has been a steadying hand as you have met the difficult problems which have arisen in such unvarying succession," the President continued.

"For all that you did during the war, and in making of the peace, you have earned the thanks of the nation. So I say: Well done, in the hope that we can continue to call upon you for the counsel which you can give out of so rich and varied an experience."

Dramatic Announcement

The announcement of the resignation of the top member of the President's cabinet, first in line of succession in the event of a Presidential vacancy, came rather dramatically at the White House.

Reporters had been told that "the lid" was on shortly after 5 o'clock.

This meant no further news was expected from the White House.

Later such reporters as were still around were told to wait, that there might be something coming.

Only four newsmen were on hand when Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross summoned them to his office.

Slowly he began his announcement. In about three minutes all of the reporters were rushing for their telephones.

The letters explained that while Byrnes' resignation is scheduled for January 10, Mr. Byrnes will remain on the job until General Marshall has been nominated and confirmed by the Senate.

Marshall's first experience in diplomatic service was when the President sent him to China as a special envoy to help reconcile differences among the factions in that republic. That appointment came shortly after Marshall retired as War Department Chief of Staff.

He was sent to China to fill a gap created by the sudden resignation of Ambassador Patrick Hurley who quit with a blast at some officials of the State Department.

In his original letter of April 16, Byrnes wrote the president that he thought when he retired as War Mobilization director he had earned the right "to take a rest."

However, he said, shortly after the death of former President Roosevelt, "because of our intimate friendship I offered my services to you."

Worked Long Hours

As Secretary of State he said he had found it necessary to work long hours six and at times seven days a week.

Last April he said, he was advis-

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 — (AP) James F. Byrnes resigned tonight as secretary of state and President Truman chose as his successor the man who guided America's military fortunes in the war — General George C. Marshall.

Byrnes declared the doctors had warned him he must "slow down" and that he couldn't slow down in the job of secretary of state.

Marshall, army chief of staff in the war, is presently ending a presidential mission to China.

Marshall En Route Home

The announcement of his selection to the cabinet came at almost the exact hour, 7:05 p. m., Eastern Standard Time, that Marshall left for home by plane from Nanking.

The Pennsylvania-born, Virginia-educated Marshall takes over the job of helping make peace secure at a time when Republicans have taken over congress. In the army tradition, he has shown no political ed after a medical examination that he would have to slow down—and he could not slow down and hold his office. He therefore tendered his resignation to take effect July 1. He said he selected that date because of the then forthcoming Council of Foreign Ministers meeting in Paris and the subsequent peace conference there.

At that time Byrnes thought it would be possible to make the change last July.

In this April 16 letter, Byrnes asserted:

"Some weeks ago several newspapers published a story that I had resigned and you had selected my successor. You stated it was untrue. It certainly was untrue because we had never discussed the subject.

"I presume these newspapers now will state that their story was true, but I cannot be deterred from doing what I believe to be right simply because it may give the appearance of truth to that which is false.

He referred to "whole-hearted support" from the President and said "it is rather remarkable that we have never failed to agree as to foreign policies."

Explains Conditions

The December 19 letter takes up the story. It follows in full:

"Dear Mr. President:

"On April 16 I submitted to you my resignation to take effect July first. I hoped by that date the peace conference would have concluded its deliberations and the work upon the five treaties with the satellite states would be completed.

"When it became obvious that was too optimistic as to the completion of the work upon the treaties, I told you I would continue until they were finally agreed upon."

"Now that we have reached complete agreement and the treaties are scheduled to be signed February 10 I should like to be relieved.

"I think it important that the change should be made at this time. We have scheduled for March 10 the meeting at Moscow when work will be started upon the German treaty and the Austrian peace settlement. That work will continue for many months and the secretary who undertakes the task should be in office sufficiently far in advance of the conference to familiarize himself with the problems.

"Therefore, I ask that my resignation become effective January 10 or as soon thereafter as my successor is appointed and qualified. I fix that date because the senate will then be in session and the nomination of my successor can be sent to the senate simultaneously with the announcement of my resignation.

"I repeat what I said in my letter last April, that no man serving as secretary of state could ask or receive greater support and encouragement than you have given me.

"Sincerely Yours,
James F. Byrnes."

Administration sources said there had been an understanding for days between the president and his secretary of state that he would be permitted to retire in view of his health and the strenuous work he has undergone.

It was during their talk at the White House this afternoon that they decided to release the announcement of the resignation.

Texts of Byrnes and Truman Letters

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (AP)—The texts of Secretary of State Byrnes' letters to the President and of Mr. Truman's reply:

Byrnes' First Letter

April 16, 1946.

Dear Mr. President:

As you know, on April 1, 1945, I retired as Director of the Office of War Mobilization. I thought I had earned the right to take a rest and do some of the things I had long wanted to do, but could not do because of my public service.

Shortly thereafter, President Roosevelt died and the responsibilities of the Presidency were suddenly thrust upon you. Because of our intimate friendship, I offered my services to you. You told me you were going to appoint me Secretary of State and did so last July 3.

With the cessation of hostilities, the problems of the peace necessarily became more important. Since that time they have steadily increased in number and importance. I have found it necessary to work long hours, six, and at times, seven days a week.

Last week I had a medical examination. I was advised that I must "slow down." I know myself. I cannot slow down as long as I hold public office, particularly the office of Secretary of State. The only way I can comply with the advice of the doctor is to resign. Therefore, I am tendering my resignation to take effect July 1.

I select that date because there is a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers in Paris next week, to be followed by a peace conference, and it is impossible to tell how long those conferences will continue. I think it my duty to attend those meetings, again, by fixing July 1, you will have time in which to select my successor.

Some weeks ago some newspapers published a story that I had resigned and you had selected my successor. You stated it was untrue. It certainly was untrue because we had never discussed the subject. I presume these newspapers now will state that their story was true, but I cannot be deterred from doing what I believe to be right simply because it may give the appearance of truth to that which is false.

In resigning, I wish to say that since I became Secretary of State you have given me your wholehearted support. When I think of the controversial character of the problems that have confronted us, it is rather remarkable that we have never failed to agree as to foreign policies.

Recently, I have been made happy by the increasing evidence that the people recognize and appreciate the skill and courage with which you are performing your duties. I know what a terrible task it is and I know, too, how much you deserve that appreciation.

I want to assure you that as a private citizen I shall give to you my hearty support—not only because of my sincere affection for you personally, but because of my honest belief that your splendid administration of the office of President deserves that support.

Sincerely yours,
James F. Byrnes.

Byrnes' Second Letter

Dec. 19, 1946.

Dear Mr. President:

On April 16 I submitted to you my resignation to take effect July 1. I hoped by that date the Peace Conference would have concluded its deliberations and the work upon the five treaties with the satellite states would be completed.

When it became obvious that I was too optimistic as to the completion of the work upon the treaties, I told you I would continue until they were finally agreed upon. Now that we have reached complete agreement and the treaties are scheduled to be signed Feb. 10, I should like to be relieved.

I think it important that the change should be made at this time. We have scheduled for March 10 the meeting at Moscow, where work will be started upon the German treaty and the Austrian peace settlement. That work will continue for many months and the Secretary who undertakes the task should be in office sufficiently far in advance of the conference to familiarize himself with the problems.

Therefore, I ask that my resignation become effective Jan. 10 or as soon thereafter as my successor is appointed and qualified. I fixed that date because the Senate will then be in session and the nomination of my successor can be sent to the Senate simultaneously with the announcement of my resignation.

I repeat what I said in my letter last April, that no man serving as Secretary of State could ask or receive greater support and encouragement than you have given me.

Sincerely yours,
James F. Byrnes.

President Truman's Reply

Jan. 7, 1947.

My Dear Jim:

I have weighed carefully the considerations set forth in your letter of Dec. 19, 1946, and in your letter of April 16, 1946, each emphasizing your desire to retire from the office of Secretary of State. Because I know how vital these considerations are, I must accede to your desire.

I accept, therefore, with great reluctance and heartfelt regret, your resignation effective at the close of business of Jan. 10, 1947, or upon the qualification of your successor.

I realize full well how arduous and complex have been the problems which have fallen to you since you took office in July, 1945. Big events were then impending and the months that have ensued have presented problems of the utmost moment, with all of which you have dealt with rare tact and judgment and—when necessary—firmness and tenacity of purpose.

Yours has been a steadying hand as you have met the difficult problems which have arisen with such unvarying succession.

For all that you did during the war, and in the making of the peace, you have earned the thanks of the nation. So I say: Well done, in the hope that we can continue to call upon you for the counsel which you can give out of so rich and varied an experience.

With every good wish
Very sincerely yours,
Harry S. Truman.

BYRNES HAPPY TO STEP OUT

He and Mrs. Byrnes Attend Diplomatic Reception.

Washington, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—James F. Byrnes, who is stepping out as Secretary of State, said last night, "There are two happy days in the life of a man in public office—the day he is elected and the day he steps out."

He made the comment as he stood beaming among other Cabinet officers in the White House red room at the President's diplomatic reception. The reception, first diplomatic affair of the sort since before the war and easily the most brilliant and colorful function of the resumed White House social entertaining, was a-twitter with the news that broke just before the first guests arrived—President Truman's announcement that Byrnes was resigning and that his successor will be Gen. George C. Marshall, wartime Chief of Staff.

"I said I would stay until my successor was appointed," said Byrnes to a small group crowding around him shortly after he and Mrs. Byrnes arrived.

The reception, due to start at 9 P. M. with the traditional formal entrance of the President, his wife and Cabinet, was delayed fifteen minutes. Nearly half a thousand of about 1,500 invited guests were already standing waiting to be formally received by the President.

At 9:20 P. M. the President, accompanied by Mrs. Truman in a turquoise blue gown, a large white orchid on her shoulder, came down the stairway, followed by the Cabinet—but Byrnes was not there. The foyer door into the blue room closed. A few minutes later, just as the first diplomats came down the line from the east room where they had assembled, Secretary and Mrs. Byrnes hurried into the red room where the Cabinet members customarily stand.

Mrs. Byrnes Is 'Glad'.

Other members of the Cabinet gathered around them. Mrs. Byrnes explained:

"The Secretary had been late getting home. We had to dress. There were phone calls — and phone calls." She was radiant, vivacious.

"I'm glad he has resigned," she said. "Now we'll have a little time together. I can talk things over with him and not have to write him notes," she laughed.

"I don't know what we'll do. We've made no plans. Probably rest. Yes, probably go home to Spartanburg, S. C."

At that moment, Senator Vandenberg, one of Byrnes's advisers in recent international parleys, came along the line with Mrs. Vandenberg. Mrs. Byrnes rushed up to her. The two women embraced. Byrnes warmly greeted Vandenberg. The two men patted each other on the back. Senator Connally, the other American delegate to the United Nations, came up and there was handshaking.

"What am I going to do?" Byrnes joked. "I want to walk in the park. Maybe I'll file my papers. I've got a storeroom jammed full in the Supreme Court, a store room in the Senate, and a store room in the White House."

Lord Inverchapel, the British Ambassador, came up and linked his arm through Byrnes. "I protest," he said, obviously referring to the Secretary's resignation.

"The day a man is elected he is happy. His friends come and tell him how proud they are—how fine he is. The next morning they begin asking him for favors. And he gets deflated," the Secretary chuckled. "The next really happy day is when he steps out of office."

Congressmen Regret Byrnes's Resignation; Praise Marshall

1947

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Congressional expressions of regret that James F. Byrnes is quitting as Secretary of State were tempered tonight by an outpouring of general praise for Gen. George C. Marshall as his successor.

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who has worked hand in hand with the outgoing Secretary, said:

"I deeply regret the resignation of Secretary Byrnes. He has been an able, courageous, effective Secretary in the finest American tradition. He has been a stanch defender of American ideals when they needed defense in a critical period. He has made a tremendous contribution to peace. His departure is a major loss.

Rich In Useful Experience

"General Marshall is rich in useful experience. He has always enjoyed the total confidence of Congress as well as of his military and civilian colleagues at home and abroad. I wish him well in his great responsibility."

Senator Connally (D., Texas), former chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and, like Vandenberg, an adviser to Byrnes, said:

"Secretary Byrnes has rendered distinguished service as Secretary of State. It has been invaluable. I regret deeply that he has seen fit to resign. I have worked with him in London, Paris and New York on international conferences, and have observed his skillful and patient negotiations. He wielded a great influence. The gratitude of the United States will follow him in his retirement. It's unfortunate."

Typical House Sentiments

Typical of the sentiments expressed by House members were those voiced by Representative Bloom (D., N.Y.), ranking minority member of the House Foreign Committee, and of Representative Wadsworth (R., N.Y.), a member of the committee.

Bloom said Byrnes was owed a "tremendous debt of gratitude" for his work in consolidating treaties with the Axis satellites and for helping to put the United Nations on an operating basis.

He said Marshall had one of the "most able minds" demonstrated during the war and asserted that he was equally qualified to carry out this country's foreign policies as he was to lead the military forces to victory.

Other Comments Quoted

Wadsworth termed Marshall a man with "everything necessary to make him one of the greatest Secretaries of State in the country's history." He said that he felt confident that Marshall would carry out the work that Byrnes has "so ably begun."

Other comment was as follows:

Senator Wagner (D., N.Y.), member of the Foreign Relations Committee: "Secretary Byrnes did a remarkable job. I am very sorry to see him go. Marshall will be a very capable successor, but it will be difficult to replace Jimmy Byrnes."

Senator Wherry (R., Neb.): "I hope that the first thing General Marshall does is to overhaul the State Department — and I mean really overhaul it and shake out the Reds. I think he's the man to do it, and I'm with him 100 per cent."

Senator George (D., Ga.), a member of the Foreign Relations Committee: "I have a profound and deep regret because of the esignation of Secretary Byrnes. I feel that he had gotten his feet very firmly on the ground and was truly representing the American viewpoint.

"I have every confidence in General Marshall and know him to be a man of superb character and a man of fine ability in the handling of big problems."

Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), also of the Foreign Relations Committee:

"Secretary Byrnes in the last year or so has done a magnificent job of expressing an acceptable American policy on foreign relations. I am sorry to lose his services. He has been a good public servant in that capacity and I think he has divorced politics from that office. I certainly would favor confirmation of General Marshall unless someone produces some powerful reason why he shouldn't be confirmed."

Senate Majority Leader

Senator White of Maine, Republican majority leader of the Senate and likewise a Foreign Relations Committeeman:

"I regret that Secretary Byrnes is ending his service. He has been an outstanding success and it will be difficult to fill the post."

White said he did not want to comment on Marshall's appointment "because that will come before the Senate" for confirmation.

Senator Capper (R., Kan.), of the Foreign Relations Committee: "I think General Marshall will make a good Secretary of State. He is a high-class man. I am sorry to see Byrnes resign."

Senator Knowland (R., Cal.): "Secretary Byrnes had the confidence of the country and the Senate. While I regret very much to see him leave, I feel the selection of General Marshall is a very satisfactory one."

BARUCH LAUDS MARSHALL

Says General Is One of Few Men He Knows Who Is 'Great'

GEORGETOWN, S. C., Jan 7 (AP) —Commenting on the resignation of Secretary of State Byrnes and the appointment of General Marshall, Bernard M. Baruch, resting at his winter home, Hobcaw Barony, near here, said tonight:

"James F. Byrnes, my close friend and fellow Carolinian, succeeded to an almost insoluble task. He has acquitted himself brilliantly and earned the gratitude of his fellow countrymen and has justly grown in the respect of the world.

"He has a worthy successor in George Marshall, whom I have known intimately for over thirty years.

"George Marshall, utterly selfless, has character, ability, love of country, wisdom and indefatigable energy, with a thorough understanding of organization.

"He is one of the few men I have met to whom I can apply the term 'great'."

Marshall Flying From China; 1947 Nanking Hails Appointment

Nanking, Wednesday, Jan. 8 (AP). Gen. George C. Marshall left by plane for the United States today bearing the unofficial best wishes of the Chinese Government in his new post as Secretary of State.

If Marshall was aware of his appointment before his departure for Guam, en route to the United States, he gave no hint and even his closest associates were uninformed, it was learned.

While Chinese officials followed the usual course of declining a formal statement, Government sources expressed satisfaction that President Truman had selected a man who, from thirteen months as special United States envoy, is probably the best informed American on Chinese problems.

Interest In Statement

Wang Ping-nan, Communist spokesman, withheld comment on the appointment because "we can't tell now."

He expressed greater interest, however, in the 2,000-word Marshall statement on China, in which the retiring special envoy spared neither side in his summation of China's political difficulties.

Generalissimo and Madame Chiang Kai-shek saw Marshall off at the airport. Madame Chiang called "Come back soon, won't you," as the General entered the transport plane.

Chiang then entered the plane's cabin and bade Marshall a formal farewell.

General Marshall is due to reach Honolulu Thursday night, where he will join Mrs. Marshall. The general expected to rest in Hawaii for three days before continuing to the United States.

The big plane bearing General Marshall took off at 8:15 A. M. (7:15 P. M. Tuesday, Eastern Standard Time).

The recall of President Truman's special envoy left this Chinese capital with mixed reactions—one of concern on the part of the Government and of hopeful joy on the part of Communists.

Uncertain On Aid

Speaking on the not unexpected development, a Government source said that the greatest concern of Chiang Kai-shek and others nearest him was whether General Marshall would advise President Truman that the United States continue to support China.

The reaction at Yenan headquarters of the Communists was not readily known but a Communist spokesman in Nanking said "if Marshall's return means the end of the United States policy of supporting the Kuomintang (Government party), we are very happy."

There was one grave possibility. Marshall long has been a safety valve, holding down both sides. His departure may, in the opinion of observers here, signal the end of the negotiation period and the opening of full-scale fighting for control of China's future.

The biggest question in the Government's mind is whether General Marshall will return.

Observers in Nanking, noting that the United States likely would not maintain a huge staff over an indefinite period while "marking time," foresaw possible collapse of the unification machinery. This includes Peiping executive headquarters with 2,000 American personnel.

Marines Future Discussed

These observers also feel the future of the United States Marines stationed in North China will be at stake when General Marshall talks with Truman because the principal duties of those Marines are related to Peiping executive headquarters. The Marines serve the headquarters in guarding its communication routes.

One source said: "Naturally both the Kuomintang and the Communists are anxious to continue the setup because it provides them an easy means of contact over an area as large as half of the United States; but unless some genuine progress is made toward a serious resumption of negotiations, it (the headquarters) is contributing nothing toward permanent unification and peace."

Most observers in Nanking agreed that General Marshall was as far away from achieving permanent peace between the Communists and Kuomintang today as when he arrived in December, 1945.

John Roderick, an Associated Press writer who has spent considerable time in Yenan with the highest Communist officials, said today in Peiping:

"Yenan insists American efforts in China ran on the rocks when the United States tried to juggle internal unity and democracy against a fear of Russian encroachment in the Far East."

General Marshall, who has been confined to his room by a severe cold the past few days, last night visited the military structure where China's President lives and there told Chiang he was returning to Washington. Sources close to the Generalissimo said Chiang had been trying desperately from week to week to delay such an eventuality.

Today Marshall entertained Dr. John Leighton Stuart, United States Ambassador, and China's Foreign Minister Wang Sih-chieh at a luncheon. Later he conferred with Premier T. V. Soong. Tonight he joined Generalissimo and Mme. Chiang Kai-shek at a "family dinner."

Marshall Hits 'Extremists' 1947 On Both Sides in China

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7. — (AP)— Gen. George C. Marshall said outspokenly today that unhappy China is torn between reactionaries seeking triumph through civil war and power-hungry Communists willing to wreck the country.

The only salvation for China, Marshall declared, is capture of the government by the presently powerless liberals. This led authorities here to believe that he thus was calling indirectly on Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to give the liberals a boost to power in impending reorganization of the government.

Marshall's 2,000-word review covered conditions he found in China as a special presidential envoy. It was issued through the State Department today after the White House had announced last night that President Truman was calling the general home to report. He should arrive here by plane in a few days.

General Marshall left Nanking by plane today for Guam, en route to the United States. Marshall is due to reach Honolulu Thursday night, where he will join Mrs. Marshall. The general expected to rest in Hawaii for three days before continuing to the United States.

Frank Report

Diplomats characterized his report on China as an amazingly frank and evidently very sincere review. It led up to his statement of the dilemma in which American policy now finds itself in dealing with internal Chinese politics.

"Between the dominant reactionary group in the government," Marshall said, "and the irreconcilable Communists who, I must state, did not so appear last February, lies the problem of how peace and well-being are to be brought to the long suffering and presently inarticulate mass of the people of China.

"The reactionaries in the government have evidently counted on substantial American support regardless of their actions.

"The Communists by their unwillingness to compromise in the national interest are evidently counting on an economic collapse to bring about the fall of the government, accelerated by extensive guerrilla action against the long lines of rail communications—regardless of the cost and suffering to the Chinese people."

Marshall then proposed his solution:

Proposes Solution

"The salvation of the situation as I see it would be the assumption of leadership by the liberals in the government and in the minority parties, a splendid group of men, but who as yet lack the political power to exercise a controlling influence. Successful action on their part under the leadership of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek would, I believe, lead to unity through good government."

Marshall noted that the National Assembly already had adopted a "democratic constitution" and that the government would be reorganized to carry on, pending enforcement of the constitution next December. And in its reorganization, he said, the important thing will be the amount of representation accorded to the liberals.

He also made what appeared to be two other specific recommendations for action by the Chinese themselves toward unity and peace:

1. During the period of government reorganization the door should be held open "for Communists or other groups to participate if they see fit to assume their share of responsibility for the future of China."

2. If the Chinese government is really to pass from control by the Kuomintang (political party), then "the Kuomintang should cease to receive financial support from the government."

The great question, which authorities conceded to be unanswered by Marshall's statement, was what the United States should now do about China.

This government's policy calls for promoting a unified and peaceful China without actual direct intervention in Chinese politics except as the Chinese themselves seek assistance.

It also calls for so conducting Chinese relations that Russia will not become involved in the Communist-Nationalist split, precipitating a test of power between America and Russia.

Text of Marshall's Statement on Strife in China

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (AP)—The text of a statement by Gen. George C. Marshall on the situation in China follows:

The President has recently given a summary of the developments in China during the past year and the position of the American Government toward China. Circumstances now dictate that I should supplement this with impressions gained at first hand.

In this intricate and confused situation, I shall merely endeavor here to touch on some of the more important considerations—as they appeared to me—during my connection with the negotiations to bring about peace in China and a stable democratic form of government.

In the first place, the greatest obstacle to peace has been the complete, almost overwhelming suspicion with which the Chinese Communist party and the Kuomintang regard each other.

On the one hand, the leaders of the Government are strongly opposed to a communistic form of government. On the other, the Communists frankly state that they are Marxists and intend to work toward establishing a communistic form of government in China, though first advancing through the medium of a democratic form of government of the American or British type.

Mutual Distrust

The leaders of the Government are convinced in their minds that the Communist-expressed desire to participate in a government of the type endorsed by the Political Consultative Conference last January had for its purpose only a destructive intention. The Communists felt, I believe, that the Government was insincere in its apparent acceptance of the PCC resolutions for the formation of the new Government and intended by coercion of military force and the action of secret police to obliterate the Communist party.

Combined with this mutual deep distrust was the conspicuous error by both parties of ignoring the effect of the fears of suspicions of the other party in estimating the reason for proposals or opposition regarding the settlement of various matters under negotiation. They each sought only to take counsel of their own fears. They both, therefore, to that extent took a rather lopsided view of each situation and were susceptible to every evil suggestion or possibility.

This complication was exaggerated to an explosive degree by the confused reports of fighting on the distant and tremendous fronts of hostile military contact. Patrol clashes were deliberately magnified into large offensive actions. The distortion of the facts was utilized by both sides to heap condemnation on the other. It was only through the reports of American officers in the field teams from Executive Headquarters that I could get even a partial idea of what was actually happening and the incidents were too numerous and the distances too great for the American personnel to cover all of the ground.

I must comment here on the superb courage of the officers of our Army and Marines in struggling against almost insurmountable and maddening obstacles to bring some measure of peace to China.

Factors in Breakdown

I think the most important factors involved in the recent breakdown of negotiations are these:

On the side of the National Government, which is in effect the Kuomingtang party, there is a dominant group of reactionaries who have been opposed, in my opinion, to almost every effort I have made to influence the formation of a genuine coalition Government. This has usually been under the cover of political or party action, but since the party was the Government, this action, though subtle or indirect, has been devastating in its effect. They were quite frank in publicly stating their belief that cooperation by the Chinese Communist party in the Government was inconceivable and that only a policy of force could definitely settle the issue. This group includes military as well as political leaders.

On the side of the Chinese Communist party, are, I believe, liberals as well as radicals, though this view is vigorously opposed by many who believe that the Chinese Communist party discipline is too rigidly enforced to admit of such differences of viewpoint. Nevertheless, it has appeared to me that there is a definite liberal group among the Communists, especially of young men who have turned to the Communists in disgust at the corruption evident in the local governments—men who would put the interest of the Chinese people above ruthless measures to establish a Communist ideology in the immediate future.

The dyed-in-the-wool Communists do not hesitate at the most drastic measures to gain their end as, for instance, the destruction of communications in order to wreck the economy of China and produce a situation that would facilitate the averthrow or collapse of the Government, without any regard to the immediate suffering of the people involved. They completely distrust the leaders of the Kuomintang party and appear convinced that every Government proposal is designed to crush the Chinese Communist party. I must say that the quite evidently inspired mob actions of last February and March, some within a few blocks of where I was then engaged in completing negotiations, gave the Communists good excuse for such suspicions.

Red Propaganda Attacked

However, a very harmful and immensely provocative phase of the Chinese Communist party procedure has been in the character of its propaganda. I wish to state to the American people that in the deliberate misrepresentation and abuse of the action, policies and purposes of our Government this propaganda has been without regard for the truth, without any regard whatsoever for the facts, and has given plain evidence of a determined purpose to mislead the Chinese people and the world and to arouse a bitter hatred of Americans.

It has been difficult to remain silent in the midst of such public abuse and wholesale disregard of facts, but a denial would merely lead to the necessity of daily denials; an intolerable course of action for an American official.

In the interest of fairness, I must state that the Nationalist Government publicity agency has made numerous misrepresentations, though not of the vicious nature of the Communist propaganda.

Incidentally, the Communist statements regarding the Anping incident which resulted in the death of three marines and the wounding of twelve others were almost pure fabrication, deliberately representing a carefully arranged ambuscade of a marine convoy with supplies for the maintenance of Executive Headquarters and some UNRRA supplies, as a defense against a marine assault. The investigation of this incident was a tortuous procedure of delays and maneuvers to disguise the true and privately admitted facts of the case.

Sincere efforts to achieve settlement have been frustrated time and again by extremist elements of both sides. The agreements reached by the Political Consultative Conference a year ago were a liberal and forward-looking charter which then offered China a basis for peace and reconstruction. However, irreconcilable groups within the Kuomintang party, interested in the preservation of their own feudal control of China, evidently had no real intention of implementing them.

Deplores Military Influence

Though I speak as a soldier, I must here also deplore the dominating influence of the military. Their dominance accentuates the weakness of civil government in China. At the same time, in pondering the situation in China, one must have clearly in mind not the workings of small Communist groups or committees to which we are accustomed in America, but rather of millions of people and an army of more than a million men.

I have never been in a position to be certain of the development of attitudes in the inner-most Chinese Communist circles. Most certainly, the course which the Chinese Communist party has pursued in recent months indicated an unwillingness to make a fair compromise. It has been impossible even to get them to sit down at a conference table with Government representatives to discuss given issues.

Now the Communists have broken off negotiations by their last offer, which demanded the dissolution of the National Assembly and a return to the military positions of Jan. 13, which the Government could not be expected to accept.

Between this dominant reactionary group in the Government and the irreconcilable Communists, who, I must state, did not so appear last February, lies the problem of how peace and well-being are to be brought to the long-suffering and presently inarticulate mass of the people of China. The reactionaries in the Government have evidently counted on substantial American support regardless of their actions. The Communists by their unwillingness to compromise in the national interest are evidently counting on an economic collapse to bring about the fall of the Government, accelerated by extensive guerrilla action against the long lines of rail communications—regardless of the cost in suffering to the Chinese people.

Hope Lies in Liberals

The salvation of the situation, as I see it, would be the assumption of leadership by the liberals in the Government and in the minority parties, a splendid group of men, but who as yet lack the political power to exercise a controlling influence. Successful action on their part under the leadership of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek would, I believe, lead to unity through good government.

In fact, the National Assembly has adopted a democratic Constitution which in all major respects is in accordance with the principles laid down by the all-party Political Consultative Conference of last January. It is unfortunate that the Communists did not see fit to participate in the Assembly, since the Constitution that has been adopted seems to include every major point that they wanted.

Soon the Government in China will undergo major reorganization pending the coming into force of the Constitution following elections to be completed before Christmas Day, 1947. Now that the form for a democratic China has been laid down by the newly adopted Constitution, practical measures will be the best. It remains to be seen to what extent the Government will give substance to the form by a genuine welcome of all groups actively to share in the responsibility of Government.

First Step in Reorganization

The first step will be the reorganization of the State Council and the executive branch of Government to carry on administration pending the enforcement of the Constitution. The manner in which this is done and the amount of representation accorded to liberals and to non-Kuomintang members will be significant. It is also to be hoped that during this interim period the door will remain open for Communists or other groups to participate if they see fit to assume their share of responsibility for the future of China.

It has been stated officially and categorically that the period of political tutelage under the Kuomintang is at an end. If the termination of one-party rule is to be a reality, the Kuomintang should cease to receive financial support from the Government.

I have spoken very frankly because in no other way can I hope to bring the people of the United States to even a partial understanding of this complex problem. I have expressed all these views privately in the course of negotiations; they are well known, I think, to most of the individuals concerned. I express them now publicly, as it is my duty, to present my estimate of the situation and its possibilities to the American people who have a deep interest in the development of conditions in the Far East promising an enduring peace in the Pacific.

TRIESTE PLAN VOTE PUT OFF BY U.N. GROUP

M. HARRELSON

Security Council Faces Unexpected Objection To Taking Control

1947 N

Lake Success, N.Y., Jan. 7 (AP)—The Security Council tonight postponed action on the Big Four plan to place the Adriatic port of Trieste under United Nations jurisdiction after Australia questioned the legality of the plan and Belgium demanded more time to study it.

It had been expected that approval would be no more than a formality, but the big powers agreed not to press for a ballot in view of the unexpected objections. It was clear, however, that the plan would have received the necessary seven affirmative votes if action had been taken.

To Debate Arms Cuts

The Security Council agreed to take up the question again at 3 P.M. Friday. Meanwhile, it will meet next at 3 P.M. Thursday to begin debate on the important question of world-wide arms reductions.

The first indication of opposition to the Trieste statute, submitted to the Security Council by the Council of Foreign Ministers, came early in the session when Australia's Norman J. O. Makin, new Security Council chairman, expressed doubts as to whether the eleven-nation peace agency had authority under the Charter to assume responsibility for the proposed free territory.

Makin said he did not see how Australia could "vote for the approval in toto of the documents now before the Security Council," and suggested that the delegates try to arrive at a different approach to what he called "this difficult situation."

Opposed By Johnson

His suggestion was opposed immediately by the United States delegate, Herschel V. Johnson, who pointed out that the Council of Foreign Ministers had asked for approval of the plan by January 15, and that such indorsement was necessary to clear the way for signing of the Italian peace treaty, now scheduled for about February 1.

Johnson was supported by Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko and Sir Alexander Cadogan, of Britain.

The situation was complicated further, however, by objections from three new delegates sitting on the Council for the first time. Joining Australia, Faris El Khoury, of Syria, questioned the authority of the Security Council to assume jurisdiction over territory such as Trieste. Baron Robert Silvercruys, of Belgium, and Dr. Alfonso Lopez, of Colombia, asked more time for study.

Documents Not Received

Silvercruys and Lopez both declared their governments had not yet received the documents and asserted that they would be forced to abstain from voting if the big powers pressed for a ballot.

French Delegate Alexandre Parodi joined the United States, Britain and Russia in defending the legality of the Trieste plan under the Charter, but suggested that action be postponed in deference to the requests of Belgium and Colombia. Other delegates, including the United States, accepted his proposal.

Meanwhile, El Khoury said he was satisfied with the explanation of the Council's legal authority, as given by Gromyko and Cadogan, and was ready to support the draft statute. Lopez also withdrew his objection to an immediate vote.

There was no dissent, however, when Makin suggested that action be delayed until Friday. The delegates apparently agreed to the postponement in the hope of obtaining unanimity.

The Trieste plan finally had the certain approval of the United States, Great Britain, Russia, France, China, Poland, Syria and Colombia.

The only point of controversy remaining appeared to be Australia's contention that the Council had no power to assume responsibilities for the integrity and independence of Trieste as proposed by the Big Four.

Gromyko and Cadogan, in reply to this contention, cited Article 24 of the Charter and asserted that it gave the Council clear authority to accept the plan.

This article states that the Council has "primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security" and that in discharging its duties the Council "shall act in accordance with the purposes and principles of the United Nations."

Trieste Proposal Goes To U.N. Council

1947 (2-7)

Lake Success, N.Y., Jan. 7 (AP)—The United Nations Security Council meets today to welcome three new non-permanent members, accept future stewardship over Trieste and perhaps plunge again into the dispute between the United States and Russia over disarmament and atomic controls.

Starting the New Year under the chairmanship of Australia's Norman J. O. Makin, who presided at the first meeting in London a year ago January 17, the Council had before it the Triste decision of the Foreign Ministers' Council.

Under that decision in the Italian peace treaty the Security Council would govern Trieste as a free territory to guarantee its "independence and security."

Territorial Governor Later

Acceptance of this mission was regarded as a formality. Such vital questions as the appointment of a territorial governor for Trieste will be considered later.

Next on the calendar was the United Nations Assembly's resolution recommending a world-wide arms-reduction program.

It appeared unlikely, in view of Bernard M. Baruch's resignation from the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, that the United States would be prepared to argue the atomic-control question immediately.

Recess Expected

Council delegations expected that a recess would be taken for several days during which American policy might be clarified and the three new members may acquaint themselves further with the situation.

The new members of the Security Council, replacing Egypt, Mexico and the Netherlands for two-year terms, are:

BELGIUM—Fernand Lan Langenhove; alternate, Baron Robert Silvercruys, Ambassador to Washington, who will serve until Van Langenhove arrives in mid-January.

COLOMBIA—Dr. Alfonso Lopez, twice president of Colombia, who won fame as a peacekeeper in the mid-1930's by averting a war between Colombia and Peru through negotiation; alternate, Dr. Eduardo Zuleta-Angel.

SYRIA—Faris el Khoury, president of Parliament and law professor; alternate, Dr. Cesti K. Zurayk.

PALESTINE DIVISION GAINS

(N)

Bevin, Creech Jones Reported Supporting Split

A. GAVSHON

London, Jan. 7 (AP)—A Government source said today that Ernest Bevin, Foreign Secretary, and Arthur Creech Jones, Colonial Secretary, had decided to recommend to the Cabinet that Palestine be divided into independent Arab and Jewish states.

Such a division would reserve Jerusalem, Haifa and possibly other territory as "neutral" areas under British trusteeship, the source said. The Cabinet is to hear the recommendation at a special meeting Thursday.

Both Bevin and Creech Jones were represented as having "decided in principle" that the only hope of bringing peace to Palestine lay in the creation of separate states. Officials of the Foreign and Colonial offices were reported to be drawing up several variations of a partition plan for Cabinet consideration.

Troop Reinforcement

The Cabinet also is expected to decide whether to order reinforced British troops in the Holy Land to smash Jewish underground organizations. Government informants have asserted that any such order would touch off the greatest offensive in the modern history of Palestine.

Any partition plan decided on by Britain must be approved by the United Nations.

The Government source said the proposals to be discussed by the Cabinet would range "somewhere between" the plan of Nahum Goldman, prominent Zionist, under which Jews would get about 60 per cent of Palestine, and a revised version of Britain's "Morrison plan."

Jerusalem's Sacred Shrines

Britain would reserve Jerusalem as a neutral area, the source said, because of the sacred shrines in the city, and would reserve Haifa because that important port is the terminus of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company pipelines.

Moshe Shertok, political head of the Jewish Agency, said at a news conference that world Jewry would be satisfied with nothing less than making all of Palestine into a Jewish state.

The Goldman plan has been reported as having the backing of President Truman. The revised Morrison Plan would give more power to proposed Arab and Jewish provinces than the original which suggested four federal provinces under British tutelage.

On Way To Washington

Shertok urged Britain to "denounce forthrightly any intention to foist the so-called Morrison plan for semi-federalization upon the Jews and Arabs," because both had rejected it.

The Jewish leader, en route to Washington to represent the agency, said it was still too early to say whether Zionists would participate in the London conference on Palestine, slated to open January 21. The World Zionist Congress recently decided against such participation, but said the boycott would be ended if the British changed their attitude.

The Jewish Agency executive will report soon on whether conditions have changed sufficiently to warrant Jewish participation, Shertok added.

Cunningham Confers

General Sir Alan Cunningham, Palestine High Commissioner, conferred during the day with Colonial Office officials on partition plans.

Jewish sources in Jerusalem said that Sir Alan would return to the Holy Land this week end, and that his arrival would be the signal for launching of all-out military measures against extremists.

These sources said the commissioner would be authorized specifically to close Palestine's frontiers to all civilians, order an extended curfew, confiscate temporarily many civilian vehicles, fine towns and villages where "terrorism" occurs, and arrest certain Jewish political leaders.

Inverchapel Sees Byrnes.

Later on this afternoon a Foreign Office spokesman said that the British Government has again called the attention of the American State Department to American newspaper advertisements soliciting funds for what the spokesman called Jewish terrorist organizations in Palestine, Secretary of State Byrnes and Lord Inverchapel, the British Ambassador, have conferred informally on the subject, he added.

Britain has at least twice previously "directed the attention" of the State Department to such advertisements, but has never made clear what it wants the State Department to do about them. Today the spokesman revealed that particular attention was directed to statements contained in some of the advertisements that donations could be classed as charitable and thus deducted for taxable income.

Partition Is Said To Be Britain's 1947 Palestine Plan

London, Jan. 7 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech Jones were reported by a Government source today to have "decided in principle" that partition of Palestine into Arab and Jewish states was Britain's only hope of settling the Holy Land problem.

While the Colonial and Foreign offices studied what this informant called "several variations on the partition theme," the British Government received an appeal from Hagana, most moderate of Jewish underground organizations in Palestine, to shun any "large-scale retaliatory operations in the Holy Land."

The British Cabinet expected to consider Palestine proposals Thursday. An atmosphere of urgency was heightened by the steady flow of British soldiers, veterans of North African desert warfare, from Egypt into Palestine, where London sources have predicted a large-scale offensive to crush Jewish underground resistance.

Between Two Plans

Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, Palestine high commissioner, conferred with Colonial Office chiefs on partition proposals, which informants said would range somewhere between the American-supported "Goldmann plan" and a revised version of the semi-federalization scheme announced last year by Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison.

The Goldmann plan envisaged the creation of a Jewish state within the area recommended for the Jews by the 1937 Peel report, plus the Negeb Desert in southern Palestine. This would give the Jews about 60 per cent of the Holy Land. The revised version of the Morrison plan would give more power to the provinces proposed in the original draft.

U.N. Must Approve

In any partition plan, which would be subject to final approval by the United Nations, Britain would probably reserve at least Jerusalem and the port city of Haifa as neutral areas, informants said, the former for its sacred shrines, the latter because it is the terminus of the Anglo-Iranian Company's oil pipelines. Neutral areas would be under British trusteeship administration.

The Cabinet, meanwhile, was pictured by the British Press Association as seeking means of "inducing Jews to join" the renewed Palestine conference, now set for January 21 in London.

Appeal To Extremists

Haganah, largest of the Jewish underground groups, declared in a broadcast over the secret Palestine radio station, "Voice of Israel," last night that retaliation against recent outbursts of violence in the Holy Land would "only tend to create more terrorism."

It reiterated its oft-stated appeal to Irgun Zvai Leumi and the so-called Stern Gang, the most extreme underground organizations, to cease their attacks against the British.

British Lodge New 'Terrorism' Ad Protest

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—A State Department official said today that Great Britain has again raised objections to advertisements in American newspapers which the British contend solicit funds for "terrorism" in Palestine.

Similar complaints were made last summer. At that time, the State Department referred them to the Justice Department for study.

Expecting Widespread Push

Jerusalem, Jan. 7 (A. P.).—A reliable Jewish informant predicted today that the return from London of Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, High Commissioner of Palestine, would be followed closely by new military operations and security measures against the Jewish underground in the Holy Land.

H. G. L. Gurney, the Chief Secretary for Palestine, was reported to have told Jewish leaders that it was expected Sir Alan would be authorized to close all frontiers to civilians, extend the curfew, confiscate pro tem large numbers of civilian vehicles, impose collective fines on towns and villages in areas where underground violence occurs and arrest unspecified Jewish leaders.

BRITISH PUSH BUILDING BILL

Would Control All Future Real Estate Developments

London, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Labor Government tonight announced the details of a revolutionary town and country planning bill which delegates control of all future real estate development in Britain to state-appointed planning authorities.

The bill is expected to be approved in principle in the House of Commons before the end of the month.

In a White Paper explaining the measure the Government expressed the view that "any resulting increase in land value is to be collected in whole or in part by the state, in the form of a development charge, which must be paid or secured before the development is carried out.

No Excuse For Profit

"Increase in land value which accrues without development is left with the owner."

At a news conference Lewis Silkin, Minister of Town and Country Planning, said "there is no reason why a person should buy land and make a profit on the land itself."

He explained, however, that central land boards set up under the measure would "not necessarily take the whole profit" resulting from development.

The measure will replace half a dozen piecemeal planning acts dating back to 1907, but will leave unchanged a new towns bill under which the Government hopes to relieve congestion by building a series of small cities of 50,000 to 60,000 people a few miles outside major metropolitan areas.

Won't Affect Charter

The bill also will not affect the comprehensive land charter introduced recently under which the Government intends to boost agricultural efficiency by Government supervision and even dispossession of farmers disregarding Government advice.

The Government insists that the three bills "are not nationalization" of the land, raising the speculation that the trilogy of laws—for new towns, agriculture and town and country planning—might replace a plan for national ownership of the land long advocated by many Laborites.

Through the town and country planning bill the Government envisages reconstruction and redevelopment of old towns, the preservation of green belts, the provision of open spaces in overcrowded areas, and the allocation of land for new factories and industries "in the right places," the White Paper said.

Government Permission

"When the bill becomes law no new buildings may be constructed without Government permission," Silkin told the news conference.

"However it will not be a deterrent to building and it certainly will be an incentive to building in the right place."

He described the measure as "one of the most important measures before Parliament this session and the greatest town planning measure ever undertaken in this country."

"It carries out revolutionary changes in the nature of land holdings," he added.

The White Paper said "planning has so far been governed almost entirely by short-term financial considerations" forcing local authorities to build "schools, clinics, libraries wherever land was cheapest, often at great inconvenience to the people who use them."

Signboard Exclusion

The measure also would expand 40-year-old regulations for outdoor advertising and permit the exclusion of signboards from certain areas, both rural and urban.

Declaring the bill "does not nationalize the land," the Ministry of Town and Country Planning said however "it deprives the landowners of the right to build on their land unless the building is in accordance with proper planning requirements."

The measure sets up a fund of $1,200,000,000 for payments in negotiable Government stock to cover possible compensation of landowners who claim they have lost "development value."

ARGENTINE CREDIT TO SPAIN PUT HIGH

London, Jan. 7 (A. P.).—The Daily Graphic said today that a trade credit of £150,000,000 ($600,000,000) from Argentina to Spain would be announced shortly, one-third of the loan to be accredited to Spain from Argentine funds in England. The report, from the paper's Lisbon correspondent, apparently referred to the recently announced trade agreement negotiated in Buenos Aires by a Spanish mission.

"Jubilant Franco supporters in Madrid," the paper said, "believe that the political effects of this loan will be to postpone indefinitely any prospects of the United Nations' bringing about a change in the Spanish regime by any means other than by armed force."

The paper, whose publisher, Lord Kemsley, was recently an official guest of the Argentine Government, said that Spanish "optimists attribute the success of the Spanish-Argentine co-operation in part to the hostility of the United States toward President Peron."

Laborites Plan Talks On Foreign Policy

London, Jan. 7 (AP)—The British Labor party tonight said a series of private conferences would be held throughout the country, beginning next month, to acquaint party members and the labor movement generally with the Government's foreign policy.

These conferences, to be addressed by the Foreign Secretary, Ernest Bevin, and other Cabinet members, are the latest step in an "education" campaign begun by party heads following the revolt by some Labor M.P.'s against Bevin late in 1946.

War Brides Chorus U. S. Blues

English Wives Abandoned by ex-G. I.'s Charge Neglect and Mistreatment Here.

London, Jan. 7 (A. P.).—Prominently headlined stories of G. I. "Brides of Despair"—British girls "abandoned" by their American ex-soldier husbands in New York—appeared in most London newspapers today with purported details of neglect by United States officials and mistreatment by the American people.

The stories stemmed from an interview given by Mrs. Millie Vincent when she arrived from the United States last night with a story of divorce by proxy from Charles Woodrow Vincent of Birmingham, Ala. Mrs. Vincent, who has a 12-year-old son by a previous marriage, told the British Press Association that when she reached New York last August, she was informed by an immigration official:

"You are a divorced woman. You have no right to travel here under false pretenses at the expense of the United States Government."

Until a few weeks ago, Mrs. Vincent said, she and two dozen other British women, unable to find their husbands, lived in a hotel, with Government allowances of $2 a day for food and another $2 for sleeping accommodations.

"The money was only sufficient to buy breakfast," said Mrs. Vincent. "The hotel cost me $80 a week.

"English women were shabbily treated in New York. American women sneered at us and shop assistants (clerks) kept us waiting," she added.

A New York dispatch to the Daily Mail said that "hundreds of British war brides are stranded and living in squalor in New York, awaiting passage back to Great Britain."

"Without the help of the American Red Cross, which pays for their hotel accommodation . . . and gives them a little money each week, they would be penniless," the dispatch said.

The Mail quoted Kathleen Wood, mother of two children, as saying that she hadn't seen her ex-G. I. husband, whose name was not given, since they were married three years ago.

"It has been heartbreak," the 22-year-old English woman was quoted as saying. "But the worst thing of all is the treatment we girls and our babies have been getting in restaurants. They seem to know we have been left to our own resources and they take delight in making things difficult."

Annulment Of Divorce Puts Bride In Dither

Northampton, England, Jan. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Minnie Vincent—former GI bride whose story of mistreatment in America touched off a tempest of international comment—learned tonight that a divorce granted her husband has been annulled. She said she didn't know what to do now.

"If this means that Vincent is still my husband he will have to keep me," she said. "It is my right.

"I cannot tell you how I shall attempt to secure my rights until I have thought the matter over. But if it is necessary I am ready to go to America again."

husband of Mrs. Minnie Vincent, whose statements in London after her return there touched off the controversy.

Mrs. Vincent had said she arrived here in August only to be told her marriage had been dissolved. She complained vigorously of her treatment in this country.

Mistaken On Date

Judge Wheeler said he granted the divorce on an allegation of abandonment "through an oversight on my part." He explained he mistakenly read the date of abandonment in the divorce petition as March, 1945, although the petition read March, 1946.

1947

Alabama laws require abandonment to be of at least twelve months duration before it may be used as grounds for divorce.

In filing the complaint, Vincent attached a waiver bearing a signature accepted by the court as Mrs. Vincent's. The waiver consented to the divorce but denied abandonment.

Green said here the Red Cross had spent many thousands of dollars, "and gladly done so," to assist brides who were not met here by their husbands and who were delayed in the city a few days while the Army arranged transportation.

Denies Shoppers Mistreated

The Red Cross paid for hotel rooms and meals for the brides, gave them spending money, and even furnished funds for their meals on trains en route to their new homes, Green said.

Another Red Cross official, told that the London reports had quoted brides as saying they were ill-treated in stores and restaurants, said that volunteer home service workers had escorted some of the British girls on New York shopping trips.

"The volunteer workers reported the brides were amazed at what they could buy and had the time of their lives," he said.

Miss Eileen Patterson, director of the overseas wives' committee of the English Speaking Union, said "it is tragic to take one isolated instance and build it up into such a ridiculous story."

"Of course," she said, "all the marriages have not been happy. But, among the 6,000 in the New York area, only five per cent have not turned out happily. Can you say as much for American marriages?

Housing Lack Blamed

Miss Patterson said she believed lack of housing, which forced many of the couples to live with relatives, and the fact that many of the GI's married very young, were largely responsible for the unsuccessful marriages.

A British consulate spokesman snapped "rubbish" when parts of the London reports were read to her.

"It sounds like a tempest in a teapot," she said. "We certainly have not received any complaints from brides here."

Army Not Responsible

A New York Port of Embarkation spokesman said about 54,000 war brides had been brought to this country, the great majority from Britain.

At Washington, the Army washed its hands of any responsibility for war brides after they have arrived at their destinations in the United States.

Officials said the Army takes care of the transportation of the brides to their husbands' homes, but there its responsibility ends.

There is no authority in law for the War Department to transport the brides back home if, at a later date, they are separated from their husbands.

U.S. TREATS BRIDES WELL, IS REACTION

Mrs. Henn, Others Say Britis Criticism Is Misleading

New York, Jan. 7 (AP)—"T'ain't so." That was the widespread American reaction today to London reports that British war brides were being ill-treated and neglected here.

Mrs. Dorothy Geast Henn, the newcomer who recently gave birth to quadruplets, said in Baltimore that "everyone in America has been just the same to me—wonderfully kind."

"Since the first day I arrived when the GI's helped us with our luggage at the boat I have felt welcome here and well looked after. Nothing has made me change my mind.

"I think the London newspapers made a big splash about a few instances. The war brides I have talked to all seem happy."

"Gross Exaggeration"

"Gross exaggeration," exploded Daniel Green, director of the home service department of the New York Red Cross chapter, when informed of a dispatch to a London paper that hundreds of British brides were "stranded and living in squalor in New York, awaiting passage" home.

"We have not had occasion to help more than 30 women who were returning to British homes after leaving American husbands in the year that the brides have been coming over," Green said.

Meanwhile, at Birmingham, Ala., Circuit Judge Robert J. Wheeler set aside a divorce decree granted last May 9 to Charles W. Vincent

Joliot-Curies to Visit Poland

LONDON, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Moscow radio reported tonight that Irene and Frederic Joliot-Curie, French scientists, would visit Poland "at the invitation of the Polish Government." The purpose of the visit was not announced. M. Joliot-Curie is a researcher in the splitting of atom nuclei; Mme. Joliot-Curie is a speicalist in the field of induced radioactivity.

FRENCH CHUTISTS ROUT REBELS IN PUSH NEAR HANOI

J. DYNAN (N)

PARIS, Jan. 7—(AP) French parachute troops, dropping by bright moonlight in the canal-split terrain at Namdinh, 50 miles southeast of Hanoi, have relieved the European colony barricaded in a cotton mill and are mopping up Viet-Namese in the town, the French general staff reported today.

Other French troops fighting to break the virtual seige of Hanoi advanced eastward toward a junction with other forces battling west of Haiduong, mid-way point between the Tonkin capital and the coast.

The parachute drops on Sunday night was "completely successful," the French said, and the parachute detachments quickly established a bridgehead across a canal, opening a path for water-borne troops which captured a cotton mill where the European civilian population had been fighting off Viet-Namese attacks since Dec. 19.

The troops then battled on into Namdinh, important cotton mill town, where they met stiff resistance from the Viet-Namese entrenched behind breastworks.

In Hanoi itself, artillery duels continued while the column advancing on Haiduong captured the village of Banyennhan. The force from Haiduong captured the village of Chykhe, but the general staff did not say how far the two forces were apart.

In Saigon, southern Indochina, dispatches said the French director of information there had banned all mention of the Viet Nam government on the ground that that government was illegal and non-existent.

Colonial Minister Marius Motet, spending his last day in the colony on a fact-finding mission, received Gen. Leclerc, in charge of military operations in Indochina, for a conference.

French Stage 'Chute' Assault Near Namdinh

Paris, Jan. 7 (AP)—French forces fanning out from Hanoi extended their control to Namdinh by a predawn parachute assault and approached a lineup with troops from Haiduong, dispatches from Indo-China said today.

The French general staff said the parachute drop on the north bank of a canal near Namdinh in the lower reaches of the River Rouge south of Hanoi was "completely successful" and that mop-up operations in Namdinh itself were proceeding.

Two columns approaching each other from Hanoi and Haiduong on the Thai-binh River east of Hanoi, erstwhile capital of the Viet-Nam Republic's government, made good progress despite lively resistance, the dispatches said.

Meanwhile, French Colonial Minister Marius Moutet, completing his investigation of the situation in Indo-China, prepared to leave Saigon tomorrow by plane to report to the French Government in Paris.

French Reinforced

French troops have been reinforced by "important elements" of the French Foreign Legion, dispatches said.

Troops and cargo planes were said to be reaching Indo-China in considerable numbers. Other dispatches told of a broadcast from the Viet-Namese radio relaying a statement that Ho Chi Minh, president of the fugitive Viet-Nam Government, had formally invited Moutet to meet him at Hanoi.

The broadcast said a letter of invitation was dispatched to Moutet in Hanoi on January 3 and saluted the investigating Cabinet member as "a messenger of peace." In Saigon, however, Moutet told newsmen that such broadcasts were "just propaganda."

240 Frenchmen Reported Killed In Hanoi Battle

Manila, Jan. 7 (AP)—A Viet Nam communiqué broadcast today by radio Hanoi reported 240 French troops were killed, 30 were wounded and two tanks were knocked out in a ten-hour battle in Hanoi, Indo-China, Friday.

The broadcast was recorded here by the Associated Press.

It said that numerous detachments of French infantry, supported by twenty tanks, armored cars and fighting planes, launched simultaneous attacks at 5.30 A.M. against Viet Nam positions in the Ngoc Ha quarter of northwest Hanoi. The quarter includes the Kim Ma Pagoda, Leiugiai Cathedral and the Hommel beer factory.

The communiqué reported 200 French soldiers were killed in that encounter and 40 more were killed by guerrillas who checked the French advance from Duy Tan street in the center of Hanoi toward the Cau Den quarter to the south.

Blum's Heavy Industry Plan

Paris, Jan. 7 (AP)—Premier Leon Blum said tonight that his Government was ready to put into execution the basic elements of a four-year plan seeking to restore France's heavy industry and financial economy.

"Whatever happens," the aged Premier said, "we are going to need more coal, electricity, cement, farm machinery and transport. That is why we have to decide to begin operation of the plan immediately."

The Premier's announcement came as it was learned that France's coal miners had produced more than 46,000,000 tons of coal in 1946, going 14,000,000 tons over the 1945 mark.

This plan was prepared by a program commission under direction of Jean Monnet who said the program calls particularly for increasing France's resources through modernization of her industrial and agricultural methods and equipment and also provides for increasing the work week from 40 to 48 hours.

No Political Union Yet.

Frankfurt, Jan. 7 (A. P.).—Gen. Joseph T. McNarney said today that there would be no political union of the American and British zones of Germany — now joined in an economic union—"unless it became perfectly apparent that there was no possibility of unifying Germany."

He was asked about a "capital city" for the bi-zonal committees now organizing. He said: "If we set up a capital that, in effect, would be creating a political union of the American and British zones."

The problem of bringing the Russian and French zones into the economic merger is among those to be considered by the Big Four Foreign Ministers in Moscow next March.

"We are hoping to arrive eventually at a solution," McNarney said, "and I hope very much it will be reached at the Moscow meeting."

The Army's military responsibilities, McNarney said, are becoming stabilized and by March 1 the Army in Germany and Austria will be down to its permanent strength of about 160,000 men, including the Air Force and the Constabulary. He said that the United States Third Army would cease operations on March 1.

INS

McNarney said he was very happy that, upon relinquishing his post on March 15, he will be succeeded by Lieut.-Gen. Lucius D. Clay, adding: "I believe that there is not another man, in or out of the military services, as well qualified to be Military Governor as Gen. Clay."

Newlywed Reich GI's Lack Homes

1947

Frankfurt, Jan. 7 (AP)—An American soldier now can marry a German girl—but where or when he can live with her while in Germany may prove something of a problem.

He can take her to an army rest center for a one-week honeymoon, after which he can visit her during his off-duty hours.

But he cannot obtain a Government-requisitioned house for her and neither can he move in with her family.

Army Policy Cited

"Theater policy forbids the billeting of personnel of the occupation forces with Germans," European headquarters of the United States forces said in a question-and-answer summary on Fraulein marriages.

"There is no objection," it continued, "to a soldier visiting German dependents when authorized to be absent from duty or quarters."

The limitations are expected to affect only a brief span of the couples' married lives, however, as marriages generally will be authorized only when the soldier is nearing the end of his tour of duty in Europe.

Provision For Honeymoon

Concerning wedding trips, the summary said:

"For the purpose of a honeymoon, a German dependent, when accompanied by a spouse, may visit a rest center within occupied territory for a period not to exceed one week."

During that time the German girl will be allowed full use of the center's facilities, the same as any other dependent.

8 Yanks On Missing 'Fortress' Ruled Dead

Frankfurt, Jan. 7 (AP)—Eight Americans who disappeared two months ago in an Army Flying Fortress en route from Naples to London today were declared officially dead.

No trace was ever found of the plane. American, British, French and Italian flyers searched a great area, but found no clue.

Those aboard were identified by the Army as Col. Ford L. Fair, of Washington; Col. Hudson H. Upham, of Los Angeles; Major Lawrence L. Cobb, of Petersburg, Va.; Lieut. Alfred D. Ramirez, of New York, and Sergts. John E. Gilber, of Frankfurt, Ind.; William S. Cassell, of Mount Airy, N.C.; William A. Hilton, of San Angelo, Texas, and Zolton J. Dobozich, of Kutztown, Pa.

2 Nazi Women To Die For Asylum Slayings

Berlin, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Allied Kommandantur (governing body) upheld today the death sentences passed by a German court on two women for participating in the killing by injections of more than 600 mental patients of an eastern German asylum during the Nazi regime.

The doomed women were Dr. Hilde Wernicke, 47, and a nurse named Wieczorek, 42. The Kommandantur upheld the action of a German clemency board, which rejected their pleas to escape the gallows.

28 MORE DEAD, GREECE SAYS

150 Arrested In Connection With Athens Clashes

Athens, Jan. 7 (AP)—At least 28 persons were reported today to have been killed in intensified fighting in northern and central Greece, and more than 150 persons were under arrest in connection with bloody political clashes in Athens over the week end.

Those arrested were picked up for questioning about fighting between Communists and members of the Rightist Xites organization, which resulted in five deaths and gave the capital a taste of the violence raging for months in other sections of the country.

Crown Prince Paul and Princess Fredrika, meanwhile, prepared to leave by sea for a visit to troubled Macedonia. A Government announcement said the two would "come personally into contact" with residents of northern Greece and Government troops stationed there.

First Since King Returned

The visit will be the first by members of the royal family since the return of King George II last September from his exile in Britain.

Press reports from the village of Anatoli, 19 miles east of Larisa in east-central Greece, said that two gendarmes and ten guerrillas were killed in a fierce battle. Eleven guerrillas were reported wounded, and six gendarmes are missing.

A band of insurgents kidnapped and killed the mayor and three other officials of the tiny village of Zarko near Trikkala in central Greece, newspaper reports said.

Other dispatches said that eight guerrillas were killed in the village of Gonas on Mount Olympus; two more were killed in an unsuccessful attack near Domokos, midway between Lamia and Pharsalos, and several others were killed in a clash outside Lamia, less than 100 miles northwest of Athens.

The Ministry of Public Order said a Communist band had raided the villages of Karyai, near Lake Prespa, and Neachoraki, near Florina, and also had seized six other villages.

An authoritative source, meanwhile, said the Greek Government had reported to Britain that the narrow Corfu Channel between Greece and Albania had been mined again. Britain has protested to Albania about the damaging of two British destroyers by mines in the channel and the resulting deaths of 44 men about three months ago.

SOVIET OFFICERS HEAR MONTGOMERY

MOSCOW, Jan. 7. — (AP) Field Marshal Lord Montgomery, here for a six day visit, intends to make it clear to the Russians that any military agreements between Britain and the United States are not exclusive, an authoritative source said today.

The chief of the British imperial staff will emphasize that Britain will welcome Russia to join in any such agreements, under the United Nations, the informant said.

Russian commentators have been critical of reports that the U. S. and Britain intended to standardize their military equipment and training programs so as to be ready to swing into action on short notice under one supreme commander.

Important Mission

Montgomery's visit is viewed in some quarters as the most important mission to Moscow by a Britisher in a long time.

The British commander, who arrived here by plane yesterday, went sightseeing this morning and then addressed high-ranking Soviet officers at the Voroshilov higher military academy. The speech was delivered in English and translated into Russian.

Montgomery explained his conception of the role of assault troops, and told the Russians that he placed great emphasis on the "human equation" in the direction of an army.

The general and his host, Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky, chief of the Soviet general staff, attended a two-and-a-half-hour luncheon at Speridonifka palace, where many cordial speeches were made and toasts offered to British-Russian friendship.

An eyewitness said that although Montgomery did not drink any vodka he made a speech which was enthusiastically applauded.

Toasts to the health of Prime Minister Stalin and King George VI were exchanged, and special tribute was paid to Montgomery for his successes in the war.

BLOC IN IRAN FIGHTS RUSSIAN OIL GRANT

Four Parties Unite on Program of Barring Deal and Project of Black Sea Pipeline

TEHERAN, Iran, Jan. 7 (AP)—Riza Afshar, veteran Iranian politician, announced today the formation of a coalition on a platform of opposition to Premier Ahmad Ghavam's agreement to give Russia a huge oil concession in the North.

Mr. Afshar, a member of three pre-war Parliaments and a principal stockholder in the American-affiliated Iranian Airways, said four political groups, the Radical Socialists, National Unity party, People's party and the University Students Union had joined under the banner of the Independent party to oppose the Premier's new National Democratic party. Three of the coalition groups are major parties.

Mr. Afshar said the group was opposed to the "sell-out" of the oil reserves to Russia and that if he were elected to Parliament he would propose instead to form an Iranian oil company to transport oil by pipeline across Turkey to Black Sea markets.

Parliament Approval Sought

Premier Ghavam agreed to submit to the new Parliament his accord with Russia to give her an oil concession in five northern provinces. Under the accord the Russians would have 51 per cent of the shares of the enterprise the first twenty-five years and 50 per cent the second twenty-five years.

Mr. Afshar, leader of the Radical Socialists, said he was a Parliament candidate from his home province, Azerbaijan. He said the new coalition would visit Shah Mohammed Riza Pahlevi "to protest that the elections are not free."

The national elections begin in Teheran Saturday. They will last a week here and are scheduled to continue in the rest of Iran for perhaps three months.

The leftist Tudeh party, which went underground following the collapse of the Soviet-inclined Azerbaijanian Democrat party, replaced its old newspaper the Rahbar (Leader) with a new publication, Mardom (People), which announced a new ten-point policy. The paper said a new interim executive had been set up to direct the party along new lines, described by outsiders as a swing to the right.

Party Purge Proposed

The new policy included a purge of "adventurers" and paid party workers, an investigation of "bribery or misappropriation" in party ranks, a recommendation that the party adhere strictly to the rule of constitution and law, a foreign policy of friendship for any foreign government that "respects our independence and freedom and does not prevent reform and progress," and preparations for a new party congress within three months.

The right-wing newspaper Atash said the new Tudeh policy was to be compared with the ancient Persian fable of the "cat who became priest." In the fable the cat prayed loud for forgiveness for catching mice. Trusting mice approached with gifts of thankfulness, and then the cat pounced on and devoured the lot.

CHINESE REDS POISED FOR PAOTING ASSAULT

PEIPING, Jan. 7 — (AP) An imminent assault by 80,000 Chinese Communist troops on the long-besieged, government-held capital city of Paoting in Hopeh Province was reported today along with Communist successes creating a critical government situation in South Shantung Province. Paoting is 90 miles south of Peiping.

The independent newspaper Hsin Min Pao said that 12 Communist field brigades and five regiments were ready to attack Paoting from points within five miles of the city.

The same newspaper said that the Reds have captured Chuyeh and Chiahsiang in Southern Shantung Province and that the situation there from the government standpoint has become quite serious.

Two Shantung Towns Reported Taken By Reds

Peiping, Jan. 7 (AP)—The independent newspaper Hsin Min Pao today reported Chinese Communists captured Chuyeh and Chihsiang in southern Shantung province and termed the situation there critical.

The towns are about 100 miles south and southwest of Tsinan, the provincial capital.

Chinese press dispatches reported the Communists have 80,000 troops massed around Paoting, capital of Hopeh province. Some were only 5 miles from the city. Hsin Min Pao said they were ready to attack the city they long besieged last fall but never captured.

Government troops have thrown up fortresses and installed anti-mine devices on armored trains as precautionary measures.

The Government reported its troops gained ground in the area north of Kailu, 217 miles west of Changchun, but said Communists derailed a freight train on the Peiping-Mukden line and carried off five railway staff members.

All Japs Repatriated From Three Areas

Tokyo, Jan. 7 (A. P.). — The repatriation of Japanese nationals from Formosa, China proper and China-controlled Manchuria has been completed, the Allied headquarters announced today.

Returned were 473,316 from Formosa; 1,499,397 from China, and 1,010,837 from Manchuria. From all areas, including China, the Allied headquarters to date has returned 5,079,023 Japanese out of 6,583,753 awaiting repatriation.

Pirie In England Briefly

Tokyo, Jan. 7 (AP)—British Air Marshal Sir George Pirie, of the Southeast Asia Command, arrived today for a brief stay. He will confer with Lieut. Gen. H. C. H. Robertson, commanding British occupation forces, before leaving Saturday for Singapore.

New Chief for Cruiser Group

YOKOSUKA, Japan, Jan. 7 (AP)—Capt. Alexander J. Junker of Pittsburgh, Pa., today relieved Capt. George C. Crawford of Black Mountain, N. C., as commander of the heavy cruiser Chicago, flagship of Cruiser Division 1, based here. Captain Crawford recently was advised he had been selected for promotion to Rear Admiral and named commander of Cruiser Division 13, based in the Marianas.

200 Dependents Reach Japan

YOKOHAMA, Japan, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Marine Falcon arrived today with 220 dependents of United States occupation personnel, 265 enlisted men, seventeen missionaries, fifteen War Department civilians and 290 Japanese repatriates from Canada.

4 Diamond Rings Found in a Fish

By the Associated Press.

TIENTSIN, Jan. 7.—The paper Ta Kung Pao related that Jung Chao, a poor fisherman off Canton, caught one fish and became a millionaire. Inside the 300-pound fish were four diamond rings.

Two of them bore the Japanese name Yamamoto, the same as the famous admiral who was shot down at sea by the Americans in 1943. His body was never found. His was a common Japanese name, however.

An expert valued the rings at 20,000,000 Chinese dollars, or about $3000 in American money.

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Interim Government was reshuffled today to fill the post to be left vacant by the departure this month of Asaf Ali as Ambassador to the United States.

Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, Congress party scholar and Moslem divine, who originally succeeded Asaf Ali as Minister of Transport, took over the Department of Education.

Dr. John Matthai, Indian Christian minority representative, shifted from the Ministry of Industries and Supplies to Transport.

C. Rajagopalacharia moved from the Department of Education to the Industries and Supplies post.

Bombay Strife Renewed

Bombay, Jan. 7 (AP)—Communal strife between Hindus and Moslems was renewed here today and two were killed and eleven injured in knife attacks, an official police statement said. Six persons, including three women, were injured by acid-throwers.

Indonesians Leaving Palembang Area

Batavia, Jan. 7 (A. P.).—The withdrawal of all armed Indonesian Nationalists from Palembang and a twelve-mile surrounding area was under way today in compliance with a Netherlands Army ultimatum.

The local Republican Governor said that he had accepted the ultimatum "to save the city from destruction." The area has been the scene of fighting for several days.

Manila Plans Foreign Offices

MANILA, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Philippine Department of Foreign Affairs today announced plans to establish legations at Bangkok, Nanking, London and Madrid, and consulates at Shanghai, Barcelona and Sydney, Australia. A consulate at Amoy, China, also is planned. Opening of the Madrid legation would depend upon the United Nations' attitude toward Spain's Franco Government, the department said.

GOP Sees Good In Truman Ideas

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Republicans in Congress figured today that President Truman has adopted enough of their program to assure himself a fancy legislative batting average.

The way GOP leaders and committee chairmen size up things, the Truman record may look considerably better on the books than when the Democrats were running Congress—and discarding or changing more presidential proposals than they accepted.

But the prospective new laws on taxes, labor, housing and on down the line will be what the Republicans think they should be—not necessarily what Mr. Truman wants.

One Republican's Views

Chairman Michener (R., Mich.) of the House Judiciary Committee, put it this way:

"The President's subjects are fine. But we may not like the methods. We're for housing, but we don't want the Government to build everybody a home. We are for improved health, but not for socialized medicine."

"Sure," said House Republican Leader Halleck, of Indiana, "we'll proceed expeditiously to act on labor problems.

"We'll hasten the end of wartime controls. We all applaud his ideas for expansion of private enterprise. We Republicans have been for that all along.

Budget-Balancing Agreement

"On budget balancing," Halleck went on, "he's offering co-operation on an important plank in our victory platform of 1946. We'll go along with him on economy—maybe farther than he wants.

"But I don't like his idea for socialized medicine. It has been turned down three times by a Democratic Congress."

The President's labor program drew loud applause. Yet many Republicans said it didn't go far enough. They may expand it. Both the GOP and White House agree it must not be "punitive."

On taxes, the Chief Executive recommended only that Congress retain for another year the wartime excise rates on luxury items now due to end June 30. Republicans have been considering ending them immediately. And they have introduced a bill to trim twenty per cent from personal taxes on incomes up to $300,000.

Military Merger's Chances

It's evidently a tossup whether Congress will merge the Army and Navy, as the President requests.

Universal training and extension of the draft apparently are dead even before Mr. Truman makes definite bids for them.

Some things Mr. Truman requested of the last Congress were omitted this time. An example: More pay for the unemployed.

"In abandoning some of those things," Halleck said, "he is being realistic. The people aren't interested in a lot of those things because they aren't sound or desirable."

Other Matters' Position

This is the way some of the current presidential proposals stack up:

HOUSING—The President asks for an "aggressive" program along lines of the Wagner-Ellender-Taft bill approved by the Senate last year. The Senate may pass it again. The House may junk it as before. The House Banking Committee plans a study of the whole housing problem. Says Chairman Wolcott (R., Mich.): "We want no socialization of housing."

FEDERAL CONTROLS—The President and Republicans are in agreement they should be lifted as rapidly as possible.

Veterans' Assistance Outlook

VETERANS—The President says the program of veterans' benefits is "complete" except for minor adjustments. Many members of Congress, both Republicans and Democrats, are pushing bills for more billions to help former GI's.

PEACE TREATIES—Mr. Truman wants Senate ratification of those with Italy, Bulgaria, Romania and Hungary as the best obtainable, even though they are imperfect. Republicans are expected to follow Senator Vandenberg (Mich.) in voting for them.

REFUGEES—The President wants legislation that will allow more displaced persons from abroad to come to the United States. Heavy opposition to relaxing immigration laws has developed among both parties.

TVA's—The President plugged development of great river systems with "full vigor." Legislators are split on the idea. Many from areas that would be developed favor the program.

Democrats 'Relieved'

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Democrats concluded with relief today that President Truman held to a middle course in his message yesterday and thus consolidated his party's support at the outset of the Republican-controlled Congress.

Praise for the President's legislative recommendations came from both wings of the party. There were indications that if Mr. Truman keeps to the course he charted he may enjoy greater Democratic support than he previously has been able to muster in Congress.

Liberals' Fears Eased

The party's self-styled liberals, who obviously had feared the President was going over to what they regard as the conservative viewpoint as a result of the November election, generally said they found the message satisfactory.

Senator Pepper (D., Fla.), who classes himself with this group of former New Dealers, said he thought Mr. Truman's message was "as well balanced and fair as could be expected from anybody."

Saying he agrees in principle with the President's recommendations for laws to stop jurisdictional strikes and ban some secondary boycotts, Pepper added he doesn't want any action that would interfere with free collective bargaining.

"Might Have Gone Further"

Senator Murray (D., Mont.), retiring chairman of the Labor Committee, found the general tone of the President's message "very satisfactory," but said he believes Mr. Truman might have gone further "by putting more emphasis on some of the progressive measures that have been proposed."

But if he disappointed this group somewhat on that point, he apparently pleased those who say they hold more conservative views.

Senator George (D., Ga.), one of the latter, said he considered the tone of the President's message "conciliatory."

"As far as he was specific in his recommendations," George said, "it seems to me they present a basis on which there could be reasonable agreement between the legislative and executive branches."

Senator McClellan (D., Ark.), found the message "a reasonably fair one. Senator Hoey (D., N.C.), called it "splendid."

Strongest Yet, Says Lucas

Senator Lucas (D., Ill.), the new party whip, tabbed it "the strongest and the most far-reaching the President ever made."

Senator Stewart [illegible] Tenn.), said that if the Republicans do not go along with Mr. Truman they may be sorry.

Among those who class themselves in the progressive wing, Senator Wagner (D., N.Y.) forecast the acceptance by Congress of most of Mr. Truman's recommendations.

And Senator Kilgore (D., W.Va.) said the message "clearly defined a road of progressivism that, if adhered to by the Congress, may well lead us to a broader realization of the great ideals of democracy."

Less Enthusiastic

There were a few Democrats not quite so enthusiastic.

Representative Cox (D., Ga.) said the President started out in the right direction on labor, "but he didn't go far enough."

"I am in agreement on his program for domestic economies and fiscal affairs," Cox said, "but I disagree with him violently in his views on foreign affairs and international relief."

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) remarked:

"I hope Congress gives the President a greater volume of co-operation in balancing the budget than he asked for."

McCormack New House Whip

Meanwhile, House Minority Leader Rayburn, of Texas, announced today the appointment of Representative John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, as Democratic whip.

McCormack was succeeded by Rayburn as Democratic floor leader when the Republicans organized the House last Friday. His job as whip is to keep members on the floor for important votes and to keep them informed of minority plans.

Rayburn said he "prevailed" on McCormack to accept the post "because of his close co-operation with me in the House leadership during the last six years."

The Democrats have had no whip since John Sparkman, of Alabama left the House to become a senator

PRESIDENT FACES CONGRESS BATTLE

1947

Sharp Differences Develop Over Spending, Military, Strike Curbs.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 — (AP) President Truman headed tonight for real trouble with Congress on his ideas for running the government.

At noon tomorrow the field of conflict may be further widened when the president submits recommendations for avoiding depression and working instead for prosperity.

Differ on Budget

Already, these difficulties had arisen for Mr. Truman in his efforts to get his program through the new Republican congress:

1. Reports that the President will submit a $37,000,000,000 budget for the fiscal year beginning next July 1 aroused G.O.P. opposition. Chairman Taber (R-NY) of the House Appropriations Committee figured $29,500,000,000 is enough.

The president's budget message, according to some officials, would predict a surplus of not more than $1,500,000,000. He wants the surplus to be used to reduce the national debt of about $253,000,000,000.

Some Republicans argue that, with stringent economies, it will be possible to cut most individual income taxes 20 percent, and still reduce the debt too. The president's reported budget plans evidently do not contemplate any such tax cut.

2. A majority of congress seemed inclined to pay little attention to the president's plan for a 20-man committee to investigate means to prevent dangerous strikes. The general Republican attitude was that action, rather than inquiry, is needed.

3. Chances of the Army-Navy unification which Mr. Truman asked appeared about even in a survey of the new congress. However, sentiment generally opposed universal military training and favored letting the wartime draft law expire March 31.

4. Republican leaders threw their support to the Smith-Ball-Taft Bill providing for federal aid to states and local governments for voluntary health insurance. Senator Aiken (R-Vt) said today that if Mr. Truman is thinking of compulsory health insurance under federal law, "it doesn't have a ghost of a chance."

The report which Mr. Truman hands to congress tomorrow on economic measures will be followed Friday by his recommendations on spending in the coming fiscal year.

Ideas on Prosperity

Tomorrow's message will put into recommendation form the president's ideas of achieving maximum prosperity. It is based on the Employment Act of 1946.

The Economic Council set up by the act already has reported to the president that the years ahead promise well. It said that while a "dip" may come this year, even it could be avoided.

The law sets forth that the "continuing policy and responsibility of the federal government" shall be to "use all practicable means consistent with its needs and obligations" to promote maximum employment, production and purchasing power.

Such a set of purposes could well provide many different approaches. How Mr. Truman's ideas will stack up with the Republicans' remained to be seen. He had backed a "full employment" goal but even the last congress refused to go that far, opponents saying it implied a government guarantee of jobs.

Chairman Knutson (R-Minn) of the House Ways and Means Committee told reporters he expects to call the joint Senate-House Budget Committee into session January 13 or 14. The first action on the president's budget program probably will occur at this meeting.

Rep. Taber threatened to "use a sledgehammer" on the budget Mr. Truman will present. He also called for lopping off 1,000,000 government workers from the payroll.

Otherwise, on capitol hill:

House Republicans sped work on a bill to check and possibly outlaw labor union suits for back pay on a portal-to-portal basis.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) disclosed that Senate Republicans plan a three-day week for the senate for the next two months. The idea is for the senate to meet Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, leaving Tuesday and Thursday open for morning and afternoon committee meetings.

House Democrats selected Rep. McCormick (D-Mass) to be their assistant floor leader, under Rep. Rayburn (D-Texas.)

Most Of Truman Service Plans 'Face Defeat'

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—At least two thirds of President Truman's tentative military program appears today to be headed for defeat in Congress.

A survey among congressional leaders indicates that:

1. There will be no universal training legislation enacted this year.

2. The chances are about even that the Army and the Navy may be merged into a single service.

3. The present wartime draft law, expiring March 31, won't be renewed.

President's Requests

In his message yesterday, Mr. Truman asked for unification of the armed forces, said development of a trained citizen reserve "can best be accomplished through universal training," and, while withholding a decision on extending the draft, declared that basic needs of the Army are not being met by voluntary enlistments.

Many of those who predicted defeat for universal training and an extension of Selective Service did so privately.

However, House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., sounded what is expected to be the keynote of Republican opposition to the training program when he reiterated his belief that the United States should try to outlaw peacetime conscription everywhere.

Wants International Ban

Martin said he stands today where he stood last year when he formally proposed that this country, working through the United Nations, seek an international ban on military conscription.

Chairman Andrews (R., N.Y.) of the new House Armed Services Committee, said he has not changed his position in favor of universal training and the Army-Navy merger. He said he doubts that the committee will get around to considering either for some time.

The next-ranking Republican on the Armed Services Committee, Representative Short, of Missouri, commented:

"I have always been and will always be opposed to universal training because conscription is repugnant to a free people. I am against continuing the draft law because we don't need it. If the Army wasn't getting enough men through voluntary enlistments, why have they suspended the drafting of men? I'm for the Army-Navy merger."

How Others Stand

Two top Democrats on the committee, Representatives Thomason, of Texas, and Vinson, of Georgia, favor universal training, but say they aren't optimistic about its chances.

Representative Leo Allen, of Illinois, chairman of the House Rules Committee, termed it "unlikely" that a universal training bill would be enacted but "probable" that the Army and the Navy would be merged.

Chairman Gurney (R., S.D.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee said "the President's outline of his program for national defense coincides with my ideas."

Senator Robertson (R. Wyo.), a member of Gurney's committee, said he thinks Mr. Truman has been "entirely misled" on the point of unification.

"I don't think merger under any plan will cut costs, and I certainly don't think it will enhance our security," Robertson asserted.

TABER LASHES AT TRUMAN'S BUDGET PLANS

Appropriation Head 'To Use Sledge Hammer' On $37,000,000,000

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Representative Taber (R., N.Y.), chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, threatened tonight to "use a sledge hammer" on President Truman's expected proposal for a $37,000,000,000 budget. Taber called for lopping 1,000,000 employes off the Federal pay roll.

Signalling the first major clash between the Democratic Administration and the Republican-controlled Congress, Taber said:

"If the President presents anything like a $37,000,000,000 outlay for expenditures next year, we will use a sledge hammer as well as a meat ax to bring down that figure.

Hasn't Changed Figure

"My budget figure is $29,140,000,000," Taber said, "and I haven't changed it.

"We are going to cut down Government expenditures to a point where the budget can be balanced, a payment made on the national debt, and we will still have room to reduce taxes."

Government officials predicted Mr. Truman will submit to Congress on Friday a budget close to the $37,000,000,000 mark. This would be for the next fiscal year, beginning July 1, 1947.

Truman Opposition Foreseen

The officials also predicted that Mr. Truman would take a stand against Republican plans to cut personal income taxes by twenty per cent for a total of $3,350,000,000 this year.

They said, too, they expect Mr. Truman to announce a surplus of not more than $1,500,000,000 along with a recommendation that it should be applied to the national debt. The debt now totals about $253,000,000,000.

Taber said Republicans hope to cut the budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 by $12,000,000,000 under the estimated $41,000,000,000 expenditures in the current fiscal year.

Too Many, He Thinks

"We now have nearly 2,300,000 civilian employés; we do not need over 500,000 at the most," he said.

"We can surely cut 1,000,000 off this number without damaging the efficiency of the Government."

The New Yorker contends "there is hardly a department of the Government that has not twice as many employés as it needs." He promised an "immediate survey of the whole picture."

Truman States Stand

Mr. Truman indicated his opposition to tax cuts yesterday when he said any surplus of Government revenues in the current "flush times" should go to debt retirement.

Moreover, he asked Congress to prevent an automatic rollback of $1,500,000,000 annually in special wartime excise levies—on liquor, jewelry, furs, luggage, light bulbs, theater admissions, telephone service, transportation and many other goods and services.

The rollback is required by the 1943 Revenue Act to take place July 1, unless a new law is passed to continue the taxes.

Asserting that consumers are delaying purchases awaiting the lowering of excise taxes—and business is being hurt—Representative O'Toole (D., N.Y.) offered a bill yesterday to make the rollback effective at once.

Some To Co-Operate

However, some Republicans indicated they are ready to go along with Mr. Truman part way, including his recommendation to keep the $9-gallon rate on liquor. But they want quick reductions of taxes on goods which might be affected by consumers delaying their purchases.

Unless Congress takes action to the contrary, the liquor tax will drop automatically from $9 to $6 a gallon July 1. Liquor is the biggest item on the excise list, yielding about $2,500,000,000 a year. A reduction to $6 would mean a loss of more than $800,000,000 in revenue annually.

Government spokesmen said they expect Mr. Truman to tell Congress on Thursday that the only way Government spending can be reduced is by trimming benefits to veterans, Federal aid to states and similar programs voted by Congress in the past and thus not subject to reduction by presidential action.

In this way, they said, they expect Mr. Truman to anticipate the Republican drives for economy and tax cutting.

TRUMAN HEALTH PLAN OPPOSED

1947

Republicans Against Any Compulsory Insurance.

Washington, Jan. 7 (A. P.).—Senate Republicans made it clear today that they will oppose the medical care program urged by President Truman if it calls for compulsory health insurance. But the Chief Executive won some Republican support for his recommendation that a Department of Welfare be established to handle social security and related matters.

As for medical care, Senator Aiken (R.-Vt.) told a reporter that if Mr. Truman still is thinking in terms of a mandatory health insurance program, "it doesn't have a ghost of a chance." Senator Ball (R.-Minn.) echoed this sentiment, adding that such a plan "is completely totalitaran."

Mr. Truman indicated, but did not specify in his State of the Union message yesterday, that he was talking about compulsory insurance when he said:

"I urge the Congress to complete the work begun last year and to enact the most important recommendation of the (health) program—to provide adequate medical care to all who need it, not as a charity but on the basis of payments made by the beneficiaries of the program."

To Reintroduce Bill.

Presumably the President was referring to the insurance provisions of the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill, which was shelved by the last Congress. In its place, the Republicans plan to reintroduce, with some modifications, the Smith-Ball-Taft bill providing for Federal aid to States and local governments for voluntary health insurance.

Along these lines, Senator Morse (R.-Ore.) said he believes "we can work out a program of health protection which will free the American people from fear of bankrupting doctor bills without at the same time socializing the medical profession."

Even before Mr. Truman addressed Congress yesterday, Senator Taft of Ohio, chairman of the Senate Republican steering committee, had declared "we are strenuously opposed to the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill which attempts to impose a complete system of compulsory sickness insurance on all people in the United States."

Taft for Voluntary Plan.

Taft said that the Republicans will encourage a voluntary plan to be available to those who wish to take it.

In urging establishment of a well integrated Department of Welfare, Mr. Truman said this would "help greatly to further our national program in the fields of health, education and welfare."

Morse, recalling that he sponsored a bill in the last Congress to create such a department, said he plans to reintroduce it.

Aiken expressed the opinion that welfare activities had grown to a point of importance where a separate department was justified. Ball, on the other hand, said that he was not sold on the need for a new department.

Strike Problem Plagues New Congress

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—The new Congress now struggles with one of the major problems of modern history: How to prevent strikes in vital industries without destroying some measure of freedom.

President Truman handed the dilemma to the lawmakers yesterday.

He asked Congress to create a commission that would devise new machinery to prevent nation-wide strikes in such industries as transportation, coal, oil, steel or communications "without endangering our general democratic freedoms."

Big strikes, he said, can bring "national disaster," and soon the expiration of all wartime powers will leave the White House powerless to stop such disasters.

Solutions Problematical

Is a solution possible? Can it be done? Was the President pointing up a blind alley, or was he issuing a challenge that might bring new ideas?

Not many in Congress have formed a positive opinion one way or the other.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio), chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, is one who has. He said in a recent interview: "You can't prevent strikes without destroying freedom. You can't make people work unless you are prepared to give our Government the powers of Mr. Hitler or Mr. Stalin." Therefore, Taft is opposed to legislation that would prevent coal, steel or railroad strikes.

Some Favor Arbitration Law

Others are convinced that the most damaging strikes can be prevented by compelling both sides to let a third party settle the dispute (compulsory arbitration) and still not destroy "our general democratic freedoms."

But most members of Congress just don't know. They are "not ready to express themselves on that." They are torn between wanting to protect the public interest and wanting to preserve freedom. Some denounce strikes, but defend the right to strike.

Commission Plan May Die

Judging by the present attitude of many in Congress who want immediate action and not investigations, the President's proposal for a 20-man investigating commission may not get very far.

Organized labor reacted just about as cautiously as members of Congress.

CIO President Philip Murray and his associates here declined to say anything before a thorough study of Mr. Truman's proposal can be made. John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, likewise was silent.

Green's Statement

AFL President William Green was the first to speak up. He said the President had "shown real statesmanship and rendered the nation a great service" by emphasizing there should be no "punitive legislation."

The objectives sought by Mr. Truman in his speech, Green said, "should be indorsed by all the American people."

Green's comment also reflected the caution with which labor approached the Truman proposals to combat jurisdictional strikes, some secondary boycotts and create the commission to study and report back before the present coal-strike truce ends in March.

"The AFL will give careful and sympathetic consideration to the specific proposals submitted by the President," said Green. These will be discussed by the AFL executive council, meeting in Miami on January 29, Green said.

U. S. ASKS RUSSIA TO WARN POLAND ON FREE ELECTIONS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP) The United States has asked Russia and Britain to join in demanding that the Polish government allow free political campaigning for the January 19 elections.

Secretary of State Byrnes today made public the text of a note on the subject delivered to Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky in Moscow by Ambassador W. Bedell Smith on January 5. The same note was delivered to British Ambassador Lord Inverchapel here the same day.

Obligation for Powers

The note declared that the three powers had responsibilities under the Potsdam and Yalta agreements to "call to the attention of the Polish government in a most friendly but in a most insistent manner the failure of the Polish government to perform its obligations."

The United States believes, the note said, that "for any of the parties to this (Potsdam) agreement to refrain from the most energetic efforts to see to its proper execution would be to fail in a most solemn obligation."

Respecting the political activities of the Polish provisional government, Byrnes' note said:

"According to information reaching my government from various authoritative sources, these repressive activities on the part of the provisional government have now increased in intensity to the point where, if they do not cease immediately, there is little likelihood that elections can be held in accordance with the terms of the Potsdam agreement which call for free and unfettered elections 'on the basis of universal suffrage and secret ballot in which all democratic and anti-Nazi parties shall have the right to take part and put forward candidates.'"

Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, leader of the Polish Peasant party, is the central figure in a political controversy now reaching fever heat in Poland. It was his acceptance into the Communist-dominated Polish government before the Potsdam conference that led to recognition of the Polish provisional government by the United States and Britain on the promise of political freedom, particularly in projected elections.

The Peasant party, while it has Mikolajczyk as a member of the government, is not one of those in the bloc of parties supported by the government majority.

The United States and Britain have been sending the Warsaw government notes for several months urging changes in political methods so that the action announced today mainly amounts to an appeal to the Russian government to bring its weight to bear.

Text of U. S. Notes on Polish Vote

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (AP)—Following is the text of identical notes on the forthcoming Polish elections that the State Department said today were delivered to the British Ambassador in Washington and, by Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, Ambassador, to the Soviet Foreign Ministry in Moscow on Jan. 5:

Excellency:

The Government of the United States (my Government) as a signatory of the Yalta and Potsdam agreements, with particular regard to those sections of the two agreements which deal with the establishment of a representative Government in Poland through the instrumentality of free and unfettered elections, wishes me to inform you of the concern with which it views the pre-election activities of the Polish Provisional Government of National Unity. My Government is especially perturbed by the increasingly frequent reports of repressive measures which the Polish Provisional Government has seen fit to employ against those democratic elements in Poland which have not aligned themselves with the "bloc" parties.

According to information reaching my Government from various authoritative sources, these repressive activities on the part of the Provisional Government have now increased in intensity to the point where, if they do not cease immediately, there is little likelihood that elections can be held in accordance with the terms of the Potsdam agreement which call for free and unfettered elections 'on the basis of universal suffrage and secret ballot in which all democratic and anti-Nazi parties shall have the right to take part and put forward candidates.'"

Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, leader of the Polish Peasant party, is the central figure in a political controversy now reaching fever heat in Poland. It was his acceptance into the Communist-dominated Polish government before the Potsdam conference that led to recognition of the Polish provisional government by the United States and Britain on the promise of political freedom, particularly in projected elections.

The Peasant party, while it has Mikolajczyk as a member of the government, is not one of those in the bloc of parties supported by the government majority.

The United States and Britain have been sending the Warsaw government notes for several months urging changes in political methods so that the action announced today mainly amounts to an appeal to the Russian government to bring its weight to bear.

Mikolajczyk Charges Noted

On Dec. 18, 1946, Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk addressed a communication to the American Ambassador in Warsaw in which he called attention to the reprehensible methods employed by the Provisional Government in denying freedom of political action to the Polish Peasant party.

This communication pointed out inter alia that the methods used by the Government in its efforts to eliminate the participation by the Polish Peasant party in the elections include political arrests and murders, compulsory enrollment of Polish Peasant party members in the "bloc" political parties, dismissal of Polish Peasant party members from their employment, searches of homes, attacks by secret police and members of the Communist party on Polish Peasant party premises and party congresses, suspension and restriction by Government authorities of Polish Peasant party meetings and suspension of party activities in twenty-eight powiats [districts], suppression of the party press and limitation of circulation of party papers, and arrest of the editorial staff of the party bulletin and of the Gazeta Ludowa.

Authoritative reports from other quarters in Poland serve to substantiate the charges brought by M. Mikolajczyk in the communication cited. It is understood that copies of this communication were also delivered to the Soviet and British Ambassadors at Warsaw as representatives of the other two Yalta powers.

Treaty Sanctity Called Issue

In the view of my Government, what is involved here is the sanctity of international agreements, a principle upon which depends the establishment and maintenance of peace and the reign of justice under law. The obligations with respect to the Polish elections which my Government assumed at Yalta and reiterated at Potsdam, together with the Soviet and British Governments, and the obligations subsequently assumed by the Polish Government and frequently reiterated, provide for the conduct of free and unfettered elections of the type and in the manner described above.

If is of no significance that the subject matter of this international agreement relates to elections in Poland. The essential fact is that it constitutes an international agreement on the basis of which all four nations concerned have acted. Therefore my Government believes that for any of the parties to this agreement to refrain from the most energetic effort to see to its proper execution would be to fail in a most solemn obligation.

For this reason, it is my Government's view that it is both a duty and a right for the three powers who are parties to the Yalta and the Potsdam agreements to call to the attention of the Polish Government in a most friendly, but in a most insistent, manner the failure of the Polish Government to perform its obligations.

Futility of Reminders Cited

It is a source of regret to my Government that its own efforts in this direction have not resulted in any change in the course which the Polish Provisional Government has pursued in connection with pre-election political activities. My Government feels that it would be failing in its duty if it did not make further efforts prior to the elections to ameliorate the conditions under which certain democratic elements of the Polish population are now struggling in an effort to take their rightful part in the national elections.

It intends, therefore, in the immediate future again to approach the Polish Government with a reminder of its obligations in connection with the elections and again to call upon it to provide those conditions of security which will enable all democratic and anti-Nazi parties to take full part in the elections.

I hardly need add that my Government is interested only in seeing that the Polish people have the opportunity to particpate in a free and unfettered election and that my Government does not regard the results of such an election as being a proper concern of anyone other than the Polish people themselves.

It is the hope of my Government that the British Government, (U. S. S. R.) as a party to the Yalta and Potsdam agreements, will associate itself with the American Government in this approach to the Polish Provisional Government of National Unity.

Similar communication is being addressed simultaneously to the Soviet Government (British Government).

Accept, Excellency, the renewed assurances of my highest consideration.

Thaws Polish Assets In United States

Washington, Jan. 7 (A. P.).—The Treasury today "unfroze" Polish assets in the United States. They had been frozen since early in the war, when they were valued at $9,300,000. The Treasury said there was no newer estimate.

The Polish Government designated the National Bank of Poland as its agent to certify which claimants are entitled to the assets. The certifying procedure is used to keep the assets out of the hands of former enemies.

DE GASPERI HOPEFUL AFTER TRUMAN VISIT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (AP) — Alcide de Gasperi, Italy's Premier, told reporters after a conference with President Truman today that the Chief Executive had "a full trust in the rebirth of Italy" and that Americans would continue to help his nation in every way possible.

Dr. deGasperi, who is in Washington on an official visit looking to further aid for his country, spent thirteen minutes with Mr. Truman.

He said that he had thanked the President for American assistance extended to his country in the past.

Dr. de Gasperi's call at the White House coincided with an announcement at the Capitol by Senator Brewster, Republican, of Maine, that the Commodity Credit Corporation was purchasing "immediately" 7,500 tons of Maine potatoes for shipment to Italy—the first tangible result of Dr. de Gasperi's mission here.

Mr. Brewster disclosed that he had conferred at length yesterday with the Italian Premier. Hhe said that 1,500 tons of the potatoes, the first shipment, would be loaded Jan. 14 or 15 on an American transport at Searsport, Me.

Ecuador Indorses Arms Standards

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Ecuador, owner of the key Galapagos islands, indorsed in effect today the United States plan to standardize the armed forces of the American republics.

Jose Vicente Trujillo, Ecuadorian Foreign Minister, announced that he has instructed Ambassador Illescas Barreiro to discuss the proposed program. Trujillo added, however, that his Government will approve the project and will be willing to participate in it without qualification.

Trujillo said he discussed defense and security matters only in a "general way" with James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State, and Spruille Braden, assistant secretary. Replying to a question, he said the subject of military outposts in the Galapagos islands had not been discussed in detail.

Trujillo and his bride of a few weeks attended a White House reception tonight for the foreign diplomatic corps of Washington. Senora Trujillo is the former Miss Marie Louise Wellensiek, of Pomona, Cal.

Secretary Byrnes and Mrs. Byrnes will give a noon luncheon tomorrow in honor of the Eucadorian official and his wife at the Mayflower Hotel.

German Secrets Open To U.S. Business Men

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (AP).—American business men were urged today by the Department of Commerce to acquire at small cost "a wealth of scientific and technical information" from Germany's war-hidden secrets. John C. Green, head of the department's office of technical information, said the German drug industry is largely unexplored although it is known the Germans had "life-saving drugs, new laboratory and production methods, anesthetics and other drugs unknown in America."

So far, he said, the department has summarized 2,000 original reports containing "priceless data," and plans to screen 3,500,000 pages of German scientific and technical documents.

He said business men should act promptly because after a peace treaty is signed the opportunity to enter any German factory, inspect documents and equipment and interrogate German experts "cannot last indefinitely."

FHA EASES RULES TO SPEED RENTAL HOUSING BUILDING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 — (AP) The Federal Housing Administration relaxed some of its building rules today, declaring it desires to encourage private builders of rental housing.

Simultaneously, the agency announced it will seek the cooperation of industry and lending institutions through a series of country-wide meetings, beginning Jan. 21 in the larger cities.

More Homes Sought

Major objectives of the drive will be to stimulate construction of more two, three and four-family homes and production of more large-scale rental structures.

Government officials said former building standards will become a "guide" rather than a strict rule, thus allowing local FHA officials to ease requirements on size of yards, ventilation, type of construction, size of rooms and similar matters.

Among other things, the new program will also permit revision of cost estimates, where justified by increased construction costs. Rent ceilings are based on costs.

The changes apply primarily to housing built under the FHA system of mortgage insurance. The FHA insures payments on mortgages where construction standards meet its approval.

In line with Mr. Truman's statement that "special emphasis" must be placed on rental housing this year, the FHA announced a nationwide increase in its field staff to promote the program.

Meanwhile, a joint statement by FHA Administrator Raymond M. Foley and Commissioner Dillon S. Myer of the Federal Public Housing Administration said that due to rising construction costs a $445,000,000 fund appropriated by Congress for temporary, federally-financed home construction could be stretched to build only about 153,000 family dwellings or their equivalent in dormitory units. Originally, it was planned to cover 200,000 family units.

Western Area Hit

As a result, the statement said, construction has been suspended on 8,850 units and 3,000 more units are expected to be halted in a western region embracing California, Nevada, Arizona and Utah. Other projects, originally planned, will not be started.

The statement said efforts are being made to finance "enough additional units" to fulfill any pledges to communities which have put up funds for the purchase of sites in the expectation that the government would pay for construction.

OTC PUTS END TO PRIORITIES IN MOST LINES

Only Military Ratings And Critical Civilian Classes Retained

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Office of Temporary Controls wiped out today most of the priority system which was set up to assist industrial reconversion after the war and to aid veterans or small businesses to become established.

The action left military priorities as the principal preference ratings supported by the Federal Government in obtaining materials and equipment. Home-building priorities were abolished previously.

Some Features Retained

The civilian production division of OTC announced, however, that these features of the civilian priority system were being retained:

1. Priorities for items needed to fill military orders which cannot be deferred without serious results to the defense program or to the health and welfare of enlisted personnel.

2. Priorities for items necessary for essential utility service or in an emergency to eliminate serious hazard to the life, health or safety of a large number of people.

Present Priorities Voted

3. Priorities for material or equipment required in connection with the veterans' emergency housing program to maintain or increase production of a building material or product which has been determined to be in critically short supply.

CPA said that civilian priorities already issued would remain valid. No new ones will be issued, however, for production materials; maintenance, repair and operating supplies; CP capital equipment or construction materials or equipment for the purpose of starting or maintaining any individual plant or business, or to alleviate individual hardship, except as otherwise announced.

Special assistance to small business men and veterans was likewise terminated.

Critical List Dropped

At the same time, the agency eliminated a list of certain critically short materials, producers of which have been entitled to apply for special assistance.

Special priority assistance formerly given to users of textile yarn and fabric was specifically revoked.

Provisions for limited priority assistance for exports required for reasons of public policy or development of foreign sources of supplies vitally needed in this country remained unchanged.

The main regulation affected by the action was known in business and Government circles as the "bottle-neck breaker." It was set up to replace the wartime priority system and help businesses convert to peacetime production when they were held back by shortage of materials or equipment.

Jet Engineers Needed, Says Air Forces Head

New York, Jan. 7 (AP)—Gen. Carl Spaatz commanding general of the Army Air Forces believes that a bountiful supply of young engineers trained in jet-propulsion work, would be "priceless insurance" against loss of the nation's leadership in air power.

His view was expressed in a preface to the fourth edition of "Gas Turbines and Jet Propulsion for Aircraft," by G. Geoffrey Smith, British aviation expert.

The book, being published in an American edition tomorrow, summarizes the development and present state of jet.

Irvine Transferred To Md. Air Post

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Col. Sam S. Irvine, St. Paul (Neb.) pilot of the Pacusan Dreamboat which flew from Hawaii to Egypt by way of the Arctic, has been assigned to Strategic Air Command Headquarters at Andrews Field, Md., the War Department announced today.

His transfer will be effective January 15. He will be assigned to duty in the maintenance program.

Irvine came in for public attention a few weeks ago with a statement in which he was reported to have expressed views concerning the diplomatic value of a B-29 flight over European countries. Army Air Forces Headquarters termed his comment as those of a junior officer, not responsible for high policy matters.

DAUGHTER BACKS TREASON SUSPECT

Says Chandler Tried To Help U.S. By Broadcasts

Boston, Jan. 7 (AP)—Lauretta Chandler, 21-year-old daughter of Douglas Chandler, one of two former newspaper men accused of treason, says her father thought he was helping his native America when he broadcast for the Nazis early in the war.

The Chicago-born Laurette, who was educated in Europe, came to Boston to aid her father, who is held without bail awaiting trial on an indictment charging treason.

In an interview, she said:

"Daddy talked under the name of 'Paul Revere'—you know that nothing could be more American than Paul Revere. It has come to mean a symbol of warning your countrymen against an enemy. And that was what my father thought he was doing—warning his native land.

Has No Defense Lawyer

"Anything my father did—if he has done anything," she said, "he did straight from his heart. And anything I could possibly say about him would be right from my heart.

"My father doesn't have a lawyer to defend him and he's ill. He was enslaved to ideals. He was generous and kind. The kindest man I've ever known. He'd give you the shirt off his back—is that how you would say it over here when you want to describe an ultragenerous person?"

Laurette was born to Chandler's first wife. Her mother, she said, died in Germany in 1941. Chandler then married a Belgian woman who bore him two children. They now are living in Bavaria.

THE EIGHT AMERICAN JUDGES DENIED AN OBJECTION RAISED BY GERMAN ATTORNEYS WHEN U.S. PROSECUTORS SOUGHT TO INTRODUCE STATEMENTS BY FRITZ SAUCKEL, NAZI SLAVE LABOR BOSS WHO WAS TRIED AND HANGED.

MUCH OF THE CASE AGAINST MILCH IS BASED ON SAUCKEL'S CONVERSATIONS WITH THE CENTRAL PLANNING BOARD ABOUT THE NEED FOR CONSCRIPTED LABOR. MILCH WAS A MEMBER OF THE BOARD.

ESZTERGOM, HUNGARY, JAN. 7-(AP)-AN ASSERTION THAT HUNGARIANS REMOVED FROM SLOVAKIAN TERRITORY ALONG THE DANUBE HAVE BEEN SENT TO "SLAVE MARKETS" IN THE CZECHOSLOVAKIAN SUDETENLAND WAS MADE YESTERDAY BY JOSEPH CARDINAL MINDSZENTY, HUNGARIAN PRIMATE, WHO SAID THE ONLY SOLUTION WAS FOR THE "FOREIGN MINISTERS OF THE U.S. AND BRITAIN TO STEP IN AND STOP" THE PRACTICE.

THE PRIMATE ASSERTED THAT "SEVERAL TENS OF THOUSANDS" OF MAGYARS HAD PASSED THROUGH FORCED LABOR "RALLYING PLACES" WHERE THEY WERE SELECTED FOR WORK IN MINES, FARMS AND FACTORIES. THE HUNGARIANS ARE PAID WAGES BUT ARE "NOT ALLOWED TO REFUSE" THE JOBS ASSIGNED THEM, HE SAID.

(IN A RECENT NOTE TO BUDAPEST CZECHOSLOVAKIA ACCUSED THE HUNGARIAN GOVERNMENT OF BREAKING AN AGREEMENT FOR AN EXCHANGE OF POPULATIONS BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES.)

"SLAVE MARKETS ACTUALLY HAVE BEEN ESTABLISHED," SAID MINDSZENTY. "THE DANUBE IS TAKING OVER THE FORMER ROLE OF THE NILE IN SLAVE TRAFFIC." HE SAID THE MAIN "SLAVE MARKETS" WERE AT KOLIN AND PILSEN, BUT DECLARED THERE WERE "MANY OTHERS."

THE CARDINAL SAID MOST OF THE FORCED LABOR WAS BEING TAKEN FROM AN AREA OF APPROXIMATELY 4,200 SQUARE MILES IN SLOVAKIA, BORDERING HUNGARY, AND ASSERTED THAT "ETHNICALLY" THIS REGION WAS HUNGARIAN. (HUNGARY AND CZECHOSLOVAKIA HAVE BEEN AT ODDS SINCE 1918 OVER THIS BORDER QUESTION, WHICH WAS CONSIDERED AT THE RECENT PARIS PEACE CONFERENCE.)

THE PRIMATE DECLARED THAT IF THE MAJOR POWERS TAKE THE ATLANTIC CHARTER GUARANTEES ON HUMAN RIGHTS SERIOUSLY THEY "SHOULD RE-EXAMINE THE WHOLE PROBLEM," INCLUDING THE QUESTION OF THE REMOVAL OF MAGYARS.

THE HAGUE, JAN. 7-(AP)- A. H. J. LOVINK, FORMER AMBASSADOR TO CHINA, TODAY WAS NAMED THE NETHERLANDS' AMBASSADOR TO MOSCOW, SUCCEEDING BARON C. VAN BREUGEL DOUGLAS.

MOSCOW--SECOND ADD NIGHT LEAD MONTGOMERY X X X THE WAR.

MONTGOMERY, HERE AS THE GUEST OF MARSHAL ALEXANDER M.VASILEVSKY, CHIEF OF THE SOVIET GENERAL STAFF, ATTENDED A BALLET TONIGHT AT THE BOLSHOI THEATER, WHERE HE APPEARED WITH VASILEVSKY AND MARSHAL IVAN S. KONEV, COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF SOVIET GROUND FORCES.

ALSO PRESENT WERE GEN.WALTER BEDELL SMITH, U.S.AMBASSADOR TO RUSSIA.

A STRIKING FIGURE IN HIS BLUE DRESS UNIFORM, WITH THE JEWELED SOVIET ORDER OF VICTORY GLEAMING ON HIS CHEST, MONTGOMERY WAS THE CENTER OF THE AUDIENCE'S ATTENTION.

MONTGOMERY LEARNED FROM FIELD MARSHAL A.M.VASILEVSKY TODAY THAT THE GREATER PART OF HIS RECENT BOOK ON THE EUROPEAN WAR HAD ALREADY BEEN TRANSLATED INTO RUSSIAN FOR DISTRIBUTION AMONG SOVIET OFFICERS AND STUDENT SOLDIERS.

MOSCOW, JAN 7-(AP)-THOUSANDS OF ORTHODOX CHRISTIANS THROUGHOUT THE SOVIET UNION CELEBRATED THE TRADITIONAL RUSSIAN CHRISTMAS TODAY, FOLLOWING AN EVE OF PRAYER DURING WHICH CROWDS OF THE FAITHFUL THRONGED THE CATHEDRAL OF THE RESURRECTION WHILE ALEXEI, PATRIARCH OF MOSCOW AND ALL RUSSIA, LED DEVOTIONAL SERVICES.

MANY OTHER CHURCHES THROUGHOUT THE SOVIET UNION CONDUCTED SIMILAR SERVICES TO HERALD THE RUSSIAN YULETIDE, WHICH IS CELEBRATED HERE ON JAN.7, IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE EASTERN CHURCH CALENDAR.

PATRIARCH ALEXEI, WHO WORE A WHITE MITRE CROWNED WITH A JEWELLED CROSS AND CARRIED A GOLDEN SCEPTER, WAS ASSISTED IN THE SERVICES BY THE METROPOLITAN NIKOLAI DEACON OF THE CATHEDRAL AND BY GOLDEN CLAD PRIESTS WEARING PURPLE MITRES.

WHEN THE LITURGY WAS OVER, THE METROPOLITAN NIKOLAI READ A CHRISTMAS FROM THE PATRIARCH ADDRESSED TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE RUSSIAN ORTHODOX CHURCH "IN OUR COUNTRY AND ABROAD" -- A REFLECTION OF THE RUSSIAN CHURCH'S NEW TIES WITH RUSSIAN ORTHODOX CONGREGATIONS IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

IN HIS MESSAGE THE PATRIARCH GAVE THANKS THAT "OUR GREAT MOTHERLAND IS FREE AFTER THE FEARFUL CALAMITY OF WAR" AND ASKED BELIEVERS TO CONTINUE DURING THE COMING YEAR TO "PERFORM WITH PURE CONSCIENCE THE DEEDS OF PEACE IN WHICH WE ARE NOW ENGAGED."

MOSCOW, JAN.7-(AP)-THE GOVERNMENT NEWSPAPER IZVESTIA TODAY CRITICIZED RICHARD C.HOTTELET, FORMER MOSCOW CORRESPONDENT OF THE COLUMBIA BROADCASTING SYSTEM, FOR BROADCASTING A STORY OF IMPRESSIONS OF THE CHRISTMAS SEASON IN THE SOVIET CAPITAL WHEN, IN FACT, HE WAS IN BERLIN.

THE BRITISH BROADCASTING SYSTEM ALSO CAME IN FOR A SEVERE LASHING BY R.MORIN, IZVESTIA COMMENTATOR, WHO SAID THE BBC USED HOTTELET'S COMMENTS AND PRESENT THEM AS IF THEY ORIGINATED FROM MOSCOW.

MORIN SAID THE OBSERVATIONS OF HOTTELET, WHO LEFT THE SOVIET CAPITAL DEC.13, WERE A "MIXTURE OF IGNORANCE, INSOLENCE AND SLANDER."

"THIS CHRISTMAS INCIDENT ON THE AIR IS AN EXTRAORDINARY CHARACTERISTIC OF SOME ORGANS OF THE FOREIGN PRESS AND RADIO," THE COMMENTATOR SAID. "IT IS AMAZING HOW WILLINGLY THEY ERR WHEN SPREADING SLANDER AGAINST THE U.S.S.R. AND HOW LUCKILY THEY AVOID 'ERRORS' OF AN OPPOSITE CHARACTER."

1947

--DASH--

HOTTELET DEPARTED FOR BERLIN AFTER THE SOVIET UNION HAD WITHDRAWN ALL VOICE-BROADCASTING PRIVILEGES FROM AMERICAN CORRESPONDENTS AND REFUSED TO ALLOW BBC TO STATION A CORRESPONDENT IN MOSCOW.

THE BERLIN BROADCAST ON MOSCOW'S YULETIDE WAS MADE DEC.20.

IN NEW YORK, EDWARD R.MURROW, VICE-PRESIDENT AND DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC AFFAIRS FOR THE COLUMBIA BROADCASTING SYSTEM, SAID BOTH HOTTELET AND THE CBS ANNOUNCER WHO INTRODUCED HIM MADE IT CLEAR THAT HIS BROADCAST WAS COMING FROM BERLIN AND NOT FROM MOSCOW. MURROW ADDED THAT BBC, IN REBROADCASTING HOTTELET'S REMARKS, ERRONEOUSLY LEFT THE IMPRESSION THE TALK CAME FROM MOSCOW.

A SPOKESMAN FOR BBC IN LONDON DECLINED TO COMMENT. HOTTELET WAS QUOTED AS HAVING SAID IN PART:

"OUTSIDE THE HANDFUL OF CHURCHES IN THE CITY (MOSCOW), THERE IS NO REFERENCE TO RELIGION OR TO CHRISTMAS. THE BIRTHDAY OF STALIN ON DEC.21 OVERSHADOWS THE BIRTHDAY OF JESUS CHRIST ON THE 25TH.

"THE CITY IS BADLY LIT AND NOT DECORATED, THOUGH THE COMMERCIAL STORES HAVE A FEW PICTURES OF SANTA CLAUS. THEY DISPLAY A MODERATE VARIETY OF GOODS WHICH ONLY A MILLIONAIRE COULD AFFORD. A MAN'S SUIT COSTS $400, A PAIR OF SHOES $120, AND A BAR OF CHOCOLATE $1.50.

JERUSALEM, JAN. 7-(AP)-IT WAS REPORTED RELIABLY, BUT WITHOUT CONFIRMATION, IN JERUSALEM AND TEL AVIV TONIGHT THAT IRGUN ZVAI LEUMI AND THE STERN GANG HAD DECLARED A TRUCE IN THEIR CAMPAIGN OF VIOLENCE AGAINST THE BRITISH IN ORDER TO ENABLE ZIONIST INSTITUTIONS TO PURSUE NEGOTIATIONS FOR A PEACEFUL SETTLEMENT OF THE PALESTINE PROBLEM.

RUMORS WERE WIDESPREAD IN JEWISH CIRCLES IN BOTH CITIES THAT THE TWO EXTREMIST UNDERGROUND ZIONIST GROUPS HAD AGREED TO YIELD TO AN ULTIMATUM BY HAGANAH, THEIR MODERATE FELLOW-UNDERGROUND ORGANIZATION, THAT TERRORISM SHOULD CEASE WHILE THERE STILL REMAINED THE POSSIBILITY OF A DIPLOMATIC SOLUTION OF THE JEWISH QUEST FOR A PALESTINE HOMELAND.

SHANGHAI, WEDNESDAY, JAN.8-(AP)-CHINESE REPORTS TODAY SAID APOLLON PETROV, SOVIET AMBASSADOR AT NANKING, HAD HANDED THE FOREIGN OFFICE A NOTE ON THE CLOSING BY CHINESE POLICE OF THERUSSIAN BROADCASTING STATION AT SHANGHAI MONDAY.

THESE REPORTS DID NOT SAY WHETHER THE NOTE WAS A PROTEST AGAINST THE CLOSURE, OR MERELY AN APPEAL TO ALLOW THE STATION TO REOPEN. RUSSIAN NEWSPAPERS HERE SAID THE CLOSING OF THE TASS AGENCY-OPERATED STATION WAS A BLOW TO CULTURAL TIES AND AMITY BETWEEN CHINA AND RUSSIA.

CHAIRMAN N.S.ZEPHYROFF OF THE SOVIET CITIZENS ASSOCIATION TOLD NEWSMEN THE ACTION WAS AN "UNNECESSARY OFFENSE AND CREATED A LARGE LOSS TO THE LARGEST SINGLE FOREIGN COMMUNITY IN THIS CITY."

NANKING, JAN. 7-(AP)-CHINESE FOREIGN OFFICE SOURCES TODAY WELCOMED THE UNITED STATES' DIPLOMATIC NOTE URGING CHINA AND RUSSIA TO OPEN THE MANCHURIAN PORT OF DAIREN TO WORLD TRADE -- FREE OF RUSSIAN MILITARY CONTROL, AND UNDER CHINESE ADMINISTRATION.

THEY TERMED THE "WELCOME" AMERICAN NOTE "AN ADDED MEANS OF RETURNING THE GATEWAY OF MANCHURIA TO CHINESE CONTROL."

THE FOREIGN MINISTER DECLINED DIRECT COMMENT, BUT OTHER SOURCES IN THE MINISTRY SAID "WE HOPE THE REACTION TO THIS MATTER WILL COME IN THE FORM OF A NOTICE FROM MOSCOW THAT THE SOVIETS ARE TURNING CONTROL OF THE CITY OVER TO CHINA, ACCORDING TO TERMS OF THE (CHINESE-RUSSIAN) TREATY."

DAIREN WAS OCCUPIED BY RUSSIAN TROOPS, NOT BY TREATY BUT BY AGREEMENT OF MILITARY COMMANDS, AT A TIME WHEN IT APPEARED THE PORT MIGHT BE USEFUL IN THE WAR AGAINST JAPAN. THIS "MILITARY NECESSITY NOW HAS PASSED," THESE SOURCES EMPHASIZED, ALTHOUGH SOVIET TROOPS REMAIN THERE. CHINESE GOVERNMENT TROOPS AT LAST REPORTS REMAINED NEAR BUT NOT INSIDE THE PORT.

VMARSHALL (450)
BY JOHN RODERICK

PEIPING, JAN. 7-(AP)-WHETHER GENERAL MARSHALL RETURNS TO CHINA AFTER HE REPORTS TO PRESIDENT TRUMAN IN WASHINGTON, BOTH CHINESE GOVERNMENT AND COMMUNIST LEADERS AGREE, HIS IMPACT ON MODERN CHINESE HISTORY HAS BEEN TREMENDOUS.

EVEN THOUGH HIS GOAL OF PEACE, UNITY AND DEMOCRACY WAS NOT ACHIEVED, IN THE PAST 12 MONTHS HE HAS BEEN AN OUTSTANDING INFLUENCE FOR DEMOCRACY WITHIN THE KUOMINTANG (GOVERNMENT PARTY.) CHIANG KAI-SHEK'S RECENT FIGHT IN SUPPORT OF A GENERALLY LIBERAL CONSTITUTION LARGELY WAS INTERPRETED AS THE PRODUCT OF MARSHALL CONTACTS.

MARSHALL ALSO HELPED LAY DOWN A PROGRAM FOR REORGANIZATION AND

30. 24 - 7261

NATIONALIZATION OF THE ARMIEES AND IT WELL MAY FORM THE BASIS FOR CHIANG'S FUTURE PLANS.

RECENT COMMUNIST CENSURE OF PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S REAFFIRMATION OF UNITED STATES POLICY TOWARD CHINA, UPON WHICH MARSHALL'S MISSION WAS BASED, MADE HIS POSITION AS MEDIATOR UNTENABLE.

YENAN ACKNOWLEDGES IT WOULD LIKE TO SEE HIM CONTINUE HIS ROLE AS REFEREE, BUT UNDER A NEW SET OF RULES. HOWEVER, AS LONG AS THE COMMUNISTS FELT AMERICA'S CHINA POLICY WAS IDEALISTIC ON PAPER BUT OPPORTUNISTIC IN PRACTICE, MARSHALL'S CONTINUED PRESENCE IN NANKING THREATENED TO JEOPARDIZE HIS REPUTATION FOR IMPARTIALITY AND CERTAINLY WOULD HAVE DESTROYED HIS USEFULNESS LATER SHOULD NEGOTIATIONS BE REOPENED.

IT WAS ALL THE MORE IMPERATIVE THAT HE WITHDRAW WITH BOTH THE KUOMINTANG AND COMMUNISTS REFUSING TO BUDGE FROM THEIR DEFINITE STANDS AND WITH BOTH OBVIOUSLY EMBARKED ON AT LEAST A SIX MONTHS TEST OF ARMS.

COMMUNIST LEADERS TOLD ME IN YENAN LAST MONTH THAT IT WAS UP TO THE UNITED STATES TO DETERMINE WHETHER HE SHOULD REMAIN.

ALTHOUGH THEY POINTEDLY REFRAINED FROM SAYING SO,THEIR ATTITUDE LEFT NO DOUBT THAT THEY CONSIDERED HIS MISSION IN ITS PRESENT PHASE A FAILURE.

THEY SAID THEY WOULD WELCOME CONTINUED EFFORTS FOR PEACE IF THE UNITED STATES WOULD CEASE SUPPORTING THE KUOMINTANG AND IT WOULD HELP PERSUADE CHIANG TO GIVE UP COMMUNIST TERRITORY SEIZED SINCE THE OFT-ABORTED JANUARY, 1946, TRUCE, AND TO RECONVENE THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY ON AGREED UPON INTERPARTY LINES.

YENAN INSISTS AMERICAN EFFORTS IN CHINA RAN ON THE ROCKS WHEN THE UNITED STATES TRIED TO JUGGLE INTERNAL UNITY AND DEMOCRACY AGAINST A FEAR OF RUSSIAN ENCROACHMENT IN THE FAR EAST. IT ARGUED THAT BECAUSE THE KUOMINTANG HAD TO BE STIFFENED TO COMBAT THE RUSSIAN "THREAT" THE INTERNAL PROGRAM BROKE DOWN.

NEVERTHELESS, BOTH SIDES AGREE THAT MARSHALL INTERPRETED AMERICAN POLICY WITH TACT, FIRMNESS AND INTELLIGENCE. WHETHER THIS POLICY HAS BEEN WORTH THE MILLIONS POURED INTO CHINA TO COMBAT NAMELESS FEARS NOW IS SERIOUSLY QUESTIONED.

THE APPARENT RESULTS TODAY ARE EFFECTIVE PREVENTION OF A FEARED COMMUNIST DOMINATION OF THE NATION, NULLIFICATION OF FEARED RUSSIAN SWAY OVER MANCHURIA, AND STRENGTHENING OF AMERICAN TIES WITH THE CHIANG GOVERNMENT.

WHETHER THESE GAINS WILL AMOUNT TO MUCH AS LONG AS THE NATION CONTINUES DANGEROUSLY DIVIDED IS A QUESTION MARSHALL AND THE WHITE HOUSE UNDOUBTEDLY WILL CONSIDER.

TOKYO, WEDNESDAY, JAN.8-(AP)-THE WASHINGTON ANNOUNCEMENT THAT GENERAL MARSHALL WOULD SUCCEED JAMES F.BYRNES AS SECRETARY OF STATE WAS APPLAUDED IN U.S. ARMY CIRCLES TODAY.

NONE EPECED IT AOULD P

NONE EXPECTED IT WOULD PRODUCE ANY CHANGE IN OCCUPATION POLICIES, DECIDED BY THE FAR EASTERN COMMISSION, BUT MANY THOUGHT IT WOULD SMOOTH THE TASK OF OCCUPATION.

SEVERAL OFFICERS RECALLED THAT MARSHALL AND GENERAL MACARTHUR LONG HAD BEEN PERSONAL FRIENDS, WHEREAS MANY OTHER OF PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S TOP MEN WERE KNOWN ONLY BY REPUTATION AND CORRESPONDENCE SINCE MAC-ARTHUR HAS BEEN OUTSIDE THE U.S. SO LONG.

MACARTHUR ON OCCASION HAS CLASHED OPENLY WITH THE STATE DEPARTMENT AND BYRNES HAS CRITICIZED SOME SUPREME HEADQUARTERS' METHODS. IT IS FELT HERE THAT MARSHALL, FAMILIAR WITH ARMY PROCEDURE AND ACQUAINTED WITH MACARTHUR, MAY BRIDE THE GAP MORE EFFECTIVELY.

ARMY CIRCLES ALSO FEEL THEY WILL HAVE A FRIEND IN COURT IF A CONGRESSIONAL BATTLE DEVELOPS OVER MILITARY APPROPRIATIONS FOR MAIN-TAINING A FULL OCCUPATION FORCE HERE. MACARTHUR IS KNOWN TO FAVOR A FEW MORE YEARS OF OCCUPATION AND SOME OF HIS OFFICERS FEAR THIS MIGHT BE CURTAILED BY AN ECONOMY WAVE.

ARMY OFFICERS GENERALLY APPROVED BYRNES FOR HIS OVER-ALL POLICIES, HOWEVER, PARTICULARLY HIS POLICY TOWARD RUSSIA, AND THERE HAD BEEN EVIDENCE OF BETTER FEELING LATELY BETWEEN THE OUTGOING SECRETARY AND SUPREME HEADQUARTERS.

BYRNES PUBLICLY PRAISED MACARTHUR AND THE LATTER RESPONDED WITH AN INVITATION FOR THE SECRETARY OF STATE TO VISIT JAPAN.

TOKYO,JAN 7 (AP)-OFFICIAL DOCUMENTS OF THE JAPANESE MINISTRY, INTRODUCED TODAY AT THE INTERNATIONAL WAR CRIMES TRIAL, SAID STARVING, DISEASED BRITISH PRISONERS OF WAR WERE PARADED THROUGH KOREAN STREETS IN AUGUST, 1942, IN A DELIBERATE CAMPAIGN TO "STAMP OUT RESPECT AND ADMIRATION OF THE KOREAN PEOPLE FOR BRITAIN AND AMERICA."

JAPANESE SECRET POLICE MINGLED WITH THE CROWDS IN FUSAN, SEOUL AND JINSEN AND REPORTED TO THE MINISTRY ON THE REACTION OF THE VARIOUS NATIONALS WHO SAW THE PARADE.

REACTIONS INCLUDED:

BY KOREANS: "IT IS EASY TO SEE THAT THEY LACK PATRIOTISM JUST BY WATCHING THEM WHISTLING INDIFFERENTLY. THEY ARE ABSOLUTELY SLOVENLY." (THIS OF PRISONERS WHO HAD BEEN KEPT FOR MONTHS IN JUNGLE CAMPS IN MALAYA AND TRANSPORTED IN HELL SHIPS IN WHICH MANY SMOTHERED TO DEATH.) "WHEN WE LOOK AT THEIR FRAIL AND UNSTEADY APPEARANCE IT IS NO WONDER THEY LOST TO THE JAPANESE FORCES."

BY THE JAPANESE: "WE CAN STILL FIND SOMETHING ARROGANT IN THEIR ATTITUDE. WE MUST TREAT THEM WITH THE FIRMNESS OF A VICTORIOUS NATION."

BY GERMANS: "WE HAVE BEEN RETURNING INHUMANITY FOR BRITISH AND AMERICAN INHUMANITY. WE HOPE YOU WILL BE CRUEL TO THEM."

BY WHITE RUSSIANS: "THEY WHISTLE AND DON'T SEEM TO CARE A BIT. IT SEEMS BEING A PRISONER OF WAR IS NO DISGRACE TO THEM. THE CLOTHES THEY WEAR ARE RAGGED AND THEIR PHYSIQUE IS POOR. THAT IS WHY THEY ARE LOSING THE WAR."

THE CHIEF OF STAFF, JAPANESE KOREAN ARMY: "WE CAN STILL SEE ARROGANCE IN THEIR ATTITUDE AND SOME OF THEM OPENLY SAY THAT FINAL VICTORY REMAINS WITH BRITAIN."

COL.GILBERT S.WOOLWORTH, ASSOCIATE PROSECUTOR, READ INTO THE RECORD STATEMENTS TAKEN FROM THE FORMER PREMIER AT SUGAMO PRISON LAST MARCH IN WHICH HE SAID HIROHITO KNEW NOTHING ABOUT THE MATTER UNTIL TOJO ASKED HIM TO ISSUE CLEMENCY FOR THE FIVE.

THE RAID, TJO ARGUED, WAS NOT AGAINST TROOPS, BUT AGAINST "NON-COMBATANTS, PRIMARY SCHOOL STUDENTS AND SO FORTH."

SINCE THIS WAS NOT PERMITTED BY INTERNATIONAL LAW, IT WAS HOMICIDE," HIS STATEMENT WENT ON. "JAPAN ACTED ON THIS CONCEPT AND I ORDERED THE COURTS MARTIAL, OR AT LEAST THEY WERE JUST ABKOUT LIKE COURTS MARTIAL."

TOJO SAID AFTER THE EIGHT AMERICANS WERE CONDEMNED THE CHIEF OF STAFF DEMANDED THE DEATHS OF ALL EIGHT BUT HE KNEW "OF THE EMPEROR'S BENEVOLENCE AND WITH THAT IN MIND AND BECAUSE OF HIS FEELINGS, I WISHED TO HAVE ONLY THE MINIMUM NUMBER OF MEN EXECUTED."

"THEREFORE," HE ADDED, "IT WAS DECIDED THAT ONLY THE THREE WHO HAD KILLED PRIMARY SCHOOL STUDENTS WOULD RECEIVE THE DEATH PENALTY. THIS WAS DISCUSSED WITH THE EMPEROR, SINCE THE EMPEROR IN JAPAN IS THE ONLY ONE WHO CAN COMMUTE A DEATH SENTENCE AND IT WAS DECIDED THAT WAY. BYRNES HIGHLIGHTS

WASHINGTON, JAN 7-(AP)-HIGHLIGHTS IN THE CAREER OF JAMES F.BYRNES:

BORN: MAY 2, 1879, AT CHARLESTON, S.C.

BEGAN PUBLIC CAREER AT 21 AS A COURT STENOGRAPHER.

FIRST JOB: $2-A-WEEK MESSENGER BOY.

SERVED IN ALL THREE BRANCHES OF THE GOVERNMENT--REPRESENTATIVE AND SENATOR IN CONGRESS, U.S. SUPREME COURT JUSTI

AND SENATOR IN CONGRESS, U.S. SUPREME COURT JUSTICE, WAR-TIME BOSS OF THE NATION'S ECONOMY AND HOMEFRONT MOBILIZATION, AND FINALLY AS SECRETARY OF STATE.

HE MIGHT HAVE BECOME PRESIDENT. A LEADING CONTENDER FOR THE DEMOCRATIC VICE PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION IN 1944, BYRNES WITHDREW "IN DEFERENCE TO THE WISHES" OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

HARRY S.TRUMAN GOT THE NOMINATION AND BECAME PRESIDENT WHEN FDR DIED LESS THAN A YEAR LATER.

FAMED AS A "TROUBLE SHOOTER" FOR ROOSEVELT, HE CONTINUED THAT ROLE UNDER PRESIDENT TRUMAN. AFFABLE AND SHREWD AT THE SAME TIME, FRIENDS ALWAYS SAID.

A SOUTHERNER WHO HATED "REGIMENTATION," BYRNES DIRECTED THE BIGGEST JOB OF REGIMENTATION IN THE NATION'S HISTORY AS REGULATOR OF PRICES, WAGES, RENTS, FOOD, GASOLINE AND MANPOWER, AMONG OTHER THINGS.

BECAME KNOWN AS "ASSISTANT PRESIDENT" IN MAY 1943 WHEN HE WAS APPOINTED DIRECTOR OF THE OFFICE OF WAR MOBILIZATION.

ACCOMPANIED BOTH MR.ROOSEVELT AND MR.TRUMAN TO "BIG THREE" MEETINGS.

MARSHALL HIGHLIGHTS (300)

WASHINGTON,JAN 7-(AP)-HIGHLIGHTS IN THE CAREER OF GEN.GEORGE C. MARSHALL, CHOSEN TO BE THE NEW SECRETARY OF STATE:

1947

BORN: DEC.31,1880, AT UNIONTOWN,PA.

DECIDED ON ARMY CAREER WHEN HE SAW THE 10TH PENNSYLVANIA REGIMENT, BACK FROM THE SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR, TRIUMPHANTLY PARADE THROUGH HIS HOMETOWN STREETS.

GRADUATED 15TH IN A CLASS OF 34 AT VIRGINIA MILITARY INSTITUTE, BUT WON FAME AS A FOOTBALL TACKLE.

COMMISSIONED IN REGULAR ARMY IN 1901. AS A SECOND LIEUTENANT, WAS SENT IN MAY 1902 TO HELP PUT DOWN THE PHILIPPINE INSURRECTION.

IN WORLD WAR I, HE WENT TO FRANCE IN A MINOR ROLE AND 11 MONTHS LATER BECAME OPERATIONS CHIEF OF THE FIRST ARMY, PLANNING THE SECRET MOVEMENT OF 820,000 OFFICERS AND MEN FOR THE GREAT MEUSE-ARGONNE OFFENSIVE.

CHOSEN AIDE-DE-CAMP TO GEN.JOHN J.PERSHING IN 1920, HE SERVED FOUR YEARS IN WASHINGTON, THEN A THREE-YEAR HITCH IN CHINA AND IN 1927 BECAME AN INSTRUCTOR IN THE ARMY WAR COLLEGE.

BECAME CHIEF OF STAFF THE DAY GERMANY INVADED POLAND, SEPT.1,1939, SELECTED BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT OVER OTHER OFFICERS WITH MUCH LONGER SERVICE.

ORGANIZED AN ARMY OF 1,500,000 WITHIN A YEAR AFTER THE FALL OF FRANCE, AND WHEN AMERICA WAS FINALLY PLUNGED INTO THE WAR HE INSISTED THAT GERMANY COULD ONLY BE DEFEATED IN THE WEST.

DESPITE HIS "DESK JOB" IN WASHINGTON, MARSHALL IS GENERALLY CREDITED WITH BEING AMERICA'S FOREMOST SOLDIER IN THE WAR AGAINST THE AXIS, AND WITH CREATING THE MODERN ARMY.

THE WAR ENDED, MARSHALL WENT TO CHINA AS PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S PERSONAL ENVOY IN DECEMBER, 1945, IN AN EFFORT TO UNITE OPPOSING FACTIONS IN THAT WAR-TORN LAND.

MARSHALL HAS BEEN ON INACTIVE DUTY WITH THE ARMY SINCE HE LEFT THE OFFICE OF CHIEF OF STAFF. OFFICIALLY, HOWEVER, HE IS NOT RETIRED SINCE GENERALS AND ADMIRALS OF FIVE-STAR RANK ARE NEVER RETIRED. THEORETICALLY, THEY MAY BE RECALLED TO ACTIVE DUTY AS LONG AS THEY LIVE.

THE PAY OF A FIVE-STAR GENERAL ON INACTIVE DUTY IS $8,000 A YEAR BASE PAY. THERE IS AN ADDITIONAL ALLOWANCE OF $5,000 WHILE ON ACTIVE DUTY.

WHEN HE BECOMES SECRETARY OF STATE, MARSHALL CAN WAIVE HIS $8,000 ARMY PAY AND COLLECT THE CABINET OFFICER'S $15,000. #

WASHINGTON, JAN 7-(AP)-SECRETARY OF STATE BYRNES SAID TODAY THE TREASURY WILL BE ASKED TO DECIDE WHETHER CONTRIBUTIONS TO SOME ORGANIZATIONS CONCERNED WITH PALESTINE AFFAIRS SHOULD BE EXEMPT FROM FEDERAL INCOME TAX AS "CHARITABLE."

BYRNES TOLD A NEWS CONFERENCE THAT LORD INVERCHAPEL, THE BRITISH AMBASSADOR, HAD DISCUSSED THE MATTER WITH HIM IN THE LAST FEW DAYS. HE ASKED THE AMBASSADOR TO SUPPLY COPIES OF FUND-SOLICITING ADVERTISEMENTS IN WHICH THE STATEMENT IS MADE THAT CONTRIBUTIONS WOULD BE TAX FREE.

AN EMBASSY ATTACHE SAID THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT HAD COMPLAINED FOR A SECOND TIME IN RECENT MONTHS THAT ACTUALLY SOME OF THE CONTRIBUTIONS WERE GOING TO SUPPORT "TERRORIST" ORGANIZATIONS IN PALESTINE AND THUS WERE NOT ENTITLED TO TAX EXEMPTION.

NEITHER SECRETARY BYRNES NOR THE EMBASSY NAMED THE ORGANIZATIONS. BYRNES SAID HE HAD NOT SEEN THE ADVERTISEMENTS AND ADDED IF COPIES WERE SUBMITTED BY THE AMBASSADOR HE WOULD TURN THEM OVER TO THE TREASURY FOR A DECISION.

Senators Rap Truman 1947 Plea for High Taxes, Rent Curb Extension

PRESIDENT ASKS PRICE CUTS, LOW WAGE DEMANDS

Says Proposals Are Essential to Sustain Production and Jobs.

SEES BRIGHT OUTLOOK

Report Meets Varied Reaction; 'Just Campaign Talk,' Says Wherry.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—(AP) President Truman today called on business to cut prices, on Congress to maintain high taxes, and on labor to be moderate in wage demands.

He also asked extension of rent controls beyond June 30, the present expiration date.

The requests were contained in the President's first annual economic report to Congress. It met a varied reception. Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) called it "a policy for the preservation of the capitalistic system." Senator Wherry (R-Neb.) scoffed at it as "just a campaign statement."

Opposition Voiced

Wherry and Senator Moore (R-Okla) urged an end to rent ceilings. And Chairman Knutson (R-Minn) of the tax-writing House Ways and Means committee told a reporter:

"I can't agree with the President's conclusion that we can't cut taxes, because we are going to adopt a budget that will enable us to cut taxes."

Mr. Truman said the courses he charted are essential to sustain jobs and production in a nation which, as 1947 opens, "has never been so strong or so prosperous."

The danger ahead, he said, is that "consumer buying will falter" because price increases have cut into the public's purchasing power.

To prevent this from leading to factory lay-offs and curtailed production, he urged prompt steps to bolster buying power. He emphasized price cuts more heavily than wage increases, as the way to do it.

"And in a complete turn-about from the government's 1946 program of supporting nationwide "pattern" wage increases, the President said: Pay raises should be based on "individual situations throughout the economy."

Against Tax Cut

The President also renewed his plea that high wartime taxes be allowed to stand. He wants them as a boost along the country's climb toward a balanced budget and national debt retirement.

The report, read separately in the two Houses of the Republican-controlled Congress, set these twin economic goals for the new year:

Employment maintained at the peacetime record level of 1946—about 58,000,000 civilians at work—"or slightly higher."

Production boosted to a total 8 per cent higher than last year.

But a "serious" drop in the purchasing power of wages, caused by soaring prices now threatens the attainment of these goals, Mr. Truman said.

He reasoned:

"If price and wage adjustments are not made—and made soon enough—there is danger that consumer buying will falter, orders to manufacturers will decline, production will drop, and unemployment will grow x x x."

An increase in wages alone could not solve the problem; therefore a "major approach" to bringing purchasing power into line with the nation's productive capacity "must be through reduced prices."

"Business should reduce prices wherever possible in order to bring about the necessary increase in consumer purchasing power to bolster their markets," said the report.

And labor, "for its own advantage as well as that of the country at large, x x x should refrain from excessive wage increases."

The message was sent to Capitol hill 48 hours after President Truman's reading of his state of the union message. It was based on recommendations of the new three-man council of economic advisers, created by the Employment Act of 1946 and headed by Dr. Edwin G. Nourse.

A goal of 1,000,000 new dwellings started in 1947 was another recommendation, along with passage of the Wagner-Ellender-Taft bill in order to reduce the cost of housing. Mr. Truman called it a problem "even more serious than in other lines because the gap between consumer income and housing prices is so great."

The Wagner-Ellender-Taft measure, approved by the Senate last spring but stalled in the house, contains, among other things, incentives for the building of multi-family, moderate-rental housing projects.

"The Congress should take steps at once to extend rent control beyond next June," Mr. Truman added. "A large increase in rents would substantially reduce consumer purchasing power."

Calls for Social Legislation

A broad program of social legislation got the presidential endorsement, including a lifting of the 40-cent minimum wage, increasing social security benefits, and broadening the coverage of the wage-hour act. He named no figures, nor did he indicate which classes should get wage-hour protection; farm workers and food processors now are excluded.

Taxes should be kept at present levels because "the rule of sound public finance calls for surplus in government revenues over expenditures while employment is high and the total income is large."

As for the strike problem, Mr. Truman recalled that his state of the union message dwelt on them at great length. That message urged "nonpunitive" legislation aimed at government fact-finding and at curbing jurisdictional strikes on secondary boycotts, and compulsory arbitration of disputes arising under existing contracts.

"We must and we shall solve the problem of making necessary adjustments in wages and working conditions without round after round of crippling and futile halts in production," the report declared.

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—Following are textual excerpts from President Truman's economic report to Congress:

To the Congress of the United States:

As the year 1947 opens America has never been so strong or so prosperous. Nor have our prospects ever been brighter.

Yet in the minds of a great many of us there is a fear of another depression, the loss of our jobs, our farms, our businesses.

But America was not built on fear. America was built on courage, on imagination and an unbeatable determination to do the job at hand.

Dynamic Economy

The job at hand today is to see to it that America is not ravaged by recurring depressions and long periods of unemployment, but that instead we build an economy so fruitful, so dynamic, so progressive that each citizen can count upon opportunity and security for himself and his family.

Nor is prosperity in the United States important to the American people alone. It is the foundation of world prosperity and world peace. And the world is looking to us.

I believe that the American people that the wisdom and the will to use our abundant resources so that all may prosper. I reject, and I know the Ameican people reject, the notion that we must have another depression. I am not referring to minor detours and bumps the road ahead—these we know we shall have. I am referring to economic collapse and stagnation such as started in 1929. This need not happen again, and must not happen again.

Economic Advisers

The Congress passed the Employment Act of 1946 by an overwhelming bipartisan vote. This act wisely provided for a Council of Economic Advisers to the President, men who as a result of training, experience and attainments are exceptionally qualified to analyze and interpret economic developments, to appraise programs and activities of the Government and to formulate and recommend national economic policy.

The Congress also provided for a permanent joint committee to receive and analyze this annual economic report of the President and to sumbit recommendations concerning it to both houses.

In transmitting this first economic report, I am conscious of its significance as the beginning of a series of reports that will serve the Executive and the Congress as the basis for an orderly and continuing review of the economic state of the Union and for integrated and comprehensive steps to insure the permanent economic health of the nation.

National Self-Criticism

The economic report is an opportunity for national self-examination and self-criticism. It is a challenge to the President and the Congress to determine the causes of whatever problems we face in our economic life and to find the solutions to those problems. It provides an opportunity for all our citizens to judge the merits of the analysis and proposed action. It is a new and splendid tool to help us in our tasks. And like all governmental tools, its effectiveness will increase year by year as we learn by doing.

Prosperity cannot be the concern of one party or of one group. It cannot be attained without the good will and the co-operation of all.

To build a greater America we must approach the task with unity of purpose, with patience, with wisdom, and with determination to overcome obstacles. If we do this—and we must — I have no doubt about the ability of Americans to build, on a firm basis of security and political and economic freedom, a country in which the rewards we enjoy can be doubled within the life span of many of those now living.

Summary Of Economic Conditions And Trends

On the plus side of the economic ledger we possess a fabulous wealth of resources. Our industrial plant is larger and, in many cases, better than ever before. Funds for business expansion are ample and profit incentives are high in most lines. Our labor force has greatly increased its number of semi-skilled and skilled workers.

The spending power of consumers, as a whole, is much higher than it ever was before the war. Consumer desires are fortified by a backlog of unsatisfied wants, particularly for housing, commercial construction, automobiles, household appliances, furnishings and other durable goods.

There are long-deferred and needed public works—Federal, state and local. There is a strong and sustained foreign demand. More than that, we can be optimistic about the desire to buy, because of the higher standards of living which almost all of our people have recently enjoyed and which they do not want to forego.

Examine Weaknesses

While these favorable factors in our economic situation are fundamental, it is more practical and profitable to examine weaknesses that need corrections than to congratulate ourselves upon the blessings which we already enjoy.

1. Chief among the unfavorable factors is the marked decline in real purchasing power of great numbers of consumers, resulting from the large price increases in the second half of last year. Maximum production and employment this year would yield a substantial increase in the available supply of consumer goods and services, especially in the area of durable goods. This requires higher real purchasing power to take the goods off the market.

Buying May Falter

If price and wage adjustments are not made—and made soon enough—there is danger that consumer buying will falter, orders to manufacturers will decline, production will drop, and unemployment will grow unless consumers resort to large additional borrowing and use of past savings to buy the increased supply of goods. These temporary expedients are limited in power and even if available would merely postpone the day of reckoning.

2. Weakening of the activity of investment might operate also as an obstacle to maximum employment, production and purchasing power. If industrial and commercial construction slackens, and prices for residential construction remain high as compared with incomes of laborers and white-collar workers, our maximum employment objective might be threatened this year or soon thereafter.

3. Labor-management strife, with severe work stoppages, remains a possibility. This would directly interfere with production or employment by creating or intensifying shortages of materials, parts, or equipment. Through creation of uncertainties about demand or supply and costs of materials, it might lead to reductions in business outlays for plant, equipment, and inventories.

Labor-Management Explained

That is why in my state-of-the-Union message I placed so much stress upon successful labor-management relations.

During this year, the underlying favorable factors are strong enough to maintain high prosperity. But this year brings us face to face with maladjustments and unfavorable possibilities which, if not corrected or prevented, could cause a recession in production and employment. The Government will watch this situation and be prepared for action if needed.

I shall now proceed to discuss the contribution labor, business, agriculture and the Government can make to the solution of these basic problems, along with recommendations related to other elements in a "national economic policy" as called for by the Employment Act.

Recommendations
Short-Range Program

My short-range recommendations have long-range significances as well. But they merit immediate attention from the Congress and from the people as a whole because of their influence upon economic conditions in 1947.

1. Prices and Wages:

Removal of emergency price and wage controls has restored the main responsibility for prices and wages to business, labor, farmers and consumers. The Government can point out dangers seen from the perspective of the whole economy, but the correctives must largely be applied by others.

Business should reduce prices wherever possible in order to bring about the necessary increase in consumer purchasing power to bolster their markets. Price reductions are especially needed in the case of goods such as many articles of food, clothing, house furnishings and building materials, whose prices have risen out of line. If business makes these reductions in a timely and orderly way, it will help sustain markets rather than destroy them.

Farm-Price Outlook

Farmers must realize that last year's exceptional farm prices will fall somewhat as world food supplies increase and as consumers find a more ample supply of durable goods to purchase. Existing price supports afford protection against a severe price decline.

Labor, on its part, must recognize that high volume at low costs and low prices requires high productivity and the absence of restrictions on production. For its own advantage as well as that of the country at large, labor should refrain from demands for excessive wage increases that would require price increases or would prevent price reductions that are necessary to sell the capacity output of the product.

Management in turn should recognize that increased productivity permits wage increases in some cases as well as price reductions; and that wages and salaries need to be raised where they have lagged substantially behind the increase in living costs in the past few years or where they are substandard.

No Uniform Rule

But just as there can be no universal or uniform rule to govern price reductions, so there can be no uniform rule relating to wages. Both price adjustments and wage adjustments are necessary in the ensuing months. Wage adjustments, like price adjustments, need to be made with a discriminating regard for individual situations throughout the economy.

The Government can help in several ways to maintain a balance between prices and wages. Procurement agencies will avoid policies that stimulate price increases or prevent reductions. Disposal of surplus goods will be speeded. The anti-trust laws will be applied vigorously to prevent and eliminate restrictive practices and pricing abuses.

Rent-Control Extension

The Congress should take steps at once to extend rent control beyond next June. A large increase in rents would substantially reduce consumer purchasing power.

On the wage side, the Congress should extend the coverage of the Fair Labor Standards Act to classes of workers in interstate commerce now excluded, and should raise the minimum wage in view of the substantial rise in the cost of living and in the national production since it was enacted.

2. Social Security:

I shall treat generally of the social-security program in a subsequent section dealing with long-range programs and recommendations. In view of current economic trends, however, certain action is desirable at once.

Revision Of Benefits

I urge the Congress to take immediate steps to revise benefit payments under the social security system. The Congress has already authorized a temporary increase in public assistance benefits. This legislation expires by the end of this year and new legislative action is required.

Benefits under the old-age and survivors' insurance system should also be adjusted. These measures are necessary to alleviate real hardship which has been aggravated by increases in the cost of living. Beyond that, adequate social security benefit payments provide a desirable support to mass purchasing power.

3. Housing:

More than a million additional housing units need to be started in 1947. This goal will not only furnish badly needed shelter to our veterans and other citizens, but will result in a sizable contribution of the housing industry toward employment and purchasing power. At the lowest cost levels foreseeable this year, one million additional housing units will approximate an investment of $6,000,000,000 during 1947.

Cost Of Housing

As shortages of materials and manpower disappear, the main threat to a high volume of housing is the high level of current housing prices relative to the volume of consumer income.

To reduce the cost of housing on all fronts and by all desirable methods, we must start as promptly as possible a long-range housing program. Such a program can stimulate large investments in land acquisition and preparation for development. It can start the flow of new types of private investment into housing ventures. It can bring the traditional home-building industry into rental housing as well.

No subject has received more protracted study by the Congress leading to more uniform conclusions. Nonpartisan housing legislation was introduced in the Seventy-Ninth Congress and passed the Senate by a large majority.

Urges Enactment

On several occasions I have urged enactment of this program which was developed within the Congress itself. I again urge enactment of this program at the earliest possible moment.

4. Taxation:

Expert and lay opinion is in agreement on the rule of sound public finance that calls for a surplus in Government revenues over expenditures while employment is high and the total of income is large. In the present economic situation, it is clear that it would be unsound fiscal policy to reduce taxes.

Everyone is agreed that the tax burden is great and should be reduced as soon as possible. When reductions come, it will be important that they be fairly and equitably distributed, that they contribute to the maintenance of purchasing power by reducing the burden on the mass of consumers, and that they help provide the work and business incentives essential for a high level of production.

Fair Distribution

There are various ways of accomplishing these objectives of tax policy and of making an equitable reduction of taxes fairly distributed over all levels of income. These problems should receive careful study so that we are adequately prepared for wise action when the time comes.

5. Labor-Management Relations:

I have transmitted to the Congress, in my state-of-the-Union message, recommendations covering the broad field of labor-management relations, and need not dwell further on them here.

It is important, however, to emphasize once more, in relation to our goal of a permanent high-production, high-employment economy, the key responsibility that both management and labor have in helping to achieve this goal. Sound collective bargaining is essential.

In order to build an enduring prosperity for ourselves and our children, we must and we shall solve the problem of making necessary adjustments in wages and working conditions without round after round of crippling and futile halts in production.

Long-Range Program

The war has left us a tremendously increased productive potential, and further increases are in store. In order to keep our expanding economic activity in line with our growing capacities, the extraordinary postwar demand that we enjoy today must be transformed into sustained demand of an expanding peacetime economy.

Elimination of wartime controls does not mean that we want to go back to the size of economy we had before the war. The possibilities and requirements of a sustained $200,000,000,000 economy differ from those of an unstable $100,000,000,000 economy.

A variety of measures will be needed to fortify the basic structure of American economy before the transformation from war and reconversion to a high-consumption peacetime economy is completed. We are still at the threshold in formulating a program of consistent policies designed to give business, agriculture and labor the opportunities which are envisaged in the Employment Act.

To Strengthen Economy

A long-range program designed to strengthen the structure of the American economy should include policies toward:

1. Efficient utilization of the labor force.
2. Maximum utilization of productive resources.
3. Encouragement of free competitive enterprise.
4. Promoting welfare, health and security.
5. Co-operation in international economic relations.
6. Combating economic fluctuations.

1. Efficient Utilization of the Labor Force:

The nation's labor force is its greatest productive asset. Prudent use of our human resources requires a working population not only large and well-trained, but enjoying high American standards of health, education, security and personal and political freedom.

We must develop and utilize fully the skills of our labor force. We must improve productive efficiency through industrial training and counseling focused on employment opportunities in various occupations, industries and localities. I am directing the Federal agencies concerned to initiate a study of these programs, in co-operation with state and local authorities, in order to improve such training and services and to remedy inconsistencies and gaps.

The return of the Employment Service to state administration should not result in its disintegration into 48 disconnnected pieces, nor in the subordination of the placement service to unemployment insurance. An efficient placement service requires uniform minimum standards and an integrated interstate system for disseminating job information and placing workers across state lines.

Hits Discrimination

We must end discrimination in employment or wages against certain classes of workers regardless of their individual abilities. Discrimination against certain racial and religious groups, against workers in late middle age, and against women, not only is repugnant to the principles of our democracy, but often creates artificial "labor shortages" in the midst of labor surplus.

Employers and unions both need to re-examine and revise practices resulting in discrimination. I recommend that, at this session, the Congress provide permanent Federal legislation dealing with this problem.

2. Maximum Utilization of Productive Resources:

In our free-enterprise system, we rely mainly upon private initiative to expand the productive base of the economy. Our productive capacity has grown not only through technological developments, but also through a steady stream of additions to plant and equipment. Output per man-hour has increased on the average of three per cent per year over the decades.

Initiative Of Business

The whole history of America indicates that this progress can be entrusted mainly to the initiative and inventiveness within our business system. But we do need nation-wide concerted action to remove the fear that demand will periodically be inadequate to absorb maximum production. This is what put brakes upon inventiveness and initiative.

Even in times of prosperity, aside from war, a substantial portion of our productive facilities has been idle. Recurrent depressions have brought paralysis to as much as one third or even one half of our plants and machines.

While the Government has a function in the encouragement of new industries and the development and dissemination of research, the greatest incentive that the Government can provide for business productivity is through helping to prevent depressions.

If production incentives are adequate, business will expand without hesitancy when markets for its products are reasonably assured through a successful nation-wide program for continuous maximum employment, production and purchasing power.

Agriculture

The soil is one of the most valuable economic assets of the nation. Most effective utilization and conservation of this resource should be an important aim of the agricultural program of the Government.

We have experienced amazing technological progress in agriculture and further progress is to be expected. This progress necessitates adjustments in farming, adjustments in the processing and manufacture of foods and clothing, and in the process of distribution.

American agriculture suffered a severe depression in the years following the first World War. This situation was generally recognized by all groups. It resulted in large-scale governmental programs to help the farmer get incomes more nearly in line with the incomes of other groups.

The long-range agricultural policy of the Government should be aimed at preserving the family sized farm and preventing another agricultural depression as we go through the readjustments following the second World War. It should help to see that farmers' incomes do not fall below those earned by other comparable productive groups. This should involve the least possible interference in the management of actual farming operations. It should be accomplished without use of subsidies so far as feasible. We should seek to make it possible for farmers to earn good incomes through their own efforts.

Principle Of Plenty

Above all, the long-range agricultural policy of the Government should be based upon the principle of plenty and not upon the encouragement of scarcity. The term "maximum production" in the employment act applies to the farm as well as to the factory. This basic policy is inconsistent with a policy of production restriction, though we must take a realistic view of the proportion that agriculture as a whole bears to the economy and also of the relative amount of effort devoted to the several lines of production.

Our domestic capacity to absorb the products of our farms—if farmers are encouraged to turn their productive efforts in the right directions—will be enormous as we get nearer to solving the problems of sustained employment and high purchasing power. How much of an export surplus from the United States the markets of the world will be able to absorb will depend in part on our international economic policies, notably as to industrial imports and overseas investments.

Production Up

Agricultural production increased more than 30 per cent during the war. Technological improvements in farming and in food distribution would make it possible not only to continue this high rate of production, but also to increase it substantially during the next few years.

The high rate of agricultural production during and since the war has been supported by unusually high rates of food and fiber consumption. For the satisfactory solution of our agricultural problems during the next several years it is essential that we maintain these high rates of consumption, or even increase them. This is desirable not only from the farmer's point of view, but from the point of view of American diets and standards of living.

The Congress has recently authorized a permanent school-lunch program in co-operation with the states. I hope this program will be expanded until we are sure that every American schoolchild gets an adequate diet. In addition, we should study carefully the possible need for food and nutrition programs to reach low-income families.

Agricultural Marketing

The Congress also recently authorized a broad and strengthened program to improve the marketing and distribution of farm products. This includes the strengthening of research and educational work, as well as the improvement of the various marketing services performed by the Government.

We shall need to give increasing emphasis to marketing during the next few years. Better marketing can go a long way toward maintaining adequate rates of consumption, with benefit to farmers and the public alike.

We must honor the Government's commitment to support farm product prices during the period of readjustment to a stabilized peacetime basis. However, experience within the past year has demonstrated, on a small scale, some of the dangers that may result from holding the support level for any commodity too high. This only leads to maladjustments within agriculture, to the wastage of food, and to unnecessarily large Government expense.

Flexible Program Urged

The Government's long-range program to support farm incomes at reasonable levels must be kept flexible. It should be designed to encourage adjustments of production in line with the capacity of markets to take products at a price remunerative to efficient farming. It should promote well-managed use of our vast resources of farm land, machinery and agricultural labor in such ways as to be profitable to farmers and of maximum benefit to the public as a whole.

The standard of living on farms depends on more than the amount of money income received by farmers. Farm communities have never received comparable treatment with cities in such matters as education, housing, medical care, health, nutrition and social security. Federal and state programs in these fields should give increasing attention to the needs of rural areas.

Regional Development

Wide regions of this country still hold the promise of tremendous economic development. The Government should examine particularly the contribution it can make toward this development by stimulating production and distribution of low-cost hydroelectric energy, by developing flood control and navigation, by improving roads, by enforcing fair competitive rates of transportation, by removing barriers to truck transportation, by land drainage and irrigation projects.

We need to rebuild croplands, grazing areas and forests. Future programs of resource and industrial development should be prepared so that we can move ahead rapidly at the appropriate time.

Even under today's full employment conditions, there are a few chronically depressed areas, and some areas left stranded by the interplay of nation-wide forces, and our Government has the responsibility of assisting these communities in developing ways and means of improving their positions. The Council of Economic Advisers will give particular attention to these problems.

Federal-Aid Programs

The Federal Government is engaged in several programs of grants-in-aid to state and local governments involving large amounts of money. Further programs are planned. These programs, particularly those related to health and education, public works and road and airport construction, contribute greatly toward bringing all sections of the country up to the levels of productivity consistent with American standards of living.

I have asked the Council of Economic Advisers to co-operate with the Bureau of the Budget and other Federal agencies concerned.

30.24-7267

and with state and local advisory committees, to undertake a study of Federal grants to state and local governments to determine to what extent revised standards for the distribution of these grants may take into account more fully the needs for support that exist in various parts of the country.

Public Works

Aggregate expenditures for public works are large. They obviously have a considerable effect upon the whole economy. Further, since many public-works projects are not related to the daily problems of business operations nor to the daily needs of consumers, they are subject to adjustment in their time of commencement and their rate of progress.

This had led, particularly in recent years, to an overemphasis upon the prospects of stabilizing our whole economy through the bold use of public works.

There are valid reasons why public works cannot accomplish as much toward stabilization as some have supposed. In the event of severe unemployment, they cannot be generated in sufficient volume to avoid supplementation by other means. In a period of mild recession, they cannot be generated on time to be fully effective.

If the tempo of the public-works program is geared to some business index, the reserves accumulated for emergency use may be used after they are needed and they then become inflationary rather than stabilizing.

Even if advance preparations are made through the completion of plans, the acquisition of sites, and the accumulation of funds, there will be an inevitable time lag between calling the emergency program into operation and the employment of men on the job.

No One Safeguard

These comments are substantiated by experience. The chief lesson to be learned is that no one device constitutes an adequate safeguard against recession or an adequate fighting apparatus against depression. All useful devices need to be thought through in advance and blended into a consistent program.

Instead of regarding public works as the first and foremost device to restore our whole economy when it sags, we should attempt to stabilize public-works construction according to our long-term needs. Increasing regularization of public-works expenditures at all levels of governmental activity over a long period will offer an assurance of a demand for capital, of a market for materials and equipment, and of a field for employment which will assist in stabilizing that segment of the business world.

This approach to public works will have the further advantage of appraising their size and character in terms of our total national needs.

This policy by no means forestalls the expansion of public works as a sustaining factor if recessions or depressions should unfortunately develop despite our best efforts to avoid them. The very procedure necessary for long-term regularized expenditure will pave the way for more effective emergency use than in the past.

Research And Patents

The United States will this year invest more than $1,000,000,000 in research. In order to protect national security and the development of the domestic economy, I have established by executive order a presidential research board to survey Federal research and development programs.

The continuance of a research program of large magnitude for many years to come, together with the fact that many of the inventions resulting from it will be patentable, calls for action to protect the public interest in inventions and discoveries resulting from expenditures of public funds. I hope that suitable legislation for a uniform patent policy will be enacted by the Congress at this session.

3. Encouragement of Free Competitive Enterprise:

It is imperative that there be no restrictions on free competition resulting in curtailment of production and employment, or in maintenance of high prices, or in interference with freedom to invest funds, or in hampering the entry of new firms to any line of production or trade.

I recommend that the Congress review the studies made by the temporary National Economic Committee and by other congressional committees with a view toward supplementing or strengthening existing legislation in this field. Among the steps to be taken is the extension of Section 7 of the Clayton Act to prohibit mergers by the acquisition of assets, as well as by the acquisition of stock control.

Encouragement Of Existing Anti-Trust Laws

An anti-trust division of the Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission have both labored under inadequate appropriations. They should be better supplied with funds so that their activities can be more closely integrated.

Accordingly, I am recommending in the budget message increased appropriations for the control of monopolistic practices.

Encouragement Of Small Business

The Government should take affirmative action to enlarge the opportunities for efficient and enterprising small businesses.

I believe that the Government should study ways and means of facilitating the availability of long-term credit and equity capital to small and promising business enterprises.

The Department of Commerce has developed, and will further develop, business service programs providing business men with such information on markets and technical and commercial facts as only large establishments can provide by their own staffs.

Consideration should be given to the impact which existing taxes have upon small and growing businesses.

4. Promoting Welfare, Health and Security:

There are certain programs of government which have come to be looked upon as "welfare programs" in a narrow sense. This has placed them in an insulated compartment. They have not been sufficiently related to the needs of the economy as a whole. In fact, they are a part of the problem of maximum employment, production and purchasing power.

The Employment Act presents the opportunity to abandon this insulation, and to put these programs back in the economic setting from which they must draw their sustenance.

Unemployment insurance is designed to take care of the unemployed as a matter of right than of charity, but it also provides purchasing power as a cushion against recessions, and its tax features are of general economic significance.

Affect Purchasing Power

Retirement and pension systems exist to take care of workers who have given of their years in factory, field or office. But these systems, both on the income and outgo side, have a profound effect upon volumes of purchasing power, and the retirement age needs to be adjusted to the size and composition of our labor force and the trend of improved technologies.

Health insurance relates clearly to the efficiency of workers and thus to the productivity of industry and agriculture. And this is even more true of education, which must be reshaped continuously to meet the changing demands and job opportunities of the machine age—or, some day, of the atomic age.

The total amounts of public outlays for these and other purposes need to be measured against the total size of our economy—its wealth and resources today, and the trends and policies which shape its future.

Many of these programs have been born of a depression psychology. They have proceeded from the assumption that our enterprise system will necessarily fail to employ given numbers of people from time to time, and that these other programs must be brought forward to prime the pump or fill in the gaps.

Should Be Expanded

Here, too, we need a restatement. We should regard them rather as an inescapable obligation of an enlightened people, and we should expand them as our resources permit.

The relationship between these welfare programs and general economic conditions has been inadequately explored. Proposals for maximum employment, production, and purchasing power, and proposals traditionally regarded as being in the general-welfare area, should be integrated because they are interrelated. Further studies will provide the basis for this integration.

1947

Public Health And Education Programs

Among those whose income is less than the minimum necessary for a decent subsistence are those who cannot earn their living because of physical unfitness or lack of educational training.

A combination of public health, nutrition, education and regional development programs would create additional job opportunities and supply workers fit to fill these jobs. Relatively small government expenditures for health and education yield a high national dividend. It is more economical to prepare people to earn a decent living than to care for them through relief.

The Federal Government is now spending a large amount of money for health and education programs for war veterans, but general expenditures in these fields are relatively small. I urge the Congress to give early consideration to expanded peacetime programs of public health, nutrition and education.

Social Security

Although maximum employment would protect wage earners generally from the effects of prolonged mass unemployment, the individual is still exposed to many hazards of economic insecurity.

Our social-security program has not kept pace with the times, nor with our increase in general living standards. Many individuals are not covered by the present provisions of the act, and the benefit payments to those covered are inadequate under today's conditions.

I recommend that the Congress, co-operating with the states, take action that will lead to increasing the amount and duration of unemployment benefits. Present unemployment reserve funds are ample to support such increases.

Amendment Urged

I recommend that the Congress amend the social-security laws to extend the benefits of old-age and survivors' insurance to the occupational groups now excluded, and to include under unemployment compensation the employés of all establishments, regardless of size, in the industries now covered by the Unemployment Compensation Tax Act. In expanding general social security, the Congress should not overlook the railway workers, whose protection is under separate laws.

While we compensate workers for loss of wages due to unemployment arising from lack of work opportunities, we do not insure them against the risks of loss of earnings from temporary or permanent disability, nor against the costs of medical care. This represents not only a heavy loss for the individual but a great waste of productive manpower.

Sickness Insurance

There is an urgent need to spread the risks arising from sickness and disability by insuring workers against the loss of income and by providing, through social insurance, ready access to essential preventive and curative medical services. I have, in a previous message, presented recommendations for a program of medical care and disability benefits. I urge early consideration of this program.

Our present social insurance system is financed by employé and employer contributions. We must recognize, however, that the employés' contributions and the employers' pay-roll tax curtail mass purchasing power and increase business men's costs. From an economic point of view, it would be desirable to finance a part of the social security system out of the general budget.

Therefore, I propose that the Congress, in working out a system of financing an expanded social-security program, give full consideration to the economic as well as the social import of various methods of taxation for this purpose.

International Trade

5. Co-operation in International Economic Relations:

While most of this report has necessarily been devoted to the domestic aspects of employment, production and purchasing power, we must bear in mind that we are part of a world economy. Our sales of goods and services abroad, amounting to about $15,000,000,000 in 1946, played an important role in the maintenance of domestic production, employment and purchasing power and may be expected to do so this year.

Such a high level of exports reflects in large part the war destruction of productive capacity in other countries. If we are to maintain a well-balanced prosperity over a long period, our foreign trade must be established on a more permanent basis.

In the long run, we can sell to other countries only if we are willing to buy from them, or to invest our funds abroad.

Both foreign trade and foreign investment are vital to maintaining a dynamic economy in this country.

The shortages we have suffered during the war and are even now experiencing have proved to us our need for foreign imports. We will continue to need imports not only to add richness and variety to our standard of living but also as a means of conserving strategic materials.

We do not have to fear so-called foreign competition when we have maximum production, employment and purchasing power. We must not, of course, indulge in indiscriminate reduction of barriers to imports. Such a policy is not contemplated.

For a few years we cannot expect to buy as much from abroad as other countries buy from us. We will find it profitable to invest a part of our savings in developing the world's productive resources through sound loans and investments of equity capital abroad.

Outlet For Goods

This is important not only in the first instance as an immediate outlet for our goods and services, the supply of which will be increasing in the coming years, but also as a means of permanently increasing foreign markets for our farmers and business men. The quickest demonstration of this can be seen by the fact that nations that are industrialized are our best customers.

Many countries fear economic depression in the United States as a threat to their own stability. If faced with the alternatives of smaller trade and economic insulation on the one hand or close relations with an unstable American economy on the other, many might prefer some insulation as the lesser evil.

Closer Relations

In preference to either of these alternatives, these countries would choose closer relations with a stable American economy operating at high levels. They have already begun to co-operate toward achieving these related goals: Economic stability and expansion of world trade.

The International Monetary Fund, designed to stabilize exchange rates, and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, set up to facilitate the international flow of capital, have already started to operate.

At our initiative, experts of eighteen important governments recently worked out a tentative charter for an international trade organization. This charter embodies principles of commercial conduct designed to enlarge the beneficial flow of world trade, to re-enforce the domestic employment and development programs of the co-operating governments and, by intergovernmental commodity agreements, to remove the depressing effects of burdensome world surpluses.

First Major Effort

This Charter represents the first major effort in the field of trade to replace unilateral action—which often injured other countries and provoked retaliation—by co-operation, and joint action under a set of common principles. Continued progress in the formation of the international trade organization represents the most important step that we can take to re-establish a high volume of foreign trade on a sound basis.

The willingness of many other countries to enter the proposed trade organization will depend to a great extent on our attitude in connection with the reciprocal tariff negotiations scheduled for this year.

In return for our own tariff concessions, we can hope to secure not only reduction of foreign tariffs and discriminations but also elimination of a mass of restrictions, in particular rigid import quotas preventing our access to foreign markets. Thus we should press forward with our program to secure the reciprocal reduction of trade barriers.

Must Do Our Part

If we fail to do our part in putting international economic relations on a healthier basis, it is quite likely that some other countries will feel compelled to increase their own controls. Such a development would tend to break the world into trading blocs and could have profound effects upon world politics and the prospects for creating an enduring peace.

6. Combating Economic Fluctuations:

Only by blending all practicable programs in wise proportions can we be successful in stabilizing our economy at the highest feasible levels. The long-range policies I have outlined are designed to strengthen the structure of the economy and to reinforce its resistance to economic fluctuations.

The greater this power of resistance, the less need there will be for some of the limited and specialized stabilizing devices which have received much attention in recent years.

I have directed the Council of Economic Advisers and the other appropriate Government agencies to make a continuing study of the stabilization devices that may become necessary and to recommend their being placed in operation in ample time to insure the anticipated effect.

Job Stabilization

Among these devices are a well-integrated program of employment stabilization; improvements in the process by which workers find jobs and employers find workers; improvements in the tax structure; wise management of the public debt, and a flexible credit policy.

Continuing policy cannot be extemporized from month to month or even from year to year; most policies designed to increase the stability of the economy are of long-range character. Fortunately, we have time in which to plan deliberately and wisely, and in which to secure the co-operation of all our citizens in driving toward our common goal—an expanding economy of maximum production, employment, and purchasing power under a system of free competitive enterprise, with full recognition of the duties and responsibilities of forward-looking government.

CONGRESS VIEWS ON REPORT DIFFER

Comment Made On President's Economic Stand

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—Congressional comment on President Truman's economic report today ranged from assertions it was "just a campaign statement" to a proposal that it be "required reading" in every high school and college.

"President Truman has laid down a policy for the preservation of the capitalistic system," Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), a member of the congressional committee on the economic report, said. He added that it should be "required reading in every college and high school in the United States."

Wherry Would End Rent Control

On the other hand, Senator Wherry (R., Neb.), the Republican Whip, immediately took issue with the President's proposal to extend rent controls.

"The quicker we get rid of all of these controls, the more houses we'll get built," he said.

The Nebraskan, who made the "campaign" charge against the report, was supported on the rent question by two other Republicans.

Senator Bushfield (R., S.D.) said "there is a tremendous feeling in my country, at least, that we ought to get rid of these controls, including rent."

Senator Moore (R., Okla.) declared he would "like to see rent controls abolished immediately."

To Cut Taxes, Says Knutson

Another Republican, Chairman Knutson (R., Minn.) of the House Ways and Means Committee, said he couldn't agree on the President's conclusion that taxes shouldn't be cut.

"We are going to adopt a budget that will enable us to cut taxes," he declared.

Senator Elbert Thomas (D., Utah) said the details of the report were less important "than the fact that the system is working—that this nation along with many others is planning for maximum employment.

Several Republicans also took exception to the President's proposal that his tariff-lowering power be renewed. Wherry declared:

"I don't think any tariff rates ought to be cut until Congress reviews the situation and decides if such action is justified."

President's Economic Report Sets Three Main Goals for Nation in '47

Washington, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—President Truman, in his economic report to Congress today, set three main goals for this country in 1947:

1. Employment about as high as in 1946—58,000,000.
2. Lower prices. Make wage increases only where they won't increase prices or where needed because of higher living costs.
3. More goods and services than in 1946, perhaps 5 per cent more.

He offered this short-range program to Congress:

Continue rent controls; don't lower taxes; increase social security benefits; set up a long-range housing program; try to keep strikes to a minimum and outlaw jurisdictional strikes and "unjustified" secondary boycotts.

Then he offered this long-range program: 1947

Workers should be trained and helped in finding jobs; and discrimination against workers because of age, sex, color or religion should be outlawed.

Farm incomes must not go below a reasonable level and the principle should be plenty, instead of scarcity.

The Government should help various regions with flood control, fair transportation rates; and it should help the States with more money for health and education programs.

There should be a long-range Federal works program, bigger programs for public health, nutrition and education; the whole social security program should be overhauled to give more money to more people.

And in international dealings, this country should continue its reciprocal trade program—that is, lowering tariffs for countries which lower tariffs for this country.

U.N. Arms Parley Eyes Effect Of Byrnes Action

Lake Success, N.Y., Jan. 8 (AP)—United Nations circles buzzed today with talk of Secretary of State Byrnes's resignation and its possible effect on United States foreign policy as the Security Council prepared to discuss the basic arms-reduction program that Byrnes himself indorsed at the recent Assembly session.

Private speculation among the delegates was heightened by the fact that Byrnes's retirement followed closely on Bernard M. Baruch's resignation as American representative on the United Nations Atomic Commission.

What effect, if any, Byrnes's quitting might have on American policy in the United Nations was not immediately apparent. Warren F. Austin, chief United States delegate, was already in Washington for consultation at the time of the announcement, and his aides here awaited his return with a complete report.

No Delay Request Seen

There were no indications, however, that the American delegation would request postponement of the arms-reduction discussion — which tops the Council's agenda tomorrow—in view of the sudden shift in Washington.

One of the first issues up for debate in connection with the arms discussion will be the United States contention that control of atomic energy should be given priority in laying down any arms-slashing plan. This viewpoint clashes sharply with the Russian position that the Council should implement the arms proposal within 90 days.

Herschel V. Johnson, who will represent the United States at the Council table for the start of the arms debate, said his Government would maintain its position on this question.

Trieste Action Put Off

Meanwhile, the Council postponed action on the Council of Foreign Ministers' plan to place the Adriatic port of Trieste under United Nations jurisdiction. The vote was delayed until Friday after Australia had questioned the legality of the proposal and Belgium asked more time to study details.

Australia's Norman J. O. Makin, new Council chairman, was doubtful whether the eleven-nation Council had Charter authority to assume such responsibility. The United States, Russia, France and Great Britain opposed him, saying that this plan was the only one on which the big powers could agree and that it did not go beyond the Charter.

Johnson also stressed that the Trieste plan was the "cornerstone" of the Italian treaty, to be signed about February 1 unless the Council balks.

Unanimity Is Desired

Syria, joining the Council for the first time along with Belgium and Colombia, at first raised legal objections but later acceded.

With the five major powers, Poland, Syria and Columbia giving support, there was no doubt of the seven votes necessary for approval, but unanimity was hoped for.

The United Nations announced last night that 29 governments had filed formal replies to a General Assembly recommendation that all 55 members recall their ambassadors or Ministers from Madrid. Only El Salvador indicated it might not comply. Panama, Turkey, Colombia and Uruguay acknowledged the notification but made no other report.

The other 24 governments, including the United States, said they had no high envoys in Madrid when the Assembly resolution was adopted last December 20. Great Britain, which has withdrawn its Ambassador, made no report.

A second portion of the Assembly's resolution called upon the Security Council, which has the power to institute sanctions and use military force, to review the situation if Generalissimo Franco remains in power after a reasonable length of time.

MEETS TODAY ON PALESTINE (AP)

British Cabinet Not Expected To Impose Martial Law

GLENN WILLIAMS

London, Jan. 8 (AP)—British officials wound up tonight the last of a ten-day series of conferences in preparation for tomorrow's Cabinet meeting on Palestine, amid reports that the Ministers had decided against imposing martial law on the Holy Land.

The Cabinet, called into special session, was expected to consider immediate measures for peace in Palestine, and to chart a long-range program probably calling for the creation of independent Arab and Jewish states.

Government sources said that broader powers already had been authorized for General Sir Alan Cunningham, high commissioner, who is now in London for the discussions. These powers include the making of important, on-the-spot decisions in dealing with underground violence, the informants said.

Movements Secret

However, the Cabinet reportedly has been swayed away from the opinion—said to have been held by some of its members—that martial law should be clamped over all of Palestine unless violence subsides.

Sir Alan's movements were kept secret. A Government spokesman said that his return to Palestine, originally scheduled for this week, might be postponed for several days.

The final conferences during the day were between Arthur Creech Jones, Colonial Secretary, and David Ben-Gurion, chairman of the Jewish Agency executive who will leave tomorrow for Palestine. Creech Jones was reported to have urged the Jewish leader to press for an end to violence.

Rumors In Palestine

In Palestine itself, there were rumors that two extremist organizations—Irgun Zvai Leumi and the Stern Gang—had decided to forego violence for 60 days during the crucial negotiations on the Holy Land's future.

An Irgun broadcast said that "the fight will continue" if the Jewish Agency agrees to partition or federation. This was interpreted as confirming the existence of the truce, pending achievement of high-level decisions.

Palestine officials announced that eighteen Jews—twelve of them said to be members of Irgun—had been arrested in screening operations in Rishon Lezion, a town of 12,000 in the center of Palestine's Jewish wine industry. Rishon Lezion was the scene of one of the reprisal floggings of British soldiers ten days ago.

Sentence Is Remitted

A bid to put the quietus on violence was seen in the action of Sir Henry Gurney, Palestine Government secretary, who remitted the sentence of Aaron David Cohen, a Jewish youth, to twelve strokes of the lash. He was sent to Latroun detention camp instead.

Meanwhile, the News Review, a magazine circulated throughout Britain, said a tide of anti-Semitism was rising in England and that recent attacks against British synagogues were "following the tactics laid down by SA (storm troop) bullies in the early days of the Nazis."

This followed statements by the vicar of Leeds that anti-Semitism was climbing "most dangerously" in the Midlands, and by the Archbishop of Canterbury that Jewish violence appeared to have "encouraged anti-Semitism."

Today, a 16-year-old boy, brought into court for throwing a brick through a synagogue window, admitted the crime, told the judge he had two soldier brothers on duty in Palestine and added: "I hate Jews."

He was put on probation. 1947

Cunningham to Return. (AP)

London, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—Authoritative Government spokesmen said today that Lieut.-Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham would return to his post as High Commissioner of Palestine with broadened directives as to how to combat underground violence, but that martial law was not imminent.

These informants said he had been given wide discretionary powers and authority to make spot decisions as to what measures may be necessary to fight extremists.

Meanwhile today the news magazine News Review observed that violence in Palestine had "brought anti-Semitism dangerously close to the surface of British life."

Also today a 16-year-old boy was brought into court where he admitted throwing a brick through a synagogue window. He told the judge that he had two brothers among the 10,000 British troops in Palestine and flatly declared: "I hate Jews." He was placed on probation.

18 Jews Seized Where Britons Were Flogged

S. DAVIDSON

Jerusalem, Jan. 8 (AP)—Eighteen Jews were officially reported arrested in a police-military search of Rishon le Zion early today and reliable sources said five were prominent in Irgun Zvai Leumi, an underground organization.

Seven others, these informants said, were members of Irgun Zvai Leumi. There was no immediate identification from police.

Rishon le Zion, a town of 12,000 persons and the center of Palestine's Jewish wine industry, was the scene ten days ago of one of three flogging incidents in which a British major and three sergeants were whipped by persons who said they were Irgun Zvai Leumi members.

Violence Truce Reported

The arrests came within hours of unconfirmed reports that the two most extreme Jewish underground groups had declared a 60-day truce in their campaign of violence in order to ease tension surrounding continued negotiations for a peaceful solution of Palestine's problems.

A Jewish Agency spokesman said that "all-out efforts to bring an end of terrorism have been made in recent weeks and all kinds of efforts are continuing now."

There were widespread rumors in Jewish circles that Irgun Zvai Leumi and the so-called Stern Gang had acceded to a demand from Haganah, the more moderate underground group, that violence cease while the possibility of a diplomatic solution remained in the Jewish quest for a national home in Palestine.

Cabinet Decision Expected

[In London, a Government source said the British Cabinet would consider at a meeting tomorrow a recommendation from Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech Jones that Palestine be divided into independent Arab and Jewish states.

[The partition plan reported immediately ran into trouble, as Moshe Shertok, political head of the Jewish Agency, said in Britain that nothing less than making all of Palestine a Jewish state would satisfy world Jewry.]

30-24-7269

Quiet Since Last Thursday

The underground organizations have been comparatively quiet since Thursday night, when they launched one of their biggest simultaneous attacks on British military installations, using homemade flame throwers, mines, automatic weapons and grenades.

Despite the rumored truce and the recent lull, however, Irgun Zvai Leumi served notice last night, by a manifesto posted in Tel Aviv, that confirmation of the death sentence pronounced on Dov Gruner, convicted of terrorist activities, would bring retaliation.

Sentence Reported Remitted

Meanwhile, reliable sources said a flogging sentence against Aaron David Cohen, a Jewish youth convicted last month for possessing a leaflet bomb, had been remitted on order of Sir Henry Gurney, chief Palestine secretary.

The twelve-stroke sentence previously had been confirmed by Gen. Sir Evelyn Barker, then British troop commander in Palestine, who remitted an accompanying month's prison term. Sir Evelyn's confirmation of the flogging sentence came a few days after the four members of the British Army had been flogged.

The reported remission of Cohen's sentence was viewed by both private and official sources as a "definite move by the Palestine Government to bring peace to Palestine."

Arab And Jewish Clash Reported

Jerusalem, Jan. 8 (AP) — Police said they had received "as yet unconfirmed reports" that Jews and Arabs had clashed tonight in Tubas, a town of 10,000 population on the edge of the historic Esdraelon plains.

The accounts were brought to the Nablue police station by an Arab, officials said, adding that an "investigation now is going on."

According to the first reports, one Arab was killed and one was wounded, and two Jews were wounded. There were no further details.

Meanwhile, it was reported from Tel Aviv that the Jewish underground group, Irgun Zvai Leumi, had placed posters in that city announcing the death of "two of our soldiers, including a group commander."

The posters said the two fighters died of wounds received late in December and identified the group commander only as "Avial."

Smertenko Unwelcome, Britain And Jews Say

London, Jan. 8 (AP)—A British Home Office official, told that Prof. Johan J Smertenko planned to return to London, reiterated tonight that the American Jewish leader would be turned back from Britain if he atempted to re-entry into the country.

A Jewish Agency official, who asked not to be named, said, "We sincerely hope he is not coming, in view of the very unpleasant and deplorable things he said last time he was here."

A spokesman for the board of deputies of British Jews said: "We hope he gets cnucked out if he manages to land in England."

American League Official

Smertenko, of Woodbury, Conn., is vice president of the American League for a Free Palestine. His purported news conference statements here on Britain's Palestine policy, which became a matter of discussion in the House of Commons, led officials to bar his re-entry into the British Isles.

Smertenko stopped tonight in Geneva, Switzerland, while en route from Rome to London. In an interview there he said he planned to go to Paris by plane tomorrow and thence to London on Friday.

He said he was an American citizen, that his visa for Britain was valid until April 26, and that he intended to exercise the right of re-entry into Britain after his trip to Rome.

Objections to his return to the British Isles, he declared, were based on "grotesque and deliberate distortions of what I said, rather than what I actually said."

Smertenko explained he had been quoted in the British press as saying that there were 130 young persons in England ready to commit acts of sabotage in support of Jewish emigration to Palestine.

"I never said any such thing," he said.

Asked whether his organization was financing Jewish underground activities in Palestine, Smertenko said:

"No, but it is not because we would not like to. We are not financing them because the laws of the United States, of which I am a citizen, say that citizens of the United States must not support foreign insurrections."

DEFIES BRITISH ORDER

Rome, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—Prof. Johan J. Smertenko, vice-president of the American League for a Free Palestine, whose attacks on Britain's Palestine policy led to his being barred from re-entering the British Isles, left here today by plane for Paris—and ultimately, he said, London.

Last week Smertenko told reporters that he had a British visa good until April and that he intended to use it despite a Home Office statement that he would be put on the first outgoing plane if he arrived in Britain.

Readmission Of Mufti To Palestine Sought

London, Jan. 8 (AP)—An Arab League memorandum asking that the exiled Mufti of Jerusalem, Haj Amin El Husseini, be readmitted to Palestine reached London today.

British authorities have repeatedly declared that the Mufti, accused of having collaborated with the Axis during the war, was persona non grata in the tense Holy Land. He is now in Egypt enjoying the sanctuary extended by the Egyptian Crown.

UNRRA To Deliver Relief Supplies Soon

London, Jan. 8 (AP)—UNRRA Deputy Director General R. G. A. Jackson said today at a news conference that UNRRA would deliver a backlog of more than 6,000,000 tons of relief supplies within the next few months, despite the discontinuance the first of the year of financial contributions to the organization.

British Call Out Subs To Aid In Coal Pinch

London, Jan. 8 (AP)—The Admiralty called out its submarines tonight to generate power and light for royal dockyards, saving the dockyards' coal for industry in Britain's fuel crisis.

An Admiralty spokesman said 30 or more submarines would be assigned and each would generate about 1,000 kilowatts a day. They burn oil. A weekly saving of 2,000 tons of coal was envisaged.

Several factories have closed and others are threatened because of the fuel shortage.

British Food, 1947 Then And Now

London, Jan. 8 (AP)—Great Britain began its eighth year of food rationing today, with Britons getting less of most commodities than in the bleak war days of 1940.

Sample weekly rations then and now:

Commodity	1940	1947
Bacon	4 ounces	2 ounces
Sugar	12 ounces	8 ounces
Preserves	2 ounces	4 ounces
Butter	4 ounces	3 ounces
Margarine	2 ounces	3 ounces

Expects Long-Drawn Out Indo-Chinese Struggle

REMBERT JAMES (N)

Paris, Jan. 8 (AP)—France lowered the enlistment age for volunteers to 18 years today in a move to raise military forces for a long drawnout military struggle with Viet Nam forces in Indo-China.

Announcement of the change from a minimum enlistment age of 19 "because of the situation in the Far East" was made by the Minister of National Defense as dispatches from Indo-China told of new attempts of Viet Nam forces to infiltrate French positions in Hanoi, capital of Tonkin, and continued artillery duels there.

In Calcutta, Marius Moutet, French Colonial Minister, told interviewers, "I have reasons to think that extremist elements have captured all power and use President Ho Chi Minh's name to serve their needs. Ho is president of the Viet Nam Republic in Indo-China.

Ho Is Superceded

["The real truth is that Ho Chi Minh has been superceded by extremist elements who place party above everything else," said Moutet, on his way home from a fact-finding mission to Indo-China. "I wonder if he still continues to be president. I have no information as to where he is exactly."]

A break in the encirclement of Hanoi was achieved, the French said in a communiqué, when a column advancing eastward from Hanoi linked up with another column driving westward from Haiphong on the coast. The junction was made near Kesat, midway between Hanoi and Haiphong, after a four-day drive.

Town Is Evacuated

Landing craft, which transported tanks and infantry up the Rouge River from Haiphong to Namdinh, successfully evacuated the besieged civilian population of that cotton-mill town 50 miles southeast of Hanoi, the communiqué said.

The river expedition linked up with several hundred parachutists who dropped in the area Sunday night and gained control of the town, the French said.

In the north, where a struggle for control of the China border area was underway, the French reported a Viet Nam concentration at Anchau, south of the Langson-Tienyen highway linking the Langson garrison with the sea.

The brunt of any major campaign in Indo-China by the French would be borne by volunteer professional soldiers. The new regulations, in addition to lowering the enlistment age, outlined a set of rules for assigning military personnel to colonial duty. Under the new rules personnel under 18½ years of age cannot be sent overseas.

Hanoi-To-Haiphong Link Restored (5)

Paris, Jan. 8 (AP)—Two French columns have joined forces midway between Hanoi and Hai Duong after battering through persistent Viet-Namese resistance and have re-established French communications east from Hanoi toward Haiphong, chief Tonkin seaport, dispatches from embattled Indo-China reported today.

At Hanoi, Viet-Namese artillery slowed down its steady barrage against French positions in the European quarter. The French general staff said many Viet-Nam republican troops were caught attempting to escape from the native quarters.

At Nam Dinh, a cotton-mill center southeast of the Tonkin capital, French naval units evacuated the civilian population by sea to Haiphong without incident, the general staff said. French forces inside Nam Dinh pushed an energetic mopping-up drive.

The French garrison at Langson, frontier post northeast of Hanoi, was reported to be preparing for a renewed Viet-Namese assault aimed at control of the frontier with China. The garrison has been encircled virtually since the outbreak of the Viet-Nam uprising December 19.

Indo-China Report Retraction Demanded

Saigon, Indo-China, Jan. 8 (AP)—United States Consul General Charles S. Reed demanded today that the French retract an officially circulated report saying that James O'Sullivan, United States Vice Consul in Hanoi, had characterized Viet-Namese actions in Hanoi as "criminal and bestial folly."

Reed, who is from Cleveland, Ohio, addressed the retraction request to Henri Barbeau, General Director of Information, whose office distributed the report to the Saigon press December 22.

What French Reported

The French report said O'Sullivan and the Chinese Consul in Hanoi conferred December 21 with Gen. Louis Morliere, French military commander at Hanoi. It stated that, after Morliere gave them a report of the situation, O'Sullivan and the Chinese Consul expressed "without restraint their indignation over the behavior of Viet-Nam authorities, which they characterized as criminal and bestial folly."

Reed said O'Sullivan insisted that neither he nor the Chinese Consul made any comment in their conference with Morliere.

Vichy Follower to Die.

Paris, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—A Paris court last night sentenced to death Georges Radici, a leader of the Vichy Government Home Militia, who was convicted of ordering twenty-eight executions at the Sante Prison after a mutiny on July 14, 1944.

Clay Sees German Policy Unaltered

Stuttgart, Germany, Jan. 8 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, who will become European theater commander on March 15, said today he believed the appointment of General Marshall as Secretary of State would not change United States policy in Germany.

Speaking in the same German city where Secretary Byrnes laid down the American policies for the rehabilitation of the conquered nation, Clay said:

"I think both the United States and Germany are fortunate to have had a man of such great character as Byrnes and a man such as Marshall to succeed him."

Press, Radio Freedom

Clay came to Stuttgart to meet the newly elected minister-presidents of the legislatures of the three American zone states and outline their responsibilities in creating democratic self-government.

In conferences with the Länderrat, the advisory German governmental body of the three states and with newsmen, Clay:

1. Warned that American and British bizonal committees starting their jobs of merging the economies of the two zones would not be permitted to assume any state responsibilities.

2. Disclosed that the United States Military Government hoped to give the German press and radio "complete liberty not too many months away," and that the German radio "very probably will be state owned and operated."

Prisoners Tyrannized, Reich Official Charges

Stuttgart, Germany, Jan. 8 (AP)—The three ministers-president of the United States occupation zone of Germany charged tonight that German prisoners of war were being tyrannized by former Nazi SS officers in American, Allied and German operated prisoner camps.

The newly elected minister-president of Greater Hesse and Bavaria, Wilhelm Hoegner, asked Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay to approve appointment by the German state council of a German committee to investigate conditions of German war prisoners throughout the world.

Bremen Enclave To Be State

Stuttgart, Germany, Jan. 8 (AP)—A German Government official said today that the Brémen enclave would be given full status as a fourth state of the American occupation zone "within a few days."

GI Admits He Shot Self; Had Blamed Germans

Frankfurt, Germany, Jan. 8 (AP)—An American soldier who said he had been shot by Germans actually wounded himself in an alleged attempt to obtain discharge from the Army or return to the United States, the United States Army provost marshal's office reported today.

The soldier, Pfc. John D. Main, Anderson, Ind., was found lying on a road near Darmstadt December 23, with two bullet wounds in his left leg. He is recovering in an army hospital.

De-Nazification Court In Nuernberg Bombed

Frankfurt, Germany, Jan. 8 (AP). United States Army headquarters said today that a bomb exploded last night in a Nuernberg de-Nazification court, tearing plaster from the walls, but causing no injury.

The courtroom was empty except for tables and chairs and there were no known files of German records in the room.

A number of de-Nazification courts were bombed in the Stuttgart area last year and eleven Germans are on trial in that city for the crimes.

The Army said "an unknown person or group" was responsible for the Nuernberg explosion.

REICH BOMBING LAID TO NAZIS

Revenge For Court Action On Gestapo Leaders Blamed

Nuernberg, Germany, Jan. 8 (AP). Revenge against the German de-Nazification system for refusing to clear notorious Gestapo officials was advanced by German prosecutors tonight as the motive for the bombing of a Nuernberg court.

The bomb, a tin can skillfully rammed with high explosives, was tossed into De-Nazification Court No. 4 last night. No one was injured and no records were reported lost, but windows were broken and holes blown in the floor and ceiling. The room was empty at the time.

The German prosecutors said the bombing was probably in retaliation for their transferring the cases of certain Gestapo leaders to criminal courts, instead of scheduling them for political trial.

Work Of Specialists

Leo Stahl, German police chief, said the bombing was "the work of specialists."

The latest Gestapo veteran to be turned over to a criminal court by de-Nazification officials was Michael Haertl, who had been in charge of the secret police prison here under Heinrich Himmler.

The explosion was more violent than those staged recently in the Stuttgart area, allegedly to intimidate de-Nazification officials. Eleven Germans now are on trial in Stuttgart in connection with those blasts.

Jewels Swapped For Food

Wiesbaden, Germany, Jan. 8 (AP). Three former princesses of the royal house of Prussia were described in an American Military Government report tonight as the dupes of a black-market ring with which they swapped family jewels for food.

John Stark, of Pasadena, Cal., in charge of black-market investigations, said the food cost the princesses two diamonds, three sapphires and a topaz set worth about 50,000 marks ($5,000 at the present Allied exchange rate).

The food was sold to them at prices ranging from $9 for a chocolate bar to $30 for a pound of coffee. The princesses — Agathe and her daughters, Elizabeth and Luise Henriette—were quoted by Stark as saying they chose to barter because they feared their jewels, in any case, would be confiscated by the Military Government.

Hours Cut In Frigid Cold

Berlin, Jan. 8 (AP)—Berlin's city government today reduced the working day for its office personnel to staggered four-hour shifts to "spare their health" as freezing weather spread misery through the fuel-starved capital. Thermometers registered four degrees below zero last night in outlying sectors.

SPANISH STUDENTS SEEK FRANCO OUSTER

MADRID, Jan. 8—(AP) Leaflets circulated today by the clandestine "Federal Union of Hispanic Students" appealed to students in countries belonging to the United Nations for help in overthrowing the regime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

The organization, which described itself as "liberal," specifically requested that foreign students work for the cutting off of diplomatic and commercial relations with the Franco government, organize anti-Franco demonstrations and collect money for scholarships for exiled Spanish students.

The leaflets charged that Spanish university professorships and scholarships were given to Falange favorites, that able but poor students were prevented from entering the schools and that police circulated freely through the halls of the class buildings to "cut off at the root any attempt at free expression."

ITALY PARTY SPLIT FEARED

Socialist Parley Set Today On Communism Issue

FRAUR—LEBRIEU

Rome, Jan. 8 (AP)—Conferences before the opening of the twenty-fifth national congress of the Socialist party tomorrow will decide whether Italian Socialists will become hopelessly split over the issue of collaboration with the Communists, the office of Giuseppe Saragat, Socialist president of the Constituent Assembly, said tonight.

While the rift appeared virtually a certainty earlier in the day, Saragat's secretary denied reports from other party sources that it was already an actuality. Saragat is leader of the anti-Communist faction.

The other informants said small delegations from the ranks of Saragat supporters and a second anti-Communist wing of the party would attend the congress's opening session at the University of Rome only to announce they were leaving both the congress and the party, and that Saragat would then call a rival congress and "organize a new party."

Final Decision Tonight

"This has not yet been entirely and definitely settled," Saragat's secretary said. "The final decision will be made tonight."

The reports had been given wide publication by Rome's press and a high party source held out little hope for conciliation.

Such a rift would leave Pietro Nenni, Socialist Foreign Minister and Acting Premier, at the head of the party group favoring continued "joint action" with Communists. The threat took front-page space today from Premier Alcide de Gasperi's mission to Washington, which for several days had monopolized the big headlines.

A Socialist party division into deadlocked pro and anti Communist groups would heighten the already acute division of the country as a whole into Right and Left camps.

Civil War Danger Seen

Don Luigi Sturzo, Catholic elder statesman who was a founder of the Centrist Christian Democratic Movement, has declared in a Milan newspaper that Italy was already in danger of civil war.

He said Sunday that the Right and Left were "arming against each other" and warned of violence when "one of the two has the psychological confidence of winning."

The Socialist party had thus far been regarded in Italy as a possible bridge between the two extremes, so long as it held in its own ranks Left, Center and Right representatives.

The extreme Right in Italy is generally regarded as typified by the Uomo Qualunque (common man) Movement, which the Left calls neo-Fascist.

Premier de Gasperi, at the head of the Christian Democrats, stands at the center but is accused of Rightist leanings by the Communists.

Approximately 70 per cent of the regional Socialist party congress has voted to follow Nenni's pro-Communist line, a party organizer said today.

Italians Quit Homes

Rome, Jan. 8 (AP)—Giuseppe de Berti, political counsellor of the Italian delegation at the Paris Peace Conference, said today that more than 100,000 Italians had abandoned their homes in Istria.

In a statement to the Italian news agency Ansa, de Berti declared that the exodus was the "highest protest our land has expressed against the treaty of peace." He declared that 28,000 Italians had left their homes in Fiume alone and that 14,000 had left Zara, a former Italian enclave on the Dalmatian coast.

NO LUXURY LINERS IN ITALY'S PLANS

Shipping Efforts Will Stress Freighter Class, of Which There Is Great Need

ROME, Jan. 8 (AP)—It will be a long time before tourists board an Italian transatlantic liner for one of those champagne and masquerade ball pleasure cruises that made Italy's luxurious passenger fleet renowned before the war, and perhaps the day never will come again.

Italy, which lost nearly 90 per cent of her merchant fleet in her greatest economic disaster of the war, has put away any thought of attempting to regain her pre-war position in the luxury passenger field.

She entered the war with a merchant fleet of 833 vessels, totaling 3,661,427 tons. Counting vessels salvaged and partly refitted, she now owns 123, a total of 507,880 tons. An additional 250,000 tons are under construction or ordered, but scarcity of materials and high construction costs have delayed delivery.

Salvatore Aldisio, Merchant Marine Minister, said it would be years before Italy could reach 50 to 60 per cent of former efficiency in the freighter class, where she will concentrate her reconstruction efforts. The fifty Liberty ships purchased from the United States are considered barely a start toward the fleet Italy will need to carry an estimated 22,500,000 tons of vital imports in the next few years.

Italy has only one passenger ship, the Andrea Gritti, plying a transatlantic run to Latin America. The Vulcania and the Saturnia recently were returned to Italy by the United States, but the former still is being used for repatriation of Americans while the latter is bringing Italian prisoners home.

Of the big ships of Fascist days, the bombed Rex lies off the Istrian coast where, Italians charge, the Yugoslavs are stripping her; the wrecked hulk of the Conte di Savoia has been refloated at Venice; the Conte Granda, according to the Ministry, was sold by Brazil to the United States for $8,000,000; the Conte Rosso was sunk in the Strait of Messina, the Conte Verde was scuttled by Italians in the Far East when Italy surrendered and the Conte Biancamano was seized by the United States in the Pacific and used as a military transport.

Rome Press Is Assailed By Pope (N)

JOHN P. MACKNIGHT

Vatican City, Jan. 8 (AP)—Pope Pius XII struck at "unconditional liberty" of the press and films today in his second reply in recent weeks to virulent attacks on the church by Italian anti-clerical weeklies.

He told members of the Roman nobility gathered in the Consistory Hall that to permit publications and movies "to undermine the religious and moral foundation of the life of the people" would be "to legalize license."

Declaring that uncertainty still was the dominating characteristic of the postwar world, both in international relations and in the affairs of several nations, the Pontiff asserted it was the duty of the aristocrats actively to participate in public affairs to seek the good not of a certain class but of the "entire community."

Several Family Members

Among the 53 men clad in tailcoats and women in black formal dress were several members of his own family.

Charging that unconditional liberty of press and movies would "unhinge the defense of public morality," the Pope declared man's common welfare is "always bound to the absolute scale of values established by God."

If man enjoys personal liberty, he went on, it is "precisely in order to render this tie effective in a manner worthy of human nature. The guardianship of this liberty is the end of all juridical arrangement worthy of the name. But from that it follows also that there cannot be liberty and the right of violating that absolute order of values."

"Pain And Indignation"

Three weeks ago, appearing before a giant gathering of Catholics before St. Peter's Church to protest the rebirth of anti-clericalism in some of Rome's weekly papers, the Pope called for a new union to defend the faith, and spoke of "pain and indignation" at the attacks on his person and the church.

Earlier, Prime Minister Alcide de Gasperi, himself an ardent Catholic, had sharply criticized such anti-church papers as Pollo and Don Basilio and promised that his Government would act to end "obscenities and pornography."

A Rome court on December 23 sentenced Rinno Macarri, editor of Pollo, to two years imprisonment for vilifying the state religion. He has appealed but in the meantime Pollo has suspended publication.

Another Hearing Set

Like charges against Dr. Furio Scarpelli, editor of Don Basilio, will be heard Friday. Scarpelli and his staff, as well as readers and vendors of the paper, have been excommunicated by the church.

Even as the Pope spoke, however, there were indications that members in Italy's Leftist parties, which have dealt gingerly with the issue presented by the anti-clerical press, were rallying to the defense of the publications.

It was announced that Mario Berlinguer, Action party deputy and former chief prosecutor of the high court to try Fascist crimes, would defend Don Basilio's editor in court. The Socialist party organ, Avanti, yesterday attacked the legality of the Government's measures against the papers charging it used Fascist laws to suppress anti-clerical expression.

Asserts New Anxiety

In his discourse the Pope asserted anew his anxiety over present conditions in the world despite "some notable progress we hope may prove lasting."

"Meanwhile, on the world scene, the year lately ended has presented to our gaze a spectacle in which certainly it could not be said that activity, commotion, surprise were lacking," he said.

"What has instead been lacking, as in previous years, is the achievement of solutions which may let souls breathe tranquilly, which may clarify definitively the conditions of public life, which may point out the right road to the future, even though hard and bitter."

World Awaits Peace

The world still anxiously awaited, he said, "the conclusion of a peace at least tolerable," and "it is not yet given to foresee with any certainty what will be the final result of the encounter of or the collision of the various tendencies and forces, and above all of the diverse and discordant doctrines in the religious, social and political field."

Taking note of the "natural anxiety of the nobility" in these conditions, the Pontiff said abstention from taking a hand in shaping the new world "either because of dislike of the course of affairs or indifference, was not fitting."

A "strong and just man," he said, who is a Christian, will "not be content to stand rigid, impassive in the midst of ruin."

Pope Would Bar Press Church Meddling (D)

Vatican City, Jan. 8 (AP)—Pope Pius XII said today that "unconditional liberty of the press and films" could not be permitted if it operated "to undermine the religious and moral foundations of the life of the people."

The Vatican has been under attack recently by anti-clerical weeklies of Italy. The Pontiff told members of the Roman nobility paying him their annual New Year's visit that granting full liberty under such conditions would be "legalizing license."

The Pope said that uncertainty continued to mark the times, "despite some notable progress we hope may prove lasting," and urged the necessity of participation by all in the shaping of a new world.

Abstention Assailed

Abstention, either because of dislike or the course of affairs or indifference, did not befit them, the Pontiff said, adding:

"In vain may one try to hide behind the mask of neutrality; such a one is not at all neutral: he is, whether he wills it or not, an accomplice."

A "strong and just man" who is a Christian will "not be content to stand rigid, impassive in the midst of ruin," he declared.

Uncertainty Cited

"After the horrors of the war and the anguish deriving from a suspension of hostilities which could not be called, and was not peace . . . the characteristic note was complete uncertainty," he said.

"Meanwhile, on the world scene, the year has presented a spectacle in which activity, commotion, surprise were lacking.

"What has instead been lacking, as in previous years, is the achievement of solutions which may let souls breathe tranquilly. . . .

30-24-7271

"Notable Progress"

"Thus—in spite of some notable progress we hope may prove lasting—uncertainty still continued to be the dominating characteristic, not only in international relations, but also in the domestic order of the several states.

"Even here it is not yet given to foresee with any certainty what will be the final result of the encounter of or the collision of the various tendencies and forces, and above all of the diverse and discordant doctrines in the religious, social and political field."

Troops Encircle Budapest Office

QUINN (N)

Budapest, Hungary, Jan. 8 (AP)—Armed Russian and Hungarian troops drew a cordon around the Ministry of War and Home Defense today, Hungarian informants reported, while representatives of the ministry's Communist-dominated political department were questioning employés.

The unexplained encirclement of the big two-story brick building near headquarters of the United States military mission took place soon after it was announced that arrests in an alleged "counter-revolutionary plot" to restore the regime of Admiral Nicholas Horthy had swelled to 77.

Presumably the War Ministry employés were being questioned about the plot in which 55 were reported arrested last Saturday. Three more colonels were reported arrested in the plot. Members of the moderate Small Landholders party, largest in Parliament, said Istvan Cisicsery-Ronai, their party's foreign policy expert, was among the latest to be arrested in the net.

Anti-Communists here have declared the roundup was an effort to smear them and to entrench the Communists against the day when Russian troops may be withdrawn from the country. They said the plot, if it existed, was greatly exaggerated.

Communist announcements of the roundup last Saturday of prominent politicians and generals declared the plotters timed an armed uprising for a time when the Russian troops are withdrawn or when the Hungarian peace treaty is signed.

Informants from the Small Landholders party declared that Jeno Szatmari, correspondent for the Basler Nachrichten in Switzerland and the Svenska Dagsbladet in Sweden, was still in jail but would be released "today or tomorrow."

Charges against Szatmari have not been announced.

A Hungarian correspondent for an American newspaper said political police had warned reporters that "we intend to get rid of all foreign correspondents as soon as we get complete power."

informants said that Istvan Cisicsery-Ronai, their party's foreign political expert, had been added to the list of those arrested.

Help Home Forces Surround Ministry of War as Employees Are Questioned.

(D)

Budapest, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—Hungarian informants said that Russian and Hungarian troops surrounded the Ministry of War and Home Defense today while representatives of the Ministry's political department questioned employees and arrested three colonels.

The Government, investigating alleged counter-revolutionary plots, disclosed yesterday the arrest of a total of seventy-seven persons.

Officials of the ministry were not available for comment. Persons who saw the cordon of troops around the building said that nobody was allowed to enter during the questioning.

Those who professed to know said that the investigation was ordered by Major-Gen. Gyorgy Palffy, head of the ministry's police department. Nobody reported why Russian troops figured in the cordon.

Meanwhile, the Communist newspaper Szabad Nep denounced the New York Herald Tribune, the London Daily Mail, and the Paris newspapers Combat and Le Monde for reports printed prior to an official Hungarian announcement of the alleged plot.

Szabad Nep said that these newspapers' "local reactionary informants" were "trying to save the plotters" and added: "We must tell these papers to stop supporting Hungarian reaction and to stop interfering with our private affairs.'

Assailed by Reds.

The Communist organ also denounced the British Broadcasting Corporation for its plot commentary. The commentary was termed "biased and unfriendly toward Hungarian democracy."

Most reports from Hungary before the official announcement quoted anti-Communists as saying that the plot—if it existed at all—had been exaggerated in an attempt to smear anti-Communists and intrench the present Communist-dominated political order.

Meanwhile, Smallholder party

Interior Minister Laszlo Rajk, a Communist, announced Saturday that 55 persons had been arrested in connection with the purported plot, and the Communist newspaper Szabadsag said today that "hourly new data is received which will result in further arrests."

"Framing" Tactics Alleged

Meanwhile, a high church official—who is noted for his anti-Communist feelings—added his comment to others of the same mind that the Communists were "framing" some minor affair into a major incident to entrench their political power.

In accordance with previous performances, these sources said, the Communists next could be expected to demand a "purge" of "Fascist" elements in the Smallholders (anti-Communist) party. They said the exposé of the alleged plot was part of a plan to discredit the Smallholders and thus dispense with Smallholder opposition in Parliament.

Hungarian Prelate Charges Books Seized

Budapest, Jan. 8 (AP)—Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty asserted today in an official letter to Brig. Gen. George H. Weems, United States military mission commander, that members of the Hungarian political police, "acting under order of the Allied Control Commission," had invaded his palace library at Esztergom and removed 150 books.

The primate questioned the control commission's authority to take such action. Weems said he would take the matter up at the next ACC meeting.

The cardinal's letter did not describe the books.

The Hungarian official press has for some time been printing official lists of books banned on grounds of being "Fascist."

RUSSIANS ASKED TO VISIT BRITAIN

Montgomery Says Military Leaders Have Accepted

E. GILMORE (N)

Moscow, Jan. 8 (AP)—Field Marshal Lord Montgomery said tonight that he had invited the Chief of the Soviet General Staff, Marshal A. M. Vasilevsky, and other Soviet military men to visit Great Britain this spring or early summer and that the invitation had been accepted.

The Chief of the British Imperial Staff said that when he tendered the invitation, Marshal Vasilevsky said he would have to ask his government. He has asked his government, Montgomery added, and "tonight he has informed me that his Government has given permission and he accepted with pleasure."

This was but another feature of Montgomery's visit to Russia which has really turned into a personal triumph. It is seldom that a foreign visitor has been received with such open-armed hospitality and with such apparent friendliness.

Delighted With Progress

Montgomery, congrming this, said that he was delighted with his visit and the progress he has made.

"After all," he said, "I have visited the United tSates and seen the military establishment sthere and it is only natural that I should come here and my Soviet friends should come to Britain."

Today Montgomery was shown the new Stalin tank and was given a demonstration. He got inside of it and was photographed by the Russians. When the Soviet officers visit England, Montgomery said, they will see the same things that United States Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has seen in that country.

U.S. Ambassador's Guest

Talking to newsmen at a cocktail party given by Maj. Gen. A. H. Gatehouse, British military attaché here, Montgomery referred to relations with the Americans and said: "We also are Allies with the Soviet Army."

The Field Marshal was a guest of honor tonight at a dinner given by the American Ambassador, Lieut. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith.

Monty Visits More Army Schools (D)

Moscow, Jan. 8 (AP)—Field Marshal Lord Montgomery, chief of the British Imperial Staff, visited more Soviet military academies today while Russian newspapers featured his activities.

All leading newspapers printed prominently an account of his attendance last night at a performance of the ballet, "Romeo and Juliet," in the Bolshoi Theater, with Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky, chief of the Soviet General Staff; Marshal Ivan S. Konev, commander of Soviet ground forces, and Marshal V. D. Sokolovsky.

Attends Class Sessions

Referring to Montgomery's visit yesterday to the Voroshilov Higher Military Academy, newspaper accounts said he had a lengthy talk with Gen. M. V. Zakharov, head of the academy. He attended class sessions and spoke on his experiences in Africa, where he won the battle of El Alamein and reversed the German drive on Cairo and Suez.

Press accounts stressed the friendly atmosphere surrounding Montgomery's six-day visit. The reports said Montgomery, in his first talk with Vasilevsky on Monday, paid his official respects "in a friendly spirit."

Seldom has a foreigner received such prominence in Russian newspapers.

Stalin Accepts Deputy Nomination

Moscow, Jan. 8 (AP)—Prime Minister Stalin today accepted nomination as a deputy to the Supreme Soviet of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic — the largest republic in the Soviet Union.

Stalin will stand for election to a four-year term in balloting which will take place next month.

The Russian leader is a deputy to the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R., having been elected to another four-year term in February, 1946.

The Prime Minister accepted his nomination from the Stalin electoral district, which he represents in the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R.

Stockholm Youth Held As Blast Setter

Stockholm, Jan. 8 (AP)—Police Chief A. Zetterquist said today that an 18-year-old technician had been arrested and identified as the man responsible for a series of explosions which kept the Swedish capital in a state of emergency every Saturday for months.

On some Saturdays as many as 50,000 guards were mobilized to search for the man responsible for the explosions. Zetterquist said the technician arrested last night confessed setting off nine blasts in central Stockholm and one in the suburbs "just for the fun of blasting and mocking the police."

High Finnish Army Men Tapped Phone To Russia

Helsinki, Finland, Jan. 8 (AP)—A state police announcement said today that high officials in Finnish Army headquarters had organized the secret tapping of telephone conversations between the Russian Control Commission in Helsinki and Moscow.

Even calls from Generalissimo Stalin were recorded and transcribed, the announcement said. It added that some officials concerned in the tapping would face military trial in about a month, although two of the officers involved have fled from Finland.

The wire tapping was planned in October, 1944, upon the initiative of the chief of the headquarters intelligence section, and technical arrangements were handled by the radio station and a post and telegraph official, the police said.

VOTE, POLISH PARTY IS TOLD

1947 (N)

But Opposition Is Ordered To Boycott Ten Districts

HARRY ALLEN

Warsaw, Poland, Jan. 8 (AP)—Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk announced tonight that the opposition Polish Peasant party which he heads would have candidates in the field in 42 of Poland's 52 electoral districts in the January 19 election.

He added, however, that his followers would boycott the election in those ten districts in which the Government has denied the party a list of candidates.

Earlier, Mikolajczyk renewed his accusations that the Government was intimidating voters, jailing his candidates and employing terrorism.

Might Have Caused War

His decision on the partial participation of the Polish Peasant party in the election was awaited anxiously by the nation. A move by Mikolajczyk's party to boycott the balloting in every district in the nation might have pushed Poland toward civil war.

Meanwhile, reports continued to circulate in Warsaw that supporters of the Communist-dominated Government bloc were making house-to-house canvasses to get millions of voters to forego a secret ballot and pledge an open vote for the bloc. Foreign newsmen said they heard reports from many Poles that they had been threatened with death if they refused to vote the straight bloc ticket.

The boycott in the ten districts will mean that more than 2,500,000 Poles will have no choice between the Government and the opposition party.

Candidates Imprisoned

Mikolajczyk has charged that a large number of his followers were being arrested, that 110 Polish Peasant party candidates for Parliament had been imprisoned and that 146 candidates had been crossed off the voting lists.

Referring to the fact that Mikolajczyk's party had been refused permission to enter slates of candidates in ten districts, a Government spokesman pointed out that election laws empower the Government to deny persons accused of underground activities permission to run for office or to vote. The districts in which the opposition lists have been turned down, the spokesman said, are strongholds of the underground.

Campaign Called Fair

Brig. Gen. Wiktor Groz, Foreign Ministry spokesman, declined to comment directly on a United States note urging Russia and Britain to assure what it called a fair election in Poland. He said, however, that the pre-election campaign had been conducted fairly and that the balloting would reflect "an expression of the true will of the Polish people."

[An informed source in Moscow said Russia had replied to the United States that the Soviet Union knew of no irregularities in Poland unless they were committed by what were described as Righwing terrorists. The Moscow radio, heard in London, said the election was "organized in a perfectly democratic manner" and that Mikolajczyk's "outcry" was meant to prepare the public for the defeat of his party.]

Poland has not anwered the American note, but previously told Britain bluntly that the election was Poland's own affair.

Warsaw, Jan. 8 (AP)—Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk's opposition Polish Peasant party is expected to decide today whether or not it will boycott Poland's January 19 general elections.

Mikolajczyk said he expected a ruling before nightfall from the General Elections Commission on a series of PSL protests, including complaints that complete slates of PSL candidates had been rejected in nine districts, that 110 of the party's parliamentary candidates had been imprisoned, that 146 candidates had been canceled from the voting lists, and that intimidation and mass arrests of PSL members were continuing.

2½ Million Denied Choice

He said that upon receipt of the commission's replies the PSL's executive committee will decide whether to permit the Communist-backed pro-Government bloc parties to sweep through to uncontested victory or face opposition.

As matters now stand, Mikolajczyk said, 2,500,000 Poles would be deprived of the right to choose between bloc and PSL candidates because of the rejection of the lists in nine districts.

[The Moscow radio, heard in London, said the Mikolajczyk "outcry" was intended to prepare the public for the defeat of his party.

["Mikolajczyk and his helpers have been denouncing pretty nearly everything about the Polish elections," the commentator analyzer said.

LaGuardia Is Quoted

["It seems to me this outcry, which is echoed by part of the press in the United States, is meant to prepare the public for the defeat Mikolajczyk expects to suffer in the elections, but this is a very cheap strategy.

["The facts show that the elections in Poland are organized in a perfectly democratic manner," the commentator continued. "LaGuardia [F. H. LaGuardia, former mayor of New York city] said the other day that the Polish election laws gave a better chance for an independent candidate to appear on the ballot than the laws of the State of New York."]

Should a boycott be ordered, Mikolajczyk's sole remaining alternative would be to appeal to the United Nations for enforcement of the Yalta and Potsdam agreements pledging free and unfettered elections and equal opportunities for all legally recognized political parties in Poland.

Ouster Is Predicted

Bloc leaders, on the other hand, were predicting certain victory and hinting strongly that the PSL was not wanted as a part of the Government after the elections, meaning that Mikolajczyk would have to step out.

Reports continued to reach Warsaw that the house-to-house canvass was being made by bloc organizers to get millions of voters to pledge their support, and many Poles told foreign newsmen that they were being threatened with dispossession and even death unless they voted the straight bloc ticket.

There are about 13,000,000 registered voters in Poland's 52 electoral districts in a population of 24,000,000.

40,000 German PW's Are Still In Poland

Warsaw, Poland, Jan. 8 (AP)—The Polish Government feels that German prisoners of war should be required to help rebuild what they destroyed during the war in this country, but apparently there is no intention to import any sizable quality of Germans here to work.

There are only 40,000 Germans war prisoners still in Poland. Five thousand are being used in the reconstruction of Warsaw. Five thousand are working on Polish farms, and 30,000 are employed in the mines. The Germans are housed in 10 separate camps.

Indian Air, Navy Men Stage Hunger Strikes

New Delhi, Jan. 8 (AP)—Hunger strikes involving about 90 Royal Indian Navy personnel and about 80 Royal Indian Air Force men were disclosed by officials today.

The navy men struck Monday at Cochin for undisclosed reasons. Later, 40 of them returned to their HMIS Kukri stations, but 50 remained under detention, a communiqué said.

The Air Force men struck Saturday at the Vizagapatam RIAF station. It was reported unofficially that their action followed complaints about food and conditions. A communiqué said one airman was hospitalized, several others were weak from hunger and 64 were under military guard.

5 Killed in India Strike Riot

BOMBAY, Jan. 7 (Delayed) (AP)—"The Times of India" reported in a Cawnpore dispatch that five persons were killed and twenty-eight injured there Monday when police fired to disperse a group of mill workers. The dispatch said the incident followed the arrest of labor leaders in a mill dispute in which 30,000 workers were involved. It declared that several hundred workers of the central ordnance depot raided the office of the depot commandant and assaulted him.

Malaya Rubber Exports.

Singapore, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—Malaya during December exported 69,163 long tons of rubber, 10,487 less than in November. United States got 43,061 tons and only 4,796 tons went to the United Kingdom.

National Unity Near, Iranian Chief Says

1947

Tehran, Jan. 8 (AP)—Premier Ahmed Qavam said today that Iran had attained "almost complete national unity" in the last six months and he hoped he had succeeded in efforts to eliminate foreign interference in her internal affairs.

"The postwar period of confusion which forced us to seek United Nations aid is ending," Qavam said. "Iran is preparing for a new period of constructive effort toward the improvement of economic and social conditions."

He said American engineers are now making a survey preparatory to launching a seven-year program designed to modernize the nation's transportation, communications, agriculture, industry and social institutions.

"Despite the efforts of some selfish interests attempting to discredit the Government," he said, "free and democratic elections will begin this week and should be completed within two months."

The Premier said the proposal for a Russian-Iranian oil company in northern Iran, which was "the subject of talks last year," would be presented to Parliament after the elections and "details could be worked out by the elected representatives of the people."

At Moscow talks, Qavam agreed to propose that the Majlis (Parliament) approve the formation of a company, 51 per cent Soviet-directed, for exploitation of oil reserves in four northern provinces.

Qavam denied editorial charges in some Tehran newspapers that his domestic policies were influenced by American Ambassador George V. Allen.

China Cuts Terms Of 100,000 Criminals

Nanking, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—The Ministry of Justice today announced a reduction of sentences for approximately 100,000 criminals convicted before the promulgation of China's new Constitution last month. The order excluded war criminals and persons convicted of corruption, graft and narcotics violations.

Death sentences were reduced to fifteen years' imprisonment, life sentences to ten years and fixed terms were halved.

TOJO IS ACCUSED IN 13 YANK DEATHS

Tokyo, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—Another ill defendant was removed from the courtroom today as the international war crimes tribunal was informed that thirteen American airmen shot down over Japan were executed in 1945 under an order issued by Hideki Tojo while he was priemier.

Naoki Hoashina, minister of state in the Tojo cabinet, was taken to Sugamo Prison for treatment after he complained of a headache and physicians said that his temperature was 101.4 degrees.

Akira Muto, former War Ministry official, onetime chief of staff of the Japanese Army in the Philippines and a defendant at the trial, was reported improved at the United States Army's 361st Station Hospital, where he was taken Monday, suffering from bronchitis.

Japanese Government documents recorded the execution and cremation of the thirteen Americans—2d Lieut. Robert Warson Nelson, Sergt. Algy Stanley Augnus and eleven whose last names only were listed. Former Japanese Army Capt. Yorio Ogiya, who prosecuted Nelson and Augnus, said that their sentences were confirmed by the war ministry.

U. S. Ends Repatriation Of 922,570 Japanese

By The Associated Press.

TOKYO, Jan. 8—The mammoth job of returning to Japan the Japanese who ranged far over the Pacific's reaches in their bid for empire has been wound up in all sectors under United States control.

Allied Headquarters announced today that 922,570 Japanese had been repatriated since the war's end from the Philippines, Hawaii, the Ryukyus, South Korea, the Marianas, Gilberts, Bonins and Marshalls.

These included 3,411 returned from Hawaii, 132,303 from the Philippines, 130,795 from western Pacific islands, 64,396 from the Ryukyus and 591,665 from Southern Korea. There still are 120 Japanese in the Marianas and 649 in the Philippines—all held in connection with war crimes.

Headquarters also announced the repatriation of 28,578 Ryukyu natives, 12,907 Formosans, 7,703 Chinese and 19,801 South Koreans.

Jap Repatriation Complete

Tokyo, Jan. 8 (AP)—Allied headquarters today reported the completion of mass repatriation of Japanese and other nationals from all areas in the western Pacific and the Far East under United States control.

URGE JAP POLL DATE

Tokyo, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—Russia proposed to the Allied Council today that Gen. MacArthur order the Japanese to fix a definite date for clearing ultra-nationalists from rural offices and electing successors. The proposal, by Lieut.-Gen. Kuzma Derevyanko, was supported by W. MacMahon Ball, British Commonwealth delegate, who told the American chairman, George Atcheson Jr., that it was "reasonable to ask when the elections will be held."

Atcheson replied that there was no delay in effecting the purge for rural officials, since the imperial ordinance under which it will be carried out was promulgated only a few days ago. He understood, he added, that the municipal elections would be held about April 15, depending on the progress of the purge.

Derevyanko complained that the Japanese Government had postponed both the purge and the elections, saying that the Cabinet had informed the Diet previously that the municipal vote would be held as far back as last October.

Japs to Send Silk Here.

Tokyo, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—Supreme Headquarters directed the Japanese Board of Trade today to prepare 5,000 pounds of spun silk yarn for export to the United States Commercial Company in New York city as samples. It also directed the shipment of 2,000 pounds of rayon samples to Australia.

Nazi Warship Sinks 6 Months After Riding Out A-Bomb Tests

(Don Whitehead, Associated Press chief of bureau at Honolulu, headed the staff which covered last summer's atomic bomb tests at Bikini. Now touring Pacific Island bases, he returned to the Marshall Islands and reports for the first time this surprising aftermath).

By DON WHITEHEAD

KWAJALEIN, Jan. 8—(AP) Disclosure was made by a naval officer today that the 10,000 ton Prinz Eugen, once proud cruiser of Adolf Hitler's navy, sank nearly six months after the Bikini atom bomb tests—suggesting the bomb is both slow and sudden death to big warships.

Apparently the cruiser was the fourth major victim of the second tests of July 25. Other capital ships sunk by the underwater bomb were the 29,000 ton battleship Arkansas which went down almost instantly, the 33,000-ton carrier Saratoga which sank seven hours after the blast, and the 32,700-ton Japanese battleship Nagato which succumbed five days later.

Reveals Story 1947

The naval officer, who requested anonymity, said the Eugen, which helped sink the British battle cruiser Hood during the war, went down in Kwajalein lagoon Dec. 16 despite frantic efforts to save her.

This is the naval officer's story:

The cruiser was brought to Kwajalein shortly after the "Crossroads" experiments—she was used in both tests—and anchored with other surviving target ships, most of them too radioactive for crews to go aboard.

The Eugen was at anchor with the Nevada, New York, Independence and Pennsylvania when she began settling by the stern and listing to port.

Tugs were rushed to her side. They towed her to a beach but at 10 a.m. on the morning of Dec. 16 the sleek fighting ship, scarcely marked above the water line, capsized. The bow plunged to the bottom, leaving the stern sticking out of the water. Although damaged at the stern, she sank bow first because of the beaching operations.

"It was startling to everyone," the officer said, "because the ship appeared in such good condition."

It is believed that the underwater explosion of July 25 tore loose her stern plates.

[The Navy Department in Washington, asked about the delay in releasing news of the Eugen's foundering, said notice of the sinking was "classified" or restricted information.]

Eugen, A-Bomb Test Ship, Sinks

Kwajalein, Jan. 8 (AP)—The former Nazi heavy cruiser Prinz Eugen which survived both atomic explosions at Bikini last summer capsized suddenly and sank December 16.

A battering blow from the underwater explosion of an atomic bomb July 25 presumably loosened the Eugen's stern plates, which gave way as she was riding at anchor in Kwajalein lagoon with other survivors of atomic power.

The Eugen was the fourth capital ship sunk by the underwater atomic explosion. The others were the Arkansas, Nagato and Saratoga.

Dutch Deny Onus for Fighting in Indies; Say Commission Is Ready to Sign Agreement

BATAVIA, Java, Jan. 8 (AP)—Indonesian Republic leaders' threats to throw their full armed strength against the Dutch to halt what they called new aggression were met today by a strongly worded denial from the Netherlands Indies Government that the Dutch were responsible for continuing strife.

The Government statement said that "measures found necessary" in the past three weeks stemmed from an increasing menace from Republican forces. It was issued after speeches last night by Indonesian Vice President Mohammed Hatta, Defense Minister Amir Sjarifudin and Commander in Chief General Soedirman before a mass meeting in Jogjakarta, protesting Dutch military actions in Sumatra.

Fighting was continuing on Sumatra. The Netherlands Army announced that 20,000 Nationalist soldiers who had been concentrated near Medan were fleeing to the interior and that Nationalists had been swept from the northern sector of Medan, completing a rout begun last week.

Indonesian Soldiers Fleeing From Medan

Batavia, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—The Netherlands Army announced today that 20,000 Indonesian Nationalist soldiers who have been concentrated around Medan for months were fleeing into the interior of Sumatra. The announcement said that Monday's large scale clearing action had swept the Nationalists from the northern sector of Medan, completing a rout begun last week.

MARSHALL GIVEN SPEEDY APPROVAL BY SENATE VOTE

1947

G.O.P. Stresses Unity on Foreign Policy in Unanimous Confirmation.

IS EN ROUTE HOME

New Secretary of State Declines to Make Immediate Comment.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—(AP) In a swift and spectacular demonstration of unity on international affairs, the Senate today unanimously confirmed Gen. George C. Marshall as Secretary of State.

The Republican-inspired confirmation was followed immediately by a bi-partisan move to call Marshall before a joint congressional session for a foreign policy review.

Now En Route Home

Marshall is now en route back to this country from China where he has spent the last 13 months as President Truman's special envoy to that nation.

At Guam today, the general's executive officer, Col. J. H. Caughey of Alexandria, Va., told reporters that Marshall did not know of the actual appointment to succeed James F. Byrnes until he heard it on the radio enroute from Nanking.

Marshall knew his appointment was impending. He said, "I had discussed it with the President."

The five-star general declined to discuss his plans or his problems.

"I am sorry. I have to be silent for the moment," he explained.

Discussion of possible political aspects, bearing on the 1948 presidential race, brought a statement from Brig. Gen. Tristan Tupper in New York that he knows Marshall "has no active party affiliation." Tupper is Marshall's brother-in-law and a member of the firm which recently published Mrs. Marshall's biography of her husband.

On opposite sides of Capitol hill in statements bridging party differences, the theme—continuation of an international policy free from political strife—dominated the public and private discussions over the surprise shift announced last night by the White House.

Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.), chairman of the foreign relations committee, told the Senate that Marshall has the "total confidence" of the Republican-controlled Congress, and emphasized the need to demonstrate to the world this country's "continuing and effective bi-partisan foreign policy."

Speedy Approval

With these words, he won from the Senate permission to hold an immediate meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to act on Marshall's nomination, thus hurtling normal, time-consuming legislative procedure. The committee required only 12 minutes to approve the appointment.

Less than 55 minutes after the nomination reached Capitol Hill, the senate had stamped it with its unanimous endorsement. Its enthusiastic acceptance was tempered only by words of regret over the loss of Byrnes' services.

Chairman Eaton (R-NJ) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, told a reporter that it would be a "grand thing" if Marshall could appear before a joint session for a review of foreign policy and general, and of affairs in China in particular.

As did Vandenberg, he stressed the need for removing any doubt in the world on the direction and continuance of foreign policy, saying that "we can and must have an American policy without regard to breed or creed."

In a separate interview, this viewpoint—as well as the suggestion Marshall lay down his opinions before Congress—was supported by Rep. Vinson (D-Ga), ranking minority member on the newly-formed house armed services committee.

Sponsors of a Marshall personal appearance on Capitol Hill made it clear that he first should be given time to acquaint himself with the immediate problems within the state department. The new secretary must also make preparations for a momentous meeting of the foreign ministers in Moscow in March.

Presidential Gossip

The emphasis on the need for showing the world that Republicans and Democrats stand together on international affairs overshadowed—but did not rule out—private speculation on the possibility of Marshall as a presidential candidate in the 1948 elections.

His selection as secretary of state automatically makes him second in line in the Truman administration and the man who would succeed to the presidency in the event of a vacancy in the White House in the next two years.

And the trancendent importance of coming international negotiations—as the big powers struggle to force a peace pact for Germany and Austria—automatically will keep him in a foremost position in the public eye.

Friends of Marshall, in the face of this speculation, have discounted any presidential aspirations on his part, and he has been known to express in strong terms a wish for retirement.

Marshall Is Held Sure To Follow Byrnes Path

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall was considered certain today to indorse and support Secretary of State Byrnes's foreign policy—including the "firm" stand toward Russia—when he replaces Byrnes in the top-ranking Cabinet post next week.

Both diplomatic and congressional leaders agreed that Marshall will "carry on" with the task of constructing world peace where Byrnes leaves off.

Hence capital interest in his future policies was equalled if not exceeded by the fact that, as Secretary of State, Marshall will become first in line for succession to the presidency and—whether he likes it or not—a leading figure among the 1948 Democratic presidential possibilities.

Praised In Both Parties

Democratic and Republican members of Congress alike lauded Marshall's selection, tempering their comment only with regret at Byrnes's departure.

Chairman Vandenberg (R., Mich.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee called Byrnes' resignation a "major loss" but declared Marshall "is rich in experience . . . I wish him well in his great responsibility."

Senator Wagner (D., N.Y.), a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, declared that "Marshall will be a very capable successor," and Senator Connally (D., Texas), former chairman of the committee, declared there will be no change in policy under Marshall.

Faces Difficult Task

At 66, Marshall is stepping into one of his most difficult and critical tasks. As Army Chief of Staff he did much to design the strategy of Allied victory. As Secretary of State he will have possibly a greater responsibility—that of working with the foreign ministers of other major powers to complete the structure of peace.

Byrnes, only little more than a year older than Marshall, attributed his resignation to doctors' advice early last year that he had to "slow down." He said he could not remain Secretary of State and do that.

Tried To Resign Last Year

Byrnes first asked last April 16 to be allowed to resign on July 1, expecting the European satellite peace treaties would be complete by then.

This was revealed in an exchange of correspondence with President Truman made public by the White House last night.

When the treaties were not finished in mid-1946, Byrnes agreed with Mr. Truman to see the job through. It was finished in early December and on the nineteenth Byrnes restated his desire to quit effective January 10 or as soon as his successor was qualified.

Accepting the resignation, the President gave Byrnes a "well done" and "the thanks of the nation" for his achievements.

Marshall Flying Home

His career had carried Byrnes through both branches of Congress, to the Supreme Court, into a wartime job as war mobilizer under the late President Roosevelt, and finally to the State Department.

Amid all the hubbub over the change, the only one of the central figures who had nothing whatever to say for the moment was Marshall himself. He was somewhere over the Western Pacific, flying home from thirteen arduous months in China, where he had been trying in vain to promote peace between the Nationalists and Communists.

Leaving Nanking last night, about half an hour after word of his new assignment was released here, Marshall planned a three-day stop in Honolulu, where he will join Mrs. Marshall, then a flight to Washington late next week.

Department Shakeup Likely

Meantime, Mr. Truman was expected to send his nomination to the Senate promptly, and its speedy and enthusiastic approval was assured.

A shakeup in the State Department seemed likely to result from the third change of secretaries in two years, beginning with the resignation of Cordell Hull in November, 1944. But this may be long delayed.

There was some speculation that Marshall will turn to some of his wartime associates in the Army to fill key posts. On the other hand, as the first career army officer ever to hold the State Department assignment, the General may bend over backward to avoid any possible criticism that the Army was taking over foreign policy.

Next In Line For Presidency

On the domestic scene, Marshall now becomes next in line to the White House should a vacancy occur there in the next two years, and this is certain to provoke a fresh outbreak of presidential nomination talk.

Many Democrats privately have been booming Marshall for that role in the event Mr. Truman decides not to run in 1948—and Senator Edwin C. Johnson, of Colorado, has declared publicly in favor of the General. Marshall himself has remained completely aloof from politics.

Switch May Cost Marshall Money

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall's new $15,000 a year Cabinet job as Secretary of State may cost him money. But Congress can prevent it.

He draws $15,751 from the Army now as a five-star general and under a 1932 economy act cannot draw two pay checks from the Federal Government.

However, the 1946 act which gave five stars to Marshall and seven other generals and admirals stipulated that whether active or retired they should continue to draw their highest total pay and allowances as long as they live.

Congress solved the dilemma when Gen. Omar N. Bradley was named Veterans Administrator. It passed special legislation authorizing him to continue drawing his army pay which exceeded the $12,000 a year Veterans Administration salary.

Marshall's present annual pay check is made up of $8,800 base pay, $5,000 personal allowance, $1,440 for rent, and $511 for rations.

EUROPE VIEWS BYRNES MOVE WITH REGRET

1947

Comment, However, Generally Praises Selection Of Marshall

TOM WHELAHS

London, Jan. 8 (AP) — Surprise tinged with regret was the immediate reaction across Europe today to the resignation of James F. Byrnes as Secretary of State, but the appointment of Gen. George C. Marshall as his successor generally was received with approval.

Newspapers gave smash play to the story, and Marshall's designation was indorsed unqualifiedly by a British Foreign Office spokesman.

Close Co-Operation Forecast

Moscow was silent, but a Soviet-controlled newspaper in Berlin said that Marshall would work for closer co-operation with Russia. A similar opinion was expressed by the semi-official French Press Agency, which said the General would try to ease tensions between Moscow and Washington.

Many capitals reported widespread speculation on how the Russians would react to the appointment of a professional soldier to the job of America's chief peacemaker.

Several newspapers pointed out that Marshall's appointment meant that three top U.S. representatives concerned with the forthcoming March meeting of Foreign Ministers in Moscow would be military men. Mentioned besides Marshall were W. Bedell Smith, U. S. ambassador to Moscow; and Lt. Gen Lucius D. Clay, slated to be the commander of U. S. forces in Europe.

Other sources named Gen. Douglas MacArthur, U. S. far eastern commander, as among the military men who affect U. S. foreign policy.

Clay told newsmen in Berlin he did not believe the change in state department heads would alter U. S. policy toward Germany. Lt. Gen. Mark Clark, U. S. commander in Austria, said in Vienna he did not think the change would affect his job of helping write a peace treaty for Austria.

Several European newspapers, pointing out that Marshall had just finished a tour of duty as President Truman's special Ambassador to China, saw in his appointment a turning of American attention from Europe to the Orient.

Role In China Involved

Diplomatic observers said Russian reaction would almost certainly be influenced by Marshall's role in attempting to bring peace between the Communists and Central Government in China.

And in India, the strongly nationalistic Bombay Chroniele said Asiatic countries wondered "whether the center of gravity of United States-Soviet relations and conflicts is shifting into the Far East."

Reaction by countries:

GERMANY—The Soviet-controlled Nacht Express, published in Berlin, welcomed the appointment of Marshall as "a man of more flexible views and policies than Byrnes" and one who has the "reputation of maintaining good relations with Soviet statesmen as a participant in the Yalta, Tehran and Potsdam conferences."

"Right Man In Moscow's Eyes"

Nacht Express said that Marshall's efforts in China had made him the "right man in Moscow's eyes" to succeed Byrnes.

Berlin Social Democrats expressed apprehension that Marshall's selection might mean a swing in American interest from Europe to the Far East. Party leaders commented that Byrnes had "won the hearts of the majority of German people with his Stuttgart speech, which gave them hope of existence."

General Clay, who becomes United States commander in Europe March 15, said "I think both the United States and Germany are fortunate to have had a man of such great character as Byrnes and a man such as Marshall to succeed him."

FRANCE—The French Press Agency predicted Marshall would try to ease "tension between the United States and the Soviet Union which got under way during Mr. Byrnes's term." The agency said Byrnes was "extremely popular" among Parisians.

French Foreign Office officials observed that Byrnes "was a nice pleasant man," but would go no further.

ITALY—An Italian Foreign Office

spokesman declined to comment, saying: The change was "an internal American matter." Privately, however, officials said they were amazed that the change was not deferred until Alcide de Gasperi, Italian Premier, had completed his mission to Washington.

BELGIUM—Belgian officials, too, were silent, but the Brussels newspaper Cite Nouvelle said caustically:

"It does not mean the United States is going back to isolationism. They remain internationalists, but they enforce their internationalism by uncompromising power of their arms and dollars. Where are the bygone Roosevelt conceptions?"

NETHERLANDS—A Dutch Foreign Affairs spokesman praised Byrnes as having played "the main part in the solution of the peace treaties with the five Axis satellite countries."

DENMARK—The newspaper Information said Marshall's designation "stresses that America's foreign policy and her economic and military interests point toward the East rather than toward Europe."

INDIA—The Times of India said the new appointment might mean that the United States had abandoned her policy of trying to "settle China's affairs."

The Chronicle, besides speculating about shifts in the "center of gravity" of Russian-United States relations, asked if the appointment meant a "get-tougher" policy toward Russia.

Selection Of Marshall Wins London Okay

London, Jan. 8 (AP)—Selection of Gen. George C. Marshall as United States Secretary of State was received with surprise and approval in official British quarters today.

"General Marshall is a man who personally is highly esteemed in Britain," said a well informed Whitehall source, who reported that the appointment came as a "complete surprise" to the British Government.

"No Stranger To Us"

"His great abilities are thoroughly appreciated," the official added.

A spokesman said the Foreign Office regretted the break in the long and pleasant association with Secretary Byrnes, "but at the same time, General Marshall is no stranger to us."

Slightly more qualified approval of Marshall's selection came from the ranks of labor members of Parliament who late last year "rebelled" briefly against British foreign policy on the ground that it was tied too closely with that of the United States.

Richard Crossman, leader of the dissatisfied "M.P.'s," said Marshall was a "man above party and perhaps the most statesmanlike figure in America."

"Adds One More General"

He said Marshall was a man who could be expected to keep United States foreign policy bipartisan. He continued:

"The only possible objection is that General Marshall's appointment adds one more general to the military figures, such as General MacArthur, who influence American policies. But this is, on the whole, outweighed by General Marshall's outstanding qualifications."

The Belfast telegraph welcomed the appointment, calling Marshall "a close friend of Ulster's Field Marshal Sir John Dill in Washington."

Byrnes Stay Top News

The resignation of Secretary of State Byrnes was treated as the top news by most London newspapers.

The Times, which accorded the announcement the unusual distinction of a place on its advertisement-filled front page, said his retirement would cause both regret and surprise.

"All who watched his work at the Big conferences last year," the Times diplomatic correspondent wrote, "admired the tenacity and skill with which he presented the policies he judged to be right. He brought a lawyer's persuasive powers to the conference table.

"Able To Make Promises"

"By his care to insure that he always has the support of most members of both parties, Democrats and Republicans alike, Byrnes was able to make promises of American co-operation in Europe beyond all precedent . . . The successes achieved at the end of the year, when the Council of Foreign Ministers concluded treaties with Italy and four satellite countries, owe much to him.

The Daily Mail's diplomatic correspondent, and the Communist Daily Worker sought to read political significance into the resignation.

"After the Republican successes at the recent elections," said the Mail, "President Truman had to face the problem of organizing the presidential campaign of 1948. Undoubtedly, General Marshall's appointment represents one of his first moves."

Communist Version

The Daily Worker, which headlined its story "Truman Sacks Byrnes," declared:

"Last April and December the Secretary of State sought to resign on the grounds of health, but in the new Republican setup the fact is that 'Jimmy' is regarded as an old Roosevelt man, whatever hostages he may latterly have given the Republicans."

Paris Is Surprised.

Paris, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—The semi-official French Press Agency said today the resignation of Secretary of State Byrnes caused "sharp surprise" in Paris, where it was laid to "party tactics."

Byrnes, the agency said, "leaves at his peak, since the New York discussions of the four Foreign Ministers have been a success—for him especially. It will pertain to his successor to broach the even more difficult question of Germany."

"Apart from this, it is believed his successor, Gen. Marshall, will make a special effort to accentuate the easing of tension between the United States and the Soviet Union which got under way during Mr. Byrnes's term," the agency concluded.

The French capital's afternoon press today gave smash play to the news. French officialdom maintained silence on the change.

Writing in France-Soir, the French commentator Pertinax declared that Marshall's appointment "will be warmly welcomed by Frenchmen."

Reaction Of Rome Press

Rome, Jan. 8 (AP)—The Rome press reflected surprise today over the resignation of Secretary of State Byrnes, which was of unusual interest to Italians because it came in the midst of Premier de Gasperi's talks with United States Government officials in Washington.

The Socialist organ Avanti said the news had been received "with bewilderment" by the Italian delegation to Washington, and Il Tempo's headlines emphasized what it called "the unexpectedness" of the development.

Il Momento headlined the story of Byrnes's resignation "political crisis in America"—but in Italian journalistic parlance any Cabinet change is "a crisis."

A spokesman at the Foreign Ministry said the Italian Government considered the resignation of Byrnes an internal American matter not likely "to influence relations between the two countries."

Regrets In Berlin

Berlin, Jan. 8 (AP)—The resignation of Secretary of State James F. Byrnes caused considerable surprise among German political leaders here today and many expressed their regret over his decision.

Social Democratic party leaders commented that Byrnes had "won the hearts of the majority of the German people with his Stuttgart speech (September 6), which gave them hope of existence, so that his resignation is bound to provoke a feeling of insecurity, especially in view of the approaching peace conference on Germany."

Soviet Opinion

The first expression of opinion from Soviet-controlled sources came in an editorial in the Russian-licensed newspaper Nacht-Express, which welcomed the appointment of Marshall as "a man of more flexible views and policies than Byrnes" and one who has "the reputation of maintaining good relations with Soviet statesmen."

The Nacht-Express observed that Marshall's efforts in China to seek reconciliation between the Communists and the forces of Chiang Kai-shek would make him "the right man in Moscow's eyes" to succeed Byrnes. It predicted that Marshall would work for closer co-operation with Russia.

velt to Big Three meetings.

The retirement of Secretary Byrnes will be felt in Moscow. He formed many close personal acquaintanceships with Soviet leaders, including Foreign Minister Molotov, during many conferences. However, General Marshall is certain to be a most welcome guest at the March meeting of the Foreign Ministers' Council.

Prime Minister Stalin holds in high regard the wartime operations of the United States Army on the European Continent and knows General Marshall was in large measure responsible for them.

The very fact that General Marshall originally was an appointee of President Roosevelt should do much to add to his prestige among the Russian people. The late President was regarded as one of the greatest foreign friends of the Soviet Union.

The Russians may not agree with all that General Marshall has done as special United States envoy in China for 13 months, but they realize he was carrying out the orders of his Government and his work there should place no obstacle in the way of his personal acceptance here.

However, there may be some who will point out that this is still another military appointment by the United States—such as that of Lieut Gen. W. Bedell Smith as Ambassador to Moscow—and some who may take the view that United States military men are becoming more and more identified with United States foreign polic-

Marshall's Association With Roosevelt Expected to Add to Prestige in Russia

By The Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Jan. 8—Announcement of the resignation of United States Secretary of States Byrnes and the appointment of Gen. George C. Marshall as his successor was received with great interest in Moscow.

Both men are well known in the Russian capital—Mr. Byrnes for his participation in numerous international conferences and General Marshall because he accompanied the late President Roosevelt to Big Three meetings.

The retirement of Secretary Byrnes will be felt in Moscow. He formed many close personal acquaintanceships with Soviet leaders, including Foreign Minister Molotov, during many conferences. However, General Marshall is certain to be a most welcome guest at the March meeting of the Foreign Ministers' Council.

Prime Minister Stalin holds in high regard the wartime operations of the United States Army on the European Continent and knows General Marshall was in large measure responsible for them.

The very fact that General Marshall originally was an appointee of President Roosevelt should do much to add to his prestige among the Russian people. The late President was regarded as one of the greatest foreign friends of the Soviet Union.

The Russians may not agree with all that General Marshall has done as special United States envoy in China for 13 months, but they realize he was carrying out the orders of his Government and his work there should place no obstacle in the way of his personal acceptance here.

However, there may be some who will point out that this is still another military appointment by the United States—such as that of Lieut Gen. W. Bedell Smith as Ambassador to Moscow—and some who may take the view that United States military men are becoming more and more identified with United States foreign policy.

ARGENTINA SEES GAIN

Press Sees Blow to Braden in Exit of Byrnes

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 8 (AP)—The Argentine press, alert to see whether the replacement of James F. Byrnes as United States Secretary of State by Gen. George C. Marshall, might bring a change of United States attitude toward the Perón Government, gave the story maximum front page attention today.

Editorial comment was limited, but the newspaper Epoca, which supports President Juan D. Perón, said the resignation of Mr. Byrnes was "a triumph for Argentina" because "with him go his interventionist collaborators, headed by Spruille Braden."

Mr. Braden, now assistant Secretary of State in charge of Latin American affairs, formerly was Ambassador to Argentina.

MARSHALL ADVICE RECEIVES MIXED REACTION IN CHINA

SHANGHAI, Jan. 9—(AP) General Marshall's farewell advice to China that more use should be made of liberals in a country caught in a tug-of-war between reactionaries of the two major parties drew praise today from the influential Democratic League.

Lo Lung-Chi, spokesman for that third party, even expressed belief it would be unnecessary for the White House to send another presidential envoy to help achieve a more representative coalition government in China. Lo in an interview praised the "impartiality" of the critical statement issued by General Marshall as he left China to become secretary of state.

Others Less Optimistic

But at Nanking the best informed sources took a less optimistic view. They saw as far in the future the realization of Marshall's suggestion for an assumption of leadership by liberals.

These sources said that leaders of the Kuomintang (Government party), despite the adoption of a so-called liberal constitution, were not inclined to surrender their powers so long as there is a threat from Chinese Communists backed by more than 1,000,000 armed men.

They looked for a long military and economic battle, with the government seeking to defeat the Communists in the field before the cost of supporting a war machine destroys China's economy.

Chinese banking circles in Shanghai predicted no change in America's policy with Marshall's appointment as secretary of state except that it might become "increasingly realistic."

Nanking sources look for a quick folding up of the Peiping executive (truce) headquarters, the machinery by which the United States has endeavored to bring the Kuomintang and Communists together.

Such a development, these sources say, would carry with it the removal of all American troops in China except for fewer than 800 officers, men and military advisory groups in Nanking plus necessary service personnel in Shanghai.

The Nanking group is concerned largely with instructing Chinese armed forces in technical matters and has no connection with Marshall's mission.

Marshall Leaves China; 13-Month Mission Ended

Nanking, Jan. 8 (AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall left China today, his thirteen-month mission as special envoy at an end, to assume the task of handling the foreign relations of the United States.

Generalissimo and Mme. Chiang Kai-shek saw him off at the airport, unaware that he would not return, and unaware that President Truman had called him home to succeed James F. Byrnes as Secretary of State.

"Come back soon, won't you?" Madame Chiang called as the General entered the plane. Then the Generalissimo went aboard for the formal farewell. What he said was not recorded.

Chinese Government Pleased

Hardly had the plane left for Guam than the news arrived that Marshall, who had struggled fruitlessly for more than a year to try to bring the Kuomintang and the Communists together, had been handed the No. 1 Cabinet post.

Chinese Government officials expressed satisfaction, saying Mr. Truman had selected the American best informed on China's complex problems. Communist quarters withheld comment.

Government and Communist spokesmen were evasive about Marshall's farewell statement, which verbally spanked both the Chinese Government and the Communists. Neutral observers, however, called it a "brilliant description of the situation."

"Sincere, Friendly Spirit"

Peng Hsueh-pei, Minister of Information, speaking for the Government, commented that "many of his ideas are those which he mentioned to me on previous occasions. I am sure General Marshall made the statement in a sincere and friendly spirit, and it is in the same spirit I regard his statement."

Asked if the Government accepted the statement as a fair evaluation of the Chinese situation, Peng said, "I have no further comment."

Wang Ping-nan, Communist spokesman, said official reaction must come from party headquarters at Yenan. Speaking personally, he said: "The United States is unable to appoint another man for this important post with as much knowledge of the Chinese situation as General Marshall.

Hits "Unilateral Policy"

"It remains to be seen whether even General Marshall will be able to change the United States' unilateral policy supporting the Kuomintang' (Government party).

The neutral observers said Marshall's statement was a direct challenge to both to end obstructionist tactics and bring peace to China or to retire and make way for liberal leaders willing to do so.

One diplomat said Marshall "laid the cards on the table and let the whole world know that both sides are guilty of dishonest practices during a long period of fruitless negotiations."

Concerned Over Loan

Chinese political circles in Shanghai expressed belief that Marshall's appointment means that the State Department will give its chief atention to Russo-American relations, with emphasis on the Far East.

High Government quarters were reported greatly concerned over whether a $500,000,000 loan President Truman recently promised China conditionally would be granted.

American quarters hailed Marshall's appointment and statement but speculated that the latter would cause resentment among highly placed Chinese in both Nanking and Yenan.

MARSHALL STOPS IN GUAM

Flies on After Refueling — Bars Talk on Policies 'for Present'

GUAM, Jan. 8 (AP)—General Marshall sped toward Washington tonight in his special plane in high spirits but silent as to his course of action when he assumes his new responsibilities as Secretary of State.

During a refueling stop here, he was asked, "Will you follow the same policies which Secretary Byrnes has supported?"

The General smiled and said, "I would be foolish to answer a question like that at this time."

"Can you say anything of your plans at this time?"

"I am sorry; I have to be silent for the present," General Marshall replied.

The General did not know of his appointment to the Cabinet until he heard the news on the radio en route here from Nanking, said his executive officer, Col. J. H. Caughey of Alexandria, Va.

General Marshall, however, knew his appointment was pending. "I had discussed it with the President," he said.

He had asked that his arrival here be kept secret, so he was met with a minimum of ceremony by high ranking Army and Navy officers. There were no photographers.

The General left for Honolulu, about a twenty-hour trip, at 10 P. M., after an hour and forty minute stop. He will meet Mrs. Marshall in Honolulu and she will accompany him to Washington.

Party Chairmen Warn Against Political Play

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—Chairman Reece, of the Republican National Committee, said today that Republicans in Congress should concentrate on doing a "workmanlike job," free of presidential politics.

Simultaneously the Democratic National Committee issued a statement declaring that if there is "any deliberate attempt to sabotage" President Truman's legislative program, "we of Democratic national headquarters will see to it that the responsibility is placed where it belongs."

In a "First Things First" editorial in The Republican News, national committee organ, Reece remarked:

"Every practical student of government realizes that it is all too easy to use the Congress of the United States as a sounding board for presidential aspirants."

Aspirants Named

No fewer than six Republican senators—Taft and Bricker (Ohio) Vandenberg (Mich.), Lodge and Saltonstall (Mass.) and Martin (Pa.)—and three present or former governors—Dewey, Warren and Stassen—have been mentioned as potential GOP standard-bearers in 1948.

Reece said the first job confronting his party now is the enactment of a "positive legislative program to clean up the mess inherited from fourteen years of Democrat confusion and misrule and to set the nation high on the road to prosperity."

"The second job . . . is the setting of the stage for the election of a Republican President in 1948," he wrote, adding:

"Both of these jobs are important, but it would be unfortunate for the country and the party if the two became confused. That is to say that the party's legislative program, which is the responsibility of the new Congress, should not be complicated by any pre-1948 maneuverings on the part of potential presidential candidates or the friends of such candidates."

Signs Of "Not-Co-Operating"

The Democrats' statement, made public by Acting National Chairman Oscar R. Ewing, asserted there are signs the Republicans on Capitol Hill do not intend to co-operate with the President.

"Already there has been an effort on the part of Republican leaders in Congress to misinterpret the President's message as a partial acquiescence in the intent of the Case Bill which he vetoed last year," Ewing said.

Ewing said Mr. Truman did not espouse the Case anti-strike bill in asking for laws to end jurisdictional strikes, outlaw some secondary boycotts and prevent walkouts over interpretation of contracts.

Says Labor Backs Them

Instead, Ewing declared, these are proposals "that have widespread acceptance of labor itself."

The statement continued:

"Republican spokesmen, holding leading positions in committees that will deal with taxation, have expressed their disapproval of the President's proposal to extend the excise on luxury items . . . levied upon those who can afford to pay them, in the interest of balancing the budget. . . .

"The 'across-the-board' reduction on all incomes up to $300,000, as proposed by the Republicans, would work out as a tremendous gift to the rich.

Truman Warns Departments to Hew to Budget

Forbids Attempts to Get More Out of Congress Than Amount He Sets

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 (AP).—President Truman has cracked down on Administration officials who he said have tried to wangle larger funds from Congress than the White House asked.

In an unusual memorandum, Mr. Truman directed the Budget Bureau to tell his subordinates that they must:

1. Stop "seizing upon any opportunity which presents itself to indicate an opinion, either directly or indirectly, that my (budget) estimates are insufficient."

2. "Support only the President's estimates in hearings and discussions with members of Congress."

A leading Republican lawmaker who obtained a copy of the memorandum and made it available today to a reporter said that in his view the second point might be construed as instructions to oppose any Congressional effort to trim appropriations requests.

This Congress member, who asked not to be named, noted that the Republicans are committed to a pledge to trim Federal spending to the bone.

Forecasts of the 1948 budget message scheduled to go to Congress Friday have centered around a $37,000,000,000 figure, compared with Republican contentions that government outlays during the year beginning next July 1 should be held close to $30,000,000,000.

As word of the directive spread on Capitol Hill, members said the only recent case of any similarity they could recall was Mr. Truman's instruction to Navy officers during the height of the Army-Navy merger fight last year.

At that time the Chief Executive told the Navy to refrain from any public campaign against unification, although he added that officers were free to express their own views before Congressional committees.

"I have noticed that on several occasions certain department and agency officials have shown a tendency to seek from Congress larger appropriations than were contemplated in official budget estimates.

"The estimates which I transmit to Congress reflect a balanced program for the executive branch as a whole, and each individual estimate is considered in the light of this program, its relationship to other estimates, and the fiscal program of the government. While agency witnesses before Congressional committees must feel free to supply facts in answer to questions of committee members, I cannot condone the practice of seizing upon any opportunity which presents itself to indicate an opinion, either directly or indirectly, that my esimates are insufficient.

"When you notify the heads of the various departments and agencies of the amounts to be included in the 1948 budget for their activities, I wish you would include a reminder that I shall expect them and their subordinates to support only the President's estimates in hearings and discussions with members of Congress."

Strikes Prolonged Life Of The SFA

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—The Solid Fuels Administration said today that coal strikes slowed national reconversion from war and lengthened the life of the agency by a year.

The SFA was to have gone out of business by the end of the 1945 fiscal year, Dan H. Wheeler, deputy administrator, said in his annual report covering the July 1, 1945-June 30, 1946, fiscal year.

"But the terrific loss of coal resulting from the spring strike caused the industry itself urgently to request that the SFA be continued," he said.

Unless another strike emergency intervenes, the SFA will suspend operations next March 31—the expiration of John L. Lewis's current soft coal truce. The SFA's companion organization, the Coal Mines Administration, will quit June 30.

Estimates Output Loss

Wheeler estimated that a foremen's strike from September 21 to October 17, 1945, resulted in a production loss of 15,000,000 tons, and that the strike of last April and May cost 80,000,000 tons.

The November-December, 1946, strike—not included in the fiscal-year report — cost an estimated 25,000,000 tons, for a total loss of 120,000,000 tons, the equivalent of 60 days of production.

Wheeler said the 1945-46 strikes aggravated a desperate need for coal in Europe.

U.S. Jobs Denied 317 Communists

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—The United States Civil Service Commission reported today that 317 of 580 persons rated "ineligible on loyalty grounds" for Government jobs in 1944, 1945 and part of 1946 were either members of the Communist party or active followers of the Communist "party line."

The 263 other ineligibles were found to be pro-Fascist, pro-Nazi, pro-Japanese or "otherwise of questionable loyalty," the commission said in its sixty-third annual report to Congress.

Reporting on loyalty ineligibles, the commission said 355 persons were ruled out in 1944, 144 more in 1945, and 81 in 1946.

40 NOMINATIONS SENT TO SENATE

Sayre, Harriman, Gardner Among Those Submitted

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—More than twoscore nominations for a variety of Government jobs, including several of Cabinet and Ambassador level, today were sent to the Senate for confirmation.

Many of the nominees already have assumed their posts as recess appointees, subject to final action by the Senate.

In general, all will get routine treatment—committee consideration with opposition in some cases, and a final vote when the Senate gets around to it.

Sayre Named For U.N. Post

Close to the top of the list was the name of Francis B. Sayre, of Washington, nominated for United States representative on the United Nations Trusteeship Council. Sayre, a veteran diplomatic adviser, recently has been with the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

W. Averell Harriman was proposed for Secretary of Commerce to succeed Henry A. Wallace.

Nominated for ambassadorships were:

O. Max Gardner, former North Carolina Governor and Under Secretary of the Treasury, to London.

Warren R. Austin, former Republican Senator from Vermont, to the United Nations Security Council (with ambassadorial rank).

S. Pinckney Tuck, of New York, to Egypt.

George Wadsworth, of New York, to Iraq.

Ministerial Appointments

Ministerial appointments included:

J. Reeves Childs, of Virginia, to Saudi Arabia and the Kingdom of Yemen.

Lowell C. Pinkerton, of Missouri, to Lebanon.

A. L. M. Wiggins, of Hartsville, S.C., was nominated to succeed Gardner as Treasury Under Secretary. William Chapman Foster, of New York, was nominated for a comparable post in the Commerce Department.

At the assistant secretary level were these nominations: Willard L. Thorp, of Connecticut, State Department, and John Nicholas Brown, of Rhode Island, Navy (for Air).

Douglas W. McGregor, of Texas, was proposed as assistant to the Attorney General.

Other Nominations

Other nominations included:

Carroll Miller, of Pennsylvania, for reappointment to the Interstate Commerce Commission for a new term expiring December 31, 1953.

Richard F. Mitchell, of Iowa, to the ICC to serve out the remainder of the term of Claude R. Porter, which expires December 3, 1949.

Gordon R. Clapp as chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, succeeding David E. Lilienthal, who now is chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Frank Creedon, Housing expediter, and Raymond M. Foley, national housing administrator.

Myer Nominated

Dillon S. Myer, of Ohio, administrator of the United States Housing Authority.

John D. Goodloe, of Kentucky, George E. Allen's successor as a member of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation board of directors.

Vice Admiral Earle W. Mills to be chief of the Bureau of Ships for a four-year term.

Rear Admiral Paul Lee to be chief of naval research for a term of three years.

Rear Admiral Clifford Swanson to be surgeon general and chief of the Navy's Bureau of Medicine and Surgery for a term of four years.

Isadore Lubin, of Washington, United States member of the Economic and Employment Commission of the United Nations Economic and Social Council.

Mrs. Roosevelt Named

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, member of the Human Rights Commission of the United Nations Economic and Social Council, a four-year term.

Edward F. Bartelt, of Illinois, member of the United Nations Economic and Social Council's fiscal commission, two years.

Philip M. Hauser, of Illinois, member of the United Nations Economic and Social Council's Population Commission, two years.

Stuart A. Rice, of Virginia, member of the United Nations Economic and Social Council's statistical commission, two years.

Miss Kenyon Selected

Miss Dorothy Kenyon, of New York, member of the United Nations Economic and Social Council's Commission on Status of Women, three years.

Arthur J. Altmeyer, of Wisconsin, member of the United Nations Economic and Social Council's Social Commission, two years.

Clarence M. Young, of California, reappointed as a member of the Civil Aeronautics Board for a six-year term expiring December 31, 1952.

Dillard B. Lasseder, of Georgia, administrator of the Farmer's Home Administration.

Frances Perkins, former Secretary of Labor, to be a civil service commissioner.

Baker Nominated

George P. Baker, of Massachusetts, member of the United Nations Economic and Social Council's Transport and Communications Commission, four years.

Mark Foster Etheridge, to be United States representative on the investigation commission established by the United Nations Security Council to inquire into alleged border violations along the frontiers of Greece and Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia.

Congress Gets PeaceDraft Bill For Boys 18-20

Universal Training Plan Calls for Year Service, Senate Opinion Divided

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 (AP).—The New Congress today received its first bill to establish universal training, a system advocated by President Truman.

The legislation requiring a year's training for every boy was introduced by Representative Overton Brooks, Democrat, of Louisiana, who sponsored a similar bill last year.

Each boy would be eligible upon his eighteenth birthday or upon graduation from high school, whichever was later. In any event, he would be required to start training before he was twenty.

After four months' basic training, a youth would be given the opportunity to complete his service in several ways including a three-year enlistment in the national guard or organized reserve.

Opinion Is Divided

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 (AP).—The new Republican chairman of the Senate Armed Forces Committee today called military training a "must" for national defense.

Senator Chan Gurney, Republican, of South Dakota, who has just assumed leadership of the naval-military group, told a reporter he hadn't decided on the details of a training program for American youth. "But we must have one," he said.

Senator George Wilson, Republican, of Iowa, who will be a member of the Gurney committee, said he was against military training because "I am against peace-time conscription." Senator Wilson said he may re-introduce a bill to authorize army-operated summer camps at which youths may take military training voluntarily.

Court-Martial Bill Filed In House

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—A House Military group today introduced a bill to overhaul the Army's court-martial system.

Written as the result of a long investigation by a subcommittee headed by Representative Durham (D., N.C.), the legislation is designed to give enlisted personnel the "break" which the Durham committee said GI's need. It would:

1. Enlarge the Judge Advocate General's office and give it more authority.

2. Open court-martial proceedings to the public and to military personnel.

3. Permit enlisted men to serve on military courts in cases involving enlisted personnel.

4. Remove the present mandatory death sentence for rape and permit courts to use their discretion in fixing the punishment.

Would Overcome Criticism

Committee members said the changes would overcome the major criticisms leveled by the Durham group in an earlier report.

That document, approved by the now merged military committee, charged that court-martial proceedings often were used to enforce discipline rather than justice and frequently resulted in more severe punishment for enlisted men than for officers.

The new Armed Services Committee is expected to hold early hearings on the measure.

U.S. Drafts New Protest Against Polish Election

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—The United States today planned a vigorous new protest to Poland in an effort to win greater freedom for the Polish Peasant party in the January 19 election campaign.

Officials expressed a hope that the Soviet Union will heed an American appeal to join with the United States and Britain in demanding an end to political intimidation by the Polish Government, but there was not much optimism that the hope will be realized.

Secretary of State Byrnes made public late yesterday the text of identical notes, delivered to the British and Soviet governments Sunday, urging "the most energetic efforts" to see that the Polish Government makes the January 19 balloting "free and unfettered" in accordance with the Yalta and Potsdam agreements.

British Backing Seen

London reports said British agreement will be forthcoming promptly.

The big question, diplomatic authorities agreed, is whether Russia will agree to intervene. Prevailing opinion is that unless the Soviet Union, with its close ties with the Warsaw Government, will join in, there is no prospect of any improvement in conditions.

The note declared that "authoritative reports" from inside Poland bear out charges by Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk that the Polish Government has employed a variety of "reprehensible methods in denying freedom of political action to the Polish Peasant party."

Refused To Join Bloc

Mikolajczyk is leader of the group which refused to join with a bloc of Government parties in presenting a single coalition ticket in which Poles would have no choice but to elect the bloc.

The situation is complicated by the fact that officials here believe the Peasant party could win a majority in a free, secret election.

Methods used by the Government against the Peasant party were described in the note as including "political arrests and murders," dismissal of Polish Peasant party members from their jobs, searches of homes and other repression and terrorism.

Soviet Denial Reported

MOSCOW, Jan. 8 (AP)—An informed source said today that the Soviet Union in reply to a United States statement to Russia and Britain on Polish elections, had informed the United States that it knew of no irregularity in preparations for the balloting unless it was on the part of Right-Wing terrorist groups.

COURAGE URGED IN U.S. LENDING

Harriman Would Help Other Nations Buy In America

Detroit, Jan. 8 (AP)—W. Averell Harriman, Secretary of Commerce, tonight advocated "a courageous lending policy" to help other countries "to buy American products, to get their feet on the ground and to promote their long-range development."

At the same time, he told the Society of Automotive Engineers that "unless we encourage and expand our use of goods and services of other countries, our whole foreign economic program will collapse."

Discussing "free enterprise and the future," Harriman said that "here, as abroad, there is an increased desire for security. Clearly, we are unwilling to make the choice which is now being made in Europe; that is, to trade opportunity for security. I feel that it is of the utmost significance that the American people, in the demand for security, have no intention of giving up their system of free enterprise. . . .

Want Opportunity, Security

"We want both opportunity and security, and believe that both can be attained."

The attainment of stability with free enterprise, the Commerce Secretary declared, "will have great influence on the course of events in other countries."

A postwar fear that the United States might return to political isolationism, he added, "has been relieved as a result of our strong support of the United Nations and of the principles of its Charter."

This fear, he continued, gave way later to concern that "we would go through periods of 'booms and busts.'"

Can Reduce Business Swings

Declaring that "we can do much to reduce the marked swings in business activity which have characterized our history," Harriman added:

"We can in any event give security to the individual against personal economic catastrophe. Our social security programs should be expanded and be made more generally and fairly effective."

He described the automobile industry as one of the greatest export industries. "Markets for American automobiles abroad depend only upon the ability of other countries to buy," he said. "I hope, therefore, that the automobile industry will give special consideration and support to Government policies to further sound import programs. . . .

Favors Private Investment

"American capital has in the past invested abroad to develop sources of raw materials which we require. Government should encourage private investment abroad for these purposes. . . .

"Our international policies designed to secure peace can be successful only if they are based on sound and farsighted foreign economic policies. A prosperous world is the best insurance of a peaceful world. With the great power of the American economy, we have a unique opportunity in history, in our own enlightened self-interest to help other nations help themselves."

DE GASPERI HAPPY AT FRUITS OF VISIT

Washington, Jan. 8 (A. P.).—Italian Premier Alcide De Gasperi said today that he had achieved the principal aim of his visit to the United States—"restoration of confidence and active co-operation between our two countries." He told a news conference that "demonstrations here show amply that this has been accomplished. I found the best spirit and good will from every official, from President Truman to the lowest functionary."

De Gasperi termed the resignation of Secretary of State Byrnes "a great surprise," adding that Byrnes had made "and is now making efforts to help Italy."

Discussing the prospects of a United States loan to Italy, he classed as "imagination reports that his country is seeking as much as $1,000,000,000. He mentioned no specific figure, but the Italian Ambassador, Alberto Tarchiani who was present said $100,000,000 "would be very nice."

De Gasperi Given $50,000,000 Check

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—John W. Snyder, Secretary of the Treasury, handed a check for $50,000,000 to Alcide de Gasperi, Italian Premier, today and expressed hope it will help Italy rebuild her war-shattered economy.

The money was in payment for services, supplies and facilities bought by American armed forces in Italy with lira advanced by the Italian Government. It brought to $255,000,000 the amount turned over to Italy on that account.

De Gasperi accepted the check with the statement that he regarded it as "additional evidence of the friendship of the American people to my country."

FOOD SITUATION IN AUSTRIA ACUTE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 — (AP) UNRRA Director General Lowell W. Rooks said today that the food situation in Austria, is "extreme critical" and that Italy, Greece, Albania, Poland and Yugoslavia will also need help to avoid hunger during 1947.

Despite the gloomy outlook for these nations, Rooks expressed hope that UNRRA can wind up its relief program in Europe by June 30 and in China by fall.

Rooks said maintenance of the "meager" level of 1,550 calories daily for Austrians "depends upon a higher level of imports during the remaining months prior to the 1947 harvest."

Koreans Resent U. N. Ban

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8 (AP).—The people of Korea resent their exclusion from the United Nations, Dr. Han So Jeai, a Korean woman physician, said today. Dr. Han, who came here to study the Girl Scout movement, said Korean women in particular feel bady because they are seldom invited to international conferences.

Truman Signs Philippine Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 (AP).—President Truman today signed an executive order establishing a Philippine Alien Property Administration. The order calls for the appointment by the President of a Philippine Alien Property Administrator who will take over from the Alien Property Custodian the administration and disposition of enemy property (chiefly Japanese) in the Philippine Islands.

Ecuadorian Praises Argentina

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 (AP).—Jose Vicente Trujillo, Foreign Minister of Ecuador, said today that his country believes Argentina "step by step is complying with her international agreements" and is not "a danger to the peace of the world." Here on a visit, Mr. Trujillo told a news conference that if political differences between Argentina and the United States are not immediately resolved the problem should be handled by the Pan-American Union. Relations between the United States and Argentina, he said, "are a hemisphere and a continental problem."

1,000,000 HOUSES TO GO UP IN 1947

Commerce Official Expects Big Rise in Projected Number of Permanent Units

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 (AP)—The Commerce Department estimated today that 1,000,000 new permanent dwelling units will be started during 1947 and that about 900,000 units will be completed by private builders during the year. Last year 675,000 units were started and about 450,000 completed.

Prospects for meeting the nation's construction industry goal of $15,000,000,000, 50 per cent higher than last year, were called favorable by the department in a statement from John L. Haynes, chief of the construction division.

Mr. Haynes estimated that another $6,500,000,000 to $7,000,000,000 will be spent in repair and maintenance.

He said the estimates were based "on the assumption that increases in the cost of construction will be moderate in 1947, and that any increases in the materials price index and labor rates will be, in part at least, offset by the increased volume of building materials."

It was also assumed, he said, "that present remaining controls on non-residential construction will be eased and that there will be no general business recession in 1947 severe enough to impede construction."

By far the largest amount spent in any one class of construction will be $6,000,000,000 for private residential structures, exclusive of farm homes, Mr. Haynes predicted.

Private construction of all types, he added, will make up the bulk of the year's new construction spending and amount to $11,700,000,000, or 49 per cent more than last year. Public construction was forecast as $3,400,000,000, an increase of 50 per cent over last year.

Rent Ceilings Removed on Transient Rooms in Hotels

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 — (AP) The government today ordered the removal of rent ceilings on transient rooms in hotels, motor courts and tourist homes, effective Feb. 15.

The hotel industry promised immediately that the action will bring no "across the board" rate increases.

Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, head of the agency, said controls will be continued on non-transient rooms rented to weekly or monthly guests "under the present quota provisions of the rent regulations."

M. O. Ryan, Washington representative of the American Hotel Association, estimated there are 1,500,000 hotel rooms in the country. Of these, he said, 100,000 are in residential hotels, and "nearly every transient hotel has some permanent guest rooms."

Fleming said decontrol of transient rooms in individual hotels and motor courts will go into effect on or after Feb. 15 "as each establishment applies for decontrol and supplies the Office of Price Administration with a list of its permanent rooms identified by room number or by location."

Ryan issued a statement quoting executives of the hotel association as saying that decontrol of transient rooms "will result in hotel operators adjusting guest room rates in direct relation to increased operating costs, rather than making across the board rent increases."

J. E. Frawley, association board chairman and managing director of the Fort Shelby Hotel, Detroit, Mich., said in the statement that "despite the increased cost of doing business 'career' hotel men will maintain present minimum rates and make most of their adjustments in higher priced or luxury accommodations."

Glenwood J. Sherrard, president of the Parker House, Boston, defined a "career" hotel man as one who is in the business "to stay."

Fleming emphasized that no daily rates in hotels or motor courts will be decontrolled before Feb. 15 and that on that date the decontrol will be effective only where landlords have listed the specific rooms that from then on may be rented "for present weekly or monthly rates." He added:

"It is as important to keep control on these permanent rooms as it is to continue our rent ceilings on apartments."

He added that these controls must continue "to protect the thousands of working couples, students, many of them veterans, and other persons of modest means who live in these accommodations. If these rooms were decontrolled and rents rose, the needs of these people would add to the already critically overcrowded housing situation," he said.

OPA said rooming houses are not affected by the decontrol order. The order also does not affect Washington, D.C., where rents are controlled by special statute, the agency added.

An OPA official said the order does provide, however, for decontrol of transient rooms in tourist homes as well as in hotels and motor courts, outside the capital.

The decontrol order follows completion last Dec. 31 of registration by 554,000 landlords controlling about 4,000,000 rooms in hotel, rooming and boarding houses, tourist homes, motor courts, auto and trailer camps. The landlords were required to register their facilities either as transient hotel, residential hotel, rooming house or motor court. This division was ordered by congress when it extended the life of OPA to next June 30.

Fleming said the hotel industry had worked out with OPA the method of decontrolling daily rates and keeping ceilings on permanent rooms, adding:

"Rent ceilings on the transient rooms were very important during the war and the demobilization period where there was necessity for much travel by military personnel, those on vital war business and families of servicemen visiting them in army camps and hospitals. Now that this type of travel has virtually ended, it is possible to take transient rates out from under control. This action is in line with our desire to end wartime controls as speedily as possible wherever it is feasible to do so."

Atomic Age Abloom Seen By 2,000 A.D.

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 8 (AP)—Dr. Gerald Wendt, editorial director of Science Illustrated, says the atomic age will blossom about the year 2,000 A.D.

Addressing the United States Brewers Foundation here yesterday, Dr. Wendt said it would take 10 to 25 years to control atomic power, more years to develop it, and that possibly cheap power from this cource would be developed about 60 to 75 years from now.

Dr. Wendt said the material that produces atomic power now costs $100,000 an ounce and that a cheaper source than uranium may be forthcoming, possibly from the processing of sea salts.

He said an atomic war would last only a few days or weeks and would be started only by a dictator. "The problem of civilization is to get rid of dictators," he said.

Truman Makes Appeal For Red Cross Support

Specifically Asks Government Workers to Aid Drive

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 (AP)—President Truman today called for support of the American Red Cross in its annual drive for funds.

Addressing his appeal specifically to government workers, Mr. Truman said in a statement that when disasters threaten "we look to the American Red Cross for prompt and effective emergency help."

Activities of the organization have been turned from the demands of war, he said, to "binding up the wounds of war."

"Large numbers of men will still be in uniform," he added. "There are millions of veterans to whom the Red Cross has an obligation."

LONDON, JAN. 8-(AP)-A REVOLUTIONARY PLANNING BILL, WHICH WOULD DELEGATE CONTROL OF ALL FUTURE REAL ESTATE DEVELOPMENT IN BRITAIN TO STATE-APPOINTED PLANNING AUTHORITIES, IS EXPECTED TO BE APPROVED IN PRINCIPLE IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS BEFORE THE END OF THE MONTH.

THE MEASURE WILL SUPPLANT A NUMBER OF TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING ACTS WHICH DATE BACK TO 1907, BUT WILL NOT AFFECT A NEW TOWNS BILL UNDER WHICH THE GOVERNMENT HOPES TO RELIEVE CONGESTION BY BUILDING A WHOLE SERIES OF SMALL CITIES OF 50,000 TP 60,000 PEOPLE A FEW MILES OUTSIDE MAJOR METROPOLITAN AREAS SUCH AS LONDON, MANCHESTER AND BIRMINGHAM.

THE GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCED THE MEASURE LAST NIGHT IN A WHITE PAPER WHICH SAID THAT "ANY RESULTING INCREASE IN LAND VALUE IS TO BE COLLECTED IN WHOLE OR IN PART BY THE STATE, IN THE FORM OF A DEVELOPMENT CHANGE, WHICH MUST BE PAID OR SECURED BEFORE THE DEVELOPMENT IS CARRIED OUT.

INCREASE IN LAND VALUE WHICH ACCRUES WITHOUT DEVELOPMENT WOULD BE LEFT WITH THE OWNER.

LEWIS SILKIN, MINISTER OF TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, DISCUSSING THE BILL AT A NEWS CONFERENCE, SAID "THERE IS NO REASON WHY A PERSON SHOULD BUY LAND AND MAKE A PROFIT ON THE LAND ITSELF."

SILKIN POINTED OUT, HOWEVER, THAT CENTRAL LAND BOARDS ESTABLISHED UNDER THE BILL WOULD NOT "NECESSARILY TAKE THE WHOLE PROFIT" RESULTING FROM DEVELOPMENT.

THE BILL WOULD SET UP A FUND OF $1,200,000,000 FOR PAYMENTS IN NEGOTIABLE GOVERNMENT STOCK TO COVER POSSIBLE COMPENSATION OF LANDOWNERS WHO CLAIM THEY HAVE LOST "DEVELOPMENT VALUE."

BATAVIA, JAVA, JAN. 8-(AP)-DUTCH AND INDONESIAN LEADERS ACCUSED EACH OTHER TODAY OF RESPONSIBILITY FOR NEW FIGHTING IN THE EAST INDIES, AND SOURCES REPRESENTING BOTH SIDES AGREED THAT THE CURRENT SITUATION WAS "EXPLOSIVE."

THESE SOURCES SAID THAT RELATIONS BETWEEN THE DUTCH AND INDONESIANS APPEARED TO BE AT THE LOWEST EBB IN MONTHS.

THE INDONESIAN ACCUSATIONS WERE LEVELED AT A MASS MEETING AT THE REPUBLICAN CAPITAL OF JOGJAKARTA IN PROTEST AGAINST FIGHTING ON SUMATRA. SPEAKERS WARNED THAT THE REPUBLIC WOULD STRIKE WITH ALL ITS FORCES UNLESS THE DUTCH HALTED THEIR "AGGRESSION."

"WE STILL WANT TO FOLLOW THE ROAD OF PEACE, BUT DUTCH MILITARISTS ARE SABOTAGING THE POLICY OF THEIR OWN GOVERNMENT," SAID MOHAMMED HATTA, REPUBLICAN VICE PRESIDENT. "WE ARE STRONG ENOUGH TO THROW THEM INTO THE SEA," HE ADDED.

GEN. SOEDIRMAN, COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE REPUBLICAN ARMY, SAID "WE ARE NOW STRONG ENOUGH TO MEET FORCE WITH FORCE. WE CANNOT ANSWER THE SHAMELESS DUTCH ACTIONS WITH WRITTEN PROTESTS ALONE."

THE NETHERLAND EAST INDIES GOVERNMENT, IN A STRONGLY WORDED STATEMENT, DENIED RESPONSIBILITY FOR DETERIORATION OF RELATIONS, AND SAID THAT "MEASURES FOUND NECESSARY IN THE LAST THREE WEEKS WERE ALL DUE TO THE INCREASING MENACE OF AGGRESSION WHICH BECAME MORE APPARENT" AFTER A SPEECH DEC. 26 BY SOED IRMAN.

THE DUTCH SAY THAT THIS SPEECH TOUCHED OFF THE FIGHTING ON SUMATRA.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE NETHERLANDS ARMY SAID THAT A LARGE SCALE CLEARING ACTION MONDAY BY DUTCH TROOPS HAD ROUTED INDONESIANS CONCENTRATED AROUND MEDAN, SUMATRA, AND THAT THE NATIVES WERE FLEEING INTO THE INTERIOR IN DISORDER.

"THEY (THE COPENHAGEN FAO CONFEREES) AIM TO STABILIZE PRICES IN THE INTERNATIONAL MARKET BY BUILDING UP RESERVES AND TAKING SURPLUSES OFF THE MARKET IF THE PRICES FALL BELOW A CERTAIN LEVEL. ATOMIC CONTROL MUST COME FIRST, U. S. TELLS RUSSIA

HARRY HAUSER

Stands Firm in Face of Red Charge of Stalling on Arms Reduction.

DEBATE IS HEATED

Control of Atomic Energy Is Key to Whole Program, Johnson Declares.

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Jan. 9 —(AP) In the face of Russian charges that the United States was stalling on the whole question of arms reduction, the American delegation to the United Nations stood firm tonight on a demand that control of atomic energy must come first.

"Effective international control of atomic energy is the key to the whole program and must come first," Herschel V. Johnson, U. S. delegate, told the Security Council emphatically at the outset of full-scale debate on the basic arms proposal laid down in December by the General Assembly.

Gromyko Accuses U.S.

Johnson took the floor after Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko, recently named a deputy foreign minister, bluntly accused the United States of seeking to delay measures for general regulation and cutting of arms and armed forces. Gromyko said the American delegation had adopted a take-it-or-leave-it attitude.

The Soviet delegate declared that the United States position boiled down to this:

"Either you agree to the American proposals on control of atomic energy and then we agree to the proposals on working out practical measures on the general reduction of armaments and armed forces, or—if everything does not go smoothly with the American proposals on control of atomic energy, then we refuse in general to occupy ourselves with the working out of measures for general reduction of armaments and armed forces."

Gromyko's speech was considered especially significant in that Russia, along with Poland, abstained in the final 10 to 0 vote for the basic Baruch control plan in the Atomic Energy Commission.

"It would be difficult to achieve control without first having atomic control," Johnson declared. "In our view the field of atomic energy is the test case.

"We believe the council should assure substantial progress in the atomic field before taking up control and regulation of conventional arms, which is of subsidiary importance."

Delay Charge Denied

Johnson denied any attempt at delay and said his country was ready to agree to an arms regulation program provided the atomic issue was given priority.

Alexandre Parodi of France agreed there was a danger that atomic control might be immersed in the general disarmament question, but supported a Russian request that the council should immediately set up a commission to implement the assembly's basic arms slashing resolution. However, Parodi said Gromyko's suggested time limit of 90 days on the commission's work was too short.

The council thus bogged down in debate, merely endorsing the assembly's recommendations, after Chairman Norman J. O. Makin of Australia had opened the meeting with an appeal for harmony and speed.

"This is not the time for conflict," he said. "It is not a moment for lining up on one side or the other or for attempting to force through our own favorite ideas at the expense of the ideas of other members of the United Nations."

As the council adjourned at 6:09 p.m. (EST) it already had three offshoots of the basic program before it: The American request for atomic priority, the Russian demand for a "90-day" commission, and a French compromise embodying parts of the Soviet and American proposals.

The council will go back into session tomorrow to vote on the question of Trieste, the territory which the Council of Foreign Ministers has asked the council to administer under the Italian peace treaty. Only Australia directly opposed the agreement when debate began Tuesday.

U.N. Arms Plan Goes Before Council

1947

Lake Success, N.Y., Jan. 9 (AP)—The United Nations basic arms-reduction program goes before the Security Council today with delegates hoping for a minimum of preliminary procedural debate on the far-reaching problem.

As the Council was called into session there were two potential roadblocks to speedy opening of the substance of the question.

The Soviet Government has demanded that the Council set up a commission to implement the arms-slashing program laid down by the General Assembly within 90 days, and the United States has countered with an appeal that control of atomic energy be given priority.

Systematic Discussion

Some delegations were said to feel that the proper procedure would be to pass over both motions and begin a systematic discussion of the Assembly resolution. These countries were represented as believing such action would move the Council logically to the core of the problem and allow it to make decisions as consideration progressed.

The United States was reported ready to drop its demand if Russia would follow suit, the American position generally being only one of insistence that atomic energy not be by-passed. There was no indication of what attitude Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko would take.

Covers Both Programs

In effect the basic Assembly resolution covers both the Russian and American motions in that it calls for "prompt consideration to formulating measures" to implement the arms cutting and stresses "early establishment of international control of atomic energy."

While the resignation of Secretary of State James F. Byrnes was still a prominent topic in off-the-floor discussions, the development was expected to have no effect on the early stages, at least, of the arms debate.

Byrnes himself indorsed the basic plan before the Assembly and American Delegate Herschel V. Johnson was assigned to speak for his country in the Council.

Austin In D.C.

Warren R. Austin, head of the United States delegation, remained in Washington for further conferences, but it was understood that he would replace Johnson in later meetings.

No one would venture an estimate on how long the arms-debate would go on. At its conclusion, plans drafted by the Council will be put before a special session of the General Assembly. Treaties or conventions approved by that body then will go to the 55 member governments for ratification.

Wyatt To Confer About Post With U.N.

Lake Success, N.Y., Jan. 9 (AP)—Wilson Wyatt, former Federal Housing Administrator, will confer with Secretary General Trygve Lie of the United Nations today regarding possible appointment to Lie's staff, it was reported authoritatively.

An official close to Lie said Wyatt was under consideration for assignment to an administrative post. He added that no action had been taken yet on the hiring and that today's meeting was to be a preliminary conference of the two men.

Hutson Holds Post Now

This official said Wyatt was being considered for the job of assistant secretary general in charge of administrative affairs. That post is currently held by John B. Hutson and there have been persistent reports that he would resign.

There are eight assistant secretaries general, the others being nationals of Russia, Great Britain, China, France, Chile, Czechoslovakia and the Netherlands.

The job pays $12,000, plus expenses.

The United Nations official emphasized that no official announcement was being made of the conference and indicated there would be no report issued until and if Wyatt were hired.

Wyatt could not be reached for comment.

British Cabinet Postpones Action on Palestine Issue

German Peace Treaty Gets Priority Over Problems of Holy Land.

LONDON, Jan. 9—(AP) Authoritative sources said tonight the British cabinet had decided to give the problem of the German peace treaty priority over Palestine, amid rumors that the Holy land situation would be eased by a 60-day suspension of violence there.

A scheduled special cabinet meeting, which was to have taken up the Palestine matter, among others, was cancelled without explanation, but the informants said decisions taken after the two weeks' cabinet review of foreign policy concluded yesterday would "gradually become apparent."

Germany Comes First

These sources said the cabinet looked upon the German peace treaty as the toughest of Britain's international problems, in view of the forthcoming March meeting in Moscow of the Foreign Ministers Council.

Preparations went ahead, however, for resumption of the Palestine conference, expected to convene Jan. 21. There was no indication here that Jewish representatives would be present. But in Geneva, Louis Segal, member of the World Zionist organization, said the Zionist Congress might meet immediately if some promising proposal were made by Britain.

Such a proposal, he said, might suggest creation of a substantial Jewish state.

His statement was a new indication that the Zionists do not regard participation in the conference as altogether impossible, although the British attitude up to now has been that no concrete promises could be made to any of the parties in the negotiations until the talks were resumed. Both the Jews and Palestine's Arabs avoided the previous conference sessions.

Other Matters Held Up

Today's cabinet session had been expected to cover a wide range of subjects relating to foreign policy in general, including the problems of disarmament, the Anglo-Egyptian treaty and British demands upon Albania.

With regard to the negotiations for revision of the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian treaty, government sources said the cabinet had agreed to stand pat in a stand that the Sudan must be left free to decide its own future. The demand for its incorporation into Egypt has been a principal obstacle in the way of agreement. Informal talks are continuing in Cairo.

The cabinet also had decided to ask the United Nations Security Council to support British demands upon Albania for reparations for loss of life and damage to two destroyers which struck mines in Corfu Channel, for which Albania has disclaimed guilt.

However, Palestine has been the problem uppermost in the talks being held by Bevin, Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech Jones and Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, Palestine high commissioner.

Cunningham according to a report given wide credence here, has been given more power to deal with Palestine violence.

Britain Cancels Cabinet Talks On Palestine

London, Jan. 9 (AP)—A British Cabinet session on Palestine was canceled today and sources close to Prime Minister Attlee said decisions already taken about the Holy Land would "gradually become apparent."

The Cabinet has had international issues, including Palestine, under review for two weeks and was reported to have decided that peace with Germany was the most important problem to be faced.

The Cabinet was reported to have granted General Sir Alan Cunningham, High Commissioner for Palestine, wider powers to deal with violence, but there was no indication of any decision on partition or appeal to the United Nations for settlement.

Truce A Possible Reason

There was speculation in Government circles that rumors of a 60-day suspension of violence by underground groups in Palestine had allowed Attlee and his Labor Government colleagues to delay urgent decisions until after the Palestine conference which is to resume here January 21.

The problem of the German peace treaty, which the Foreign Ministers' Council will consider in Moscow in March, was expected to provide an acid test of Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's statesmanship.

Predicts Tests Of Patience

Frank King, diplomatic correspondent of the British Press Association, said German reparations, and the future German status in Europe's economy, the future government of the Reich and its relations with eastern and western Europe "are certain to be high tests of patience."

The Cabinet is reported to have adhered to its earlier decision that a new Anglo-Egyptian treaty must leave the Sudan free to help decide its own future and not to be incorporated into Egypt, as the Egyptians demand.

Albanian Matters

In the case of Albania, the Cabinet was believed to have decided to be ready to lay before the United Nations Security Council its demands for reparations for the loss of life and damage to two destroyers which struck mines off the Albanian coast.

Palestine has been uppermost in conversations between Bevin, Cunningham and Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech Jones during the last two weeks.

Government sources in London said earlier that Bevin and Creech Jones would recommend a partition of Palestine to the Cabinet, as the only hope of peace.

Two Plans Described

Two such partition plans already have been circulated. One, by Nahum Goldman, a prominent Zionist, would give the Jews about 30 per cent of Palestine. The other, by Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison, outlined a federalization scheme, dividing Palestine into four districts under British tutelage.

The Goldman plan at one time was reported to have the backing of President Truman.

A Home Office official reiterated last night that Prof. Johan J. Smertenko, of Woodbury, Conn., vice president of the American League for a Free Palestine, would be barred if he attempted re-entry into Britain.

Smertenko, in Geneva, Switzerland, on his way to London, said the action was based on something he was supposed to have said on a previous visit in Britain concerning sabotage in England to support Jewish immigration to Palestine.

Smertenko is due here tomorrow.

[Paris reported this morning that Smertenko, vice president of the American Committee for a Free Palestine, had arrived there en route from Rome to England. He said he would stay in Paris a few days.]

30 JEWS FREED IN PALESTINE

Had Been Held In Probe Of Clash With Arabs

Jerusalem, Jan. 9 (AP)—Police said tonight that they had released 30 Jews arrested in a predawn investigation of a clash between Jews and Arabs in the Arab town of Tubas in which three Jews and two Arabs were injured.

An official source said the clash occurred when a "series of insults" passed between the groups.

Meanwhile, Palestine remained quiet, with no new moves against the British by Irgun Zvai Leumi or the Stern gang, the two Jewish underground organizations involved in the recent wave of floggings and attacks on British troops.

60-Day Truce Reported

Unconfirmed reports have circulated in Palestine that Haganah, largest of the Jewish underground organizations, had succeeded in obtaining from Irgun and the Stern gang a promise for a 60-day truce pending diplomatic efforts for a peaceful solution of the Palestine problem.

Mrs. Golda Myerson, political chief for the Jewish Agency in Palestine, said today it "probably would not be difficult to get Arabs to agree to a Jewish state in all Palestine if the British Government would firmly resolve that that be the decision."

Would Have Full Equality

She said that "once the Jews are able to talk with equal rights of statehood, then it would not be difficult to get Arabs to agree to a Jewish state. Arabs in a Jewish state would have full equality."

She said that while the Zionists had voted against going to the Palestine conference in London beginning January 21 unless the British guarantee that a Jewish state will be discussed, "we are perfectly willing to conduct direct, informal talks with any or all British leaders."

From the Arab side came an announcement from Emil Khouri, member of the Palestine Arab Executive, that it was completing plans for the merger of the two Arab armies, Nejada and Futuwah.

30 Jews Arrested In Clash With Arabs

Jerusalem, Jan. 9 (AP)—Police announced the arrest of 30 Jews from a communal settlement near Beisan before dawn today "as a result of last night's incident at the Arab town of Tubas," where two Arabs and three Jews were hurt in a clash.

There still were no complete details of the affair, but police flatly denied earlier reports that Jews had raided the town and also withdrew an earlier statement that one Arab had been killed during a fight in which sticks, stones and knives were used as weapons.

In Jerusalem, the opinion was that the clash resulted from a dispute over the ownership of land or some similar domestic issue. Beisan is north of Tubas, near the River Jordan.

Says Arabs Might Agree

Mrs. Golda Myerson, Jerusalem political chief for the Jewish Agency, told a news conference today that it "probably would not be difficult to get Arabs to agree to a Jewish state in all Palestine if the British Government would firmly resolve that that be the decision."

She said Zionist demands, as adopted by the Basel conference recently, were that Jews would not go to London for the coming conference on Palestine's future "unless the British make at least a token step, such as guaranteeing that the conference will talk of the Jewish state. In the meantime, however, we are perfectly willing to conduct direct, informal talks with any or all British leaders."

She said Arabs would have "full equality" in the Jewish state.

Segal Hints at Offer.

Geneva, Jan. 9 (A. P.).—Louis Segal, member of the General Council of the World Zionist Organization, said today that the World Zionist Congress would probably reconvene immediately "should any definite well-meaning proposal for the permanent solution of the Palestine problem" be advanced by Great Britain. Segal, general secretary of the Jewish National Workers Alliance of America, stopped off here en route from Rome to New York.

His idea of a well-meaning proposal, he added, was the establishment of a viable Jewish State in a fair part of Palestine, wherein full Jewish independence would be guaranteed. A fair part of Palestine, he said, would be about 40 per cent plus the Negeb.

Brockway to Join Labor Party

LONDON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Fenner Brockway, for thirty-five years one of the guiding lights of the Independent Labor party, announced today his withdrawal from the party. In a statement he said "Capitalism is a dying cause, and all over the world imperialism is on the retreat." He has applied for membership in the Labor party.

FRENCH SAY SIEGE OF HANOI IS LIFTED

Indo-Chinese Leader Reported Offering Cease-Fire Terms —Ho's Control Doubted

PARIS, Jan. 9 (AP)—Dispatches from Hanoi said tonight that the three-weeks' siege of the capital of Indo-China by an estimated 10,000 Viet Nam Nationalists had been lifted by French military successes of the past few days.

Meanwhile, a delayed dispatch received from Bangkok said that the Viet Nam President, Ho Chi Minh, had broadcast a message to the French people and Parliament giving the conditions under which the Viet Namese were ready to cease fighting in Indo-China.

Government circles in Paris, however, were awaiting an official report from the Minister of France Overseas, Marius Moutet, who was scheduled to return Sunday from a tour of the troubled colony. M. Moutet has indicated that he does not believe M. Ho is in full control of the rebellious natives.

A French General Staff communiqué said that communications had been re-established with Haiphong on the seacoast and were being reopened with various inland communities.

Food Scarcity Is Easing

Food supplies in Hanoi, which were becoming critically low, now can be restored, the communiqué said.

The Haiphong-Hanoi highway was cleared yesterday by the junction of a column of French troops moving inland from Haiphong with another column that had pushed out from Hanoi. Small mopping-up operations were being conducted in Hanoi.

East of the capital, French motorized units supported by planes drove Viet Nam forces ahead of them in a rapid advance, the communiqué said. The Viet Namese were reported applying a scorched earth policy there.

At Nam Dinh, fifty miles southeast of Hanoi, French parachutists and members of the original French garrison there still were isolated, but French General Staff officers said the situation was considered "entirely satisfactory." The parachutists were dropped several days ago in a move to save the besieged garrison.

The Bangkok dispatch said that the terms offered by M. Ho included a return to the status quo existing prior to the recent outbreak and resumption of conferences aimed at reaching a solution to Viet Nam demands for independence.

OIL PROTEST SENT BY FRANCE TO U. S.

Paris, Jan. 9 (A. P.). — The French Government has protested to Washington and London against the absorption of French oil interests in the Middle East, and demands that the Anglo-French - American petroleum agreement of 1928 be put back into effect, a Government spokesman said today.

Foreign Ministry officials said British and American companies had taken over French properties during the war under a British trading with the enemy act, and naw refuse to return them.

A British combine, the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, took over the French Petroleum's property in the northern part of the area, and an American group, including Standard Oil Company (N. J.) and Socony, took over in the South, the Government spokesman said.

He said France had not received any answer from its notes delivered by Ambassadors Henri Bonnet in Washington and Rene Massigli in London.

The American combine, he related, was expanded during the war to include Standard Oil of California and the Texas Company, and all four operate under the name of the Near East Development Corporation.

Prior to the first world war, the spokesman said. the area was shared by French and British interests and then expanded to permit American and Dutch companies to exploit the region's oil resources.

These firms agreed in 1928, he said, to an equal division of interests. Each group—the French Petroleum Company representing two French groups, the Anglo-Iranian Company, the American firms, and the Anglo-Saxon Oil Company, a subsidiary of Royal Dutch Shell—was given 23.75 per cent ownership.

The remaining 5 per cent went to a Turkish national named Gulbenkian on behalf of the original Turkish owners.

France now wants her 23.75 per cent interest returned.

FRENCH COMPLAINT OVER OIL REJECTED

Washington Views Middle East Pact As Private Affair

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP) — The United States has rejected a French complaint over a recent agreement in the Middle East that involved two major American oil companies.

This was disclosed today by a State Department spokesman. He said the United States regarded the matter as a private affair between companies and not an intergovernmental problem.

Henri Bonnet, French Ambassador, saw William L. Clayton, Under Secretary of State, Monday to tell him of France's concern over the deal.

The "Red Line" Agreement

The basis of France's representations was that Standard Oil of New Jersey and Socony Vacuum Oil should not have been allowed to buy a reported 40 per cent of the rights to oil in Saudi Arabia.

These two American oil companies and companies belonging to French, British and Dutch interests had agreed not to exploit oil resources within the so-called "Red Line" independently of one another.

German Newsmen Going To Britain For Training

Berlin, Jan. 9 (AP)—The British are taking selected German journalists from their occupation area to England for short training courses.

Paul C. Smith, editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, has proposed that the Americans adopt a similar plan for sending German newspaper men to the United States to work for specified periods and observe the workings of a free press.

Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, deputy American military governor, indorsed Smith's suggestion but said that private arrangements must be made for financing the plan before it could be instituted.

Under the British program, which is financed by the London Government, approximately ten journalists are included in a group of 35 German professional people, including young political leaders, officials in consumers' co-operatives and trade unionists.

Aranda Now Exiled

Madrid, Jan. 9 (AP) — Gen. Antonio Aranda Mata, Spanish Monarchist leader who reputedly had sought to unseat Generalissimo Francisco Franco, has been ordered into exile for two months by the Franco Government, his associates said today.

According to his friends, the 59-year-old officer, known as an enemy of the Fascist Falange, was told to go to Palma, a town on Spain's Mediterranean island of Mallorca.

During the day Aranda alternately was accused and exonerated of anti-Franco intrigue in a military court where fourteen Leftist leaders were being tried on a charge of "military rebellion" against Franco two years ago.

Called Worthy General

An army captain prosecuting the case cleared Aranda of "any contact which might stain his record." He described Aranda as "one of the worthiest Spanish generals" and praised his record.

However, three of the defendants gave testimony linking Aranda with Leftists plotting to overthrow the Franco regime. Aranda himself had been sought by the defense as a witness. It was announced in court that "for reasons unknown" he would not appear.

Republicans outside Spain have mentioned Aranda as a possible governmental chief in the event of the removal of Franco.

Reported In Barcelona

There was no official announcement of Aranda's expulsion. Dispatches from Barcelona said he had arrived there by train. His friends said Aranda was scheduled to sail tonight from Barcelona for Mallorca, a traditional place of exile for Spanish political personages.

During the trial the prosecutor described the defendants as "Spain's war criminals."

Among the defendants were Regulo Martinez Sanchez, 49, alleged head of the "National Republican Committee for Spain," who said today he was still a Catholic priest; Siegfredo Catala, 39, president of the illegal Socialist party; Vicente Otero Lasso, representative of the Republican party's youth movement, and Carlos Ruano, 31, who was a major on the Spanish Republican Army's general staff in the civil war.

Identified Documents

Ruano identified as Aranda's a document which analyzed the Spanish political situation in October, 1944, and proposed that the Government be placed in the hands of a provisional Junta.

Aranda has challenged the document, but his denial was not admitted in evidence because he was not present to confirm it. He has admitted speaking with one of the defendants, but said he favored only a monarchy brought by Franco and could not listen to any proposal outside of strict obedience of law and maintenance of order.

Martinez testified that he held three conversations with Aranda when the former was released from jail in February, 1944.

Could Not Participate

Otero told the court that Martinez had informed Aranda that the Leftists could not participate with the Monarchists in a coup d'etat against Franco. A charge by Leftists that Monarchists were planning such a move was said only last month to have caused a rift in negotiations for Monarchist-Republican co-operation in the event of the downfall of the Franco regime.

Under questioning the defendants told how a man named Luis Alfaro came to Madrid with accreditation from exiled Republican leaders two years ago and opened an office on one of Madrid's central business streets which served as headquarters for alleged conspiracy against Franco. Later, they said, Alfaro betrayed the Leftists to the Madrid police.

Gen. Mata Exiled, Madrid Hears

Madrid, Jan. 9 (AP)—Intimates of Gen. Antonio Aranda Mata, prominent Spanish monarchist, said today he would sail tonight from Barcelona for Palma, Mallorca, and unofficial and unconfirmed reports said he had been exiled for two months.

The General's name figured recently in reports abroad concerning efforts to form a provisional Spanish Government in opposition to that of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Leftists On Trial

His departure from Madrid by train last night came on the eve of the opening of a trial of fourteen Leftist leaders charged with conspiracy against the Government two years ago, a case in which Aranda Mata reportedly was to have been a witness, although he had denied statements attributed to him.

The 59-year-old General, who was relieved of active duty in 1942, resigned recently as president of Casino, one of Madrid's oldest clubs, amid reports that he had taken the action under Government pressure.

Exile to Mallorca customarily has been the punishment for highly placed political personages in Spain for many years.

Italy Socialists Split on Policy Of Aiding Reds

Matteotti's Son Says Nenni Hurts Party by Favoring Deal With Communists

ROME, Jan. 9 (AP).—Matteo Matteotti, twenty-five-year-old firebrand son of Italy's Socialist martyr, threw the Socialist party's twenty-fifth national congress into an uproar tonight by challenging its power to ratify a policy of continued collaboration with the Communist party.

Following his challenge, Pietro Nenni, Acting Premier in the absence in America of Christian Democrat Alcide de Gasperi, offered to relinquish his leadership of the Socialist party if necessary to prevent a split between anti-Communists and advocates of continued collaboration. Nenni, the outstanding exponent of the policy of collaboration, pleaded that "schism tendencies" were against the interests of the working class in Italy.

Matteotti, whose father, Giacomo Matteotti, was assassinated in 1924 when Mussolini established the Fascist dictatorship, loosed pandemonium among the 600 delegates in the great hall of Rome University when he shouted that "the provincial congresses which prepared for this congress were irregular, and we have proof of it." Matteotti is titular leader of the "Socialist Initiative" group which is one of two factions favoring independent Socialist action.

A furious outcry followed his charge that Nenni had exceeded his mandate in lining up the party with the Communists and had acted irregularly in calling the congress to ratify such a policy. Matteotti stalked from the hall after his talk, when Nenni took the floor.

In an eleventh-hour switch in strategy, the Initiative group and the other anti-Communist bloc headed by Constituent Assembly Speaker Giuseppe Saragat, the "Socialist Critics," had abandoned plans to shun the congress and decided to carry their fight to the floor. Saragat himself, however, stayed away.

Matteotti's resolution charged that the Nenni leadership was responsible for the poor showing of the Socialists in the November municipal elections as contrasted with their success in the national balloting of June 2, when the party's 5,000,000 votes gave it second place to the Christian Democrats.

Nenni, pleading for unity, said that if it were a "question of personalities" he would step down in favor of some one agreeable to all. "If the congress thinks that the direction of the party has been at fault, that can be changed," he said. "But do not divide the party." Apparently withdrawing somewhat from the stand on "fusion" with the Communists, he said that subject could be taken up later.

Sicily Labor Protests Killing With One-Hour General Strike

Palermo, Sicily, Jan. 9 (AP)—All Sicily was paralyzed for an hour today in protest against the machine-gun slaying of Accursio Miraglia, bearded "millionaire Communist" labor union organizer, latest incident in a wave of violence engendered by the island's bitter class struggle over land reform.

The strike, carried out in an orderly manner, was called by the regional committee of the Italian General Labor Conference (CGIL) to dramatize "popular indignation" over the killing.

Miraglia, 50-year-old secretary of the Sciacca Chamber of Labor and a workers' representative on the "Uncultivated Land Tribunal," was the seventh agricultural labor organizer to meet violent death in this fierce struggle between Sicily's entrenched and semi-feudal landlords and the landless sharecroppers of the island.

Gangsters Employed

Officials of the Communist-directed Chamber of Labor claimed that Sicily's absentee owners of large estates were employing gangsters of the dread Mafia (Black Hand) organization and other "bandits" to terrorize workers' organization and stall Government-decreed land reform.

The strike—called as an hour-long token gesture—passed without incident. Factories and stores were closed for the hour. Streetcars were halted for a half-hour and railroads for ten minutes only, under the orders of the labor confvrence.

Miraglia, a colorful and popular figure, was killed by machinegun fire Saturday night in the south Sicilian coastal town of Sciacca, as he walked toward his home. The labor leader, reputed to have been the possessor of a private fortune made as a businessman, had been responsible as workers' representative for assigning untilled property to the landless.

Landowners Blame Brawls

Officials of the Chamber of Labor charged that Sicily's 1,000 absentee owners were making a last stand against the agrarian reform but a landowners spokesman countered with a charge that the violence grew out of drunken brawls and personal quarrels from which the Communists were making political capital.

The agrarian reform was instituted in Rome under Fausto Gullo, Communist Minister of Agriculture, in April, 1944. It ordered that uncultivated land be turned over to farmer co-operatives. The measure had been strongly opposed at the time by the landowners and the tenants who rent land from owners for purposes of subleasing to share-croppers.

The decree did not become fully effective in Sicily until its legality was confirmed by the first government of the Christian democrat, Premier Alcide de Gasperi, in April, 1946. The present Minister of Agriculture, Antonio Segni, since has added still more radical agrarian reform measures.

violence.

Seven Slain In Three Months

The victim was 50-year-old Accursio Miraglia, secretary of the Sciacca Chamber of Labor and workers' representative on its "Uncultivated Land Tribunal," which is charged with assigning untilled property to the landless. He was killed by several bursts of machine-gun fire as he walked home late Saturday night.

Miraglia was reputed to have accumulated a fortune as a local business man before he became a labor organizer. He was the seventh Sicilian in that field to die violently in the last three months. The Communists charge that all were victims "of assassins in the pay of feudalism."

Landowners' Reply

Officials of the Communist-directed Chamber of Labor say that Sicily's 1,000 absentee owners of large estates are employing gangsters and bandits to terrorize workers' organizations in a last stand against Agrarian revisions decreed by the central government at Rome.

Spokesmen for the landowners reply that most of the violence is the outgrowth of drunken brawls or personal quarrels and that Communists have chosen these seven deaths out of scores to use them for political capital.

The agrarian revisions, instituted by a Communist Minister of Agriculture, Fausto Gullo, in April, 1944, gave uncultivated land to farmers' co-operatives and changed the traditional half-and-half share-cropping contracts between landowner and peasant to 40 per cent for the owner and 60 for the worker.

Still More Radical Decree

Gullo's decree met opposition from both the estate owners and the gavelotti—tenants who rent land and subdivide it among peasants for cultivation. The decree did not become fully effective in Sicily until confirmed by the first Alcide de Gasperi Government, in April, 1946.

After the June 2 elections, which established the Italian Republic, a Christian Democratic Minister of Agriculture, Antonio Segni, introduced a still more radical agrarian decree.

The Segni law gave farmers co-operatives the right to claim land that was judged "not well cultivated" by a four-man "uncultivated land tribunal." The president of these tribunals was usually the local magistrate.

New violence broke when workers claimed land that the tribunals had judged "well cultivated," or that the owners had transformed into pasture. Demonstrations have sometimes culminated in forcible land seizures by workers. Owners have often instructed their employes to defend property by force.

New Murder Intensifies Battle For Sicilian Land

Palermo, Sicily, Jan. 9 (AP)—The unsolved murder of a wealthy labor-union organizer in the south Sicilian coast town of Sciacca added bitterness today to a struggle over land between Sicily's share-croppers and landlords.

A one-hour strike was scheduled throughout Sicily today by the regional committee of the Italian General Labor Confederation (CGIL) as a protest against this latest incident in rising island

Greek Test-Vote Reported Due

Athens, Jan. 9 (AP) — A well-informed source reported today that Premier Constantin Tsaldaris, whose resignation has been demanded by parliamentary opposition leaders as the price for their participation in a coalition government, has decided to put his leadership to a test vote when Parliament convenes on January 16.

There was no immediate confirmation from Tsaldaris himself.

Primary Question

The question of broadening the Cabinet has been a primary political question since early November. The issue was temporarily shoved into the background during the Premier's visit to New York to present Greece's complaints against her northern neighbors to the United Nations Security Council, but was revived upon his return.

The National Union bloc, headed by former Premiers Sophocles Venizelos, Panayotis Kannelopoulos and George Papandreou, has stated that it would not participate in a Government headed by Tsaldaris.

Themistocles Sophoulis, 36-year-old leader of the second strongest party in parliament, has issued a similar statement.

Liaison Member Named

The government, meanwhile, announced that Alexis Kyrou, director of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, had been appointed Greek liaison member of a United Nations commission being sent to investigate a Greek complaint of frontier violations by Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia. The announcement said that Tsaldaris had first offered the post to Basil Dendramis, permanent Greek delegate to the United Nations, but Dendramis declined it.

MARSHALL STORY ATOMICALLY TOLD

Prague, Jan. 9 (A. P.).—Prague newspapers carried today the first news to be printed here of the change in the United States State Department.

Most of them illustrated it with cartoons showing an atomic bomb changing hands.

Life In Russia: Fancy Reports Hit By Pravda

Moscow, Jan. 9 (AP)—Soviet officials who inclose business reports to their superiors in "esthetic" covers resembling jubilee blotting pads with gold trimming, flowered designs and silk ribbons got a going-over today from Publicist David Zaslavsky in Pravda.

"The folders in general are unnecessary where you can get by with an ordinary envelope," Zaslavsky advised the erring officials, who, he said, were merely emulating old Russian merchant-class manners.

"He wishes to captivate his superior with a pretentious cover for a business report prompts suspicion concerning the report's contents," the writer sternly declared.

Then, warming to his theme, Zaslavsky objected:

"One man senselessly wastes valuable paper on stupid bindings and folders. The next one in a new house built in severe Soviet style allots state funds to himself for a luxurious office in the style of an Indian pagoda or a high-society boudoir or an Oriental inn, all in carpets. All this superfluity, produced by imitation of bad models, is a style of work alien to Bolshevism."

Montgomery Visits Frunze

Sees Russian War Academy; to Leave Tomorrow

MOSCOW, Jan. 9 (AP).—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery—whose four days in the U. S. S. R. already have established him as one of the most feted guests in years—visited the Frunze War Academy of the Soviet Army today, embarking on a new round of social affairs.

Moscow newspapers continued to front-page his doings, which included lunch this noon at the French Embassy and an entertainment tonight at the British Embassy.

Weather permitting, he expects to leave Moscow homeward bound Saturday.

Russia Plans Farm Expansion

MOSCOW, Jan. 9 (AP).—The Council of Ministers announced today a program of agricultural expansion in the eastern regions of the U. S. S. R., under which sown areas in Siberia and Northern Kazakhstan would be increased by nearly 20,000 acres by 1949, mainly in winter wheat.

U.S. SENDS NEW NOTE TO POLES

L. Allen (N)

Opposition Renews Threat Of Election Boycott

Warsaw, Jan. 9 (AP)—The United States called upon the Communist-dominated Polish Government again today to honor a pledge for free and unfettered elections, while the opposition Polish Peasant party's leadership charged anew that free voting January 19 would be impossible under existing conditions.

Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, leader of the Polish Peasant party (PSL), announced to a news conference to take part in the election in 42 of the nation's 52 electorial districts, the PSL still was prepared to boycott the balloting.

May Reverse Decision

He said the party's executive committee retained power to reverse the decision to participate in the districts where the PSL candidate lists have been accepted, and would do so if coercion, intimidation of voters and the arrest and elimination of candidates continued.

The Warsaw Government has not yet replied to the United States notes of August 19 and November 22 concerning the forthcoming elections. The new American note said that "suppression, coercion and intimidation" as applied to the political opposition in Poland violated the spirit of the Potsdam agreement to which, it reminded Warsaw, Poland was a party.

Britain Sends Two Notes

The note, handed to the Polish Foreign Minister today, expressed concern over "repressive measures which the Government has seen fit to employ against democratic elements not aligned with the pro-Government bloc." It said the United States was interested only in seeing that the Polish people had a chance to express their true will.

Mikolajczyk told his news conference that in the ten districts where his party candidates have been eliminated from the lists, there are 5,342,600 people—22 per cent of Poland's population — and more than 2,700,000 voters who will have no voice. In the ten districts a total of 76 of the 444 deputies will be elected. The Vice Premier said 248 Polish Peasant party candidates had been stricken from the list by district election commissioners.

To Campaign In 42 Districts

The PSL's executive committee announced last night that it would campaign in the other 42 districts. Mikolajczyk explained that, despite existing conditions, he felt these people should be shown the party was acting legally, and should be given an opportunity to express their sentiments. However, he added that there was no chance under present conditions that the true will of the people could be expressed.

In the other ten districts the party will urge its followers to stay away from the polls.

Meanwhile, Stanislaw Radkiewicz, Poland's Minister of Public Security, whose department is under PSL fire, remained aloof from the foreign press and also from foreign envoys. Requests for interviews drew a reply that Radkiewicz would see correspondents "when he chooses."

British Protests Sent

(Britain has sent two notes to Poland along similar lines. In Washington Secretary of State Byrnes disclosed yesterday that notes were sent to Moscow and London charging the Polish government with failure to perform its obligations. In Moscow an informed source said the Soviet Union had replied by denying knowledge of irregularities on the part of the government bloc and described Mikolajczyk's complaints as preparation of the public for his defeat.)

U.S. Again Asks Poles To Honor Vote Pledge (D)

Warsaw, Jan. 9 (AP)—The United States called on Poland today to honor her pledge to hold free and unfettered elections.

The diplomatic note to the Polish Foreign Minister charged the provisional Polish regime with continued "suppression, coercion and intimidation" of the opposition, violating the letter and spirit of the Yalta and Potsdam agreements.

The general election is scheduled for January 19. Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk announced last night that the Polish Peasant party, bulwark of the opposition to the Russian-backed regime, would contest the Government coalition in 42 of the 52 electoral districts despite its charges of intimidation, political arrests and irregularities.

Boycott Still Possible

Mikolajczyk said, however, that his party might yet boycott the elections if at the last minute it appeared that free voting was impossible. He said the party executive committee was empowered to reverse its decision of last night, should abuses continue.

The United States note, one of the last drafted under the auspices of Secretary of State Byrnes, expressed concern over "repressive measures which the Government has seen fit to employ against democratic elements not aligned with the pro-Government bloc."

The note said that if repressive activities "do not cease immediately, there is little likelihood that a free and unfettered election can be held.

Two Notes Still Unanswered

The Government has not yet answered American notes of August 19 and November 22. The new communication said Poland was a party to the Potsdam Agreement of the United States, Russia and Great Britain and emphasized that the United States was interested only in seeing that the Polish people had a chance to express their true will in the election.

The Peasant party, which had threatened to boycott the election on the grounds of irregularities and intimidation, will urge its followers to stay away from the polls only in the ten districts in which the Government denied its candidates the right to file, Mikolajczyk said. This means more than 2,500,000 voters will be left without a choice.

Some observers had said a country-wide boycott by the Peasant party might have impelled the nation toward civil war. The Government has accused Mikolajczyk's party of tieups with subversive underground armies.

30.24-7285

A Government spokesman declared yesterday that Peasant party candidate lists had been rejected in ten districts under an election law provision that any person accused of underground activities might be denied the right to vote or run for office. He said that the districts were underground hotbeds.

Intimidation Charged.

Brig.-Gen. Miktor Groz, Foreign Ministry spokesman, told newsmen that campaigning had been conducted fairly and that the election would be "an expression of the true will of the Polish people."

Mikolajczyk, however, alleged that Government bloc campaigners and the security police had intimidated voters and that his party had been denied representation on local and district election commissions. He reported that the executive committee had decided to protest to the Supreme Court against these alleged election law violations and had condemned underground band killings of election commissioners. He said that he himself was giving evidence of criminal activities to Government prosecutors.

People in many sections of the country have reported that Government bloc organizers, going from house to house, told them that unless they pledged themselves to vote the straight Government ticket, they would lose homes, jobs and even their lives.

Warsaw, Poland, Jan. 9 (AP)—Military tribunals in three Polish districts today sentenced six men to death and thirteen others to long prison terms for underground activities.

Saudi Arabian Prince Plans To Meet Truman

Cairo, Jan. 9 (AP)—Emir Saud, Crown Prince of Saudi Arabia, who is en route to the United States, said tonight that his trip would give him an "opportunity to exchange views with President Truman, members of his Cabinet and leaders of that country."

The Crown Prince and his party of fourteen plan to visit New York, Detroit, Chicago, San Francisco and Boulder Dam as well as Washington.

"To know America is something of great importance for our country in particular and the Near and Middle East in general," the Crown Prince said in a statement.

THREE KILLED, 50 INJURED IN BOMBAY RIOTS

Two Trucks Crash Funeral Procession Gone On Wreckage Rampage

(N)

Bombay, Friday, Jan. 10 (AP)—Three persons were killed and 50 others were injured, a communiqué issued today said, when two trucks crashed through a funeral procession which had erupted into a rampage of fire setting and window smashing.

The incident was the climax of new communal rioting which began in Bombay yesterday. During the disorders women were beaten with sticks and stones, and acid was hurled into a passing motor vehicle.

Police said three groups of Indians were involved—Hindus, the so-called Scheduled Caste, formerly the Untouchables, and Moslems. In some instances it became a three-cornered battle, with every man for himself, the police added.

100 Taken To Hospitals

S. K. Patil, president of the Bombay Provincial Congress party committee, said his office had reports of 100 persons taken to hospitals. Police opened fire repeatedly to break up clashing mobs.

An earlier police communiqué, which did not mention any fatalities, said there were 23 stabbing incidents, four women were assaulted with sticks and stones, and eight persons in a truck were burned when acid was hurled at them. Thirty persons were jailed.

The British imposed a seven-day curfew to operate between 6.30 P.M. and 6 A.M. Heavy police patrols, armed with rifles and machine guns, cleared the streets as darkness fell. Tension was described as high.

Grew To Fantastic Size

Police said that a funeral procession passing through the Lal Baug section grew swiftly to fantastic size. Many of the processionists went on a rampage of smashing windows, stoning busses and setting fires.

Newsmen on a tour of the affected area in the northern part of the city saw smashed windows, smoldering remains of two large lumber piles and a smoking residential building. Furniture was strewn on the sidewalks.

POLICE OPEN FIRE ON BOMBAY RIOTERS

(D)

Bombay, Jan. 9 (A. P.).—Riotous clashes developed today between Hindus and the Scheduled Castes (untouchables), causing about fifty casualties and further complicating the serious communal troubles between the Hindus and the Moslems. The police announced an all-night curfew for the affected northern area of Bombay.

The police fired repeatedly to break up fights, principally by workers. Tension was acute as darkness approached. The fighting resulted apparently, from the stabbing yesterday of a Hindu and a leader of the Scheduled Castes Federation. Two firewood depots, two timber stacks and a house were set afire. A suburban electric railway suspended service for the day because of the fighting.

N.Y.-Bombay Flight Ends

Bombay, Jan. 9 (AP)—The T.W.A. Skymaster plane Taj Mahal landed at the Santa Cruz Airport late today, completing the last leg of its flight from New York to Bombay.

Indian Airmen End Hunger Strike

New Delhi, Jan. 9 (AP)—British military authorities announced today that 60 Royal Indian Airforce members had returned to duty after a four-day hunger strike at the Vizagapatam RAF station. The strike had followed complaints about food and living conditions.

No further developments were reported in a similar strike of Royal Indian Navy seamen at Cochin. Ninety of the men struck Monday for unannounced reasons, but 40 returned to duty yesterday.

Communists Reported Fighting Burma Police

Rangoon, Burma, Jan. 9 (AP)—An authoritative informant said today that red-shirted Communist followers of Thakin Than Tun had engaged in a pitched battle with police and forces of the anti-Fascist People's Freedom League in Yamethin, 250 miles north of Rangoon.

The source, who declined to be quoted by name, said the Red Shirts used trench mortars during the fighting. He said he expected the famous British Black Cat Division to be sent into the central area to restore order.

Since the fighting started last week end, four Red Shirts and a policeman and a member of the anti-Fascist People's Freedom League have been killed, the informant said.

Inhabitants were reported evacuating neighboring villages as the fighting spread to the Toungoo district.

[In London a spokesman for the War Office said he could neither "conform nor deny" a report that the Black Cat Division would be used to restore order.]

Ho Broadcasts Terms

Bangkok, Siam, Jan. 8 [AP—Delayed]—The Viet-Nam radio broadcast today a message from President Ho Chi Minh of the Viet-Nam republic to the French people and Parliament listing the terms under which the Viet-Namese were ready to stop fighting in Indo-China.

The terms included a return to the status quo existing prior to the time the recent fighting began in the French colony and resumption of conferences looking toward a final settlement of the Viet-Nam republic's independence demands.

Conferences on the Viet-Nam demands were held last summer in Paris, but broke up without conclusive results.

[Colonial Minister Marius Moutet already has said in Indo-China that a military decision would be necessary before any negotiations could take place.]

Viet-Nam Leader Asks People To Forego Fete

Manila, Jan. 9 (AP)—President Ho Chi Minh, leader of the Viet-Namese resistance movement in Indo-China, today broadcast an appeal to his followers to forego traditional New Year's revelries January 22 "while our combatants are making heavy sacrifices on the war front."

The broadcast was made over the Hanoi radio and recorded here by the Associated Press.

Ho appealed to the population to conserve food and money, to dig trenches and build shelters, to intensify production and to send gifts to soldiers in the front lines.

Feast After Success

"We shall feast and revel when our resistance will be crowned with success," Ho promised, "and when our country will wrest back its independence."

The Viet-Namese radio conceded that two groups of French paratroops totaling 156 men dropped on Nang Tinh village, 50 miles south of Hanoi, Sunday night to help French garrisons in besieged Nam Dinh.

Hanoi reported that a number of paratroops were killed and arms and ammunition were captured by Viet-Namese regulars.

CHINA REGIME EXTENDS BID

Statement Opens Way For Talks With Communists

Nanking, Jan. 9 (AP)—A guarded Chinese Government overture to the Communists was made tonight, following General Marshall's outspoken criticism of both factions in protracted civil strife.

Peng Hsueh-pei, Minister of Information, issued a statement saying:

"Now that the constitution-making has been successfully concluded, national reconstruction may start in earnest according to the program decided upon at the National Assembly, and the Government may fulfill the long-cherished desire of returning sovereign rights to the people.

Willing To Discuss Truce

"Therefore, the Government is willing to discuss with the Communists a complete plan for cessation of hostilities and government reorganization, so that peace and unity can be achieved at an early date."

Peng gave no explanation of his statement, and Communist headquarters in Nanking said no message had been received from the Government.

It was generally believed, however, that, as a probable result of Marshall's departing "plague on both your houses," the Peng statement was preliminary to actual new offers of negotiation by the Government.

Many Chinese and neutral observers agreed that as United States Secretary of State, General Marshall was likely to exert more influence on Chinese affairs than he had in more than a year of personal mediation.

Popular Sympathy Rising

The profound effect of his parting declaration, praising the liberals as China's only hope of salvation, was being felt in a slow upsurge of popular sympathy for the now-powerless liberals and a corresponding loss of prestige by Government Right-wingers.

Some quarters forecast emergence of liberals in key posts of the Government, with the disappearance of some of the old, feudalistic leaders within the next several days.

An indication of impending changes was seen in the Chih-Shim Jih Pao, newspaper published by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Peiping headquarters.

Hope For Shift In Party

"We opposed in the past uncompromising elements of the Kuomintang (Government party)," the paper said, "and hope that liberal elements will come out bravely in recognizing the Generalissimo's determined liberalism and exert power and strength to that end that the road to life will be found in the midst of death."

In Shanghai, the Soviet-owned Russian Daily News said "reactionary groups in this country saw in Marshall's statement a turn of events unfavorable to them, and now that he is appointed Secretary of State, their worries will certainly increase."

ment "seemed like a 1,000 catty (1,333 pound) stone had been placed on our hearts.

"Both the Reds and the Government continued, under cover of peace talks, to show no concern for the people's suffering. They were only interested in maintaining sovereign powers.

"Both sides still hold tenaciously to old grudges of twenty years standing. Factions in power on both sides have no strong determination to cancel old hates with a stroke of the pen."

The paper welcomed Marshall's appointment as Secretary of State.

Most Americans here are of the opinion that Marshall's statement will lead to the abolition of executive (truce) headquarters here and the withdrawal of the United States Marines from China. One highly-placed American concluded:

"The United States cannot permit the Chinese to conduct a civil war under the auspices of executive headquarters.

"We will have to make the first move toward closing down this organization. Neither the Government nor the Communists will take the responsibility of assuming the stigma attached to dissolving this last peace organization."

It was expected that the United States Marines in North China, now numbering fewer than 15,000, will be withdrawn when executive headquarters is abandoned.

Officially, the Marines are there to maintain the supply route for the American branch of the headquarters.

Marshall's Statement May Split Kuomintang

Peiping, Jan. 9 (AP)—General Marshall's statement on the China situation may have sown the seeds of a new struggle within the Kuomintang (Government party)—between extreme rightists and the splendid liberals" he said were the nation's only salvation.

First signs of an impending party fight appeared in today's Chih Shih Jih Pao, published by Chiang Kai-shek's Peiping headquarters. Its comments on the Marshall statement were regarded as liberal support for the Generalissimo.

Hails Liberal Faction

The paper recalled "we opposed in the past uncompromising elements in the Kuomintang. We hope liberal elements will come out bravely, recognizing the Generalissimo's determined liberalism, and exert power and strength to the end that the road to life will be found in the midst of death."

It said Marshall's critical state-

China Reds In Road Fights

Peiping, Jan. 9 (AP)—The Chinese press today reported that Communist guerrillas had interrupted motor traffic on the Peiping-Tientsin highway despite repeated reversals and that they threatened the Tientsin-Pukow railroad.

Government reinforcements were rushed to Hsiangho, 26 miles east of Peiping, one of several towns and villages where fighting was reported along the highway.

Other Communist troops were attacking two towns 5 and 11 miles south and southeast of Peiping.

Fighting At Tsanghsien

The Tientsin-Pukow railroad was threatened by fighting at Tsanghsien, 60 miles southeast of Tientsin.

At Nanking, a Communist news dispatch said Communists won a three-day battle southwest of Linyi in southern Shantung province.

The dispatch said the Communists recovered Lanlin, southwest of Linyi, and seized near-by Peihsien.

RED PAPER GLAD BYRNES RESIGNED

Shanghai, Jan. 9 (A. P.).—The Soviet owned Russian Daily News today welcomed the resignation of Secretary of State Byrnes. His "foreign policy possessed a clearly imperialistic character and in many ways proved an obstacle to solving a whole series of important questions before the U. N.," the paper said editorially.

"His resignation will help towards betterment of the world-wide political situation."

It said that Gen. Marshall's appointment to succeed Byrnes was a possible prelude to a change in United States policy on China, adding:

"It seems hardly likely Marshall will continue the one-sided backing of rightist groups in China followed by Byrnes."

JAP REDS TO DANCE WAY TO VICTORY

Tokyo, Jan. 9 (A. P.).—The Communist Party convention today approved ballroom dancing for Japanese, saying that such relaxation would aid in the struggle against "the ruling class, which is trying to blunt the proletarian offensive."

Troops Reach Japan

Yokohama, Jan. 9 (AP)—Two army troop transports, the Admiral Oyo and the Waterbury Victory, docked today with 2,755 replacements for United States occupation forces.

DUTCH RETURN TO JAVA

Sjahrir Will Defer Accord Until Fighting Is Discussed

BATAVIA, Java, Jan. 9 (AP)—The Netherlands Commission General returned to Indonesia by air today, after six weeks of consultations with The Hague Government, to undertake final negotiations preparatory to signature of a formal agreement with the Indonesian Republic.

Meanwhile Premier Sutan Sjahrir of the Indonesian Republic issued a statement saying that a full exchange of views on the fighting that has been going on between Dutch and Indonesian forces in Sumatra for the last three weeks, would be necessary before the republic would consider ratification of the agreement.

The Dutch commissioners declined to comment on the military situation.

Netherlands Army headquarters reported that Dutch infantry, supported by artillery, had cleared Indonesian Nationalist concentrations from the area southeast of Padang, Sumatra, yesterday. Elsewhere in Sumatra and Java military action was reported limited to patrol clashes.

Dutch to Search British Ship

BATAVIA, Java, Jan. 9 (AP).—The Netherlands Navy announced today that the British freighter Empire May Rover had been intercepted at the Port of Cheribon and would be searched for arms under Dutch regulations governing trade with Indonesian Republican ports. The freighter was convoyed by a Dutch warship to Semarang for investigation.

Marshall Lands In Hawaii On Way Home

Honolulu, Jan. 9 (AP)—General Marshall, returning to the United States from China to become Secretary of State, landed at Hickam Field at 11 P.M. last night and was greeted by his wife.

The General looked extremely well rested despite his long flight from Nanking via Guam, where his C-54 transport was refueled. He declined to make any statement on his new position.

"I hope to rest here a few days," he said. "But of course that depends upon what I hear from Washington." Previously, he had planned to stop here three days.

"I'm glad to be back in the United States," he added.

Asked if he considers himself a Democrat, Marshall replied:

"I am an army officer and expect to be Secretary of State."

Secrecy Requested

Before Marshall's arrival, army officers said the General had radioed a request for absolute secrecy. Orders were issued that no one in the Army should give out any information about his plane. An hour before the Big C-54 landed a security agent estimated that fewer than five persons knew Marshall's destination and schedule.

The only officials who greeted Marshall were Col. Albert D. Starbird and Capt. Stephen A. Sherrill, aides to Lieut. Gen. John E. Hull, mid-Pacific commander, who went to Hilo yesterday.

"All right, here I am," Marshall greeted reporters. "You all know what I'm going to say. I have no statement to make as Secretary of State at this time."

GOP STRIKE CURB PROPOSED BY TAFT

Senator Also Outlines Budget And Tax Cut Programs

New York, Jan. 9 (AP)—Senator Taft (R., Ohio) tonight proposed a Republican legislative program designed to "discourage" strikes, cut the Federal budget to $33,500,000,000 and slice twenty per cent off personal income taxes.

In an address before the Economic Club, the chairman of the Senate GOP Steering Committee called also for extension of Federal aid to the states for housing, welfare, education and medical care. He promised GOP efforts to expand social security coverage.

Taft criticized President Truman's economic report to Congress as "inconsistent," asserting that "peeking around all the corners of the report we see the whiskers of the New Deal."

Urged Lower Prices

In this report, Mr. Truman recommended that industry sponsor lower prices while labor settle its bid for higher wages on the basis of what the individual management is able to pay.

The Ohio Senator, explaining he was voicing only his personal views, said the report "recognizes that the best method of bringing real purchasing power to consumers is through the reduction of prices rather than the increase in wages."

But he added that "it hedges on the question like a political report instead of a courageous economic statement."

"The spending theories of Harry Hopkins gradually take command and determine the ultimate recommendation," Taft said. "Then it (the report) seems to adopt the theory that mass purchasing power is the solution of all problems and presents a justification for every New Deal measure. In short, we are again going to spend ourselves into prosperity."

Income Tax Held Threat

Taft said the Republicans feel that "our present personal income taxes threaten the soundness of our economic structure." As a result, he added, he favors an overall twenty per cent reduction.

To make this possible, he declared, Republicans generally feel that from three to four billion dollars can be squeezed out of the $37,000,000,000 budget the President is expected to submit to Congress tomorrow.

Taft outlined as an immediate labor program the bill which he introduced with Senator Ball (R., Minnesota).

In brief, it would set up a mediation board which could delay strikes for 60 days, "equalize" collective bargaining rights of employers and unions, require financial reports by unions, ban jurisdictional strikes and secondary boycotts and deny unionization to foremen.

Would Ban Closed Shop

Such a program, he said, would be designed to "discourage the strikes which have so seriously interfered with the welfare and progress of the public."

For further study, he continued, the Republicans will give attention to banning the closed shop, limiting industry-wide bargaining, curbing violence in labor disputes, modifying the Wagner Act and providing compulsory arbitration.

The Ohio Senator said he was against compulsory arbitration, although he conceded it might work in cases involving interpretations of disputes.

In the field of general welfare, Taft, who is regarded as a prospective candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1948, outlined a broad program based on Federal aid to the states for the lower-income groups only.

REPUBLICANS HOLD TO TAX CUT PLANS

No Change Noted After Leaders Confer With Snyder

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP)—John W. Snyder, Secretary of the Treasury, met with a group of Congress members today, including Republicans, but there was no sign of slackening in the announced GOP drive to slash the Truman budget.

Those who conferred with the Treasury head did not divulge much of the conversations. But after they returned to the Capitol, talk of budget cutting continued.

As for taxes, a number of Republicans continued to drive for a twenty per cent individual income-tax cut, while others reiterated their previous stand that the whole fiscal situation must be canvassed before a definite decision is reached.

On Eve Of Budget Message

The meeting was timed on the eve of President Truman's dispatch of his budget message to Congress. The message is reported to call for $37,000,000,000 of Government spending in the year beginning July 1. This is about $5,000,000,000 under the present year's prospective outlay but many Republicans contend there should be a bigger cut.

Representative Knutson (R., Minn.), chairman of the tax-framing House Ways and Means Committee, and Senator Millikin (R., Col.), chairman of the Finance Committee—two of those meeting with Snyder—described their lunch with him as a purely social "get-acquainted affair," but this apparently was the lull before the storm on the budget issue.

The Republican congressional high command on budget and taxes—Millikin, Knutson, Chairman Taber (N.Y.) of the House Appropriations Committee and Senator Bridges (N.H.), appropriations chairman—held a strategy meeting prior to the Snyder luncheon.

Taber Reiterates Stand

Taber later reiterated that he expects to cut $8,000,000,000 off the President's budget figure if it calls for $37,000,000,000 in new appropriations.

"We can cut the budget to $29,141,000,000, and I've got the figures to prove it," Taber said.

Taber wants 1,000,000 Federal workers taken from the pay roll.

Knutson stood firm on his House Bill No. 1 proposing a twenty per cent slash in personal income taxes this year, but one highly placed Republican senator said privately the idea of an immediate twenty per cent, $3,350,000,000 tax slash does not appeal to him.

Asks About Income, Outgo

"How can you say you are going to cut taxes by any figures until you know what the income and outgo of the Government is going to be?" he asked.

Millikin, who will be the Republican chief tax manager in the Senate, said "I think we can have a tax cut, but I don't say what kind—how much here and how much there."

He said Snyder "offered his cooperation," but there was no serious discussion at the luncheon either of the budget or taxes. With the Republicans and Snyder at the luncheon were the two principal Democratic tax managers, Representative Doughton (N.C.), former chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and Senator George (Ga.), former chairman of the Finance Committee.

The Republican strategy conference has decided to put the job of determining a ceiling for Government expenditures into the hands of a twenty-member subcommittee—ten senators and ten House members.

Under the Congressional Reorganization Act, this budget committee will review all proposed expenditures and will make recommendations to hold a lid on spending.

The subcommittee on the budget will be made up of five members each from the Senate and House Appropriations committees, the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee.

GOP Opposition Threatens Tariff Slash Agreements

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP)—Republican opposition wrote a big question mark today after President Truman's plan for reducing tariffs by agreement with other nations to promote trade.

It seemed certain to give Gen. George C. Marshall his major homefront headache as Secretary of State.

On the outcome of the dispute may hinge the ability of the American delegation to the International Trade Organization at Geneva in April to realize its plans for tariff cuts and elimination of trade preferences.

Could Obtain Concessions

In his economic report to Congress, Mr. Truman noted that "sales of goods and services abroad, amounting to about $15,000,000,000 in 1946, played an important role in the maintenance of domestic production, employment, and purchasing power and may be expected to do so this year."

By cutting our own import duties, the President added, this nation can obtain similar concessions from other countries along with "elimination of a mass of restrictions, in particular, rigid import quotas preventing our access to foreign markets."

Senator White (Maine), the Republican leader, agreed that "reduction of trade barriers may stimulate international trade, but I do not know at whose cost."

Reports Apprehension

He added that the people of his state "have a general feeling of apprehension about the reciprocal trade program" and "don't like it."

Five other Republican senators—Brewster (Maine), Butler (Neb.), Capehart (Ind.), Hickenlooper (Iowa) and Wiley (Wis.)—also expressed general opposition to the trade-pact program in separate interviews or statements.

"When the world gets back into normal production we cannot compete with coolie labor rates," Wiley remarked. "I want to protect America, the best market in the world, for Americans."

Hickenlooper opposed the trade-agreement program "because it authorizes the President and State Department within their own views to cut tariffs an additional 50 per cent." He added that the "biggest previous cuts" were made in "competitive agricultural products such as wheat, cattle, hogs and dairy products."

Has Protested Plans

Butler already has written the State Department protesting its plans for considering additional tariff reductions this month. The present Trade Agreements Act was extended until July, 1948, but Butler said the new Republican Congress should be given a chance to review the program before it is expanded or changed.

Brewster questioned the need of reducing this country's tariffs in order to "built up dollar balances overseas to bolster our export trade."

Capehart also wants "to protect our American market for our own producers."

House Members Quoted

In the House, Representative Rich (R., Pa.) said in an interview: "Brother, I'm for America, first, last and always."

He suggested representatives of labor, industry, agriculture and the public be sent to the Geneva meeting "to see that American industry is protected from low-cost foreign competition."

Representative Rogers (R., Mass.) said that "we've got to make sure that our own industry is protected," and that foreign competition "does not bring down the standard of living in America."

GOP Legislators At Odds Over Defense Cost

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP)—Congressional Republicans are at odds today over national defense costs.

Representative Taber (N.Y.) is demanding that army-navy outlays be cut drastically, while Senator

Taft (Ohio) is counseling against such a course.

Taber, who heads the new House Appropriations Committee, said he is convinced the military services can get along with $8,000,000,000 between them in the fiscal year beginning next July 1. Taft, chairman of the GOP Senate Steering Committee, said he thinks Senate Republicans want to find budget reductions elsewhere and not make them at the expense of national defense.

Senator Bridges (R., N.H.), who heads the Senate Appropriations Committee, said, however, that he and others will insist that savings be effected where military purchasing, intelligence and similar operations can be combined and added that he thinks a number of army camps, now being maintained in this country with skeleton staffs, could be closed.

Taber contended that about $2,500,000,000 can be lopped off military expenditures for items and services that were necessary in the past, but no longer needed.

Representative Plumley (R., Vt.), who heads a Naval Appropriations subcommittee, voiced the opinion that "substantial savings" can be made in the navy's budget, in comparison with the present year.

If President Truman fixes total Federal spending at about $37,000,000,000, as generally forecast, Taft said it seemed likely that from $10,000,000,000 to $12,000,000,000 of that would be for the Army and Navy.

He said that, while Senate Republicans would favor paring the larger amount, he doubted if they would wish to challenge the smaller, except where it was apparent savings could be made without impairing military efficiency.

Possible Clash Seen Near

Any clash of viewpoints between House and Senate Republicans is likely to come to a head shortly when the taxing and appropriating committees of both houses meet to make their own survey of prospective income and proposed spending. This procedure, a new one, is called for under the Congressional Reorganization Law.

The taxing contingent—Senators Millikin (R., Col.) and George (D., Ga.) and Representatives Knutson (R., Minn.) and Doughton (D., N.C.)—was promised an advance look at the income situation in a conference today with Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder.

Income-Tax Views Vary

That meeting will bring the first headon collision between the Republican drive for a 20 per cent slash in income levies and the Democratic Administration's firm stand against any immediate tax cuts.

Mr. Truman told Congress in his economic report yesterday that taxes should be kept at present levels, because it would be "sound public finance."

Knutson quickly said he could not agree with the President. He added that the Republicans intend to reduce Government expenditures to a point where tax cuts will be possible without endangering the Government's fiscal position.

Plea For FEPC Draws Fire

1947

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP)—President Truman faced a new threat today to his relations with Congress—opposition within Democratic ranks to his indirect but renewed espousal of a permanent Fair Employment Practice Commission.

Southerners flared up angrily over the President's action, which threatened to split the Administration's party into two camps, as it had done in previous years.

Mr. Truman did not mention the now-expired FEPC by name, but he asked in his economic report to Congress yesterday for permanent legislation to deal with the problem of race and religious discrimination against workers.

Southerners Promise Fight

Southern Democrats, whose opposition blocked the selection of Representative John W. McCormack of Massachusetts as Democratic floor leader, said they would fight the proposal anew and predicted for it the same fate it has met in previous years.

Both Mr. Truman and his predecessor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, have urged Congress on many occasions to set up a permanent FEPC, but the southern-dominated Rules Committee heretofore always has blocked action in the House and Southerner-instigated filibusters have stalled the plan in the Senate.

Avoid Showdown

Although both Republican and Democratic presidential platforms have indorsed the principle of preventing discrimination because of race or creed, leaders of both parties have been reluctant to bring the issue to a showdown.

In the absence of any move by party heads, Representative Celler (D., N.Y.) said he would introduce immediately a bill to carry out Mr. Truman's recommendation.

Representative Sabath (D., Ill.), who headed the House Rules Committee under Democratic control, noted that Republicans will have a two-to-one voting edge in the committee this year and could send the legislation to the floor if they were so inclined.

Old Declaration Cited

Republican leaders themselves withheld comment except to point to the party's 1945 policy declaration in which the GOP legislators went on record in favor of the FEPC.

"They can't get this bill passed," commented Representative Rankin (D., Miss.). "The people will not have it rammed down their throats."

Rankin said he does not believe the Republicans really favor the FEPC anyhow, while Representative Cox (D., Ga.) added:

"Both parties have made politics out of it to get the Negro vote. I'm just as much against it as I ever was."

Foreign Policy Unity Is Shown

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP) — The dominantly-Republican Congress put the world on notice today that American foreign policy has the same united backing in peace as it had in war.

The chorus of Senate unanimity with which Gen. George C. Marshall won his sensationally-swift confirmation as successor to Secretary of State James F. Byrnes demonstrated not only congressional confidence in his ability, but also solidified bipartisan agreement on the necessity for an unbroken foreign policy.

The unanimity of the action did not still, however, the rumblings of an impending congressional battle over the Administration's program for international economic disarmament through removal of trade barriers and reduction of tariffs.

This program — regarded by American diplomatic chiefs as essential to implement the work of the United Nations and affiliated agencies working on problems of world stability—was expected to encounter strong opposition, particularly from dairy, wheat, meat and shoe production areas.

Two Bases For Support

The support for Marshall, bridging party differences, apparently rested on twin bases: (1) His record during and since the war, and (2) the conviction that he not only will pursue the "patient but firm" policies of Byrnes but will carry on his predecessor's practice of working closely with Congress.

This was reflected in a growing legislative demand for Marshall to address a joint congressional session before he leaves for the March 10 meeting of the Foreign Ministers Council in Moscow.

It raised, too, the likelihood that Marshall will seek to have Senators Vandenberg, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and Connally, its ranking Democratic member, at his side for that meeting.

Both Vandenberg and Connally have indicated strong reluctance to abandon their legislative chores for future international conferences, but Marshall may prevail upon them to change their minds on the grounds that he will need their background.

It will be the problem of assimiliating that background which may prove the most pressing for Marshall in the brief period between now and his scheduled huddle with the diplomatic chiefs of Britain, France and Russia.

SENATE PROBERS PLAN TO TACKLE WAR CONTRACTS

1947

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—(AP) The Senate War Investigating Committee intends to find out who made how much in profits from the billions of dollars in war contracts, Senator Brewster (R-Me) said today.

Brewster, new committee chairman, told reporters the group also plans a "complete inquiry" into the housing shortage with special emphasis on veterans housing.

The committee's authority soon will expire and it must obtain a fresh grant of power from the Senate if it is to continue operations.

Board Likely to Continue

That new grant became virtually assured today when the rules committee voted to recommend it. The Senate, which may act tomorrow, seldom turns down its rules committee's recommendations.

The rules committee, headed by Senator Brooks (R-Ill), also decided the senate should continue to have a special committee to investigate problems of small business.

However, it voted to create a new committee in this field rather than continue one from the last Congress.

The practical effect of this maneuver was to put Senator Wherry (R-Neb) in line to be chairman because he introduced a resolution for a new committee. If the old committee had been continued, Senator Wilson (R-Iowa) would have been in line for the chairmanship as the Republican member who had served on it longest.

Democrats on the rules committee voted against both actions. They protested that Democratic senators had not had opportunity to adopt a policy stand.

After the rules meeting, Brooks told reporters that neither Brewster nor Wherry had asked any funds to carry on their special committees.

More Funds Needed 1947

Brewster said the war investigating group had sufficient money to go ahead with present work for about two months. The senate has been providing it with about $200,000 a year since it was first established under President Truman when he was a senator.

The committee already has conducted some hearings on war profits but Brewster described these as "a few individual cases which seemed to be abuses." He said it is now planned to "review the whole situation."

He said the committee also would review its earlier plans to probe conduct of American forces and the military government in Germany and other occupied former enemy areas. Such an investigation of Germany was sidetracked just before start of the recent Congress on request of the State department and some senators.

Since then, Brewster commented, Gen. George C. Marshall has been named to succeed James F. Byrnes as secretary of state and the United States military leadership in Germany and Austria had been changed.

Gardner, Austin Approved By Senate Group

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP)—The confirmation of O. Max Gardner, former Governor of North Carolina, as ambassador to Great Britain was unanimously recommended today by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The committee also acted unanimously in approving the appointment of former Senator Warren Austin, of Vermont, as United States representative on the United Nations Security Council, with the rank of ambassador.

The committee's actions put the nominations before he Senate tomorrow. Confirmation there is considered certain.

Others Approved 1947

Other nominations approved by the committee included:

S. Pinckney Tuck, of New York, to be Ambassador to Egypt.

George Wadsworth, of New York, to be Ambassador to Iraq.

J. Rives Childs, of Virginia, now minister to Saudi Arabia, to serve concurrently as minister to the kingdom of Yemen.

Lowell C. Pinkerton, of Missouri, to be Minister to Lebanon.

Mark F. Ethridge, Louisville (Ky.) publisher, to be the United States representative on the United Nations commission established to inquire into alleged violations of the Greek border.

Meanwhile, at least two top-rank nominations sent to the Senate by President Truman face possible confirmation fights, a highly placed Republican senator said today. They are:

Miss Frances Perkins to be a member of the Civil Service Commission; and Dillon S. Myer, of Ohio, as administrator of the United States Housing Authority.

The senator said that both nominations were criticized recently in the Republican steering committee. The two are already serving in their new posts through recess appointments—that is, Congress was in recess when they were named.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio), Steering Committee chairman, blocked a vote on Myer's nomination last August 2, the last meeting day of the Seventy-ninth Congress. Taft has privately said that most of Myer's experience is in agriculture, not housing.

Senator Moore (R., Okla.) has repeatedly voiced opposition to Miss Perkins.

BILL TO SCRAP ALL RENT CURBS NOW IN SENATE

O'Daniel's Move Follows Truman's Plea to Extend Control.

LANDLORDS PUSH DEMANDS

Protest Restrictions on Rentals After Order to Free Hotels and Motor Courts.

1947

Washington, Jan. 9 (A. P.).—President Truman's appeal for extension of rent control beyond June 30 collided in the Senate today with a bill to junk the whole program on February 1.

Senator O'Daniel (D.-Tex.) sponsored the legislation to eliminate controls and Senators Wherry (R.-Neb.), Moore (R.-Okla.) and Bushfield (R.-S. D.) lined up in support of his proposal. Several other Senators said that controls should continue but that landlords should be permitted to increase rents as much as 15 per cent.

Spurred by a decision of the Office of Temporary Controls to eliminate ceilings on transient rooms February 15, organized real estate representatives renewed their demands that rentals of houses and apartments also be freed.

"There is not a single reason for motor courts and hotels to get decontrol that doesn't apply to apartment owners," Herbert U. Nelson, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards declared in an interview.

In urging the scrapping of rent controls, O'Daniel recalled that he had demanded the end of all OPA restrictions last June.

Handwriting on Wall.

"After the November election the New Dealers finally saw the handwriting on the wall and got rid of most controls," he said. "I think it's time now, if we want to follow the Constitution, to throw all of them out and turn the Government back to the people."

Senator Tobey (R.-N. H.), chairman of the Banking Committee, which will consider whether to extend rent controls, said that he is reserving judgment until the hearings are held.

So did Senator Buck (R.-Del.), also a member of the committee. But he said that landlords should be allowed a 10 per cent increase in rents. A like increase was suggested by Senator Ellender (D.-La.), as a condition for extension of control.

Senator Capehart (R.-Ind.) said that he favors an increase of up to 15 per cent, and Senator Flanders (R.-Vt.) urged a boost of "say 5 per cent every six months starting now" until economic conditions start rents on the down trend.

Senator Taylor (D.-Idaho) said that if he votes for extension "I also will vote for a reasonable increase in rents.

Senator McGrath (D.-R. I.) commented that it is absolutely necessary to extend restrictions, but that there should be a rent increase.

Wants Evidence of Need.

Senator Cain (R.-Wash.) said that before voting for continuance of rent ceilings he wants evidence to indicate without question whether there is any reasonable excuse for controls.

Meanwhile hotel owners rejoiced over the Government decision to remove ceilings on rentals of transient rooms on February 15. Although some announced plans for early hikes in room rates, M. O. Ryan, Washington representative of the American Hotel Association, said that members would not institute an across the board increase. He added that most increases will be applied to luxury accommodations.

Arthur Newman, president of the Louisville (Ky.) Hotel Association, said that hotel rates there will be increased about 20 per cent.

Rent control will continue over rooms occupied by permanent guests on a weekly or monthly basis. The quota system requiring hotels to rent a portion of their rooms on such a basis will remain the same, announcement by the Office of Temporary Controls said.

"It is as important to keep rent control on these permanent rooms as it is to continue our rent ceilings on apartments," Major-Gen. Philip B. Fleming, OTC administrator, declared. "The rent regulations will continue to offer these permanent guests protection against eviction similar to that provided for apartment dwellers."

The decontrol program for transient rooms will not operate automatically. Each establishment must apply separately and furnish the OPA division of OTC with a list of its permanent rooms. The agency said that application forms will be available at OPA area rent offices shortly after February 1.

Rooming houses are not affected, nor are hotels in the nation's Capital, where rates are fixed by a separate law.

Extended Control Urged

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP)—A Civilian Production Administration official said today the agency has recommended to President Truman that its powers to control tin and synthetic and natural rubber be extended beyond March 31. The agency allocates and regulates use of these materials.

Also recommended, he said, was "possible extension," of controls over antimony and cinchona bark, and of inventory controls which are designed to prevent hoarding of scarce materials and manufactured products.

March 31 Deadline

All other CPA controls over industry, he said, will be junked before March 31, the date set by Congress for termination of the agency's powers under the second War Powers Act.

Even though Congress should refuse to extend any of the controls, the official declared, the agency, as a branch of the Office of Temporary Controls, probably will continue to assist with the Administration's housing program.

The official said CPA's staff would be needed to help carry out enforcement provisions of the non-housing construction limitation. This prohibits the start of new construction on such things as industrial and business buildings, schools and churches without CPA approval.

NEW ECONOMY PLAN IS SET UP

Rockefeller Aims To Boost Standards In Other Countries

New York, Jan. 9 (AP)—Nelson A. Rockefeller today announced formation of the International Basic Economy Corporation, a $2,000,000 "experiment to raise co-operatively the standards of living in other areas of the world using American agricultural and industrial techniques."

The 38-year-old former Assistant Secretary of State said hybrid seed corn and hog production programs already have begun in southern Brazil. Other "companies" now being organized as part of the corporation's activities in that country will introduce modern warehousing methods, fruit and vegetable truck gardening and improved dairy processes. Under study is a program to develop rural transportation facilities.

Rockefeller, for five years coordinator of inter-American affairs, said Brazilian capital was being encouraged to join United States investors "to increase production and availability of goods, things and services and thus to better standards of living." Local capital would assume majority ownership of the individual companies after ten years' guidance by the parent organization.

Rockefeller recently returned from a three-week trip to Brazil, where he said initial response from potential investors and others was "enthusiastic." He reported a number of United States industrial organizations had expressed deep interest in the venture.

To Fight Low Standards

The corporation's activities will be extended into other Latin American countries and, if successful, to other parts of the world wherever low standards of living endanger democracy and private industry, Rockefeller said in an interview.

Rockefeller said, "the Basic Economy Corporation will enter less profitable areas and attempt to prove that financial returns can be realized by employing scientific, modern technical methods.

"United States capitalism and private enterprise producing approximately 50 per cent of the world's goods with only seven per cent of the world's population will have to answer many urgent questions from other less fortunate peoples unless we can justify our favored position.

Exports Exceed Imports

"United States exports over imports now total some eight to nine billion dollars yearly. We cannot maintain that balance unless and until the purchasing power of other nations is raised permanently, not by temporary dollar loans but by helping them to help themselves."

Rockefeller added "food is the basic need of most of our less fortunate neighbors. That is why our corporation is commencing in the agricultural field."

Acheson Agrees To Stay In Under Secretary Job

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP)—Dean Acheson, Under Secretary of State, it was learned tonight, has advised President Truman he will remain in the State Department as long as the new Secretary, Gen. George C. Marshall, feels he is needed.

Acheson had told Mr. Truman and Secretary Byrnes that he wanted to leave some time this month and return to his private law practice.

Mr. Truman is understood to have urged Acheson to reconsider and stay on the job to help Marshall. Acheson agreed to do so. The length of his stay, at least for the next several months, will depend on how long Marshall wants him to stay. Acheson has fixed no deadline.

U.S. TO TAKE REPARATIONS

Two Officials State Plan To Collect In Japan

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP)—State and War Department officials said tonight the United States is determined to start collection of reparations from Japan immediately, even without full agreement on terms with Russia and other wartime allies.

James K. Penfield, deputy director of the State Department's Office of Far Eastern Affairs, said an urgent directive to General MacArthur is under consideration to start removals soon of Japanese industrial plants and equipment.

For Start On Recovery

Howard C. Petersen, Assistant Secretary of War, advised that General MacArthur and the Japanese should be told as soon as possible what levels of industry Japan will be permitted to keep "so that the Japanese can work out their economic recovery on a realistic basis and cease to be a charge on the American budget."

The two officials, discussing United States policy in Japan on a broadcast, said the plan is to advise the Far Eastern Commission of the action taken but not to wait formal approval.

Occupation forces in Japan currently number 124,000 Americans and 40,000 British commonwealth troops, Petersen said.

Accord Called Disappointing

Penfield said agreement has been reached with Russia for the repatriation of Japanese prisoners but said it is "disappointing" that arrangements thus far provide only for 50,000 a month.

The United States, Petersen said, has shipped well over 2,000,000 tons of food to Japan but "we expect her to pay for this." He said some 20,000 bales of Japanese silk have been sold for export for approximately $25,000,000 but the total is considered "disappointingly small."

DR. KOO CALLS FOR QUICK RETURN OF DAIREN TO CHINA

CLEVELAND, Jan. 9—(AP) China's ambassador to the United States, Dr. Wellington Koo, called tonight for a "prompt return" of the Manchurian port of Dairen to China control.

He also asserted the Chinese government could not wait for the Chinese Communists to give their cooperation toward national unity, but must proceed with post-war reconstruction.

In a speech at the opening session of the Cleveland Council on World Affairs' 21st annual institute, Dr. Koo referred to Soviet Russia's half ownership and control of the principal railway across Manchuria, and to the United States' recent note on relinquishing Dairen to Chinese control.

Other Speakers

Tonight's session of the three-day institute, co-sponsored this year by Time Magazine, was devoted to Asia, and will be followed by sessions on Latin America, western and central Europe. Saturday night, retiring Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, will summarize the American position on world affairs.

Navy Secretary James V. Forrestal followed Dr. Koo to the platform tonight with a declaration that "the United States will not withdraw its interest or its influence from either Europe or Asia."

Forrestal said America would "do all it can to succor those in distress," and would strive to maintain its strength as a world power by remaining strong on the sea and in the air.

To maintain America's world position, said Forrestal, "the great majority of this country is agreed on the basic essentials, a balanced budget, confidence in the national currency, retirement of debt, and a strong military establishment."

Dr. Koo said an "admittedly difficult and abnormal situation" in northeast Asia calls for fullest cooperation on both sides. He added:

"Prompt restoration of Dairen, for example, to Chinese control, in accordance with the Sino-Soviet treaty—a matter which has just aroused the interest of the United States government and been the subject to an American note in identical terms to Nanking and Moscow—will be much appreciated by China.

Peace Forum Lists Byrnes

Cleveland, Jan. 9 (AP)—The Institute on World Affairs began its twenty-first annual meeting today—a three-day session dedicated to programs for lasting peace.

Ezequiel Padilla, former Mexican Foreign Minister and a recent candidate for president of his country, was scheduled to speak and was expected to outline his support of American democratic ideals and the United States pattern of government.

An address by retiring Secretary of State James F. Byrnes Saturday night will highlight the institute meeting. He is scheduled to speak on foreign affairs.

The speech — the first since Byrnes resigned—will be carried over a nation-wide network by the national broadcasting company from 10 to 10.30 P.M.

Editor Henry Luce of Time magazine, cosponsor of the institute, will open the first "report from the world" forum tonight with an address on Far Eastern affairs.

Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese Ambassador to the United States and the first signer of the United Nations Charter at the San Francisco meeting, secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal and Dr. Henry P. Van Dusen, president of New York's Union Theological Seminary, will conclude the institute's first program.

'Fear of Hollywood' Seen Big Handicap to Unesco

Benton Says Some Nations Dread U. S. 'Cultural Imperialism'

CHICAGO, Jan. 9 (AP).—William Benton, Assistant Secretary of State, said today that some nations' "fear of Hollywood" confronts the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization in its fight for world understanding.

"Before the Paris meeting we had heard that some of the other nations—particularly some of the smaller nations—feared what they called 'American cultural imperialism,'" Mr. Benton said in a speech to the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations.

"What it boils down to is largely the fear of Hollywood. The very technical genius of Hollywood, which makes its pictures sought after and beloved by the masses of the peoples of the world, terrifies the scholars and intellectuals and politicians in these countries when they hear their children speaking English with an American accent, using American slang, and discussing love, divorce and murder in Hollywood epigrams.

"The great world-wide impact of Hollywood is but little understood here in the United States, and it is greatly feared abroad."

Mr. Benton said despite its small first-year's budget — $6,000,000 — "no experiment in international co-operation ever held less danger or more promise for the future peace and wel lbing of mankind" than the Unesco.

Capital to See Drone Test

Army Air Forces to Maneuver Crewless Bomber From Florida

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP).—The Army Air Forces will show the capital next Monday how it could be bombed with a crewless drone bomber operating from a far-away base.

A B-17 drone will take off from Eglin Field, Fla., fly out to sea, drop a dummy bomb on a target, proceed over Washington and then return to its base—all under the control of the pilot in an accompanying mother B-17 capable of operating the drone from distances up to fifty miles.

Just in case, a pilot and co-pilot will be aboard the drone to take over if the drone and its mother plane have control difficulties.

Prisoner Of War Held In Contempt

Detroit, Jan. 9 (AP)—An alien prisoner of war was convicted of contempt of an American court today in an action reportedly without precedent in this country's legal history.

Tall and slight Rudolph Soelch, 24, fugitive from a California camp, was found guilty by United States District Judge Arthur F. Lederle for refusing to answer questions at the trial of two persons accused of aiding his flight.

The one-time Bavarian chimney sweep, who fought for Hitler in Italy and Africa, was a Government witness against James M. McBride, 40, and his wife, Joan, 42, who also are charged with harboring Soelch.

Earlier a relative of Mrs. McBride told of a fight between McBride and Soelch, who the Government says had come to be rivals for her affections after the couple had helped the former German soldier's escape.

Mrs. Grace Redner, sister-in-law of Mrs. McBride, said the fight took place at her former home in Berkeley on a visit by the three during which they shared one bedroom. She said her husband ordered all three to leave the house because of the fight.

Red Cross Fund Goal Set At $60,000,000

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP)—Basil O'Connor, chairman of the American Red Cross, today set a goal of $60,000,000 for the 1947 Red Cross fund campaign scheduled for March 1 to March 31.

"Never in time of peace has the American Red Cross been called upon to render such extensive services to the military forces at home and abroad and to veterans as are now required by the armed forces as a military necessity," O'Connor said, in a statement.

MAN WHO SWAM ASHORE HELD AS STOWAWAY

Veteran Boarded Ship In Scotland, Left It 11 Hours Off Florida

Detroit, Jan. 9 (AP)—A 26-year-old army veteran, who reportedly plunged overboard from a freighter in the dead of night and swam for 11½ hours to the Florida coast last September, was held by the FBI on stowaway charges today.

Principal in the unique story is William Shaieb, a short, stocky former Detroit amateur boxer.

Harry T. O'Connor, special agent in charge of the Detroit FBI office, gave this version of the story today and added that Shaieb made formal statements supporting it.

Shaieb went into the Army in 1941 and served overseas. He was in France with a tank battalion in the 30th Infantry last summer when he received word that his father was ill at Detroit.

Placed In Handcuffs

Sergeant Shaieb deserted and made his way to Glasgow, Scotland, where he boarded the freighter, Francis Scott Key, and hid until discovered when the boat was at sea.

Ship's officers placed him in handcuffs in the brig pending arrival in the United States.

But when the vessel was off the Florida coast September 27, Shaieb made his spectacular bid for freedom.

He broke the connecting link in his handcuffs in some unknown manner, plunged over the side of the vessel and headed for the distant shoreline.

After 11½ hours in the water, he landed on Miami Beach and then hitchhiked to Detroit in four and a half days.

Released Under Bond

FBI agents in Miami were notified by ship's officers and swore out a stowaway warrant, O'Connor said.

The sergeant was apprehended in Detroit by FBI agents late Wednesday. He was released under $1,000 bond after Federal Court appearance today pending a January 20 hearing on Government attempts to remove him to Florida to face stowaway charges.

Agent O'Connor said it had not been decided whether Shaieb would ultimately be arraigned in Federal Court at Miami or turned over to military authorities to face desertion charges on file against him.

The FBI official said Shaieb would face a maximum sentence of one year and/or $500 fine for stowing away. He declared the FBI's interest in the case originated because the reported stowaway incident was a Federal offense committed at sea.

BY LARRY HAUCK

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., JAN. 9-(AP)-SOVIET DELEGATE ANDREI A.GROMYKO TODAY ACCUSED THE UNITED STATES OF SEEKING TO DELAY THE DRAFTING OF A WORLD-WIDE ARMS REDUCTION PROGRAM.

TAKING THE FLOOR IN THE UNITED NATIONS SECURITY COUNCIL AT THE OPENING OF FULL-SCALE ARMS DEBATE, GROMYKO ATTACKED THE AMERICAN SUGGESTION THAT CONTROL OF ATOMIC ENERGY BE GIVEN PRIORITY, WITH THE DECLARATION THAT THE AMERICANS MEAN THIS:

"EITHER YOU AGREE TO THE AMERICAN PROPOSALS ON CONTROL OF ATOMIC ENERGY AND THEN WE AGREE TO THE PROPOSALS ON WORKING OUT PRACTICAL MEASURES ON THE GENERAL REDUCTION OF ARMAMENTS AND ARMED FORCES, OR--IF EVERYTHING DOES NOT GO SMOOTHLY WITH THE AMERICAN PROPOSALS ON CONTROL OF ATOMIC ENERGY, THEN WE REFUSE IN GENERAL TO OCCUPY OURSELVES WITH THE WORKING OUT OF MEASURES FOR THE GENERAL REDUCTION OF ARMAMENTS AND ARMED FORCES."

"THIS IS NOT THE TIME FOR CONFLICT," NORMAN J.O.MAKIN, AUSTRALIAN DELEGATE AND COUNCIL CHAIRMAN, DECLARED AT THE OUTSET.

MAKIN THEN SUGGESTED A COMPROMISE HOPING TO SATISFY BOTH THE UNITED STATES AND RUSSIA, WHICH HAVE INTRODUCED CONFLICTING MOTIONS. RUSSIA SEEKS TO HAVE A COMMISSION DRAFT AN ARMS-SLASHING PLAN WITHIN 90 DAYS AND THE AMERICAN DELEGATION WANTS CONTROL OF ATOMIC ENERGY GIVEN PRIORITY.

UNDER MAKIN'S PLAN, THE COUNCIL WOULD ACCEPT THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY'S ARMS REDUCTION RESOLUTION AND THEN TAKE THREE DEFINITE STEPS:

1. ESTABLISH, ALONG LINES SUGGESTED BY RUSSIA, A COMMISSION TO PROCEED IMMEDIATELY ON MEASURES TO IMPLEMENT THE ASSEMBLY DECISION AND SET UP INTERNATIONAL CONTROL TO ASSURE REDUCTION OF ARMAMENTS AND FORCES.

LONDON, JAN. 9-(AP)-DR.MAX GOTTSCHALK, DIRECTOR OF THE FOREIGN AFFAIRS DEPARTMENT OF THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE, SAID TONIGHT HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF JEWS MUST RECONCILE THEMSELVES TO REMAINING IN EUROPE, AND URGED THAT "THE DISPLACED PERSON MENTALITY" BE ELIMINATED.

"RATHER THAN WASTE THEMSELVES IN VAIN EFFORTS AT MIGRATION," HE TOLD A NEWS CONFERENCE, "THEY WOULD BE WISE TO RECONCILE THEMSELVES TO REALITY. RESTITUTION OF CONFISCATED JEWISH PROPERTY IS GRADUALLY TAKING PLACE. REINTEGRATION OF JEWS INTO THE COMMUNITIES IN WHICH THEY LIVE MUST BE THE NEXT STEP. THE DISPLACED PERSON MENTALITY MUST BE ELIMINATED. IN ITS STEAD MUST COME ECONOMIC, CULTURAL AND PSYCHOLOGICAL READJUSTMENT."

DR.GOTTSCHALK, EN ROUTE HOME AFTER TWO YEARS IN EUROPE, SAID, HOWEVER, THAT "IT IS QUITE CLEAR THAT MANY EUROPEAN JEWS CANNOT BE HAPPY IN EUROPE."

"SOME SINCERELY WISH TO SETTLE IN PALESTINE, AND OTHERS LOOK WITH YEARNING TO THE UNITED STATES AND OTHER LANDS WHERE THEY MAY FORGET THE BITTER PAST," HE SAID. "FOR THESE THERE SHOULD BE NO HINDRANCE. IN ROME A FEW DAYS AGO I WAS GRANTED AN AUDIENCE WITH THE POPE, WHO EXPRESSED HIS EARNEST HOPE THAT OTHER COUNTRIES WILL FOLLOW THE EXAMPLE SET BY BRAZIL AND ARGENTINA IN WELCOMING IMMIGRATION OF DISPLACED PERSONS."

BERLIN, JAN. 9-(AP)-MAJ.GEN.ROBERT W.HARPER, DIRECTOR OF THE U.S. MILITARY GOVERNMENT'S ARMED FORCES DIVISION, SAID TODAY THAT THE FOUR ALLIED OCCUPATION POWERS HAD "VIRTUALLY COMPLETED" PHYSICAL DISARMAMENT OF GERMANY. HE ADDED, HOWEVER, THAT A "WAR POTENTIAL" STILL EXISTED IN THE MINDS OF SOME GERMANS.

GEN.HARPER, DESCRIBING GERMANY AS "PROBABLY THE MOST MILITARISTIC NATION IN HISTORY," SAID THAT GERMANS STILL MUST BE KEPT UNDER CAREFUL OBSERVATION BY TRAINED ALLIED PERSONNEL AND THE LONG RANGE TASK OF REEDUCATION STILL MUST BE COMPLETED.

BUT HE DECLARED THAT THE NATION, WHICH EVEN AT THE WAR'S END HAD AN ARMY OF SOME 11,000,000 MEN AND AN UNDETERMINED NUMBER OF VOLKSSTURM UNITS IN RESERVE, HAD BEEN STRIPPED OF ITS ARMS "THROUGH A VERY HIGH DEGREE OF COOPERATION AMONG THE FOUR POWERS."

ALL GERMAN WAR MATERIAL WILL HAVE BEEN DISPOSED OF OR DEMILITARIZED BY NEXT JULY 1, HE REPORTED.

"THE GREATEST PROBLEM IN OBTAINING AGREEMENT (AMONG THE FOUR POWERS)," HARPER SAID, "HAS BEEN ON THE QUESTION OF QUADRIPARTITE REPORTING AND INSPECTION OF THE OVERALL PROGRESS OF DEMILITARIZATION, BUT THIS SUBJECT IS NOW BEING RECONSIDERED FAVORABLY."

Truman's 37-Billion Budget Proposal with 'No Tax Cut' Is Blasted by Republicans

PRESIDENT SEES GOVERNMENT IN BLACK NEXT YEAR

Challenges Opponents to Cut Figures and Still Balance Budget.

HIT BY HALLECK

Will Find Ways, Means to Reduce Spending, G.O.P. House Leader Says.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—(AP) President Truman today proposed a $37,528,000,000 spending program for the government in the next fiscal year and Republicans promptly blasted at it as far too high.

Mr. Truman, in an annual message, called his budget realistic and "hard boiled" but Chairman Taber (R-NY) of the House Appropriations committee set out to trim it by at least three or four billions.

"Excessive in many respects," snapped Taber.

Pleads Not to Slice Taxes

In submitting his budget for the 12 months beginning July 1, Mr. Truman coupled with it a plea not to cut taxes. He said that by continuing high taxes it will be possible to show a slight margin in above expenditures for the first time in 18 years."

Chairman Bridges (R-NH) of the Senate Appropriations committee called the message "a cold shock to the American taxpaying public" which had expected "tax reduction, debt reduction and cost-of-living reduction."

However, Rep. Cannon (D-Mo), former chairman of the House Appropriations committee, called it "a timely, sound and constructive program."

Senator Aiken (R-Vt) said that the 20 percent cut in income taxes advocatedn by Chairman Knutson (R-Minn) of the House Ways and Means committee "is out of the question."

Aiken Backs Truman

Aiken, as did several others, proposed going slow on tax reduction in favor of reducing the public debt, as Mr. Truman suggested.

But House Republican leader Halleck of Indiana said the Republicans in Congress "will find ways and means to cut below this budget without interfering with essential government functions."

Mr. Truman estimated the government would wind up $202,200,000 in the black by June 30, 1948, when the fiscal year ends, provided income taxes are left alone. Further he said in his annual budget message, this surplus would swell to $1,800,000,000 if Congress (1) continues luxury taxes now due to come down July 1 and (2) increases rates to wipe out the postal deficit.

These are big "ifs" in the face of Republicans' contentions that they can make a healthy slash in taxes and still balance the budget.

Claims Budget 'Realistic'

Mr. Truman indirectly challenged them on this, saying that his budget "is realistic and as complete as we know how to make it."

At a seminar Wednesday in which he and top-ranking advisers went over the 1,434-page budget with newsmen, the President showed a touch of pride in saying:

"The budget which I shall transmit to Congress on Friday is balanced. If the estimates are realized, the budget will be in balance for the first time since 1930—18 years.

"It is a tight budget . . . No department or agency feels that its needs are fully met.

"In every borderline case, the decisions has been to eliminate expenditures rather than to include them. It has been necessary for us to be more hard-boiled in making many decisions than I like to be."

Aides Can Howl Later

If department heads squealed at Mr. Truman's ideas of economy, they are likely to howl at the Republicans.

It had been commonly reported for several days that Mr. Truman's budget would be around $37,000,000,000 and Senator Taft (R-Ohio) commented that he thought this could be trimmed by $3,500,000,000.

Chairman Knutson (R-Minn.) of the House Ways and Means committee is plugging for a 20 per cent reduction in the income taxes of most people and says "we are going to adopt a budget that will enable us to cut taxes."

"I cannot recommend tax reduc-

Annual Budget Message Of The President To Congress Excerpts

Truman Estimates '48 Fiscal Year Needs

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP) — Textual excerpts from President Truman's message submitting his budget estimates for the fiscal year 1948, which begins July 1, 1947:

Expenditures under existing and proposed legislation are estimated at 37.5 billion dollars and revenue under existing tax laws at 37.7 billion dollars, leaving a very slight margin of surplus.

I strongly recommend that the Congress take early action to continue throughout the fiscal year 1948 the war excise-tax rates, which, under present law, will expire July 1, 1947. . . .

I also recommend that the Congress increase postal rates sufficiently to wipe out the postal deficit.

1.8 Billion Surplus

These recommendations would reduce expenditures to 37.1 billion dollars and increase revenues to 38.9 billion dollars. We would then have a budget surplus of 1.8 billion dollars.

As long as business, employment, and national income continue high, we should maintain tax revenues at levels that will not only meet current expenditures but also leave a surplus for retirement of the public debt.

There is no justification now for tax reduction. At today's level of economic activity, our present revenue system will not yield so much in 1948 as in the current year. We shall no longer collect large sums from the excess-profits tax, and sales of surplus property will decline. . . .

Better Business Assumed

In this budget, it has been assumed that, with minor fluctuations, business activity will average slightly higher than in the calendar year 1946. A recession in business would cause tax yields to drop. . . .

For the fiscal year 1947, it now appears that receipts will amount to 40.2 billion dollars and expenditures to 42.5 billion dollars. The 1-billion-dollar increase in expenditures over the August estimate occurred largely in veterans' programs. . . .

Let me now review the expenditure side of the budget, taking first the large items which practically determine the size of the total.

1. Interest on the national debt will be $5,000,000,000. This is an obligation that must be met.

2.1 Billion In Refunds

2. Refunds due under the tax laws are estimated at 2.1 billion dollars. These are fixed obligations under present law.

These two items total 7.1 billion dollars.

3. National defense is estimated at more than 11.2 billion dollars, almost all for the operating expenses of the Army and Navy.

Though we expect the United Nations to move successfully toward world security, any cut in our present estimate for 1948 would immediately weaken our international position.

This large part of the budget, in my judgment, represents a proper balance between security and economy.

The total so far is 18.3 billion dollars.

Sharp Reduction

4. International affairs and finance will call for 3.5 billion dollars, a sharp reduction from the 6.4 billion dollars required in the fiscal year 1947.

We still have contractual commitments to make good in connection with our loan agreement with the United Kingdom and under the reconstruction lending program of the Export-Import Bank.

We must discharge our occupation responsibilities in Europe and the Far East.

We must provide for war damage restoration in the Philippines and for the relief and resettlement of displaced people of Europe. We must continue to give relief to some other countries which are most urgently in need.

Must Back U.N. Units

The work of the United Nations and the specialized organizations associated with it is of the highest importance. We must not fail in our support. . . .

Our international affairs budget is important for peace, security and our own prosperity. To reduce it would delay the restoration of a peaceful and prosperous world. . . .

5. Veterans' services and benefits will cost more than 7.3 billion dollars. This country has provided generously for the successful return of veterans to civilian life and for the care of the disabled. . . . Veterans' benefits under present law appear to be adequate.

5 Items Total 29.2 Billion

These five items—interest, refunds, national defense, international affairs and veterans—require expenditures of 29.2 billion dollars, or almost four fifths of the total budget.

6. Programs for regulation and improvement of the transportation and communications systems and for development of natural resources will amount to 2.6 billion dollars.

The largest single item is $443,000,000 for the Atomic Energy Commission. Our major effort now must be to exploit to the full the peacetime uses of this great discovery.

About 1.2 billion dollars of the expenditures on these two programs is for public-works construction, and much of the rest is for the promotion of our merchant marine and other aids to transportation. . . .

1.4 Billion For Farms

7. Our agricultural program will amount to 1.4 billion dollars. This includes the price supports guaranteed by law, the conservation of farm land, and our investments in rural electrification. In addition, the Department of Agriculture will continue its program to promote research in agriculture and better marketing methods.

This brings the total to 33.2 billion dollars.

8. The budget programs for social welfare, health, and security, and for education and general research amount to 1.7 billion dollars.

This total excludes unemployment compensation and old-age and survivors insurance, which are financed through trust-account operations that do not appear in budget expenditures.

Rail Retirement Fund

It does include $481,000,000 in payments to the railroad retirement trust fund. More than half of the remaining expenditures is for aid to the aged and other dependent persons.

The rest is largely for protection of public health, for crime control, and for grants to states for vocational education.

9. The Federal housing program is estimated at $539,000,000. The bulk of the housing expenditures is for purchase by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation of guaranteed home loans to veterans and for continued operation of revenue-producing war housing in overcrowded communities.

Our social-security program and our education and housing programs can hardly be considered adequate. . . . I recommend that the Congress lay the legislative ground work now for the needed improvements, including general health insurance and a long-range housing program.

The costs of social welfare, education, and housing bring the cumulative total above 35.4 billion dollars.

The remainder of the budget totals 2.1 billion dollars. Nearly one third is for war liquidation, including the overhead cost of disposing of surplus property.

Business And Labor

The rest is for services to business and labor through the Commerce Department and Labor Department, for general functions of the Treasury, the General Accounting Office, the legislative branch, the judicial branch and the executive office of the President, and for many other items.

These services, with a total cost of less than five per cent of the budget, are an indispensable part of the machinery of the Government.

The budget total of expenditures thus comes to 37.5 billion dollars. . . .

The Federal Government, as shown by the size of its budget, has far greater obligations than at any time before the war. Although the budget reflects the urgent need tion," Mr. Truman wrote. "At the present time, in my judgment, high taxes contribute to the welfare and security of the country."

33 Billions Irreducible

He took the stand that any extra money should be applied against the public debt and said his budget provides for nibbling it down from $260,400,000,000 to $260,200,000,000 in the forthcoming fiscal year.

Mr. Truman is known to consider $33,000,000,000 of his budget as irreducible and the balance to be essential to government services.

Taber thinks the Army and Navy can get along with $8,000,000,000 together, whereas Mr. Truman allotted them $11,587,000,000.

Military Responsibilities High

The Army had asked for about $9,200,000,000 and the Navy wanted $6,400,000,000 for a total of $15,600,000,000. The President's figure for the Army was $6,658,000,000 and for the Navy $4,423,000,000. Such related activities as terminal leave pay and stockpiling of critical materials rounded out the $11,587,000,000 total.

"Expenditures for national defense remain by far the largest category in the budget," Mr. Truman wrote. "We still have large responsibilities arising out of the war. Military occupation in Europe and the Far East must continue."

Mr. Truman takes the view that national defense, fixed charges such as interest on the public debt, tax refunds required by law, international affairs and aid to veterans amount to an irreducible total of nearly $33,000,000,000.

The remainder in the $37,500,000,000 budget covers spending by departments and agencies in programs for which they asked considerably more.

Postal Rates Hike Urged

Mr. Truman plans to ask Congress to raise postal rates to eliminate the annual deficit incurred in carrying the mail. Among other things, indications are that he wants at least to reduce the benefits granted newspapers and magazines through the cheaper, second class mail privileges they enjoy as distributors of information.

Mr. Truman upped his estimates of spending for the present fiscal year ending in June. The revised figure is $42,523,000,000, a billion dollars more than he estimated in August. The President explained that larger-than-expected response to veterans programs was mainly responsible.

By asking no money to operate the draft, Mr. Truman indicated he expects Congress to let Selective Service die March 31. On the other hand, he asked $10,150,000 to start universal training, a point of controversy in Congress.

The Army-Navy funds are calculated to pay for an average armed forces strength of 1,640,000 men, about 500,000 less than in the present fiscal year.

Calls for Less Subsidies

On the farm front, Mr. Truman predicted the government would lose at least $330,000,000 in supporting prices of 1947 crops. He asked Congress for measures to prevent excessive spending on surplus crops and called for a cut in subsidies paid farmers for soil conservation.

Mr. Truman acknowledged that crop support prices would have to be increased, along with unemployment benefits, should there be a drop in prices.

But he took no allowance of one. He said his new revenue estimates are based on the assumption that business activity will average slightly higher than in the calendar year 1946.

He estimated that collection of income taxes from individuals will rise by $483,000,000 to $19,120,000,000 —with the "if" that there is no rate cut. He expects revenue from corporations to drop by $957,000,000 to $8,270,000,000 because of the end of excess profits levies.

Suggests Various Reductions

Mr. Truman's $37,528,000,000 spending figure for fiscal 1948 is about four times greater than the pre-war average. His income figure of $37,730,000,000 is about six times greater.

For atomic energy development in the new year, Mr. Truman set $443,000,000. This compares with $385,000,000 in the current year. The increase is mostly a proper one due to the bringing under one head of activities formerly budgeted in some other categories.

In the field of goverment corporations, Mr. Truman:

Recommended ending the rubber-buying Rubber Development corporation and four lesser agencies.

Proposed to strip the Reconstruction Finance corporation of lending, buying and selling authority not essential to peacetime activities.

Suggested that the RFC and the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation return $379,000,000 of unneeded funds to the Treasury.

Announced that most corporation programs hereafter would produce revenue and should pay the current rate of interest, 1.8 percent, on loans from the treasury, rather than the preferred rate of 1 percent.

Other items included:

International affairs—$250,000,000 for loans, Army administration and relief costs in occupied countries, an unspecified amount for relief in "a few countries still in desperate straits," and $3,510,000,000 for other relief activity and foreign loans and membership in the United Nations, the world bank and other bodies.

Seven Billion For Vets

Veterans—$7,343,000,000 for various services and benefits. This is a reduction of $258,000,000 made possible by a tightening-up and because "no major new programs of assistance appear necessary."

Social welfare—$1,654,000,000 for welfare, health and security. This is an increase of $84,000,000, largely attributed to an expected increase in old age benefits.

Housing and community facilities —$539,000,000, a decrease of $5,000,000 made possible in part by halting subsidy payments for scarce materials.

Education and research—$88,000,000, an increase of $17,000,000 to cover new activities by the Library of Congress, Census Bureau, the Bureau of Standards and the Coast and Geodetic survey.

Agriculture—$1,382,000,000, an increase of $264,000,000 to allow for expanded research, more electrification loans and expected higher costs of crop support prices.

Natural Resources

Natural resources—$1,101,000,000, including atomic energy development under the new civilian control commission and increases for river basin development, dam building by the Tennessee Valley authority and general research.

Transportation and communication—$1,530,000,000, an increase of $625,000,000 to permit increases in airport and highway construction and merchant marine promotion.

Finance, commerce and industry —$426,000,000, an increase of $343,000,000 for more work by the anti-trust division of the Justice department, Federal Trade commission, Federal Power commission, business census and financial aid to business.

Labor — $118,000,000, reflecting a drop of $16,000,000 largely because of an easing of training and placement work by public employment offices.

General government — $1,492,000,000 for legislative and judicial functions and executive department management and control. This carries a reduction of $83,000,000 attributed to lessened costs of disposing of a dwindling amount of surplus goods.

Interest on the public debt— $5,000,000,000.

Tax refunds—$2,065,000,000.

30.24-7295

for rigorous economy in the execution of every program, expenditures are inevitably large. The American people surely will not shirk their new responsibilities at home and abroad. They will supply the necessary funds to meet these responsibilities. . . .

Taxes

I cannot recommend tax reduction. . . . At the present time, in my judgment, high taxes contribute to the welfare and security of the country.

Under the wartime tax system, millions of taxpayers with small incomes are called upon to pay high taxes. When the time comes for taxes to be reduced, these taxpayers will have a high priority among the claimants for tax relief. . . .

In the corporation section of this message, legislation is recommended which will require return to the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts of certain capital funds totaling $379,000,000.

I also recommend that the Congress reconsider the extent to which fees should be charged for services rendered by the Federal Government. . . .

Debt

The public debt reached a peak last February at 279 billion dollars. During the remainder of the calendar year, the debt was reduced b over 20 billion dollars and stoo near 259 billion dollars at the en of December. . . .

The annual interest charge about 5 billion dollars is less tha three per cent of our current n tional income. It is well within ou capacity to pay, particularly if w keep up a high volume of nationa production. . . .

Our debt-management policy designed to hold interest rates a the present low level and to pre vent undue fluctuations in th bond market. This policy has ease the financial problems of recon version for both business and Gov ernment. . . .

Defense

Expenditures for "national defense" remain by far the largest category in the budget. The cost of maintaining the military, air, and naval forces necessary in the fiscal year 1948 will be high. . . .

We still have large responsibilities arising out of the war. Military occupation in Europe and the Far East must continue. The lines of communication and supporting installations for the occupation forces must be maintained. Recruits must be trained as replacements. . . .

I have again urged establishment of a single department of national defense. This is an important step in the search for economy and efficiency in organization and administration of the armed services. . . .

The estimated expenditures of 6.7 billion dollars for the War Department in the fiscal year 1948 include 132 million dollars for public works under supplemental legislation.

The navy expenditures of 4.4 billion dollars also include 77 million dollars for ship construction and public works under supplemental legislation. . . .

Effective defense under modern conditions requires us to push ahead in scientific and technological fields. Toward this end, expenditures for research and development by the Army and Navy are projected at $530,000,000 in the fiscal year 1948—slightly above their 1947 rate.

Similarly, we must keep alive the knowledge of military skills among our citizens. To provide for an orderly expansion of citizen-reserve organizations, expenditures of $308,000,000 are projected in 1948—about two thirds more than the outlays in the current fiscal year when these programs are getting under way. . . .

International Affairs And Finance

The budget for our international program is designed to contribute to a peaceful world and a stable world economy. We have definite responsibilities to our wartime Allies and in occupied countries. Our international lending program is an essential part of our efforts to achieve a world economy in which private trade will flourish. . . .

I urge the Congress to provide adequate support for the international refugee organization, now in process of being formed under the United Nations. It is also necessary that we provide a modest relief program for a few countries which are still in desperate straits. . . .

More than half of our expenditures in the international field in the fiscal year 1948 will be loans for reconstruction or trade expansion. Disbursements will be predominantly under existing commitments. . . .

During the fiscal year 1948, the War Department will incur expenditures for administration and relief in Germany, Japan, Korea and the Ryukyus and for administration in Austria. We must continue to provide subsistence to prevent disease, hunger and unrest, and to provide proper administration, if these lands are eventually to become democratic and self-supporting.

Germans Must Pay

Moreover, shipments of food and other supplies are required to maintain the working efficiency of the populations and to stimulate production. . . .

The recent agreement for economic unification of the British and United States zones in Germany will increase exports from those zones and help to make them self-sufficient by the end of the calendar year 1949. All costs incurred for the support of the German economy are to be repaid out of future German exports as quickly as recovery permits. . . .

Aid for the Philippine Republic includes assistance in rebuilding its economy, payments to fulfill our pledge to compensate partially for war damage and maintenance of training programs for Philippine citizens. The 1947 total includes a Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan of $75,000,000 for aid in financing the current budget of the Republic. . . .

Veterans

Since the main purpose of our veterans' program is to re-establish former servicemen in civilian life, we must carefully avoid types of assistance which would encourage, or unnecessarily prolong, dependence upon Government subsidy.

Any other policy would not only put an intolerable burden upon the taxpayer, but would be a great disservice to veterans themselves. . . .

Social Security

The Federal Security Agency has recently been given broader jurisdiction over the social-welfare activities of the Government. As previously recommended, I favor creating a well integrated, yet flexible, Cabinet department of health, education and social security to supersede this agency.

I hope that the studies already undertaken by congressional committees will result in the prompt expansion and integration of the present social-security system. . . .

The old age and survivors insurance system at present leaves out 40 per cent of those who earn their living. Even greater numbers are outside the unemployment compensation program.

It is unjust to deny these agricultural workers, public employés, and other excluded groups the protection of social insurance. The system should be extended to cover them.

At the same time, retirement benefits for the aged should be liberalized to reduce the necessity for piecing out insurance benefits with public - assistance payments. . . .

I again urge the Congress to enact a health-insurance program which will make adequate medical care available to everyone and provide protection against the economic hardships of sickness. Such a program should be almost entirely self-financing through payroll contributions. . . .

Housing

I have urged the Congress to enact the essential features of the general housing bill which was passed by the Senate last year.

The most urgent immediate requirements are for incentives and aids to private lenders and builders to provide lower-cost housing, especially rental housing, for assistance to local communities in their programs for urban redevelopment and low-rent housing, and for a permanent agency to supervise the major housing activities of the Federal Government. . . .

Education

Our generous provision for education under the veterans' program should not obscure the fact that the Federal Government has large responsibilities for the general improvement of educational opportunities throughout the country. . . .

I have long been on record for basic legislation under which the Federal Government will supplement the resources of the states to assist them to equalize educational opportunities and achieve satisfactory educational standards.

The relationship of the Federal Government to higher education also demands serious consideration. . . . A presidential commission on higher education is studying the matter because of its great importance to the future of the nation. . . .

I recommend again that a national science foundation or its equivalent be established. . . .

Agriculture

Because of high consumer incomes in the United States and the continuing world shortage of many foods, the demand for farm products will doubtless remain strong throughout the fiscal year 1948. Agricultural production goals for the 1947 crop year, with a few exceptions, will call for another year of maximum output.

The demand for American farm products, however, cannot be counted upon to continue indefinitely at the present high level. Under present legislation the Department of Agriculture is required to support prices of most agricultural commodities until December 31, 1948.

We must design our agricultural policies to work toward a better balance of supply with demand and so avoid excessive expenditures for price support.

We should facilitate the transfer of unnecessary farm labor and resources from agriculture to industrial and other pursuits.

We shall need also to devise ways of supporting farm income which will retain export markets for wheat, cotton, and tobacco, and at the same time give the American consumer the benefit of increasing efficiency in farm production.

Shift From Subsidy

A year ago the budget message recommended gradual reduction of these payments (soil conservation) and that recommendation is now renewed. More than 60 per cent of the total payments go to about one eighth of the nation's farmers. . . .

We should shift our effort from this kind of subsidy to providing technical guidance to all farmers for soil conservation and management, along the lines of the Soil Conservation Service and the Extension Service.

I therefore propose that the Appropriation Act limit the conservation and use program for the crop year 1948 to $200,000,000 dollars instead of the $300,000,000 program to which we are committed for the crop year 1947.

This will not affect expenditures materially until the fiscal year 1949. . . .

Atomic

The harnessing of atomic energy was a war achievement and it remains of major military significance.

With the appointment of the Atomic Energy Commission last fall we have entered on a new phase of development. . . . Our aim is to bring the benefits of atomic research to industry and medicine and to enrich standards of well-being.

In line with the shift in emphasis, the atomic energy program, since December 31, 1946, is classified in "natural resources. . . ."

In order to push forward basic research in development and use of atomic energy, I am recommending a program which will involve expenditures of $444,000,000 in the fiscal year 1948. This compares with total outlays of $385,000,000 in the current fiscal year, of which $179,000,000 are shown in "national defense. . . ."

Transportation And Communication

Six years of deferred maintenance and improvement must be made up before the basic postwar needs of motor and water transportation are met.

The highway system, particularly, has fallen far behind the standards which should prevail under conditions of rapidly growing use. Urban congestion is again becoming a serious problem.

Likewise, the enormous expansion of civil aviation since V-J day has thrown an increasing burden upon inadequate airway and airport facilities. An expanded program is essential if undue hazards in the air are to be avoided and if the development of aviation is to continue without serious technical impediment.

At the same time it is hoped to restore pre-war service standards in the postal service. . . .

Still Running Ships

It is the policy of the Government to withdraw from ship operation as rapidly as possible and to dispose of vessels in a manner that will promote a large and effective merchant fleet under our flag. But, since private operators see little prospect of profit in the coastwise trade and much of the overseas traffic is regarded as temporary, Government operations have continued. . . .

As the rapid growth of aviation continues, I believe it is unwise to place the entire burden of expanding, improving, and maintaining the airways upon the general taxpayer. Instead, civil aviation should bear a reasonable share. . . .

Unless legislative action is taken to revise postal rates, the post office deficit threatens to be the largest in history. Mail volume has expanded enormously, but current operating costs have increased even more rapidly. This is the chief cause of the deficit. . . .

Finance, Commerce And Industry

By the end of the current fiscal year, almost all wartime controls of business will have ended. I recommend that the Congress extend the authority for rent control; price control on sugar and syrups, and rice; sugar rationing; export and import controls; priority and allocation controls on a few commodities still in extremely short supply; and a few other minimum controls which are indispensable for the time being. . . .

Labor

The facilities of the Federal Government for dealing with the welfare of labor and with labor-management disputes provide for the encouragement of collective bargaining, administration of laws and regulations to protect the working force, assistance to states in promoting employment opportunities, and gathering of basic labor information.

In my message on the State of the Union, I have asked that the machinery in the Department of Labor for facilitating collective bargaining and expediting the settlement of labor-management disputes be amplified and strengthened. I have included administrative funds for this purpose under proposed legislation.

I recommend also that the Congress authorize grants to states through the Department of Labor for programs fostering safe working conditions. The toll resulting from industrial hazards reduces the productive capacity of the labor force. The new program should be administered by state departments of labor under Federal standards. . . .

General Government

The principal types of expenditures in "general government" are for (1) legislative and judicial activities, and executive management and control; (2) the Government payment toward civilian employés' retirement; (3) other services covered by appropriations which relate to more than one function, and (4) a few special programs necessitated by the war, such as disposal of surplus property, which do not logically belong in any other category.

Expeuditures for these functions in the fiscal year 1948 are expected to decline only moderately from the comparable total for 1947, because they will still include a substantial amount for war liquidation. Such activities will account for more than one third of all the expenditures in this category. . . .

The return of war dead from overseas is a civil function of the War Department which is just getting under way. The total cost of this program is estimated at $234,000,000. . . .

Refunds Of Receipts

Tax refunds will be a large item in the budget for some years to come, largely because of overpayment of individual income tax under the current payment system and settlement of the wartime income and profits tax liabilities of corporations. . . .

The refunds to corporations, attributable to wartime tax liabilities, will be spread over the next several years because of the time required to effect final settlement in many cases where the various carry-back and other relief provisions are applicable. . . .

Civil Public Works

In the budget, construction projects are listed in the programs which they serve. In total the expenditures for civil public works are estimated at 2.1 billion dollars in 1948 compared with 1.7 billion dollars in 1947. . . .

Federal Civilian Personnel

This budget reflects the continuing decline in Federal civilian employment. Federal agencies have reduced their civilian personnel to 2,300,000—including those in the territories and possessions and in foreign countries—from a wartime peak of 3,770,000 in June, 1945. The budget estimates contemplate further reductions. . . .

Three agencies—the Veterans Administration, the Post Office and the Treasury—together have almost as many employés as the 1939 total of 900,000 for the whole Federal Government. . . .

Corporations

I now recommend that the authority of Government corporations to issue guaranteed obligations to the public be repealed and that such agencies be authorized to obtain their funds solely by borrowing from the Secretary of the Treasury. . . .

From now on most corporation programs will be revenue-producing. Accordingly, I recommend that corporations be required to reimburse the Treasury for the full cost to it of money advanced to the corporations. . . .

I recommend that the statutory authority of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation be extended beyond the present expiration date of June 30, 1947. . . .

Cut Borrowing Power

The new charter to be submitted will provide for the repeal of all powers not required for peacetime activities. It will also provide for a reduction of 2.5 billion dollars in the corporation's borrowing authority. . . .

In this budget, I am also recommending return of capital to the Treasury by certain mixed-ownership corporations. The Federal Land Banks will complete retirement of Government-owned capital stock during the fiscal year 1947.

In the fiscal year 1948, it appears that they can repay the outstanding paid-in surplus of $37,000,000. These transactions will return the land banks to the status of cooperative institutions owned by the farmers they serve.

In addition, I recommend a further small retirement of the capital stock of the Federal Home Loan banks.

The corporation supplement to the 1947 budget indicated that the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation could soon begin to retire its capital stock. . . . Accordingly, I recommend that the Congress authorize the corporation to repay all of the 139 million dollars of capital furnished by the Federal Reserve System.

Since the Reserve banks have already replaced these funds from earnings in recent years, the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System has proposed that the Congress at the same time authorize the payment of the Treasury of the 139 million dollars.

Repay 100 Million

I also recommend that the Congress authorize the corporation to repay 100 million dollars of the 150 million dollars furnished by the Treasury Department.

By the close of the fiscal year 1948, after these repayments, the corporation will still have capital surplus and reserves of about 1 billion dollars—the objective set several years ago.

The board of governors has made a further recommendation, in which I also concur, that the Congress repeal the existing, largely dormant, authority of the Federal Reserve banks to make direct loans to industry, releasing to the Treasury the funds reserved for this purpose.

The gold increment fund now includes 112 million dollars reserved for such loans, and an added 28 million dollars has been advanced to the Federal Reserve banks. These sums will be transferred to miscellaneous receipts.

These transfers from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Federal Reserve banks and the gold increment fund will add a total of 379 million dollars in miscellaneous receipts in the fiscal year 1948.

Highlights of Message

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—Some key quotations from President Truman's Budget Message to Congress follow:

SPENDING

Expenditures under existing and proposed legislation are estimated at $37,500,000,000 and revenues under existing tax laws at $37,700,000,000, leaving a very slight margin of surplus.

NEW TAXES

I strongly recommend that the Congress take early action to continue throughout the fiscal year 1948 the wartime excise tax rates which, under the present law, will expire July 1, 1947. I also recommend that the Congress increase postal rates sufficiently to wipe out the postal deficit.

SURPLUS

We would then have a budget surplus of $1,800,000,000 (June 30, 1948).

INCOME

I cannot recommend tax reduction. At the present time, in my judgment, high taxes contribute to the welfare and security of the country.

30.24-7297

DEBT

Interest on the national debt will be $5,000,000,000. Refunds due under tax laws are estimated at $2,100,000,000. National defense is estimated at more than $11,200,000,000.

BIGGEST OUTGO

These five items—interest, refunds, national defense, international affairs and veterans—require expenditures of $29,200,000,000, or almost four-fifths of the total budget.

ATOM

The largest single item (for natural resources) is $443,000,000 for the Atomic Energy Commission. Our major effort now must be to exploit to the full the peacetime uses of this great discovery.

INTEREST

The annual interest charge of about $5,000,000,000 (on the national debt) is less than 3 per cent of our national income. It is well within our capacity to pay, particularly if we keep up a high volume of national production.

NATIONAL DEFENSE

Expenditures for "national defense" remain by far the largest category in the budget. We still have large responsibilities arising out of the war. Military occupation in Europe and the Far East must continue.

VETERANS

Although some amendments to veterans' legislation may still be required, no major new programs of assistance appear necessary.

HOUSING

I have urged the Congress to enact the essential features of the general housing bill which was passed by the Senate last year. The most urgent immediate requirements are for incentives and aids to private lenders and builders to provide lower cost housing, especially rental housing.

EDUCATION

I have long been on record for basic legislation under which the Federal Government will supplement the resources of the States to assist them to achieve satisfactory educational standards.

AGRICULTURE

The demands for American farm products cannot be counted upon to continue indefinitely at the present high level. We must design our agricultural policies to work toward a better balance of supply with demand and so avoid excessive expenditures for price support.

FEDERAL EMPLOYES

Federal agencies have reduced their civilian personnel to 2,300,000 from a wartime peak of 3,770,000 in June, 1945. The budget estimates contemplate further reductions.

Presidential Budget Items In Brief

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—Here, in brief, is President Truman's budget estimate of how the Government will spend and collect in the 1948 fiscal year which starts July 1:

TOTAL OUTGO: $37,528,000,000. This compares with $42,523,000,000 during the current year.

TOTAL INCOME: $37,730,000,000. This would jump to $38,860,000,000 if Congress continues all wartime tax levels as Mr. Truman recommends. Income this year is put at $40,230,000,000.

SURPLUS: $202,000,000. This would jump to $1,800,000,000 if Congress votes to continue wartime excise-tax rates, doesn't cut income taxes as some Republicans propose, and increases postal rates "to wipe out the postal deficit." For this year a $2,293,000,000 deficit is expected.

NATIONAL DEBT: Will drop from an all-time peak of $279,000,000,000 last February to $260,400,000,000 next July 1. The reduction has been made by retiring securities with the huge cash balance built up by the Treasury during the war. A $202,000,000 surplus for 1948 would cut the debt to $260,200,000,000.

WHERE MOST OF THE MONEY GOES: $11,587,114,769 to national defense; $7,342,771,835 to veterans' services and benefits; $5,000,000,000 interest on the national debt; $2,820,129,298 for international affairs and finance; $2,064,803,500 for tax refunds; $1,654,114,593 for social welfare, health and security; $1,602,949,215 for agriculture; $1,532,911,801 for transportation and communication; $1,426,534,322 for general government.

SOURCE OF INCOME: $19,120,000,000 in individual income taxes; $8,269,990,000 in corporation income taxes; $6,118,010,000 in excise taxes (up another $1,130,000,000 if Congress continues the war-excise taxes.)

THE ATOM: $443,000,000 for the Atomic Energy Commission to promote the use of atomic energy. This compares with $385,000,000 being spent this year.

Legislation Proposed

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—New legislation recommended in President Truman's budget message, for which 1948 appropriations are required:

Contributions to new international trade, health and refugee organizations, etc., $75,718,000.

Relief for Austria, Germany, Korea, and a few other countries, $250,000,000.

Increased public assistance benefits, including dependent children, the blind, etc., $73,500,000.

Control of penicillin and streptomycin, $242,000.

Long-range housing program, as provided by the Wagner-Ellender-Taft Bill, $14,000,000.

Census of business, $10,150,000.

Census of mineral industries, $218,000.

Grants to States to foster industrial safety programs, $1,300,000.

Strengthened conciliation and mediation services of Labor Department, $1,295,000.

The following are proposed extensions of existing legislation, for which funds are needed in 1948:

Costs of induction machinery for the proposed universal training program, when approved, $10,150,000.

Benefits for United States civilians injured by enemy action, $138,000.

Extension of rent control, rice and sugar price control, sugar rationing, export and import controls, priorities and allocations of "a few commodities," and a few other controls, $47,610,000.

Mr. Truman also proposed extension of the authority of certain Government corporations, but did not show appropriations since most will be on a paying basis. The legislation:

Extension beyond June 30, 1947 of Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Commodity Credit Corporation and United States Commercial Company.

Reduction of borrowing authority of RFC and Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation.

Increase in limit on RFC loans to States and local Governments for construction authorities.

Uncle Sam Expects $2,400 Take From Bribes—And It's No Secret

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—The Government blandly admitted today it is looking forward to receiving $2,400 in bribes next year.

Also $500 from selling town lots in Alaska.

And $10,040,000 for doing somebody's laundry and dry cleaning.

Those and some other pretty startling items were in the national budget among the receipts which President Truman is counting on to total $37,730,000,000 in fiscal 1948. He hopes.

The Government is playing its cards close to its vest on the bribery item. It took in $5,898 in bribes to its officers in the year which ended last June 30. But who knows how business will be next year? The budget officer put down a cautious $2,400.

Government Keeps Bribes

[It seems that if you give a Federal agent a bribe, and the agent reports you, the Government not only puts you in jail but it keeps the money.]

The sales of Alaskan lots by the United States brought in $603 last year. And by taking in washing and pressing pants, the Government made $22,421,266 in 1946. The budget man cut this figure in half for next year. Maybe it's because soap's coming back; maybe because there won't be so many GI duds to wash.

A nickel here, a nickel there . . . it soon counts up.

Look how: We ought to drag in at least $20 for furnishing fire protection for timber of private owners. Six thousand bucks for admission fees. The nation's commission on pay telephones in Federal buildings—a nice $2,200,000. Vending machines? Put down $8,600; that will pay a congressman's salary for nearly seven months.

No Free Seeds

The effects of army deserters ought to worth $200. "Unclaimed odd pennies in employés pay roll allotment accounts for war savings bonds" — another five grand. There's a $116,200 item from the sale of dairy products.

People just up and donated the Government $218,844 last year, but the pessimistic Budget Bureau figures it won't run more than $10,800 in '48. The income tax collector's shadow fell across his crystal ball.

Congressmen used to send their constituents free seeds. Sorry, Mac, that's all changed now. Seed sales figure out a cool $100.

PRESIDENT CITES 'HARD-BOILED' CUTS

Truman Says Budget Requests for Worthwhile Projects Were Reduced Sharply

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 (AP)—President Truman made the following statement to a news seminar which he held Wednesday to discuss his budget message:

The budget which I am transmitting to Congress is balanced. If the estimates are realized, the budget will be in balance for the first time since 1930—eighteen years.

It is realistic, and as complete as we know how to make it. It is based on a careful study of the needs of the various departments and the funds required to carry out the obligations of the Federal Government under programs established by the Congress.

It is a tight budget. I believe it is fair to say that no department or agency feels that its needs are fully met. In its preparation I instructed the Director of the Budget to require thorough and conclusive justification for every item which he recommended to me. In every borderline case, the decision has been to eliminate expenditures, rather than to include them. It has been necessary for us to be more hard-boiled in making many decisions than I like to be. We have had sharply reduced requests for a number of programs which in my opinion would be worthwhile were it not for our urgent need to cut expenditures.

I have been told by my staff that this budget has been more difficult to prepare than any ever issued before. I can believe it.

The corporations and war agencies have been included in detail in the budget for the first time. Last year we sent up three budgets at different periods of the year. The annual, the war supplement and the corporation. This year they have all been integrated into one budget. For four years the war agencies have been presented in special budget supplements in the spring and only a preliminary estimate of their total was included in the January budget.

In this year's budget, expenditures and appropriations are grouped under a new functional classification in order to present to the Congress and the people a clearer picture of the purposes for which Federal funds are intended. I hope the press will use the new classification. We have put the figures for ten years (1939-48) on this basis. The new classification is a part of a continuing effort to make our budget understandable in spite of its inherent complexities.

ARMS BUDGET IS 11 BILLIONS

Truman Says Any Less Will Weaken U. S. Position

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—President Truman today sent Congress an $11,000,000,000 national defense budget, patterned to the international picture and new techniques of war.

Recommending that the Army be given $6,658,000,000 and the Navy $4,423,000,000 to be prepared at home and carry out commitments abroad in the next fiscal year, with other money for stocking up on critical raw materials for war goods, the President buttressed his proposals with these statements:

1. Some "optimistic assumptions" made in planning for the current year failed to materialize or develop to the extent predicted. As an example, peace treaties have not been concluded.

"Occupations Must Continue"

2. Military occupations in Europe and Japan must continue.

3. By any cut in his estimate for 1948 we "immediately weaken our international position."

4. The advent of new weapons capable of striking vast distances without warning compels provisions for an adequate reserve force of trained men to support the regular armed forces in repelling a sudden initial attack.

5. Defense under the mode of modern war "requires us to push ahead in scientific and technological fields"—so the Army and Navy together should receive $530,000,000 for research, slightly above the rate for this year.

"Larger Forces Required"

6. The present defense establishment requires larger forces, more complex mechanized equipment and more extensive developmental activity than before the war.

Mr. Truman said that the cost of national defense was "high" but that his $11,537,000,000 figure (almost a third of the total budget) was only one eighth of the outlay for the peak wartime year of 1945. And he contended it was a proper balance between security and economy.

It was quite possible that his latter statement was made with an eye on the new Republican Congress where Chairman Taber (R., N.Y.) of the House Appropriations Committee had asserted recently that $8,000,000,000 should be sufficient.

The Army and the Navy both got less in the budget than they had requested, the Navy proportionately less than the Army. The White House whittled about 31 per cent off the Navy's request, about 28 per cent off the Army's.

Where the reductions in operations of the two services will be effected was not clear, pending official analysis of the budgets.

The strength of the combined forces will average for the year beginning next July about what the Army and Navy planned, a total of approximately 1,640,000 men. But the services will have $4,519,000,000 less than they reckoned on when they planned that strength.

Presumably, the savings must be accomplished in such fields as functions of the Army and Navy, operations, scaling down of plans for overseas bases, operation of the fleet and the air force.

Half-billion for Atom Asked

Development for Industry and Medicine Is Listed Under 'Natural Resources.'

Washington, Jan. 10 (A. P.).—The tiny atom is a big item in the new budget. It rates a recommendation for a half-billion-dollar outlay.

President Truman's budget message to Congress today estimated that the new Atomic Energy Commission—responsible for both military and industrial development of nuclear fission—would spend $443,000,000 in the year beginning next July 1. However, provisions for a full $500,000,000 program are made by means of a recommended appropriation of $250,000,000 in money and authorization for the commission to contract for another $250,000,000 worth of work.

Importance Emphasized.

Atomic development, which until recently had been solely a military project, was given a new position under the budetary heading of "natural resources.' Its continued importance as a weapon was emphasized by the President, however, in these words: "The harnessing of atomic energy was a war achievement, and it remains of major military significance."

Mr. Truman added: "With the appointment of the Atomic Energy Commission last fall we have entered on a new phase of development. This commission has assumed direction of the Manhattan Engineer District project (the military unit that developed the atom bomb). Our aim is to bring the benefits of atomic research to industry and medicine and to enrich standards of well-being.

"In line with the shift in emphasis, the atomic energy program, since December 31, 1946, is classified in 'natural resources.' This transfer in the middle of the current fiscal year and the inclusion on a full-year basis in 1948 are major reasons for the increase in expenditures for resource development in both years."

The atomic energy appropriation for the current year was about $375,000,000, a fund transferred to the commission when the Manhattan District was absorbed by it.

New Projects Planned.

The estimated $443,000,000 expenditure for the next fiscal year will include contract costs for the construction of several new research projects as well as the operation of existing facilities.

The commission has contracted for the building of a chain of new laboratories including Argonne at Chicago, Brookhaven at Camp Upton, Long Island, and the Knolls, near Schenectady. These laboratories will be run by private industries or universities under contracts with the commission.

Also operated under the contract system are the older plants, including those at Hanford, Wash., Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Los Alamos, N. M. Los Alamos is where the five atom bombs exploded up to now were assembled.

The commission's own pay roll presumably is a substantial item. About 40,000 persons are employed, all but a handful civilians and many of them technicians and scientists.

—Truman Budget Details—
$1 Out Of Every $5 Earmarked For Vets

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—Veterans will get approximately one dollar out of every five in the 1948 budget sent to Congress today by President Truman.

The funds earmarked directly for veterans' benefits amount to $7,343,000,000 in a total outlay of $37,528,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

This is about $258,000,000 under the estimated expenditures for the current year but still greater than all Government spending in many peacetime years.

Not Including Furlough Pay

The veterans money does not include $250,000,000 tabbed for furlough payments to enlisted men and women leaving the armed services. That expense is chalked up against the Army and Navy under the heading of national defense.

The money assigned specifically to veterans will go for pensions, unemployment compensation, for the expenses of training and schooling veterans, for hospital and medical treatment, other similar benefits and administrative costs. The Veterans Administration calculates that 3½ cents out of each dollar is spent for administration.

VA To Get Bulk Of Funds

VA will receive the bulk of the funds, although the Federal Works agency and the War Department are cut in for expenses of hospital construction and services.

FWA embarked last August upon a $75,000,000 program of providing surplus buildings and some equipment for schools and colleges to meet the needs of ex-GI students. Typical of this work is the conversion of Fort Devens, Mass., near Boston, into Massachusetts State Branch College.

The War Department draws up plans and supervises work on VA's $500,000,000 hospital construction program.

Readjustment Item Biggest

The biggest item for veterans is $3,462,000,000 for so-called readjustment benefits, which include unemployment allowances, education costs and loan guarantees. Other broad categories are pensions, $2,402,000,000; insurance, $73,000,000, and hospitals, other services and administration, $1,326,000,000.

President Truman commented in his budget message that the principal aim of the veterans program is to re-establish the ex-service men in civilian life and asserted that no major new programs of assistance "appear necessary."

INCREASE ASKED IN AIRWAYS FUND

Development In Civil Flying Foreseen By Truman

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—President Truman estimated today that 171,000 civil aircraft will be flying in the United States next year, compared with 85,000 now.

His budget message asked increased funds for airways and navigation aids.

Mr. Truman said the Government should recover a "reasonable share" of the cost of specialized transportation facilities, such as airways.

The new budget calls for $54,552,000 for the Civil Aeronautics Administration to operate the airways, compared with $39,993,000 this year. The proposal for establishment and operation of navigation facilities is $25,194,000 for 1948, compared with $19,622,000.

New Facilities Needed

Mr. Truman told Congress that "air transport will be seriously retarded unless new air-navigation facilities are promptly supplied."

"Inadequate facilities and services have caused serious congestion and a threat to air safety," he wrote. "The expansion and modernization of the airways system provided in these estimates is essential for the continued progress of the industry and could not be reduced without great risk.

"As the rapid growth of aviation continues, I believe it is unwise to place the entire burden of expanding, improving and maintaining the airways upon the general taxpayer. Instead, civil aviation should bear a reasonable share. The Department of Commerce is considering the feasibility of various methods to recover part of the expense from the users."

Increase Foreseen

He estimated that the airways system would increase from 46,750 miles this year to 49,560 miles in 1948. The immediate need, he said, is for instialation of more instrument landing systems "and addition of improved facilities, now available through developments in the field of radar technology."

The budget calls for sizable increases in aeronautical research. Funds for national advisory committee for aeronautics were raised from $26,500,000 to $33,880,000, with an additional $4,543,000 for new construction.

Hike In Postal Revenue Sought

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—President Truman, advising Congress that local first-class postage will revert from 3 cents to 2 cents on July 1, asked today for increased mail rates to erase a threatened record postal deficit.

The cut in wartime rates will result from Mr. Truman's proclamation ending hostilities on December 31, but the White House announcement at that time did not mention it and today's budget message reminder caught Capitol Hill by surprise.

The budget sent to Congress today notes, however, that this will contribute to a prospective $352,000,000 deficit in postal operations for fiscal 1948—more than double the 1946 deficit.

Recommendations Asked

Mr. Truman said he has asked Postmaster General Hannegan to prepare a "comprehensive" recommendation for rate increases, and to make "all operating economies consistent with reasonable service."

"Unless legislative action is taken to revise postal rates, the Post Office deficit threatens to be the largest in history," the budget message said.

"Mail volume has expanded enormously, but current operating costs have increased even more rapidly. That is the chief cause of the deficit."

Wartime Increases End

Besides dropping local postage 1 cent an ounce six months hence, postal officials said, the end-of-hostilities announcement will wipe out these other wartime increases authorized by the Revenue Act of 1943:

A one-third increase in fees on registered mail; a 3 per cent increase on parcel post; and certain increases on special services in connection with registered and insured mail.

The 3-cent rate for out-of-city postage will not change.

The rate revision asked by Mr. Truman might forestall the drop in local first-class postage, and perhaps the other changes as well. The study is virtually certain to explore possible increases in in second-class rates, under which newspapers and magazines move, because the Administration tends to regard present rates as "subsidies."

Rate Investigation Urged

Senator Langer (R., N.D.) already has introduced in the new Congress a resolution to investigate postal rates.

The House post office committee recommended increased parcel post rates last year, but the measure which died in the Senate hands when Congress adjourned.

Total post office operations are expected to cost $1,545,089,250 in fiscal 1948, an increase fo$27,000,000 over the 1947 estimate.

Since the pay roll amounts to 80 per cent of postal costs, recent salary increases are a major cause of the department's difficulties.

TRUMAN FOR END OF 5 CORPORATIONS

Rubber Development Concern Is Chief of Those Proposed for Liquidation Now

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 (AP)—President Truman recommended today the liquidation of five Government corporations and return to the Treasury of $379,000,000 in funds of other corporations.

Government corporations to continue, Mr. Truman told Congress in his budget message, should be "revenue-producing."

Chief of those proposed for liquidation is the Rubber Development Corporation—a possible sign that the Government plans shortly to quit the rubber-purchasing business and restore it to private trade.

Mr. Truman recommended dissolution also of:

The RFC Mortgage Company (a depression-born agency to take mortgages on real estate when private credit was lacking).

The Inter-American Educational Foundation.

Tennessee Valley Associated Cooperatives.

Warrior River Terminal Company.

Would Extend the RFC

The latter company would be absorbed by the Inland Waterways Corporation, while the "residual functions" of the rubber and mortgage corporations would go to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Mr. Truman urged extension of the RFC beyond its mid-year deadline under existing law, but stripped of wartime powers and under orders to reimburse the Treasury for the cost of Treasury funds advanced to RFC and other Federal corporations. These have enjoyed bargain rates on their Treasury borrowings.

The new RFC charter to be submitted for Congressional approval would repeal "all powers not required for peacetime activities," the Presidential message said, and would lop $2,500,000,000 from RFC's borrowing authority. This will not hamper the agency, since its authority approximates $18,500,000,000.

Along with RFC, extension was recommended for the Commodity Credit Corporation, which buys and sells to support farm prices; the Export-Import Bank of Washington, which makes foreign loans; and the Virgin Islands Company, which makes rum and cultivates sugar cane. All are due to expire June 30.

FDIC Banks Called Strong

Most of the $379,000,000 to be drawn into the Treasury from corporations in the fiscal year of 1948 under Mr. Truman's plan would be in repayment of capital by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, whose resources had grown rapidly and whose insured banks, the President said, were in "exceptionally strong position."

All the $139,000,000 in capital lent to FDIC by the Federal Reserve System would be repaid, and Federal Reserve would pass it on to the Treasury. In addition $100,000,000 of the $150,000,000 lent by the Treasury itself would be handed back. This still would leave FDIC with capital and reserves of $1,000,000,000.

Mr. Truman recommended that Congress repeal the authority of Federal Reserve banks to make direct loans to industry—a power seldom used—releasing $140,000,000.

These make up the sum of repayments dependent on new legislation. Another $37,000,000 probably will be repaid by the Federal Land Banks, completing the retirement of Government-owned capital stock.

330-Million Cost Seen For Farm Price Support

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—President Truman today foretold Government losses of at least $330,000,000 in supporting prices of 1947 crops and asked Congress for measures to prevent "excessive" expenditures on surpluses.

The loss forecast was made in the Chief Executive's budget message in which a cut in Government subsidies to farmers for soil conservation also was urged.

Under Mr. Truman's recommendation, $300,000,000 authorized for soil conservation payments in 1947 would be cut to $200,000,000 in 1948.

His estimate of a $330,000,000 loss on price support operations is based on the assumption of "continued general prosperity." He said losses would be much larger should farm markets be depressed.

Does Not Include All

These outlays would not include losses which ultimately might be sustained on surplus wheat, corn, cotton, tobacco and other products which are expected to be stored under Government price-supporting loans to growers.

The losses would result from Government purchase of surplus perishable products expected to be given away, sold at cut-rate prices or wasted for lack of a market. Except for a loss of about $80,000,000 on potatoes, price-support outlays have been negligible this year.

However, with wartime demands declining and with agriculture geared to record production levels, officials have stated that price-support operations might cost as much as $1,500,000,000 annually within two or three years.

New Program Needed

With this prospect in mind, Mr. Truman told Congress that the nation needs farm programs designed to balance supplies with demands so as to prevent "excessive expenditures" for price supports.

"We should facilitate," he said, "the transfer of unnecessary farm labor and resources from agriculture to industrial and other pursuits."

While anticipating increased costs for price supports, the President recommended that Agriculture Department funds for the next fiscal year be cut $73,588,033 from this year's $1,252,159,351.

In urging a slash of soil conservation subsidies, Mr. Truman said most of the money is being paid to farmers who, "because of their strong position in agriculture," would undoubtedly continue the best farm management practices without the "persuasion of a bonus from the Treasury."

He said the Government should shift from the sudsidy program to a less costly program providing all farmers with technical guidance on good soil use.

Would Continue CCC

The President recommended also that the department's $4,750,000,000 Commodity Credit Corporation—the agency which finances the price supports—be rechartered by Congress. It is now operating under a charter for which congressional authority expires June 30.

Other appropriation recommendations included:

The Federal-state school lunch program, $75,000,000, or the same as this year; grower subsidies under the sugar control program, $55,000,000, compared with $53,500,000 this year; the Rural Electrification Administration, $250,000,000, or the same as this year; the Farmers Home Administration for aid to low-income farmers, $171,750,000, compared with $181,789,582 this year; and agricultural research, $78,206,958, compared with $56,375,000 this year.

REPUBLICANS ASSAIL BUDGET

Total Held Too High And Some Call Estimates Misleading

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—Republican congressmen almost unanimously assailed President Truman's $37,528,000,000 budget as too high today and some called his estimates misleading.

Democrats for the most part supported the estimates. But Senator Hatch (D., N.M.), for one, said that "there should be vast savings made in the armed services outlay without impairing national defense if duplication of effort and waste were eliminated."

"Shocking Disappointment"

Chairman Bridges (R., N.H.), of the Senate Appropriations Committee, called Mr. Truman's proposed outlay "a shocking disappointment." The New Hampshire Senator noted that the amount exceeded the $35,860,000,000 originally proposed in the budget message of a year ago.

Bridges expressed amazement at finding "the proposed budget maintaining high wartime levels of taxation and expenditures and a pitifully small reduction in our depressing national debt.

"Without additional legislation returning capital funds of Government corporations to the Treasury," Bridges said, "expenditures in the President's 1948 budget would actually exceed income by approximately the same amount that his budget now contemplates a surplus."

[If Congress agrees, the corporations will kick back $379,000,000 to the Treasury. Except for this, the budget's estimate of a $202,000,000 surplus would be a $177,000,000 deficit.]

"Cold Shock To Public"

"This is a cold shock to the American taxpaying public, Bridges declared.

"On November 5 the people went on record for Federal expenditure reduction, tax reduction, debt reduction and cost-of-living reduction. The President would give them none of these satisfactions."

Bridges said: "The American people willingly paid high taxes and loaned billions of dollars of their savings to fight a two-front war. This is no reason to assume that they will now shift their patriotism to an entrenched bureaucracy.

"I believe that the Republican Congress must now assume the task of reviewing the laws and regulations which allow the President to continue easy spending of public dollars.

"It must look behind profligate [illegible] more for civilian peacetime purposes during the coming fiscal year than is being spent for the same purposes this year. Except for national defense and tax refunds, the Administration proposes to spend $9,721,000,000 more in 1948 than in 1946—the last war year.

Senator Brewster (R., Maine)—The President himself cut $2,000,000,000 off last year's budget by executive order last August. That shows there is always room for reductions. I hope we can trim off $3,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000.

But Senator Aiken (R., Vt.), opposed any tax cut "until we have balanced the budget and have reduced the national debt by a reasonable amount."

Cut "Out Of The Question"

He said the twenty per cent cut in income taxes advocated by Chairman Knutson (R., Minn.) of the House Ways and Means Committee is "out of the question." Aiken said that if Congress does go through with a tax cut "we will be doing well if it averages ten per cent."

As for proposed expenditures, the Vermont Senator said "I had hoped they could be cut to about $35,000,000,000 instead of to $37,500,000,000."

Noting Mr. Truman's no-tax-cut stand, Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.), last year's chairman of the Appropriations Committee, said he had "hoped taxes could be reduced." As for estimated expenditures cited in the budget message, McKellar said only that he favors "the greatest economy possible and the fastest possible return to a peacetime basis."

spending proposals, since the President seemingly has not. It must truly strive to lower Federal spending, taxation, debt and workers' cost of living."

Chairman Taber (R., N.Y.), of the House Appropriations Committee—There are many items for appropriation which do not show the correct picture. For instance, there is $100,000,000 concealed in a transfer from the navy stock fund and $50,000,000 from the clothing and small stores fund. The estimate for expenditures is excessive in many respects.

Representative Cannon (D., Mo.), Former Appropriations Chairman—I don't know where these proposed huge cuts that I've been reading about in the newspapers can be made without effecting a serious danger to the country.

House Republican Leader Halleck (Ind.)—We will find ways and means to cut below this budget without interfering with essential Government functions.

$5,000,000,000 Too Much

Senator Capehart (R., Ind.)—The President's figure is $5,000,000,000 more than Congress will appropriate. Mr. Truman hasn't said anything in any of his messages about reducing Government expenses.

Representative Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio)—The President's budget message is an astounding document. While it seems unbelievable, the only reduction the President proposes in Federal spending is at the expense of national defense, international affairs, and veterans' services and benefits. He actually is asking that the Congress spend $1,771,000,000

TRUMAN BUDGET RAPPED BY BUNTING

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP) Earl Bunting, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, said in a statement today "the $37,500,000,000 budget estimate submitted by President Truman is the most extravagant and discouraging ever proposed in peacetime."

Exclusive of amounts proposed for the Army, Navy, veterans and interest on the public debt, "this budget reflects an increase of 74 per cent over the immediate prewar year," Bunting said.

"For months the public has been looking forward to relief from the burdensome load of our taxes," he added. "If this budget is adopted these hopes go out the window.

"Not only does the President propose nothing in the way of tax relief and nothing in the way of debt reduction, but, actually, in this proposal the government would spend $2,000,000,000 more than it collects in taxes—this difference being made up by anticipated recoveries from the sale of war surpluses.

"It is unbelievable that the American public, through the Congress, will accept such a financial program at this time.

"If the American citizen is to get the tax relief necessary to assure a continuation of full employment and prosperity, it will be up to the new Congress to supply that relief."

BUDGET STARTS TAX CUT TALKS

Cannon Formally Attacks GOP Plan In House

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—President Truman's budget message touched off the first formal congressional speechmaking on taxes today with Representative Cannon (D., Mo.) assailing Republican plans to cut personal income taxes by twenty per cent.

Cannon, who headed the House Appropriations Committee before the Republicans won control, took the House floor and declared:

"Our public debt today is above $259,000,000,000. I am not one of those who believe that it should be passed on to generations 100 years hence, with the possibility of the superimposition thereon of many more billions."

Most Democrats Back Truman

In comments off the floor, most Democrats backed the President's stand against cutting taxes.

Support also came from some Republicans. Senator Aiken (R., Vt.) said he considered a twenty per cent cut in income taxes "out of the question" until the national debt has been reduced.

The twenty per cent slash, advocated by Chairman Knutson (R., Minn.), of the House Ways and Means Committee, has been indorsed by Senator Taft (R., Ohio), a principal Senate policy maker.

Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) said that like Mr. Truman he is "in favor of maintaining the present tax structure."

Would Favor Higher Taxes

"I would vote for even higher taxes if that should become necessary," Thomas declared. "While people are prosperous they ought to pay sufficient taxes to keep the country on a pay-as-you-go basis."

In similar vein, Cannon told the House:

"Our people were never better circumstanced. The banks are surfeited with deposits. Wages are at top levels. Employment is at top levels. Business at present and prospectively has never been excelled in time of peace.

"Does not that all point to the wisdom of making as much inroad upon the public debt as existing sources of income may permit as long as such a healthy state of affairs obtains?"

Not Party Question

Asserting it is "not a political or party question," Cannon said, "it is a question of general national concern, not alone as regards the present but as regards many tomorrows."

"I am for reducing tax rates wherever and as promptly as such a course would appear to be in the public interest," he continued. "I shall need much persuasion, however, to support any move that would reduce Federal income at this time."

Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.), taking note of Mr. Truman's no-tax-cut stand, said he had "hoped taxes could be reduced."

Senator Capehart (R., Ind.) said: "Mr. Truman hasn't said anything in any of his messages about reducing Government expenses. Of course, we can't reduce taxes if we spend the amount he wants to."

U.N. COUNCIL TO SUPERVISE TRIESTE RULE

Charges Filed By British Against Albania Over Mining Of Adriatic

Lake Success, N.Y., Jan. 10 (AP)—The United Nations Security Council today cleared the last apparent obstacle to signing of the Italian peace treaty by agreeing to take over administration of the free territory of Trieste.

United Nations supervision of the Adriatic port, provided for in the treaty drafted by the Council of Foreign Ministers in New York last month, was accepted by the Security Council by a 10-to-0 vote, with Australia abstaining over legal questions.

British Move Against Albania

The treaty is scheduled to be signed in Paris February 10 and then will go to the governments concerned for formal ratification.

Upon acceptance of the treaty the Security Council will name a governor for Trieste and he will be responsible to the United Nations for administration of the territory.

In another development affecting that area, the British Government filed formal charges with the Security Council against Albania over the mining of Adriatic waters off the coast of the Balkan country. Two British ships were damaged in the Corfu Straits last October with a loss of 44 lives and the London Government is seeking an apology and compensation for damages and loss of life.

A Procedural Tangle

The charges were formally filed after fruitless direct negotiations with the Albanian Government and marked the first complaint ever to be filed with the United Nations by Great Britain.

The Security Council took nearly three hours to reach a final vote on Trieste because of a procedural tangle over how it should advise the Council of Foreign Ministers of its action. China raised the issue by objecting to direct notification to Russia, France, the United States and Great Britain, the powers sitting in the Ministers Council on the Italian treaty, with the contention that the reply should go directly to the Council of Ministers itself.

Group's First Vote In 1947

Dr. Quo Tai-chi, Chinese delegate, made it clear that China was a part of the Ministers Council on some questions and thus objected to the direct communication to individual members. The issue finally was settled by striking out all reference to notification and leaving procedure to the secretary general.

In announcing his abstention, Norman J. O. Makin, of Australia, the Security Council chairman, reiterated the Australian arguments that the United Nations had no legal right within the Charter to assume the obligation of administering Trieste.

Today's vote was the first one taken in the Security Council in 1947 and came on the first anniversary of the opening of United Nations sessions in London. That first meeting was of the General Assembly.

Meeting Set For Wednesday

Herschel V. Johnson, United States delegate, took note of the date with a statement declaring that the greatest achievement of the peace agency in its first year was in organizing itself. As other major accomplishments he pointed to setting up of the Trusteeship Council, passage of a basic arms reduction resolution in the General Assembly, "95 per cent unanimity" on the report calling for control of atomic energy, and "increasing areas of agreement" on many issues.

The American representative envisioned progress toward the arms-slashing objective and the control of atomic energy as the major problems facing the United Nations for 1947.

The Security Council adjourned at 5.53 P.M. until next Wednesday at 11 A.M. when debate on the general arms-reduction question will be resumed.

Australia Seen As A Holdout On Trieste

Lake Success, N.Y., Jan. 10 (AP)—Australia appeared today to be the only holdout against the big Power Foreign Ministers' decision to place Trieste under the administration of the United Nations Security Council.

The Council was scheduled to meet late today to accept responsibility for the Adriatic port as its first peace-maintenance project under a governor to be appointed by the Council after the signing of the Italian peace treaty in February.

The big powers now have abandoned hope for unanimity on the decision on Trieste, debate on which began last Tuesday with Australia dissenting on principle.

Time For New Members

At that time, the new members of the Council—Belgium, Colombia and Syria, asked for more time to study the proposal, but since have indicated that they would vote for the project.

Australian Delegate Norman J. O. Makin, the current chairman of the eleven-national Council, argued that there was no specific Charter provision for an administration such as that arranged for Trieste.

Britain, the United States, Russia, France and China, all permanent members of the Council, joined in the counter argument that the Council had broad powers under the Charter to work for the maintenance of peace.

Consulted With Advisers

Before last-minute consultations with his legal advisers, Makin indicated he might abstain from voting. The big powers were assured of at least eight votes on a proposal needing an affirmative majority of seven, and they could probably muster a total of ten.

The Trieste problem was put over on Tuesday until this afternoon in the hope that the vote of acceptance would be unanimous.

Arms-Plan Debate

In the meantime, the Council yesterday began a prospectively long and stubborn debate centering on the United States and Russia over the world-wide arms-reduction program recommended by the General Assembly in December.

The main contenders came to grips immediately, disregarding Makin's opening plea for harmony and an Australian compromise proposal that would put an arms-reduction commission to the drafting task immediately, as demanded by Russia, and also give a free rein for further development of the American atomic-control program adopted by the Atomic Energy Commission. Under the Australian proposal these efforts would converge at some time in the future.

Hutson Resigns

Secretary General Trygve Lie, who is departing today for a three-week aerial tour of Central American and Caribbean capitals, announced the resignation last night of John B. Hutson, of the United States, as Assistant Secretary General in charge of administrative affairs.

Lie said "a number of persons are under consideration" for the post. During the day Lie conferred with Wilson Wyatt, former Federal housing administrator, who was looked upon as a leading candidate.

Silent on U. N. Trusteeship Policy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 (AP)—The report on Pacific island bases made public today by the House Military Affairs subcommittee of the Seventy-ninth Congress, contained but a single reference to the United Nations, saying merely that "many matters will be settled on an international plane" by that organization.

Nor did it mention at all the United Nations Trusteeship Council, or the possibility that any or all of the islands might be placed under United Nations supervision. Instead, the report said at one point that island air landing strips could be maintained at a low cost, "using natives supervised by military government personnel."

The subcommittee recommended that air strips built by the United States "at great cost in blood, lives and money" on the Pacific islands should be "kept in repair and readiness for use at any time." They would be valuable not only for "strategic outposts, but many can be classed as emergency fields for transpacific air travel," it added.

In discussing the former Japanese naval base of Truk, specifically, the subcommittee said:

"All now fully appreciate the magnitude of the threat to our national security which resulted from our acquiescence in the occupation of the islands of the Central Pacific by a militaristic and potential enemy power."

The subcommittee said that "prior to the outbreak of another war in the Pacific, it would be imperative that such sites (as Truk) be developed to the maximum possible degree in order to provide for adequate defense of the atoll."

Austin Appointed To U.N. Atomic Body

Washington, Jan. 10. (A. P.).—President Truman today formally nominated former Senator Warren Austin of Vermont as United States member of the United Nation's Commission on Atomic Energy.

Austin's appointment went to the Senate as the White House disclosed that Bernard Baruch, who resigned last Saturday from the U. N. atomic post had arranged to confer with Mr. Truman this afternoon. Austin also has been nominated as United States representative to the United Nations and its Security Council, a position he has held under a recess appointment.

WYATT WON'T JOIN U. N.

Returns to His Louisville Law Practice After Talk With Lie

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 10 (AP)—Wilson W. Wyatt, former Louisville Mayor who resigned recently as Federal Housing Administrator, said here today he would resume his law practice here instead of taking a post with the United Nations.

Mr. Wyatt returned home last night after conferring with United Nations Secretary General Trygve Lie in New York. Mr. Wyatt had been mentioned for appointment as Assistant Secretary General in charge of United Nations administrative affairs.

"I have no comment to make on my discussion with Mr. Lie," Mr. Wyatt said, "but I'm going back to the practice of law here."

Arabs From Palestine Expected At Conference

London, Jan. 10 (AP)—Britain invited the Palestine Arab Higher Executive Committee today to attend the forthcoming London conference on Palestine's future. Informed sources predicted that the committee would accept and said, in fact, that it had practically agreed in advance to do so.

The committee, these sources said, had agreed to a British demand that the exiled Mufti of Jerusalem must not be named as a delegate.

Since Palestinian Arabs boycotted the first phase of the conference because the Mufti was barred, the report suggested the possibility that a "bargain" had been reached.

Such a "bargain" could include altering Britain's Palestinian policies in favor of the Arabs, but there was no official indication that any policy revision was contemplated.

LONDON SEEKS NEW PALESTINE BARS, REPORT

Wants Stricter Control

Of Mediterranean Ports, Jerusalem Says

Jerusalem, Jan. 10 (AP)—A reliable informant said today that British authorities were seeking tighter control over Mediterranean ports to prevent further immigration of Jews lacking entry permits for the Holy Land.

The informant said the British, presumably in association with French and Italian governments, wished to prevent the sailing to Palestine of immigrant ships described as often unseaworthy and loaded beyond capacity.

[A Foreign Office spokesman in London said that international talks on immigration problems as a whole were being held in Paris with British, French and American participation.

Objected To Sailings

[He said the reason for the conference was that "we had objected to sailings of certain ships from French ports to Palestine, and protested to France, which then suggested this conference. The talks are by no means concerned exclusively with Mediterranean and Palestine problems."]

Censorship restrictions on information concerning uncertified immigrants were tightened. This was said to be due mainly to British failure to obtain from Jewish authorities definite assurances of cooperation in halting uncertified immigration.

In other Holy Land developments today Sir William Gurney, Palestine chief secretary, tendered to Jamal Husseini, vice chairman of the Palestine Arab Higher Executive, an invitation to executive members to attend the London conference on Palestine opening January 21. Palestine Jews and Arabs both boycotted the previous conference.

Assault Reported

A report that four airborne soldiers had assaulted a group of Jews in the outskirts of Tel Aviv was minimized by the military, which said "there was some sort of trouble, but apparently only a minor argument."

Palestine police announced four "known members" of the underground organiaztion Irgun Zvai Leumi were arrested in Rishon Le Zion, where eighteen others were arrested on Tuesday.

David Ben-Gurion, chairman of the Jewish Agency Executive, arrived in Lydda today from London. He went to Tel Aviv prior to resuming work in Jerusalem Monday.

Arab Unit Invited To London Parley

Jerusalem, Jan. 10 (AP)—Sir William Gurney, Palestine Chief Secretary, invited the Palestine Arab Higher Committee today to send an Arab delegation to the London Conference on Palestine, scheduled to be resumed January 21.

Palestine Arabs and Jews both boycotted previous sessions of the conference, which was attended only by the British and Arabs from other countries in the Arab League.

Four More Arrests

Palestine police, meanwhile, announced the arrest of four "known members" of Irgun Zvai Leumi, an extremist Jewish underground organization, in Rishon le Zion, where eighteen others were apprehended Tuesday.

Apparently acting on definite information, the police and military surrounded three houses in the Palestine wine center and quickly arrested the four. A search of four houses and two hotels also was conducted in Tel Aviv, but results were not learned.

The military minimized reports that four airborne soldiers had assaulted a group of Jews at Sarona, in Tel Aviv's outskirts, declaring that "there was some sort of trouble, but apparently only a minor argument."

Ben-Gurion Returns

David Ben-Gurion, chairman of the Jewish Agency Executive, arrived at the Lydda airport from London today and went at once to his home in Tel Aviv. He said he planned to go back to work in Jerusalem on Monday.

[In London, Ben-Gurion conferred with Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech Jones and predicted establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine "within my lifetime."]

Jewish Migration Bent Called Vain

London, Jan. 10 (AP)—Dr. Max Gottschalk, director of the American Jewish Committee's foreign affairs department, says hundreds of thousands of Jews now in Europe should get rid of what he calls "the displaced-person mentality" and stay there.

Gottschalk, returning to the United States after two years in Europe, told a news conference yesterday that European Jews would "be wise to reconcile themselves to reality" rather than make "vain efforts at migration."

Cites Gradual Restitution

He said restitution of confiscated Jewish property was being made gradually and that Jews next must be reintegrated into the communities in which they lived.

Dr. Gottschalk added, however, that for many European Jews who "cannot be happy in Europe" and want to go to Palestine, the United States or elsewhere "to forget the bitter past," "there should be no hindrance."

Quotes Pope On Havens

He reported that Pope Pius XII recently had expressed to him the "earnest hope that other countries will follow the example set by Brazil and Argentina in welcoming immigration of displaced persons."

Dr. Gottschalk expressed belief Palestine could take care of more Jews without any change in its political setup. He said that in Europe anti-Semitism was being replaced by "Jew consciousness," not necessarily harmful. Jews there, he added, "must be assured of safety."

SMERTENKO PLANS TO DEFY BRITISH

Paris, Jan. 10 (A. P.).—Johan J. Smertenko, vice-president of the American League for a Free Palestine, at a news conference here today compared the Hebrew resistance movement to the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

Smertenko said he probably would leave by plane for Britain Wednesday despite a Government decision to bar him from that country. He predicted that Britain eventually would come to terms with the Hebrew Committee for National Liberation, which his own organization supports.

"The American League for a Free Palestine supports the underground resistance movement," Smertenko said. "It supports the whole movement, the whole concept, morally, and it gives financial aid to the repatriation activities of the movement and solely to that."

Questioned by correspondents, most of them British, as to how the league could support underground repatriation without financing underground military action, Smertenko replied:

"We do not give financial assistance to its military activities, not because we don't want to, but because we are an American organization bound by American laws not to give aid to any military activities of any foreign group."

Britain Acts To Take Over Power Plants

London, Jan. 10 (AP)—The Government published today a bill calling for state acquisition of Britain's entire electricity production and supply system, initiating the sixth phase of an 18-month-old nationalization program providing for public ownership of at least seven of the nation's basic industries.

The bill provides for appointment of a central authority to standardize the industry and furnish increased supplies at cheaper rates.

Four Already Nationalized

Four businesses and industries—the Bank of England, civil aviation, Cable and Wireless, Ltd., and coal mining—have already passed into public ownership under the Labor Government's socialist program. A bill for nationalization of inland transport is before Parliament.

Nationalization of the steel industry has been deferred, probably until next year.

Parliamentary observers forecast strong opposition to the measure in the House of Commons, but Government leaders, backed by an overwhelming majority, were confident of passage.

Private Plants Included

Municipally owned electric plants as well as those under private ownership will be taken over by the Government in its program of unification, which, however, will not include the north of Scotland, where state hydroelectric development now is under way.

The electricity bill, expected to be called for second reading in Commons in a few weeks, would create fourteen area boards to distribute electric supplies furnished in bulk by generating plants operating under direction of a central authority.

Informed sources estimated that the Government would pay about $1,400,000,000 to stockholders of 190 private power companies.

Polish Implication Rejected In London

London, Jan. 10 (AP)—The British Foreign Office tonight rejected any implication that Britain's Ambassador to Poland plotted with an underground organization whose purpose was to overthrow the Warsaw Government.

At the same time the Foreign Office announced that the Ambassador, Victor Cavendish-Bentinck, had been recalled to London for consultations on the forthcoming Polish elections, subject of protests from the United States and Britain.

Commenting on testimony of a defendant in a Warsaw high treason trial that the Ambassador was in touch with the underground group and received state and military secrets from its agents, the Foreign Office said:

"We have read the news agency reports of the opening day of the trial of Count Grocholski in Warsaw. We have not yet received the comment of his Majesty's Ambassador in Warsaw on the allegations which have been made.

Answer Authorized

"We are, however, satisfied that Mr. Cavendish-Bentinck has not been engaged in any improper activities, still less in activities directed against the Polish state.

"On the grounds of democratic principle we are unwilling to withhold any evidence which may be required by a court of law and we have accordingly authorized the Ambassador to answer in writing any questions in connection with this case which may be forwarded to him on behalf of the court by the Polish Minister of Foreign Affairs."

The Ambassador was expected in London tomorrow, but the Foreign Office said he would be back in Warsaw within a week. ADD

FRENCH CABINET ORDERS SESSION ON VIET-NAMESE

J. P. DYNAN (N)

PARIS, Jan. 10—(AP) The French cabinet planned a special session tomorrow on the Viet-Nam rebellion in Indochina as advices from the Orient indicated tonight that moderate Viet-Namese were hopeful a settlement might soon be reached.

Fighting in France's Far Eastern colony shifted to the rugged highlands in the interior of Tonkin, where French forces seized the city of Sonia, 130 miles west of Hanoi, and moved to extend their control all the way to the Chinese frontier, 100 miles to the north.

Opposed to Official

An Associated Press dispatch from Saigon quoted a Viet-Namese spokesman as saying that as long as the French high commissioner, Admiral Georges Thierry D'Argenlieu, remained in office, the Viet-Namese would be convinced France intended to rely on force in Indochina. He said the commissioner represented the viewpoint favoring restoration of the pre-war colonial status.

The dispatch said informed Viet-Namese circles in Saigon hoped that when Colonial Minister Marius Moutet reported to Paris on his study of the Indochina situation, a settlement might be reached. Thus far the Viet-Namese consider the mission as a failure.

Moutet, traveling by plane, reached Pondichery, a French colony on the southeast coast of India, in his trip home to report on his two-week inspection trip through Indo-China. He is due in Paris Sunday.

Some Saigon sources, both moderate and extreme, declared themselves in favor of outside mediation, preferably by the United Nations, or by the United States or China.

Reports on the fighting which has been raging in the north since Dec. 19 said Viet-Namese artillery had dropped more than 60 shells into the Lanessan hospital sector of Hanoi, where wounded French soldiers were under treatment, and were pouring mortar fire against French parachutists who last week reinforced the garrison at Nam Dinh, 50 miles southeast of Hanoi.

The report said the French repulsed Viet-Namese attacks at two points on the Hanoi-Haiphong highway, and that motor caravans were rushing supplies along the highway from the sea to re-provision Hanoi.

The size of the forces involved in the mountainous region at Sonla was not disclosed by the French general staff communique which reported capture of the city. Retreating Viet-Namese were said to have kidnaped 100 Chinese residents of the city, including the head of the church group.

The highlands are inhabited largely by the Thai tribes who speak the Laos language and traditionally have been hostile to the Annamites in the lowlands, chief suporters of the Viet-Namese nationalist movement.

Action on Increase

In Cochin China, the colony's southernmost state, most sources agreed that Viet-Namese guerrilla action which has been increasing sharply, would continue to grow as long as military action went on in the north.

A communique of the French high commissioner said authority had been granted to extend the state of siege to any territory in the colony if he regarded "such measures necessary for maintaining public order."

A dispatch quoted Viet-Nam sources, however, as saying guerrilla activities would continue "for 20 years" if the French refused to recognize the movement's nationalist aspirations.

These sources in Saigon, although acknowledging they had no communication with President Ho Chi Minh's Viet-Namese government in the north, insisted the first move for a truce there must come from the French.

Hanoi Hospital Area Shelled, French Say

Paris, Jan. 10 (AP)—French general staff dispatches from Saigon, Indo-China, said today that the Viet-Namese infantry and artillery had renewed their attacks on French positions in scattered sections of Tonkin, concentrating shellfire on the hospital sector of Hanoi.

Reports received last night had said that the three-week siege of the Indo-Chinese capital was lifted by the French military.

Viet-Namese troops today trained their artillery on sections of Hanoi's European quarter containing the Lanessan Hospital, scene of bitter fighting in the first stages of the uprising, and the Pasteur Institute, dispatches said.

The Associated Press correspondent in Hanoi reported that more than 60 shells hit the Lanessan Hospital, causing great damage but no casualties. The hospital was filled with wounded French soldiers.

River Port Is Shelled

Viet-Namese forces ringing Nam-Dinh, strategic Rouge River port 45 miles southeast of Hanoi seized earlier this week by French parachute troopers, rained mortar shells into the town. French and native patrols clashed several times in the outskirts of the port, the general staff said.

French forces retaliated in the Hanoi sector with an attack in the southeastern suburbs which gave them control of the area south of the Hanoi-Haiphong highway to the Rouge river as far south as Thonoi.

The Viet-Namese replied with continual artillery fire on French positions at Pont-Des-Rapides, the French staff said.

SHORTAGE OF COAL HITS BERLIN HARD

R. KASISCHKE (N)

BERLIN, Jan. 10—(AP) Industrial paralysis caused by the shortage of coal spread in Berlin today, but an upturn in temperatures that accompanied the heaviest snowfall of the winter brought partial relief from suffering and death due to the prolonged cold wave.

The central ministry of health said it was making a survey of hospitals to determine the exact number of deaths due to cold. Deaths from tuberculosis rose from 42 to 109 and diphtheria from eight to 19 over the previous week, the U. S. Military Government's health branch said.

Soviet authorities said they were sending 10,000 tons of brown coal (lignite) into the city for factories closing down because of lack of fuel. Schools remained closed.

In Frankfurt the population of 500,000 was virtually out of potatoes, the chief item in their diet, because of the cold which halted transportation and froze large stocks in shipment. Thousands of persons were thrown out of work by the shutdown of industrial plants.

Aid In Reich Youth Program Asked

Berlin, Jan. 10 (AP)—A shortage of supplies threatens the United States Army's popular German youth program and material help must be sought from youth-serving organizations in the United States to set up a new program, the American Military Government said today.

German governments also have been told they must contribute if this program for re-education and democratization of German youth is to continue, said Dr. Norman E. Himes, head of the AMG's special education agencies.

750,000 Enrolled

The current membership is about 750,000 German youths, enrolled in nearly 8,000 groups. GI participation has ranged from teaching German children to organizing and supervising permanent community youth clubs.

Youth activities have flourished, with supplies drawn from excess United States Army stocks, but now these are nearly spent, Himes said. Future supplies must come from captured stocks or from current German production.

Himes said the military government would request the War Department to call a conference in Washington of the chief American youth-serving organizations to draft plans for a new program.

Co-Operation Urged

He said this program would call for voluntary co-operation with the Council of Relief Agencies licensed to operate in Germany in rendering material assistance.

"It is an essential point of military government policy to strengthen the leadership of German youth groups," Himes said, "but it is neither the job of the Army nor the military government to carry out the details of this job.

"However, we will continue to give assistance and exercise supervision over this program until we are convinced that it is operating in a fully self-sufficient and satisfactory manner."

Army Arrests Two In Nuernberg Bombing

Nuernberg, Jan. 10 (AP)—United States Army investigators announced today two suspects had been arrested in connection with the recent bombing of a Nuernberg denazification court.

The investigators said that one of the suspects offered to reveal the identity of a group of persons who, he said, asked him to participate in a plot to bomb several public bulidnigs in the Nuernberg vicinity. This suspect, arrested in Regensburg, was brought here under heavy guard.

The complete uniform of an SS officer was said to have been found in the Nuernberg residence of the other suspect, along with parts of other Nazi uniforms.

The investigators said they had a sworn statement from a witness who claimed to have seen the son of the latter suspect bury what they believed to be explosives in the garden of his home.

Investigation so far was said to have shown no link between the Nuernberg bombing and several bombing incidents in Stuttgart two months ago, for which eleven suspects are now being tried.

No one was injured in any of the bombings and little property damage was done.

Army Gives GI 40 Years For Fake Amnesia Claim

By The Associated Press.

FRANKFORT ON THE MAIN, Germany, Jan. 10—Pvt. Gene F. Jackson of French Lick, Ind., described by the United States Army as the "perpetrator of the biggest amnesia hoax of World War II," was convicted today of desertion and sentenced to forty years in prison.

Jackson appeared in the French zone of Germany last July 12, saying he could remember nothing since he left his unit in France Sept. 27, 1944.

At one time the missing soldier was officially listed as dead.

Miss Helena Deutsch, described in a Third Army announcement as Jackson's "German girl friend," testified that he apparently was normal when she had first met him in September or October of 1945.

The court-martial ruled that Jackson was mentally competent at the time he left his unit.

SPAIN SENTENCES TEN ON REBELLION CHARGE

MADRID, Jan. 10 (AP)—A military court ordered prison terms ranging from two to six years today for ten prominent Spanish Leftists and acquitted two others on charges of "military rebellion."

Regulio Martinez Sanches, a Roman Catholic priest and a leader of the underground Republican party, was sentenced to six years for his alleged participation in a conspiracy to overthrow the regime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco. The Government arrested the defendants in December, 1944.

Also sentenced to six years each were Juan Gomez Egido, president of the clandestine Socialist party, and Sigrido Catala, secretary of the illegal National Confederation of Labor. The two already are serving prison terms of twelve and thirty years, respectively, for underground political activity.

Other sentences were: Five years—Vicente Otero and Fermin Arroyo; four years—Jose Carreno and Col. Adolfo Sprada; three years—Enrique Fraile and Carlos Ruano; two years—Jose Sorni, Isidoro Santos and Enrique Meneses were acquitted.

It was alleged at the defendants' one-day court-martial Thursday that they had conspired in an effort to unite all anti-Franco groups in Spain, with the exception of the Communists, to overthrow the present Government. ADD

Saragat, Foe of Nenni, Says New Party Is Born as Others Plead for Unity

(N)

ROME, Jan. 10 (AP).—Giuseppe Saragat, Socialist President of the Constituent Assembly, said tonight that a new Socialist party has been born in Italy, and acting Premier Pietro Nenni acknowledged that the rift in the party he heads has become "an accomplished fact."

While rank-and-file sentiment in the twenty-fifth national Socialist Congress still appeared strong for party unity, the leadership was badly split over the issue of collaboration with the Communists, suported by party chairman Nenni and opposed by Saragat and his organization of "Socialist Critics."

Some of the party's 114 Constituent Assembly Deputies adopted a resolution calling upon the party to "maintain party unity within the most absolute organizational, functional and political autonomy." This appeared to be an effort to make room for both Saragat and Nenni, but it failed to satisfy the former, who announced that he would stand by his position and then strode from the congress session in the great hall of Rome University.

estine problem favorable to the Jews. A spokesman for the ministry said an attached note stated a similar communication had been sent to the French embassy here.

Roman newspapers said that the similar way in which the two bombs were exploded indicated that Irgun Zvai Leumi in Italy was directed by a central headquarters. A whistle sounded before the bombs exploded.

Today's incidents were the first outburst of violence attributed to the Jewish organization since it acknowledged responsibility for bombing the British embassy here last Oct. 31.

"The vanguard of the Palestine army that is in your country sends you best wishes in the name of the Jewish fighters of Palestine," the leaflets said in part. They were signed: "For our and your freedom. Irgun Zvai Leumi."

LEAFLET BOMBS SET OFF BY JEWS

ROME, Jan. 10 (AP)—Bomb explosions in both Rome and Venice today scattered among startled pedestrians leaflets signed with the name of Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground organization, but caused no damage.

Simultaneously the Italian ministry of foreign affairs received a communication purporting to be from the same organization, threatening a series of terror acts if the government failed to exert its influence on the British government by Feb. 1 for a solution of the Pal-

Vets Urging Scuttling Of Italian Ships

Rome, Jan. 10 (AP)—A veiled appeal to Italian sailors to sink their warships before surrendering them to the World War II victors came today from navy veterans of Rome.

In an "order of the day" protesting terms of the Italian peace treaty calling for breakup of the fleet, once fourth or fifth in the world, but now down to 266,000 tons, the veterans urged the sailors "not to consent to the shame of seeing fly over the ships a banner that is not Italy's."

Of the treaty terms, which leave Italy only two old battleships, four cruisers, four destroyers and some minor units, the veterans said:

"Today, in a peace which had force for its only foundation, the victors seem to desire to repudiate their pledged word and to divide up the ships which they consented to leave fight alongside them for a year and a half (after Italy shifted to the Allies).

Navy "Can Rise Again"

"When that happens," the communication said, "the old sailors of Italy turn to the young ones, who today man our ships, begging them in the name of the dead . . . not to forget that our navy, even if destroyed, can always rise again, and will rise, so long as the spirit which animated its crews remains alive, so long as the hour of its end be an hour of sacrifice and glory, albeit sad.

"But it will never again rise if its sailors consent to the shame of seeing fly over the ships a banner that is not Italy's."

Italian Rebuilding Bond Sales Net Billion

Rome, Jan. 10 (AP)—The financial newspaper Il Globo reported today that the sale of bonds in Italy's "Loan of the Reconstruction," which closed early this month, totaled between 220 and 230 billion lire (approximately $1,000,000,000 at the official exchange rate).

While this fell below earlier estimates, which ranged from 300 to 400 bililon lire, it exceeded the 107 billion lire worth of bonds sold when the Treasury floated its last loan in 1945.

An anti-inflation measure, the "reconstruction loan" received perhaps the widest publicity of any Treasury venture in Italy's history, with thousands upon thousands of posters, countless newspaper and magazine advertisements and hourly radio broadcasts urging the public to buy the 3½ per cent obligations.

ACCUSE EX-UNRRA AID

Trieste, Jan. 10 (A. P.).—Allied occupation authorities announced today that Berry K. White of Marietta, Ga., former senior port representative here for the UNRRA mission to Yugoslavia, was arraigned yesterday before an Allied military court on charges of violating Military Government currency regulations.

The announcement from the Venezia Giulia public relations offices said that Capt. Alexander Robertson, who presided over the court, set White's bail at 250,000 lire ($1,100 at the official exchange rate).

White posted bail and was released pending trial. Details of the charges were not disclosed.

'STRANGE' PLANES FLY OVER GREECE TO SUPPLY REBELS

(N)

C.S. CHARLES

ATHENS, Jan. 10—(AP) A foreign office spokesman said tonight unidentified planes were continuing to violate Greek sovereignty apparently to supply rebel guerilla bands in the north, and that if any more such flights were made, the offending planes would be shot down.

The spokesman said all major powers had been advised of the incidents and the Greek delegation in New York was instructed to inform the appropriate United Nations officials.

British and United States embassies here said they had no report on the matter.

First reports of night flights over northern Greece by unidentified planes were made immediately after the UN Security Council voted to send a commission to Greece to investigate her complaints against Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania and the neighbor nations' countercharges.

An authoritative source here said the flights, frequent and regular, were made particularly over the rugged Mount Pindus range, which bisects northern Greece. The area is west and north of the Thessaly plain, where guerrilla activity was intense last year. Recently, however, the center of operations has moved northward toward the frontiers.

The foreign office spokesman said Greece would be forced, if the flights continued, to take measures provided for "under international law," and defend her territory by having the planes shot down.

Meanwhile, a Press Ministry bulletin tonight quoted dispatches from Drama as saying that Turkish border authorities were taking exceptional measures to prevent the entry of bands into Turkey from Greek Thrace.

Planes Reported Over Greece

(D)

Athens, Jan. 10 (AP)—A Foreign Office spokesman said today that unidentified planes had been flying over northern Greece recently at night, aparently supplying guerrilla bands battling Government troops in that area.

The spokesman said Basil Dendramis, permanent Greek delegate to the United Nations, had been instructed to inform United Nations officials. Representatives of the major powers also have been advised, the spokesman declared.

He added that if the flights continue, "the Greek Government will be forced to take measures provided for under international law" and defend its territory by shooting down the planes.

Both the United States and British embassies said they had no reports on the matter.

Russia to Deliver Newsprint to Greece

Athens, Jan. 10 (A. P.).—The Greek Government announced today the signing of a contract with Russia under which the Soviet Union has agreed to deliver 3,000 tons of newsprint to Greece. Payment will be in pounds sterling.

Refugees Enter Yugoslavia

Belgrade, Jan. 10 (AP)—Tanjug, Yugoslav news agency, reported from Skoplje today that 224 refugees had fled into Yugoslavia from Greece to escape "Monarcho-Fascist terror."

The group had been wandering for many days through the mountains of Greece's Aegean Macedonia and the majority were suffering from cold, hunger and exhaustion and were in very serious condition, Tanjug said.

The dispatch added that peasants in the vicinity of Veles, southeast of Skoplje, had given the refugees first aid, lodging, food and clothing.

Find Diamonds Nazis Stole From Antwerp

Brussels, January 10 (A. P.).—Eight million dollars worth of diamonds, stolen by the Nazis in Antwerp during the German occupation of Belgium, have been found in Germany and will be restored to their owners soon, the newspaper Le Soir said today. The diamonds, the paper added, are now in Brussels.

REDS ASK PARLEY ON SPITZBERGEN

ANF - FEN (N)

Request for 'Special Privileges' Is Made to Norway.

NORWEGIAN

OSLO, Norway, Jan. 10—(AP) The American foreign ministry issued a communique today saying that Russia had made a wartime request for special privileges in Spitsbergen, strategic Arctic archipelago, and indicating that further negotiations could be expected.

A high government official who declined to be quoted by name asserted tonight that no formal request had been received from the Russians for military bases. Earlier, diplomats said the ministry's statement indicated that such a request had been made.

Talk Is Proposed

The official said that the Norwegian government would not have to consider any detailed Soviet demand. He added that the Russians had only suggested that the two countries take up the question of reconsidering the agreement of 1920, giving Norway sovereignty over the islands, since Russia was not a participant when the treaty was signed.

The ministry's communique said "preliminary" discussions were held in London during the wartime exile of the Norwegian government. It did not make clear why the announcement was made at this time.

Spitsbergen was placed under Norwegian sovereignty in 1920 as part of the Versailles agreement, under which Norway promised she would "not create or allow to be established any naval base and not to permit construction of any fortification which might be used for warlike purposes." Russian signed the accord in 1925. The Norwegians call the archipelago Svalbard.

The foreign ministry statement did not specify just what special privileges Russia claimed in the sparsely settled islands, which cover about 24,000 square miles. It said that parliament and the assembly's foreign committee had been informed and that, with the consent of Russia, the government also advised the United States, Great Britain and France of the request.

(A British foreign office spokesman said Britain was aware of "a request from some power" to establish a base at Spitsbergen, but emphasized that Britain had received no request as yet for modification of the accord. However, there was speculation in London whether the terms of the treaty were broad enough to cover air bases. King's bay in the islands has served as a base for many Arctic aerial expeditions.

Involves Other Nations

(A Norwegian spokesman in London said any Soviet request for a base in Spitsbergen would involve all but two of the other signatories to the so-called Svalbard accord, which set forth the conditions for Norway's sovereignty over the islands. The Norwegian attitude, he said, was that if Russia sought to change Spitsbergen's status, she must deal with the other signatories.)

The foreign ministry explained that Russia first raised the matter with the Norwegian government-in-exile in London in 1944. The Soviet position was that, although Russia eventually became a signatory, the Svalbard accord was drawn without her participation.

Preliminary discussions were held between Russian representatives and the exiled government late in 1944 and early in 1945, it said, but both parties were aware that no change could be effected without consent of all but two of the signers, Japan and Italy.

The others were the United States, Great Britain, the British Dominions, France, the Netherlands, Denmark, Sweden and Norway.

Norway's government at the time the question first was raised insisted it could not decide any such question until it was back in its own country and the parliament could meet.

The Svalbard accord, besides providing for Spitsbergen's demilitarization, gave citizens of all states the right to do business and establish industries on the islands.

Norwegians and Russians still are mining coal there, and at one time an American mining company was active in the islands. Norway's resumed operations have produced some 50,000 tons of coal since the end of the war.

In 1917 Russia sought to purchase Norwegian-owned mines in the islands, but the negotiations broke down.

Permit For Base At Spitsbergen Asked By Russ

(D)

ANF FEN

Oslo, Norway, Jan. 10 (AP)—The Norwegian Foreign Ministry disclosed today that Soviet Russia had asked Norway during the war for special privileges at Spitsbergen, and implied that the request was still pending.

Diplomatic circles speculated that the statement was an indirect indication that Moscow sought military bases in the strategically situated Arctic Archipelago.

A Foreign Ministry communiqué said Russia had taken up with the Norwegian Government-in-exile at London in 1944 the question of revising the so-called Svalbard Treaty of 1920 which gave Norway sovereignty over the coal-rich islands 400 miles across the Barents Sea from the Scandinavian Peninsula's north cape.

Special Interest Claimed

Russia claimed special interests in the archipelago, it was said, and stressed that the treaty had been made without her participation.

30-24-7303

The treaty was signed by Britain, the British dominions, the United States, France, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Denmark, Sweden and Norway in Paris on February 9, 1920. Russia signed it five years later.

The Ministry said preliminary discussions were carried on between Norwegian and Soviet representatives during the fall of 1944 and the spring of 1945.

Both parties were described as being aware that no change could take place without the consent of all the signatories, except those powers which joined the Axis (Japan and Italy).

Others Are Notified

Offering no conclusion, the Foreign Ministry said Norway's exiled government had refused to decide the question until it was back in its own country and Parliament could meet again. Now, the Ministry said, Parliamnt has been advised of the request— and with the consent of the Soviet Government—the United States, Britain and France as well.

The statement did not specify whether negotiations were still going on, or the exact nature of the Russian claims.

Russians and Norwegians are still operating coal mines on Spitsbergen. Years ago, an American mining company was active in the islands. Russia almost secured sovereignty over the archipelago through the purchase of Norwegian-owned mines in 1917, but the negotiations broke down.

No Appeal To Britain

[A British Foreign Office spokesman in London said Britain was "aware of a request" from "some power" to establish a base on the archipelago, but emphasized that she had received no request for a modification of the 1920 treaty.

[The accord exacteh from Norway, as a preliminaey to her admission to the League of Nations, an assurance that she would "not create, or allow to be established, any naval base and not to permit construction of any fortification which might be used for warlike purposes."

[There was speculation among legal experts in London as to whether an air base would come under the treaty's prohibitions.]

Move Certain Of Opposition

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—(AP) Claims by Soviet Russia to special privileges in Spitsbergen which were disclosed today in Norway, promise—if pressed—to stir strong opposition from the United States because of the strategic location of the islands.

The Arctic archipalago, across the Barents sea from Norway's North Cape, would offer a new and shorter aerial approach to New York and the industrial northeast across the Arctic frontier.

The Norwegian foreign ministry announced at Oslo today that Russia had asked special rights in Spitsbergen; diplomats in the Norwegian capital said it was believed the Soviet Union wanted military bases.

Mentioned in 1944

Supplementing the Norwegian disclosure, diplomatic authorities here reported that the Soviet proposals first were submitted unexpectedly at Moscow by Foreign Minister Molotov to Trygve Lie in 1944. Lie then was Norway's foreign minister; he now is secretary general of the United Nations. The proposals were said to have since been renewed with vigor, and expanded.

The United States and Russia's other wartime allies were not immediately advised, it was said. A State department spokesman said today that this government since has been kept "pretty well informed," however, by Norway.

No action has yet been taken by McDermott, Secretary Byrnes' special press adviser, told newsmen that the United States as a signatory of a 1920 treaty does have a direct interest in the islands.

Aside from strategic considerations, the Soviet proposals arouse keen interest because of the contrast of their secrecy with the open diplomacy followed by the United States last year in negotiating to retain wartime air bases in Iceland. Russia and Great Britain were formally and promptly notified of this government's intentions.

Compliance by Norway with Soviet requests would mean setting aside the 1920 treaty to which Russia, the United States, and 30 other nations have adhered, by which Spitsbergen was placed under Norway's sovereignty but demilitarized.

Diplomatic authorities, speaking privately, asserted that it has been established that either at the 1944 meeting with Lie or later, Molotov had proposed:

1. Either outright cession or special Soviet privileges on Bear Island, which is separate from the rest of the archipalago and about 300 miles from the North Cape.

2. Joint control of the whole archipelago.

3. Denunciation of the 1920 treaty.

4. A joint Soviet-Norwegian military defense agreement.

Molotov's original proposals were said to have been thus advanced a year before the United States opened negotiations for bases in Iceland which were criticized in Moscow, and also in this country by former Vice President Henry A. Wallace.

24,290 Square Miles

Spitsbergen includes with Bear island a total area of about 24,290 square miles. Although mountainous, military authorities assume air bases could be built thereas they were under difficult conditions by the United States on Ascension island in the south Atlantic.

By air, Spitsbergen is about 3,500 miles from the American industrial northeast, a substantially shorter distance than the flight from Soviet Siberia.

Credited with coal deposits of 9,000,000,000 tons, Spitsbergen figured in British and German wartime fighting to control the convoy route to Russia's port of Murmansk, which the islands flank.

A Norwegian-British expedition in 1941 moved the entire Spitsbergen population of around 2,700 and wrecked the mines to prevent them from benefiting the Germans.

TALK WITH STALIN HIGHLY PLEASING TO MONTGOMERY

E. GILMORE (N)

MOSCOW, Jan. 10—(AP) Field Marshal Lord Montgomery said tonight after an interview with Generalissimo Stalin that the Russian leader appeared in excellent health.

It was Montgomery's first visit to the generalissimo since he arrived here five days ago, and the two men had a lengthy conversation.

(The Moscow radio reported tonight that Stalin was host at a dinner for Montgomery.)

The chief of the British imperial general staff was quoted by Russian officials as saying he was "highly satisfied" with his talk with Stalin.

He repeated to Stalin his statement that he came to Russia as a soldier to establish contact with the Soviet army, looking toward peace time cooperation and friendship.

Thanks Red Army

In a message to the press today, Montgomery said:

"I thank Marshal Vasilevsky and the Soviet army, not only for their hospitality, but also for the opportunity to establish friendly contact with the army of Russia and thus develop in peace time that comradeship between our two armies which was formed during the struggle against the treacherous German army.

"During my brief visit to the Soviet Union, my hosts have been most friendly and generous. I have seen the fine military academies named after Stalin and Voroshilov and Frunze. At these institutions, which greatly impressed me with their efficiency, I was shown everything I wished to see and was given ample opportunity of meeting both staff and pupils and had many frank and interesting discussions with them.

"We soldiers, having completed our common task of defeating the fascist enemy, must now march forward together in the equally important task of helping consolidate lasting peace. Marshal Vasilevski has already accepted my invitation to visit the British army. In the early summer of this year, I hope to see him in London as guest of the British army. I hope he will bring with him some marshals of the Soviet Union with whom I have now made great friends.

"I will be glad to return the hospitality, show them our military institutions and develop further friendly relations already established between the armies of our two victorious countries.

"On behalf of the soldiers of Britain, I send comradely greetings to the courageous warriors of the Soviet army and to the great Russian people."

RUSSIAN BIDS U. S. SHARE CANAL RULE

World Control of Panama Link and of Suez Asked—Black Sea Straits Not Included

E. GILMORE

MOSCOW, Jan. 10 (AP)—Internationalization of the Panama and Suez Canals was advocated today by the New Times, weekly Soviet foreign affairs publication.

"Many states are interested in the Suez and Panama Canals," said the writer, K. Serezhin, in reviewing a book by a French author, André Siegfried, on this topic. "Speaking of the so-called 'equal opportunities' principle, here is just the case in which it should be applied."

Declaring the two canals had become "instruments in the struggle of the Anglo-Saxon bloc for a dominant role in the world," Mr. Serezhin said, "the urgent interests of all peoples require their internationalization."

He drew a distinction, however, between these canals and such international waterways as the Black Sea Straits and the Danube River, saying the latter were of vital significance only for the countries located in their immediate proximity.

"The Suez and Panama Canals, in distinction from the Danube or Black Sea Straits, for example, in their geographical location and character always have been and are genuinely international routes, serving all countries and peoples scattered throughout various parts of the world."

[Turkey, backed by the United States and Great Britain, has declined a Soviet request for a role in the "defense" of the Dardanelles. A compromise was achieved at the Four-Power Foreign Ministers' meeting in New York last fall on the United States and British demand for free navigation of the Danube.]

"Digging the great canals facilitated the development of world transport of the international economic society," Mr. Serezhin wrote, "but, built in the epoch of imperialism, they bear the stamp of the struggle and contradictions between imperialist states, which have turned them into an instrument of narrow aims, an instrument of military and economic pressure on other countries.

"Against this state of affairs a powerful protest movement is arising, primarily in those countries that lost their independence as a result of the domination of the great imperialist powers over Suez and Panama."

This is believed to be the first time internationalization of the Panama Canal has been openly proposed here. The question of internationalizing the Suez Canal already had been broached officially in the Soviet Government's note of last Sept. 24 to Turkey, which stressed what was called the necessity of establishing "international control, with participation of the most interested powers," over such world waterways as the Suez Canal and the Strait of Gibraltar.

'Atomic Fever' Grips Yanks In Tokyo, Says Russian

E. GILMORE

Moscow, Jan. 10 (AP)—Complaining about long delays experienced by Soviet newsmen and other authorized representatives entering American-controlled Japan, Correspondent L. Vysokootsrovsky declared in the Soviet army newspaper Red Star today that "atomic fever" is prevalent among the occupation forces.

"As soon as you arrive in Tokyo," he said, "you begin hearing about the atomic bomb. You hear the most impossible stories. Stars and Stripes writes about it almost daily. In business talks they bring it up first thing. They show documentary films about Bikini. They try to talk to you with the bomb; they frighten you with the bomb by radio and press. You very soon get fed up with all this."

"Some Americans Sober"

Vysokootsrovsky added, however, that all Americans in Japan were not suffering from the atomic disease.

"Despite all the silly propaganda," he said, "a great number of them know how to look soberly at things."

His dispatch, which said he had been transferred from Germany to Japan, asserted that five Soviet newsmen were kept waiting in Vladivostok while awaiting word from General MacArthur about their permission to enter.

"Is it misunderstanding?" Vysokootsrovsky asked. "No, they say that recently such delays have become the system.

Tells Of "Wait For Weeks"

"Soviet representatives to the International Military Tribunal for the Far East waited for weeks for visas to enter Tokyo and officials of the Soviet side of the Allied Council for Japan suffered and are suffering from such shilly-shallying."

Twenty-two days after the correspondents' request was sent to MacArthur's staff, the writer continued, they were informed that a Russian plane was ready. He said they were rounded up by American military police when they landed, but "later were admitted and learned from many gossipers about the 'Red Danger' in Japan."

British Ambassador Is Linked (W) To Treason Case In Warsaw

LARRY ALLEN

Warsaw, Jan. 10 (AP)—A defendant in the trial of four persons charged with treason testified before a military tribunal today that the British Ambassador to Poland received state and military secrets from an underground organization plotting to overthrow the Warsaw Government.

Soldiers armed with machine guns guarded the courtroom as the Government, out to smash the powerful WIN underground organization, opened a trial heralded by the pro-Government press as one that would provide a "sensation of sensations."

The indictment accused the four of conspiracy to overthrow the Government and supplying state secrets to an unnamed "foreign ambassador."

Shortly after a defendant, first witness in the trial, identified "the English Ambassador" as the envoy involved, the three-judge tribunal when into closed session for further testimony. Later it admonished the defendants henceforth to refer to the diplomat in the case merely as "the Ambassador," or "a certain gentleman."

Count Key Figure

The defendants are Count Kawery Grocholski, 43, key figure in the trial; Waldemar Baczak, 24, formerly attached to the Foreign Ministry; Witold Kalicki, 36, captain in the Interior Security Corps which is responsible for protecting members of the Government and Parliament, and a 22-year-old woman, Chrystina Kosiorek.

Baczak, the first witness, whose monotone sounded as though he were reciting lines learned by heart, said he entered a conspiracy with WIN to deliver information to "one of the foreign ambassadors."

Admonished By Court

He asked the tribunal if he could speak freely. The court admonished him to refrain from using names, but before the prosecutor could call for a closed session, Baczac named "the English Ambassador" as the one involved.

Grocholski testified later to his membership in WIN. The abbreviation stands for Wolnosc I Niepodleglosc, meaning freedom and independence. It is one of the most widespread organizations of its kind in Poland.

The Government is asking death sentences for those accused of being ringleaders in a series of other trials now under way. The Government charges that the organization is financed by Gen. Wladyslaw Anders, wartime head of the Polish corps which fought in Italy under the aegis of the London Polish Government in Exile, and that it is carrying on espionage on behalf of "foreign powers." Its aim, the Government charges, is to overthrow the regime by force.

11 Officers Being Tried

Another tribunal is trying Col. Jan Rzepecki and ten other officers on charges of having been appointed by General Anders to organize armed resistance inside Poland and to spy for an unnamed foreign country. The Rzepecki organization, the Government charges, actually was the high command of WIN, and received hundreds of thousands of American dollars through Anders's agents.

In Katowice, a military prosecutor has asked death for five men accused of commanding WIN's southern district and collecting military information "for one of the foreign embassies in Warsaw." Still another trial is under way in Wroclaw, and in Kutno, near Posen, security police have arrested Jan Lewandowski, charged with "serving Anders as well as a certain foreign state." The Government says Lewandowski is a member of Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk's Polish Peasant party.

The Government believes WIN operates in close liaision with the forces of NSZ, the "National Armed Forces," another underground organization whose strength is variously estimated at from 15,000 to 50,000.

Both Grocholski and Baczak testified that initiative for contact between the Ambassador and WIN came from the diplomat. Grocholski told the tribunal he knew the Ambassador for 30 years and recently renewed the acquaintance, adding that he believed the diplomat sought only information in connection with the forthcoming elections.

Poles Accuse British Envoy

2 Treason Trial Defendants Say Diplomat Received Secrets From Underground.

Warsaw, Jan. 10 (A. P.).—The British Ambassador to Poland was named today before a military tribunal as having received State and military secrets from the outlawed underground WIN organization, accused of attempting a coup d'etat against the Polish Government.

The charge was disclosed nine days before the scheduled parliamentary elections. Both Britain and the United States have protested that the arrangements for the elections did not insure free voting.

The British Ambassador is Sir Victor Cavendish-Bentinck, who has been attached to the Foreign Office since 1918 and who was once Assistant Under-Secretary of State. The Warsaw post is his first ambassadorship.

Count Refers to Ambassador.

The key figure in a sensational high treason trial, Count Grocholski, told the military tribunal that he had delivered to the Ambassador information obtained by the underground through a former employee of the Polish Foreign Ministry who is a co-defendant. The indictment charged Grocholski and three others specifically of conspiracy to overthrow the Government in supplying State secrets to a "foreign Ambassador" in Warsaw.

One of the co-defendants, Waldmir Baczak, 24 years old, formerly attached to the Polish Foreign Ministry, identified in his testimony the "English Ambassador."

Defendants with Grocholski and Baczak are Witold Kalicki, 36, a captain in the Interior Security Corps, which protects the lives of members of the Government and Parliament, and a 22-year-old woman, Chrystina Kosiorek.

A British embassy spokesman said that it would be "inappropriate" to comment on the trial while it was still in progress. The Ambassador is flying to London tomorrow. The embassy said that he was called there for Foreign Office consultation regarding Poland's elections.

Gunmen Guard Court Room.

An armored car patrolled streets outside the military tribunal while more than a score of rommy-gunners guarded the court room.

After Baczak, the first to testify, named the "English Ambassador," the three-judge court went into a closed session. It later admonished defendants to refer to the envoy involved only as the "Ambassador" or a "certain gentleman."

The underground organization WIN, meaning "Freedom and Independence," is one of the most widespread in Poland. A series of trials of WIN leaders are under way in which the Government is charging that key defendants, in addition to trying to overthrow the regime by force, acted as spies for "a foreign Power."

Grocholski, 43, told the tribunal that he had known the Ambassador for thirty years and in recent months renewed the acquaintanceship. He declared that the suggestion for contacting the WIN organization, which Grocholski joined earlier, was initiated by the Ambassador. Grocholski insisted that his role in the affair was minor and that the Ambassador apparently wanted information in connection with forthcoming elections. Grocholski, who also is accused of acting as a Gestapo informer during the Nazi occupation of Warsaw, categorically denied that charge.

Documents Reported Burned.

Grocholski was arrested in Warsaw November 17, 1946. The prosecution charged that the Ambassador visited the Count's home three days later while the residence was under surveillance by the Security Police, who had set a trap to check all persons contacting Grocholski. The prosecution said that documents collected by Grocholski for the Ambassador were burned in the home of Grocholski's mother after his arrest.

Baczak, talking like a schoolboy reciting poetry, also testified that the initiative for contact with the WIN underground came from the Ambassador.

Conviction of Grocholski and others on high treason charges would carry the death penalty. The three-judge military tribunal, headed by Col. Marian Barton, is expected to conclude the trials Saturday night.

Most of the staff of the Foreign Ministry's press department turned out for the trials, which pro-Government newspapers said would "prove to be a sensation of sensations."

Grocholski said on one occasion that he delivered two envelopes containing information from Kalicki, to the Ambassador. A Government spokesman said he could not disclose the contents of the State secrets allegedly delivered.

Clouds Of Locusts Invade Jerusalem

Jerusalem, Jan. 10 (AP)—Red clouds of locusts, some of them insects three inches long, swarmed over Jerusalem today for three hours before flying on toward Trans-Jordan.

It was the first time in three decades that the insects of such size and numbers had appeared in the city. Naturalists ascribed the visit to the phenomenally dry weather, which has caused Bedouin tribes to the south to pray for rain.

Britain-Egypt Break Seen

Cairo, Jan. 10 (AP)—Al Ahram, influential Arabic-language newspaper, said today the Egyptian Government could not avoid breaking off negotiations with Britain and was "preparing public opinion now for the second step after failure of negotiations." It did not define the "second step."

Revived Religious Teaching Is Urged

Ankara, Jan. 9 [AP—Delayed]—A demand for revival of Moslem teachings in Turkey, already heard twice during the past two weeks, was echoed again today at the first congress of the Democratic party, Turkey's young opposition group.

Although it is a topic that has seldom been discussed openly since the Government of President Kamal Ataturk did away with veils and fez and many religious traditions of ancient Turkey, the Moslem faith still burns fiercely in the hearts of Anatolians.

One delegate told the congress his constituents in Anatolia wanted the return of religious schooling in primary grades.

"Soon there will be no one left in this country who can read the Fatima (Moslem prayer) over our dead," he declared.

TEHERAN VOTES TODAY

Premier Ghavam's Party Is Expected to Win Major Victory

TEHERAN, Iran, Jan. 10 (AP)—Voters of Teheran will go to the polls tomorrow in the first phase of Iran's national elections, and observers predicted an overwhelming victory for Premier Ahmad Ghavam's New Democrat party.

Government supervisory committees, meanwhile, were setting up election machinery in all the provinces, an official statement said, "except those where recently rebellious tribesmen have not surrendered their arms." Tribesmen recently were involved in an uprising in the south.

Some foreign diplomatic officials in the capital expressed the opinion that the elections would be conducted "completely free of any foreign influence."

Opposing the Premier's adherents is a coalition headed by Dr. F. Mossadegh, who charged last night that the elections were controlled by the Government and were not free. The extreme Right-wing National Will party is headed by Said Zia ed-Din Tabattabai, who is now in jail.

Iraq's Elections Open March 10.

Baghdad, Jan. 10 (A. P.).—The Ministry of the Interior announced today that Iraq's national elections would begin March 10. Three major parties will participate, with the two extreme leftist organizations boycotting the voting.

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 10 (AP)—H. S. Suhrawardy, Premier of Bengal and member of the Moslem League, today assailed as "pretense" the action of the Congress party in accepting the British principle of compulsory grouping of provinces for writing a Constitution for Indian independence.

In the first comment by a leading Moslem League member on the action of the rival Hindu-led Congress party, Premier Suhrawardy said the British should inform the Congress party that its resolution of four days ago "pretends to accept the latest official interpretation of India's independence plan, but does not in fact do so."

He would not express any opinion on whether the Congress party action would bring the Moslem League into the Constitutional Assembly.

The Congress party adopted a resolution on Monday agreeing to the British position that province-grouping under the British plan for Indian independence was compulsory, rather than optional, as the Congress party had previously insisted.

The Moslem League insisted also that the grouping was compulsory. Pandit Jawarharlal Nehru, Congress party leader, said the Congress party action was a step toward getting Moslem League cooperation in drawing up a constitution.

However, Mahomed Ali Jinnah, president of the league, has made no statement on league participation in the Assembly, which is scheduled to reconvene Jan. 20.

Premier Suhrawardy said that the speeches at the Congress party session at which the resolution was adopted indicated that the Congress party "considers the league its enemy and an agent of British imperialism."

"If that is what the Congress party really believes there is really no hope," he added.

He voiced fears that the Hindu majority in the Assembly would be able to "ride roughshod" over the league, creating a serious internal situation that "might have repercussions outside."

13 Are Killed, 110 Hurt In Bombay Riot

Bombay, Jan. 10 (AP)—Three-way communal rioting in Bombay brought death to 13 persons and injury to 110 more in the 24 hours ending at 6 A.M. today, a communiqué issued by the Bombay director of publicity said this morning.

Ten of those slain and 30 of the injured, the communiqué said, were victims of stabbing. Police fired on mobs seventeen times yesterday and reported fifteen cases of arson in addition.

An earlier communiqué said the new outburst of communal violence was climaxed when two trucks crashed into a funeral procession, killing three persons and injuring 50.

The new fighting, which police said yesterday involved three groups of Indians—Hindus, Moslems and the scheduled castes (untouchables) — included stabbings, acid-throwing, the beating of women, stone-throwing and window-breaking.

CHINA TO OPEN TALKS WITH REDS ON DAIREN RETURN

PEIPING, Jan. 10—(AP) China will open formal negotiations with Russia for return of Dairen, Manchurian port, to Chinese authority "in the near future," Gen. Hsiung Shih-Hui declared today.

Hsiung, director of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Mukden headquarters, stopped off in Peiping en route to Nanking for a conference. He said no formal negotiations had yet been held and that Chinese forces which marched to the northern approaches of Dairen some weeks ago still were marking time.

The United States, in identical notes to Nanking and Moscow, urged Monday that the status of Dairen be settled promptly. Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese ambassador to the United States, said last night that "prompt restoration of Dairen" to Chinese control in accordance with the Sino-Soviet treaty of 1945 "will be much appreciated by China."

Russians Hold Port

The Russians have remained in military occupation of the big port since the Japanese surrender. The 1945 treaty provides that it be a free port under Chinese administration.

In predicting negotiations soon, General Hsiung said the Dairen question could not be settled by military operations and the Chinese government would take only diplomatic steps in seeking a solution.

Meanwhile, Hsin Sheng Pao, the newspaper of Gen. Tu Lin-Ming, government military commander in Manchuria, said the Russians had not complied with a Chinese demand for withdrawal from the locks on the Yalu river boundary between Manchuria and Soviet-occupied northern Korea.

The paper said the locks were in Manchurian territory and the Russians had agreed to withdraw.

Other pro-government reports said 35,000 Chinese Communists were attacking government positions along a 25-mile front on the Sungari river in central Manchuria, northeast of Changchun. The Sungari long has been an informal boundary between the rival Chinese groups in Manchuria, where the situation has remained relatively calm all winter.

Communists guerrillas continued active 15 to 20 miles southeast of Peiping, government reports saying they had captured three villages and detailed a train on the Peiping-Tientsin railway.

Marshall Assailed

Gen. Yeh Chien-Ying, Communist member of the Executive (truce) headquarters in Peiping, chose today to lash out at General Marshall.

Yeh said the work of the new U. S. secretary of state in attempting to end the Chinese civil strife "will be investigated at the coming foreign ministers' conference in Moscow in March."

He added that Marshall's role "will be criticized," and that "he cannot evade his responsibility."

(Yeh was blamed by Americans for sabotaging the inquiry into the Anping incident of last summer, in which Communists ambushed a U. S. Marine convoy. In a farewell statement Tuesday, without naming Yeh, Marshall strongly criticized the Communist behavior in that entire affair).

Dairen Parleys Slated Soon

(AP)
T. MASTERSON

Peiping, Jan. 10 (AP)—Gen. Hsiung Shih-hui, director of Chiang Kai-shek's Manchurian headquarters at Mukden, today told Chinese newsmen that formal negotiations with Soviet authorities for return of Dairen to China would begin soon.

Hsiung, who stopped here en route to Nanking, said no formal negotiations have been held yet.

He said national troops that pushed into Kwantung Peninsula north of Dairen weeks ago have not advanced from positions some 15 miles from Dairen where the troops halted to prevent any possibility of incidents with Russians in Dairen.

Bars Military Decision

The Soviets have occupied and administered Dairen since the war's end. An August, 1945, Sino-Soviet treaty provides the city shall be an open port, administered by China.

Hsiung said occupation of Dairen was an international question which could not be decided by military operations. The Government will take only diplomatic steps to find an appropriate solution, he added.

The United States a few days ago asked that the Chinese and Russian governments open the port of Dairen. The request followed the withdrawal from Dairen of a small United States Navy courier vessel twenty minutes after receipt of an ultimatum from the Russian commander. The vessel had overstayed by two hours its 48-hour permit.

Friction At Yalu River

Simultaneously, the pro-military newspaper, Hsin Sheng Pao, said Soviet troops had not complied with a Chinese Government request to evacuate the Yalu River lock. The Yalu is the boundary between southern Manchuria and Russian occupied northern Korea.

The newspaper, owned by Gen. Tu Li-ming, Government commander in Manchuria, reported that after national troops captured Antung, at the border, from Chinese Communists, the Russian garrison continued to guard the lock.

Chao Kung-wu, commander of the Antung garrison, notified the Soviets to withdraw their garrison "and restore Chinese rights of control over the lock, which is in Antung province."

The Soviets were reported to have agreed, but so far have given no signs of withdrawing their troops, the general's paper said.

China Reds Attack On 25-Mile Front

Peiping, Jan. 10 (AP)—Government reports from its new 1st Army today said that an estimated 35,000 Communist troops attacked National positions on a 25-mile front along the Sungari River, 60 miles northeast of Changchun.

Neutral sources said the Government, stepping up its air activity in Manchuria, had taken seven P-51 fighter planes to Changchun, the capital.

There have been predictions of an outbreak of hostilities in northern Manchuria for some time, but today's activity was the first, except for minor skirmishes, for months.

The Sungari river roughly is the dividing line between Government and Communist territory.

Strengthened Communist attacks captured three villages in the Peiping area today, menaced three towns and threatened both the Peiping-Tientsin railroad and highway.

A mine derailed a Government armored train between Anting and Wanchuan, 18 miles from Peiping, and Communists then attacked the train.

Chinese Red Hits Position Of Marshall

Peiping, Jan. 10 (AP)—Gen. Yeh Chien-ying, one of the Chinese Communists' top leaders, today termed General Marshall's farewell summary of the Chinese situation an evasion of his responsibility as peace negotiator.

It was the first Communist reaction to Marshall's strong parting statement, in which the General condemned equally the Chinese Government and Communists for failure to end their civil war.

Yeh, Communist commissioner at executive (truce) headquarters here, and his secretary, Hwang Hwa, predicted at an interview:

"General Marshall's work will be investigated at the coming Foreign Ministers Conference in Moscow in March."

They said his "failure" as a mediator in China will be criticized, declaring:

"He cannot evade his responsibility."

Sun Urges Drastic Changes In China Rule

Shanghai, Jan. 10 (AP)—Sun Fo, generally regarded as the outstanding liberal in the present Chinese Government, tonight urged "drastic overhaul" of the regime and immediate formation of a coalition including all parties.

Sun, chairman of the Legislative Yuan and honored as the son of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, called upon the Communists, the Kuomintang and all other parties to let bygones be bygones and initiate a new inter-party conference looking toward peace and unity.

His statement, issued through the Government's Central News Agency, said selfishness of the Kuomintang and Communists was the prime cause of the present strife.

This statement followed a guarded bid yesterday by Peng Hsueh-pei, Information Minister, to resume negotiations with the Communists. Both were sequels to Gen. George C. Marshall's parting statement blaming extremists on both sides for China's civil war.

Motivation of the new maneuvers was questioned by foreign observers, who said nothing was likely to result unless the Communists would recede from their demands for scrapping the recently adopted constitution and returning to the territorial status of a year ago.

Misappropriation Ends Relief Agency

Shanghai, Jan. 10 (AP)—The Chinese National Relief and Rehabilitation Administration's engineering works here will be liquidated this month because of the misappropriation of an estimated 1,000,000,000 Chinese dollars (about $300,000) in property.

Charges of misappropriating part of the property have been filed against an Australian, Hubert R. Heath, and six Chinese.

Stuart Role Grows In China

H. MIMS

Nanking, Jan. 10 (AP)—United States Ambassador John Leighton Stuart's importance in China appears to be increased, rather than lessened as hinted in some quarters, by the departure of General Marshall to become United States Secretary of State.

Stuart will continue to head the embassy as long as his services are needed, an official said today.

Stuart without doubt has better connections with both Chiang Kai-shek and the Chinese Communists than any other foreigner in China.

Respected On Both Sides

His status with China's ruling family almost is that of a brother. Informed sources agree he is one of the few foreigners able to give the Generalissimo advice.

The Communists likewise respect and trust Stuart's judgment and frequently confer with him.

A suggestion made in Washington that Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, former United States commander in China, might succeed Stuart received little enthusiasm in Nanking. Wedemeyer, while popular with Chinese officials and considered able because of his wide knowledge of Chinese affairs, was a particular target of Communist anti-American propaganda.

Wedemeyer Called Partial

The propagandists blamed him directly for giving military aid to the national armies.

General reaction of foreign observers here to a peace statement by Peng Hsueh-pei was that the Minister of Information was shadow boxing in another effort to convince world opinion that the Kuomintang (Government party) is blameless for the stalemate in truce negotiations with the Communists.

Peng said the Government "is willing to discuss with the Communists a complete plan for the cessation of hostilities" but the latter said they had not been approached.

Murder Of Civilians On Wake Told At Trial

Tokyo, Jan. 10 (AP)—Master Sergeant Jesse L. Stewart, United State Marine survivor of Wake Island, today told the International War Crimes Tribunal:

On October 7, 1943, the Japanese commander, fearing the Americans would recapture the island, sent an interpreter to tell 96 United States civilian prisoners—all that remained on Wake—"to put on their best clothes as they were being sent to the United States."

Instead, the prisoners were lined up and slain by rifle fire.

Forrestal Cites U.S. Aims Until U.N. Succeeds

Cleveland, Jan. 10 (AP)—The United States "will remain militarily strong," says Navy Secretary James V. Forrestal, "until the United Nations is a going business."

And then, he told the World Affairs Forum last night, "it will devote such portions of its military power as is appropriate and necessary to give effective force to the sanctions of that organization."

Another speaker at the opening session of the twenty-first institute of the Cleveland Council on World Affairs, Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese Ambassador to the United States, declared that "if (China's) national unification cannot be completed today because of the uncomprising and selfish attitude of the Communists, there is no sound reason why China should not go ahead with her national reconstruction."

Latin America Next Topic

With these keynotes sounded in the session devoted to Asia, the institute today turned its attention to Latin America and western Europe. Today's sessions present Sumner Welles, former United States Under Secretary of State, and Ezequiel Padilla, former Foreign Minister of Mexico. Among speakers on tonight's program on western Europe will be the Italian Premier, Alcide de Gasperi.

Forrestal declared "the United States will not withdraw its interest or its influence from either Europe or Asia," and that in maintaining our military strength, "specifically we must keep the air-sea power of an efficient and mobile Navy, a strong strategic Air Force, and backing them up, a trained and modern Army capable of swift expansion."

Manchurian Situation Discussed

Dr. Koo described "the re-entry of Russia in Manchuria, with half ownership and control of the principal railway in that vast Chinese territory from the west to the east and from Harbin to Dairen and Port Arthur" as a "re-creation of servitude" which "naturally remains a matter of great concern to China."

Russia's presence in Manchuria, he said, was the result of an agreement at the Yalta conference, to which China was not invited. He recalled, however, that China had "formalized that part of the Yalta agreement" by a pact with Russia.

A "prompt restoration of Dairen" to Chinese control . . . will be much appreciated by China," said the Ambassador.

Arms Cannot Assure Safety Of Any Nation, Says Bradley

Cleveland, Jan. 10 (AP)—Gen. Omar N. Bradley said tonight no nation can assure its safety by stockpiling new weapons of mass destruction or through "buffer states" and island bases.

The American plan for international atomic control may become the only adequate guarantee of security" for nations, he declared, if it succeeds and then is applied to other armament.

"If nations contend that international inspection and control would infringe on their sovereign rights," he added, "I can only reply that it is a cheap price to pay for peace."

The General spoke at the twenty-first annual institute of the Cleveland Council on World Affairs, which had as tonight's theme: "Western Europe."

Speaks As Soldier

Bradley, wartime commander of the 12th Army Group in Europe and now veterans' administrator, emphasized that he spoke not as a Government representative but as "one American soldier fearful of the tragedy another war could bring" in his speech for the Foreign Affairs Forum here.

"Out of the laboratories of science has come proof that there are no longer any safe hideouts," Bradley said.

"The capacities of science are not only unlimited, but they are also available to the many nations throughout the earth.

"We can reasonably say that we shall find no adequate security against long-range rocket bombardment in the creation of buffer states and in the acquisition of island bases. We have finished the last great war where natural barriers can serve as effective defenses.

"And we shall find no thoroughly adequate security by pledging or pooling our military strength in the United Nations.

"When the United States submitted to United Nations its proposal for international control of the atom bomb, it devised a pattern for what may become the only adequate guarantee of security among nation states.

"If such a plan proved effective in control of the atom bomb, we might ask if it would not also work on all weapons of mass destruction. And if eventually it were applied with success to all other armaments, international inspection and control could, in time, provide nations with the adequate security guarantees they would require for safe reductions of their armies and navies.

Research Would Go On

"Without this assurance the United States has no choice but to keep its arms and to point its research toward the development of new weapons that may offer us at least a partial measure of armed security!"

Bradley said that to preserve the independence of smaller nations and to protect their freedom of economic and political self-determination, "we must strive for an economic stability in Europe that will free those nations from excessive dependence on either the United States or Russia."

"Our continuing foreign policy can be neither a pro-Soviet nor anti-Soviet, a pro-British nor anti-British policy of statesmanship," he added. "The United States has reached maturity in its conduct of world affairs. We dare not consent to any policy which would split the world into spheres of influence."

Premier Alcide de Gasperi of Italy told the international Forum that his country needs adequate aid immediately to prevent war's "tragic heritage" from becoming "a chronic and incurable disturbance."

Declaring that "when a nation is reduced to poverty and degredation," a "healthy system of democracy at home cannot be effectively secured," de Gasperi disavowed any intention of making a "formal appeal against international decisions," but added:

"I know that American public opinion was with me when I stated in Paris that I was not willing to share the moral responsibility of humiliating and punitive terms of peace."

Byrnes To Speak

Throughout the three-day institute, cosponsored this year by Time magazine, speakers have discussed what the world expects of the United States and what the United States is going to do about it. The American position will be summed up tomorrow night by James F. Byrnes, retiring Secretary of State; Arthur H. Vandenberg, Senate foreign relations chairman, and Francis Cardinal Spellman, of New York.

Russian Chief in Korea Moves to End Impasse

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—The State Department disclosed today a new exchange of letters between the Soviet and American commanders in Korea aimed at reopening talks on the creation of a trusteeship pending self-government.

A Russian-American commission broke up in disagreement May 8 over qualifications of Korean representatives to be consulted by the commission.

In a letter of Nov. 26, which the State Department released today, Col. Gen. Ivan M. Chistiakov, Russian commander in northern Korea, proposed that the commission consult all "democratic parties and organizations that uphold fully the Moscow decision on Korea" but bar those who have opposed it.

The American view is that this would prohibit the consultation of any organizations except those friendly to Russia.

In a reply on Dec. 24, Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge said that the Russian and American positions could be reconciled if the Russians would accept signed declarations by the Koreans that they uphold the Moscow decision.

Sulzberger Stresses Amity With Britain

New Orleans, Jan. 10 (A. P.).—Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of the New York Times, says he believes "it's more important for the United States to get along with Great Britain than for the Jews to have a national homeland."

Here to attend a meeting of directors of the Associated Press, Sulzberger discussed the Palestine issue in an interview during which he emphasized that he was speaking as a Jew. He said he could understand the British use of troops against Palestine extremists, for "naturally the British do not like to have their soldiers taken away and shot."

Inverchapel Expresses Confidence in Marshall

Asserts New Secretary Has 'Deep Respect' of British

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10 (AP).—Lord Inverchapel, British Ambassador to the United States, said today he had the highest confidence in the United Nations with General of the Army George C. Marshall representing the United States.

"I know him well and have been with him at many conferences," the Briton said of General Marshall, new Secretary of State, at a press conference.

"General Marshall has the deep respect and admiration of the British nation."

Lord Inverchapel came here to receive a wallet which Benjamin Franklin carried in London when he represented the American colonies between 1757 and 1775. The presentation was arranged by the Historical Society of Pennsylvania.

Lord Inverchapel accepted the wallet for the British Society for International Understanding, which is making its headquarters in Franklin's former home in London.

At Washington, D. C., Rear Admiral George L. Russell, Assistant Judge Advocate, said today that the company's claims had not been settled because they had not been proved to the Navy's satisfaction.

Schupp headed the Pacific-American Whaling Company, largest American whaling concern on the Pacific for almost thirty years.

Whaler Dies After Laying Big Loss to Navy

He Charged $75,000 in Machinery Vanished From Leased Island Lent to Russians.

Bellevue, Wash., Jan. 10 (A. P.).—William P. Schupp, 80 years old, one of the last leaders of the whaling industry, died yesterday, only a few hours after declaring that some of his company's property disappeared from a Navy-leased Aleutian island during the war.

He suffered a severe heart seizure after a newspaper interview in which he discussed a claim for $75,000 damages filed earlier in the day with the Thirteenth Naval District here.

In the interview, Schupp had said that a large amount of heavy machinery disappeared from the Akutan Island whaling station, the island on which a volcano erupted early this week. When the Navy returned to the station, no indication was given that property was disturbed, he said.

"It was not until our representative had checked the station that we learned what had been taken," he added.

The Navy lent the station to the Russians as a secret fueling base for lend-lease vessels during the war.

Total Of War Veterans Sets Record In U.S.

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—The number of war veterans exceeded 18,000,000 for the first time in history at the end of 1946, the Veterans Administration reported today.

The number of World War II veterans increased by 158,000 during December to a total of 14,117,000. The November increase was 215,000.

Deaths continued to thin the ranks of the veterans of other wars at the rate of 5,000 a month, to bring their total to 3,941,000 at the year's end.

U.N.-ALBANIA
LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., JAN. 10-(AP)-THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT FILED A FORMAL COMPLAINT WITH THE UNITED NATIONS SECURITY COUNCIL TONIGHT CHARGING ALBANIA WITH MINING THE CORFU STRAITS WHERE TWO BRITISH WARSHIPS WERE DAMAGED WITH A LOSS OF 44 LIVES LAST OCTOBER.

THE 60-PAGE DOCUMENT DETAILING THE CHARGES WAS HANDED TO ASSISTANT SECRETARY-GENERAL ARKADY SOBOLEV OF RUSSIA BY SIR ALEXANDER CADOGAN, BRITISH DELEGATE ON THE COUNCIL.

THE UNITED NATIONS DID NOT IMMEDIATELY MAKE AVAILABLE THE TEXT OF THE COMPLAINT, BUT BRITISH SOURCES SAID THE LONDON GOVERNMENT WAS DEMANDING AN APOLOGY AND COMPENSATION FOR DAMAGE TO TWO DESTROYERS AND FOR LOSS OF LIFE.

THE CHARGES HAD PREVIOUSLY BEEN LAID BEFORE THE DELEGATIONS OF RUSSIA, CHINA, FRANCE AND THE UNITED STATES BY THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT IN A PROCEDURAL MOVE. PRIOR TO THAT, FRUITLESS DIRECT NEGOTIATIONS HAD BEEN CARRIED ON WITH THE ALBANIAN GOVERNMENT, THE BRITISH SAID.

THE BRITISH PREVIOUSLY HAD COMPLAINED THAT ALBANIAN SHORE BATTERIES FIRED ON WARSHIPS LAST SPRING IN THE SAME AREA, BUT THIS WAS THE FIRST TIME A COMPLAINT WAS BROUGHT DIRECTLY TO THE SECURITY COUNCIL FOR ACTION.

THE COMPLAINT WAS THE FIRST FILED BY GREAT BRITAIN SINCE THE INCEPTION OF THE UNITED NATIONS.

ELSEWHERE, THE NEW TIMES LEVELLED A STRONG ATTACK AT THE REPORT ON ECONOMIC RECONSTRUCTION IN EUROPE SUBMITTED BY A SPECIAL HOUSE COMMITTEE ON POST-WAR ECONOMIC POLICY PLANNING, BRANDING IT "SLANDER" AGAINST THE SOVIET UNION.

THIS WAS THE FIRST PUBLIC SOVIET REACTION TO THE COLMER COMMITTEE REPORT, WHICH THE NEW TIMES ALLEGED "CONTAINS AN APPEAL TO RENUNCIATION OF THE POTSDAM AGREEMENT AND ADVANCES A DEMAND THAT THE STATE DEPARTMENT BRING PRESSURE ON BRITAIN, SWEDEN, FRANCE AND SWITZERLAND TO FORCE THEM NOT TO SELL INDUSTRIAL EQUIPMENT TO THE SOVIET UNION. THUS THE COMMITTEE IS APPEALING IN EFFECT FOR SOMETHING LIKE ECONOMIC SANCTIONS AGAINST THE SOVIET UNION."

MOSCOW, JAN 10-(AP)-NEW TIMES, SEMI-MONTHLY FOREIGN POLICY PUBLICATION, ROUNDLY CASTIGATED BRITISH AND AMERICAN ECONOMIC POLICIES IN WESTERN GERMANY TODAY. IT DESCRIBED AS A "NEW YEAR'S PRESENT FROM DOLLAR DIPLOMACY" IMPORTS WHICH THE WESTERN OCCUPATION ZONES WILL RECEIVE IN 1947 UNDER THE NEW BRITISH-AMERICAN ZONAL MERGER AGREEMENT.

"GERMAN INDUSTRIALISTS AGAIN ARE RECEIVING FOREIGN CREDITS," NEW TIMES DECLARED, ADDING THAT BRITISH-AMERICAN CREDITS FOR SUBSIDIZING GERMAN IMPORTS IN 1947 EQUAL THE ANNUAL CREDITS GERMANY RECEIVED UNDER TH DAWES PLAN IN THE 1920'S.

"AMERICAN AND BRITISH INDUSTRIAL AND FINANCIAL CIRCLES ARE INVESTING FUNDS IN GERMANY INDUSTRY WHILE DENYING CREDITS TO CZECHOSLOVAKIA, YUGOSLAVIA AND POLAND," THE MAGAZINE SAID.

IN ANOTHER ARTICLE, NEW TIMES DECLARED THAT ECONOMIC DIFFICULTIES IN THE BRITISH ZONE WERE "WORSENING MONTH TO MONTH."

TEHRAN, JAN 10-(AP)-RIVAL POLITICAL FACTIONS CONDUCTED FINAL PRE-BALLOTING RALLIES TODAY, ON THE EVE OF IRAN'S NATIONAL ELECTIONS SCHEDULED TO BEGIN TOMORROW AND CONTINUE THROUGH JAN. 17.

THE GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCED THAT IT WAS "SETTING UP ELECTION MACHINERY" IN ALL PROVINCES "EXCEPT THOSE WHERE RECENTLY REBELLIOUS TRIBESMEN HAVE NOT SURRENDERED THEIR ARMS."

LEADERS OF PREMIER AHMAD QAVAM'S NEW DEMOCRAT PARTY MET AT THE CENTRAL CLUB TO ADDRESS THEIR SUPPORTERS, GATHERED OUTSIDE IN NUMBERS ESTIMATED AT BETWEEN 5,000 AND 10,000.

DR.F.MOSSADEGH'S COALITION OPPOSITION DREW AN APPROXIMATELY EQUAL NUMBER OF SUPPORTERS IN FRONT OF THE SHAH'S MOSQUE, NEAR THE BAZAAR.

BOTH MEETINGS WERE COMPARATIVELY ORDERLY, AND THE CITY APPEARED ONLY SLIGHTLY INTERESTED IN THE VOTING, WHICH OBSERVERS EXPECTED TO YIELD AN OVERWHELMING VICTORY FOR QAVAM.

MOSSADEGH IN ADDRESSING HIS SUPPORTERS CHARGED THAT THE ELECTIONS WERE CONTROLLED BY THE GOVERNMENT AND WERE NOT FREE. IN RESPONSE THERE WERE SHOUTS OF "VIVA MOSSADEGH!" AND "VIVA SAYYED ZIA!"

SAYYED ZIA ED DINE TABATTABAI, NOW IN PRISON, IS THE LEADER OF THE EXTREME RIGHTWING NATIONAL WILL PARTY.

SPEAKERS FOR THE DEMOCRAT PARTY REITERATED QAVAM'S PLEDGE THAT THE ELECTIONS WOULD BE "FREE AND DEMOCRATIC" AND INVITED TEHRAN UNIVERSITY STUDENTS, FOREIGN NEWSMEN "AND ALL INTERESTED" TO VISIT THE POLLS AS OBSERVERS.

SOME FOREIGN DIPLOMATIC OFFICIALS EXPRESSED THE OPINION THE ELECTION WOULD BE CONDUCTED "COMPLETELY FREE OF ANY FOREIGN INFLUENCE."

CLEVELAND, JAN. 10-(AP)-GREATER FINANCIAL AND ECONOMIC COOPERATION WITH ITS AMERICAN NEIGHBORS, SAID SUMNER WELLES TODAY, SHOULD BE THE NITED STATES' ROLE IN ADVANCING THE "ECONOMIC LIBERTY OF THE INDIVIDUAL IN THE REST OF THE HEMISPHERE.

THE FORMER UNDERSECRETARY OF STATE TOLD THE LATIN-AMERICAN SESSION OF THE CLEVELAND COUNCIL ON WORLD AFFAIRS' 21ST INSTITUTE THAT "THE MOST TRULY EFFECTIVE WAY" THE UNITED STATES CAN"STRENGTHEN THE FORCES OF DEMOCRACY WITHIN THE AMERICANS, AND COUNTERACT THOSE TRENDS TOWARD AUTHORITARIANISM WHICH OCCASIONALLY MANIFEST THEMSELVES," IS TO COOPERATE IN PROMOTING THE INDIVIDUAL'S ECONOMIC LIBERT IN THE REST OF THE AMERICAS.

THE CONSOLIDATION OF POLITICAL LIBERTY IN THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE CANNOT BE ACHIEVED, HE SAID, "SO LONG AS GREAT NUMBERS OF MEN AND WOMEN IN THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS ARE DEPRIVED OF EVEN THE SEMBLANCE OF ECONOMIC LIBERTY."

WELLES SAID SOLUTIONS OF THE PROBLEM WILL BE FOUND IN PART THROUGH "A MORE EQUITABLE DISTRIBUTION OF THE LAND, THROUGH MORE ADVANCED AND MORE EFFECTIVE SOCIAL LEGISLATION, THROUGH A MORE EFFICIENT AND MORE REPID DEVELOPMENT OF THE NATURAL RESOURCES OF EACH COUNTRY," AND THROUGH INTENSIFIED EDUCATION, ADEQUATE SANITATION AND MORE RAPID INDUSTRIALIZATION.

THE FORMER UNDERSECRETARY SAID "IT IS PERHAPS NOT TOO LATE TO HOPE THAT THE INFLUENCE OF THE UNITED STATES MAY YET BE EXERCISE IN SUCH A MANNER AS TO MAKE IT POSSIBLE, BEFORE THE TREATY WITH GERMANY IS FINALLY CONCLUDED, FOR ALL THE LESSER POWERS TO PLAY A MORE EFFECTIVE PART IN DECIDING WHAT THE PROVISIONS OF THAT TREATY ARE TO BE."

HE ALSO DISCUSSED THE DILEMMA OF RECONCILING THE CONCEPTS OF COLLECTI SECURITY AND COLLECTIVE ACTION WITH THE DESIRES OF MANY SMALLER NATIONS TO PROTECT THEIR NATIONAL SOVEREIGNTY, AND REFERRED TO AN URUGUAYAN PROPOSAL THAT ANY COLLECTIVE ACTION ORIGINATE WITHIN THE REGIONAL SYSTEM OF THE AMERICAS.

"I DO NOT BELIEVE THAT THE DECISION UPON THE NEED FOR COLLECTIVE ACTION IN SUCH CASES SHOULD BE MADE BY THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS," HE DECLARED. HE SUMMED UP THE UNITED STATES' TASK OF THE FUTURE IN THESE WORDS: "THE PEOPLE THAT DISINTEGRATED THE ATOM HAS NOW THE MISSION OF INTEGRATING HUMANITY."

URUGUAY'S FOREIGN MINISTER, EDUARDO R.LARRETTA, TOLD THE LATIN-AMERICAN SESSION "THERE IS NO DOUBT THAT ATTEMPTS CONTINUE TO DIVIDE AMERICA, TO ISOLATE EACH OF HER ENTITIES, TO ALIENATE THE UNITED STATES," THROUGH "UNJUSTIFIED AND ABSURD MEANS," BUT HE PROPOSED, "LET US NOT BE IMPRESSED BY SUCH DEVICES."

BUT THIS REASONING ALSO CAN BE REVERSED. IF IT IS FAIR THAT THE RUSSIANS SHOULD BE WITH US ON THE RUHR AND THE RHINE, IT IS EQUALLY FAIR THAT WE SHOULD BE WITH THEM IN SILESIA AND SAXONY AND ON THE DAMUBE."

THE FRENCH SPEAKER SAID "WHAT WE EXPECT ABOVE ALL FROM AMERICA IS THAT SHE CHOOSE THE SECOND OF TWO GREAT POLICIES-- TO ACCEPT THAT THE WORLD BE DIVIDED INTO TWO ZONES OF INFLUENCE (THAT IS, IN TWO CAMPS)" OR "TO ADMIT, TO PROPOSE AND TO ORGANIZE INTERPENTRATION."

AMERICA NOT ONLY SHOULD CHOOSE THE LATTER ALTERNATIVE, BUT SHOULD "BE ABLE TO INDUCE ALL TO MAKE THE SAME CHOICE," HE ADDED.
THE NETHERLANDS, SAN VAN KLEFFENS, WANTS ABOVE ALL "TO HAVE OUR SAY ABOUT THE GERMAN PEACE TREATY IN GENERAL AND WE WANT THAT PEACE TREATY TO BE OF SUCH A NATURE AS TO GUARANTEE PEACE FOR A LONG TIME TO COME."
THE DUTCH ALSO EXPECT ECONOMIC ADVANTAGES FROM GERMANY, AND AN "INFINITESIMAL" PART OF GERMANY THROUGH A STRAIGHTENING OF THE FRONTIER, VAN KLEFFENS SAID.
CRUIKSHANK OBSERVED THAT "THE PRIME FACT ABOUT AMERICA IS THAT NEVER BEFORE HAS POWER SO GREAT COME TO ANY PEOPLE IN SO BRIEF A TIME."
IN THE BRITISH VIEW, A "LITTLE DEMON OF DOUBT" POPS UP TO SUGGEST THAT AMERICA IS WILLING "TO SACRIFICE EVERYTHING TO THE UNITY OF ONE WORLD, EXCEPT ITS FIVE VARIETY OF TARIFFS," SAID THE LONDON EDITOR.

Byrnes and Vandenberg Jointly State U. S. Aims, Urge Atomic Guaranties

Secretary, in Cleveland Farewell Speech, Says His Peace Hope Is High

Asks Strong Nation As Power Balance

Senator Calls for Unity of Americas, Shake-Up in the State Department

Atomic Energy Veto Control Is Discussed

Cleveland, Jan. 11 (AP)—Secretary of State Byrnes, making his last major address before retiring, declared tonight he is more confident now than ever that "we can achieve a just peace by co-operative effort" by persisting with "firmness."

In a speech for Cleveland Council on World Affairs, Byrnes said the United States must discharge its responsibility as a great power in the United Nations Security Council "to see that other states do not use force except in defense of law"—veto or no veto.

Referring only briefly to relations with Russia in the problem of controlling atomic energy, Byrnes said he finds it hard to understand why any nation could not agree to waive its veto rights over punishment for violation of atomic controls.

Reaffirms American Policy

He reaffirmed the American policy that "we are not going to disarm while others remain armed."

Byrnes is to yield his ranking Cabinet position to Gen. George C. Marshall next week. He was on the same program tonight with Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He declared he is certain Senator Connally (D., Tex.) the former chairman, "would join me in saying that our bipartisan foreign policy was made possible only by the wholehearted and intelligent co-operation" of Vandenberg.

Byrnes added that the progress made during the last year toward peace—as measured in completion of five European peace treaties—would not have been possible "if the American people had not been united on a foreign policy."

Deals In Principles Of Policy

Byrnes's speech dealt mainly in principles of policy, apparently with a view to passing on to the American people out of his experiences some ideals and suggestions for the future.

He made these main points:

1. No compromise with basic principle. The United States can achieve "a just peace by co-operative effort if we persist 'with firmness in the right as God gives us the power to see the right'"—a quotation from Lincoln.

2. Continued airing of differences among nations in full public debate. The discussions in the Foreign Ministers meetings and in the Security Council, Byrnes said, have "caused a better understanding of our problems and contributed much to the substantial progress made at the recent assembly of the United Nations."

"Force Does Not Make Right"

3. Maintenance of military strength adequate to discharge American obligations. Byrnes declared present power relationships cannot be substantially altered by any one nation without disturbing the whole United Nations. He added that "force does not make right but we must realize that in this imperfect world power as well as reason does effect international decisions."

4. Development of internaitonal law. Law among nations has concerned itself in the past, Byrnes said, "too much with the rules of war and too little with the rules of peace."

5. Assistance to countries in distress. The United States, Byrnes said, must give relief to nations which are not yet ready to look after themselves fully even though UNRRA has ended. Similarly, he advocated loans to aid them obtain raw materials and reconstruct their industrial plants.

Recalls His Discouragement

6. Breakdown of barriers to the exchange of ideas and goods so that fredom of interchange will help remove conditions that contribute to distress and the development of blocs.

Byrnes warned against "disillusionment." There were times during the past year, he recalled, when he was "deeply discouraged," when it seemed that repeated efforts to co-operate with other countries met only constant rebuff.

"But we persisted in our efforts with patience and with firmness," he continued.

"Today I am happy to say that I am more confident than at any time since VJ day that we can achieve a just peace by co-operative effort if we persist 'with firmness in the right as God gives us the power to see the right.'"

Byrnes dealt more fully with his view of the need for the United States to remain strong than with any other phase.

Cites Relative Strength

The relative strength of the great powers in the United Nations, Byrnes declared, "is such that no one of them can safely break the peace if the others stand united in defense of the Charter."

"We hae joined with our Allies i nthe United Nations to put an end to war," he continued. "We have convenanted not to use force except in defense of law. We shall keep that covenant.

"As a great power and as a permanent member of the Security Council, we have a responsibility, veto or no veto, to see that other states do not use force except in defense of law. We must discharge that responsibility.

"And we must realize that unless the great powers are not only prepared to observe the law but are prepared to act in defense of the law, the United Nations Organization cannot prevent war."

Text of Speech by Secretary Byrnes at Cleveland Calling for Creating Real World Peace

CLEVELAND, Jan. 11 (AP).—The complete text of Secretary of State James F. Byrnes's speech tonight on foreign relations:

This coming-of-age anniversary of the Cleveland Council on World Affairs is of more than usual significance. Under the leadership of President Emeny of the council, the community of Cleveland has come to regard world problems not as the affairs of far-distant countries, but as the affairs of the world of which the community of Cleveland is a part.

Twice in our generation the communities of America have learned that they are very much a part of the world when the world is at war. If we are to prevent war and build enduring peace, every community in America must realize that it is very much a part of the world when the world is at peace.

Our first task is to liquidate the war. We cannot think constructively about the building of lasting peace and about rising standards of life until we give the peoples of this world a chance to live again under conditions of peace. We cannot deal with the problems of a convalescing world until we get the patient off the operating table.

That is why President Truman and I at Potsdam two months after V-E Day proposed to set up the Council of Foreign Ministers to start work upon the peace treaties as quickly as possible, wherever possible.

That is why President Truman and I at Potsdam two months after V-E Day proposed to set up the Council of Foreign Ministers to start work upon the treaties as quickly as possible, wherever possible.

And that is why we have persistently urged since last Winter that deputies should be appointed to begin work upon the German and Austrian treaties.

Bars Retreat to Isolation

After every great war the victorious Allies have found it difficult to adjust their differences in the making of the peace. At the very outset grave differences between the Allies did arise in the work of the Council of Foreign Ministers. But we refused to abandon the principles for which our country stands. And we served notice that we would not retreat to a policy of isolation.

We made it clear that, as anxious as we were to reduce the burdens of occupation, America would not evade her responsibility. And at Stuttgart we made it clear that just as long as our Allies maintained troops in Germany and Austria, the United States would maintain its troops in those countries.

We were determined to do our part to bring peace to a war-weary world and we have not sought any excuse, however plausible, for shirking our responsibilities.

The treaties with Italy and the ex-satellite states, as they emerged from months of protracted negotiation and debate, are not perfect. But they are as good as we can hope to get by general agreement either now or within a reasonable length of time.

The treaties mark a milestone on the return to conditions of peace. The fact that the Allies have been able to agree upon these five treaties does give hope that they will soon be able to agree upon a treaty with Austria. That will make possible the removal of occupation troops from all European countries except Germany, and it will give to millions of people relief from the burdens of occupying armies.

Favorable Conditions Seen

Agreement upon these treaties gives assurance, too, that the discussions of the German settlement will start under much more favorable conditions than seemed possible until last month.

During the year or more that these treaties were under discussion it was inevitable that the differences between the Allies should be emphasized, and at times greatly exaggerated. On the other hand, during the war some of these differences were minimized and overlooked. But peace cannot be made by ignoring very real and basic differences and by pretending that they do not exist.

By recognizing and bringing out into the open our differences and honestly seeking means of reconciling them we have advanced and not retarded the cause of peace.

The discussions and debates in the Council of Foreign Ministers and in the Security Council during the past year caused a better understanding of our problems and contributed much to the substantial progress made at the recent Assembly of the United Nations.

But, my friends, we would never have made the progress that we did during the last year if the American people had not been united on a foreign policy.

For the past year our foreign policy has not been the policy of a political party, it has been the policy of the United States.

Vandenberg's Help Praised

And I am sure my Democratic friend, Senator Connally, who has been associated with us would join me in saying that our bipartisan foreign policy was made possible only by the whole-hearted and intelligent cooperation of my Republican friend, Senator Vandenberg.

I am indebted to him for his tribute to me. I would not trust myself to speak at length of him but I must recall to your minds last fall he was a candidate for re-election. His friends in Michigan urged him to leave me in Paris at the Foreign Ministers Council and return to his State. He refused. He placed the welfare of the country above his personal welfare. That's one of the reasons I respect and why I like Senator Vandenberg.

I would issue a word of caution against excessive optimism and excessive pessimism as to our foreign relations.

We must not let ourselves believe that peace can be made secure by any one treaty or series of treaties, or by any one resolution or series of resolutions. And we must not let ourselves believe that the struggle for peace is hopeless, because we cannot at once find ways and means of reconciling all our differences.

Nations, like individuals, differ as to what is right and just, and clashing appeals to reason may in the long run do more to avert a clash of arms than a lot of pious resolutions which conceal honest and serious disagreements.

Never before have the differences between nations been brought out into the open and so frankly discussed in public as they have during the past year in the Council of Foreign Ministers, the Security Council and the General Assembly.

Of course it is true that public discussion emphasizes differences. But without such public discussion the people of the world who want peace would not know and understand the differences which arise between nations and which threaten the peace.

Wars may start not because the people want war, but because they want things that other people possess and will not give up without a fight. Full and frank discussion of such situations may avert armed conflict.

'A Never-Ending Struggle'

The struggle for peace is the struggle for law and justice. It is a never-ending struggle. Law and justice can be developed and applied only through living institutions capable of life and of growth. And these institutions must be backed by sufficient force to protect nations which abide by the law against nations which violate the law.

If we are going to build a regime of law among nations, we must struggle to create a world in which no nation can arbitrarily impose its will upon another nation. Neither the United States nor any other state should have the power to dominate the world.

The present power relationships of the great states preclude the domination of the world by any one of them. Those power relationships cannot be substantially altered by the unilateral action of any one state without disturbing the whole structure of the United Nations.

Therefore, if we are going to do our part to maintain peace under law, we must maintain, in relation to other states, the military strength necessary to discharge our obligations.

Force does not make right, but we must realize that in this imperfect world of ours power as well as reason does affect international decisions.

Special Responsibility Cited

The great States are given special responsibility under the United Charter because they have the military strength to maintain peace if they have the will to maintain peace. And their strength in relation to one another is such that no one of them can safely break the peace if the others stand united in defense of the Charter.

We have joined with our Allies in the United Nations to put an end to war. We have covenanted not to use force except in defense of law. The United States will keep that covenant.

As a great power and as a permanent member of the Security Council, we have a responsibility, veto or no veto, to see that other States do not use force except in defense of law. The United States must discharge that responsibility.

And we must realize that unless the great powers are not only prepared to observe the law but are prepared to act in defense of the law, the United Nations Organization can never prevent war.

In a world in which people do differ as to what is right and wrong, we must strive to work out definite standards of conduct which all can accept. We must develop and build through the years a common law of nations.

History informs us that individuals abandoned private wars and gave up their arms only as they were protected by the common law of their tribes and of their nations. So I believe that in the long run international peace depends upon our ability to develop a common law of nations which all nations can accept and which no nation can violate with impunity.

In the past international law has concerned itself too much with the rules of war and too little with the rules of peace. I am more interested in ways and means to prevent war than I am in ways and means to conduct war.

Common Law for All Asked

Unless we are able to develop a common law of nations which provides definite and agreed standards of conduct such as those which govern decisions within the competence of the International Court of Justice and such as those which we hope may be agreed upon for the control of atomic energy, international problems between sovereign states must be worked out by agreement between sovereign states.

The United States has taken the lead in proposing the control and the elimination from national armaments of atomic weapons and other weapons of mass destruction under agreed rules of law.

These rules of law must carry clear and adequate safeguards to protect complying states from the hazards of violations and evasions. They must be sufficiently definite and explicit to prevent a state that violates the law from obstructing the prompt enforcement of the law.

If a nation by solemn treaty agrees to a plan for the control of atomic weapons and agrees that a violation of that treaty shall be punished, it is difficult for me to understand why that nation cannot agree to waive the right to exercise the veto power should it ever be charged with violating its treaty obligation.

In 1921, while a member of the House of Representatives I advocated that the President call a conference for the limitation of naval armaments.

Later the President did call such a conference. What happened thereafter influences my thinking today. While America scrapped battleships, Japan scrapped blueprints. America will not again make that mistake.

We have urged a general limitation of armaments, but we are not going to disarm while others remain armed. And we should make certain that all Governments live up to their agreements to disarm.

We have urged priority for the control of atomic weapons because they are the most destructive of all weapons; because we have been at work on the proposal for more than six months; and because it presents concretely the issue of international inspection and control. We are convinced that if there can be agreement on that subject, there can be agreement on the control of other major weapons and a general reduction of armaments.

If we are unable to reach agreement on that subject it will be useless to discuss the other subjects.

But international law in a friendly, peaceful world must rest upon something more than mere rules, something more than force and something more than fear. It must be made to rest upon the growth of a common fellowship, common interests and common ideas among the peoples of this earth.

It was our fostering of a common fellowship that gave vitality to the good-neighbor policy in the Americas. It was a common fellowship which made the Act of Chapultepec possible.

We are eager to proceed with a negotiation of a mutual assistance treaty in accordance with the Act of Chapultepec at the projected Rio conference. But we do not wish to proceed without Argentina, and neither our Ambassador nor any official of the State Department is of the opinion that Argentina has yet complied with the commitments which she as well as the other American republics at Chapultepec agreed to carry out.

Hopes Argentina Will Comply

It is our earnest hope that before long there will be such reasonable and substantial compliance by Argentina with its obligations, that the American republics, after consultation, will convene the Rio conference.

Now a common fellowship does not mean that nations must in all respects think alike or live alike. Inevitably, we will differ. But nations like individuals must respect and tolerate one another's differences.

Peace in this interdependent world must be something more than a truce between nations. To have peace, nations must learn to live and work together for their common good. We live in one world. The health of the body politic like the health of the human body depends upon the health of all its members.

We cannot whole-heartedly abandon the policy of political isolation unless we abandon the policy of economic isolation. We are not likely to be successful in our efforts to cooperate to prevent war, unless we are willing to cooperate to maintain freedom and well-being in a world at peace.

We must learn to cooperate so that the people of each country may exchange the products of their country easily and fairly with the people of other countries.

Although our general long-run purpose is to help raise the living standard, the immediate problem during the last two years in some areas has been to maintain life itself.

Distress Abroad Stressed

Economic distress, starvation and disease breed political unrest, tyranny and aggression. And if we are sincere in our efforts to maintain peace, we must do our part to assist in the elimination of conditions which breed agression and breed war.

If we want people to value freedom and respect law we must at least give them a fair chance to feed, clothe and shelter themselves and their children.

The war has devastated many countries and has disrupted their economics. UNRRA has helped these countries through their most critical period. Its authority is now terminated but some countries through no fault of their own will require further relief to get upon their feet. And this we cannot deny them.

Outright relief by us is necessary in some countries. But the countries in need and the extent of the need can be determined by the United States just as well as it could be determined by a committee composed of representatives of other Governments.

A permanent place on the relief rolls is not the desire of those self-respecting nations which have fought for their freedom. But much of their productive capacity has been destroyed, they have no working capital in the form of foreign exchange to start the flow of needed raw materials.

They do need loans to secure the raw materials, capital equipment and tools necessary to rebuild and resume their ability to produce. The work of the International Bank, the Monetary Fund and Export and Import Bank must continue to have our whole-hearted support.

Scientific Aids Emphasized

Despite the ravages and destruction of the war, the advance of science make it possible for us and other nations to preserve and increase our living standards if we work together with other nations to produce what we and other nations want and need.

We must learn that prosperity like freedom must be shared, not on the basis of handouts, but on the basis of fair and honest exchange of the products of the labor of free men and free women.

We believe there should be no unnecessary barriers to the free exchange of ideas and of information among nations. But it is unrealistic to expect to have trade in ideas if we are unwilling to have trade in goods.

We must break down the artificial barriers to trade and commerce among nations. We must pursue our reciprocal trade policies which are designed to expand American trade and world trade because the world cannot buy from us if we are not willing to buy from the world.

We must pursue vigorously the Charter for the establishment of an international trade organization. It is designed to avoid economic warfare between nations and insure equality of commercial opportunity for all nations, large and small. In other words, we must avoid economic blocs if we wish to avoid political blocs.

My friends, after every great war there comes a period of disillusionment. Those who fight together expect too much from one another and are inclined to give too little to one another.

They forget that victory in war can only give the opportunity, which would otherwise be denied, to live and work for the fruits of peace and freedom.

Admits Discouragements

I admit that during the past year there were times when I was deeply discouraged. Our repeated efforts to achieve cooperation in a peaceful world seemed to be meeting only with constant rebuff. But we persisted in our efforts with patience and with firmness.

Today I am happy to say that I am more confident than at any time since V-J Day that we can achieve a just peace by cooperative effort if we now persist "with firmness in the right as God gives us the power to see the right."

We have demonstrated our capacity in war. We must now demonstrate our capacity in peace. If we do, our children and the children of men everywhere can inherit a peaceful world of expanding freedom and increased well-being.

To that goal freedom's past inspires us and freedom's future calls us.

Senator, Speaking With Byrnes at World Affairs Council in Cleveland, Urges Non-Communist Appeal—Retiring Secretary of State Stresses Co-operation

Cleveland, Jan. 11—(AP)—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) urged tonight that the United States shift its China policy to encourage the non-Communist coalition backing the new constitution there.

Secretary of State Byrnes at the same time said he is more confident than ever before that "we can achieve a just peace by co-operative effort" by persisting with "firmness."

Their joint billing at the final session of the Council on World Affairs had dramatic contrasts. In the Republican-dominated Senate, Vandenberg has gained new power in foreign affairs—the time of his greatest influence probably is just ahead. Byrnes, having finished the first phase of treaty-making, is retiring—he will be succeeded by Gen. George C. Marshall.

Full Debate Assured

Vandenberg, in his first speech as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, served notice that adherence to a bi-partisan foreign policy does not preclude the fullest controversy over foreign affairs.

He differed with Byrnes on at least one point by insisting that a Pan-American conference on defense problems be called without delay.

Byrnes' last scheduled address as Secretary of State appealed for the United States to remain strong in military arms and forces until its strength can be reduced equally with that of other powers. This, he said, is necessary for world peace.

"As a great power and as a permanent member of the Security Council," Byrnes said, "we have a responsibility, veto or no veto, to see that other states do not use force except in defense of law. We must discharge that responsibility."

Marshall, who is to succeed Byrnes late next week, is returning home from 13 months in China where he helped Generalissimo Chiank Kai-Shek put over the new constitution. He had hoped it would appeal to "Liberals," as he called them, among the Communists as well as among non-Communist political groups, but so far the Communists have cold-shouldered it.

Vandenberg proposed, in effect, that the United States should abandon its policy of treating the Communists on a basis of equality with the Chinese Nationalists, and instead should throw its backing to the Nationalists and other groups under the constitution.

Cardinal Opens Meeting

Francis Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of New York, opened tonight's session with a declaration that the United States' motto, "in God is our trust," is the international key to world peace.

"I profess that only the love of God and the brotherhood of man can be the genesis, the basis and the soul of a sound, just and durable peace," said the Cardinal.

Today, "in this atomic age of demoralization and brutalization, the mission of the Church is exactly the same as it was two thousand years ago, and ever shall be," he continued. "The mission to help bring peace, not alone to man, but to mankind."

Cardinal Spellman said "I avow before the world that the precious peace which all men crave will never come to pass until a strong, loyal United Nations, undaunted, believes and lives the motto of our United States 'in God is our trust.'"

Vandenberg's Views

Vandenberg gave these views on major questions, departing in some instances from established State Department policy:

1. United States policy in China should "shift its emphasis" to support the non-Communist coalition of parties backing China's new constitution and discourage those—presumably the Chinese Communists—who hamper this constitutional development.

2. The United States should immediately propose holding the long-delayed Pan-American conference on hemisphere defense to stem a

Vandenberg Hails Covenant of Fifty-five Nations to Help Keep the Peace and Stresses World Problems

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 11 — The text of the speech delivered by Senator Vandenberg before the Cleveland Council of World Affairs:

I congratulate the Cleveland forum upon the powerful program it has produced from all quarters of the globe in a striking exchange of international opinion. This process of reciprocal candor is one of the major forces which can beat swords into plowshares on the anvils of mutual understanding and goodwill. Indeed, this is the supreme potentiality of the organized United Nations. War will remain at a heavy discount so long as "Communistic upsurge" which, Vandenberg said, is moving in on present Pan-American disunity. Vandenberg did not directly mention Argentina.

3. The great powers face a "pressing need" to work out "a plan for total peace" for Germany which will prevent recurrence of Hitlerism "yet which offers some reward other than eternal degradation to new German states when they faithfully strive toward Democratic self-redemption."

4. The United States, Russia, Britain, France and China should voluntarily renounce their veto rights in the U. N. Security Council over all peaceful means of settling international disputes. The veto then would apply only to use of force.

5. Although UNRRA is out, Vandenberg said he is confident Congress will make "liberal relief appropriations" for devastated countries and that the United States will provide "reasonable rehabilitation credits."

6. The State Department and foreign service require "broadgauged reorganization to keep pace with America's unavoidable world responsibilities and particularly to develop more long-range planning." He assailed "catch-as-catch-can" improvisation of policy. The United States delegate to the U. N. should be a permanent undersecretary of state, he said.

7. All the great powers should recognize Austria's independence and withdraw occupation troops without delay. Austria is occupied by Russian, British, French and American forces.

8. On disarmament and atomic control Vandenberg strongly endorsed established American policy, which he had helped develop.

Byrnes' speech dealt mainly in principles of policy, apparently with a view to passing on to the American people out of his experiences some ideals and suggestions for the future.

He made these main points:

1. No compromise with basic principle. The United States can achieve "a just peace by co-operative effort if we persist 'with firmness in the right as God gives us the power to see the right'"—a quotation from Lincoln.

2. Continued airing of differences among nations in full public debate. The discussions in the foreign ministers meetings and in the Security Council, Byrnes said, have "caused a better understanding of our problems and contributed much to the substantial progress made at the recent assembly of the United Nations."

3. Maintenance of military strength adequate to discharge American obligations. Byrnes declared present power relationships cannot be substantially altered by any one nation without disturbing the whole United Nations. He added that "force does not make right but we must realize that in this imperfect world power as well as reason does effect international decisions."

4. Development of international law. Law among nations has concerned itself in the past, Byrnes said, "too much with the rules of war and too little with the rules of peace."

5. Assistance to countries in distress. The United States, Byrnes said, must give relief to nations which are not yet ready to look after themselves fully even though UNRRA has ended. Similarly, he advocated loans to aid them obtain raw materials and reconstruct their industrial plants.

6. Breakdown of barriers to the exchange of ideas and goods so that freedom of interchange will help remove conditions that contribute to distress and the development of blocs.

to the world. So far as my little part in this symposium is concerned, this is too large an order to be filled in 30 minutes. Further, I must make it plain that I am not in a position "to reply for the United States" because the Constitution confides that prerogative exclusively to the President. The Senate merely "advises and consents." Sometimes it doesn't even do that.

Hails Byrnes and Marshall

Fortunately, the Secretary of State is here to speak for the President. But unfortunately, he is shortly leaving the public service by resignation. I say this with deep regret. Secretary Byrnes has been an able, efficicient, courageous Secretary of State in the finest American tradition. He has relentlessly defended American international controversy stays in the council chamber—and adversaries "talk things out" instead of "shooting them out."

It was my good fortune to coin a phrase at the United Nations San Francisco Conference in 1945 which seems to survive. I prophesied that the general assembly would become "the town meeting of the world." In one year it has become exactly that. So long as the "town meeting" meets, reason is calculated to outweigh force. So long as this "safety valve" works the world's "boilers" are not calculated to explode.

Peace with justice is the dearest aspiration at every hearthstone in the world. Here in your "town meeting" the voices of global hope have joined in this universal prayer. The voice of our own America must rise above them all, not only because our people deeply share this dedication, but particularly because time and events have given us the tremendous responsibility of a spiritual leadership which most of the world is eager to have us grasp and which we would desert at our own peril.

Tonight, according to your program, "the United States replies ideals in crises where they required defense. He has made a great contribution to the welfare of his country and to the peace of the world. I salute him with affection and profound respect; and I hail him as a very great American!

General Marshall who succeeds him brings to his task a stout heart, a clear head and a rich experience. He has always enjoyed the total confidence of Congress and of all his military and civilian colleagues, at home and abroad. I wish him well in his great responsibility.

As a junior partner I have worked with Secretary Byrnes on what is called a "bi-partisan foreign policy" in the United Nations and in planning European peace. It would be more significant to say we have sought a united American foreign policy so that, despite some inevitable dissidence at home, America could enjoy abroad the enhanced authority of a substantially united front. I dare to believe that, despite some distressing domestic interludes, it has borne rich fruits.

In any event, partisan politics, for most of us, stopped at the water's edge. I hope they stay "stopped"—for the sake of America—regardless of what party is in power. This does not mean that we cannot have earnest, honest, even vehement domestic differences of opinion on foreign policy. It is no curb on free opinion or free speech.

But it does mean that they should not root themselves in partisanship. We should ever strive to hammer out a permanent American foreign policy, in basic essentials, which serves all America and deserves the approval of all American-minded parties at all times.

Charts Course for America

But let me get back to that "reply to the world." I assume "the world" chiefly wants to know whether America will persist in its attitudes toward collective peace and security. I cannot answer for others. I will answer for myself.

I believe the United States, in enlightened self-interest, will do everything within its power to sustain organized international defense against aggression; to promote democracy and human rights and fundamental freedoms; and, through international cooperation, to seek peace with justice in a free world of free men.

We plot no conquests. We shall neither condone nor appease the conquests of others. We ask nothing for ourselves except reciprocal fair-play. The extent to which it develops will determine our final course. We are not interest in unity at any price. We shall aspire to standards which will rally others to match our zeals. Our "reply to the world" provocation which was our immediate spur.

From Dumbarton Oaks we went to San Francisco and at the symbolic Golden Gate, the charter of the United Nations was unanimously approved. From San Francisco we went to Washington and the Senate spectacularly ratified the charter with but two dissenting votes. We accepted the jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice.

From Washington we went to London and organized the first "town meeting of the world." From London we came back to New York, where, in response to Congressional invitation, the United Nations launched its gigantic adventure on a site, in the United States, which thus gives us the permanent peace is a challenge to match us in good works.

Mr. Chairman, these American attitudes will persist because they stem from reason and reality, and we are a practical people. We should remind ourselves, as well as our neighbors, from time to time, of certain facts in this connection lest we suffer in steadfastness what we lose in recollection.

Prior to December, 1941, we were conscientiously divided, along lines of deep conviction, regarding our proper role in a world-at-war just as we were similarly divided twenty years before regarding our proper role in a world at peace.

Pearl Harbor ended that debate. It brought a united country to far flung battle lines where we swiftly mobilized the greatest fighting resources of all time. It did more. It released an evolution which drove most of us to the irresistible conclusion that world peace is indivisible.

We learned that the oceans are no longer moats around our ramparts. We learned that mass destruction is a progressive science which defies both time and space and reduces human flesh and blood to cruel impotence.

Then we contributed the crowning proof ourselves. In the climax of this tragedy we ourselves devised the atom bomb—an appalling tribute to our illimitable genius—an equally appalling prophecy of civilization's suicide unless world war three is stopped before it starts. This produced the inevitable conviction that the jungle code of war must be repealed for keeps.

Before the horrors of the conflict had even reached their maximum, we brought our major allies together at Dumbarton Oaks to chart the most essential victory of all—a victory over war itself. Oh yes, we had said these same things once before and they had turned to ashes on our lips. But there is no comparison in the capitol of the world.

This record cannot be misread at home or abroad. We have embraced the United Nations as the heart and core of united, unpartisan American foreign policy. We shall be faithful to the letter and the spirit of these obligations. In my view, this will be true no matter what administration sits in Washington; and it will remain true to whatever extent the United Nations themselves are faithful to our common pledge. That, in general, Mr. Chairman, would be my over-all "reply to the world."

But I make the "reply" with no illusions that now "all's well." The United Nations is neither an automatic nor a perfect instrument. Like any other human institution it will make mistakes. It must live and learn. It must grow from strength to strength. It must earn the ever expanding confidence and fidelity of people everywhere. It must deserve to survive.

Meanwhile it is definitely beset by hazards. For example, the necessity for unanimity among the five great powers is both strength and weakness to its arm. Strength—because these great powers when united are invincible. Weakness—because the excessive use of the veto, particularly in respect to the Pacific settlement of disputes, can reduce the whole system to a mockery.

It is much too early to talk about major surgery on the charter itself. But I hope all the great powers will voluntarily join in a new procedural interpretation of the charter to exempt all phases of Pacific settlements from what, in such instances, makes of the veto a stultifying checkmate. I pose this as a test of international good faith.

Beset by Fiscal Dangers

There is another hazard. The organization is beset by fiscal dangers. In the enthusiastic eagerness with which it expands its nobly mediated efforts through specialized agencies, each with its own uncoordinated autonomy, it threatens accumulating annual assessments which a majority of its member nations soon may be unable to fairly share.

In such event, either the burden is concentrated on a few large states or the smaller states drop out. In the former case, the sovereign equality of member states will disappear. In the latter case, the United Nations will become a "rich man's club" and its greatest genius—universality of membership—will disappear. Stern fiscal control is indispensable—not penury but prudence.

But, Mr. Chairman, we must not be impatient. It took five years to take the world apart. It would not be surprising if it took at least that long to put it together again. The remarkable thing is that the United Nations has done so well so soon. Its Security Council has already peacefully tempered many critical situations which, in the absence of its mediation, invited serious implications. The recent dispatch of a commission of inquiry to the Greek border is the latest striking case in point.

Meanwhile, its General Assembly has already initiated powerful movements for the common good—incomparably the greatest of which is an approach to mutual disarmament.

These things can be the beginnings of the greatest benediction of all time. They are worth every effort which men of good-will can muster.

And let's always remember this: the more imponderable the world's frictions may become, the greater the need to persevere in strengthening this one and only available agent of organized emancipation.

And this: If, one day, some aggressor leaves the United Nations, in order to be free of its restraints, the rest of the world has ready-made at-hand the well-geared machinery for another, and immediate, grand alliance swiftly and overwhelmingly to confront the offender. Would-be international assassins, if ever such there be, will not lightly chance such condign disaster.

Stress on Disarmament

I spoke of disarmament. No other peace factor is of such vitality; and none could better typify America's attitude toward peace and the world. We are prepared to disarm (1) to whatever extent other powers are dependably ready to make comparable, permanent and effective renunciations; or (2) in whatever degree the United Nations and its cooperative military resources prove hereafter to offer a reliable substitute. It is our dearest dream.

But we shall not "dream" ourselves into a nightmare. We shall not disarm alone. We shall not trust to the persuasion of our example. We tried that once before. We shall take no "sweetness and light" for granted in a world where there is still too much "iron curtain." We shall not trust alone to fickle words. Too many "words" at Yalta and at Potsdam have been distorted out of all pretense of integrity. We shall not ignore reality.

We do not intend to be at anybody's mercy; nor do we intend to emasculate our authority with those who may still think in terms of force. But we will joyfully match the utmost limits of mutual disarmament to which other titans will dependably agree, if there be disciplines which guarantee against bad faith; and we will speed the day when such a boon shall deal war its deadliest blow. I repeat, however, that this cannot happen either in ambush or on a one-way street.

Our American proposals regarding atomic bombs illustrate my point. With an investment of $3,000,000,000 in this supreme destroyer of all time, and with a monopoly upon its sinister secret for some years to come, we offer not only to abandon our dominant advantage but also to join in outlawing its destructive use by anybody, any time, anywhere on earth.

And what is our price? Just this—an effective system of continuous inspection and control which makes certain that no international brigand shall hereafter break faith with us and with the world! The price is simply protection against treachery!

But it is a fixed price, Mr. Chairman, and the price must be paid. We ask nothing for ourselves. We ask everything for peace. I submit, sir, that never has there been a comparable example of national good-will, nor one so thrillingly dramatizing the purpose of a great people to live and let live in a peaceful earth, if we are allowed to do so.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I briefly touch upon another phase. The economic factors of the peace are of vital interest to the world—and us. Peace and economics are inseparably kin.

Unfortunately this area of action is not so clear because the premises themselves are mixed in a clash of economic ideologies. But we shall not draw back from our essential responsibilites. For example, I am sure Congress will make a liberal relief appropriation—to be administered under American auspices in consultation with the United Nations—for the stricken postwar areas which are still war casualties, even though we never again contribute 72 per cent of an international fund, as in UNRRA, which can be controlled and even exploited by others.

This is said without prejudice to the great and humane achievements of UNRRA despite its handicaps.

Again, reasonable rehabilitation credits are unavoidable if democratic stabilities are to be restored before it is too late. By way of another example, I believe we shall continue the device of reciprocal trade agreements, in one form or another, to release and expand mutual trade—an even greater need for us than for any other country because our vastly expanded national economy and employment require it.

Whether this can continue on its present multilateral basis will depend somewhat upon the type of competition we confront from foreign state monopolies and from a growing habit abroad of making bilateral agreements for political as well as economic purposes. These habits could force us into defensive tactics which we would not voluntarily embrace. We shall fit our procedures to the necessities which are forced upon us.

Certainly we intend to keep our own American industry and agriculture in sound, domestic health, and to protect our system of free enterprise. Anything less would be a calamity not only for us but for the Western world. But sane, healthy, mutual trade expansion is best for all concerned.

Progress on Treaties

Mr. Chairman, my time runs out, though I have touched only the outer rim of our mutual problems with the world. I conclude with a few swift overtones.

We have finished five treaties with ex-enemy European states. They passed in review before a peace conference of twenty-one nations in Paris. We are entitled to say that this broad consultation of all our battle Allies was an achievement primarily due to American insistence. Here, again, is an unmistakable cue to our international disposition ever to recognize the rights of little states as well as big.

Here also is a cue to what seems to be our improved relations with the Soviet Union—as a result, I believe, of our present rugged policy of firm but friendly candor which I hope has permanently established the American doctrine that there are deadlines in our ideals from which we shall never again retreat. This is not truculence—it is the power of brave and naked truth.

When we left Paris in September the Council of Foreign Ministers was deadlocked on more than forty issues. When we left New York in December they were all amicably resolved. These five treaties are far from satisfactory in many aspects. But they bear no remote resemblance to the greater dissatisfactions which we have prevented; and they are a great advance toward reconstruction in a peaceful world.

Now we turn, after many weary months of urging, to peace plans for Austria and Germany. At long last we shall come to grips with the heart of the European problem. All occupying powers should recognize the independence of Austria and withdraw their troops.

In Germany, retarded by Russian and French refusals to fulfill the Potsdam requirement that the four zones of German occupation should operate as an economic unit, the German situation has suffered such economic deterioration as to threaten chaos and disaster. We have partially met this worsening crisis by unifying the American and British zones—with an invitation to the French and Russians to join us at their option. This is a hopeful pattern.

Meanwhile the business of renewed, decentralized political autonomy—looking toward federated states which shall be the masters and not the servants of a new Berlin—makes encouraging progress in the American zone.

But the pressing need is a plan for total peace—a plan which omits no possible precautions against recurrent Hitlerism, yet which offers some reward other than eternal degradation to new German states when they faithfully strive toward democratic self-redemption. The important thing for the world to know is that we intend to remain in occupation until this job is done. It is part of the war, if we are to preserve our victory.

For Pan-American Solidarity

Meanwhile, we face the intimate necessity of refreshing our indispensable Pan-American solidarity. This comes close home. It is historically basic in American foreign policy; and nothing has happened to lessen the importance of these good neighborly contacts. Quite the contrary. At San Francisco 20 Latin-American republics were unwilling to proceed with the United Nations Charter until the validity of our historic regional arrangements were officially tied into the United Nations plan. This was specifically done in Chapter VIII of the Charter. Thereupon, the then Secretary of State, Mr. Stettinius, as part of the agreed plan, promised—

"—To invite the other American republics to undertake in the near future the negotiation of a treaty which, as provided for in the Act of Chapultepec itself, would be consistent with the charter of world organization and would support and strengthen that organization, while at the same time advancing the development of the historic system of inter-American cooperation."

That was on May 15, 1945. This is Jan. 11, 1947. "In the near future" has not yet arrived. The secretary said of the proposed conference that "it would be another important step in carrying forward the good neighbor policy." If he was right—and I think he was—this long failure to hold the conference has had the opposite effect. I am well aware of the reasons for delay. I entirely sympathize with the anxiety to purge the Americas of their last vestige of nazism.

But I think that, under half a dozen solemn Pan American treaties to which we are a party, this is a multilateral decision which should always be made by all of us jointly and not influenced or dictated by us alone. In some aspects it can be said that we have been proceeding jointly. But I think it is past time to hold the Pan American conference which we promised in 1945, and there to formally renew the joint new world authority which is the genius of our new world unity.

There is too much evidence that we are drifting apart—and that a communistic upsurge is moving in. We face no greater need than to restore the warmth of new world unity which reached an all-time high at San Francisco.

I devote a few parting sentences to the Far East, where General MacArthur is doing so magnificent a job in Tokyo that our daily headlines scarcely remind us that we are successfully liquidating the greatest, single, post-war task which fell to our primary responsibility; and where the young Philippine Republic arises as a monument not only to its own vigorous self-development but also to our steadfast anti-imperialistic American liberalism which defies successful libel either at home or abroad. But it is particularly China to which I dedicate this paragraph.

Here lies a vast and friendly republic, rich in wisdom, equally rich in its democratic promise for tomorrow, and historically fixed in the orbit of our good-will. Since 1911, when Dr. Sun Yat-sen gave China her new vision, she has been struggling, against bitter odds, toward the light of a new day. While recognizing the Nationalist Government of Chiang Kai-shek, we have—through a year's mission headed by our distinguished General Marshall — been impartially urging that it produce unity with a rival armed party, the Chinese Communists.

Under the determined leadership of Chiang Kai-shek, a National Assembly has just produced a new Constitution and the Government is being reorganized with a coalition of non-Communist parties. We can hope that this Nanking charter, with its first, great national election promised before next Christmas, will weld together a strong and competent China.

It is my own view that our own Far Eastern policy might well now shift its emphasis. While still recommending unity, it might well encourage those who have so heroically set their feet upon this road, and discourage those who make the road precarious. Our marines, having finished their task, are coming home. But there will never be a minute when China's destiny is not of acute concern to the United States and to a healthy world.

My fellow citizens, we face a new year in world affairs with many gnawing problems still unsolved all around this turbulent globe. I have touched only a few which have special significance in respect to the topic of the evening. Peace is more difficult to win than was the war.

On the other hand, we have a right to cheer ourselves with some very real encouragements. The greatest of these—and I end as I began—is the luminous fact that fifty-five nations are committed by solemn covenant to help each other keep the peace, to substitute law for force, and to strive toward the uplift and defense of human rights and justice and fundamental freedoms.

The world has far to go before this pledge is a reliable reality. But the United Nations has raised this standard to which men of good-will in every clime and under every flag can repair; and it has already sped us on this God-blessed way. America will do her full part.

Cardinal Sees Key to Peace

CLEVELAND, Jan. 11 (AP).—Francis Cardinal Spellman declared tonight that the United States motto, "In God Is Our Trust," is the international key to world peace.

"I profess that only the love of God and the brotherhood of man can be the genesis, the basis and the soul of a sound, just and durable peace," the Cardinal said.

"In this atomic age of demoralization and brutality, the mission of the Church is exactly the same as it was two thousand years ago, and ever shall be the mission to help bring peace not alone to man but to mankind.

"I avow before the world that the precious peace which all men crave will never come to pass until a strong, loyal United Nations, undaunted, believes and lives the motto of our United States, 'In God Is Our Trust.'"

Cardinal Spellman received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from John Carroll University today. The Cardinal was accompanied to the university by Bishop Edward F. Hoban of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Cleveland, and Monsignor Vincent Balmat, chancellor of the diocese.

BRITISH PRESS ALBANIA CASE

United Nations Complaint Made Public By London

F. Carpenter

Lake Success, N.Y., Jan. 11 (AP)—The British made public today a long Albanian note flatly rejecting a London demand for an apology and compensation for mine damage to two British destroyers and the loss of 44 sailors.

Simultaneously, a British spokesman said Sir Alexander Cadogan, United Kingdom delegate to the United Nations Security Council, would press for an early and complete airing of his Government's charges against Albania. These were filed last night in the first case Britain has brought before the Security Council.

Propose Special Session

The British do not desire to obstruct the Security Council debate on arms limitation, this spokesman said, but they believe the Council can take up the Albanian case in a separate session before the arms talks are ended.

The Security Council, set to continue the arms discussion Wednesday, may start on the Albanian case late next week, one delegate indicated.

United Nations observers pointed out that Britain may tangle with Russia when the case is discussed. Russia fought for Albania's admission to the United Nations last year but was unsuccessful in the face of British and United States opposition.

Called Unsatisfactory

Cadogan's letter to the United Nations accompanying the notes said that Albania's answer to the British protest was "entirely unsatisfactory."

The case began last October 22 when the bows of two British destroyers were damaged by mines off the Albanian coast in the Corfu channel, and 44 sailors were killed.

Albania lodged a protest with the United Nations against alleged violations of Albanian waters by British ships.

On December 9, the British in a note to Albania demanded an apology and reparations under threat of taking the affair to the Security Council.

Indirectly Blames Greece

Albania, in the reply released by the British, turned down the demand for reparations and for compensation for the officers and men who were killed; refused to apologize; called the incident an "accident" for which the Albanian government was not responsible, and indirectly laid the blame on the Greek government, with which Albania is at odds. This note was dated December 21.

Albania said that if the mining had been done intentionally, it "could only have come from those who wish to disturb the relations between these peoples, and who do not wish to see good and amicable relations established between Great Britain and Albania.

Described As Support

"This hypothesis of the Albanian Government can be supported by the fact that Greek ships and ships belonging to other countries have often traversed Albanian territorial waters without authorization and have entered right into the southern Albanian ports."

The British said they lodged the complaint under Article 35 of the United Nations Charter. This permits any member of the United Nations to bring up any dispute or situation mentioned in Article 34.

Article 34 says the Security Council may investigate any dispute or situation which might lead to international friction to determine whether the continuance of the dispute or situation is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security.

Albania Rejects British Demand

London, Jan. 11 (AP)—Britain published today her complaint to the Security Council against Albania. In it Britain rejected as "entirely unsatisfactory" Albania's refusal to meet demands for an apology, compensation and reparations for damage and loss of 44 lives aboard two destroyers damaged by mines in Corfu Channel last October 22.

The Foreign Office also made public the Hoxhia Regime's reply to Britain's original demands upon Albania. In this Albania denied responsibility for the mines and said Britain should have removed them. She struck out at Greece.

The Albanian reply spoke of the "extremely unfriendly attitude of the Government of Great Britain and its ulterior intentions toward Albania," and added:

"The Albanian Government is of the opinion that if there was any evil intention, such an inhuman act could only come from those who wish to disturb the relations between these peoples and who do not wish to see good and amicable relations established between Great

Text of British Note on Albania's Statement

LONDON, Jan. 1[illegible] (AP)—Following is the text of the letter addressed to the Secretary General of the United Nations by Sir Alexander Cadogan, United Kingdom representative, and made public here today:

I have the honor, under instructions from my Government, to forward to you copies of a note addressed by His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom to the Albanian Government on Dec. 9, 1946, of the Albanian Government's reply of Dec. 21, and of a further note which His Majesty's Ambassador at Belgrade has now been instructed to present to the Albanian Government, regarding an incident in which two of His Majesty's ships were damaged by mines in the Corfu Channel on Oct. 22 last.

As will be seen, His Majesty's Government in their note set forth their grounds for believing that the Albanian Government was responsible for this incident, and requested an apology and compensation. His Majesty's Government added in their note that if no satisfactory reply was received from the Albanian Government within fourteen days of the receipt of this note they would be obliged to bring the matter before the Security Council. In the view of His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom, the Albanian Government's reply of Dec. 21 is entirely unsatisfactory and His Majesty's Government have accordingly instructed me to bring this dispute to the early attention of the Security Council under Article 35 of the Charter.

The text of the note addressed by His Majesty's Government to the Albanian legation in Belgrade on 9 Dec, 1946, for transmission to the Albanian Government, was published on 10 Dec.

The Albanian Government's reply to this note was handed to Mr. Charles Peake, the British Ambassador in Belgrade, on 21 Dec. It was in the following terms:

(1) Following on my note No. N221,18 of 14 Dec., 1946, I have the honor on instructions from my Government to convey to you the following answer to your note No. 408/39/46 of 29 Dec., 1946, which Your Excellency addressed to me on the instructions of His Majesty's Foreign Office.

(2) The Albanian Government expresses its profound regret for the accident which occurred to the two British destroyers on 22 Oct., 1946. But at the same time it energetically rejects all the accusations contained in the above-mentioned note with the purpose of making the Albanian Government responsible for this regrettable incident. The accusations made do not conform either with the peaceful aspirations and purposes so often expressed by the Albanian people or with the Albanian Government's policy in its relations with both Great Britain and with other peaceful peoples; similarly they do not conform with the actual facts and circumstances in which the incident of 22 Oct. took place.

(3) The Albanian Government regrets to have to point out that the conduct of the British Government toward Albania was not always guided by the same peaceful objects. It was precisely the British Government which alone supported the unjustified and unfounded pretensions of the Greek imperialists over a part of Albanian territory. The Government of Great Britain opposed with the greatest firmness the entry of an Allied country such as Albania into UNO [the United Nations], even though this country—the first victim of Italian fascism—had full right to such entry in consideration of its support to the common Allied cause.

Overt Acts Charged

The extremely unfriendly attitude of the Government of Great Britain and its ulterior intentions toward Albania showed themselves more clearly during the preparation of the peace treaties and in the groundless refusal to establish regular diplomatic relations.

This unfriendly attitude of Great Britain has come out in acts directed against the sovereignty of the People's Republic of Albania. Thus, on 15 May, 1946, two warships which the Albanian Government later learned belonged to the British Navy entered without authorization and demonstratively into Albanian territorial waters near the port of Saranda.

Similar acts took place on 22 Oct. when four ships of the British Fleet entered into Albanian territorial waters; two in the Gulf of Saranda within 1.5 kilometers of the port, while two others sailed demonstratively within Albanian territorial waters, outside Kakomo and Borshi; and again when on 23 Oct. this year, British aircraft flew over Albanian territory.

This unfriendly attitude on the part of Great Britain toward Albania was similarly shown in the unilateral decision of the British Government to proceed to the sweeping of mines in Albanian territorial waters, in the demonstration made by British warships on 12 Nov. when they sailed past the coast of southern Albania in every direction, fully equipped and in war formation, from Butrinto to Karaburun, as also in the actual minesweeping operations which took place on 13 Nov. On this occasion many British warships and minesweepers whose number varied from hour to hour between 11 and 23, penetrated our territorial waters near the port of Saranda and navigated within 500 to 1,500 meters, firing on this occasion machine-gun bursts into the air and in the water.

(4) To these illegal acts on the part of the British Navy, the Albanian Government, faithful to the peaceful principles of its policy, answered by justified protests adressed both to His Majesty's Government and to the United Nations, in which it demanded that the liberty, independence and sovereignty of Albania which the Albanian people has bought so dear in its struggle against the Fascist aggressor, should be respected. The fact that in order to protect its rights, the Albanian Government used peaceful means, although in each of the cases quoted above it had every right of legitimate defense, is the best proof of the peaceful intentions, aspirations and objects of the Albanian Government.

(5) As for the events which occurred on 22 Oct. and those which followed, the Albanian Government wishes first of all to declare that it respects the principles of international law with regard to maritime navigation. According to the British point of view as expressed in Paragraph 6 of His Majesty's Ambassador's note, ships have a right of innocent passage through straits which form a highway of international communication. However, this principle of innocent passage, as far is it can be applied in this case, was flagrantly violated by His Majesty's ships on the occasion of their passage through the north part of the Corfu Channel. It is evident that one cannot speak of innocent passage when the British warships sail demonstratively very near the Albanian coast as shown in the cases mentioned above, and, further, when British aircraft fly over Albanian territory, as was the case on 23 Oct. Similarly, one cannot describe as innocent passage demonstrations made by British warships on 12 Nov. and which, from the way in which they were carried out, were performed with the purpose of exercising intimidation and pressure.

This is clearly confirmed by the fact that the British ships, according to the declaration of the commander of the British Mediterranean Fleet, were at the time of their passage through the channel "at battle stations prepared for battle and prepared to resist all eventualities."

Responsibility Put on Britain

Furthermore, if Great Britain really wishes to apply the principle of innocent passage and to assure the safety of merchant shipping, she would have taken the trouble beforehand to remove the mines in the middle of the North Corfu Channel, which is the safest from the point of view of shipping, in such a way that navigation through the channel would better agree with the principle of innocent passage mentioned in the British note.

(6) With regard to the accusations according to which the Albanian Government itself placed the mines or was aware that others had placed them or again knew of the presence of mines in the Corfu Channel, these accusations are completely without foundation and are profoundly wounding to the peaceful aspirations and feelings of the Albanian people and the Albanian Government.

The inaccuracy of the accusations according to which the Albanian Government caused these mines to be laid comes out from the fact given in Paragraph 4 of the British note, where it is stated that Albania was not invited to take part in the work of the Mediterranean Zone Board because Albania did not possess any means of minesweeping.

It is therefore absurd to affirm that Albania, not possessing the necessary means either for sweeping or laying mines, should have been able to effect an operation on such a big scale; even more so from the fact that such an act would not conform with the principles on which the policy of the Albanian Government is based.

For the same reasons the Albanian Government most energetically rejects the charge that they were aware of an alleged laying of mines by some one else or that they know of the presence of mines in the Corfu Channel. The Albanian Government is of the opinion that if there was any evil intention, such an inhuman act could only come from those who wish to disturb the relations between these peoples and who do not wish to see good and amicable relations established between Great Britain and Albania.

This hypothesis of the Albanian Government can be supported by the fact that Greek ships and ships belonging to other countries have often traversed Albanian territorial waters without authorization and have entered right into the southern Albanian ports. During this year there have been eight such cases against which the Albanian Government have protested, giving a copy of its protests on each occasion to the foreign representatives accredited to the Albanian Government.

(8) On the other hand, the Albanian Government emphasizes that General Hodgson presented a note to the Albanian Government covering a chart of the minefields and swept channels safe for navigation in Albanian waters but accompanied by the remark that these channels are not safe and that Great Britain does not guarantee the safety of navigation in this zone.

(9) Furthermore, the Albanian Government wishes to emphasize that even after the second minesweeping on Nov. 13, according to the declaration made at a meeting of the Mediterranean Zone Board at Rome on Dec. 10, fourteen mines were cut loose and drifted toward the Albanian coast.

(10) After the events of Oct. 22 the British Government made a unilateral decision that the mines should be swept. In its note of Oct. 29 the Albanian Government protested against the violation of Albanian territorial waters which occurred on Oct. 22 and informed the British Government at the same time that it was opposed to the sweeping of mines in its territorial waters in accordance with a unilateral decision. But in spite of all this the British Government in its note of Nov. 10 informed the Albanian Government that the mines in the north part of the Corfu Channel would be swept on Nov. 12.

Following this unilateral action on the part of the British Government, the Albanian Government protested to the United Nations in the most energetic manner. The Albanian Government also protested to the British Government in its note of Nov. 11 and with the purpose of reaching an agreement proposed to the British Government the forming of a mixed commission.

Board Decision Cited

Nevertheless, the British Government, according to its previously taken unilateral decision and not wishing to settle matters by an agreement and by collaboration between the two Governments, sent its warships into Albanian territorial waters on 12 and 13 Nov. and carried out the minesweeping alone and as it wished.

On this occasion, in order to justify its unilateral action, the British Government in its note of 9 Dec. referred to the unanimous decision taken by the Central Mines Clearance Board on 1 Nov., according to which the north part of the Corfu Channel was to be swept clear of mines.

However, as the Albanian Government has been informed, both the Mediterranean Zone Board in its extraordinary meeting of 28 Oct. and the Central Board in its meeting of 1 Nov. came to the decision in principle to proceed to the sweeping of the mines—a decision to which the Albanian Government has no objection—but emphasizing that the operation should be effected with the consent of the Albanian Government.

It follows that the proposal of the Albanian Government to form a mixed commission was entirely in the spirit of the Central Board's decision to sweep the mines, seeing that the purpose of this proposal was to settle the matter in a spirit of agreement and collaboration between the interested countries.

When these facts are taken into consideration, the objection made by the British Government in Paragraph 15 of the British Ambassador's note, namely that the object of the Albanian proposal was to delay the mine-sweeping, is strange to say the least. On the contrary, the Albanian Government's proposal proves a constant desire for collaboration on its part.

(11) In view of the above, the Albanian Government declared that it cannot attribute any importance whatsoever to facts which have allegedly been confirmed by British experts and by an impartial person mentioned in the British note and thus rejects as inaccurate and without foundation the accusation based on these allegedly confirmed facts.

(12) The Albanian Government cannot, therefore, consider the demand for reparation and for compensation for the families of the officers and men who lost their lives in the accident which happened to the British ships. The Albanian Government cannot either accept the demand for an apology presented by the British Government either for the unfortunate incident of 22 Oct., for which the Albanian Government is in no way responsible, or for the incident of 15 May, seeing that this latter was a case of an act directed against the sovereignty of Albania by British warships—an act as contrary to the interest of good relations between Great Britain and Albania as it is contrary to the Charter of the United Nations.

Mr. Peake was instructed on 9 Jan. to present a further note to the Albanian chargé d'affaires in Belgrade in the following terms:

His Majesty's Government have received the Albanian Government's note of Dec. 21 concerning the incidents in the Corfu Channel.

His Majesty's Government cannot accept the Albanian Government's reply as a satisfactory answer to their note of Dec. 9. His Majesty's Government observe that none of the demands summarized in Paragraph 20 of their note of Dec. 9 have been met. In these circumstances, in accordance with the statement contained in Paragraph 21 of their note of Dec. 9, His Majesty's Government are taking steps to bring this matter before the Security Council of the United Nations.

Trieste Governor Next Problem

Lake Success, N.Y., Jan. 11 (AP)—The Security Council was on the lookout today for a man to run the Adriatic port of Trieste and guide it in the ways of peace and democracy as a free territory under United Nations supervision.

The Council, after a long procedural argument yesterday, finally agreed to take over Trieste at the bidding of the Big Four Foreign Ministers Council, which established the free territory as part of the Italian peace settlement.

Australia Abstains

Only Australia abstained in the 10-0 vote on Trieste, maintaining to the end that the council was not specifically authorized to undertake such an administration as that arranged for the Adriatic port area by the United States, Britain, Russia and France.

The council was in recess until 11 A.M. (E.S.T.) Wednesday when debate on arms-reduction proposals will be resumed.

The next step for the formation of a Trieste administration, after the signing of the Italian peace treaty at Paris February 10 and its ratification, may lead to squabbling over the selection of a territorial governor.

He must be acceptable to at least seven of the eleven Security Council nations, including all the veto-holding Big Five permanent members, and he must also pass muster with both the Italian and Yugoslav governments. This means that any nominee can be vetoed by any one of seven nations.

Must Speak Language

The Governor will get $20,000 a year plus expenses. He must be able to speak one of the two official languages of the free territory, Slovene or Italian. He will probably be a man who can speak both and probably also Croat, which may be adopted as a third official tongue when the Government begins functioning with a Council, a popular assembly, a judiciary, etc., which will govern unmolested so long as they can run the show themselves. The Council will direct any armed forces, besides police and security elements, operating in the free territory.

Big Four's Deputies To Start Conference

London, Jan. 11 (AP)—Deputy Foreign Ministers — representing the United States, France, Russia and Britain—will meet here Tuesday to prepare the groundwork on peace treaties for Germany and Austria, twenty months after the victory in Europe.

Their findings will be turned over to their chiefs, who will convene in Moscow March 10 to begin consideration of what to do about one of the generation's most puzzling prblems—Germany.

The United States delegates are expected to arrive here tomorrow. They are Robert D. Murphy, political adviser of the American commander in Germany, who will assist in drawing up the treaty for Germany, and Gen. Mark W. Clark, commanding United States forces in Austria, who will work on the Austria pact. (400)

FRANCE NAMES NEW PRESIDENT ON THURSDAY

Blum Steps Down Tuesday as Parliament Meets—Future Confused

Paris, Jan. 11 (AP)—France approaches the task next week of preparing to set up permanent institutions of the Fourth Republic refreshed by a remarkable 30-day vacation from politics that has wrought unusual improvements both in the nation's economy and the public morale.

The man credited with these accomplishments is Socialist Leon Blum, who will resign as interim president-premier Tuesday. Election of the first president of the Fourth Republic is scheduled for Thursday.

Blum, 74 and in ill-health, has succeeded in restoring the confidence in the franc where many predecessors failed, including Gen. DeGaulle, Socialist Felix Gouin and Georges Bidault.

The immediate future is shrouded in confusion, but it appears likely that the Communists, who have announced their opposition to another term for Blum, will be represented in the next cabinet.

Beginning on Tuesday, when Parliament sits, France will fill four top governmental offices: President of the national assembly, president of the Council of the Republic, president of the Republic, and premier.

The Communists say they will fight hard to get back into the cabinet. Socialist Vincent Auriol has announced he wants to be elected president of the republic. Radical-Socialist Leader Edouard Herriot wants the premiership. A large number of Frenchmen would like to see Blum's all-Socialist Government continued.

By virtue of an all-Socialist cabinet Blum has forced through the first price decreases in France in a decade. He has wrought a significant anti-black market change in the nation's psychology. He has restored confidence, temporarily.

He has held off a threatened general strike by the nation's largest trade unions, and has masterminded what appears thus far to be a successful military campaign in a small-scale war in Indo-China.

Viet Nam Forces Claim Successes

Paris, Jan. 11 (AP)—Viet Nam forces claimed today to have slashed the rail line in several places between Saigon and Dalat, imperilling French troop and supply movement in Indo-China, while President Ho Chi Minh defiantly told the French they were confronted with at least a 20-year war."

The Viet Nam statements were broadcast over thei rsecret radio. Dalat is 150 miles northeast of Saigon, headquarters of the French colonial staff in southern Indo-China.

Meanwhile, the French Cabinet met to take up the Indo-China situation i nadvance of the expected arrival here tomorrow of Marius Moutet, Colonial Minister, who has made a tour of the fighting areas.

General Leclerc, France's renowned armored force commander, also was expected back tomorrow. He has taken an active part in directing the French troops in their battles with the Viet Nam forces that began on December 19. (400)

Viet-Nam Chief Defies France

Paris, Jan. 11 (AP)—President Ho Chi Minh of the rebellious Viet-Nam Republic flung new defiance at the French in embattled Indo-China today, declaring in a broadcast that France had failed to win the war with the Viet-Namese and would be "unable to win it in twenty years."

As the fighting in France's Far Eastern colony continued into its fourth week, an Associated Press dispatch from Saigon quoted the same broadcast as reporting that native Nationalist forces had cut the railroad between Saigon and Dalat, 150 miles to the northeast.

Rupture of this vital communication link would mean that the Viet-Namese were effectively halting movement of French troops, supplies and food in Cochin China, southernmost Indo-Chinese state. Increasing Viet-Namese activity in the southern state has been noted in recent days.

French Success In North

In the north, where most of the fighting has been centered, a French General Staff communiqué reported initial successes in a move to wrest control of all the highlands between the area of Hanoi and the Chinese border. The French reported yesterday they had seized control of the city of Sonla, 130 miles west of Hanoi.

As Premier Léon Blum's Cabinet in Paris prepared to review the entire Indo-Chinese situation, Colonial Minister Marius Moutet reached Cairo, Egypt, on his trip back to France to report on his survey of the fighting. He was expected to reach Paris tomorrow. Gen. Leclerc, French tank commander who has been in the colony, was also flying to Paris.

Nazi Murder Of Wife Of Polish General Told

Hamburg, Jan. 11 (AP)—Vera Salvequart, 27-year-old brunette charged with killing and maltreating confinees while a prisoner nurse at Ravensbruck women's concentration camp, described for a military court today the murder of the wife of a Polish general, Alexander Schikowsky.

The former nurse said Mrs. Schikowsky was selected from a group of 300 women and taken to a washroom by two SS corporals. The defendant said she saw one corporal kneel on the prostrate woman while the other forced powder into her mouth with a spoon.

The defendant testified that she was ordered to hold the woman's nose to compel her to swallow the powder, but ran screaming from the room. She said the washroom then was locked and Mrs. Schikowsky was left alone to die.

NAZI NURSE TELLS OF CAMP MURDER

Hamburg, Jan. 11 (A. P.).—Vera Salvequart, pretty 27-year-old brunette charged with killing and maltreating confinees while a prisoner nurse at Ravensbruck women's concentration camp, described for a military court today the murder of the wife of Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, wartime commander of the Free Polish Army and Premier of the Polish Government in Exile.

The former nurse said Mrs. Sikorski was selected from a group of 300 women and taken to a washroom by two SS corporals. The defendant said she saw one corporal kneel on the prostrate woman while the other forced powder into her mouth with a spoon.

She said Mrs. Sikorski tried to spit out the powder, screaming: "Why are you trying to murder me?"

The defendant testified that she was ordered to hold the woman's nose to compel her to swallow the powder, but ran screaming from the room.

She said the washroom then was locked and Mrs. Sikorski left alone to die.

VON PAPEN TO BE TRIED

Must Appear at Denazification Board Before Jan. 27

NUREMBERG, Germany, Jan. 11 (AP)—Franz von Papen, acquitted by the International Military Tribunal of war crimes charges, was served in his Nuremberg hospital room today with an indictment requiring him to appear before a German denazification board.

Dr. Alfred Lositz, Denazification Minister, said that von Papen and Hans Fritsche, Nazi propagandist who also was acquitted by the tribunal, would be tried before the board in Nuremberg sometime before Jan. 27.

The indictment charges that von Papen helped Hitler gain power, that he wore the golden Nazi party badge and that he served as Minister to Vienna and Ambassador to Ankara in the interests of the Nazi regime.

Paper Shortage in U. S. Zone

BERLIN, Jan. 11 (AP).—A paper shortage in the American occupation zone has resulted in suspension of eight religious periodicals in the state of Wuerttemberg-Baden and a general reduction in circulation and size of all American-licensed German newspapers and magazines.

POLES RESIST TRANSFER

Forcibly Removed From One U. S. German Camp to Another

FRANKFORT ON THE MAIN, Germany, Jan. 11 (AP)—A number of Polish displaced persons who objected to a transfer from one camp to another within the United States zone were moved forcibly by United States troops, the Army announced today.

Some "stubborn resisters," the announcement said, were carried to trucks by constabulary troopers.

Others, who were ill or claimed to be, were transported in ambulances with doctors in attendance, the announcement said.

The Poles objected to leaving the Murnau displaced persons camp for one in Augsburg, 60 miles away, partly because they did not want to travel in cold weather and partly because they suspected a ruse to repatriate them to Russia, Army sources said.

Socialists Split In Italy

Rome, Jan. 11 (AP)—Anti-Communist factions of the Socialist party broke completely today with the rest of the party, and the leader of the bolters declared that unless the party remained independent of foreign pressures "we will not be able to escape the specter of civil war and of international war."

Giuseppe Saragat, president of the Constituent Assembly in which the Socialists with 114 deputies are second in strength and hold the balance of power, made this declaration as delegates to the frequently turbulent twenty-fifth national congress of the party listened in shocked quiet:

"The Italian Socialist party has been submitted to a cold and methodical process of subjugation to the principles of foreign forces. If in Italy there is not to be an independent Socialist party, we will not be able to escape the specter of civil war and international war."

De Gasperi Accuses War Fear

[In Cleveland, Premier Alcide de Gasperi, who is in the United States to seek financial and other aid for Italy, described as "ridiculous" statements that the split in the Socialists might lead to civil war. He admitted the split would have "a poor psychological effect" on his mission, but as to cival war he laughingly asked: "Who is going to fight it?"] (400 w.)

The dissidents began immediately the formation of a new anti-Communist Socialist party to oppose the pro-Communist leadership of Pietro Nenni, Italy's Socialist Foreign Minister. Saragat said the new party would be known as "the Italian Socialist party, international section of Socialist workers."

How many deputies from the Socialist parliamentary group would follow Saragat out of the party was uncertain. What effect the split would have on de Gasperi's four-party government also remained undetermined.

Bolters Estimate Power

On the first question an experienced parliamentarian said, "That will depend entirely on how things go. If things go well for the dissidents almost all of the Socialist deputies will go with Saragat. If his movement does not seem to be succeeding, they will stay away from him."

The bolters estimated their strength at sixteen per cent of the party congress.

De Gasperi's Christian Democrats, predominantly Catholic, hold nine portfolios in the Government.

The Socialists and Communists have four each and the small left-wing Republicans two. In the Assembly the Christian Democrats have 207 deputies, the Socialists 114, and the Communists 104 out of 554 seats. The 129 remaining are from small groups.

Dissidents' Chief Complaint

Saragat withdrew from the congress with the words "we take another road" and later he said "I meant a complete break with the Nenni party."

A chief complaint of the dissidents was that in the November municipal elections when the Socialists and Communists formed a common ticket the Socialists lost ground and the Communists gained.

In his statement, Saragat said that his "Socialist critics" group would join with the "Socialist initiativists" who announced their break two days ago through Matteo Matteiotti, 25-year-old son of Giacomo Matteiotti, Socialist martyr of the Fascist era.

Saragat predicted wider support would come gradually into his infant party, particulary from the "centrist" group.

'Specter Of Civil War' Raised By Split In Italy

Rome, Jan. 11 (AP)—A large, anti-Communist faction of the Italian Socialist party seceded today over the issue of collaboration with the Communists, and planned to form a new party.

The faction's leader, Giuseppe Saragat, president of the Constituent Assembly, announced the split at the Socialist party's twenty-fifth annual congress and said the walk-out raised "the specter of civil war."

Clashes With Acting Premier

Saragat thus broke directly with Pietro Nenni, pro-Communist chairman of the Socialist party, who is Italy's Foreign Minister and Acting Premier during the current visit to the United States of Premier Alcide de Gasperi.

[Gasperi said in Cleveland that statements that the split would lead to civil war were "ridiculous." He admitted the news had a "poor psychological effection" on his mission to the United States to seek a loan and post-UNRRA aid.]

Claims Matteotti As Aide

The Socialists generally are considered Italy's second strongest party, ranking just behind the Centrist Christian Democrats. The Communists rank third.

Saragat said his new party would be called the "Italian Socialist party, international section of socialist workers." He said it would contain, besides his own followers, a group called the "Initiative," led by 25-year-old Matteo Matteotti, son of the Socialist martyr of the Fascist era, and possibly another faction known as the "Centrists."

Cites "Foreign Forces"

Saragat asserted that Italian Socialists had been subjected to the "principles of foreign forces" and that pro-Communist leadership of the Socialist party held the danger of "international war."

"If we thought our presence in the party were useful, we would remain," Saragat said at one point. "But we have lost hope that this is possible."

Saragat, finishing his speech with the statement, "we take another road . . . in method," shouted, "Long live socialism!" and left the building while delegates sang the "Internationale" and the "Red Flag."

Other Dissident Groups

His speech came two days after the Matteotti faction had left the party on the same issue of Communist collaboration.

A third dissident group, the party "Centrists," threatened in an announcement last night also to leave the party if "totalitarian methods" and heavy emphasis on Marxism were not corrected. They claimed twenty per cent of the congress.

Saragat also denounced the "totalitarian methods" of Nenni's administration, which he claimed accounted for the Nenni majority in the congress.

Subjugation Charged

Brusquely, he said:

"The Italian Socialist party has been submitted to a cold and methodical process of subjugation to the principles of foreign forces.

"If in Italy there is not to be an independent Socialist party, we will not be able to escape the specter of civil war and international war.

"If in Italy there is not an independent and strong party that unites the proletariat and middle classes, the country will divide into two great opposing camps."

After the meeting Saragat said his faction has "broken completely" with the pro-Communist group led by Nenni.

What effect the split would have on the four-party Government of Premier de Gasperi was not immediately clear. In that Government, de Gasperi's own Christian Democrats hold nine portfolios, the Socialists and Communists four each, and the small left-wing Republicans two.

Catholics Faced Sanctions

Shortly before the Constituent Assembly elections last June, an episcopal letter of the Umbrian (Central Italian Department) bishops, published in L'Osservatore Romano, said that Catholics voting for the Marxist or anti-clerical parties would be subject to "sanctions of canon law."

Pope Pius XII also appealed to electors at that time to vote "in the Christian way."

After the Christian Democrats had led the voting, L'Osservatore Romano said it hoped the results would prove "an efficacious counsel to other countries."

How many deputies from the Socialist parliamentary group will follow Saragat out of the party is one of the most uncertain elements in the situation. One experienced parliamentarian said:

"That will depend entirely on how things go. You know that legislative representatives everywhere are the most cautious of all politicians. If things go well for the dissidents, almost all the Socialist deputies will go with Saragat. If his movement does not seem to be succeeding, they will stay away from him."

Two weeks ago sixty-seven Socialist deputies reportedly agreed in writing to stick to Saragat. Yesterday, on the eve of his break, only ten or twenty stalwarts gave him more than conditional support.

Sicilians To Seek Loan On Tour Of Americas

Palermo, Sicily, Jan. 11 (AP)—Gennaro Patricolo, mayor of Palermo, said today an eight-man Sicilian delegation would make a four-month tour of North and South America to attempt to obtain a loan for Sicily.

Patricolo said he would head the mission and that it would visit New World cities named after the ancient cities of this historic island.

The loan would be for an autonomous Sicilian government, which is to be formed after regional elections for the Sicilian Assembly next April 20.

Patricolo said that even under autonomy, any loan to Sicily would have to be authorized by the central Italian Government.

Polish Vote Conditions

Warsaw, Jan. 11 (AP)—Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk announced today that he had informed the British, United States and Russian governments that conditions prevailing in Poland precluded the holding of free and unfettered elections on January 19.

It also appeared to observers that only a slim chance existed for the Poles to choose their new parliament in the manner specified by the Yalta and Potsdam Big Three agreements.

People Kept In The Dark

The Polish regime maintained silence on the latest American notes pointing out that oppressive measures against the opposition, for which Mikolajczyk is the chief spokesman, barred the holding of the fair elections stipulated at Potsdam.

The Polish people were kept entirely in the dark about the protests from the United States and Britain. No newspaper has published any of the three American notes or those presented by Britain.

Mikolajczyk, head of the Polish (PSL) party, said he gave notes to the ambassadors of the three nations pointing out that suppression and intimidation of votes and arrest of members of his party made impossible the holding of elections in accord with the Potsdam pact.

Much Evidence Of Coercion

There is much evidence of coercion and intimidation of voters. The government bloc parties control the key positions in the Soviet-supported regime, and are reported threatening the people that unless they vote a straight bloc ticket they will lose their jobs and homes, and even their lives.

Already twenty per cent of the nation's 24,000,000 population is deprived of the right to choose between Mikolajczyk's party candidates and the pro-government bloc candidates.

These are the factors operating against what the government insists will be free and unfettered elections:

Mikolajczyk charges and the government admits that the PSL has been denied candidates in ten thickly populated rural districts embracing a population of more than 5,000,000 and including nearly 3,000,000 voters.

Mass Arrests Continue

The Government contends it acted under an election law which denies the right of candidacy to persons connected with subversive underground organizations. Mikolajczyk sa tyshat the charge his candidates had underground connections is baseless.

As far as can be learned the PSL is denied membership in local and district election commissions. A Government promise to supply names of commissions has not materalized.

The mass arrest of PSL supporters is apparently continuing. Mikolajczyk has charged and the government has not denied that 248 PSL candidates have been eliminated from election lists.

Witnesses Called In Pole Trial

Warsaw, Jan. 11 (AP)—The Government summoned an array of witnesses today in an attempt to show that Count Kawery Grocholski and three others on trial for high treason gave state and military secrets to a foreign ambassador and established contact between him and an underground organization attempting to overthrow the Warsaw regime.

The prosecution has referred in the trial only to "a foreign ambassador," but one of the defendants testified yesterday that the envoy involved was "the English Ambassador." Witnesses were cautioned thereafter not to refer to the man in question by name.

The British Foreign Office last night rejected an implication that Britain's Ambassador plotted with underground representatives.

Leaves For London

As the sensational trial entered its final phase, the British Ambassador, Victor F. W. Cavendish-Bentinck, left by train for Prague and Paris on his way back to London for consultations with the Foreign Office.

The British Government has recalled the Ambassador to consult on the forthcoming Polish elections, subject of British and American protest notes. The Polish Government, meanwhile, maintained silence on the notes, which had charged repressive measures by the regime against opposition parties. No Polish newspaper has yet published any of the three American and two British notes.

Press Sensation

Pro-Government newspapers gave sensational treatment to the trial developments, but did not publish the name of the Ambassador involved.

Today's testimony centered on alleged efforts of the widespread underground organization WIN, whose initials stand for the Polish words for "freedom and independence," to bring about a coup d'état against the Warsaw provisional regime.

Vice Premier Stanislaw Miklajczyk, leader of the opposition Polish Peasant Party, announced meanwhile that he had informed the governments of the United States, the Soviet Union and Britain as signatories of the Potsdam agreement that the conditions prevailing in Poland preclude the possibility of free and unfettered elections.

Greek Rebels Seek Reinforcements

Athens, Jan. 11 (AP)—Press reports quoting official sources said today guerrillas with headquarters around Mount Vermion, west of Salonika, had called upon all person able to bear arms to join them immediately.

These dispatches reported that leaders Ypsilantis and Lassanis, describing themselves as commanders of Greece's democratic army," had proclaimed a "general mobilization" in the Veroia district in northern Greece.

Other reports said 52 guerrillas had been killed, 21 captured and an unspecified number wounded in the last 24 hours in four major and four minor engagements in western Macedonia and Thessaly.

Arms Reported Captured

Twenty-six—the heaviest toll—died in an encounter near the village of Georgeani near Veroia, dispatches said.

Three small bands were reported broken up and considerable quantities of arms and other supplies captured.

Three daughters of two gendarmes were said to have been killed, two Rightists seized, 16 houses burned and 150 cattle stolen in a raid by a band of 200 on Sevastiana near Edessa.

MONTGOMERY RETURNS FROM MOSCOW VISIT

British Minister Also on Flight—Extended Alliance Hinted

Moscow, Jan. 11—(AP)—Field Marshal Lord Montgomery flew home today after a six-day visit in which he had a harmonious talk with Prime Minister Stalin and discussed military collaboration with Soviet officials.

A last-minute passenger on the British Chief of Staff's plane was Frank Roberts, the British Minister in Moscow. Before Montgomery's visit Roberts had not planned a trip to London.

Observers believed developments or prospective developments based on the Field Marshal's trip caused the Minister to fly to London to make a personal report to the Foreign Office.

Britain has a 20-year alliance with Russia, signed in 1942, which British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin has offered to extend to 50 years.

(London dispatches said Montgomery arrived in the British capital in the early evening and went at once to the War Office.)

It appeared here that Montgomery definitely had eliminated some of the Soviet suspicion concerning growing military collaboration between Britain and the United States. The Russians have been very critical concerning reports that the British and Americans were working out details of standardizing arms and integrating their training programs.

Montgomery was authoritatively reported to have given the Russians assurances that this British-American co-operation was not exclusive, and informed quarters said they believed a closer arrangement between Britain and Russia would grow out of Montgomery's trip.

Americans here said they were not disturbed over reports that the Soviet Union and Britain might draw closer in a military way.

MONTGOMERY ENDS VISIT TO MOSCOW

London, Jan. 11.—(A. P.)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery returned home from Moscow today.

Moscow, Jan. 11 (A. P.).—Garbed in the overcoat and boots of a Soviet marshal, Field Marshal Lord Montgomery, chief of the British Imperial Staff, left for home by plane today after a triumphal visit to Moscow, climaxed by two meetings with Premier Stalin. Looking warm and comfortable in the bitter subzero weather, he chatted at the airport for a time. He told reporters that Stalin looked fine, appearing to be in excellent health. He shook hands with his hosts and thanked them for their hospitality. He expressed the hope of seeing some of the Russians in London next spring or summer.

The atmosphere of cordiality was enhanced by the appearance at the airport of Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky, chief of the Soviet General Staff, who braved the cold despite his recent illness.

It is well known that Montgomery's visit was not purely social and that he definitely talked problems of military collaboration. Most important was his seventy-minute interview with Stalin yesterday. They are believed to have discussed with the candor for which both men are famous, Montgomery's recent trip to the United States, the Anglo-American standardization of arms program and the Anglo-American joint chiefs of staff.

Soviet Paper Attacks AFL Acts In Germany

Moscow, Jan. 11 (AP)—The trade union newspaper Trud charged leaders of the American Federation of Labor today with attempting to gain control of the German trade union movement and to prevent German unions from joining the World Federation of Trade Unions.

The newspaper referred to reports that AFL leaders asked the United States State Department to prevent the entrance of German unions into the WFTU on grounds that the world organization was "nothing but a Kremlin fifth column on an international scale."

Trud Commentator I. Maksimov said the WFTU was pursuing the "high aims" of the Allies in Germany, and added that AFL agents in Germany intended to form a bloc of the most reactionary German labor leaders to obstruct the unity of German unions.

JUICE FLOWS SOON FROM DNEPR DAM

Moscow, Jan. 11 (A. P.).—The great Dnepr dam, wrecked by the Russians in 1941 and again by the Germans in 1943, is preparing to turn out its first power since the war.

An official announcement today said that 150 metal towers had been restored, high voltage wire strung, and seven of eight substations made ready for operation. First electric current will go to factories along the Dnepr River.

Arrests On Hungarian Plot Charge Continue

Budapest, Jan. 11 (AP)—Dr. Kalman Salata, strongly prowestern member of the Foreign Affairs committee of Hungary's Parliament, has been arrested in connection with an alleged plot to restore the regime of Admiral Nicholas Horthy, an official communiqué announced today.

The communiqué said "other Small Holders (party) members of Parliament and high ministerial employés" also had been seized, raising the total of arrests in the case to 93.

The bulletin, issued by Laszlo Rajk, Communist Minister of the Interior, said that "investigation has established" that Salata was a member of the so-called committee of seven, which investigators charged plotted violent overthrow of the Communist-dominated government.

Turkey and Trans-Jordan Pact

ANKARA, Jan. 11 (AP)—A friendship pact was signed today by Turkey and Trans-Jordan. Details were not announced.

Norse Deny Soviet 'Spitsbergen Bid'

Oslo, Jan. 11 (AP)—A high official of the Norwegian Government denied last night that the Soviet Union had made a formal request on Norway for military bases in Spitsbergen.

The official said the only suggestion had been for reconsideration of a 1920 agreement on the Arctic islands which Russia had no chance to help frame.

Earlier speculation was that Moscow had asked for military bases in the strategic archipelago. This speculation followed yesterday's Norwegian Foreign Ministry communiqué that Russia had made a wartime request for special privileges in Spitsbergen. The communiqué did not specify the privileges asked.

Brought Up In 1944

The Foreign Ministry said the Soviets first had brought up the question with the Norwegian Government in exile in 1944; that discussions had been held the following year also, and that further negotiations could be expected.

Russia pointed out, the Ministry said, that she had not participated in drafting of the 1920 Svalbard Accord—so called because "Svalbard" is the Norwegian name of the archipelago—though she signed it later, in 1925.

Consent Necessary

The communiqué said both Norway and Russia knew they could do nothing without consent of seven of the nine other signers—the United States, Britain, the British dominions, France, the Netherlands, Denmark and Sweden. The other two signers were Italy and Japan.

The Svalbard Accord gave Norway sovereignty over Spitsbergen, provided for demilitarization of the archipelago and guaranteed citizens of all states business and industrial privileges there.

U. S. Passports To Visit Iran Denied Oil Men

'44 Tehran Law Forbidding Petroleum Discussions With Foreigners Is Cited

TEHRAN, Jan. 10 (Delayed) (AP).—An American diplomatic official here said today that the State Department at Washington is refusing to issue passports to American oil men seeking to visit Iran.

He said the action was taken "out of respect to an Iranian law prohibiting discusion of oil concessions." An Iranian law passed in 1944 carries an eight-year imprisonment penalty for Iranians found guilty of discussing oil concessions with foreigners.

Of the Russian-Iranian oil agreement reached in Premier Ahmad Qavam's talks at Moscow last year—which is expected to be a priority topic for the Fifteenth Iranian Parliament—this informant said: "Qavam had no alternative. The Russians moved an armored division to within less than twenty-five miles of Tehran. The Premier actually was forced to discuss oil at the point of a gun."

He said he believed the Iranians would "prefer" American contracts, "which would pay for oil in free foreign exchange at world prices," to the Russian concession, which he said would "control output and make payment in blocked rubles at Moscow."

[At Washinton, State Department officials said they were confidential that when the political situation in Iran permits, the Iran law forbidding Iranians to discuss oil concessions with foreigners will be repealed. Then American oil companies will have a fair chance at negotiating concessions, they said. The State Department, they added, has felt that the best way to keep the United States slate clean was to keep American oil men out of Iran in the mean time.

Iranian Balloting Begins

TEHRAN, Jan. 11 (AP).—Balloting in the first phase of Iran's national elections began at 8:30 a. m. today, with a scattering of voters entering polling booths under the surveillance of police and army guards.

Qavam's forces are opposed by a coalition headed by Dr. F. Mossadegh, who asserted last night that the elections were controlled by the government and were not free.

JEWS LIKELY TO SHUN TALKS

Executive Head Suggests United Nations Decision

Jerusalem, Jan. 11 (AP)—David Ben-Gurion, chairman of the Jewish Agency Executive, said tonight it was unlikely that Jews would participate in the London conference on Palestine and indicated that the Jews would welcome settlement of the Holy Land problem by the United Nations.

"Our political struggle will be directed from now on with greater impetus, not merely toward one political center—London—but toward every nation represented or about to be represented in the United Nations," he said in an interview broadcast by the Government-controlled Palestine broadcasting system.

May Have Tip On British Move

"The final decision may occur not in London but in the meeting of the United Nations next autumn in America," the jewish leader said.

Observers here said Ben-Gurion's remarks indicated he might have heard in London that the British were considering referring the problem to the United Nations, since the Jews have no direct recourse to the world organization.

An authoritative source said, meanwhile, that the Palestine Arab Higher Executive committee soon would issue a statement accepting the British bid to the London conference, scheduled to be resumed January 21, although expressing regret that "some members" would not be able to attend.

Separate Talks Possible

Palestine Arabs, as well as the Jews, shunned the previous conference sessions. It was possible, however, that the Arabs might mean separate talks with the British, since they have steadfastly refused to sit at a conference table with the Jews.

The informant said that among those "unable to attend" would be the Mufti of Jerusalem, Haj Amin el Husseini, who is persona non grata with the British and now is in exile in Egypt. Another, this source said, probably would be Ahmed Helmi Pasha, aged financier who steadfastly has opposed participation in the conversations.

Ben-Gurian said that whether Jews attend the conference or not, discussions about Palestine's future "are in progress and will continue" between the Jews and the British.

SHAKEUP HELD NEAR IN CHINA

Would Mean Many Top Men Would Have To Step Down

Nanking, Jan. 11 (AP)—A major shakeup in the Chinese Government, with liberal nonpartisans or minority party members getting at least half the ministries, is due to be completed within the next month, a well-informed source said today.

This source, which cannot be identified, said the reorganization would go through "with or without the participation of the Communists."

If carried through, this program, recommended by General Marshall in his farewell critical statement on the Chinese problem, would mean that many top men in the ruling Kuomintang (Nationalist party) would have to step down to make room for representatives of such minorities as the Social Democratic party, the Young China party and others.

Still Consider Negotiations

Marshall, just before his appointment as United States Secretary of State, declared:

"The salvation of the situation, as I see it, would be the assumption of leadership by the liberals in the Government and in the minority parties, a splendid group of men, but who as yet lack the political power to exercise a controlling influence."

Marshall mentioned that it was "unfortunate" that the Communists had refused to participate in the constitutional convention.

Chinese sources today said the Government still was considering dispatch of emisaries to Yenan to try to resume negotiations with the Communists but there was little hope among the highest officals that this effort would succeed.

Series Of Guerrilla Attacks

One official in Nanking, commenting on the year-long Marshall attempt to mediate China's civil strife, pointed out that during that entire period there had been comparatively little major combat and that Marshall at least had been able to prevent the sort of explosion which might have been expected from 4,000,000 men in arms.

Now that Marshall is gone, there is no reason to believe that large-scale warfare will start, this same official said, for the Government has more reason to fear the reaction of Secretary of State Marshall than it did that of Ambassador Marshall.

Latest pro-Government dispatches reported only a series of Communist guerrilla attacks in the Peiping-Tientsin area.

Chiang To Sweep Many Top Men From Office

Nanking, Jan. 11 (AP)—A Government reorganization which will sweep numerous top men of Chiang Kai-shek's own party from office is due for completion by mid-February, it was reported reliably today.

An informant said that approximately half the ministries had been offered to such minority parties as Young China and Social Democrats and to nonpartisans.

The Government, he added, has set the middle of next month for completing "with or without participation of the Communists" the broadened Government to rule until elections are held under the new constitution.

Considering Emissaries

The Government still is considering sending emissaries to the Communist capital at Yenan to seek resumption of peace talks, but there is little hope among high officials they would be successful.

Neither is there much expectation that the next few weeks will see large-scale fighting.

One official declared that those who were quick to call General Marshall's mission a failure forgot that for nearly a year he was able to prevent an explosion in the Chinese powder keg.

Decries Civil-War Talk

In the same breath, he decried predictions that Marshall's departure would be the signal for unrestrained civil war.

The Government, he said, holds the military whiphand and it has as much reason to fear Marshall's reaction from this new post as Secretary of State as from his old one if it opens up the fighting.

Sun Fo Praises Marshall

In Shanghai, Sun Fo, president of the Executive Council and an outstanding liberal in the Government, warned China it would be plunged into an "unfathomable abyss" if political disputes continued.

He praised Marshall's farewell summary of the Chinese situation as impartial and correct.

He described the since ignored decisions reached at an interparty conference last January as "undoubtedly the only bridge for China to attain peace, unity, democracy and reconstruction."

The decisions provided for an all-party government.

Reds Capture Seven Towns

Peiping, Jan. 11 (AP)—The Communists' new offensive in the Peiping area has captured at least seven towns and villages, threatens twelve others and has thrust within 11 miles of this city, Government sources conceded today. The independent newspaper, Hsin Min Pao, said Peiping itself was threatened.

Fighting halted traffic on the Peiping-Tientsin highway and menaced the Peiping-Tientsin railroad as the Communist 8th Route Army concentrated in the Hsiangho-Tunghsien-Sanho area. Tunghsien is 13 miles east of Peiping; Hsiangho and Sanho are about 30 miles east.

Changes Hands Three Times

So fierce was the fighting that Matou, a village near Tunghsien, changed hands three times on successive days, with the Communists now in control there.

The Communists surrounded Tunghsien, captured several villages and attacked the town itself from two directions. They also battered Machuchiao, 11 miles southeast of Peping, and assaulted Hsiangho, a walled city that formerly was their district headquarters.

Three thousand Communists were reported attacking Changpei and Chaili, on the Peiping-Kupeikow railroad, and towns south of Tientsin on the Tientsin-Pukow railroad. They cut telephone lines between Tientsin and Tsanghsien.

Armored Regiment Destroyed

At Nanking, Communists' headquarters asserted today that an armored regiment commanded by Gen. Yu Tsi-shih, nephew of Generalissimo Chiang, was among units destroyed in a battle near Lini, Red stronghold in southern Shantung province.

The regiment, a spokesman said, included 24 medium tanks and had been under the command of Chiang Wei-kuo until diverted for operations against Lini. The Government never has confirmed the Communist claim of a smashing victory at Lini last week.

Marine Trial Set In China

Peiping, Jan. 11 (AP)—United States Marine headquarters today announced that a court-martial will be convened in about a week to hear charges that a Marine raped a Chinese girl December 24.

A second Marine will be charged with misconduct—accused of failing to inform on the other, who labeled the girl a prostitute.

The Chinese girl is to be summoned as a witness.

The rape charge was used by Chinese University students and Leftists in several Chinese cities as the springboard for vehement anti-American demonstrations.

Malayan Assembly Backs Federation Plan

Singapore, Jan. 11 (AP)—The General Assembly of the United Malays National Organization, meeting in closed session, decided by a large majority to accept in principal the constitutional proposals for the Federation of Malaya, a responsible source said today.

The proposals, drafted by a joint British-Malay committee, are designed to bring political unity to the loosely associated native states and British colonies which constitute the present Malayan Union, on the southern half of the rubber-rich Malay Peninsula.

Dato Onn Bin Jaffar, president of the organization, was reported to have threatened to resign unless the proposals were accepted.

New Strikes Hit India; 10 More Die

New Delhi, India, Jan. 11 (AP)—At least ten more violent deaths were reported in India today, as new strikes heightened tension built up while Hindus waited to see whether the Moslems would join them in drafting a constitution for an independent India.

Sporadic outbreaks of Hindu-Moslem fighting occurred in the mountainous interior; 80,000 strikers milled through the streets of Cawnpore, and 30,000 agricultural workers clashed with police in Bombay province.

Approximately 5,000 Delhi school teachers went on strike during the day, demanding higher wages. Their action caused the closing of schools for 100,000 children.

A strike of Government employés, primary school workers and employés of a sugar factory and electric company remained in effect at Kohlapur.

At least five persons were killed in Cawnpore, in Central India, when officers fired into crowds of unruly strikers. Four agricultural workers were slain in clashes with police in Bombay province, and one person was killed in a riot at Trivandrum in southern India.

Java Ship Incident Protested By British

Batavia, Java, Jan. 11 (AP)—The British consulate general said today that formal representations had been made to the Netherlands Government on the grounds that the treatment of the 400-ton British merchant ship May Rover by the Dutch Navy constituted interference with legitimate trade.

The Netherlands Navy confirmed last Thursday that the vessel had been intercepted at the Nationalist port of Cheribon on January 8 and escorted by a Netherlands warship to Dutch-held Semarang, where it was searched for arms. The Dutch have not disclosed the results of the search. Indonesian sources said the cargo consisted only of 33 Austin automobiles.

The Netherlands Army announced that Dutch infantry, supported by armored cars and artillery, had met with heavy resistance from Indonesian Marines during action at the North Java port of Semarang on Thursday. The artillery eventually drove off the Indonesians, who lost heavily.

Marshall Views Appointment As A Challenging Call To Duty

D. Lore Case 1947

Honolulu, Jan. 11 (AP)—General Marshall said today he would "prefer to live my own life," but considered his appointment as Secretary of State a new and challenging call to duty.

Receiving correspondents informally on the green at Fort Durussy, the new Secretary of State parried questions concerning international affairs but talked about his attitude toward his assignment.

Asked if he considered the appointment a summons to duty, he replied, "very much so. Of course, I would prefer to live my own life."

Functions Avoided

Asked if he considered the job more challenging than his wartime duties as chief of staff, he replied:

"In one respect I consider it more challenging. You see, I was a soldier. Now I am entering a new field. The war was difficult, but that was my business—my profession. I had worked at it all my life."

Marshall, who has been resting here with Mrs. Marshall since he flew in from China Wednesday night, said he did not know when he would leave for Washington, remarking, "I am very much in need of rest."

He has avoided the usual functions and greetings accorded a distinguished visitor but was scheduled to attend a dinner tonight at the residence of Gov. Ingram Stainback.

Will Live At Leesburg, Va.

Marshall declined to comment on the reaction to his farewell statement on China but did remark that he considered the recent anti-American demonstrations in China were inspired—by whom he refused to say.

He said there was no evidence that the Chinese Communists were supported by Russia.

Asked if he preferred being a soldier or diplomat, Marshall stretched in his civilian garb of gray trousers and blue coat and said, "I've reached the point where I don't want to be either."

Mrs. Marshall said she had "hopes" that on his new job she would see her husband more than during the war. They plan to live at Leesburg, Va., in the residence which he used as a week-end retreat during the war.

relieving her husband as much as possible of some of his duties. She assisted in sorting and answering the flood of congratulatory messages that descended upon the General after his arrival on Wednesday night from Nanking.

Barred Gate Crasher.

On one occasion, a witness reports, she politely but firmly escorted an island society woman away from the General. The woman had eluded guards and approached the Marshalls while they were strolling on Fort Derussy's green. She attempted to capture the General and his wife with an invitation to stay at her beach home.

"Mrs. Marshall is really too gracious," the General is reported to have fumed as his wife led the woman away.

Marshall has emerged from his home for strolls along the Fort Derussy seawall and a window-shopping walk along Waikiki Beach's Kalakua avenue with Mrs. Marshall and for a scenic drive past Diamond Head and Koko Head, Oahu's famous landmarks.

An Army spokesman said that an announcement is expected some time today on Marshall's plans for leaving for Washington.

GEN. MARSHALL ENJOYING REST

He Escapes Well-wishers With Wife's Help.

Honolulu, Jan. 11 (A. P.).—Gen. George C. Marshall is making the most of his opportunity for complete rest before he goes to Washington and plunges into the arduous tasks awaiting him as Secretary of State.

There have been no fetes or dinners or streams of well wishers who customarily besiege distinguished visitors. For one thing, the Army is seeing to it that the man who wears five stars is not disturbed unnecessarily. Military police patrol the Fort Derussy grounds near the small but tastefully furnished home where Marshall relaxes.

For another, Mrs. Marshall is

New Yoshida Protest Called

Tokyo, Jan. 11 (AP)—Left-wing political and labor leaders said today that they would call a demonstration exceeding the December 16 turnout of 400,000 and a strike of 2,400,000 Government employes unless Conservative Premier Yoshida resigns.

The spokesmen, members of the National Committee for Overthrow of the Yoshida Government, included Kanju Kato, a leader of the Social Democratic party's left wing, and Kyuichi Tokuda, secretary general of the Communist party.

They said they represented 4,500,000 organized workers.

The Social Democratic party, third ranking in the House of Repreesentatives, is the Yoshida Government's most potent political opponent, but itself is sharply divided into left and right wings.

First British Dependents In Japan

Kure, Jan. 11 (AP)—Twenty wives and 31 children—the first dependents of British occupation personnel to reach Japan—arrived today aboard the Empress of Scotland from India. Twenty-two were dependents of Indians in the British Indian Division.

Among other arrivals were four British women teachers who will establish schools for children—three on Shikoku and one at Okayama on Honshu.

Some Canadian Price Controls Are Ended

H. Bowlby 1947

Ottawa, Jan. 11 (AP)—The Canadian Government, announcing the removal from price control of certain goods and services, including household supplies and some foods, declared today "there are now signs" that the world price boom "may be running its course."

"There are good grounds for the view that world prices of many primary commodities may settle at more reasonable levels than those prevailing," said Finance Minister Douglas Abbott.

Among the items being released from price control are household equipment and supplies, including furniture, small appliances, kitchen utensils, radios, pianos, clocks, tools, luggage, paints and some building supplies; and many fresh vegetables and fruits, most fish and certain imported foods.

Later Copied By U.S.

Among the services decontrolled are barbering, beauty-parlor treatments and motion picture admittances.

Canada, which in 1941 set the pattern for much of the price-control policy later adopted by the United States, is still retaining controls on most basic items.

These include basic foods, practically all articles of clothing, boots and shoes, most textile home furnishings, coal and wood fuels, the major household appliances, heating and plumbing equipment, automobiles, rentals, household laundry services, restaurant prices, freight rates, storage rates and a variety of basic materials, such as steel, copper, rubber, lumber and pulp.

Compared With U.S. Increase

A year ago, Abbott said, "it was hoped that the year would see a long step toward removal of emergency controls." "Unfortunately, however," he added, "external conditions, particularly in the United States, increased the pressures on Canadian prices and delayed decontrol."

One reason behind the new decontrol order, Abbott said, was that "to an increasing extent the relationship of prices as between standard and new lines in some businesses appeared to be having the effect of encouraging production of new lines at the expense of output in lower-priced standard lines."

Abbott said that Canada in the past year had held the cost of living down to a seven-point increase, compared to a 23-point rise during the same period in the United States.

1919 TREATY FEARS CITED

1947

Records Show Concern Lest Germans Should Not Sign

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Secret records disclosed tonight that the "Big Four" who wrote the peace after World War I were more fearful that Germany would refuse to sign than they were that she might rearm.

The State Department published the secret documents of the 1919 Paris conference two months before the opening of a new Big Four conference on the making of peace with Germany.

Prime Minister Lloyd George, of Britain, and President Wilson and Premier Clemenceau, of France, on June 2, 1919, that ranking British officials had decided that "Germany would not constitute a danger to France for 30 years or even 50 years; certainly not in fifteen years."

Fought To Ease Terms

Lloyd George waged a constant campaign during the highly secret sessions of the "Council of Four" at Paris to get the German peace terms eased, either at the expense of Poland's territorial desires in Silesia and Pomerania or by limiting reparations.

On the other hand, Clemenceau was so opposed to softening the penalties that during most of the talks there was a virtual split between him and Lloyd George.

The British recorder of the minutes, Sir Maurice Hankey, recorded on June 10 at a meeting at Wilson's house in Paris which Italian Premier Orlando attended with the other three that Clemenceau argued:

"This or that concession would not make the Germans sign. There was much to be said against the Germans, but they were people with great qualities even if they had great faults and at present they were very anxious to put their country on its legs again. Of course, if Alsace-Lorraine, the Saar, Poland were abandoned we could have peace tomorrow."

Wilson Argued For Principle

On various occasions Wilson proposed concessions softening demands in the treaty then under consideration. He explained that what he cared for was "principle" and not whether Germany signed the treaty, and offered to withdraw the concession he had proposed since they were "only made in a spirit of co-operation."

More than any of the others, Clemenceau hammered at the dangers to peace from a Germany insufficiently controlled. The British repeatedly demanded that the French get their occupation army off German territory, declaring that its presence there no longer was necessary.

Many of the problems then were comparable to those which have bothered the four major allied victors after World War II. Particularly were they distressed and trying to work out some settlement for Italian claims over Dalmatia and Fiume which once caused Orlando to walk out on the meeting. The trouble actually lasted years after the conference in the form of disputes between Italy and Yugoslavia.

Worried Over Bolshevism

Throughout the 2,000 pages of minutes run threads of the western worry over the rise of Bolshevism in Russia and the brief Communist regime of Bela Kun in Hungary. The Russian story had been largely told a few years ago in the State Department special publication on Soviet relations.

The notes released tonight showed that Wilson at least once changed course on this issue. His original stand was that the anti-Bolshevik forces under Admiral Kolchak in Siberia should not be helped by the western allies. Wilson argued that "the proper policy of the Allied and associated powers was to clear out of Russia and leave it to the Russians to fight it out among themselves."

Later he agreed to go along with the majority of his colleagues in the Council and offer support to Kolchak, but only after he had received a formal promise from the Admiral to set up a representative government. Not so long afterward the Admiral's ambitions to overthrow the struggling young Soviet regime were defeated, his armies scattered and he himself killed.

On the question of whether or not the Germans would sign the peace treaty, the situation was the reverse of that today when allied armies have overrun the whole of the enemy country and broken it up.

In 1919 Germany, though defeated, was in one piece and had its own government. This constantly confronted the Allies with the problem of what they would do if the Germans refused to sign. They seemed in general agreement that military action would be necessary because it would mean that the war was still on.

Marshall to Get Benton Plan on U.S. Broadcasts

Assistant Secretary Hopes to Set Up Public Agency to Run 'Voice of America'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (AP).—Assistant Secretary of State William Benton today was reported hopeful of winning the early approval of General George C. Marshall for a plan to create a new government agency to take over foreign broadcast programs from the State Department.

Mr. Benton told Congress last year, when he obtained more than $8,000,000 for short-wave radio programs, that he would be back this session with a plan for non-State Department operation.

Actually he has come up with a whole series of such plans. It is built upon the idea of organizing a public foundation, with a nine or fifteen-man board of trustees, and turning over to it the whole "Voice of America" system which State Department took over in late 1945 from the Office of War Information.

Mr. Benton had outlined his plan verbally to retiring Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, associates said, but Mr. Byrnes never went into it in detail. Now Mr. Benton is planning to seek the early attention of Secretary-Designate Marshall.

Some opposition to the plan has developed within the State Department on the ground that it would set up an agency outside the department which would "make foreign policy" in so far as radio broadcasts to foreign countries were concerned.

Mr. Benton and aides have been defending the proposal on the ground that a multi-member board, including the Secretary of State or his representative, and distinguished educators and publicists, would do a better job of interpreting the United States to the world by radio than the State Department is able to do. They also contend that when issues of foreign policy came up the board would follow State Department directions.

Hickenlooper To Get Atom Position

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Senate Republican leaders today picked Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) to head the Senate-House Committee on Atomic Energy in a move regarded as insuring full GOP support of the Baruch "no-veto" plan for world development of the resource.

Hickenlooper, whose selection as chairman depends on an agreement by House members of the committee, declined any immediate comment.

Shows Party Policy

But the Iowa Senator, who ranked third among the Republicans on the group formerly headed by Senator McMahon (D., Conn.), is strongly on record for the Baruch plan of divulging atomic information to other nations only after a workable inspection setup has been established which cannot be voided by any nation's veto.

GOP leaders said new appointments to the committee would demonstrate further a party policy to back the Baruch plan against any attacks that might be forthcoming on it from the Soviet Union or Poland, which refrained from voting when the plan was approved by the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission December 30.

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) has said he does not want the committee chairmanship but is undecided whether to remain as a member. The change in control of Congress may eliminate Senator Byrd (D., Va.) from the group and give his seat to a Republican.

Any final agreement on the disclosure of information to other nations must be approved by Congress, and the Senate-House committee is expected to play an important role in determining congressional policy.

Hopes On Austin

Senator Bridges (R., N.H.) said he hopes the Baruch plan is supported to the hilt by Warren R. Austin, named yesterday by President Truman to take over the post vacated by Bernard M. Baruch on the United Nation Atomic Commission.

"I believe—and I think most of the Republicans in the Senate share the view—that the Baruch plan represents the maximum distance to which this country can go in sharing the atomic secret," Bridges told a reporter.

"This is vital to our national security and we can't afford to make any blunders that will bring us to destruction later."

Army Atomic Personnel Transferred To New Unit

Oak Ridge, Tenn., Jan. 11 (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission today announced temporary new assignments for military personnel of the Manhattan District of the U.S. Engineers, as part of the reorganization of the War Department's atomic energy agency taken over by the commission January 1.

Col. E. E. Kirkpatrick, deputy district engineer of Manhattan District and commanding officer of the Clinton Engineering works here, has been assigned acting manager of field operations with offices in Washington, D. C.

Col. T. F. Kromer, Jr., chief of the facilities and service division here, succeeds Kirkpatrick in commanding the CEW and will serve as deputy manager of field operations.

'Keep War Probe': GOP Senators

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Republicans, planning a big-scale probe of munitions profits, charted strategy today for continuing the special Senate War Investigating Committee, despite the opposition of Democratic senators.

Chairman Brewster (R., Maine) scheduled a conference with Senator Gurney (R., S.D.), head of the new Armed Services Committee, which some Democrats contend should take over the work of the special inquiry group that was under President Truman's chairmanship when he was in the Senate.

Brewster has already conferred with other Republican members of the special committee so that, as he put it, "we can present a united front on policy" when the matter comes up for a vote in the Senate, probably Monday.

Tydings Protests

These GOP senators expect that Gurney will fall in line with party plans and yield any claim the Armed Services Committee might have to conduct war investigations.

The issue came up in the Senate yesterday when Democratic Senators Tydings, of Maryland, and Hayden, of Arizona, protested against Republican efforts to continue the life of the war-inquiry unit and the Small Business Committee.

They argued that the Congressional Reorganization Act is designed to eliminate special committees. It does not ban them, however

Experience Cited

Brewster replied he was "loathe to believe" that the Democrats opposed continuance of the War Investigating Committee because of any fear that disclosures it might make would embarrass the Administration.

Republicans want the committee continued, Brewster said, "because it has an experienced and adequate staff and the work still to be done fits in with that already undertaken."

"The Armed Services Committee will take over the job in time, perhaps in six months to a year, but it is not ready now," Brewster said.

Wants To Study Profits

He reiterated that one of the first things the committee would tackle is a broad investigation "of war profits and profiteers."

"We need to find out," Brewster added, "to what extent the economic face of America has been altered by the war. We want to look into monopolies and the operations of big business, too."

Service Merger Plan Linked To Budget

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Strong bi-partisan opposition to budget slashing that might impair security developed today as Army-Navy merger advocates seized on the President's spending estimate as a good argument for consolidating the armed services.

The merger move gathered momentum as Republican financial managers, talking of sharp reduction in Mr. Truman's $37,500,000,000 budget for the fiscal year starting next July 1, looked hungrily at a projected outlay of $11,000,000,000 for the forces.

On both sides of Capitol Hill the GOP leadership seemed nearing agreement that $3,500,000,000 may be about as much as Congress can hope to pare from the President's estimate.

Taft, Taber Views

Chairman Taber (R., N.Y.) of the House Appropriations Committee said the total can be reduced "at least three or four billions." This is the amount Chairman Taft (Ohio) of the GOP Senate Steering Committee has said he thinks can be "squeezed out."

Taber said his contention that appropriations can be cut to slightly over $29,000,000,000 had been widely taken to mean he intended a slash of some $8,000,000,000 in the budget total. He said he referred only to new appropriations and that the budget provides for spending several billions in carryover funds.

If the Rpublicans are going to make good their promise to take a big bite out of the President's figures, they conceded, they must do considerable nipping on army and navy funds, which account for about 30 per cent of the total.

Military Cuts

"Substantial, honest-to-goodness cuts" in military spending were foreseen by Representative Engel (R., Mich.) if the Army and Navy are merged.

Engel, who will head the Appropriations subcommittee handling army funds, said that even without a merger large cuts could be made "without sacrificing essential national defense."

"But I want one dollar of national defense for every dollar spent," Engel added.

One of the first things his committee will do, he said, will be to review the personnel needs of the Army to determine whether 1,070,000 uniformed men will be required during the next year.

Representative Plumley (R., Vt.), who will head the Naval Appropriations subcommittee, said there is room for reductions in the Navy's budget but declined to specify what items could be shaved.

For "Big Navy"

Known as a "big Navy" man, Plumley emphasized that he will not propose cuts that would interfere with efficiency.

Plumley saw room for substantial savings through elimination of overlapping functions of the Army and the Navy without merging the two services.

The chairman-designate of the House Armed Services Committee, Representative Walter Andrews (R., N.Y.), took a firm stand against "any cuts affecting security" but said he believes reductions are possible through "elimination of duplication of the same functions by the Army and the Navy."

Representative Vinson, of Georgia, top Democrat on the Armed Services Committee, declared that budget cutting should not be "at the expense of the armed forces with world conditions the way they are today."

Need For Security

A similar note of caution was sounded by Representative Thomason (D., Texas), of the same committee, who said "we have got to have security before economy" and promised to "support to the hilt" the program the Army, the Navy and the State Department say is necessary for security.

The chairman-designate of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Representative Eaton (R., N.Y.), declared "We must keep our armed services efficient and strong enough to keep the respect of the rest of the world and discharge our responsibilities in Europe and the Orient."

Senate Republicans jumped on the President's figures with both feet, but their criticism was tempered with warnings against weakening national defense.

Democratic Support

While Democrats generally supported the President's figures as rock-bottom estimates, a few joined some Republicans in differing with the President on the question of slashing taxes. Senator Taft insisted that a twenty per cent cut in income levies is feasible.

But Senator Aiken (R., Vt.) said such a tax slice is "out of the question" until the budget has been balanced and the national debt reduced.

Senator Byrd (D., Va.) remarked that "it is very evident that the President has not even scraped the surface of the opportunity for retrenchment which exists in every single agency of the Government."

Senator Hatch (D., N.M.) disagreed with colleagues who argued against heavy cuts in the armed forces' funds.

"There could be vast savings made in the armed services' outlay without impairing national defense," Hatch said.

But Representative Cannon, of Missouri, top Democrat on the Appropriations Committee, called the budget "sound and constructive" and said he didn't know where huge cuts could be made "without effecting a serious danger to the country."

HOUSE VICTORY SEEN FOR CUT IN INCOME TAX

McCormack, Denouncing Knutson Bill, Declares G. O. P. Can Pass It

Washington, Jan. 11—(AP)—Representative McCormack of Massachusetts, House Democratic whip, conceded today probable passage of a 20 per cent reduction in income taxes, "because the Republicans have got the votes."

But he denounced the cut—fathered by Chairman Knutson (R-Minn.) of the House Ways and Means Committee and endorsed by Senator Taft (R-Ohio)—as an "unsound" approach to fiscal problems.

McCormack, himself a former member of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, suggested instead a study of methods designed to ease the tax burden on "the little fellow"—possibly by boosting exemptions on earned income.

President Truman's estimate of the necessary spending in the fiscal year starting July 1 is $37,500,000,000. Harold E. Stassen, former Governor of Minnesota and an announced candidate for President, joined fellow Republicans today in attacking this figure as too high.

"Sharply padded," said Stassen of Mr. Truman's budget. "Wasteful and extravagant."

Stassen Asks Five Billion Cut

Stassen told a news conference he is laying before individual members of Congress a proposal to cut $5,000,000,000 out of the President's budget.

He suggested continuing enough of the wartime excise (luxury) taxes to raise another billion dollars to make the total income $38,500,000,000. There then would be $6,000,000,000 to work with on his calculations, he said.

Stassen would handle this as follows:

1. Reduce the national debt by $3,000,000,000.

2. Cut personal income taxes by 12½ per cent, a total of $2,500,000,000.

3. Reduce taxes on small businesses by $500,000,000 by eliminating duplicate taxation on earnings and dividends drawn from such enterprises.

Stassen said he would not favor reducing Army-Navy funds below Mr. Truman's estimate of $11,587,000,000 but that there is plenty of room to cut in other activities.

When he submitted his budget, Mr. Truman called it realistic and hard-boiled.

His secretary, Charles G. Ross, told reporters today there was "nothing surprising" in the Republican criticism. "It was rather expected in view of statements which previously had been made," Ross said.

McCormack told reporters he bases his opposition to a sweeping slash in taxes upon the size of the war-swollen national debt.

Subject to final passage over the declared opposition of the White House to wholesale tax slashing, the Knutson plan—on the basis of an estimated $165,000,000,000 income for the tax year—would mean a reduction in revenue of between $3,400,000,000 and $3,500,000,000.

McCormack's observations were offered as the dominantly-Republican Congress studied strategy for trimming President Truman's budget by billions.

HOME BUILDERS OR PURCHASERS WARNED BY OPA

700,000 New Houses Under Price Ceilings Despite Relaxed Controls.

DEC. 24 DETERMINING DATE

Constructors and Veterans Still Affected by Regulations Setting Priorities.

Washington, Jan. 11 (A. P.).—The OPA warned the builders and purchasers of some 700,000 homes started under the the veterans' emergency housing program today that they must adhere to previous price ceilings despite the recent relaxation of homebuilding controls. While there are no price ceilings on construction started since the housing program was revised on December 24, the OPA said in a statement that it would continue to enforce ceilings applicable before that date to sales prices and rents.

Not only will builders be required to observe the regulations under which they obtained priorities last year, but veterans who buy such homes must adhere to the same ceilings if they rent them or resell them, the OPA said. In the case of a sale, a broker's fee may be added to the sales price.

Builders who obtained priorities before December 24 will be required to post notices of ceiling prices and give first preference to veterans on sale or lease. The OPA's announcement followed closely new relaxations of restrictions in line with the Administration's decontrol program. One increases from $35,000,000 to $50,000,000 the limit on the weekly average of non-essential construction permitted by the Office of Temporary Controls.

Steel Shortage Forecast.

Philip B. Fleming, OTC Administrator, declared that the increased dollar limit on non-residential construction was made necessary by higher building costs, to alleviate unemployment in the structural steel building trades, and to provide essential community facilities in connection with housing projects.

Meanwhile, the Steel Products Industry Advisory Committee was told by spokesmen for the civilian production division of the OTC that the production of finished steel will fall short of demand in 1947 by 6,100,000 tons. The governmental estimate was that production would reach 60,900,000 tons, compared with a demand of 67,000,000 tons and a 47,000,000-ton output in 1946, but the Department of Labor predicted that the faster flow of building materials to construction jobs would bring the completion of a great volume of dwellings in the next few months.

More than 55,000 new permanent houses were made ready for occupancy in November, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said. The total marked a monthly high for 1946.

Housing Statistics.

The number of new permanent dwellings started in November totaled 49,700, all privately financed. This was 8,000 lower than October, but was the highest figure in eighteen years for the bad-weather month of November.

The rapid rise in the number of homes completed, and the drop in new houses started, brought about the first monthly decrease in the number of homes under construction since the veterans' emergency housing program started a year ago, it was reported. By the end of November 361,000 homes were being built.

FARM SURPLUS CHANCE SEEN

Agricultural Productivity Up 36%, Says Anderson

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Clinton P. Anderson, Secretary of Agriculture, predicted tonight that agriculture's war-expanded production capacity may create new surpluses unless ways can be found to boost the world's buying power.

He said that under war demands, agriculture had gone through a technological revolution that already has lifted its productive ability 36 per cent above prewar levels.

"Quietly and gradually, yet with prodigious cumulative effect, American agriculture has accomplished a technological revolution . . . in less than a decade.

This picture of farming progress was painted in Anderson's annual report to President Truman.

The Secretary said the "revolution" has taken the form of increased mechanization, greater use of fertilizers, employment of improved crop varieties and livestock, widespread application of scientific pest controls and scientific soil conservation.

Anderson declared this technical progress is a "one-way affair" that "cannot go back."

"Total output for human use cannot be expected to fall much, except in years of extremely unfavorable weather," he noted. "Moreover, the revolution continues."

The Prospects Abroad

He added that, happily, the demand for food products is likely to continue strong this year.

"Abroad, the prospect rests on the fact that in 1947 more and more foreigners will be in a position to pay for the food imports they require; already, the commercial overseas demand for American farm products is reflecting extensive economic revival," he wrote.

Looking beyond this year, Anderson said Americans "need to remember that eventually we could have farm surpluses once more."

"In fact the danger will continue until we learn how to make sure that consumers in this country will have the food dollars to buy what they need, and that consumers abroad will always be able to earn dollars."

Calling American food exports building stones of peace, Anderson said that largely the improving prospect of a stable peace is a measure of the extent to which this country has sent food aboard.

"We shall have to continue to send food," he continued. "It is well, therefore, to bear in mind that relief and other export food serves the national interest as truly as food consumed at home."

Anderson rated efforts of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization to develop an international food program among the most significant and promising of the past year's developments.

Not Yet Maximum

"Through its efforts to improve distribution and to increase productivity and raise living levels all over the world, FAO can help us find the outlets we must have if we are to enjoy continued prosperity based on full production," he said.

Stressing agriculture's increased production capacity, Anderson said that maximum output has not yet been attained.

"Further replacement of horses and mules by tractors will release more land for food production," he wrote.

"Crop land can be increased, if necessary, by land clearing, drainage and irrigation. The use of improved varieties and strains of seeds, of soil-improvement practices and of fertilizers can be increased still more.

"New farm machines and tools and improvements in old types are becoming increasingly available. These facilities will turn out more work in less time, with less waste, and will give better quality of product."

RISE IN GRAIN EXPORT URGED BY ECONOMIST

State Department Adviser Warns Against Large Domestic Carryover

Chicago, Jan. 11 (AP)—America should export two million tons of grain a month "to get itself in the best position to absorb crops now developing," Prof. Theodore Schultz, chairman of the economics department at the University of Chicago, said today.

Professor Schultz, an authority on agricultural economics, is adviser on agriculture to the State Department, the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, and the House of Representatives Committee on Economic Policy and Planning.

"Common sense clearly indicates that we ought to export another 5,000,000 to 7,000,000 tons of grain in addition to the 10,000,000-ton goal for the current crop year," he said in an interview.

Delayed By Strike

[Government exports from July 1 to December 31 are estimated at about 4,000,000 to 4,500,000 tons. The crop year ends June 30. Transportation difficulties and maritime strikes have caused shipments to fall behind the 10,000,000-ton goal.]

Asserting that farm product prices have passed their peak and the expected carryover of wheat in July will be twice as large as last year, Professor Schultz concluded, "this country will make a mistake if it does not export to the limit this year in order not to carry over any unnecessary grain supplies into future years."

In the case of sugar, as well as fats and oils, the economist said, "the problem is to keep American purchasing power from sucking into the United States an undue amount of the limited world supply.

Sugar Supply Rise Expected

"Total sugar supplies of the world expected in 1947 are 30,000,000 tons, ten per cent above 1946 supplies.

"If the 1947 output is allocated and used as it was in 1946, there will be added 10 per cent to the supplies of all nations, which will take the United States from about 73 per cent of prewar capita consumption in 1946 to 80 or 85 per cent of prewar levels this year.

"If the supply is not allocated, our prices are so strong that we would take 100 to 105 per cent of prewar capita, and this would cut most European countries to 50 per cent and below of prewar consumption."

Professor Schultz said the difficulties which he said will soon result from the Government's price support program for agriculture "will be great."

[Under present legislation, prices must be supported at 90 per cent of parity for most farm products and 92½ per cent for cotton through December 31, 1948.]

Truman Names 3 Judges To Serve Reich Courts

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—President Truman today formally designed three more men to serve as members of one of the half dozen military tribunals in Germany trying Nazi war criminals in the American zone of occupation.

They are Superior Court Judge Fitzroy D. Phillips, of North Carolina; Judge Robert M. Toms, of the Third Judicial Circuit, Detroit, Mich., and Capt. Michael A. Musmanno, USNR, on leave from the Common Pleas Court bench of Pittsburgh.

John J. Speight, Dothan, Ala., was named an alternate.

All have been in Germany for some time. Their assignment to a particular tribunal is at the discretion of the military commander in the area.

Navy Court-Martial Sentences Reviewed

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Sentences imposed by navy general court-martial are "subsequently reasonable and just," a review board composed of civilian and naval personnel reported tonight.

It made this finding after analyzing 2,115 cases of navy men who had been given prison sentences and who were still in confinement after V-J Day.

In 29 per cent or 593 of the cases, the board recommended that the man be returned to active duty, and in 15 per cent of 328 cases, that the sentence be reduced.

Remission of confinement and discharge was recommended in one per cent or 24 cases.

AAF Stores 1,500 Superfortresses

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—The Army Air Forces will have about 1,500 Superfortresses in ready storage, available for quick use to bulwark its fleet of operating bombers, during the years immediately ahead.

This was disclosed tonight in an AAF announcement which said the 1,500 B-29's were being given the "cocooning" process to protect them against rust, corrosion and other damage fro mthe weather while parked in open storage areas. The special plastic used to coat the airplanes can be removed quickly and the plane made ready for combat.

The ration of "cocooning" B-29's to the number kept in operation was not disclosed. However, the AAF is understood to possess currently about 3,000 very heavy bombers, the great majority of which are B-29's.

The AAF plans to operate in the year beginning July 1 a force of 70 groups totaling around 6,000 airplanes of all types.

Retiring From Public Life, Baruch Says

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Bernard M. Baruch, elder statesman, is retiring from public life, planning to "sit by and let time pass me."

The 76-year-old Baruch, confidant and adviser of several presidents, resigned last week as United States representative on the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission.

He said yesterday after a call on President Truman that he had quit because "I had come to the end of my furrow."

"I am going to sit by and let time pass me—I'm not going to pass time," he said.

WAA Stages 'Baby Bikini'

Lake Lenore, Wash., Jan. 10 (AP). The rock walls of Grand Coulee echoed with all the sounds of an artillery barrage yesterday as the War Assets Administration staged a "baby Bikini" to destroy ten tons of metallic sodium in the salty waters of Lake Lenore.

The public was asked to stay away because the exact reaction of water on such a large quantity of sodium was unpredictable, but toward the end several hundred persons watched the spectacle.

Rolled From Cliff

Six huge kettle-like drums were rolled into the lake from a 100-foot cliff. The first gave the best show.

It broke through a foot of ice on the lake and immediately started a heavy and rapid cannonading. Fiery pellets cascaded up from the drum, making it appear that the water had caught fire and erupted. Above the bright red cascade, a pure white column of smoke mushroomed into the air for a thousand feet, twice as high as the 500-foot cliffs bordering the lake. The smoke column was visible eight miles away at Soap Lake.

As darkness fell last night, two of the drums were still active at intervals.

Watchers' Skin Affected

The acrid smoke from the sodium left a deposit on the skin of the watchers, causing an irritation like chapping, and also was deposited on cars along the roadway bordering the lake. Soap Lake residents also reported noticing effects of the caustic smoke.

The sodium was destroyed because it was too dangerous to transport to the East for use by industrialists.

Wise Sees Jewish State in '47

BOSTON, Jan. 11 (AP).—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of New York, believes "there will be a Jewish state in Palestine before 1947 is out." He assailed the recent World Jewish Congress, declaring it "met no issues." He recently resigned as president of the Congress. He said: "It is better to take a part of Palestine if we can have it."

Pauley's Isle To Lure Tired Business Men

Los Angeles, Jan. 11 (AP)—Edwin Pauley, wealthy oil man who with four associates bought Coconut Island, a sixteen-acre "paradise" in the Pacific for a reported $2,000,000, was en route there today on the liner Matsonia to inspect the property.

Pauley and his syndicate plan to make the island a retreat for tired business men who wish to week end in the Pacific by airplane. With Pauley and his wife were Allen Chase of Pasadena, Cal., and Poncet Davis, Akron, Ohio, co-owners, and their wives.

The island, situated only seven miles from Honolulu, was formerly owned by the late Christian Holmes, Hawaiian rancher and capitalist, and was purchased by Pauley and his group eight months ago. Holmes built a $1,000,000 home and a tiny fishing village.

The syndicate plans to build 70 guest cottages and two large swimming pools, bowling alleys, tennis courts and other recreational facilities for visitors.

Pauley who is United States Reparations Commissioner, was assigned by President Truman to make studies of reparations throughout the world. He recently reported on conditions in the northern (Soviet) zone of Korea.

LONDON, JAN. 11-(AP)-THE SOVIET NEWS AGENCY TASS DENIED TONIGHT AS "FALSE AND PROVOCATIVE" REPORTS THAT RUSSIAN TROOPS WERE CONCENTRATED ON THE TURKISH BORDER WHICH, THE AGENCY SAID, RECENTLY WERE BROADCAST BY THE AMERICAN COMMENTATOR DREW PEARSON.

TASS SAID:

"SPEAKING RECENTLY IN HIS WEEKLY RADIO BROADCAST, THE AMERICAN JOURNALIST DREW PEARSON, BASING HIMSELF ON THE AMERICAN MILITARY ATTACHE IN ANKARA, SAID THAT THE SOVIET UNION HAD CONCENTRATED TROOPS ON THE TURKISH FRONTIER.

BRITISH FOREIGN SECRETARY ERNEST BEVIN WILL WELCOME THE DEPUTIES AT THEIR FIRST SESSION AT LANCASTER HOUSE, IN LONDON'S WEST END.

ALTHOUGH THE SO-CALLED BIG FOUR NATIONS ARE EXPECTED TO PLAY THE MAJOR ROLE IN DRAFTING THE TWO TREATIES, REPRESENTATIVES FROM 18 SMALLER NATIONS HAVE BEEN INVITED TO MAKE SUGGESTIONS TO THE DEPUTIES.

AMONG THE PROBLEMS TO BE CONSIDERED ARE:

1. BORDERS. FRANCE ALREADY HAS THROWN A CUSTOMS CORDON AROUND THE COAL-RICH SAAR, WHICH SHE WISHES TO INTEGRATE WITH HER OWN ECONOMY, AND IS IN FAVOR OF INTERNATIONALIZATION OF THE RUHR AND SEPARATION FROM GERMANY OF THE RHINELAND. POLAND HAS MOVED INTO EASTERN GERMAN TERRITORY, AND THE UNITED STATES HAS SAID THAT IT DOES NOT NECESSARILY BELIEVE THAT THE POLISH-GERMAN FRONTIER SHOULD BE PERMANENT. POLAND AND RUSSIA HAVE DISSENTED LOUDLY.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA IS EXPECTED TO ASK FOR "BORDER CORRECTIONS" AT THE EXPENSE OF GERMANY AND AUSTRIA. YUGOSLAV PROPAGANDISTS HAVE BEEN CLAMORING FOR AUSTRIAN CARINTHIA. FRANCE, AND POSSIBLY BRITAIN, WILL VOTE TO RESTORE AUSTRIA TO HER 1937 BORDERS.

2. WHO SHALL SIGN? OPINION APPEARS DIVIDED AS TO WHETHER ANY GERMAN LEADERS WILL SIGN THE GERMAN TREATY, OR WHETHER THE TREATY SHOULD BE IMPOSED. ADD LON (FOR. MINS. DEPUTIES) XXX PART

3. OCCUPATION. THE WHOLE QUESTION OF FUTURE OCCUPATION POLICIES IN EUROPE, PRESUMABLY, WILL BE THRESHED OUT. THE OCCUPYING POWERS HAVE DISAGREED ON MANY OF THESE POLICIES UP TO NOW.

4. REPARATIONS. THIS QUESTION IS BOUND UP WITH SUCH PROBLEMS AS WHETHER GERMANY SHOULD BE PERMITTED TO DEVELOP ENOUGH COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY TO PAY REPARATIONS IN CASH OR GOODS; WHETHER MORE ENEMY PROPERTY SHOULD BE SEIZED OR REMOVED; WHETHER RUSSIAN SEIZURES OF PROPERTY IN AUSTRIA WERE JUSTIFIED; AND WHETHER THE GERMANY AND AUSTRIA OF THE FUTURE SHOULD BE TIGHTLY CONTROLLED OR ALLOWED A LITTLE FREEDOM TO HELP THEMSELVES.

THE GOVERNOR WILL REPORT DIRECTLY TO THE CHAIRMAN OF THE SECURITY COUNCIL. HIS TERM IS FOR FIVE YEARS, BUT HE CAN BE REMOVED FOR CAUSE.

THE TERRITORY WILL HAVE A CUSTOMS FREE PORT WHERE GOODS MAY BE PROCESSED AND TRANS-SHIPPED AND WILL HAVE A SPECIAL REGISTRY OPEN TO CZECHOSLOVAK AND SWISS SHIPS AND LATER TO THE SHIPPING OF HUNGARY AND AUSTRIA WHEN THOSE COUNTIRES HAVE CONCLUDED THEIR TREATIES FOR PEACE AND INDEPENDENCE.

FOR 90 DAYS AFTER HE ASSUMES OFFICE THE GOVERNOR WILL HAVE AT HIS DISPOSAL NOT MORE THAN 5,000 TROOPS EACH FROM THE UNITED STATES, BRITAIN AND YUGOSLAVIA, WHICH WILL THEREAFTER BE WITHDRAWN WITHIN 45 DAYS UNLESS HE CALLS ON THE SECURITY COUNCIL TO RETAIN THEM TO MAINTAIN ORDER.

NIGHT LEAD SICILIAN (200)

BY MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

PALERMO, SICILY, JAN. 11-(AP)-GENNARO PATRICOLO, MAYOR OF PALERMO SAID TODAY HE PLANNED TO LEAD A MISSION TO NORTH AND SOUTH AMERICA IN MARCH FOR THE PURPOSE OF GETTING A LOAN FOR A FUTURE AUTONOMOUS SICILY.

PATRICOLO, WHO WAS ELECTED MAYOR LAST NOVEMBER ON THE TICKET OF GUGLIEMO GIANNINI'S CONTROVERSIAL RIGHT-WING UOMO QUALUNQUE (COMMON MAN) PARTY, SAID THE EIGHT MAN MISSION WILL INCLUDE THE MAYORS OF SICILY'S NEXT TWO LARGEST CITIES, CATANIA AND MESSINA, WHO ALSO ARE QUALUNQUISTAS, LOCAL BUSINESS LEADERS AND POSSIBLY A REPRESENTATIVE OF THE VATICAN.

AN AUTONOMOUS SICILIAN GOVERNMENT IS TO BE FORMED AFTER REGIONAL ELECTIONS FOR THE SICILIAN ASSEMBLY ON APRIL 20, PATRICOLO SAID, UNDER AN AUTONOMY MEASURE NOW BEING PREPARED IN ROME. BUT HE DECLARED HIS PARTY WOULD DEMAND FAR GREATER AUTONOMY THAN THAT NOW BEING CONSIDERED BY THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT.

AMONG HIS DEMANDS, HE SAID, WERE A CUSTOMS BARRIER BETWEEN SICILY AND ITALY "ESSENTIAL FOR THE PROTECTION OF SICILY'S INTERESTS." HE SAID HE THOUGHT HIS PARTY WOULD WIN A MAJORITY IN THE SICILIAN ASSEMBLY.

PATRICOLO SAID HE HOPED TO VISIT MOST OF THE CITIES IN THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE WITH SICILIAN NAMES, SUCH AS THE "VARIOUS SYRACUSES ESPECIALLY, AND THE PALERMOS OF CALIFORNIA, MAINE, WEST VIRGINIA AND NORTH DAKOTA."

Rome, Jan. 11-(ap)-Msgr Gerald P. O'Hara, who traveled 10,000 miles over the holidays and still never reached his destination AT savannah, ga., plans to leave rome tuesday on the first leg of a trip to bucharest, where he will take over as regent of the bucharest nunciature.

The much-traveled bishop of savannah-atlanta will fly to vienna aboard an raf plane and expects to be in romania two days later.

He had no explanation to offer as to why the allied control commission in bucharest waited six months to grant him an entry permit.

1947

"Perhaps I can get some light on it after I get to Bucharest," he said.

The 51-year-year, scranton-born prelate was disappointed that illness, x crowded planes and the necessity for his prompt return to europe had prevented him fro reaching savannah to say midnight mass at the cathedral there on christmas eve.

30. 24 - 7327

"Everybody in savannah always turns out for that," he said wistfully in an interview. "That's the one day in the year when the cathedral is packed to the doors. I had my heart set on being there. But I couldn't make it."

What happened was this:

Msgr. O'Hara waited for months in rome for the entry permit to romania. Earlier he had been denied permission to enter albania as pope pius' representative there.

Finally, the vatican secretariat of state decided that the entry permit never would be forthcoming, and told the prelate to return to his diocese.

1947

He arrived in New York dec. 22, aboard the liner america, and found out that the permit at last had arrived and that he was to return to rome as soon as possible. The america was slated to sail again dec. 27, so he had five days to so to savannah.

He got as far as philadelphia, where he spent two days in bed because of illness. Planes were so jammed over the holidays that he could not get reservations.

So, reluctantly, he returned to new york and boarded the america again.

"There has been so much to do that I haven't been able to sleep," msgr. o'hara said.

The bishop explained that his personal secretary, msgr. john c. kirk of athens, ga., was "somewhere between cherbourg and rome" with their automobile and most of their baggage--"34 pieces of it, poor fellow."

He said that Msgr. Kirk would sail with the car aboard the romanian steamer transylvania, arriving in bucharest late this month.

At bucharest, bishop O'Hara will take over from msgr. andrea cassulo, the retiring nuncio. Reliable reports--never officially confirmed by the vatican--state that msgr. cassulo is being withdrawn at the request of the romanian government, which criticised his activities during the war.

1947

Although he was at one time reported to have returned to rome, vatican sources said today msgr. cassulo was still in bucharest.

THE DEATH PENALTY WAS ASKED FOR COUNT KAWERY GROCHOLSKI,

THE BRITISH AMBASSADOR TO WARSAW AS A RECIPIENT OF STATE AND MILITARY SECRETS DECLARED "I MUST DEFINITELY SAY THAT A REPRESENTATIVE OF A FRIENDLY STATE IS INVOLVED."

THE DEATH PENALTY WAS ASKED FOR COUNT KAWERY GROCHOLSKI, 43, WALDEMAR BACZAK, 24, AND WITOLD KALICKI, 36. IMPRISONMENT FOR LIFE WAS REQUESTED FOR THE WOMAN DEFENDANT, CHRYSTINA KOSIOREK, 22.

IN REFERRING TO TESTIMONY WHICH SAID THAT THE BRITISH AMBASSADOR, SIR VICTOR F.S.CAVENDISH-BENTINCK, RECEIVED STATE AND MILITARY SECRETS FROM UNDERGROUND PLOTTERS, THE PROSECUTOR ASSERTED:

"WE HAVE THE HIGHEST ESTEEM FOR THE NATION REPRESENTED BY THE AMBASSADOR AND IT IS WITH THE GREATEST DISPLEASURE THAT I MUST SAY DEFINITELY THAT A REPRESENTATIVE OF A FRIENDLY STATE IS INVOLVED.

"THE AMBASSADOR APPARENTLY SLIPPED INTO FALSE WAYS, AND DOES NOT UNDERSTAND THE NEW POLAND."

THE BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE HAS REJECTED ANY IMPLICATION THAT THE AMBASSADOR PLOTTED WITH UNDERGROUND REPRESENTATIVES.)

TESTIMONY TODAY CENTERED ON ALLEGED EFFORTS OF THE WIDESPREAD UNDERGROUND ORGANIZATION WIN TO BRING ABOUT A COUP D'ETAT AGAINST THE POLISH REGIME. THE GOVERNMENT ATTEMPTED TO LINK COUNT GROCHOLSKI, KEY FIGURE IN THE TRIAL, AND BACZAK, FORMER FOREIGN MINISTRY EMPLOYE, WITH THOSE ACTIVITIES.

THE MILITARY COURT ANNOUNCED TONIGHT IT WOULD SENTENCE THE DEFENDANTS NEXT TUESDAY MORNING.

IN HIS FINAL ARGUMENT, GROCHOLSKI PLEADED FOR A LIGHT SENTENCE AND DENIED THAT HE HAD ACTED AS AN INFORMER FOR THE GESTAPO DURING THE NAZI OCCUPATION OF POLAND, AS THE DEFENSE CHARGED. HE DECLARED CAVENDISH-BENTINCK TOOK ADVANTAGE OF THEIR LONG FRIENDSHIP AND "LED ME BY THE HAND" IN HIS DESIRE TO OBTAIN INFORMATION FOR BRITAIN FROM THE UNDERGROUND.

BACZAK AND KALICKI CONTENDED THEY DID NOT SUSPECT THE INFORMATION THEY COLLECTED WOULD BE TURNED OVER TO A FOREIGN STATE, WHILE THE KOSIOREK WOMAN SAID SHE HAD BEEN USED AS A TOOL AND THAT HER PART IN THE UNDERTAKING WAS MERELY FOR LIAISON PURPOSES.

WASHINGTON, JAN.11-(AP)-SOVIET CHARGES OF "DOLLAR DIPLOMACY" PROVOKED FROM REP. COLMER (D-MISS) TODAY THE RETORT THAT RUSSIA HAS REFUSED TO "PLAY BALL WITH HER WAR PARTNERS IN AN EFFORT TO OBTAIN WORLD PEACE.

"COOPERATION IS NOT A ONE WAY STREET," DECLARED THE MISSISSIPPI LEGISLATOR WHO SERVED AS CHAIRMAN OF A SPECIAL HOUSE COMMITTEE ON POSTWAR PLANNING WHICH ACCUSED RUSSIA OF BROKEN PROMISES AND AMBITIONS FOR MILITARY DOMINATION.

COLMER'S REMARKS TO A REPORTER CAME AS HIS ANSWER TO A MOSCOW RADIO DENUNCIATION OF THE REPORT, TERMING IT AN "EXTENSIVE PROGRAM FOR ECONOMIC PRESSURE" AGAINST THE SOVIET UNION" THROUGH THE USE OF "DOLLAR DIPLOMACY."

"UNTIL RUSSIA ACCEPTS FULL AND EFFECTIVE INTERNATIONAL CONTROL OF ATOMIC ENERGY," COLMER SAID, "THE REPORT ADVOCATED THAT THERE SHOULD BE A LIMITATION IN CERTAIN TYPES OF SHIPMENTS ENDANGERING AMERICAN AND WORLD SECURITY. THE REACTION OF MOSCOW WAS, OF COURSE, THE USUAL ONE AND THE EXPECTED ONE."

Britain W[illegible]d Burma Will Fight

London, Jan. 12 (AP)—A highly placed Burmese source said today on the eve of the British-Burmese independence conference, that Burma had made "full preparations" to fight, if necessary, for complete freedom from Britain.

This source said that Burmese leaders had warned Britain there would be armed rebellion if freedom were not granted.

Britain already has offered Burma independence, inside or outside the Empire. Burmese leaders will begin talks tomorrow at 10 Downing street on proposed revision of a 1945 British white paper providing a leisurely route to self-government.

Gen. U Aung San, 32, Burmese soldier who fought the Japanese and now heads his country's delegation here, has set January 31 as the deadline for Britain's acceptance of Burma's counterproposals. He denied today that he distrusted Britain's good intentions but added:

"Very often the means of implementing an offer can defeat the offer."

He said he favored "exhausting every peaceable means for achieving our goals." A source close to him asserted there were many tricks in the Burmans' bag ready for us, including nonpayment of taxes and civil disobedience as well as revolt.

However, British observers held remote the possibility of a clash. The New Statesman and Nation, Leftist London weekly, said that suspicions were unjustified.

Hand Grenade Suicide Squads Reported In Indo-China War

J. DYMAN

Paris, Jan. 12 (AP) — Marius Moutet, Colonial Minister, reported today to President-Premier Leon Blum shortly after Moutet's return from Indo-China, where desperate Viet Nam soldiers were reported blowing themselves up with grenades to escape capture by the French.

Advices from Saigon said the commissioner general had decreed evacuation of all "unnecessary" civilians from Hanoi in order to cope with the stringent food situation. The French claimed new advances on the southern outskirts of the capital in a dawn attack launched yesterday by armored forces with air support.

Leclerc Also Returns

General Leclerc, commander of the French troops in Indo-China, also returned to Paris. Moutet declined all comment other than to say France's first objective would be to "assure the defense of our fellow citizens and our friends."

Leon Boutbein, Socialist leader who accompanied Moutet, told newsmen that blame for the uprising rested on the French as well as the Viet Nam regime. He said he gained that conviction in "non-official" conversations with Viet Nam leaders in Hanoi. He expressed belief France could still find common ground with truly representative Viet Nam elements.

French advices from Hanoi said that French forces mopping up the Gialam airport region north of the Rouge River were encountering Viet Nam suicide squadrons. Members of insurgent patrols carried grenades with which they blew themselves up rather than yield to capture.

Hanoi 60 Per Cent Wrecked

HANOI, French Indo-China, Jan. 12 (AP).—Warfare has wrecked virtually 60 per cent of this embattled city's buildings, mostly in the Chinese and Annamese quarters, since the outbreak of hostilities between the Viet Namese and the French on Dec. 19.

Long blocks of ruins in this Tonkin Province capital look exactly like the wreckage in a full-scale European-style war. Areas of major destruction are south of the Boulevard Gambetta, which runs eastward from the railroad freight yards to the Rouge River, and south of the Rue Duvillier along the Rue Soeur-Antoine.

(French advices from Hanoi received in Paris said French troops mopping up the Gialam airport region north of the Rouge River were encountering Viet Nam suicide patrols, members of which blew themselves up with grenades rather than yield to capture.)

French Armored Forces, in a dawn attack yesterday on the southwestern edge of the city, cleared a triangular wedge from the tight encirclement maintained by the Viet Namese since the start of the fighting.

On the eastern side of the wedge French half-tracks and tanks drove southward on the Mandarine road from the Shell Oil Company's oil depot to the village of Kimlein. The depot, at the south end of the railroad yards, had been held by the French, but only under constant threat.

On the northern side of the triangle French troops cleared the road linking the Mandarine road with Rue Soeur Antoine, the highway leading to Hadong. The town, about 5 miles beyond the southwestern limits of Hanoi, is where Ho Chi Minh, Viet Nam president, was reported to have established his fugitive government.

On the western side of the wedge French troops advanced southward along the Rue Soeur-Antoine to within 200 yards of the Canadian Catholic Mission, from which American, British and Canadian flags were flying.

A correspondent who witnessed the French operations saw priests waving their hands from the windows of the main mission building inside the seven-foot-high compound wall. The Rue Soeur-Antoine leading to the mission is flanked by ponds and swamps. Viet Nam machine-gun positions covered the road, preventing immediate access to the mission.

When yesterday's attack started infantrymen supporting the armored forces found two old Annamese women and a six-year-old girl on the road, directly in the path of the attack. The women were placed with the child in a Viet Nam trench to keep them out of the line of fire.

Among prisoners captured by the French was an eight-year-old Viet Nam boy, who told officers he had come from the surrounded Chinese quarter by way of a sewer main to find out the number of French troops and the kind of weapons they were using.

Germans Praise Leaders Of U.S.

1947

Berlin, Jan. 12 (AP)—In an editorial rare for a Russian-controlled newspaper, the Rightist Liberal Democratic party's Der Morgen, today praised Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay; James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State, and various aspects of the American policy toward Germany.

The editorial, signed by Wilhelm Kuelz, chairman of the party, lauded Clay, head of the American Military Government, for presenting a "frank and unreserved" attitude toward German problems.

It said Byrnes had worked hard to bring closer together American and Russian viewpoints on world problems and that his address last year in Stuttgart presented a "plain and positive" program for the future of Germany.

Der Morgen also praised Gen. George C. Marshall, successor to Byrnes, as the wartime United States Army Chief of Staff and said that "as a man trusted by Truman," he could be counted upon to carry out the President's foreign policy ideas as expressed to Congress.

GERMAN LOOTERS RAID COAL TRAINS

Cold Wave Brings Attacks By Crowds In British Zone

R. RASSCHKE

Berlin, Jan. 12 (AP)—Germans in bands numbering hundreds attacked coal and food trains in the British occupation zone as the cold wave which has held much of Europe in its grip for several days continued today.

British Military Government headquarters reported that crowds numbering as many as 400 persons were attacking coal trains from the Ruhr to loot fuel for their homes. At the Bonn freight yards a German was shot dead by a Belgian military policeman who was assisting civil police in dispersing a crowd of 200 looters.

Cold Kills Score In Hamburg

Hundreds have been arrested. In Hamburg, where the town council announced Thursday more than twenty Germans had died of cold, 230 looters were arrested in one day.

Berlin police reported today that two aged women were found frozen to death in their lodgings. A minimum temperature of 10 degrees was forecast for tonight.

An announcement here said the big Siemens electrical works industry would remain closed another week for lack of fuel.

Food trains as well as those carrying fuel have been attacked. During one such raid on a train at the railroad station in Bielefeld, Prussia, looters obtained quantities of meat and injured a soldier guard.

Stolen GI Truck Amok In Munich

Munich, Germany, Jan. 12 (AP)—Two young Germans stole a 2½-ton United States Army truck from the 98th General Hospital parking lot today and became involved in a series of accidents so complex that military police had to draw a map to explain what had occurred.

One person was killed and six were injured in the crashes. Aided by the confusion they had caused, the thieves escaped unhurt and were being sought by military police.

This is the account police gave of the accidents:

The stolen truck, careening at 50 miles an hour down an icy street, skidded into a streetcar, bounced off and hit a small German passenger automobile. The automobile, jammed like an accordion, was pushed into a second streetcar. The truck then roared across a wide plaza striking a German and his wife standing on the curb. The woman was killed.

Next the truck swerved into a horse-drawn wagon pushing it into still a third streetcar.

Another horse-drawn wagon was parked on the car tracks. It contained a scaffold on which a German worked to repair the carline wires. The truck hit this wagon sending the workman into the air in a swan dive.

Just as a starter, police said, charges of theft, hit-and-run driving, speeding and manslaughter have been placed against the fugitives.

Goering's Native Town Ignores His Birthday

Rosepheim, Germany, Jan. 12 (AP) — Hermann Goering's native town gave the cold shoulder today to his fifty-fourth birthday.

When Goering killed himself there was speculation that he might wind up as a German hero. Disgruntled Bavarians, promenading this sleepy Sabbath, didn't think so.

"Hitler came here twice when he was Fuehrer, but we never saw Goering," said Hans Voger, personnel supervisor at the City Hall. "We were too small for his big ideas."

The thoroughfare Hermann Goering-Strasse is now known as Haustaetter Strasse, its pre-Nazi name.

SAUDI ARABIAN LEADER DUE IN CAPITOL TODAY

SARAGAT LISTS PARTY'S AIMS

Italian Tells Why He Bolted From Socialists

1947

Rome, Jan. 12 (AP)—Giuseppe Saragat, president of the Constituent Assembly who split the Italian Socialist party on the issue of collaboration with Communists, today projected a new Socialist party which would seek to "unite workers of both the laboring and middle classes."

Saragat said his new party would adopt a "brotherly" attitude toward the Communists.

The new party's name has not been selected, Saragat told his followers.

Explains Why He Left Party

About 700 members of the Saragat faction, which split from the Socialist party yesterday, listened attentively as their leader expounded for more than an hour the principles which led him to break away from what he called "fifth-column infiltration" by pro-Communists of the old party.

Meanwhile, the old party, led by Foreign Minister and Acting Premier Pietro Nenni, continued the twenty - fifth National Socialist Congress with a detailed report on party affairs from Secretary General Ivan Matteo Lombardo.

A prominent candidate for the post of secretary general of the old party was Lelio Basso, strong advocate of collaboration with the Communists, whose election would make definite the unity of the Socialist and Communist parties for all practical purposes.

Milan Group Doesn't Switch

But, in today's meeting, a number of prominent Socialists had joined Saragat, among them Ludovica Daragona, Minister of Labor and Social Welfare; Fillippo Lupis, Under Secretary for Immigration and Italians Abroad, and Angelo Corsi, Under Secretary of the Interior. Another was Alberto Simonini, known as Italy's best trades union organizer.

Most of the Socialist delegations from the industrial cities of Turin and Genoa had joined Saragat, but the Milan delegation remained in the old party session.

However, not more than approximately 30 of the 114 Socialist members of the assembly had definitely broken with the old party, despite the claim of Saragat and his aides that they would capture a majority of the Socialists' parliamentary group.

POPE PRAISES ARGENTINE AID

Thankful For Contributions For Relief In Europe

Vatican City, Jan. 12. (AP)—Pope Pius today praised Argentina's contributions for relief in Europe and her disposition to admit European emigrants.

He expressed also a hope for a "dignified and truly lasting peace," in remarks to the new Argentine Ambassador, Conrado Traverso, who presented his credentials.

"Today the nations which enjoyed the happiness of escaping the storms which brought the most tragic of all wars are, perhaps, the ones which are spiritually better prepared and ready to understand objectively and to appreciate serenely the essential elements which can serve as a basis for a dignified and truly lasting peace," the Pope said.

To Defeat Hatred Trends

"To them, therefore, is reserved the singularly hard and important task of pacifying and defeating those trends toward hatred and reprisals, which even if understandable in themselves, are no less dangerous."

The Pontiff expressed confidence that Argentina would "understand perfectly the circumstances of the moment and what they demand and would not miss the opportunity to collaborate as intensely as possible, in the noble objective" of a lasting peace.

Gives Customary Blessing

The Pope gave a customary blessing to the Argentine President, Juan Perón, the Government and the people. He expressed hope that Argentine relief to Europe would continue and praised the Argentine Government's action in sending a mission to Italy to supervise emigration as a step to "save many unhappy ones from spiritual and material misery."

Referring to the "obstacles and impediments" to peace, he said the task ahead imposed upon national rulers "an uncommon degree of foresight and prudence."

Traverso formerly was consul general in New York and counselor to the Argentine Embassy in Washington.

PRE-POLL VIOLENCE FLARES IN WARSAW

Roving Gangs Terrorize Opposition Party Members

L. ALLEN

Warsaw, Jan. 12 (AP)—Pre-election violence mounted today in Poland, flaring in the heart of Warsaw itself as roving gangs smashed stores operated by supporters of the opposition Polish Peasant party and attacked party members distributing campaign leaflets.

Organizers for the pro-Communist parties in the Government bloc, apparently bent on clinching victory in next Sunday's elections, told employés in factories to vote a straight bloc ticket or face loss of their jobs.

Underground gangs were stepping up their activities, attacking many district and local election commissions and killing members belonging to the bloc parties. Security police, who reported they arrested 4,000 underground members in the last 90 days, said 600 persons had been slain by the underground in that period.

Premier Predicts Bloc Victory

Premier Edward Osubka-Morawski, in a published interview, predicted victory for the bloc parties and declared the Government has "done everything possible to stamp out terrorism and assure peaceful and unfettered elections."

Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, vice premier and head of the Polish Peasant party, has issued reports which place the total number of party member arrests in recent weeks approximately 50,000, many of whom have been released and rearrested. Mikolajczyk said he could not state an accurate figure for those still under arrest, but he declared 2,000 were seized within 48 hours in the Krakow district.

Tens Of Thousands Eliminated

He said that the Government,

30.24-7335

which contends his party members are arrested only because they are suspected of crimes with underground connections, has stricken tens of thousands of names of Peasant party voters from registration lists.

He said 60,000 names were eliminated in the Krakow district alone and estimated that at least 250 candidates for Parliament have been removed from the ballots.

His latest reports said that 120 candidates had been imprisoned, and that police had padlocked party headquarters in 29 districts. In ten districts out of 52 the party has been denied any candidates.

Censors Balk Mikolajczyk

Mikolajczyk said, however, that he was still determined to see the elections through. He said he hoped that if the people got an opportunity to express their real will, the provisional regime would be stripped of its power.

He asserted also that the Government denied him places to hold party rallies. He said he had plans to speak over the radio to the people of Poland tomorrow night, but that censors required him to submit his speech 24 hours in advance.

Espionage On "British" Lines

A military tribunal at Katowice sentenced to death four out of seven men accused of constituting the high command of the outlawed WIN underground organization in southern Poland and supplying military information "to one of the foreign embassies in Warsaw." The three others got prison sentences of eight to fifteen years. A witness in a similar Warsaw trial said the British Ambassador received such information. The four Warsaw defendants will be sentenced Tuesday.

The Katowice prosecutor charged that the WIN unit commanded by Sladyslaw Syczepka, Emil Wehrstein, Jozef Brudniak and Stanislaw Laskowski, all sentenced to death, received special instruction to organize espionage "along the lines of the British intelligence service."

Witnesses testified that the objective was to gather all possible information on strength of the security police, Polish militia and Russian Army garrisons in the Silesian districts, and that 53 such reports were handed to a member of an unspecified foreign embassy in Warsaw.

Another Underground Group

A trial before a military tribunal at Bialystok brought to light another underground group known as the National United Army. Five men accused of attacks against election commissions were condemned to death and three others received prison terms of fifteen years each.

The Polish press, meanwhile, still withheld from its readers any mention of the protests from the United States and Britain that repressive measures against the opposition in the election were contrary to the Big Three decisions at Yalta and Potsdam specifying free and unfettered elections.

[In Moscow, a commentator in the Communist newspaper Pravda denied American assertions that the Polish Government was repressing democratic elements and said that arrests of Polish Peasant party members were not political, but caused by the "diversionary spying bandit activities" of the persons in question.]

London-Moscow Parley On Polish Elections Set

London, Jan. 12 (AP)—Britain has instructed her Ambassador in Moscow to discuss with the Kremlin this country's concern over next Sunday's elections in Poland, the Foreign Office said tonight.

These instructions to Sir Maurice Peterson followed the delivery of American notes on the subject to Britain and Russia. The United States, in a note to Poland, also expressed concern over repressive measures. Britain sent two earlier notes to Poland coinciding with the American views.

UNRRA Leaders In Moscow

Moscow, Jan. 12 (AP)—Paul White, chief of the UNRRA mission in the Ukraine, arrived in Moscow yesterday for a brief visit and will return to his post in Kiev in a few days. His visit coincided with that of Theodore Waller, acting chief of the UNRRA mission in White Russia, who also is now in Moscow.

Russia, 1947 Marshall And Baruch

F. GILMORE

Moscow, Jan. 12 (AP)—One Soviet newspaper foresaw today no change in United States foreign policy through the appointment of Gen. George C. Marshall as Secretary of State. Another charged Bernard M. Baruch was threatening the United Nations with withdrawal of American support unless his atomic energy control plan were adopted.

The Communist newspaper Pravda in a guarded reaction to Marshall's appointment, said the fact that it was speedily approved by the predominantly Republican Senate was an indication that United States foreign policy remained unchanged.

The Government newspaper Izvestia asserted that Baruch had "gone to extremes" of threatening withdrawal of American support of the United Nations unless his proposals—which the Russians oppose—were accepted.

Baruch's Resignation

Izvestia intimated that this purported threat was the reason for Baruch's recent resignation as the United States representative on the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission.

The Government newspaper said that another possible reason for the resignation was that Baruch's position on the commission "had evoked dissatisfaction in Zionist circles with whom Baruch is connected."

Izvestia did not conceal the hope that the resignation would presage a "more flexible" United States policy on atomic control.

Baruch Zionist Link Denied

[Associates of Baruch in New York said that the elder statesman was not a Zionist and never had been. They repeated the reason Baruch had given for his resignation—that his work had been completed and he had "come to the end of the furrow."

[In a statement December 27 to the working committee of the Atomic Energy Commission, Baruch insisted there should be no veto on punishment of atomic violations, and said: "Our people believe that the United Nations stands for the sanctity of treaties and for keeping of the pledged word in international relations.

["If our people were to believe that it lay within the power of a violator of treaties voluntarily entered into under the United Nations legally to escape the consequences of such treaties, in my opinion, they would—and they should—withdraw their support from this organization, which, in these circumstances, can be no more than a debating society and a place to exchange pious-sounding documents."]

Soviet Newspaper Topics

In other articles today:

1. Pravda said that President Truman's State-of-the-Union message expressed a "clear desire to reconcile the views of both parties not only on international but also on domestic issues."

2. Izvestia declared that some United States congressmen wanted to whet their "predatory appetites" by taking a number of Kurile islands away from Russia and building military bases on them.

3. Pravda accused Western Allied-occupation authorities of hastily dismantling factories in that part of the Istrian Peninsula which is to be given to Yugoslavia, and of shipping such factories to Italy.

U.S. And The Kuriles

In its article about the Kuriles, Izvestia said that a Naval Affairs subcommittee of the United States House of Representatives had "made the wonderful discovery that the northern flank defending the United States central line of defense in the Pacific should consist of defense works on the Aleutian and Kurile islands."

"It turns out there are congressmen in the United States who have forgotten the Kuriles belong to the Soviet Union," the article continued. "These gentlemen are not averse to going after territory of another state, if rein is given their predatory appetites."

The Istrian Question

Pravda said that outbreaks had occurred at the port of Pola, at the southern tip of the Istrian Peninsula, because the Western Allies had ordered the dismantling of factories. Pola will go to Yugoslavia, under the terms of the Italian peace treaty drafted by the Foreign Ministers Council.

"The hasty export of industrial equipment and whole enterprises from towns in Istria about to enter Yugoslavia can have no justification," Pravda said. "Such acts are absolutely inconsistent with the Italian peace treaty drafted and agreed upon by the Council of Foreign Ministers at the New York session just concluded."

Police Station In Haifa Bombed; 4 Die, 142 Hurt

CARTER L. DAVIDSON

Blast Jars Entire Palestinian Port—"Looks Like The Stern Boys Are At Work Again"

Jerusalem, Jan. 12 (AP)—Four policemen were killed and 142 policemen and civilians were injured tonight in an explosion which "virtually leveled" the Haifa police station, a Government communiqué announced.

All the city's 95,000 residents were put under virtual house arrest by imposition of a stringent curfew.

The blast was caused by detonation of an automobile load of explosives driven against the side of the building by men unofficially described as "Jewish terrorists."

The dead were two British policemen and two Arab temporary constables. Sixty-two of the injured were policemen, of whom twelve were British and the rest Arabs. Two of the Britons were in a serious condition.

80 Civilians Among Injured

Of the 80 civilians known to have received injuries, 48 were hurt seriously enough to require hospital treatment. The number of civilian casualties reported was based on the number given first-aid treatment, but police said many more were cut, bruised or shocked, if not more seriously hurt by the blast.

The explosion started fires in adjoining buildings and the official report said splintered glass flew through the air as far as a mile from the scene.

The blast was the greatest single act of underground violence in the Holy Land since the bombing of the King David Hotel last July.

A Government announcement said that a small automobile containing explosives was driven alongside the police station, and that occupants of the car fled three minutes before the blast, at 5.10 P.M.

"Extensive damage was caused to buildings in the vicinity and windows in buildings throughout town were broken," the announcement said.

Police declined to comment officially as to the perpetrators, but one veteran officer declared:

"It looks like the Stern boys are at work again."

Denies Halting Violence

An hour after the bombing, the clandestine radio station of Irgun Zvai Leumi denied widely circulated rumors that the Jewish underground had called a halt to violence and resistance. These rumors had said that Irgun and the Stern Gang declared a truce last week, pending further negotiations on Jewish demands that Palestine be made an independent Jewish state.

Government officials said that the explosives-laden automobile was marked "police" and that its driver was disguised as a policeman. Two other young men, both wearing raincoats, also were in the car.

1947

A few shots were fired by guards as the trio fled into the maze of streets and alleys in the lower Haifa water-front section.

The guards, who saw a fuse blazing in the car, sounded an alarm and the six-story building was hastily evacuated. Some fifteen policemen managed to get clear of the structure before the blast.

British 1st Infantry Division troops swiftly cordoned off the area with roadblocks. Bren carriers rumbled into position at strategic points throughout the area. Guards were doubled at all public buildings.

The explosion was the first major bombing of a Palestine public building in nearly six weeks.

The entire city of Haifa, Palestine's principal port, was shaken by the blast. Streets for blocks around were littered with glass and splinters. The heavily traveled parkway paralleling the water front was blocked by debris. Traffic was halted on roads in and around the city.

The police station is situated at the foot of historic Mount Carmel in a half-Arab half-Jewish section. It is next door to the post office, which was one of the buildings damaged by fire, and 100 yards from the port entrance.

The station had been barricaded, against just such an attack, behind multiple layers of barbed wire. It was heavily guarded around the clock.

The fires blazed for half an hour after the explosion, and telephone communications were disrupted.

Arabs Going To London

Meanwhile, a reliable Arab source said the Arab Executive for Palestine had formally accepted a British invitation to attend the forthcoming London conference on the Holy Land opening January 21.

The Arab League previously had announced that it would participate in the conference, which the Jews have said they will boycott.

Dr. Hussein F. Khalidi, secretary of the Arab Executive, said prior to a meeting of the Executive today that there could be "no solution of the Palestine problem without recourse to the United Nations."

Consequently, Khalidi said, "it was only a formality whether Palestine Arabs go to London."

Bringing Impasse Into Open

"It has been obvious all along that his Majesty's Government is faced with an impassé in Palestine," he said. "These London conferences are obviously for the sole purpose of bringing that impassé into the open and paving the way for referral to the United Nations."

Khalidi said the Arabs would not stand for dismembering Palestine through partition or federalization.

The Executive was said to be planning to wait until tomorrow, pending notification of the exiled Mufti, to announce formally its decision to attend the conference. The Mufti, Haj Amin Effendi Al Husseini, is in Cairo.

The Executive also reportedly put the finishing touches to a merger of the Arab armies Futuwah and Nejada.

Communism Trials in Cairo

CAIRO, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Public Prosecutor decided today, after eight months of investigation, to try twenty persons, including six newspaper men, on charges of "Communistic activities." Henry Curiel, wealthy Jew among the accused, was charged with 'spreading Communist propaganda and distributing Communist books which called for an end to classes." Two lawyers and five students also were among those to face trial at an undetermined date.

India Sends Force To Take Hostages

New Delhi, Jan. 12 (AP)—A military force has been sent to India's northwest frontier province to bring back 40 hostages and collect a fine of 75,000 rupees ($22,500) imposed on the Nandihar tribes for "damages and outrages" committed in raids along the frontier.

The force also is to impound a number of rifles. The hostages will be brought back to assure the tribes' good behavior.

The interim government's External Affairs Department, headed by Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, said that "raids into peaceful districts with murder, arson and loot as their objectives cannot be tolerated or allowed to go unpunished."

Today is the deadline for collection of the fine.

The External Affairs Department said the troops had no intention of permanently occupying the Nandihar valley "or other parts of the tribal territory."

"The object of the present operation," the communiqué continued, "is to exact just reparation for the damage and wanton outrages committed by these tribes on the property and persons of the innocent inhabitants of the Hazara district. Provided the terms are complied with, no punitive action by the troops will be necessary. If not, then appropriate measures will have to be taken to exact the reparation. . . .

"Finally, there is no question of the terms being vindictive or beyond the capacity of the tribes to meet. . . . The fines imposed represent no more than a fraction of the annual income of the tribesmen."

IRANIANS TAKE ROYAL REFUGE

Opposition Leaders Use Old Custom In Election Protest

Tehran, Jan. 12 (AP)—Political leaders opposing Premier Ahmed Qavam's new Democratic party in the current Iranian national elections apparently began exercising the ancient Persian custom of "royal refuge" today in protest against the Government's method of conducting the balloting.

Dr. Mohammed Mossadegh, leader of the independent coalition opposition parties, called on the Shah this morning and thereafter, all during the day, indpendent candidates for Parliament called at the palace to join their leader.

To Stay Until Shah Acts

A member of the coalition said tonight that at least six of the nine independent candidates who went to the palace would remain there "until the Shah acts on their protests that the elections are not free."

Qavam said last night in a broadcast that the elections began yesterday "freely in a calm social and political situation" and that "no pressure or threat is used or will be used."

Students of Persian history said that traditionally citizens may "take refuge in the palace" until "the King hears their petition."

Approximately 200 persons, most of them university students, gathered near the palace gates tonight in support of the protesting candidates, while other students motored through the city appealing for public support for their cause.

Recalls Changes In Year

The elections will continue through Friday.

In his broadcast last night, Qavam reminded his listeners that a year ago Iran was under military occupation, that its foreign policy was "unclear and dark" and that "the danger of social revolution could be felt through the country."

Mr. Ghavam, whose troops last month brought Azerbaijan Province, on the Soviet border, back under Central Government authority, added: "I have fortunately overcome all difficulties and have succeeded in my struggle against foreign interference on the country's internal affairs."

"Our foreign policy is based on mutual respect with all nations, especially the United States of America, Russia and Britain."

Pre-War Municipal Council Workers Ask British to Pay Pensions

SHANGHAI, Jan. 12 (AP).—More than 1,000 employees of the pre-war Shanghai Municipal Council gathered in front of the British Consulate today demanding payment of their pensions and other allowances.

Consul General A. G. N. Ogden received a delegation of leaders and explained to them that the council was no longer in existence, since it was an international body and all matters pertaining to it were placed in the hands of the Chinese government when foreign nations relinquished extraterritorial rights in China.

The delegates said they knew that, but had received no satisfaction from Chinese authorities. They argued that the old Municipal Council was British-dominated and that the commissioner of the international settlement police always was British.

COMMUNISTS ATTACK IN AREA NEAR PEIPING

PEIPING, China, Jan. 12 (AP)—Communist forces, continuing their guerrilla harassment of the Peiping area, cut both the railway and highway to Tientsin about thirty miles southeast of Peiping today.

United States Marine authorities in Peiping said they had not used the highway in two weeks because it already had been ripped to pieces and was "impassable in many places."

Pro-Government reports said that the Communists had taken one village near the railway and were attacking four railway stations but that Government reinforcements were en route.

Other Government dispatches said fighting was continuing in Manchuria between Kirin and Changchun, the capital, and that trains were reaching the Government headquarters at Mukden with many wounded.

Still another scene of conflict was Yehsien, in Shantung Province 150 miles south of Tsinan, where Communists were attacking the garrison.

Brief Services Held For Admiral Nagano

Tokyo, Jan. 12 (AP)—Brief Shinto funeral services were held today for Admiral Osaki Nagano, who died last week while on trial before the international war crimes tribunal.

Among the mourners was Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, who was Japanese Ambassador to Washington at the time of the Pearl Harbor attack, which was engineered by Nagano as naval chief of staff.

Many other former naval officers were among the 500 persons who attended.

General, Mrs. Marshall Hear Sermon On Peace

Honolulu, Jan. 12 (AP)—General and Mrs. Marshall attended services at St. Andrews Episcopal Cathedral today. Few of the congregation knew they were there.

The newly appointed Secretary of State and his wife arrived by automobile, sat in a rear pew and left immediately after the services.

The Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, Jr., chose world brotherhood as his topic and said it could be achieved in any of three ways: through power, as in the Roman Empire; through reason, as in ancient Greece, or through religion, which offers a common higher loyalty for all men.

The United States, he noted, is attempting to obtain peace through the second means.

BACKING IS GIVEN RIO PARLEY PLAN

Demands Made For Easing Of Policy On Argentina

Washington, Jan. 12 (AP)—Demands for easing the United States policy toward Argentina were raised in the Capital today to reinforce the proposal of Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) to call the Rio de Janeiro conference immediately to negotiate permanent hemisphere defense.

From senators of both parties and Sumner Welles, former Under Secretary of State, came support of the plea voiced last night at Cleveland by the new Republican chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that this Government cease to "dictate" delay by objections to Argentina's Perón regime.

Byrnes Against Change

Vandenberg returned by plane today with James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State, who made it clear in a valedictory address from the same platform that he favors no change in the policy. Byrnes declared there must first be "reasonable and substantial compliance by Argentina with its obligations" to get rid of Nazi influence.

Vandenberg in his first speech as committee chairman expressed hope for continuation of bipartisan support for an American "united front" toward other nations.

But "this does not mean that we cannot have earnest, honest, and even vehement domestic differences of opinion on foreign policy," he quickly added.

China Shift Proposed

In line with this, he also proposed a "shift in emphasis" in this nation's relations with China to favor supporters of the new Chinese constitution over the Communists who have denied it support. Otherwise he hailed Byrnes's record and voiced good wishes for Gen. George C. Marshall, Byrnes's successor.

Senator George (D., Ga.) joined in Vandenberg's proposal to call the Rio conference. He told an interviewer he believes "perhaps the State Department has been putting too much emphasis" on Argentina's obligations first to get rid of pro-Nazi elements.

Hickenlooper In Agreement

Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) who is slated to head the new congressional Atomic Energy Committee told a reporter he is in full agreement with Vandenberg, adding:

"The fact that there may be some unsolved matters with Argentina at this time should not stop vigorous efforts to solve all the problems of the hemisphere to the mutual satisfaction of everybody."

Welles called for a "radical change" in the United States hemisphere policy and expressed hope that the passing of Senate control to the GOP would help to bring it about. He said for his regular weekly broadcast that "every month that passes under present conditions makes it more difficult for inter-American co-operation to be undertaken."

Baldwin "In Accord"

Senator Baldwin (R., Conn.) said, in general, he is in "hearty accord" with most of Vandenberg's address, without specific reference to the Argentine-policy proposal.

The Michigan Senator's criticism of the delay in summoning the Rio meeting had the effect of supporting Ambassador George S. Messersmith, who is due to return to his post at Buenos Aires this week, with no official sympathy for his plea that the United States come to terms with Péron.

The Capital has heard reports Messersmith found support from Vandenberg and other congressional leaders in his clash over Argentine policy with Spruille Braden, assistant secretary.

Marshall's Views Not Known

Marshall's views on the issue have not been made known, but as wartime chief of staff he helped formulate military plans for hemisphere defense which have been held up by delay in carrying out the decision reached at San Francisco in May, 1945, to summon a conference at Rio.

On another aspect of foreign relations, Marshall's analysis of the political situation in China was supported by a report published today by the Foreign Policy Association.

Marshall denounced both Nationalist "reactionary" leaders and Communist extremists, and contended China's plight could be relieved only by liberal elements of both sides.

The foreign policy report, prepared by Lawrence K. Rosinger after a three-month survey on the scene, said that "defeated Japan is recovering more rapidly than victorious China."

U.S. Being Blamed

"The United States is being blamed by important sections of the Chinese people for their country's civil strife and current economic difficulties," Rosinger added.

Within the Kuomintang, he reported, the Right-Wing leaders were unable to abandon a policy of civil war. He said the more liberal discontented elements deserve more attention than they have received from American policy makers.

The strength of the Communists "is of their own creation" rather than due to Russian support, Rosinger advised. He said further it is signficant that when the United States has been most friendly and objective in dealing with them, their leaders "have returned the friendliness and objectivity."

Anderson Sees Food Surplus if World Can't Buy

His Annual Report Cites 30% Rise Over Pre-War U. S. Farm Productivity

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson predicted Saturday that agriculture's war-expanded production capacity may create new surpluses unless ways can be found to boost the world's buying power.

He said that under war demands, agriculture has gone through a technological revolution that already has lifted its productive ability 36 per cent above pre-war levels.

"Quietly and gradually, yet with prodigious cumulative effect, American agriculture has accomplished a technological revolution . . . in less than a decade."

This picture of farming progress was painted in Mr. Anderson's annual report to President Truman.

The Secretary said the "revolution" has taken the form of increased mechanization, greater use of fertilizers, employment of improved crop varieties and livestock, widespread application of scientific pest controls and scientific soil conservation.

Mr. Anderson declared this technical progress is a "one-way affair" that "cannot go back."

"Total output for human use cannot be expected to fall much, except in years of extremely unfavorable weather," he noted. "Moreover, the revolution continues."

He added that happily the demand for food products is likely to continue strong this year.

"Abroad, the prospect rests on the fact that in 1947 more and more foreigners will be in a position to pay for the food imports they require; already the commercial overseas demand for American farm products is reflecting extensive economic revival," he wrote.

Looking beyond this year, Mr. Anderson said Americans "need to remember that eventually we could have farm surpluses once more."

"In fact the danger will continue until we learn how to make sure that consumers in this country will have the food dollars to buy what they need, and that consumers abroad will always be able to earn dollars."

Calling American food exports building stones of peace, Mr. Anderson said that the improving prospect of a stable peace is largely a measure of the extent to which this country has sent food abroad.

"We shall have to continue to send food," he continued. "It is well, therefore, to bear in mind that relief and other export food serves the national interest as truly as food consumed at home."

Anderson rated efforts of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization to develop an international food program among the most significant and promising of the last year's developments.

"Through its efforts to improve distribution and to increase productivity and raise living levels all over the world, FAO can help us find the outlets we must have if we are to enjoy continued prosperity based on full production," he said.

1947

Stressing agriculture's increased production capacity, Anderson said that maximum output has not yet been attained.

"Further replacement of horses and mules by tractors will release more land for food production," he wrote.

"Cropland can be increased, if necessary, by land clearing, drainage and irrigation. The use of improved varieties and strains of seeds, of soil-improvement practices and of fertilizers can be increased still more.

"New farm machines and tools and improvements in old types are becoming increasingly available. These facilities will turn out more work in less time, with less waste, and will give better quality of product."

O'MAHONEY RAPS CONTINUANCE OF WAR PROBE BOARD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—(AP) Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) protested today that Republican plans to continue the Senate War Investigating Committee would undermine the Congressional Reorganization Act.

He said it would lead to duplication of effort by the inquiry group and the Senate Armed Services Committee.

30. 24- 7337

O'Hahoney added his voice to opposition being raised by Democrats against an effort led by Senator Brewster (R-Me.) to extend the life of the war inquiry group which President Truman once headed as a senator.

Showdown Today

The issue comes to a showdown tomorrow when the Senate will consider resolutions extending the authority of the investigating group and of its special small business committee.

Noting that the armed services group has broad authority to make military investigations, O'Mahoney told a reporter that if the war inquiry committee is permitted to go ahead there will be a duplication of testimony and generally "wasted effort."

He recalled that a military subcommittee which he headed last session looked into war contracts and produced both the Contract Settlements Act and the Surplus Property Act. He noted that the special committee, of which Brewster has been elected chairman, has no authority to produce legislation.

The war contracts subcommittee still had $33,000 in funds available for investigation at the last accounting Dec. 1, O'Mahoney reported. This group, along with the full military committee, has been absorbed by the new Armed Services Committee headed by Senator Gurney (R-S.D.).

Democratic and Republican members of the Gurney committee expect to discuss the investigation resolution at separate meetings tomorrow.

G.O.P. Confident

Republicans expressed confidence they have sufficient votes to give the Brewster committee a new lease on life Jan. 31, when it otherwise would expire.

Brewster and Gurney are reported to have reached an agreement dividing the jurisdiction of the two groups. The War Investigating Committee would limit its activities to inquiries into wartime operation of the military, leaving matters dealing with current policies entirely in the hands of the Gurney group.

The Brewster committee also would abandon any effort to investigate military government in Germany, despite a preliminary inquiry made previously by George Meader, committee counsel.

FULL OVERHAULING OF WAA DEMANDED BY SENATE GROUP

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. — (AP) A Senate subcommittee of the 79th Congress called today for a "complete overhauling" of the War Assets Administration "with respect to top personnel, internal organization and policies."

A report by Senator O'Mahoney (E-Wyo), who headed a surplus property subcommittee of the old military affairs committee, said that after three years of surplus disposal "the job is only about one-third completed."

O'Mahoney expressed the opinion that the recommendations of the report "are entitled to serious consideration" by the new 80th Congress.

Urges Overhauling

In urging an overhauling of WAA policy and top management, O'Mahoney attributed a "major share" of responsibility "for the near breakdown" of the disposal program to military men who have been in charge.

Saying that these men have "encountered great difficulties in meeting the requirements of the job at hand," O'Mahoney added:

"This is not said in any spirit of criticism of the personnel, who, in most instances, have served under orders."

Maj. Gen. Robert M. Littlejohn is WAA administrator at present. His predecessor was Lt. Gen. Edmund B. Gregory.

O'Mahoney's report recommends legislation to:

1. Protect the synthetic rubber industry "in the interest of national defense." (John R. Steelman, assistant to the president, announced yesterday that Mr. Truman will recommend legislation to maintain a "minimum synthetic rubber industry.")

2. Assure maintenance of an adequate network of war-built airports.

3. Authorize WAA to condemn land where the government constructed plants during the war on property it did not own.

4. Maintain in stand-by condition plants vital for national security.

Asks Action on Pipelines

The report also urges prompt consideration by Congress of WAA's latest survey on disposal of the big and little inch wartime pipelines.

The report contends that WAA "has paid lip service only to the anti-monopoly objectives of the (surplus property) act which were supposed to reverse the accelerated trend toward concentration" experienced during the war.

The subcommittee says, too, that "contrary to provisions of the act," WAA and congressional committees 'have placed a high 'return to the government ahead of anti-monopoly considerations."

TO OVERHAUL BUDGET SOON

GOP Senators Say Law Gives Congress Full Power

1947

Washington, Jan. 12 (AP)—Republican chiefs of the Senate spending and taxing committees today promised a complete overhaul of President Truman's $37,500,000,000 budget as Congress neared the hearing stage.

Representative Knutson (R., Minn.) said he expects to call the Senate-House Budget Committee created by the Reorganization Act to its first meeting later this week. Knutson, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, is head of the joint budget group.

The Senate members of this group, Chairmen Bridges (R., N.H.) of the Appropriations Committee and Millikin (R., Col.) of the Finance Committee, agreed in separate interviews that the reorganization law directs Congress to take full charge of the purse strings. They expressed determination to do just that and carve the White House estimates.

Calls It Merely Advisory

"The President's budget is merely advisory," said Millikin as he read the section of the reorganization law.

It directs that the two spending and taxing committees of the Senate and House get together at the start of each year and fix estimates on expenditures and income.

"There are no ifs, ands, or buts about it," Millikin said, reading the law that these groups "are authorized and directed" to prepare such a budget "giving due consideration to the budget recommendations of the President."

Bridges Explains

Bridges remarked that in simple language the law directs Congress to "estimate tax and other receipts, decide how much it is going to spend, how much it will pay on the debt, and how much it will have for surplus including tax reductions."

"We could even sit down and try and write our own budget," Bridges added, "but we lack the time or the staff to do that now."

Both Republican leaders said they hope to have the budget ready before any appropriations or tax bills start throught the legislative machinery. They declared this is necessary as a guide for individual spending and taxing measures.

Must Finish Assignments

Before the budget group can meet, however, the House must complete its committee assignments. Republican and Democratic leaders hope to do this job at sessions of their committees on committees tomorrow morning. The Senate set up its committees last week.

The Senate Judiciary Committee has scheduled subcommittee hearings to start Wednesday on bills by Senators Capehart (R., Ind.) and Wiley (R., Wis.) to outlaw union portal-pay suits, now past the $4,000,000,000 mark.

This probably will be the first committee hearing of the new Congress.

Battle Likely Today

On the Senate floor, a battle is likely tomorrow over Republican plans to continue the War Investigating Committee, once headed by Mr. Truman, and the Small Business Committee, for specific investigations. Senator Tydings (D., Md.) and other Democrats opposing their continuance point to the provision of the Reorganization Act that Congress should have only its regular standing committees. They contend that any investigations should be undertaken by the regular committees.

Capper Thinks Truman Wrong On Tax Stand

Washington, Jan. 12 (AP)—Senator Capper (R., Kan.) disagreed today with President Truman's request that taxes be continued at present levels.

"There is nothing in the economic situation that would make tax reduction an unsound policy," he said. "It is not necessary to wait for a decline in industrial production and employment before taxes can be reduced."

He said, however, that reduction of taxes should come only after drastic cuts in Government spending and that the first effort of Congress should be directed toward making these reductions.

Questioning the possibility of trimming expenditures immediately to the $29,000,000,000 proposed by Chairman Taber (R., N.Y.), of the House Appropriations Committee, Capper said Congress can go "a long way" toward that figure.

HOUSE EX-GI'S TO ORGANIZE

Group Of 193 Plan No Stand On Veterans' Bills

Washington, Jan. 12 (AP)—Bills for immediate cashing of G.I. terminal-leave bonds topped a heap of veterans' legislation in the new Congress today as 193 House members who served in the armed forces prepared to organize as a group.

Bills for this purpose, which may number 40 or 50, have bipartisan support But some Republicans noted that the proposal would require a $3,000,000,000 outlay and knock a big hole in their plans to slash President Truman's budget below his estimates.

Leaders of the congressmen-veterans said no definite stand on this or other legislation will be taken as a group when they organize their association tomorrow but the members may do so as individuals. Veterans of any war are eligible for membership.

Not To Form Bloc

Representative Zandt (R., Pa.), former national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, will preside. Permanent officers will be nominated at the meeting. It is planned to rotate the chairmanship between Republicans and Democrats year by year to emphasize that the association is nonpartisan.

The sponsors say there is no intention of forming a veterans' bloc or interfering with or dictating to the committee handling veterans' affairs.

Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (R., Mass.), chairman of the Veterans Committee, said she would "co-operate in every way" with the association.

Would Save Government Money

Both Republicans and Democrats pushing legislation to let veterans convert their bonds into ready cash argue that the bonds have to be redeemed in five years anyway and the Government could save money by doing it now. The bonds draw 2½-per-cent interest and the Government could borrow the money for cashing them at a lower rate than that.

Congress voted last year to give the bonds to former enlisted personnel of the armed forces instead of furlough pay. This was to give ex-G.I.'s an equal break with ex-officers. Officers went on extended leave at full pay at the conclusion of their service.

The House wanted to give the veterans cash in the first place. The Senate argued it would be too inflationary to put $3,000,000,000 into their hands.

Legislators joining in a clamor to give the veterans their money now say it is needed to let them get started on careers or business, to help buy homes or to help out on the high cost of living.

The President himself was reported to have insisted on the bond payment plan last year.

Wide Arms Intelligence Data Held Vital In A-Bomb World

1947

Washington, Jan. 12 (AP)—The advent of the atomic bomb and the impending perfection of trans-oceanic rocket warfare is compelling a broad-scale revision in military-intelligence operations to cope with scientific phases.

The type of information needed is new, the urgency for it intensified.

Military planners asserted today that there will be critical need for such information until and unless a workable world-security plan is evolved. Nor are they at all sure military intelligence could be abandoned even then, so long as nations maintain armies, navies and air fleets.

Two Major Factors

Entering into the intelligence problem are two major factors: the race of other nations to overtake the lead of the United States in the atomic-bomb field and forge ahead in guided missiles; strategic information of value if the United States must retaliate against attack.

Army and navy intelligence officers maintained their traditional silence about the methods by which their work is being adapted to the new modes of warfare, but others familiar with strategical planning pointed out some of the problems.

The information from abroad that is collected and analyzed (analysis is one of the principle functions of strategic intelligence) now must embrace the realm of pure science, nuclear physics and other laboratory matters as well as economic, industrial and military trends.

Need For Information

Because, for example, of the mass destruction and anti-personnel effects of an atom bomb there is need for constant up-to-date information on shifts of populations and industries, of bases from which assault could be launched against the United States, and of natural resources from which atomic weapons could be manufactured by a possible enemy.

A great body of this information is available without resort to cloak-and-dagger methols, to be read in trade journals and scientific publications. Its military interpretation, however, must be done by the analyists of intelligence branches of the armed forces.

The end of the war added to the burdens of the American intelligence system, military, naval and political. The liaison of intelligence in the war, particularly with the comprehensive British system, was diminished with the dissolution of the fighting alliances.

Discussion Omitted To Date

Although the chart for the United Nations setup includes a provision for an international peace-preserving organization of forces contributed by the member nations, there has been no talk up to now of operating in connection with that unit a superintelligence force answerable only to the United Nations.

Only two suggestions approaching such a plan have been made in United Nations discussions: An international atomic inspection plan; the contention of the United States that if a general disarmament plan is adopted there must be inspection to guarantee it.

NAVY COURTS WIN SUPPORT OF BOARD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 — (AP) Sentences imposed by Navy general court-martial are "substantially reasonable and just," a review board composed of civilian and naval personnel reported tonight.

It made this finding after analyzing 2,115 cases of Navy men who had been given prison sentences and who were still in confinement after V-J day.

In 29 per cent or 593 of the cases, the board recommended that the man be returned to active duty, and in 15 per cent or 328 cases, that the sentence be reduced.

Remission of confinement and discharge was recommended in 1 per cent or 24 cases.

No change in the sentences finally imposed by the Navy was suggested in 55 per cent or 1,170 of the cases reviewed.

"Although the sentences originally imposed by the courts-martial were often severe and in some cases excessive," the board said in a statement, "by the time the cases came to the board after being acted upon by the Secretary of the Navy upon recommendation by the bureau of naval personnel or the commandant of the marine corps and the naval clemency and prison inspection board, the sentences generally were not subject to criticism."

The review board was set up in April, 1946 by Secretary Forrestal to study the court-martial cases.

Composed of three civilians and five naval officers, the board was headed by Arthur John Keeffe, professor of law at Cornell University Law school. In addition the board used 15 civilian lawyers, all war veterans, to review the cases and present them to the board.

ing the Pacific island bases that they favor eventual citizenship and other civil rights for Guam. But they said the islanders are not yet ready to administer their affairs.

Articulate native groups on Guam, while conceding that the present naval administration is fair, argued that an organic act for establishing a government (including citizenship) had been promised. The leaders said they wanted the right to manage their own affairs, and did not want to be completely under the thumbs of the Navy.

The tentative committee schedule calls for Dr. Ernest M. Hopkins, president emeritus of Dartmouth College, and former Gov. Maurice J. Tobin of Massachusetts to leave Washington by plane about February 14. They will be escorted by Capt. Paul D. Gross, of Lebanon, Pa., navy deputy director of island government.

To Confer In Hawaii

The party will meet Dr. Knowles A. Ryerson, of the College of Agriculture, University of California, on the West Coast, then fly to Pearl Harbor for conferences with top Pacific navy authorities.

About two weeks will then be spent on Guam, and an additional two weeks on American Samoa. The committee has been instructed by James V. Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy, to study and make recommendations on legislation leading to United States citizenship for the natives of both islands; improvement of their education, health and wage scales, and the conduct of naval civil governments.

nation's history to have supplied at the outset so extensive a guidance in the intricacies of foreign policy.

The blueprints are top-secret statements of basic policy drafted within recent months by State Department policy makers with the aid of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Ambassadors, and such unofficial advisers as outstanding university professors.

They are calculated to be of particular value to General Marshall in his urgent preparation for the opening in Moscow in March of the Foreign Ministers' conference on the peace treaty with Germany.

Although an outstanding authority on China because of his thirteen-month stay there as President's Truman's envoy and a master of world military strategy as wartime Chief of Staff, General Marshall presumably is a stranger to many of the inside details of post-war diplomatic developments in the United Nations, Europe and elsewhere.

Preliminary preparation of the policy statements was started under Secretary of State Hull. The work has been pushed to completion under Secretary Byrnes by Donald S. Russell, Assistant Secretary of State for administration.

Mr. Byrnes, possibly even less prepared at the outset than General Marshall for his role, has enviously told friends since his resignation that he wished he had had such blueprints when he became Secretary.

The documentation covers approved diplomatic tactics as well as summaries of basic policy; and the blueprints are not likely to be made public.

After first drafts were prepared in the State Department, each was submitted to the Joint Chiefs of Staff and then to appropriate envoys for revision and suggestion.

Aside from the master copies in the State Department safe, the only complete file is in possession of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, although it is understood that copies covering particular countries and areas near them have been supplied to United States envoys in the field.

training when his train arrived from Miami an hour late.

A depot guard said he had strict orders from aides in the general's office that no one was to be allowed where the general and Mrs. Eisenhower alighted and were greeted by half a dozen high ranking officers.

The first task for the chief of staff will be to determine whether the Army can get by on voluntary enlistments from now on or whether it feels it must have the draft contnlued. President Truman told Congress in his state of the union message that the Army's recommendations on the subject will be delivered before the present draft law expires March 31, but his budget made no specific provision for its future operation.

A War department committee, including civilian advisers, has been at work on the problem during Eisenhower's absence. The findings of the War department staff will be submitted to him for final review.

Universal training and unification of the armed forces are other issues for Eisenhower's attention before the President's detailed recommendations are sent to the new Congress.

Navy Acts To Get Citizenship, Higher Pay For Guam Natives

ROBERT M. FARRINGTON 1947

Washington, Jan. 12 (AP)—The Navy moved today toward obtaining citizenship and higher wages for the discontended natives of Guam, the strategic Pacific island which the United States has turned into a vital military installation.

The Navy has been the center of a considerable controversy concerning the treatment of Guamanians who have two principle grievances: noncitizenship and a navy-pegged low wage scale.

To look into these grievances and other conditions on Guam the Navy has appointed a three-man committee to make an on-the-spot study. The committee's recommendations, if approved by the Navy, would be the first step toward obtaining congressional action on changing the islanders' status.

Britain To Back U.S. On Priority Of Atom Control

New York, Jan. 13 (AP)—Authoritative sources said today that Great Britain will support the United States in insisting that atomic energy control be given priority over general disarmament if there is a showdown with Russia in the United Nations Security Council.

Russia is insisting that "all phases" of world disarmament be taken up immediately by the eleven-nation security body. She is opposed to giving priority to atomic energy control.

The United States argues that atomic energy control should be given top consideration on the grounds that if there is an international system of protection from atomic weapons, the problem of lesser weapons should not prove insurmountable.

May Agree Tomorrow

Delegates believed the basic difference between Russia and the United States over priority for atomic energy control or general disarmament may be resolved when the Security Council meets Wednesday morning.

Meanwhile, Security Council members examined a voluminous file submitted by Great Britain in her dispute with Albania over the Corfu Channel blasts which killed 44 British sailors. The case is not expected to be taken up by the Security Council before Friday.

Official British sources explained they did not want to disrupt the disarmament discussions to hear the case but believed it could be handled concurrently without any confusion.

These sources said they were just as anxious as the Americans that immediate action be taken on the arms limitation program.

Hope For Simultaneous Action

One high British source said Britain would support the United States in demanding that atomic energy control be given top priority if there should be a showdown on the issue with Russia.

He added, however, that the British delegation felt that the disarmament program could be acted upon simultaneously with the atomic energy control question.

"We certainly don't want to side-track the atomic energy control problem," this source said, "and we don't believe that Russia is trying to sidetrack it by insisting that all phases of disarmament should be taken up immediately. We think there are months and months of work ahead in both fields.

"We hope that the Atomic Energy Commission will be told to go ahead with its work and that some commission will be set up to delve into the field of general disarmament."

Would Include Atomic Issue

Under the Russian proposal, atomic energy would be included but without any special priority such as the Americans deem necessary.

1947

An American source said the United States delegation wanted the Security Council to consider the report of the Atomic Energy Commission as the first action under the United Nations Assembly's resolution calling for world-wide disarmament.

If the Security Council decides to do this, he said, discussions on the report, which was adopted by a vote of 10 to 0 with Russia not voting, might be delayed several days in order to give new Council members more time to consider the recommendations.

The American source said the United States delegation would suggest that the American control plan now before the Security Council be taken up item by item in an effort to determine how much agreement there is, instead of how much disagreement.

"We think," he said, "there is a wide area of unanimous agreement."

This source declared that the United States is not pressing for a showdown on the atomic-control recommendations.

"What we want," he added, "is action."

This source predicted that the discussions on the atomic-control recommendations would last for at least three weeks. After these discussions have been held, he said, then the Security Council could take up the rest of the disarmament resolution.

Warren R. Austin, permanent United States representative on the Security Council, returned from Washington today, and will succeed Bernard M. Baruch on the Atomic Energy Commission.

Corfu-Mines Data Studied By U.N.

E. CORPENTER

New York, Jan. 13 (AP)—Delegates to the United Nations Security Council examined with considerable interest today a voluminous file submitted by Great Britain in her dispute with Albania over the Corfu Channel mine blasts that killed 44 British sailors.

The British submitted the case to the Council last Friday. Their aim is to have it considered concurrently with disarmament, which will be taken up again by the Council when it meets Wednesday at Lake Success.

The Council must still determine how to tackle the arms question. It has before it an American proposal that atomic energy be given priority in arms limitation and a Soviet Russian motion urging that the whole broad question of arms reduction be taken up promptly.

Dispute Taken Up Later

Atomic energy would be included in the Soviet motion, but without any special priority such as the Americans deem necessary.

Several delegates remain to be heard on the arms debate before the Council votes on its course.

The British said they hoped their dispute with Albania would be taken up later this week, possibly on Friday.

They submitted a long note on December 9 to the Albanian Government protesting the incident in Corfu Channel, off Albania, on October 22, in which the bows of two British destroyers were damaged and 44 British sailors killed.

Great Britain held Albania responsible, demanded compensation for the ships and men and called for an apology. ZAD

Also attending the conference, called immediately after the Senate had confirmed Austin's appointment as permanent Security Council member, were Herschel V. Johnson, who has been representing the United States on the security body, and Don Hancock, Baruch's chief aide.

Sources close to the conferees said the conference centered on the problems that lie ahead on atomic energy control. Baruch was understood to have clarified for Austin his views on certain sections of the atomic energy report.

These sources said they also discussed the unanimity rule. Both Austin and Baruch were said to be in complete agreement that there should be no veto on punishment for violators of atomic law.

FRANCE RUSHES MORE TROOPS IN INDOCHINA CRISIS

PARIS, Jan. 13 — (AP) The liner Ile de France steamed toward Indochina today with 8,000 French reinforcements aboard as a general staff communique indicated that French troops scored some successes against the Viet-Namese resistance during the day.

The reinforcements sailed yesterday from Toulon about the time the first contingent of wounded combat veterans arrived at Lyon from the 7,000-mile distant colonial fighting front. The Ile de France, the nation's largest passenger liner afloat, was withdrawn from the North Atlantic run to transport the troops.

French Score Gains

The general staff communique issued in Paris said that the Viet-Namese resistance southwest of Hanoi was becoming "rapidly disorganized" as French forces advanced and that an important Viet-Nam ammunition dump was blown up by French soldiers.

During minor operations at Langson, the communique said, a number of Viet-Nam deserters appeared at French outposts.

The French Press Agency said the Viet-Namese were using dum-dum bullets, contrary to international law, and were employing suicide troops in desperate fighting.

The agency, in a dispatch from the nominal Viet-Nam capital of Hanoi, said four 75 mm guns—taken from the French by the Japanese in 1945 had been captured from the Viet-Namese.

The dispatch also said that the French had blasted an ammunition depot in the Sino-Annamite district of Hanoi.

Gen. Leclerc, specialist in armored warfare, and Colonial Minister Marius Moutet remained silent today on their recent inspection trips through the Far Eastern colony. The two arrived yesterday, and both conferred with Premier Leon Blum, whose all-Socialist government is slated to resign tomorrow. There was n iondication that any steps had been taken to resolve the dispute.

Pact Denied

An authorized spokesman of the colonial ministry denied published reports (not carried by the Associated Press) that Moutet had announced France had reached an agreement with Indochinese elements outside the rebelling Viet-Nam government.

Meanwhile, the influential newspaper Le Monde questioned the value of further negotiations with the Viet-Nam government, and said France should "lead military operations to their conclusions."

This assertion was contained in the proof of an editorial distributed by Le Monde to press services and radio stations. French newspapers have not published in the last four days because of strikes.

Germans Attack Trains.

Berlin, Jan. 13 (A. P.).—British Military Government Headquarters reported yesterday that bands of Germans, some several hundred strong, were attacking coal and food trains in the British Occupation Zone as severe cold continued to cause widespread death and suffering. More than a score of deaths were reported over the week end.

Hundreds were reported arrested as a result of the attacks, and at the Bonn freight yards a German was shot and killed by a Belgian military policeman who was assisting German civil police in dispersing a crowd of some 200 looters. In Hamburg, where more than twenty Germans were said to have died of the cold, 230 looters were arrested in one day.

All three will be called by the defense to counter prosecution contentions that Milch collaborated with Speer and Fritz Sauckel, former Labor Minister who was hanged, in directing Germany's wartime slave labor program.

Pants Doffed In Court

Dachau, Germany, Jan. 13 (AP)—An offended United States Army tribunal set aside matters of life and death today to dispose of the case of the man without pants.

The seven-man court scolded Neye for his conduct. He stood quietly for a moment, then got indignant and started to remove his pants.

The pants slid to the floor. A guard leaped over, pulled Neye's pants up and held them there.

A special recess was called. Then Neye was sentenced to an additional six months in prison for contempt.

ITALY'S ASSEMBLY PRESIDENT QUITS

Portents That Government Is Heading For Crisis Grow

FRANK—O'BRIEN

Rome, Jan. 13 (AP)—Giuseppe Saragat, leader of the Socialist party's anti-Communist insurgents, submitted his resignation as president of Italy's Constituent Assembly, his secretary said tonight amid increasing portents that the Government is headed for a crisis.

The announcement came shortly after Foreign Minister Pietro Nenni, leader of the Socialist party's pro-Communist faction, declared that the schism-split party's pact of united action with the Italian Communist party henceforth "ceased to be a formula and became a concrete fact."

De Gasperi's Return Awaited

Saragat's secretary said the resignation, which must be considered by the Constituent Assembly, was submitted in a letter to Umberto Terracini, first vice president of the assembly.

A decision to convoke the assembly to act on the resignation can be taken only after the return of Premier Alcide de Gasperi from the United States.

Nenni's reaffirmation of the policy that split the party at its twenty-fifth congress last week was accompanied in late editions of Rome newspapers by speculations that de Gasperi would be confronted by a grave crisis when he returns late this week.

Newsmen Barred From Meeting

The Socialist congress ended today with a meeting at which newsmen were excluded for the first time since the parley was convened.

In his closing address to the congress, Nenni declared that "what has happened [at the congress] is an episode in the war of the classes, which is approaching a vaster battle, which will not only be Socialist, but of all laborers for the conquest of the earth."

Referring to the new autonomist Socialist party, of which Saragat is a leader, Nenni said:

"The bourgeoise have covered the secessionists with applause and flowers, but let them not delude themselves."

Saragat, in outlining his new Socialist party's program before an organizational congress yesterday, declared that Government coalitions uniting Socialists, Communists and Christian Democrats had not worked anywhere in Europe. He said he felt that the Socialists should withdraw from the present Italian coalition, where they and the Communists share second place in number of portfolios behind Premier Alcide de Gasperi's Christian Democrats.

The Socialists hold four cabinet posts. Saragat's resignation, while not on cabinet level, might touch off a crisis when de Gasperi returns from his visit in the United States. This would depend upon how many Socialists holding important posts would follow Saragat out of the government.

Nenni Believed Unlikely To Quit

Nenni is deemed unlikely to quit the Government. Ludovico d'Aragona, Minister of Labor and Public Welfare, has taken a leading role in Saragat's movement and is expected to resign.

The two other Socialist ministers, Giuseppe Romita, Public Works, and Androlfo Morandi, Industry and Commerce, have stayed with the Socialist party's twenty-fifth national congress, now in its last day. It was believed they would withhold any action until de Gasperi's return. The Republicans, who who hold two ministries, are expected to carry out an old threat to resign at that time.

The Christian Democrats have nine ministers and Communists four.

Gasperi Cabinet Revision Is Predicted

Rome, Jan. 13 (AP)—Political observers expressed belief today that a split which developed in the Italian Socialist party over the week end would result in a reshuffling of the Cabinet when Premier Alcide de Gasperi returns from his visit to Washington.

This belief was strengthened by a statement yesterday by Communist Leader Palmiro Togliatti, who was quoted by news dispatches as saying at Prato:

"It would be better if there were not a crisis, but it is certain that on the return of the Premier there will be necessary a clarification in the program of the Government, which must devote itself more to a defense of the republic and of democracy."

New Party Planned

Formation of a new Italian Socialist party, designed to "unite workers of both the laboring and middle classes," was undertaken today by Guiseppe Saragat, president of the Constituent Assembly, who split the party Saturday over the issue of collaboration with the Communists.

Saragat said a manifesto would be issued soon on the yet unnamed party, which he maintained would adopt a "brotherly" attitude toward the Communists.

Saragat yesterday explained the reasons that had motivated his break from what he called "fifth-column infiltration" by pro-Communists of the old party.

Procedure Assailed

He assailed "communism's tendency to lead through the directives of a small group," and warned that "unless a fully Socialist spirit prevails in all the countries of Europe, there is danger of a clash between the East and West blocs."

Meanwhile, the Socialist party proper proceeded with its twenty-fifth national Socialist Congress under the guidance of Foreign Minister and Acting Premier Pietro Nenni.

Allied Building In Rome Vacated After Warning

Rome, Jan. 13 (AP)—Police tonight roped off a six-block area surrounding an Allied building, after an anonymous telephone call warned that a time-bomb had been placed in it.

The building—in the center of Rome—houses the United States Counter Inteligence Division, the British Field Security, the American naval attaché and British naval offices.

The building was evacuated.

Carmine Bottino, Italian political police chief, said it was not believed that there was anything to the call "but the precautions were being taken nonetheless."

The American CID has been cooperating with the British in trying to track down instigators of recent anti-British manifestations.

Last week leaflet-scattering bombs were exploded in six Italian cities by the Jewish underground organization, Irgun Zvai Leumi, which has claimed responsibility for the bombing of the British Embassy here last October.

VENIZELOS DEMANDS GREEK PREMIER QUIT

ATHENS, Jan. 13 (AP)—Sophocles Venizelos, a leader of the opposition to the Greek Government, demanded the resignation of Premier Constantin Tsaldaris today. In a statement issued after a conference with the Premier, he said he had told the Premier "there must be a change" to effect a coalition Government.

M. Venizelos' outspoken announcement of his demand indicated the approach of a crisis for M. Tsaldaris, who is faced with open disaffection within the ranks of his own Populist party as well as a solid front of opposition from other parties.

"I told Tsaldaris," said M. Venizelos, son of Greece's famed pioneer Republican, "why, under present conditions, there must be a governmental change. I believe, in fact, that only through an understanding with all the national forces represented in Parliament will it be possible to meet the present situation that is engendering so many dangers to the country."

Meanwhile, reports reaching here said that disruption of communications by continued guerrilla fighting in Macedonia might force a delay in the opening of Parliament, set for Jan. 16, because Macedonian members would be unable to reach the capital in time.

The Governor General of Macedonia reported that travel in that area was impeded "because of conditions" there and advised the Government against sending a plane to Salonika to bring Deputies to Athens because not all of them could even reach Salonika.

Rebels Raid Greek Town

Athens, Jan. 13 (AP)—An official announcement today said that a band of guerrillas had slain three persons and captured five Greek officers and twenty men in a surprise attack on the village of Gravia, less than 120 miles north of Athens.

The raid marked the southernmost point of attack yet credited to the guerrilla bands which have been battling Greek Government forces over a wide area in northern Greece.

The rebels burned two railway cars and two trucks, and departed just before the arrival of Government reinforcements.

POLES ADVISED ON FREE VOTE

Vice Premier Urges Following Of Convictions In Election

Warsaw, Jan. 13 (AP)—Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, in his first radio speech of the pre-election campaign, tonight urged Poles to vote Sunday and mark their ballots secretly in accord with their own convictions.

He told his listeners that free and unfettered elections had been stipulated in the Potsdam and Yalta agreements of the Big Three. He condemned pre-election violence, including both the killings of members of his opposition Polish Peasant party (PSL) and the pro-Government bloc.

Another Talk On Objectives

Mikolajczyk said before the broadcast that the Government had required him to submit his speech for censorship 24 hours in advance. He will make another address on Wednesday on objectives of his party.

He described decisions taken by the PSL executive committee to make a race in 42 out of the 52 election districts in which the party was permitted to enter candidates.

He reiterated that the committee was empowered to change its decision and apply a boycott of the entire election at the last minute if continuing acts of terrorism, suppression and coercion against PSL members and candidates preclude all possibility of the voters' expressing their true sentiments.

Police Disperse Students

He cited provisions of the constitution's election laws intended to guarantee free and secret balloting and urged his supporters to exercise fully their franchise except in the ten districts where the PSL has no candidates.

Headquarters of the PSL party reported that six party members were slain near Warsaw, and that in the capital government bloc adherents ripped down PSL posters and signs. They said security police dispersed students distributing PSL leaflets.

[Victor Cavendish Bentinck, the British Ambassador to Poland, arrived in London today from Warsaw. He had been summoned home for a week's consultations on the Polish elections. Both Britain and the United States have protested the pro-Communist Government's methods against the opposition in the election.]

Vice-Premier in Moscow

MOSCOW, Jan. 13 (AP).—Zygmunt Modzelewski, Polish Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs, arrived here yesterday from Warsaw. Polish sources said he would confer with Soviet officials. Modzelewski said he did not plan to remain here long.

British Ask For Talks With Soviets On Polana

Moscow, Jan. 13 (AP)—The British Embassy has asked for an appointment with the Soviet Foreign Office for presentation of Britain's latest views on the Polish elections, it was announced today.

Observers here predict that the British are likely to receive the same answer as that given to United States representatives when the latter approached the Soviets on the issue of the Polish elections—that the U.S.S.R. knows of no irregularities beyond those of what it describes as "rightist terrorists."

The Russian view has been consistently that the Polish Government, so far as it knows, has been carrying out the decisions of the Yalta Big Three Conference, despite considerable interference.

Dnieper Dam Tests a Success

MOSCOW, Jan. 13 (AP)—The Tass News Agency reported today that tests conducted at the newly reconstructed Dnieper Dam had proved successful and that electric power soon would be flowing from the great hydro-electric power station there for the first time since the war. The dam and power station was partially destroyed by the Russians before its capture by the Germans, who further damaged the plant before they retreated.

Conferences Held On Haifa Blast

Jerusalem, Jan. 13 (AP)—Jewish and Arab leaders talked separately today with Sir Henry Gurney, Palestine Government administrator, about the blasting of the Haifa police station, which killed four men and injured about 150.

The 95,000 residents of the seaport were placed under virtual house arrest by a British curfew.

Jamal Husseini, deputy chairman of the Arab Executive, said he talked to Gurney about the explosion and informed him of the Arab choice of delegates to the London Palestine Conference. He was believed to have lodged a strong protest because of two of the dead were Arabs.

David Ben-Gurion, chairman of the Jewish Agency Executive, conferred with Gurney at the Briton's request, but said that, "by agreement with Sir Henry, nothing can be said about our conversation."

The casualty list showed two British policemen and two Arab temporary constables dead; sixty-two policemen—British, Arab and Jewish—hurt, one Briton severely; forty-eight civilians in hospital; thirty-two hurt sufficiently to require medical aid; and many more cut, bruised or shocked.

Tonight the police detained ten Jews for further questioning, a Government announcement said. A total of 872 had been interrogated during the day, it was added.

The blast—set off at 5:10 P. M. in an automobile load of explosives planted outside the station—shook the whole of Palestine's main seaport, sent splinters of glass flying for as much as a mile, disrupted traffic and the telephone service and started fires that raged for half an hour in the next-door post office and other nearby buildings. The Government said that the six-story police headquarters, at the foot of Mount Carmel and about 100 yards from the harbor entrance in a Jewish-Arab neighborhood, was virtually leveled.

Officials reported that three men, one in police uniform and the others in raincoats, drove the bomb-car, labeled "Police," up to the building and fled into a nearby tangle of streets and alleys. Guards fired after them and, noting a blazing fuse in the automobile, gave the alarm to clear the station. About fifteen policemen got out before the blast came three minutes later.

Arab Hints at Reprisal.

Debris blocked the water-front parkway and glass littered the streets for blocks after the explosion. Immediately guards on public buildings were doubled, Bren gun carriers took up strategic posts and roadblocks were established by the British First Infantry to cut off the neighborhood of the explosion. At 11 P. M. the curfew was imposed.

An hour after the blast, the secret radio of Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground group broadcast a denial of rumors current all week that the underground had declared a truce on violence to await the outcome of negotiations for an independent Jewish State in Palestine.

An Arab leader declared: "While we are trying to solve this age-old problem as statesmen . . . these Jews resort to gangsterism." He hinted at reprisals.

10 JEWS FACE BRITISH PROBE

Arabs Demand Stern Action To Wipe Out Violence

Jerusalem, Jan. 13 (AP)—Ten Jews were seized for questioning today as British troops combed the alleyways of Haifa for three men who blew up the Haifa police station last night, causing four deaths and injuries to approximately 150.

The search was terminated this afternoon after 872 persons had been screened, A communiqué said that residents of the half-Arab half-Jewish port city were "generally co-operative" during the search.

Stern Measures Demanded

Arab officials, meanwhile, demanded that Britain take stern measures to wipe out violence in the Holy Land, and said that the present British attitude encouraged terrorism.

Dr. Hussein El Khalidi, secretary of the Arab Executive for Palestine, said the "leniency and patience with which the Government is dealing with Jewish terrorism is instrumental to its continuation."

"The Arab people demand radical and speedy measures to stamp out terrorists," he said, adding that the measures should be at least as severe as those "in which the Government dealt with Arabs during the 1936-39 troubles."

Division Transfer Reported

H. G. L. Gurney, chief secretary for Palestine, conferred during the day with Jamal Husseini, deputy chairman of the Arab Executive, and David Ben-Gurion, chairman of the Jewish Executive. They declined to disclose details of the talks, except to say that the Haifa bombing was discussed.

[An Associated Press dispatch from Cairo quoted military sources there as saying that the British 3d Division was being transferred to the troubled Holy Land, and that General Sir Evelyn Barker, commander of Palestine forces, was conferring in Cairo with General Sir Miles Dempsey, commander in chief of British Middle Eastern land forces.]

Troops Arrive From Egypt.

Cairo, Jan. 13 (A. P.).—British military spokesmen said today that the British Third Division is now being transferred from Egypt to Palestine and that one brigade has already arrived in the Holy Land.

Lieut.-Gen. Sir Evelyn Barker, commander of the British forces in Palestine, is now here conferring with Gen. Sir Miles Dempsey, British Middle East commander—presumably on the Palestine security situation.

TROOPS GUARD SHAH'S PALACE

Keep Holiday Crowds Away From Sit-down Scene.

Tehran, Jan. 13 (A. P.).—Troops armed with bayoneted rifles blocked all streets leading to the Royal Palace today after 200-odd Opposition demonstrators had slept on the sidewalks outside the historic marble structure and their leaders had passed the night as the Shah's guests. One Opposition leader, Hassan Zaeem, Independent candidate for Parliament in the elections now under way, said that the demonstrators were petitioning the Shah to 'halt the election farce and give the people a chance to name their own leaders."

Accusing Premier Ahmed Qavam and Qavam's new Democratic party of intimidating Opposition supporters, permitting multiple voting among his own followers and falsifying records, Zaeem went on to say that six leaders of the parties under the banner of Dr. Mohammed Mossadegh's Independent Coalition "took refuge" in the palace yesterday, and planned to remain there "until the Shah acts upon their demand for free elections." Zaeem said that the group included himself and Mossadegh'; Hassan Emami, Tehran spiritual leader; Dr. Matin Daftari, former Premier and president of Tehran University; and Sardegh Tabattabaie, president of the Fourteenth Parliament. They conferred with the Shah and were assigned palace quarters and given food last night, he added, while outside their supporters strung up tent flaps and slept on the pavement after a meal of bread, cheese and tea.

Sit-down Right Involved.

The Persian tradition of "royal refuge" enables any citizen to take refuge in the palace and to "sit down" there until the Shah hears his grievance.

Unarmed Imperial Guardsmen, more than six feet tall, stood three deep to form a human wall across the street from the demonstrators, thus hiding them from curious passersby.

The closing of a square-mile area around the palace by armed troops was aimed, apparently, at preventing holiday crowds from swelling the demonstrators' ranks. Today is a day of mourning for an ancient religious martyr.

The polls remained open for a third day, meanwhile, but apparently few were voting. A visit to six boxes disclosed only two persons casting ballots. The supervisor of one downtown election board said that only 131 persons had voted at his box.

Nine coalition candidates led by Mossadegh paraded one by one in front of the palace yesterday. Their sympathizers, mostly university students, assembled outside the palace, and others toured the city to seek public backing.

Sitdown In Iran Protests Voting

Tehran, Iran, Jan. 13 (AP)—Government troops cordoned off a square-mile area around the Shah's palace today, apparently to prevent any increase in the ranks of some 200 to 300 opposition demonstrators staging a Persian-style sitdown in protest against current national elections.

Troops armed with bayonets blocked streets leading to the marble palace, and unarmed imperial guardsmen more than 6 feet tall stood three deep in front of the demonstrators to hide them from passersby.

Sleep On Sidewalks

The sitdowners strung up tents in front of the palace and slept on the sidewalks.

Six opposing leaders, also protesting against the elections, were reported to have "taken refuge" within the palace and to be planningto stay there until the Shah took action on their demands. They were said to have been fed and assigned quarters.

Under Persian tradition, citizens may take refuge in the palace until "the King hears their petition."

Premier Gavam Accused

Hassan Zaeem, opposition leader and an independent candidate for Parliament in the elections, said the demonstrators were petitioning Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, the Shah, to "halt the election farce and give the people a chance to name their own leaders."

Zaeem accused Premier Ahmed Qavam and his "new democratic" party with permitting multiple voting among their followers, falsifying records and intimidating members of the opposition.

Meanwhile, the polls in Tehran remained open for the third day, but apparently few persons were voting. The polling places are slated to remain open daily until Friday.

Chiang Analyzes Marshall's Ideas

Nanking, Jan. 13 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek told high Government and Kuomintang (Government party) officials today that General Marshall's recent statement on China was "filled with constructive criticisms" but should be read only in conjunction with President Truman's China policy statement of December 18.

Chiang spoke at a memorial service for Dr. Sun Yat-sen, from which correspondents were excluded.

Chiang Quoted By Paper

[On the same theme, the New York Times said that Chiang told a group of foreign correspondents yesterday, "President Truman's statements made two important points; one, that the Communist attack on Changchun was the climax of the war; and two, that negotiations were broken off by the Communists. If the two statements are read together, one will be able to obtain a complete idea. General Marshall's statement alone seems to leave something missing."

[Marshall criticized both Communist and reactionary extremists and praised the powerless Chinese liberals.

[The Times' dispatch went on to quote Chiang as attributing the whole breakdown in peace negotiations to the Communists but pledging that in the forthcoming reorganization of the Government, the quota representations agreed upon a year ago would be honored.

Improved Economy Seen

[This would give the Communists considerable representation in the Government if they chose to take it, an angle which Chiang clarified still further by adding that "all who are sincere and patriotic will be welcome to join."]

A high source said that at the memorial service Chiang recommended "we should reflect upon the evil conditions General Marshall mentioned—if they exist, we must correct them."

He predicted improvement of China's general economy and lagging rehabilitation program with financial aid from the United States and praised the recently adopted constitution which becomes effective next December 25.

Chiang Sees Marshall Helping 'Whole World'

New York, Jan. 13 (AP) — The New York Times said today in a dispatch from Nanking that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek told a group of foreign correspondents yesterday General Marshall's appointment as United States Secretary of State "will be of benefit to the whole world."

The Generalissimo was quoted as saying the recent Marshall report on China was "friendly and constructive," but should be taken as supplementary to President Truman's policy on China.

"President Truman's statement made two important points: One, that the Communist attack on Changchun was the climax of the war; and two, that negotiations were broken off by the Communists. If the two statements are read together, one will be able to obtain a complete idea. General Marshall's statement alone seems to leave something missing."

Dismissals Sought In Trial Of Japs

Tokyo, Jan. 13 (AP)—Defense attorneys said today they would seek outright dismissal of war crimes charges against former Premier Hideki Tojo and 25 others, primarily on grounds that Japan's preparations for war were justified by the breakdown of the world's collective security after 1939.

The prosecution is expected to end its presentation this week.

Defense attorneys, outlining to newsmen the main points of their proposed motion for dismissal, said they would plead that Japan was justified in striking first at Pearl Harbor and Singapore because America, Britain, China and the Netherlands had conspired to restrict Japan's economic, political and military strength in the Pacific and Asia

Atrocities Data Read

The prosecution, hurrying through the final phase on atrocities, read excerpts from testimony at the recent Guam hearings on Japanese cannibalism in the Bonin Islands, the execution of nine of Brig. Gen. Evans Carlson's Marine Raiders at Kwajalein and attacks on United States and Dutch hospital ships.

One document alleged that a Japanese suicide pilot, who was killed crashing a ship, was found to be carrying a list of United States vessels in the area, with two hospital ships listed as possible targets.

Jap Cabinet Shakeup Is Held Likely

Tokyo, Jan. 13 (AP)—Prospects of a Cabinet shakeup this week increased today as political activity intensified, but indications were that the Conservatives would retain their firm control in the Government.

Several political leaders and most newspapers predicted Premier Shigeru Yoshida and his Cabinet might resign within a few days but probably merely as a preliminary move for Yoshida's return to power with an altered Cabinet.

Whether the new Cabinet will be a coalition to include representatives of the Social Democratic party—now the Government's main opposition—probably will be determined tomorrow during a policy meeting of the Socialists' central executive committee.

The party's leftwingers oppose any co-operation short of gaining the premiership. Some Socialist rightwingers are believed willing to join a coalition, but not at the risk of a party split.

Japs Return Flag To Dutch Corps

Tokyo, Jan. 13 (AP)—Colors of the Netherlands East Indies Army which were seized from a surrendered Dutch cavalry unit on the Java coast in March, 1942, and brought to Japan were returned today to Lieut. Gen. Wybrandus Schilling, chief of the Netherlands Military Mission in Japan.

The presentation was made by the Allied headquarters civil property custodian, to whom the orange flag had been turned over voluntarily by the Japanese Government.

It will be returned to the regiment in Java.

G. O. P. SUPPORT PROMISED FOR GEN. MARSHALL

New Secretary to Assume Post With Assurances From Vandenberg.

TO TAKE OFFICE THIS WEEK

Republicans' Views on China Believed Likely to Find Marshall in Accord.

Washington, Jan. 13 (A. P.)—Gen. George C. Marshall becomes Secretary of State this week with assurances from Senator Vandenberg of Republican support on major diplomatic issues expected to arise during the months ahead.

Charles G. Ross, presidential press secretary, said today that the time when Marshall will be sworn in is yet indefinite, but that the ceremony will be at the White House. The time will be decided after the General reaches Washington.

Marshall, resting after thirteen months of arduous diplomatic work in China, remained in Honolulu over the week end and the exact time of his arrival is not known.

Meanwhile, the pattern of his future tasks and something of the extent of the Republican support he can expect in striving for their acomplishment were made clear in speeches by Byrnes and Vandenberg, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Vandenberg, addressing the Cleveland Council on World Affairs on Saturday night, spoke out for:

1. Congressional appropriations to carry on an American relief program in war-wrecked countries,

2. Rehabilitation loans for countries which need them, and

3. Continuance of tariff-reducing reciprocal trade agreements in some form.

Shift in China Policy.

Beyond these points, all of which seem likely to arouse some controversy in Congress, the Michigan Senator also urged a policy shift in China, saying that the United States now should support the coalition of non-communist parties backing China's new constitution.

This evidently would mean abandoning the policy which Marshall followed during his stay in China—a policy of equality between the Communists and the Nationalist Kuomintang, which to date has run the Government.

Moreover, in an apparent break with prevailing State Department policy, Vandenberg also demanded that the long delayed Pan-American conference on hemispheric defense be held soon at Rio de Janeiro.

Vandenberg spoke on the same program as Byrnes, but while he devoted himself to specific issues, the retiring Secretary directed his discussion more to broad questions of world peace and American aims.

Byrnes declared himself more confident than ever before that the United States "can achieve a just peace by co-operative effort" with other nations provided it will remain firm in upholding the right.

Much of Byrnes's speech was given over to a plea for the maintenance of military forces adequate to carry out American occupation policies in Germany and Japan, uphold American prestige in dealings with other nations and discharge American obligations within the United Nations.

For Strong Foreign Policy.

Byrnes declared pointedly that "force does not make right, but we must realize that in this imperfect world power as well as reason does affect international decisions."

Both Byrnes and Vandenberg emphasized the need as they saw it for continuing and strengthening the development of a foreign policy which will have the support of both major parties.

Vandenberg, however, declared that bi-partisanship does not mean an end to discussion and even vehement controversy on foreign policy questions inside the country.

It was perhaps against the background of this assertion that Vandenberg stated more forcefully than he has ever done in the months of his work with Byrnes on the United Nations and European peace settlements his views on Pan-American and China policies.

Diplomatic authorities noted, however, that Vandenberg's recommendation of American backing for the constitutional parties in China may not necessarily conflict with what Marshall wants to do there.

When the General was treating the Communists and the Nationalists on a basis of equality, China did not have a constitution. And it is no secret that Marshall was considerably disappointed at the failure of the Communists to join in the final drafting of the document under which the Chinese Government is now to be reorganized and broadened.

Hence, if the Communists persist in their refusal to accept the new constitution, Marshall himself, some informants say, may favor throwing American support to the other group.

Latin American Problems.

The Vandenberg call for an early conference on Latin American defense problems at Rio conflicts with established State Department policy.

Byrnes apparently had that in mind when he took occasion in his own speech to explain that in his view the real question is one of Argentina's readiness to participate in such a meeting. He reported that Ambassador George Messersmith had advised him that the Peron Government has not lived up to its international commitments to rid Argentina of Nazis.

But the situation may be more complicated than Byrnes pictured it.

Messersmith has been at odds with Assistant Secretary of State Spruille Braden—as have some Latin American experts in the War Department—over Braden's handling of Argentine relations.

Messersmith has been in Washington since before Christmas and now that Byrnes is leaving the State Department there is considerable speculation here as to whether Bradon will stay on and if he does, Marshall will continue Byrnes's firm support of Braden's policies.

TRUMAN, MARSHALL CONFER BY TELEPHONE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—President Truman talked by telephone with Gen. George C. Marshall, who is in Hawaii, today but they made no decision as to when General Marshall would take office as Secretary of State.

The general is enjoying a vacation before coming here to report on his mission as special Ambassador to China and take over the top Cabinet job from James F. Byrnes.

Charles G. Ross, Presidential secretary, said Mr. Truman called General Marshall and talked with him for about four minutes. He said they had "a very pleasant chat" and added:

"The time of General Marshall's arrival is still undetermined and will be announced later after the President talks to him again."

Mr. Ross earlier had announced that the ceremony of swearing in General Marshall would be at the White House.

Meanwhile, Secretary Byrnes said a formal goodby today to the nearly three-score Foreign Ambassadors and Ministers. In gay spirits, Mr. Byrnes shook hands and chatted informally with the diplomats at a reception at Blair House, the Government's residence for visiting foreign dignitaries. They expressed regret that he was quitting the State Department.

BYRNES SAYS GOOD-BY

Washington, Jan. 13 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Byrnes, soon to step out of his Cabinet post, said a formal good-by today to the nearly three score Foreign Ambassadors and Ministers.

In gay spirits, Byrnes shook hands and chatted informally with the diplomats at a reception at Blair House, the Government's residence for visiting foreign dignataries. They expressed regret that he was quitting the State Department.

Byrnes, talking to reporters, said he believed the State Department during his regime had been alert to public opinion. He said he had always followed the policy of seeing that news of developments was made available as it happened.

Argentine Foreign Minister Says Byrnes Is Intolerant

Buenos Aires, Jan. 13 (AP)—Juan A. Bramuglia, Argentine Foreign Minister, attacked James F. Byrnes by name tonight declaring that the speech by the retiring United States Secretary of State in Cleveland last Saturday was "unjust and intolerant."

In a written statement Bramuglia emphasized that he was referring to Byrnes as a "citizen of the United States" and not as Secretary of State. He described Byrnes's speech as a "personal reaction."

Questioned Compliance

[At Cleveland Byrnes said the United States was "eager to proceed" with the negotiation of a mutual assistance treaty for American nations at a projected conference in Rio de Janeiro but did not wish to do so without Argentina. He added that the State Department was of the opinion that Argentina had not yet complied with the commitments "which she as well as the other American republics" agreed to at the Chapultepec conference.]

Bramuglia said that Argentina had fulfilled all her commitments regarding the elimination of Nazi influences "in a most advisable manner" and cited George Messersmith, United States Ambassador, now in Washington, as a witness to this fulfillment. He highly praised both Messersmith and Vandenberg.

Cites Diplomatic Ties

Bragmulia's statement, distributed to newsmen assigned to the Foreign Ministry, declared:

"It is a pity the truth has not penetrated the mind of Byrnes. I am afraid God is not inspiring Byrnes to appreciate justice."

Bramuglia said that Byrnes's speech surprised Argentina by its "intolerence" and that, although Byrnes may have meant his statements as expression of personal opinion, he could not separate such opinions from the post of Secretary of State.

Pointing out that Argentina has diplomatic relations with most of the Allied nations in the war, Bramuglia added: "If these countries do not find any reason for complaint in Argentina's actions, we believe the constant insistence of the officials of a single government to be unjust."

Brewster Agrees To Cut Probe

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—Republicans agreed today to restrict the authority of the War Investigating Committee, but put off until Wednesday a test in the Senate of efforts to continue its life through 1947.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) said the Republican conference would discuss further tomorrow the question of extending the inquiry group and of authorizing a special Committee on Small Business to operate for eight months.

Tobey Objects

Later Senator Tobey (R., N.H.) told the Senate that special committees would "promote confusion, waste and inefficiency."

He also contended that the extension of such committees would "provide occasions for log-rolling and back-scratching, and deals, in which great prizes of new committee chairmanships and the authorization of new staffs and great power are involved."

Before Tobey took the floor, the Senate by unanimous consent put off consideration of the extension resolutions until Wednesday.

Taft's announcement came after Senator Brewster (R., Maine), chairman of the War Investigating Committee, said he had agreed at a meeting with the Armed Services Committee, headed by Senator Gurney (R., S.D.), to limit future activities of the Brewster group.

Concerned With The Past

In general, Brewster said, the committee will look into war profits, the disposal of surpluses and instances of "corruption."

He said the committee would concern itself only with what had happened in the past, leaving any inquiry into current and future military policies and operations to the Gurney group.

Brewster said that Democrats who have been protesting that continuance of special committees violates the spirit of the Congressional Reorganization Act had agreed to give the proposal "a sympathetic hearing."

AMG Probe Dispute

Gurney said that Brewster had definitely abandoned the idea of carrying out an investigation of the military government in Germany, a matter that caused a serious intra-committee row a few weeks ago.

Gurney said that if any such investigation were needed, the Armed Services Committee would make it. Undoubtedly, he added, his committee will find it necessary later to make a number of field investigations, probably in France, Germany, the Philippines, Guam and Japan.

Wherry Would Be Head

Senator Revercomb (R., W.Va.) said the Republican senators had decided informally, after studying debate preceding passage of the reorganization bill, that they were well within the new rules in proposing the special committees.

Earlier, the Republican Policy Committee, headed by Taft, had voted to support a year's extension for the War Investigating Committee and to back a resolution continuing small business inquiries for eight months. The latter would be made by a new committee, headed by Senator Wherry (R., Neb.), replacing the old group headed by Senator Murray (D., Mont.).

Taft said that the regular committees had not yet had time to gather their staffs while Brewster's committee is ready to proceed at once. It has projected an inquiry into war contracts.

Tobey, Aiken Opposed

Taft also expressed the view that any special committee, other than the war investigation group, should be authorized only for the life of the session, or eight months. Tobey and Senator Aiken (R., Vt.) said they would oppose and vote against plans of GOP leaders to extend the war investigating group beyond its January 31 expiration and to set up a new Special Small Business Committee.

Meanwhile, Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.), aided by Senators Lucas (Ill.), the Democratic whip, and Tydings (Md.), O'Mahoney (Wyo.) and Hayden (Ariz.), tried to line up the 44 Senate Democrats in solid opposition.

Board To Pass On Tariff Cuts Is GOP Plan

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—A Republican proposal to create a Foreign Trade Board, with power to veto State Department decisions on tariff cutting, developed today from Senator Vandenberg's restatement of GOP international policy.

The Michigan Senator told a Cleveland audience Saturday night in his first speech since becoming chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee that he believed Congress would "continue the device of reciprocal trade agreements, in one form or another."

Translating this into action, Senator Brewster (R., Maine), said he and Vandenberg might join this week in introducing legislation to establish a six-member board that could reject State Department proposals to whittle tariffs under the reciprocal program.

Opposition By Wherry

This program has been under sharp attack by some Republican leaders. Senator Wherry, of Nebraska, the GOP whip, has insisted that no reductions in tariffs should be made until Congress itself passes on individual rates.

Any successful move in this direction by Wherry and others of like viewpoint would run counter to the general authority Congress has given the State Department to make tariff cuts to nations that give the same favors to this country. As it now stands, Congress cannot question the State Department's decision except by passing new legislation.

For this reason, the Brewster-Vandenberg proposal was regarded as a possible compromise by which Congress could continue to delegate the tariff-making powers without giving up all its controls over this important phase of international trade.

No Original Power

As Brewster outlined the proposal, it would involve setting up a board of six experts, two each representing agriculture, industry and organized labor. Interested parties could appeal to the board when they felt a State Department decision was unfair to them. The board would have no original power, however, to fix tariffs.

"I think a board of this kind would give us an expert balance on foreign-trade questions which we do not now have," Brewster said. "The State Department's principal objective appears to be to develop good will among other nations and sometimes, I believe, they lose sight of prime American interests in pursuing this objective."

The trade-program portion of Vandenberg's address attracted most Republican attention, although there was general agreement among his party colleagues with the broad objectives he laid down on other international questions.

BARKLEY FOR TRADE PACTS

Senator Says They Are Only Way for Nations to Deal

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—Reciprocal trade agreements, Senator Alben W. Barkley said today, are the only satisfactory way for nations to do business.

The Kentucky Democrat made this statement to a special committee for reciprocity information which began hearings today. The data it gathers will be turned over to President Truman, who will use it as a guide in drawing up trade agreements with eighteen countries.

Mr. Barkley told the committee he is a strong backer of reciprocal trade treaties, the system by which nations work out their tariffs after making concessions to each other.

He added that he never has liked the old-fashioned tariff system, under which each nation set up its own tariffs without paying any heed to other nations.

He said he believed Republicans think as he does, and he quoted, with approval, parts of Senator Vandenberg's Cleveland speech of Saturday.

BUSINESS GROUP SUGGESTS 20 P.C. INCOME TAX CUT

The Commerce Department Advisory Board Urges Labor Law Revision.

PUTS PUBLIC INTEREST FIRST

Eleven-point Plan for Labor-Management Relations Goes to Harriman.

Washington, Jan. 13 (A. P.).—The small business advisory committee of the Department of Commerce called today for a flat 20 per cent cut in individual income taxes and for new labor laws based on the premise that "the public interest must be paramount."

The report of the committee—composed of eighteen business men from all sections of the country—was released without comment by Secretary of Commerce Harriman.

President Truman in successive messages to Congress last week pleaded against quick tax cutting.

But Representative Knutson (R.-Minn.), chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, has announced his intention to press for a 20 per cent slash in the tax bills of all persons with incomes up to $300,000 and a 10.5 per cent cut above that amount.

Guiding Principles Listed.

On labor-management relations the advisory committee urged Harriman to "propose to the Congress the following principles to help guide them in establishing appropriate legislation:

"1. The public interest must be paramount in any labor-management relations.

"2. Practices of any sort by employers, employees, or government which limit, retard or prevent production should be eliminated.

"3. Employees must have complete freedom to bargain within the law, either collectively or individually.

"4. Secondary boycotts, jurisdictional strikes, violence and other such unjustifiable practices must be eliminated.

"5. Efficient production must be encouraged by recognition of individual merit and productivity.

"6. Management should give a good day's pay for a good day's work; give reasonable working hours and favorable working conditions.

"7. Management should be encouraged to plan business activities looking toward stability of employment.

"8. There must be equal responsibility for the fulfillment of labor contracts where they exist.

"9. Labor laws must be administered alike in fairness and equality to employee and employer.

"10. There must be equality before the law for both employees and employer.

"11. Laws for the preservation of order and the security of persons and property must be strengthened and enforced; without law and order civilized society cannot exist."

Besides the income tax cut, the advisory committee urged:

A. Exemption of income from corporate dividends from the basic individual income tax rate as soon as practicable so as to eliminate double taxation.

B. Taxation of co-operatives and other non-profit organizations operating in some markets as private business on the same basis as private business.

Members of the committee include Flint Garrison and Henry B. Sell of New York.

War Veterans Meet in House, Disclaim 'Bloc'

125 Attend First Session; Group to Play Helpful but Not 'Pressure' Role

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP).—

War veterans of the House held their first organizational meeting today as "Veterans of the Eightieth Congress" and elected officers. There were 125 members present of the 193 eligible.

Representative Francis E. Walter, Democrat, of Pennsylvania, was elected chairman of the group, which is non-partisan. Representative Donald J. Jackson, Republican, of California, was named secretary and Representative James E. Van Zandt, Republican, of Pennsylvania, treasurer.

Well aware that their number comprises the most potentially powerful group in Congress, members insisted they would not act as a bloc in voting on veterans' legislation, although the new chairman revealed that the group would see to it that legislative agencies dealing with veterans' affairs function "without the usual difficulty." Mr. Walter asserted that "we are not going to do anything that will open the door to charges that this is a pressure group."

Representative J. K. Javits, Republican, of New York, who was present at the meeting held in the House chamber, said the group did not discuss any specific veterans' legislation at today's meeting. He described the new organization as "a piece of machinery that has usefulness and is available."

A five-member policy committee was formed to set regular meeting dates and report on other procedural matters. Members are: Representatives John W. Gwynne, Republican, of Iowa, chairman; Joseph P. O'Hara, Republican, of Minnesota; Raymond S. Springer, Republican, of Indiana; John A. Blatnik, Democrat, of Minnesota; and John E. Rankin, Democrat, of Mississippi. Mr. Rankin formerly was chairman of the powerful Veterans' Committee, now headed by Edith Nourse Rogers, Republican, of Massachusetts.

Meanwhile, veterans' legislation continued to pour into the House hopper, with Representative Edward H. Rees, Republican, of Kansas, introducing a bill to protect veterans in case an economy-minded Congress slashes Federal pay rolls. His bill would establish a priority system favoring veterans in cases of widespread discharges of government personnel.

Also discussed in the House today was an appeal for removal of ceilings on veterans' payments in school or in training for jobs. Republican, of Kansas, charged Republican, of Kansas, charged that present ceilings were the result of "hastily-enacted, ill-advised legislation." The present wage and allowance limits are $175 monthly for single veterans and $200 for those who are married.

Representative Arthur G. Klein, Democrat, of New York, served notice that he would offer an amendment to the G. I. Bill of Rights to deny funds to schools which discriminate against students because of race or creed. Mr. Rankin in reply, charged that Mr. Klein is "trying to disturb every school system in the United States."

ASKS NEW RENT CONTROL PLAN

Wolcott Supports Modified Curbs After July 1.

Washington, Jan. 13 (A. P.).—Representative Wolcott (R.-Mich.), chairman of the House Banking Committee, said today that "present indications" are that rent controls should be kept in force after July 1, but with amendments to erase "inequalities."

The influential Republican's position coincided with President Truman's plea to Congress last week, but collided head-on with a drive in the Senate—of as yet undetermined force—to junk the whole control program.

Wolcott said that the Banking Committee, which has jurisdiction over housing legislation, will make a thorough study of rents, "and of course our action will depend on what we find."

Calls for Realism.

"But," he said, "there is such a critical shortage of houses that it does not seem now that the emergency can be cured by July 1. We have got to be realistic. I can see where there would be a lot of trouble if there were no controls."

Wolcott emphasized, however, that he believes the rent control law must be amended to relieve the hardships he said some landlords are suffering under the present program.

"The idea of a 15 per cent across-the-board boost in rents, as some people are proposing, doesn't appeal to me so strongly," the Michigan lawmaker said.

"I have been thinking that we may be able to find a formula that would require rents to be set so as to reflect a reasonable profit to the property owners, after all increased costs of maintaining rental properties has been considered.

"We can decide on the best means of dealing with the problem when we have made a complete study."

O'Daniel for Decontrol.

Mr. Truman embodied in his economic report to Congress last Wednesday a recommendation for holding fast to rent controls. But Democratic Senator O'Daniel of Texas promptly offered legislation to end the whole rent program February 1 instead of letting it run to June 30 or beyond.

Republican Senators Wherry (Neb.), Moore (Okla.) and Bushfield (S. D.) backed O'Daniel's proposal. However, some others said controls should stay, but that landlords should be allowed rent increases up to 15 per cent.

Chairman Tobey (R.-N. H.) of the Senate Banking Committee, which will study the rent situation for the Senate, reserved judgment until hearings are held.

WOULD CANCEL UNSPENT FUNDS

Taber Asks for Report on Unused Outlays.

Washington, Jan. 13 (A. P.).—Rep. Taber (R.-N. Y.), chairman of the of the House Appropriations Committee, said today that some unspent appropriations voted last session may be cancelled before there is action on any new spending authorizations. To this end the committee asked the Budget Bureau for a full report of the status as of January 6 of all funds appropriated but not yet spent.

"I don't know how much money already appropriated for the fiscal year ending next June 30 has actually been spent," Taber told newspaper men, "but undoubtedly, with the fiscal year only half gone, a considerable amount can be recovered."

Committee attaches said they had heard unofficially that of the $37,500,000,000 in President Truman's spending budget for the fiscal year starting July 1, approximately $5,500,000,000 represents money already appropriated or authorized. That would leave $32,000,000,000 in new appropriations to be voted by Congress if the President's recommendations are followed.

Taber said he believes the $32,000,000,000 could be shaved down to $29,140,000,000, representing a reduction of almost $3,000,000,000 in new appropriations. He said a thorough appraisal of the President's program is difficult because many of the tables submitted by Mr. Truman "are highly confusing" and "it takes a long time to get at the truth."

Some analysis of the budget, he said, have added to "the confusion" by failing to differentiate between proposed spending and proposed appropriations. He said he had never promised to cut new appropriations by $8,000,000,000 but had insisted that they be held to $29,140,000,000.

"What I said," he explained, "was that if the President proposed new appropriations of $37,500,000,000, I would fight to held them down to $29,140,000,000. However, the President didn't propose that much, although some people have that impression because of the total figure in his budget message."

SAYS RUSSIA SEEKS BOMB

Former Sovet Employe Tells Of "Feverish" Research

New York, Jan. 13 (AP)—Kiril M. Alexeiev, who described himself as a former attaché at the Russian Embassy in Mexico, said today he thought the Soviet Union did not have an atomic bomb, "but they are working feverishly to perfect one."

"They are doing big research work on this," he said at a news conference.

Alexeiev said in a statement released December 30 through his attorney, Martin Richmond, that he considered it his duty to state publicly that I am opposed to the Soviet regime."

Asked For As Criminal

"I cannot return to my homeland and doom my family, which has become accustomed to breathe the fresh air of freedom, to life under the heel of dictatorship," the statement said.

The Soviet Embassy later said Alexeiev had gone to Mexico City with a trade mission, and asked the State Department to hand him over "as a criminal." The Embassy accused him of embezzlement, treachery, treason, provocation, slander and failing to go home when he was supposed to.

Speaking through an interpreter, Alexeiev said at the news conference that the N.K.V.D., Russian secret police agency, was worldwide in its activities and that "everyone fears the N.K.V.D., no matter where he is."

In United States, He Says

Asked if the agency was active in the United States, he replied.

"Sure they are."

He declared the Communist movement in this country was "definitely" a menace.

Alexeiev was accompanied by his wife and two children but no photographs were permitted. His attorney declined to allow questions as to how the family entered this country after Alexeiev finished his work in Mexico last September.

The attorney said the family was living here "on private funds." He added that "whenever anyone has left the Soviet service to escape the political repression and to seek the freedom of Democratic countries, he has been termed an embezzler."

Weather Delays 'Drone's' Return

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—A Flying Fortress operated by remote control took off from Elgin Field, Florida, today, dropped a dummy bomb in the ocean off Virginia and landed here in a demonstration designed to show the feasibility of conducting an air raid without risking flyers' lives.

Plans called for the "drone" ship and an accompanying B-17, from which it was electrically controlled, to return to Florida without a stop. Bad weather on the return flight, however, forced the planes to land here. The return to Florida is scheduled tomorrow.

KENNEY CALLS FOR MERGER

Air General Says Situation Now Invites Disaster

Miami, Fla., Jan. 13 (AP)—Gen. George C. Kenney, commanding general of the Army Air Forces Strategic Air Command, speaking for a single department of national defense, declared tonight that "from the viewpoint of national security, the present situation is not only dangerous but invites disaster."

Kenney, speaking before the Century Club, declared that the "storm warnings are still flying. We must not ignore them."

Called "Triphibious" War

The four-star general pointed to the mistakes which America made prior to Pearl Harbor and asserted that World War II was a "triphibious war of land, sea and air battles in which teamwork between our three great arms became a necessity and unit of command was essential.."

Pointing to the development of long-range bombers and the possibility of destruction without warning, he said:

"Those old friends of ours, the Atlantic and Pacific, are not much help to us now, for the short route fo rthe hostile bombing airplane coming from the European-Asiatic land mass is over the North Polar basin.

Three Fourths Of People

"That is where the attack will come from if some future Hitler tries to gain world dominion, for on that land mas slive three fourths of the people of the world and when you fight a war you fight it with people.

"Assume that some future aggressor will take full advantage of secret preparation and the element of surprise. It does not take much imagination to see an avalanche of devastation launched across the polar basin to take out our centers of industry and population at a single blow."

Cities May Be Ba[illegible]lds

New York, Jan. 13 (AP)—Asserting that the first battlefields of the next war may well be America's industrial cities, Gen. Ira C. Eaker, deputy commander of the Army Air Forces, said tonight there were indications highly organized minorities are placing "personal interest and selfish welfare" above the national interest.

General Eaker, speaking before the thirty-sixth annual convention of the National Retial Dry Goods Association, outlined what he termed "a plan for national security," calling for:

A State Department which would entice the "best brains we can produce in this country."

A central intelligence agency to study world developments.

Armed forces "ready to move on a moment's notice."

A continued weapons-modernization system.

Japan Trained Suicide Divers To Bar Invasion

Navy Reveals Troops Were to Ram Ships With Mines From Undersea 'Foxholes'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP).—Fantastic details of the Japanese plan to use underwater suicide troops—some operating from submerged "foxholes"—in a desperate bid to stem the expected American invasion were disclosed today.

The Navy made public a report by Captain C. G. Grime, chief of a technical commission which spent months studying the Japanese Navy Ministry's idea for its own counterpart to the Kamikaze pilots who flew their bomb-laden planes into targets at sea.

Captain Grime said the Navy Ministry hoped to have 6,000 men ready for combat with self-contained diving suits and special attack mines by Oct. 15, 1945. War's end in August, however, found only about 1,200 men trained, 1,000 suits finished and none of the mines completely assembled.

In defending a sloping beach, the Japanese planned to anchor well out from shore, in water thirty-two to fifty feet deep, a row of mines that could be operated by trip ropes from some distance.

These mines were to be laid by the underwater attack units, the Fukuryū, and operated by them when the time came.

Closer to shore were to be three rows of the underwater guerrillas armed with suicide mines. The rows were to be staggered so there would be a man every sixty-five feet.

The suicide mine was a charge of about twenty-two pounds of explosive mounted on a stick equipped with a contact fuse. Its use was simple. The diver rammed the front end against the side or bottom of the ship. He was destroyed, of course.

The 'self-containing diving suit was equipped with two tanks, each containing about 3.7 quarts of compressed oxygen. A liquid food also was developed, to be used by the divers by means of a rubber tube.

It was reported that after a short training period a man easily could maintain any desired depth down to fifty feet, move along the bottom at 1.2 miles an hour and readily manage torpedoes and mines.

By the end of the war the troops were able to stay down more than eight hours.

M'CLOY SHUNS BANK OFFER

World Institution Presidency Is Said to Have Been Rejected

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—John J. McCloy, a New York lawyer and former Assistant Secretary of War, was reported by usually reliable sources today to have turned down an offer of the presidency of the forty-nation World Bank.

The $30,000-a-year post, which is tax free, has been vacant since Eugene Meyer, owner of The Washington Post, resigned Dec. 4, exactly six months after being named the first president of the $8,000,000,000 bank.

Others reported earlier to have rejected offers of the post were W. Averell Harriman, Secretary of Commerce; Graham F. Towers, Governor of the Bank of Canada; and Allan Sproul, head of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

Limitations on the power of the president, compared with those of the executive director of the institution, were reported to be a major difficulty in getting an acceptable choice to take the job.

CURLEY LOSES APPEAL FROM FRAUD COUNT

Bostonian And Associates Immediately Ask For A Rehearing

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—James M. Curley, colorful Boston politician, and two associates today lost an appeal from mail-fraud convictions growing out of war-contract deals. The United States Court of Appeals ruled against them in a 2-to-1 decision.

Curley's attorneys immediately declared they will ask a rehearing, automatically staying the sentence of six to eighteen months in jail and $1,000 fine. Curley, former congressman, governor, and several times Mayor of Boston, said at his home an appeal will be taken to the Supreme Court if necessary.

Judge Miller Dissents

Justices Henry W. Edgerton and E. Barrett Prettyman said they found no doubt of Curley's guilt but that even if they saw any doubt they would not be justified in overturning the jury's verdict. They upheld the lower court's refusal to direct an acquittal, which was the principal point attacked in the appeal.

Justice Wilbur K. Miller dissented. He wrote that the jury's verdict as to Curley "is not supported by that degree of proof which I deem essential to a finding of guilty knowledge and criminal intent."

Curley, 72-year-old veteran of more than half a century in politics, was sentenced in Federal Court here last February 18 after lengthy trial for his alleged activities as president of Engineers Group, Inc.

$60,000 Income Cited

The Government argued that the concern realized about $60,000 by falsely representing that it could get war contracts for clients.

Sentenced with Curley were Donald Wakefield Smith, of Pittsburgh, a former member of the National Labor Relations Board, and James G. Fuller. Smith received a four-to-twelve months' sentence and $1,000 fine, as treasurer of Engineers Group and Fuller a sixteen-months-to-four-year term as executive vice president.

At the time of Fuller's sentence he was serving a five-year term in another mail-fraud case. He was released last September and has been free in bond in the present case.

General Bradley Given CIO Award

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP) — Gen. Omar N. Bradley tonight received the CIO's Philip Murray award as the "man who did the most for veterans during the last year."

The award, established by the National CIO Community Services Committee, was presented to General Bradley, Administrator of Veterans Affairs, by Robert Smiljanich, a city employé of Aliquippa, Pa., who lost a leg during the war.

"If we are to sustain the veterans' faith in the political future of democracy and in the economic future of America," General Bradley said in a speech, "we must demonstrate that the unity which forced unconditional surrender upon our enemies during the war can provide unconditional opportunity for Americans in peace.

"The ability of organized labor and management to get together, to work together will provide the barometer of our success."

SAUDI ARABIA PRINCE ARRIVES IN CAPITOL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP) Amir Saud, crown prince of Saudi Arabia, was greeted by White House officials and by Undersecretary of State Dean C. Acheson when he arrived by plane tonight for a five week tour of the United States.

Accompanied by eight aides and attendants, the Amir made the trip from his oil rich desert kingdom in a chartered plane, traveling by way of Cairo, Lisbon and Newfoundland.

The eldest of 36 sons of Ibn Saud, Amir Saud undertook the trip primarily to study American transportation, irrigation, agriculture and industry with a view of applying American ideas to development of his native land.

46,092,000 Bushels of Grains Allocated For February Export to Shortage Areas

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—The Department of Agriculture today allocated 1,204,500 long tons—or about 46,092,000 bushels—of wheat, flour in wheat equivalent, corn and other grains for February export to shortage areas.

This is the largest quantity scheduled for export for any month since last June. The allocations included:

United Kingdom, 91,000 long tons, United Kingdom areas in the Pacific, 42,500; India, 69,500; Belgium, 38,500; the Netherlands, 38,500; Norway, 1,000; Finland, 27,000; Portugal, 10,500; Switzerland, 27,000; Austria, 35,500.

United States and British zones of occupation in Germany, 301,000.

French zone in Germany, 35,500; Japan and Ryukyus, 16,500; Korea, 16,500.

United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration countries—China, 8,500; Greece, 30,500; Italy, 220,000; Poland, 8,500.

For Mexico the allocation was 20,000 long tons and for all other countries a total of 166,500.

The February allocations consist of 428,000 tons of wheat, 395,000 tons of flour in wheat equivalent, 323,000 tons of corn, 42,500 tons of grain sorghums and 16,000 tons of barley.

Ex-Silver Shirt Leader Fails To Get Release

Terre Haute, Ind., Jan. 13 (AP)—William Dudley Pelley, former Silvert Shirt leader serving a fifteen-year sentence for sedition, today failed in his second attempt to obtain his release by a writ of habeas corpus.

Federal Judge Robert Baltzell denied Pelley's petition for the writ on the grounds that it named Warden J. Ellis Overlade, of the Terre Haute Federal Penitentiary, as defendant, but that Pelley actually was in custody of a United States marshal in Washington.

Pelley, one-time Noblesville (Ind.) pamphleteer, filed the petition last Wednesday, contending there was "inflamed predjudice" during his trial at Indianapolis in 1942. The former Silver Shirt head was denied a habeas corpus writ in the District of Columbia in 1945.

World's Largest Land Plane Is Displayed

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 13 (AP)—The world's largest land-based aircraft, a 400-troop transport being built for the United States Army Air Forces, was on unofficial public display for the first time here today.

Wheeled from the experimental yard at the Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corporation plant, the six-engined air giant was in view from Pacific highway and from Lindbergh Field.

The plane, known as the CX-99, is a transport version of Consolidated Vultee's B-36 bomber.

Treason Defendant Moved

Chandler, Broadcaster for Nazis, Taken to Hospital

BOSTON, Jan. 13 (AP).—Douglas Chandler, one of two former American writers facing trial on charges of treason for broadcasting over the German radio during the war, was taken to a hospital today for an examination.

The fifty-four-year-old Chandler complained that he was not feeling well. United States Marshal J. Henry Goguen allowed him to leave East Cambridge Jail to be examined at the United States Public Service Hospital in Brighton.

Chandler and Robert Best, fifty-one, were brought before Federal Judge Francis J. W. Ford a week ago and held without bail pending their arraignment. They pleaded for time to obtain counsel.

Asks D. P.s' Entry as Farmers

CLEVELAND, Jan. 13 (AP).—Asserting that the large majority of Europe's displaced persons are Christians and farmers, the national board of officers of the Catholic War Veterans today appealed to President Truman to admit 300,000 of such persons to settle in agricultural sections of the United States. National Commander Max H. Sorenson, of Philadelphia, reported that a resolution of the board declared that "since there are approximately 80 per cent Christians and 20 per cent non-Christians among the 1,000,000 displaced persons now seeking asylum, it is clear that the problem is appealing to persons of every racial origin and creed."

BOTH AUSTIN AND BARUCH WERE SAID TO BE IN COMPLETE AGREEMENT THAT THERE SHOULD BE NO VETO ON THIS SUBJECT. AUTHORITATIVE SOURCES SAID THEY DID NOT CONSIDER THE AMERICAN PROPOSALS AN ATTACK ON UNANIMITY IN THE SECURITY COUNCIL NOR A MOVE TO CHANGE THE UNITED NATIONS CHARTER.

EARLIER, IT WAS DISCLOSED THAT BARUCH HAD OFFERED TO GIVE AUSTIN ANY ADVICE HE MIGHT WISH IN HIS NEW JOB.

THIS WAS DISCLOSED IN AN EXCHANGE OF TELEGRAMS BETWEEN BARUCH AND AUSTIN MADE PUBLIC TODAY BY THE AMERICAN U.N. DELEGATION HEADQUARTERS.

BARUCH'S TELEGRAM, DISPATCHED FROM HIS HOME AT GEORGETOWN, S.C., JAN.6, SAID:

"YOUR OFFICE DOUBTLESS INFORMED OF MY EFFORTS TO GET IN TOUCH WITH YOU LAST WEEK, FOR WHAT PURPOSE YOU CAN SEE. I WAS PLEASED TO KNOW YOU WERE VACATIONING. I AM SURE WHAT I HAVE DONE IS CORRECT. YOU ARE THOROUGHLY CAPABLE, KNOW THE SUBJECT, AND IT REALLY LIES IN YOUR WISE SELF. YOU ARE FREE TO CALL UPON ME FOR SUCH ADVICE OR CONSULTATION AS YOU WISH. I AM SURE MY ASSOCIATES FEEL THE SAME WAY."

AUSTIN, REPLYING THE FOLLOWING DAY, SAID:

"YOUR TELEGRAM CROSSED MY PATH, BUT DID NOT CONTACT. THANK YOU FOR ALL YOU HAVE SAID AND DONE. NIGHT LEAD DEPUTY MINISTERS (420)

BY ALVIN STEINKOPF

LONDON, JAN. 13-(AP)-A HIGH AMERICAN INFORMANT PREDICTED TONIGHT THAT THE DEPUTY FOREIGN MINISTERS CONFERENCE WOULD REACH AGREEMENT ON TERMS FOR THE AUSTRIAN PEACE TREATY "IN A FAIRLY SHORT TIME," BUT NO SUCH FORECAST WAS FORTHCOMING FOR THE FAR MORE INTRICUATE GERMAN PEACE PACT.

THE DEPUTIES WILL OPEN THEIR CONFERENCE TOMORROW TO DRAFT RECOMMENDATIONS FOR THE FOUR-POWER FOREIGN MINISTERS COUNCIL WHICH WILL CONVENE IN MOSCOW MARCH 10 TO CONSIDER THE GERMAN AND AUSTRIAN TREATIES.

THE AMERICAN INFORMANT BELIEVED THAT THE UNITED STATES WOULD MAKE NO REPARATIONS DEMANDS UPON AUSTRIA AND WOULD TRY TO PREVAIL ON THE REPRESENTATIVES OF FRANCE, BRITAIN AND RUSSIA TO LIGHTEN THE BURDEN OF THE FEEBLE AUSTRIAN ECONOMY.

THE DEPUTIES WILL DRAFT RECOMMENDATIONS FOR A TREATY TO SET UP AUSTRIA AS AN INDEPENDENT STATE, AS WAS PROMISED IN THE ALLIED DECLARATION IN MOSCOW A YEAR AGO.

"THERE ARE DIFFICULT ANGLES BUT COMING TO TERMS ON AUSTRIA SHOULD BE POSSIBLE IN A FAIRLY SHORT TIME," THE AMERICAN SOURCE SAID. THE DEPUTIES MUST COMPLETE ALL THEIR RECOMMENDATIONS BY FEB. 25.

THE INFORMANT ADMITTED THAT LITTLE WAS KNOWN ON WHAT DEMANDS THE RUSSIANS WILL MAKE ON AUSTRIA, BUT THEY SAID THE RUSSIANS HAD SHOWN IN RECENT WEEKS A GREATER APPRECIATION OF THE TROUBLES CONFRONTING THAT COUNTRY.

ON THE MATTER OF THE GERMAN TREATY MOST SOURCES BELIEVED THAT THE PACT MUST BE STERN ENOUGH TO GUARANTEE THAT THE GERMANS PAY FOR WAGING A WAR OF AGGRESSION.

THEY APPEARED TO AGREE THAT THE PACT MUST PROVIDE EFFECTIVE CHECKS AGAINST A NEW DICTATORSHIP, AND THAT SUBSTANTIAL REPARATIONS MUST BE ASSESSED TO MAKE GERMANY PAY FOR A GOOD PART OF THE DESTRUCTION CAUSED BY THE NAZI ARMIES.

FIXING THE NEW GERMAN BORDERS APPEARED TO RANK AS A MAJOR

INSISTENCE THAT THERE BE NO REVIVAL OF DICTATORSHIP OR AGGRESSIVE PRACTICES, CREATION OF ECONOMIC CONDITIONS TO ENABLE GERMANY AND THE WORLD TO BENEFIT FROM GERMAN INDUSTRY AND RESOURCES AND THE SETTING UP OF CONSTITUTIONAL MACHINERY TO ACHIEVE THOSE GOALS.

THE TRIP WAS ARRANGED AFTER JULES MOCH, FRENCH MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS, HAD FAILED TO OBTAIN INCREASED COAL FROM THE RUHR MINES, THESE SOURCES SAID. BRITAIN, LIKE FRANCE AND MOST OF EUROPE, IS HERSELF CONFRONTED WITH A SERIOUS COAL SHORTAGE.

TOMORROW'S DISCUSSIONS ALSO MAY RAISE THE WHOLE QUESTION OF THE DIVERGENCE BETWEEN BRITISH AND FRENCH POLICIES TOWARD GERMANY, AN INFORMANT CLOSE TO THE FOREIGN OFFICE SAID.

london, tuesday, jan. 14-(ap)-the london daily worker reported today that a german naval officer arrested recently in the american occupation zone of germany might be tried soon for the slaying on jan. 15, 1919, of karl liebknicht, left-wing socialist leader in germany after the first world war.

quoting a letter from liebknicht's brother, theodore, who it said now was living in switzerland, the communist paper said it understood that german authorities in hesse were preparing a the case against ulrich von ruettgen, following publication in the german press against him.

the accusations were written by one of theodore's sons now in germany, the paper said, and were based on a letter mentioning the liebknicht case allegedly written by ruettgen to the nazi air ministry in 1938.

ruettgen once was cleared of charges in the case by a german naval court martial, the daily worker said.

liebknecht and the equally famous rose luxembourg were shot down in the tiergarten in berlin--while trying to escape, official reports said--after their arrests as leaders of the spartacist revolt against the ebert regime of pre-nazi germany.

INDOCHINA (350)

PARIS, JAN.13-(AP)-THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCED TODAY THAT THE LINER ILE DE FRANCE HAD SAILED YESTERDAY FROM TOULON CARRYING 8,000 TROOPS TO REINFORCE FRENCH FORCES NOW BATTLING VIET-NAM NATIONALISTS IN INDOCHINA.

LT.GEN.JEAN DE LATTRE DE TASSIGNY, FRENCH CHIEF OF STAFF WAS ON HAND TO BID A PERSONAL FAREWELL TO THE TROOPS AS THEY BOARDED THE LINER -- THE LARGEST PASSENGER VESSEL FLYING THE FRENCH FLAG.

SOME DISAGREEMENT OVER FRENCH POLICY IN INDOCHINA WAS IN EVIDENCE MEANWHILE AMONG SOCIALIST LEADERS BACK FROM THE SCENE OF FIGHTING IN INDOCHINA.

COLONIAL MINISTER MARIUS MOUTET, SENT TO INDOCHINA TO INVESTIGATE, REPORTED TO SOCILIST PRESIDENT-PREMIER LEON BLUM YESTERDAY SOON AFTER HIS RETURN. HE HAS ACCUSED THE VIET-NAMESE OF RESPONSIBILITY FOR STARTING HOSTILITIES ON DEC.19 AND HE TOLD NEWSMEN THAT FRANCE'S FIRST AIM SHOULD BE "DEFENSE OF OUR FELLOW CITIZENS AND OUR FRIENDS."

AN AUTHORIZED SPOKESMAN FOR THE COLONIAL MINISTRY TODAY DENIED REPORTS THAT MOUTET HAD ANNOUNCED AN AGREEMENT WITH INDO-CHINESE OUTSIDE THE VIET-NAM GOVERNMENT. (THESE REPORTS WERE NOT CARRIED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

THE SPOKESMAN ADDED: "NO ONE WAS AUTHORIZED TO SPEAK IN THE NAME OF FRANCE." THIS WAS TAKEN TO REFER TO A STATEMENT MADE YESTERDAY BY LEON BOUTBIEN (CORRECT) OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, WHO WENT TO INDOCHINA WITH MOUTET.

HOWEVER, LEON BOUTBEAIN OF THE SOCILIST PARTY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, WHO WENT TO INDOCHINA WITH MOUTET, TOLD REPORTERS THE FRENCH MUST SHARE THE BLAME FOR THE OUTBREAK AND PROBABLY STILL COULD FIND COMMON GROUND WITH TRULY REPRESENTATIVE VIET-NAM ELEMENTS. HE REPORTED HE HAD TALKED UNOFFICIALLY WITH VIET-NAM LEADERS IN HANOI.

(A VIET-NAM RADIO BROADCAST HEARD IN SAIGON YESTERDAY SAID PRESIDENT HO CHI MINH AND HIS VIET-NAM GOVERNMENT STILL WERE IN HANOI. THEY PREVIOUSLY WERE REPORTED TO HVE FLED ELSEWHERE.)

GEN. LECLERC, SENT TO INDOCHINA TO HEAD THE FRENCH FIGHT, ALSO CAME BACK TO PARIS YESTERDAY. BUT FRENCH REPORTS SHOWED THAT OPERATIONS IN HANOI STILL WERE GOING ON. THEY SAID THAT PATROLING VIET-NAMESE FACED WITH CAPTURE WERE BLOWING THEMSELVES UP WITH HAND GRENADES.

THE FRENCH GENERAL STAFF IN SAIGON REPORTED THAT FRENCH TROOPS HOLDING HANOI'S EUROPEAN QUARTER HAD MOVED FORWARD AT DAWN BEHIND STRAFING SPITFIRES AND ARTILLERY FIRE AND CAPTURED THE SOUTHERN SUBURBS. THE COMMISSIONER GENERAL WAS SAID TO HAVE ORDERED ALL "UNNECESSARY" CIVILIANS REMOVED FROM HANOI TO SAVE FOOD.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT LEIF ERICKSON REPORTED FROM HANOI THAT SUPPLIES FROM THE PORT OF HAIPHONG HAD BEEN CUT OFF SINCE NOV. 22 AND FOOD STOCKS WERE GROWING "SERIOUSLY SHORT." HE SAID THE ROAD WAS EXPECTED TO BE OPEN SOON.

(ERICKSON SAID VIRTUALLY 60 PERCENT OF THE CITY'S BUILDINGS WERE IN RUINS, IN MANY PLANES "EXACTLY LIKE THE WRECKAGE IN A FULL-SCALE EUROPEAN WAR.")

A FRENCH PRESS AGENCY DISPATCH FROM HANOI TODAY SAID FRENCH TROOPS HAD CAPTURED FROM THE VIET-NAMESE FOUR FRENCH 75-MILLIMETER GUNS WHICH THE JAPANESE HAD TAKEN FROM THE FRENCH IN 1945.

DISPATCHES ALSO REPORTED VIET-NAM FORCES USING DUM-DUM BULLETS. THEY SAID THE FRENCH HAD BLOWN UP AN AMMUNITION DEPOT IN A HANOI CHINESE-ANNAMITE DISTRICT.

REPORTS FROM LYONS SAID THE FIRST FRENCH SOLDIERS BADLY WOUNDED IN RECENT INDOCHINA OPERATIONS HAD ARRIVED THERE YESTERDAY AND WERE BEING MOVED TODAY TO LYONS AND PARIS MILITARY HOSPITALS.

PARIS, JAN.13-(AP)-FRANCE'S PARLIAMENT WILL RECONVENE TOMORROW TO BEGIN THE TASK OF SELECTING PERMAMENT OFFICERS OF THE FOURTH REPUBLIC, IN A WEEK OF CRUCIAL SESSIONS WHICH MAY DECIDE WHETHER THE NATION WILL ALIGN HERSELF WITH THE EAST OR THE WEST.

THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY AND THE COUNCIL OF THE REPUBLIC WILL MEET SEPARATELY TO ELECT THEIR OWN PRESIDENTS, OR SPEAKERS, THEN WILL DRAFT REGULATIONS GOVERNING A JOINT SESSION THURSDAY AT WHICH THE NATION'S PRESIDENT WILL BE SELECTED.

LEON BLUM, 74-YEAR-OLD SOCIALIST WHO IS SERVING AS INTERIM PREMIER-PRESIDENT, IS IN LONDON ON A ONE-MAN ECONOMIC MISSION, BUT IS EXPECTED TO RETURN IN TIME FOR THE VOTING THURSDAY.

THE STRUGGLE FOR POWER IS BETWEEN THE ALMOST EVENLY MATCHED COMMUNISTS AND PREDOMINANTLY CATHOLIC, MIDDLE-OF-THE-ROAD POPULAR REPUBLICAN MOVEMENT (MRP). THE SOCIALISTS, WHO AGREED LAST DEC.11 TO FORM A ONE-MONTH GOVERNMENT, HOLD THE BALANCE OF POWER.

SOCIALIST VINCENT AURIOL IS EXPECTED TO BE REELECTED PRESIDENT OF THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY. THE CONTEST FOR PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL OF THE REPUBLIC SEEMS TO BE BETWEEN THE INCUMBENT, AUGUSTE CHAMPETIER DE RIBES OF THE MRP, AND GEORGES MARANNE, COMMUNIST.

BLUM'S AGE AND FAILING HEALTH TEND TO RULE HIM OUT AS A CANDIDATE FOR THE PRESIDENCY OF THE REPUBLIC, AND THE SOCIALISTS ARE EXPECTED TO OFFER AURIOL. IN THE EVENT AURIOL WERE ELECTED, HE WOULD HAVE TO RESIGN AS PRESIDENT OF THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY.

NEITHER THE COMMUNISTS NOR THE MRP APPEAR TO HAVE A CHANCE OF WINNING THE PRESIDENCY. HOWEVER, THE COMMUNISTS ARE EXPECTED TO RUN MARCEL CACHIN AND THE MRP PROBABLY WILL PUT FORWARD GEORGES BIDAULT, FORMER PRESIDENT-PREMIER, FRANCISQUE GAY, ROBERT SCHUMAN OR CHAMPETIER DE RIBES.

THE SOME 900 LEGISLATORS AT THE JOINT SESSION PROBABLY WILL LINE UP IN BLOCS LIKE THIS: COMMUNISTS AND SOCIALISTS 422, MRP AND RIGHTISTS 360, RADICAL-SOCIALISTS 103.

STILL TO BE DECIDED ARE TECHNICAL REQUIREMENTS FOR A MAJORITY AND WHETHER THE VOTING WILL BE OPEN OR SECRET.

AFTER THE PRESIDENT IS ELECTED, HE WILL NOMINATE A PREMIER, WHO THEN MUST FORM A CABINETNAND ATTEMPT TO WIN A VOTE OF CONFIDENCE FROM THE ASSEMBLY.

NUERNBERG, GERMANY, JAN. 13-(AP)-FRANZ VON PAPEN WILL BE ACCUSED AS A "MAJOR OFFENDER"--THE WORST TYPE OF NAZI AND SUBJECT, IF CONVICTED, TO THE MAXIMUM PENALTY OF 10 YEARS IMPRISONMENT AND CONFISCATION OF HIS PROPERTY--WHEN HE IS TRIED BY A GERMAN DENAZIFICATION COURT LATE THIS MONTH, THE INDICTMENT SHOWED TONIGHT.

THE INDICTMENT WAS SERVED UPON VON PAPEN, ACQUITTED BY THE INTERNATIONAL MILITARY TRIBUNAL OF WAR CRIMES CHARGES, IN HIS NUERNBERG HOSPITAL ROOM SATURDAY.

IT ACCUSED THE FORMER DIPLOMAT OF HELPING ADOLF HITLER TO POWER AND OF USING HIS DIPLOMACY AND POLITICAL INFLUENCE TO SUSTAIN THE NAZI REGIME.

FRANKFURT, GERMANY, JAN.13-(AP)-AFTER FOUR DAYS OF INTERROGATION, THE PROSECUTION TODAY ABANDONED ITS EFFORT TO PERSUADE MAJ. DAVID F. WATSON TO TESTIFY AGAINST COL. JACK W. DURANT, HIS FORMER COMMANDING OFFICER, WHO IS ACCUSED IN THE THEFT OF THE $1,500,000 HESSE FAMILY JEWELS.

WATSON, WHOSE HOME IS IN BURLINGAME, CALIF., WAS CHARGED IN HIS OWN TRIAL WITH SENDING SOME OF THE JEWELS TO BELFAST. THE ALLEGED RECIPIENT WAS REFERRED TO VAGUELY AS A "WOMAN NAMED PEGGY."

IN THE FEW QUESTIONS HE ANSWERED, WATSON TOLD OF STUDYING ARMY REGULATIONS GOVERNING DISPOSITION OF PROPERTY FOUND AFTER BEING HIDDEN FROM OCCUPATION FORCES. THE STUDY, HE SAID, WAS ORDERED BY DURANT, FORMER WASHINGTON, D.C., LAWYER, SHORTLY AFTER THE JEWELS WERE DUG UP FROM THEIR HIDING PLACE IN KRONBERG CASTLE, WHERE DURANT'S BRIDE-TO-BE, WAC CAPT. KATHLEEN NASH, OPERATED AN OFFICERS' CLUB.

WATSON SAID HE FOUND NO SPECIFIC REGULATIONS, BUT WAS ADVISED BY ONE OFFICER HE HAD SENT SUCH ITEMS HOME, INCLUDING A COPPER KETTLE HE FOUND.

WHEN HE REPORTED THIS TO DURANT,WATSON SAID, DURANT REPLIED THAT "I AM INTERESTED IN SOMETHING LARGER" THAN COPPER KETTLES.

BUT WATSON WOULD NOT SAY WHAT DURANT SAID HE WAS INTERESTED IN.

BERLIN, JAN. 13-(AP)-TEN AMERICAN NEWSPAPER EDITORS AND RADIO COMMENTATORS ARE SCHEDULED TO ARRIVE IN ROME AT MIDWEEK TO BEGIN A MONTH'S TOUR OF EUROPE AS GUESTS OF THE WAR DEPARTMENT TO STUDY EUROPEAN PROBLEMS.

THE EDITORS WILL SPEND MOST OF THEIR TIME IN GERMANY. THE MILITARY GOVERNMENT WILL MAKE SPECIAL EFFORTS TO BRING THEM INTO CONTACT WITH GERMAN EDITORS AND PUBLISHERS SO THEY MAY DISCUSS THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE POSTWAR GERMAN PRESS.

AMERICAN EDITORS WHO CAME HERE ON PREVIOUS TOURS SUGGESTED THAT SUCH CONFERENCES WOULD BE HELPFUL.

CONFERENCES WITH GERMAN EDITORS, PUBLISHERS AND RADIO BROADCASTERS ARE SCHEDULED AT STUTTGART AND MUNICH. IN ADDITION, THE AMG'S INFORMATION CONTROL OFFICERS PLAN TO HAVE GERMAN NEWSPAPERMEN ON HAND AT PRACTICALLY ALL OTHER CITIES VISITED.

THE AMERICANS ARE EXPECTED TO LEAVE WASHINGTON TOMORROW. THEY WILL REMAIN IN ITALY UNTIL JAN. 19, WHEN THEY DEPART FOR VIENNA FOR A THREE-DAY VISIT. ARRIVING IN FRANKFURT JAN. 23 THEY WILL MEET GEN. JOSEPH MCNARNEY, THEATER COMMANDER.

UPON THEIR ARRIVAL IN BERLIN JAN 25 FOR A FOUR-DAY VISIT, THE EDITORS WILL ATTEND A STAFF CONFERENCE HELD BY LT. GEN. LUCIUS D. CLAY, DEPUTY MILITARY GOVERNOR, AND MEET AMG DIVISION CHIEFS.

TUESDAY NIGHT, JAN. 28, THEY WILL DEPART FOR NUERNBERG TO BEGIN A TOUR OF THE U.S.OCCUPATION ZONE WHICH WILL INCLUDE VISITS TO THE NUERNBERG WAR CRIMES TRIALS AND BERCHTESGADEN AND CONFERENCES WITH NUMEROUS GERMAN GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS.

THE TOURING PARTY WILL INCLUDE COLEMAN HARWELL, EXECUTIVE EDITOR OF THE NASHVILLE TENNESSEAN; ELON F.TOMPKINS, CHIEF EDITORIAL WRITER FOR THE NEW YORK JOURNAL AMERICAN AND HEARST NEWSPAPERS; GENE GILLETTE, OF UNITED PRESS, JOHN H.MARTIN OF INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE; FRAZIER HUNT, MUTUAL BROADCASTING COMPANY COMMENTATOR, VICTOR O. BUDAPEST, JAN.13-(AP)-A SOURCE CLOSE TO PREMIER FERENC NAGY SAID TODAY THE PRESENT GOVERNMENT CRISIS, GROWING OUT OF THE COMMUNIST UNVEILING OF AN ALLEGED COUNTER-REVOLUTIONARY PLOT, MIGHT RESULT IN THE OUSTER OF NAGY.

THIS INFORMANT SAID THE COMMUNISTS PLANNED TO SUBSTITUTE ARPAD SZAKASZIS, DEPUTY PREMIER AND HEAD OF THE SOCIAL DEMOCRATIC PARTY, AS PREMIER.

HE EXPLAINED THAT NAGY, WHO HAS BEEN FOLLOWING A MIDDLE-OF-THE-ROAD POLICY, MIGHT BE FACED WITH COMMUNIST DEMANDS THAT HE COULD NOT FULFILL OR, ON THE OTHER HAND, MIGHT TRY TO PLEASE THE COMMUNISTS TO SUCH AN EXTENT THAT HIS OWN PARTY MIGHT FORCE HIS RESIGNATION.

MEANWHILE, DR. KALMAN SALATA, MEMBER OF THE SMALL HOLDERS PARTY ON THE PARLIAMENTARY FOREIGN AFFAIRS COMMITTEE, WHO WAS ACCUSED OF LEADING THE COUNTER-PLOT, SAID TODAY HE HAD NOT BEEN ARRESTED, BUT WAS "ONLY VERY CLOSELY FOLLOWED" BY POLITICAL POLICE.

BELA VARGA, SMALL HOLDERS SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE, PROTESTED THE "GENERAL NATURE" OF THE OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE SATURDAY WHICH ACCUSED SALATA OF COMPLICITY IN THE PLOT.

"ONE CANNOT GENERALIZE BY SAXING CERTAIN MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT ARE GUILTY AND THEN MENTION ONLY ONE, SO THAT HUNDREDS OF SMALL LANDHOLDERS WOULD BE SUSPECTED," VARGA SAID.

THE SOURCE CLOSE TO NAGY SAID THE PREMIER WAS ALMOST CERTAIN TO BE FACED WITH RENEWED COMMUNIST DEMANDS FOR THE EXPULSION OF 60 PARLIAMENT MEMBERS FROM THE SMALL HOLDERS PARTY, WHICH WOULD GIVE THE COMMUNISTS AND SOCIAL DEMOCRATS THE MAJORITY THEY FAILED TO WIN IN THE LAST ELECTION.

moscow, jan. 12-(ap)-britanski soyusnik, a russian language newspaper published by the british embassy in moscow, was citicized today in an official soviet publication for alleged "tendentious selection of materials" and "lack of objectivdity." 1947

the [redacted] criticism, which appeared in culture and life, [redacted] organ of the central committee of the all-union communist party, was signed by k. seleznev, who identified himself merely as "a reader." 1947

1947 the british ministry of information began publishing britanski soyusnik here early in the war with the aim of telling the russian public about britain's war effort and the life of the british people. at present, it is published weekly in 50,000 copies.

in a letter to the editors of culture and life, selesnev said, "the editors (of soyusnik) not only fail to show concern for impartiality and veracity of information, but tendentiously select materials that give a distorted exposition of certain questions, apparently pursuing some kind of totally different aims."

the writer illustrated this criticism by a reference to an article published in britanski soyusnik's issue of dec. 29 which denied that the german battleship tirpitz suffered damage from an attack by a soviet submarine in july, 1942.

"what right has britanski soyusnik to distort the history of the war, and thereby insult our best submarine men?" inquired the writer, recalling that soyusnik's issue of nov. 26, 1944, an article stated the tirpitz was laid up for 14 months after a soviet submarine attack.

noting this contradiction, the writer said, "such methods are characteristic of the boulevard type of british newspapers but quite out of place in an official organ such as britanski soyusnik."

selesnev dwelt lengthily on what he termed "tendentious expositions of international events" by the british publication, asserting it gave "a quite one-sided picture" of the work of the united nations general assembly in new york.

"soviet readers," he declared, "were astonished by the fact that britanski soyusnik did not consider it necessary to set forth on its pages comrade molotov's armament reduction proposal. on the other hand, extremely extensive coverage is given in the paper to selected excerpts from speeches by american delegates and numerous excerpts from speeches by british delegates in which it was stated that comrade molotov's proposal bears a 'narrow character' limited to only one phase of the general disarmament process."

"thus, the britanski soyusnik editors attempted to create a totally distorted impression as to the meaning of the soviet proposals and to demean the role of the soviet delegation at the general assembly," seleznev charged.

1947

MOSCOW, JAN.13-(AP)-THE GOVERNMENT NEWSPAPER IZVESTIA ACCUSED BERNARD M. BARUCH YESTERDAY OF THREATENING TO WITHDRAW U.S. SUPPORT FROM THE UNITED NATIONS UNLESS HIS ATOMIC ENERGY CONTROL PLAN WAS ADOPTED AND HINTED THAT THIS ALLEGED THREAT MOTIVATED HIS RESIGNATION AS AMERICAN REPRESENTATIVE ON THE U.N. ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION.

IZVESTIA SAID ANOTHER POSSIBLE REASON FOR BARUCH'S RESIGNATION WAS THAT HIS POSITION ON THE COMMISSION "HAD EVOKED DISSATISFACTION IN ZIONIST CIRCLES WITH WHOM BARUCH IS CONNECTED."

(ASSOCIATES OF BARUCH IN NEW YORK SAID HE WAS NOT A ZIONIST AND NEVER HAD BEEN. THEY REITERATED THAT HE HAD RESIGNED MERELY BECAUSE HIS WORK HAD BEEN COMPLETED.)

MEANWHILE THE COMMUNIST NEWSPAPER PRAVDA EXPRESSED THE GUARDED VIEW THAT THE APPOINTMENT OF GEN. GEORGE C. MARSHALL AS SECRETARY OF STATE PRESAGED NO CHANGE IN THE UNITED STATES FOREIGN POLICY. WARSAW, JAN. 13-(AP)-THE LEADER OF THE POLISH PEASANT PARTY, WHO HAS ACCUSED THE COMMUNIST-DOMINATED GOVERNMENT BLOC OF PERSECUTING HIS SUPPORTERS, PLANNED A CAMPAIGN BROADCAST TODAY IN PREPARATION FOR NEXT SUNDAY'S PARLIAMENTARY ELECTION.

VICE-PREMIER STANISLAW MIKOLAJCZYK ANNOUNCED THAT THE GOVERNMENT HAD ALLOWED HIM RADIO TIME FOR SPEECHES AT 5:45 P.M. (11:45 A.M., EST) TODAY AND WEDNESDAY. HE SAID THAT IT HAD REQUIRED HIM TO SUBMIT THE SPEECHES FOR CENSORSHIP 24 HOURS IN ADVANCE.

IN NEWS CONFERENCES OVER THE WEEKEND, MIKOLAJCZYK SAID THAT IN RECENT WEEKS SOME 50,000 MEMBERS OF THE POLISH PEASANT PARTY HAD BEEN ARRESTED, TENS OF THOUSANDS REMOVED FROM VOTERS' LISTS, AT LEAST 250 CANDIDATES BARRED FROM THE BALLOT, 120 OTHERS IMPRISONED AND 29 DISTRICT PARTY HEADQUARTERS PADLOCKED.

HE PRODUCED EVIDENCE THAT GANGS HAD BEATEN PARTY MEMBERS, WRECKED THEIR SHOPS AND MAULED GROUPS PASSING OUT CAMPAIGN LITERATURE. BUT HE SAID HIS PARTY STILL WAS DETERMINED TO FIGHT IN THE 42 ELECTION DISTRICTS OUT OF POLAND'S 52 WHERE ITS CANDIDATES REMAINED IN THE RUNNING.

THE GOVERNMENT SAID THE ARRESTS WERE AIMED ONLY AT THWARTING THE ANTI-GOVERNMENT UNDERGROUND. SECURITY POLICE REPORTED THE UNDERGROUND HAD ATTACKED MANY ELECTION COMMISSIONS AND IN 90 DAYS HAD SLAIN 600 GOVERNMENT-BLOC FOLLOWERS. THEY SAID THEY HAD SEIZED 4,000 IN THE UNDERGROUND IN THAT TIME.

TOKYO, TUESDAY, JAN.14-(AP)-A SURVIVOR OF A TORPEDOED AMERICAN MERCHANTMAN TOLD THE INTERNATIONAL WAR CRIMES COURT TODAY HOW JAPANESE SUBMARINERS WERE BAYONETING THE SHIP'S CREW WHEN APPROACH OF A U.S. PLANE FORCED THE SUBMARINE TO DIVE. ONE GROUP OF AMERICANS WAS STILL ON HER DECK, HANDS BOUND BEHIND THEM.

"ONE MAN NEAR ME FREED HIS HANDS, FOUND A KNIFE IN THE POCKET OF A NAVY GUN CREWMAN AND MANAGED TO CUT ABOUT SIX OF US FREE BEFORE WATER WASHING OVER THE DECK (AS THE SUB WENT DOWN) SWEPT EVERYBODY OVERBOARD," SAID THE WITNESS, JOHN ALEX MCDOUGALL, JR., 21, BERKELEY, CALIF.

HE WAS ONE OF 24 OF THE 100-MAN CREW OF THE MERCHANTMAN JEAN NICOLLET WHO ESCAPED DEATH.

THE SHIP WAS TORPEDOED IN THE INDIAN OCEAN THE NIGHT OF JULY 2, 1944, AND CREWMEN TOOK TO BOATS AND LIFE RAFTS. THE AMERICANS WERE PICKED UP AND TAKEN ONTO THE SUBMARINE'S DECK. THE NICOLLET'S CAPTAIN, THREE MATES AND RADIO OPERATOR WERE TAKEN INTO THE CONNING TOWER "AND WE NEVER HEARD OF THEM AGAIN," HE TOLD THE COURT.

SHORTLY AFTERWARD, HE TESTIFIED, JAPANESE BEGAN LEADING THE AMERICAN SEAMEN TO THE REAR OF THE CONNING TOWER, ONE AT A TIME. ONE OF THE BOUND CAPTIVES ON THE FORWARD DECK MANAGED TO PEER AROUND THE CONNING TOWER, AND SAID HE COULD SEE THE JAPANESE BAYONETING THE MEN AND THROW-ING THEIR BODIES OVERBOARD.

toronto, jan. 13-(ap)-good relations between canada and the united states cannot be maintained without constant watchfulness," external affairs minister louis st. laurent, said tonight at an address at the university of toronto.

"i do not say this because I think there is the slightest intention on either side to move away from the ahppy state of our relations," the minister said.

"i say it merely because even the simplest relationship between human beings requires the constructive action of both parties. the relationship between a great and powerful nation and its smaller neighbor, at best, is far from simple. it calls for constant and imaginative attention on both sides."

in further discussion of canada's foreign affairs, st. laurent stated that the dominion would oppose developments in her relations with [redacted] the british commonwealth which "might be inconsistent with our desire to participate fully in the task of building an effective international organisation on a wider scale."

FIRST LEAD PREMIER

NEW YORK, JAN.13-(AP)-ITALIAN PREMIER ALCIDE DE GASPERI WAS GIVEN THE CITY'S OFFICIAL GREETING TODAY WITH A RIDE UP LOWER BROADWAY FROM THE BATTERY TO CITY HALL AND A RECEPTION IN CITY HALL.

CHIEF INSPECTOR MARTIN J. BROWN OF THE POLICE DEPARTMENT ESTIMATED THAT 100,000 PERSONS WERE IN THE CROWD THAT LINED THE CURBS AND CHEERED AS THE ITALIAN PREMIER RODE UP BROADWAY.

AT CITY HALT MAYOR WILLIAM O'DWYER EXTENDED THE CITY'S GREETINGS AND STATED THE PRIME MINISTER "SEEKS AID AND ASSISTANCE FOR A VALIANT FREEDOM-LOVING PEOPLE WHOSE SONS AND DAUGHTERS HAVE HELPED AMERICA BECOME GREAT."

THE PREMIER WAS HONORED YESTERDAY AT A SOLEMN HIGH MASS AT ST. PATRICK'S CATHEDRAL AND A LUNCHEON TENDERED BY THE CITY.

1947

THE MASS AT THE CATHEDRAL WAS OFFERED FOR THE SUCCESS OF DE GASPERI'S MISSION TO THE UNITED STATES FOR ECONOMIC AID TO ITALY. THE PREMIER ANNOUNCED EARLY YESTERDAY THAT HE EXPECTS TO SEE SECRETARY OF STATE BYRNES IN WASHINGTON TOMORROW FOR FURTHER CONFERENCES ON AID TO ITALY.

THE RT. REV. MONSIGNOR JOSEPH F. FLANNELLY SAID AT THE CATHEDRAL SERVICES THAT ITALY IS THE SCENE OF A CONFLICT BETWEEN TWO OPPOSING CAMPS, "ONE FOR CHRISTIAN CIVILIZATION AND ONE FOR ATHEISTIC COMMUNISM."

1947

THE MEDITERRANEAN "MUST NEVER BE REDDENED BY THE BRUTAL, DEATH-DEALING CLENCHED FIST OF ATHEISTIC COMMUNISM," MSGR. FLANNELLY DECLARED.

THE MASS, WITH FRANCIS CARDINAL SPELLMAN, ARCHBISHOP OF NEW YORK PRESIDING IN THE SANCTUARY, WAS ATTENDED BY AN OVERFLOW CROWD ESTIMATED AT MORE THAN 3,000 PERSONS AND POLICE SAID A THRONG OF 5,000 OUTSIDE THE CATHEDRAL CHEERED DE GASPERI AS HE ENTERED AND LEFT.

MAYOR WILLIAM O'DWYER AND MYRON C. TAYLOR, CHAIRMAN OF AMERICAN RELIEF FOR ITALY, DECLARED AT THE LUNCHEON THAT ITALY MUST BE GIVEN AID TO HELP HER REBUILD.

DE GASPERI, WHO SPOKE BOTH IN ENGLISH AND ITALIAN AT THE LUNCHEON, DECLARED THAT DESPITE SOME INCIDENTS WHICH HE SAID HAVE BEEN EXAGGERATED, ITALY IS UNITED IN CARRYING OUT THE REHABILITATION OF THE HOMELAND.

NEW YORK, JAN.13-(AP)-MAURICE ROSENBLATT, EXECUTIVE SECRETARY OF THE AMERICAN LEAGUE FOR A FREE PALESTINE, SAID TODAY THAT ARTHUR HAYS SULZBERGER, PUBLISHER OF THE NEW YORK TIMES, "IS READY TO APPEASE EVERY WHIM OF GREAT BRITAIN AT THE EXPENSE OF AMERICA'S TRADITION FOR FREEDOM."

HIS STATEMENT WAS IN REPLY TO A STATEMENT MADE IN AN INTERVIEW BY SULZBERGER IN NEW ORLEANS LAST WEEK IN WHICH HE SAID HE BELIEVED "IT'S MORE IMPORTANT FOR THE UNITED STATES TO GET ALONG WITH GREAT BRITAIN THAN FOR THE JEWS TO HAVE A NATIONAL HOMELAND." SULZBERGER EMPHASIZED HE WAS SPEAKING AS A JEW.

ROSENBLATT SAID THAT SULZBERGER "EITHER FORGOT IN PUBLIC WHAT IT MEANS TO BE AN AMERICAN OR FORGOT THAT IN WARS, FROM OUR OWN REVOLUTION TO THE PRESENT, AMERICA ALWAYS HAS FOUGHT AGAINST OPPRESSION."

FORMER SENATOR GUY M.GILLETTE OF IOWA IS PRESIDENT OF THE LEAGUE.

WASHINGTON, JAN 13-(AP)-THE RECONSTRUCTION FINANCE CORPORATION ANNOUNCED TODAY COMPLETION OF ARRANGEMENTS TO SELL ABOUT 40,000,000 YARDS OF JAPANESE COTTON GOODS TO THE NETHERLANDS, FOR DISTRIBUTION IN THE NETHERLANDS EAST INDIES.

THE RFC ANNOUNCEMENT SAID THE TRANSACTION WAS BEING HANDLED BY AN RFC SUBSIDIARY, THE U.S. COMMERCIAL COMPANY. IT WILL REPRESENT APPROXIMATELY $10,000,000.

THE GOODS, THE RFC SAID, ARE AVAILABLE FOR "PROMPT SHIPMENT" FROM JAPAN. THEY ARE BEING PURCHASED BY THE NETHERLANDS PURCHASING COMMISSION.

THE RFC ALSO ANNOUNCED THAT GREAT BRITAIN HAS PURCHASED AN ADDITIONAL 3,500,000 YARDS OF JAPANESE TEXTILES FOR USE IN HONG KONG.

THE RFC SAID THE PURCHASES WERE MADE BY THE CROWN AGENTS FOR THE COLONIES OF GREAT BRITAIN, AT A COST OF APPROXIMATELY $900,000.

IN ADDITION, THE RFC SAID IN A PRESS RELEASE, THE U.S. COMMERCIAL COMPANY, AN RFC SUBSIDIARY, HAS CONCLUDED SALES OF APPROXIMATELY 3,300,000 POUNDS OF JAPANESE MANUFACTURED YARN TO BURMA AND TO HONG KONG.

NIGHT LEAD MISSIONS (250)

BUCK HILL FALLS, PA., JAN.13-(AP)-THE DOOR FOR CHRISTIAN MISSION WORK IS "WIDE OPEN" IN JAPAN, DR. THOBURN T.BRUMBAUGH, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF A COMMITTEE FOR A CHRISTIAN UNIVERSITY IN JAPAN, DECLARED IN AN INTERVIEW HERE TODAY.

DR. BRUMBAUGH, FORMER EXECUTIVE SECRETARY OF THE DETROIT COUNCIL OF CHURCHES AND A MISSIONARY IN JAPAN FOR MANY YEARS, ARRIVED HERE TODAY FROM THE WEST COAST TO ATTEND THE 53RD ANNUAL MEETING OF THE FOREIGN MISSION CONFERENCE OF NORTH AMERICA WHICH OPENS A FOUR-DAY SESSION TOMORROW. HE RECENTLY ARRIVED IN THIS COUNTRY FROM JAPAN.

ON THURSDAY HE IS SCHEDULED TO PRESENT A PROPOSAL TO THE CONFERENCE FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A CO-EDUCATIONAL UNIVERSITY IN JAPAN.

DR. BRUMBAUGH SAID BOTH GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR AND EMPEROR HIROHITO ARE EAGER TO SEE CHRISTIANITY EXERT THE WIDEST POSSIBLE INFLUENCE ON THE JAPANESE PEOPLE. BOTH MACARTHUR AND HIROHITO, HE SAID, REALIZE THAT JAPAN EXISTS IN A "MORAL AND SPIRITUAL VACUUM" FOLLOWING THE REPUDIATION OF SHINTOISM.

THEY ALSO ARE AGREED, HE ADDED, THAT SUCH A CONDITION OFFERS CHRISTIANITY AN UNPARALLELED OPPORTUNITY TO SERVE AS THE FOUNDATION OF A JAPANESE DEMOCRACY.

IN COMMENTING ON HIS RECENT INTERVIEW WITH MACARTHUR, DR. BRUMBAUGH POINTED OUT THAT MACARTHUR VOICED CONSIDERABLE ALARM OVER THE INCREASINGLY DIFFICULT ECONOMIC SITUATION IN JAPAN, NOTING SPECIFICALLY THAT JAPANESE SILK IS NOT SELLING IN THE UNITED STATES AS WELL AS IT SHOULD BE.

DR. BRUMBAUGH WAS ONE OF FOUR MISSIONARIES TO INTERVIEW HIROHITO IN AN INFORMAL SESSION LAST MONTH. THE INTERVIEW, HE SAID, WAS THE FIRST EVER GIVEN TO ACTIVE MISSION WORKERS.

BRITAIN, HOLLAND ASK STERN PEACE PACT FOR GERMANY

Jack Smith

LONDON, Jan. 14. — (AP) Britain and Holland today urged the four-power deputy foreign ministers, at their opening session here, to write a peace treaty which will prevent future German generations from threatening the peace of the world.

NIGHT

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, welcoming the deputies, told them they should try to prepare a German peace "so firm, so solid, so conceived that it will save the world for hundreds of years from x x x the travail and turmoil of another war."

Asks Stern Peace

The Netherlands, in a memorandum to the four-power representatives, demanded a stern peace, "moral reconstruction" of the German people, a decentralized German government, and internationalization of the Ruhr and Rhineland.

The deputies—from Britain, the United States, Russia and France—met behind closed doors and began the spadework for drafting treaties for Germany and Austria. Their findings will form the basis for the discussions of their chiefs, the four-power foreign ministers, who meet in Moscow next March.

Authoritative sources said that the deputies adopted a calm approach to their first tentative disagreement: whether the German or Austrian treaty should take precedence in the discussions.

These informants said that Feodor Gusev, Russian delegate, proposed that the German treaty be considered "first," and that Viscount Hood of Britain, presiding, replied that the plan was for two meetings daily, one devoted to Germany and the other to Austria.

Robert Murphy and Gen. Mark Clark, U. S. representatives, reportedly supported Britain. France's Maurice Couve de Murville said he agreed with the Russians that the German treaty could be considered "more important," and agreed with the British that the treaties could be considered concurrently.

Take Up Germany Today

The informants said the deputies finally agreed to discuss Germany tomorrow morning and Austria either tomorrow afternoon or Thursday morning. There was no clear-cut decision on what the policy would be after that.

Holland's memorandum said that the German people should be made to pay the cost of occupation and reconstruction.

To prevent what it described as any new "German lust for power," the memorandum proposed the decentralization of the nation by establishing a "confederation of (German) states rather than a federal state," a form of government along the lines of the German league in existence during the first half of the 19th century.

Austria, calling herself the "first victim of Hitler aggression," asked for a hearing as soon as possible. A total of 18 nations, besides the countries represented by the four deputies, have received invitations to express their views.

Czechoslovak sources said they would ask Germany for free haulage of Czechoslovak products on German railways for "a number of years."

STRONG PEACE PACT FOR REICH URGED BY BEVIN

He Tells Big Four Group War Must Be Barred for Hundreds of Years

Robert Hearst

London, Jan. 14 (A. P.).—British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin called upon the deputy foreign ministers today to lay the groundwork for a German peace "so firm, so solid, so conceived that it will save the world for hundreds of years from the travail and turmoil of another war."

As the deputies of the four-Power foreign ministers convened to begin work on the German and Austrian treaties, the Netherlands demanded a stern peace for Germany and "moral reconstruction" of the German people.

Bevin, in a short address before the deputies' first closed session, told them he was "sincerely concerned that nothing should be done which would enable Germany to become a military Power again." But he added that the Austrian treaty should not handicap Austria economically.

"Austria was left in 1919 like a tadpole, with Vienna her great head and with very little tail," he said. "If the Danube countries could co-operate economically, that state would be avoided."

He urged effective preparatory work on the German treaty, saying that "there is a great desire to work with a plan" which would prevent war for centuries.

In a memorandum to the Deputies' Council, the Netherlands asked that the German people themselves be made to pay the full costs of occupation and reconstruction. The Dutch urged strictest measures to insure Germany's demilitarization and disarmament.

Britain and the United States were reported to have the drafts of tentative treaties on Austria ready for study by the Russian and French deputies. Some informed quarters expressed belief the United States would waive reparations claims against Austria in hope of aiding that nation's tottering economy, but the biggest question centered around Russia's demands.

Territorial claims against Germany by at least six of her one-time victims posed an immediate major problem for the deputies. Faced with such diplomatic stumbling blocks as economic unification, Russian repatriation demands and French insistence on the economic absorption of the Saar, the deputies were expected merely to survey peace proposals for Germany and report to the Big Four Foreign Ministers in Moscow March 10.

Clark To Have Role

Gen. Mark Clark, United States Army commander in Austria, will speak for the United States in the meetings on Austria, while Robert Murphy, United States political representative in Germany, will act for America at the sessions on Germany.

The deputies are expected to discuss treaty plans in London until February 25. Military leaders of the four governments plan meetings meanwhile in Berlin to prepare other reports for submission to the Moscow meeting, at which the first broad outlines of peace plans for Germany may take shape.

Reich Zone Problem

A major subject of speculation as the London talks opened was whether the Russians woud agree to join their German occupation zone in an economic union with the American-British combined zone. Despite repeated unofficial reports from Berlin that Russia was considernig such a union, a high American Military Government official said in Berlin yesterday there had been no move for closer economic collaboration between the zones.

Eighteen European nations have been invited to present their views on the German-Austrian treaties, and most of them want reparations or territory as payment for losses to the Nazis.

Claims Against Germany

Russia was expected by some to make heavy reparations demands on current German production in return for possible agreement to an economic union, while France and Poland had the biggest territorial claims against Germany.

Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg and Czechoslovakia are ready to present claims for minor strips of German territory along their frontiers. Territorial claims against Austria are fewer.

Russia's chief negotiator is Feodor Gusev, former Soviet Ambassador to London. The French deputy is Maurice Couve de Murville. Britain's deputies are Sir William Strang and Lord Hood.

Attlee, Blum Conference

London, Jan. 14 (AP)—Leon Blum, first Premier of France to visit Britain since 1940, talked with Prime Minister Attlee and Ernest Bevin, Foreign Secretary, today and the formation of a British-French alliance and customs union was reported measurably closer.

Sources close to Attlee's official residence emphasized, however, that such developments still were some distance in the future. The immediate purpose of Blum's visit, they said, was to prop the weak French economy and particularly to plead for British or German coal to keep French industry on the recovery road.

NIGHT

The British, however, are inclined to doubt the wisdom of diverting more coal from the Ruhr to France now. They take the view that coal kept and used in the Ruhr now will help assure the production of more fuel for export a little later.

ATOM DEBATE DEADLINE AIM

DAY

U.S. Expected To Ask Council To Set Feb. 4 Date

Jay Harbelson

Lake Success, N. Y., Jan. 14 (AP)—The United States was reported tonight to have decided to demand that the United Nations Security Council begin debate on specified measures for atomic control by February 4 at the latest.

Informed quarters said Warren R. Austin, United States delegate, would propose the deadline to the Security Council at tomorrow's meeting and added that he might press for an immediate vote.

T... Delegate

NIGHT

The new United States plan became known shortly after Austin took the oath of office as American delegate in a simple ceremony in his office.

The United States delegation was reported to have had two objects in mind in selecting February 4 as the deadline: First, to make sure that there was no unnecessary delay in the study of the recommendations of the atomic commission and, second, to give all delegates time to consult their governments on the atomic proposals.

The Security Council still was far from agreement on the conflicting United States and Russian proposals on how to tackle the vital arms-reduction program. The Russians continued to urge immediate action on the whole arms program.

Simultaneous Study Urged

While some delegations, including the British, expressed the belief that the American and Soviet positions were not irreconcilable, the general view was that no solution would be reached at tomorrow's meeting.

British sources took the position that atomic control and general arms limitations could be discussed simultaneously by the Security Council. They expressed the hope that a special commission could be set to work on "general disarmament" while the Atomic Energy Commission continued its work of drafting a detailed atomic-control plan.

Other Problems In Way

Meanwhile, the Security Council had these other problems before it which might further delay a solution of the immediate arms deadlock:

1. Great Britain's complaint against Albania, which was filed last Friday, charging Albania with planting mines in the Corfu Straits.

2. Election of a governor for the proposed Free Territory of Trieste, which the Security Council already has agreed to do under terms of a decision reached in New York by the Council of Foreign Ministers in December.

Both these questions may be taken up later this week.

Other Agencies Busy

While these issues held the spotlight, other agencies of the United Nations were busy on such problems as relief for war-devastated countries and a long-range plan to tackle, on an international scale, such diseases as cancer and tuberculosis.

A special United Nations committee will submit a report to David Owen, acting secretary general, tomorrow, informed quarters said, listing requests from twelve war-damaged countries for close to $1,000,000,000 in emergency food relief for 1947.

These are needs which extend beyond the liquidation of UNRRA. Under a plan approved by the last session of the General Assembly, the requests will not be met by any international agency but will be referred to the 55-member states for individual action.

Food-Need Data Given U.N.

1947

Jay Harbelson

Lake Success, N.Y., Jan. 14 (AP). Twelve war-damaged countries were reported today to have informed the United Nations that they will need close to $1,000,000,000 in emergency food relief during 1947.

Requests from the needy countries were laid before a committee of United Nations experts in a series of hearings last week, but have not been published. Under a plan approved at the last session of the General Assembly, the requests will be forwarded to individual members of the United Nations for voluntary action.

Some ... Alone

DAY

Some countries, including the United States, have indicated they are prepared to continue individually the relief job which will be left by the expiration of UNRRA. It had not been expected, however, that requests would be so large.

During Assembly debate on the question, UNRRA Director General F. H. LaGuardia proposed that an emergency food fund of $400,000,000 be established to meet continuing needs. This plan was replaced by the American-British plan for action by individual United Nation members.

Over Estimates

Five countries alone have asked for more relief than the LaGuardia plan envisaged. Poland, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Greece and China have filed requests for approximately $500,000,000 in food relief.

These seven countries are Italy, Hungary, Austria, Finland, Ethiopia, Korea and the Philippines.

Meanwhile, it was announced that the preparatory commission of the proposed International Refugee Organization will hold its first meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, February 11, to tackle the problem of carying for Europe's million war refugees, which are now being aided by UNRRA.

The preparatory commission was authorized by the United Nations Assembly to take the necessary steps to put the IRO into operation before UNRRA's assistance to refugees ends next June 30.

SOCIALIST AURIOL ELECTED HEAD OF FRENCH ASSEMBLY

Robert Gibson

PARIS, Jan. 14—(AP) Communists and Socialists joined today in electing Socialist Vincent Auriol president of the National Assembly, and missed only by a hair's breadth giving the helm of the parliament's upper house to a Communist.

In voting for president of the council of the republic, the upper house, Communist Georges Marrane and the moderate MRP's August Champetier de Ribes both received 129 votes. Champetier de Ribes was declared elected by virtue of his seniority.

The Communist-Socialist mutual trading of votes in the two elections which almost succeeded in giving a leftist leadership to both houses raised gloomy talk in MRP and rightist circles of the prospect of a new "popular front" government to lead the Fourth Republic.

Blum Against Collaboration

Socialist Leon Blum, interim president - premier, who headed France's first popular front government in pre-war years, has opposed collaborating with the Communists.

NIGHT

Auriol, who has been interim president of the assembly since Dec. 3, hopes to hold the job only two more days. He is a candidate for president of the republic. Parliament will choose the president Thursday.

Auriol was elected with 294 votes over the MRP's Robert Schuman who received 194 votes from rightists.

The election came after Edouard Herriot, the Radical Socialist leader, had backed out of a trade proposed by the MRP whereby the MRP offered to support him for the presidency of the assembly in return for Radical Socialist backing for Schuman as president of the republic.

Herriot's "leftist rally," a grouping of Radical Socialists and smaller parties, played a careful neutrality in the voting which only appeared to have angered the Communists.

Petit's Name Written-In

While Radical-Socialist Claudius Petit was not officially a candidate in the assembly, the Radical Socialists wrote him in on their 76 ballots.

In the council, the radicals put a candidate up on the first two ballots when an absolute majority was required for election. Then on the third ballot, when by the rules only a plurality was required for election, they withdrew their candidate, took no formal stand for either the Communists or MRP, and cast away two important radical Socialist votes on non-candidates bringing about a tie vote.

In the complex maneuverings of France's numerous political parties those two votes might well cost Herriot either the presidency of the republic or the premiership. He seeks one post or the other. The Communists, apparently blaming the radical socialists for failure of Marrane to win, made no effort to conceal their wrath when the tie vote was announced.

in the interim Government, for the Assembly presidency, in opposition to Socialist Vincent Auriol. The M.R.P. had hoped to run Schuman for president of the republic with radical Socialist support when the Assembly votes Thursday on the higher office.

The leftist rally, which includes the radical socialists and smaller affiliated parties, decided to enter Claudius Petit against Auriol and Schuman, raising the likelihood of several ballots before any legislative president could be chosen.

Auriol Still Candidate

Auriol, whom some observers had expected to withdraw and concentrate on a bid for presidency of the republic, showed no signs of abandoning his candidacy to head the assembly.

The opening of the Parliament's upper house was delayed meanwhile, as the parties debated on candidates for a president of the council of the republic. It appeared likely that there would be three: Auguste Champetier de Ribes, M.R.P.; Georges Marrane, Communist, and Jules Gasser, Radical Socialist.

In the Assembly the Radical Socialists earlier had hoped to arrange a trade with the Socialists in which Herriot would become Assembly president an dAuriol president of the republic.

Herriot's party announced his candidacy for Assembly president little more than an hour after the MRP parliamentary group voted 67 to 29 to support him.

Blum A Possibility

The possibility was discussed that Leon Blum, interim Premier-President now in London for conferences, with Prime Minister Attlee, might accept the presidency Thursday, with Auriol perhaps becoming Premier.

The Assembly convenes in separate session today to choose its president and the upper House will go into session at the same time to elect a speaker of its own. After this both houses will draw up regulations for the joint Assembly Thursday when the President of France will be chosen.

The presidency of the Assembly ranks second in France to the presidency of the republic.

Paris, Jan. 14 (AP)—Dadical Socialist leader Edouard Herriot withdrew today as a candidate for president of the National Assembly, rejecting a proposed deal whereby a candidate of the M.R.P. REBELS IN NEW HANOI ATTACKS

HANOI, Indochina, Jan. 13—(delayed)—(AP) The Viet-Namese radio reported today that Viet-Namese leaders had rejected a French request to withdraw armed forces from Hanoi's native quarter, where an estimated 18,000 Chinese and Annamite civilians have been trapped for the last month.

The French command said that Viet-Nam's Tu Ve (armed youth) forces launched renewed attacks on French posts surrounding the native quarter. These were the strongest assaults by the nationalists in recent days.

At the same time, some 80 shells were hurled into French-held sections of Hanoi by 75-millimeter field guns.

It was officially announced at Saigon that Chinese, British and American consular representatives had crossed the nationalist's lines to negotiate for assistance for the approximately 10,000 Chinese and 8,000 Annamites trapped in Hanoi.

The Viet-Namese radio said the request was turned down because of the strategic location of the native quarter, an area 500 yards square on the south bank of the Rouge River, east of the mile-long Doumer bridge leading to the Hanoi airfield.

Any French assault to clear this bothersome island of Viet-Namese resistance probably would result in severe casualties among the civilians. The French have estimated that 1,000 Tu Ve troops are entrenched within the native quarter.

Food supplies are assumed to be growing short in the native quarter—perhaps even shorter than in Hanoi's French districts, where the government ration to civilians for the last three weeks has been corned beef and carrots or other vegetables. The distribution of this week's ration has been delayed.

Viet-Nam Shell Hanoi Area

Hanoi, Indo-China, Jan. 13 [AP—Delayed]—Fighting broke out with renewed violence here today as Viet-Namese Nationalists attacked French posts surrounding the Chinese quarter and simultaneously shelled scattered sections of the city with 75-millimeter field guns.

The French command said the infantry attacks were carried out by members of the Tu Ve (armed youth) organization and apparently were designed to test the strength of French positions.

They were the strongest assaults launched by the Nationalists in some days and were made simultaneously against a number of points, with as many as 100 men taking part in a single operation.

Russian-German Talks Reported

Berlin, Jan. 14 (AP)—The Russian-licensed newspaper Nacht Express said today that Soviet officials were meeting with German political leaders in "conferences of the highest importance to discuss fundamental plans for a future Germany capable of existing."

The newspaper said that reparations were a major topic and that "it appears that the Soviet military administration is prepared to make concessions to German wishes, especially in the matter of dismantling German factories."

"It also appears," the Express added, "that the question of taking reparations out of current German production may be settled in such a manner that all reasonable German wishes will be given extensive consideration by the Soviets."

The locale of the conferences was not disclosed, but it was presumed to be Russian headquarters at Karlshorst. It was ascertained that leaders of the Soviet-sponsored Socialist Unity party were attending.

The Express said that definitive results of the discussion could be expected within a few days.

Effect On Moscow

The newspaper predicted that the conferences would bring for Germany "more substantial results than were achieved by those Germans who have recently journeyed to London and, despite their promises, unfortunately returned empty-handed."

"The current conferences," the Express added, "are of the highest importance for two reasons. In the first place, they will let Germany—at least the Soviet occupation zone—know on what economic basis it may figure to attempt its reconstruction. Secondly, the policy of moderation and reconciliation which the Soviet Union displays in their decisions will have an effect on the forthcoming conferences of the Foreign Ministers Council in Moscow dealing with Germany.

"It may persuade the other participants in the Moscow negotiations to adopt a similar line."

2 Nazi Women Executed

Berlin, Jan. 14 (AP)—Dr. Ilde Wernicke, 47, and nurse Helene Wieczorek, 42, died on the guillotine today in Moabit Prison for participating in the euthenasia killing of more than 600 mental patients at an asylum in eastern Germany during the Nazi regime.

They were the first women executed in Berlin since the war.

A German court condemned them after they were convicted of killing inmates at the Meseritz-Obrawalde Hospital with injections of drugs.

Also executed in Moabit today was Helmut Kaeufer, Berlin youth, convicted of the murder of his aunt last May.

ARMY WIFE FOUND HANGING IN REICH

Frankfurt, Jan. 14 (A. P.).—The body of a 24-year-old American mother identified by the Army as Mrs. Edith Emily Earnest of Merchantville, N. J., was found hanging in the cellar of her Nuernberg billet Sunday, authorities announced today.

The Army said that the circumstances surrounding her death still were under investigation and that no official cause of death had yet been announced. The official announcement added, however, that suicide was "indisputable."

The woman, mother of a three-months-old child, was the wife of Major Clyde T. Earnest, supply officer of the 1120th Engineers Group at Nuernberg. She had been in the European Theater since last July.

This was the first reported suicide among Army dependents here.

Denazification Court To Try Franz Von Papen

Nuernberg, Germany, Jan. 14 (AP)—Franz von Papen, German diplomat acquitted of war-crimes charges by the International Tribunal, will go on trial before a German denazification court in Nuernberg January 24, it was announced today.

Van Papen, indicted as a "major offender" for allegedly helping Adolf Hitler to power, will be tried before a court of seven judges in Nuernberg's City Hall, a former schoolhouse. His counsel will be Dr. Egon Kubuschok, who defended him before the International Tribunal. The penalty upon conviction might be ten years' imprisonment.

Yank Asks Power For Reich Police

Hamburg, Germany, Jan. 14 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Ernest Harmon, commander of the United States Constabulary in Germany, praised the German police today as "honest and efficient" and suggested they should be allowed to arrest anyone caught committing a crime, including American soldiers.

German police cannot now arrest displaced persons or occupying troops regardless of the situation, Harmon said. Anyone in these categories could "kill or rob or rape" under an arc light with fifteen German policemen watching, he said, but the officers could not legally do anything.

Constabulary Under Strength

The United States Constabulary, with a full strength of 32,000, is unable alone to police the occupation troops and the half million displaced persons in the American zone, Harmon said. The force is now 8,000 short of its authorized complement because of redeployment, he said.

Harmon envisaged the Germans eventually taking over almost the entire task of patrolling the borders of the Russian, French and British zones, which would relieve a sizable group of constabulary troops for fast, mobile action in trouble spots.

POLISH FACTIONS HURL CHARGES AS ELECTION NEARS

WARSAW, Jan. 14 (AP) Opposition leaders declared today that armed pro-government gangs were spreading terror among anti-government forces, and that the "last hope" had vanished that Poland's national elections next Sunday would be unfettered.

These accusations were promptly denied in a news conference by President Boleslaw Bierut. He also described as unfounded charges contained in British and American notes to Poland that the opposition was being suppressed and intimidated.

Ambassador Presented

Arthur Bliss Lane, U.S. Ambassador, received a note tonight from the foreign minister and, while the contents were not disclosed, an authoritative source said it contained a remainder to the United States that Poland considered the elections her own affair.

Bierut said that the charges in the American note were not supported by documented evidence and that he considered them "unfounded."

Asked to comment on accusations by the opposition leader, Vice-Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, that members of the Polish Peasant party (P.S.L.) had been stripped of their civil rights, the president replied:

"I don't know what kind of civil liberties Mikolajczk would alow if the P.S.L. won the election. In pre-war times we had less civil liberties than now. Mikolajczyk then was a political leader, and he showed no keenness to fight for civil liberties."

Bierut asserted he had definite proof that much of the terroristic activity in Poland could be traced to such Polish exiles as Gen. Wladislaw Anders and others opposed to the provisional regime.

Mikolajczyk said at a news conference that the government bloc of parties had refused to allow P.S.L. watchers at the voting places unless such watchers were recommended by bloc-controlled county sheriffs. This meant, he added, that the government bloc had exclusive control over the conduct of the elections and the subsequent counting of the votes, and removed the "last hope" of a fair deal.

"The responsibility for fulfilment of the Yalta and Potsdam decisions guaranteeing free and unfettered elections in Poland rests with the signatory powers," he added.

Says Terrorism Continues

The vice-premier said that, in addition to armed gangs of pro-government agitators, security policemen were beating up newsboys selling anti-government newspapers and were tearing down P.S.L. election posters.

Some of the armed gangs, he said, are operating from forests and have raided P.S.L. offices in many leading Polish cities. He said that the building housing his newspaper, Gazeta Ludowa, in the heart of Warsaw had been assaulted twice by "terroristic" gangs.

The vice-premier said that a total of 135 P.S.L. candidates for parliament had been jailed and about 250 candidates stricken off election lists.

But a government spokesman, citing what he termed [illegible] between P.S.L. and the underground, said there were substantial reasons for every arrest.

8 Poles Doomed As Members of Underground

Convicted of Crimes Against State; Lone Woman on Trial Gets 10-Year Term

WARSAW, Jan. 14 (AP).—Eight Poles, including Count Xavier Grocholski, were sentenced to death by Polish military tribunals today for crimes against the state.

Grocholski, forty-three; Waldemar Baczak, twenty-four, and Captain Witold Kalicki, thirty-six, were convicted of being members of an organization which sought to overthrow the Warsaw government by force. During the trial, Baczak testified that the British Ambassador to Poland had received state and military secrets from an underground organization known as W. I. N. (Wolnosc i Niepodleglosc, meaning "Freedom and Independence").

[The British Foreign Office has rejected any implication that the Ambassador, Victor Cavendish-Bentinck, plotted with the Polish underground for the overthrow of the Warsaw government. Cavendish-Bentinck is now in London for consultation on the Polish elections next Sunday.]

Kristyna Kosiorek, twenty-two, an attractive brunette, on trial with the trio, was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment.

The five others sentenced to death were convicted of being members of the N. S. Z. underground organization and of freeing eighty political prisoners from the Krakow prison in an attack last August.

Polish Count, 2 More Doomed For Treason

Warsaw, Jan. 14 (AP).—A Polish military tribunal today sentenced Count Kawery Grocholski and two other men to death for high treason on charges that they were members of an organization which sought to overthrow the Warsaw Government by force.

During the trial one of the defendants testified that the British Ambassador to Poland had received state and military secrets from the underground organization, known as WIN.

Condemned with Grocholski were Waldemar Baczak, 24, former employé of the Polish Foreign Ministry, and Capt. Witold Kalicki, 36, of the Interior Security Corps.

Dark-haired, attractive Chrystina Kosiorek, 22, the fourth defendant, was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment.

Another Court Adjourns Five

Another military court sentenced to death five members of the NSZ underground organization on charges of attacking the Krakow prison last August and freeing 80 political prisoners. Five others were given long prison terms.

Baczak's mother fainted when sentence was pronounced and was carried from the courtroom.

The presiding judge, Col. Martin Bartmn, said the defendants had been granted seven days in which to appeal to the Supreme Military Tribunal.

Collaboration Not Involved

He emphasized that Count Grocholski, 43-year-old key figure in the case, was sentenced on the high-treason charge and that an accusation concerning collaboration with the Nazis during the occupation was not within the province of the military tribunal.

The tribunal reviewed the indictment and evidence in the two-day trial held last wee kand the connections of the defendants with WIN, which stands for Wolnosc i Niepodleglosc, meaning freedom and independence.

Britain Rejects Implication

It did not comment directly on testimony given by Baczak concerning the alleged supply of state information on "the English Ambassador." The envoy, Victor Cavendish-Bentinck, is at present in London for consultations concerning the Polish elections next Sunday.

[The British Foreign Office on Friday night rejected any implication that Britain's Ambassador to Poland had plotted with an underground organization. While conceding that the Ambassador had had a long acquaintance with Count Grocholski, the Foreign Office said it was "satisfied that Mr. Cavendish-Bentinck has not been engaged in any improper activities, still less in activities directed against the Polish state."]

Delivered Envelopes, He Says

Baczak, the first witness, blurted out his identification of the British Ambassador despite warnings, and the three-judge tribunal immediately went into closed session, later admonishing the defendants to refer to the diplomat only as "the Ambassador" or "a certain gentleman."

Count Grocholski testified that on one accasion he delivered to the Ambasador two envelopes containing information from Kalicki. A Government spokesman said the contents of these envelopes could not be disclosed because state secrets allegedly were involved.

The Count acknowledged his membership in WIN, an organization the Government charged was financed by Gen. Wladyslaw Anders, wartime head of the Polish Corps which fought in Italy under the banner of the Polish Government in exile in London. The Government also charged WIN was carrying on espionage for "foreign powers" with the aim of overthrowing the regime by force.

Tsaldaris Says Liberal Party Won't Withdraw Its Support

Athens, Wednesday, Jan. 15 (AP).—Premier Constantin Tsaldaris said early today following a four-hour Cabinet meeting that the National Liberal party would not withdraw its support of Tsaldaris' Government, apparently removing the threat of a governmental collapse.

Although it was not disclosed what occurred at the Cabinet session, it was evident that Tsaldaris had weathered the most serious threat to date to his national leadership, which has been under heavy fire from opposition parties and from malcontents in Tsaldaris' Populist party.

No Question of Withdrawal

A statement issued by Tsaldaris said there now was no question of withdrawal of support by Stylianos Gonatas, Vice Premier, who told political intimates yesterday he planned to abandon his backing of the Government. The National Liberals voted yesterday to authorize Gonatas, their leader, to make the break.

It thus appeared that Tsaldaris had achieved some sort of temporary compromise with Gonatas.

Political circles conceded that if Gonatas had carried through his original plan the Tsaldaris Government would have fallen.

The National Liberals control 32 seats in Parliament. These, plus the 142 held by the recognized opposition, would give Tsaldaris's opponents exactly half of the parliamentary votes.

'Tragedy' Blamed On British

Earlier Tsaldaris, informed of the problem demanded for a vote of confidence, said that he would support any coalition government formed by his opponents, so long as he agreed with its general policies.

He also said that he would be willing to serve as one of two vice premiers — along with 86-year-old Themistokles Sophoulis, Liberal leader—if an agreement could be reached on the selection of a Premier. But Sophoulis already had declined to serve under such an arrangement.

[In Rome, Alexander Svolos, Greek Socialist leader, placed the blame for the Greek "tragedy" on the British, and said that a "civil war" was raging in northern Greece, where Government troops are fighting Leftist guerrillas.

[Svolos, in Italy as a guest of the Italian Socialist party, said that "the British-supported Government has persecuted the Left" and declared that mountain guerrilla forces "are not foreign-led forces but Greek people persecuted by the Government."]

Fourteen Reported Killed

Athens press reports continued to tell of fighting to the north, with ten guerrillas and four gendarmes listed as killed in the last 24 hours in six clashes in western Macedonia.

Athens newspapers quoted official sources as saying that a band which blew up two bridges near Doiran and Mournies probably came from Yugoslavia.

Other dispatches said that 300 insurgents looted the village of Poa near Komotine, in Thrace, yesterday, and that similar raids were made on five other villages.

The Ministry of Public Order announced that a bus was struck by a mine on the Salonika highway near Kozane, with two persons killed and four injured.

Fall Of Cabinet Seems Likely In Greece

Athens, Jan. 14 (AP).—The fall of Premier Constantin Tsaldaris's Government appeared imminent today following the disclosure that Vice Premier Stylianos Gonatas intends to withdraw the support of his National Liberal party.

The National Liberals, who have been voting consistently for Tsaldaris, control 32 seats in Parliament. These votes, plus the 142 held by the recognized opposition, would give Tsaldaris's opponents exactly half the votes in Parliament.

Gonatas's action, disclosed to his intimates, came after Tsaldaris had offered the vice premiership to 86-year-old Themistokles Sophoulis, a former Premier, last night.

Called New Misstep

Gonatas told his associates that if Sophoulis would accept "a common program for all" he would support the elder statesman for Premier, but that otherwise he would favor the formation of a coalition government with a premier who enjoys the confidence of all parties. Tsaldaris has been Premier since April 18, 1946.

Tsaldaris's step in offering Sophoulis the vice premiership without consulting Gonatas was regarded in political circles as the second recent action tending to weaken his position. He had previously offered the Ministry of Co-Ordination, the Foreign Ministry and one other key ministry to the opposition if they would enter the Government.

The present Co-Ordination Minister, Stephan Stephanopoulos, is one of the most powerful members of the Populist party, and Tsaldaris's offer to give away his Cabinet post was believed to have alienated Stephanopoulos completely.

Resignation Demanded

Gonatas said he would announce his final decision at a Cabinet meeting tonight, after a party session during the day. Sophocles Venizelos, leader of the opposition, was already on record with a flat demand for Tsaldaris's resignation in favor of a new coalition government.

Press reports, meanwhile, said ten members of insurgent bands were killed and fourteen captured in six clashes in western Macedonia in the last 24 hours. Four gendarmes were reported slain.

The dispatches, quoting official sources, said there were indications that a band which blew up two bridges near Doiran and Mournies came from Yugoslavia and was helped by local Communists.

British Influence Hit

Rome, Jan. 14 (AP)—A Greek Socialist leader said here today that unless conditions in Greece took a turn for the better within three months, a "moderate solution" of the nation's problems would be impossible.

Alexander Svolos, veteran political leader, urged that Britain withdraw her troops and added that, "although I hate to use the phrase, what we have in northern Greece today is civil war."

Solos was a guest delegate to the twenty-fifth National Italian Socialist party congress, which closed yesterday. He said he hoped the commission being sent to Greece by the United Nations Security Council to examine the situation "will soon comprehend how things stand." He said civil liberties there had been wiped out for all but party leaders, and that Socialist workers and organizers "are either in prison or in exile."

He said the British were responsible for "the whole evolution of the situation in Greece, because they have supported the Right (wing)," and declared the British morally responsible "for the daily outrages committed by the Greek Army and gendarmerie, because those forces are under British command."

Italian Socialists Name Lelio Basso To Post

Rome, Jan. 14 (AP)—Lelio Basso was elected secretary general of the Italian Socialist party tonight—an action which observers interpreted as sealing the Socialists' avowed intention to march henceforth with the Italian Communists.

The Socialists' new directorate also named Pietro Nenni, Foreign Minister, and two other members as a liaison committee with the Communists.

Basso, a Milan attorney, is known as the "spiritual mover" of the Socialist party's fusionist aims. The question of working with the Communists led to a split in the Socialist ranks at the party's twenty-fifth congress last week. Anti-collaboration Socialists have decided to form a new party.

ARMY SUSPENDS YANK TITO FREED

Vienna, Jan. 14 (A. P.).—The civilian personnel section of the Adjutant-General's Office said today that Roy H. Stoeckel whose unauthorized trip across the border brought him a Yugoslav jail term of nearly six months, had been excused from duty today with instructions to "take it easy until the investigation of your case is completed."

An Army officer said that Stoeckel was placed under suspension. Until his unauthorized trip into Yugoslav from the British Zone, Stoeckel was in the property office for the Ordnance Section at Wels, in the American Zone of Austria. His home is in Kearny, N. J.

Spain Executes Two as Plotters

MADRID, Jan. 14 (AP).—Jose Antonio Llerandi, thirty, propaganda secretary of the underground "Democratic Alliance" for central Spain, and Jose Isasa Olaizola, thirty-six, who testified he came from Argentina to head a guerrilla army, were executed by a firing squad at Carabanchel Prison early today, it was reported officially.

Nazi Ex-Aide Suicide in Lisbon

LISBON, Portugal, Jan. 14 (AP)—Usually reliable informants said Herbert Wissman, wartime press attaché of the German propaganda chief in Lisbon, committed suicide with poison when police closed in upon his apartment hiding place today to send him back to Germany.

Red Headquarters Uncovered in Iraq

Baghdad, Iraq, Jan. 13 (Delayed), (A. P.).—Baghdad police reported today the discovery of the secret headquarters of a communist underground movement and the seizure of large quantities of press material, magazines, leaflets and flags in the home of a student. Two persons were arrested.

Indonesia Civilian Toll Set At 1,000

Singapore, Jan. 14 (AP) — Chan Yang-si, president of the Palembang Overseas Chinese Association, reported today that fighting between Dutch and Indonesian forces in Palembang early this month had caused civilian casualties totaling more than 1,000 dead, wounded or missing.

Chan, here to appeal for food to avert a "grave crisis" which he said threatened the population of Palembang, told a news conference that Dutch forces had bombarded the Sumatra city without giving civilians an opportunity to evacuate their homes. He also accused "Indonesian riff-raff" of wanton attacks on Chinese on the ground the Chinese were aiding the Dutch.

Grounded Transport Freed

Yokohama, Jan. 14 (AP)—The Army transport General Patrick docked today after spending Monday aground outside the harbor breakwater. None of her passengers — 1,700 troops — was injured. She was towed off by tugs at high tide last night.

Cruiser Chicago Homeward Bound

Yokosuka, Jan. 14 (A. P.)—The heavy cruiser Chicago, which has been the flagship of Cruiser Division One, steamed today for Bremerton, Wash. The Chicago, now commanded by Capt. A. F. Junker of Pittsburgh, participated in the first bombardments of the Japanese home islands.

The flag was shifted to the cruiser Fall River.

INDIA COMMUNIST OFFICES RAIDED

New Delhi, Jan. 14 (A. P.).—Raids on Communist headquarters and private quarters were conducted widely over India today after publication in Communist newspapers of parts of an interior defense plan. Delhi police raided twenty offices and homes of Communists in search of what they said was a secret document. They did not describe the document. It was indicated, however, that recovery of the defense plan itself was sought.

No arrests were reported in Delhi. The press information section of the Government of India said the raids were not ordered by the central government, but evidently were carried out by the co-operation of provincial administrations.

F. H. G. Bridgeman, Superintendent of the Criminal Investigation Division, said that a number of copies of a pamphlet called "Operation Asylum" were seized. This pamphlet, published some months ago, purported to contain extracts of India's internal security plan. It was proscribed by the Bengal Provincial Government.

GOP to Speed Bill To Continue Excise Taxes Indefinitely

ACTION ASSURES INCOME TAX CUT, KNUTSON ASSERTS

Move Would Act as Spur to Many Businesses, He Declares.

URGED BY TRUMAN

Wartime Levies on Liquor, Furs and Jewelry Involved in Decision.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 — (AP) Chairman Knutson (R.-Minn.) of the Ways and Means committee announced today that House Republican tax managers will sponsor quick passage of legislation to continue indefinitely the high wartime excise levies on liquor, furs, jewelry and many other goods and services.

The measure, forestalling an automatic rollback of the excise list on July 1 with an annual revenue loss of $1,500,000,000, will be given precedence over all other tax bills. Knutson said it might be approved by the tax-framing committee on Friday.

Truman Urged Continuance

Such action would coincide with a recommendation made by President Truman in a message to Congress last week.

Knutson said action to keep the war rates indefinitely is necessary to deal with distress threatened in some businesses. In some lines customers are delaying purchases pending the tax reductions.

The bill would remove the incentive to stop buying in anticipation of tax cuts," Knutson told reporters.

With the continuation of the $1,500,000,000 in annual revenue from the war rates, he said, a 20 per cent slash in individual income taxes this year, as proposed in his house bill No. 1, "will be easy."

Knutson made his statement following a meeting of the 15 Republican members of the Ways and Means group, and he said the feeling was unanimous that "the country should be told what to expect" in excise levies.

The Republican decision reversed a previous stand. After the first meeting of the GOP members of the tax framing committee it was announced that they would press for immediate removal of the high levies. That move also had been planned in part to send the buyers back to stores.

Study Budget Monday

The Ways and Means chairman announced to the House, meanwhile, that he will call the joint Senate-House budget committee to its first meeting on Monday, to review President Truman's $37,500,000,000 budget recommendations and for congress to put its own ceiling on government expenditures.

Chairman Taber, (R-NY) of the House Appropriations Committee and Rep. Dirksen (R-Ill), an appropriations committee member, both took the House floor today to demand a sharp shearing of the President's recommendations for expenditures in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Taber told the legislative body that "you must tell the bureaucrats 'you have got to clean house.'" Dirksen declared "the best approach congress can make is to rebuild the budget from the bottom up, rather than to start cheese paring from the top down."

Knutson said, "based on Taber's statement that the budget can be held down, a 20 per cent tax reduction will be comparatively easy, and we should be able to pay four or five billions on the public debt."

He argued that the tax reduction will accelerate business to such an extent that revenue collections will drop only about $1,000,000,000 this year and actually be larger next year.

Knutson said the bill continuing the war excise rates indefinitely will be introduced by Rep. Grant (R-Ind). Grant said he will have the bill in the hopper in time for the Ways and Means committee to act on it Friday if it desired.

Allows Income Tax Cut

A committee spokesman told reporters that continuation of the wartime rates would be necessary to clear the way for the Republican proposal to slash individual income taxes this year by 20 per cent, for an overall $3,350,000,000 easement of the income tax burden.

"We have got to cut the cloth to fit the pattern," the spokesman said. "We may not be able to do both, that is cut individual income taxes and let the excise rates drop."

Moreover, he emphasized that uncertainty over the tax is hurting many businesses, as consumers delay purchases while waiting for the automatic rollback of the wartime levies on July 1.

Speaker Martin (R-Mass) told reporters "it is necessary to act one way or the other quickly," to remove this uncertainty.

The spokesman for Ways and Means Republicans said the removal of the rollback date probably would mean there would be no further consideration of excise cuts this year.

Without legislation, the liquor tax would drop July 1 from $9 to $6 a proof gallon, with a loss of over $880,000,000 annually in this one item in the excise list.

If a bill is enacted eliminating the expiration date, the levy on furs, jewelry, luggage and cosmetics will be held beyond July 1 at 20 per cent, instead of dropping back to 10 per cent.

Theater tickets will continue to have a 20 per cent levy instead of 10; night clubs 20 per cent instead of 5; telephone long distance calls 25 per cent instead of 20; local telephone, 15 per cent instead of 10; transportation tickets at 15 per cent instead of 10.

MOVE TO RETAIN HIGH EXCISE TAX RATE REPORTED

Republicans in Key Position Said to Favor Extension of Wartime Impost.

ON LIQUOR, FURS, JEWELRY

Ways and Means Members Feel That Otherwise the Income Levy Cannot Be Cut.

Washington, Jan. 14 (A. P.).—A decision that wartime tax rates on liquor, furs, jewelry and some other items should be extended indefinitely was reported reached today at a meeting of Republican members of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

One member, asking not to be quoted by name, told a reporter the feeling was that continuation of these levies "may be necessary to grant a reduction in taxes on individual incomes."

Under present law, the wartime rates on liquor, transportation, telephone charges, and some other items are due to drop to about prewar levels on July 1. The liquor tax, for instance, would go down from $9 to $6 a gallon.

The extra rates imposed during the war brought in about $1,500,000,000 a year. President Truman urged in a message to Congress last week that the wartime rates be continued.

Committeemen's Attitude.

The committee member told reporters the feeling apparently was that:

1. Congress should go ahead and decide soon what it will do about those wartime rates. He said business now is being hurt in some lines by consumers delaying purchases in anticipation of tax rollbacks in July on specific items.

2. It may not be possible to make income tax reductions if the wartime rates are not continued.

Representative Knutson (R.-Minn.), chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, is pushing a bill to cut individual income taxes by 20 per cent in 1947, reducing tax collections by $3,350,000,000.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder told Congress in a report today that the nation "cannot afford a general reduction of tax rates." He said high level taxes must be maintained not only to get a budget surplus for debt reduction but also to hold down inflationary pressures—presumably by draining off some of the buying power exerting "upward pressures on prices."

The Secretary's comments were made in a letter transmitting to Congress the annual report on "The State of the Finances." The report covered the fiscal year ended last June 30.

11 Million Men in World's Major Armies, in Second Year of Peace

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 — (AP) The second year of peace finds an estimated 11,000,000 men and women in the world's major armies.

This figure is based on a compilation made by Maj. Hal D. Steward of El Paso, Texas, mainly from War Department intelligence reports, for an article in the current issue of the semi-official armored Cavalry Journal.

Maj. Steward, a cavalry officer, stressed that the report does not pretend to be wholly accurate since secrecy and evasion cloak the strength of some countries, notably Russia which is believed to have the world's largest army at present.

Difficult to Estimate

The five major world powers have an estimated total of 8,650,000 including 2,700,000 in the Chinese national army. In addition, Communist China is reported to have nearly 1,000,000 men in service. "It is hard, however, to obtain any accurate figure on Chinese forces as each war lord has his own army of undetermined size," Maj. Steward said.

No army in the world today was reported anywhere near its top wartime strength. Peak strength of the Russian army at the height of World War II was reported to be 20,000,000. The United States had 8,300,000. China had about 6,000,000.

"It is widely known that Russia maintains extreme secrecy about the strength of the Russian army," Maj. Steward said, "that any figure can be grossly inadequate."

His information is that the Russian army now numbers about 3,000,000—the largest of the five major powers. China comes next with about 2,700,000 regulars in the national army, Britain third with about 1,500,000, the United States fourth with 1,300,000 and France fifth with 150,000.

Russian Figures

No information is available on the Russian air force, said Maj. Steward, although the U. S. S. R. was reported to have had 4,000 planes at the beginning of the last war. The Red navy was figured by Steward at three battleships and smaller craft, with a growing submarine fleet.

The major said Russia is reported increasing her military strength but he cautioned that the report is hearsay.

One of the largest armies, he 30.24-7361

said, is maintained by Yugoslavia—nearly 800,000 of whom ten percent are women.

Spain's forces were shown to number about 300,000 men.

Brazil, the only South America country to send a large expeditionary force overseas in the Second World War, had about 1,000,000 men under arms then. The country's permanent peacetime strength is reported to be around 100,000 men. Regular army strength of Argentina is supposed to be around 45,000 men, however, it is reported that she had nearly 500,000 men in active service during the last war.

ITALY GETS LOAN, SPEEDY DELIVERY OF WHEAT SUPPLY

U. S. Promises Premier De Gasperi $100,000,000 for Revival of Industry.

FOOD CRISIS EASED

Wheat on Way to Germany Is Diverted to Several Italian Ports.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—The United States promised Italy $100,000,000 in credits today for long-haul revival of industry, and took emergency action to get 50,000 tons of wheat into the country to stave off famine and food riots now.

Both moves were disclosed as Italian Premier Alcide de Gasperi waited at the airport for the weather to clear so he could fly home after a successful 10-day mission to the United States. Later the flight was cancelled on account of thick weather, and reset to start at 1 p.m. (EST) tomorrow.

Loan Quickly Given

The credit was provided in an unexpected announcement from the export-import bank that it had decided to earmark $100,000,000 "to restore and expand specific segments of Italian industry."

The wheat is aboard six American ships which set out for occupied Germany with relief supplies. Assistant Secretary of War Howard C. Petersen announced that they were diverted in response to an emergency request from the State Department last Friday for quick help for UNRRA in Italy.

Radio messages were sent by the War Department the same night ordering the ships to change course and head for Italian ports instead of their original destination, Bremen.

One ship will dock at Palermo, two at Naples, two at Genoa and one at Bari. The first ship is due at Genoa, Monday.

The rerouting of the ships was ordered after a check of records showed that food stocks in the American zone of Germany will, with other shipments en route, be sufficient for pressing needs until UNRRA can return six shiploads later this month.

The Export Import Bank said that eventual extension of the actual credits "will depend in each instance upon conditions in Italy of stability and upon its ability to provide for other imports essential to the maintenance of its economy."

In effect the bank, which heretofore had steadfastly opposed the credit in fear that it would not be repaid, compromised with State Department officials who had vigorously championed a loan. While not granting an outright loan, the bank's directors committed themselves to set aside this amount for chosen Italian industries.

To Speed Up Industry

Government officials said the money probably will be used by concerns turning out cotton textiles, chemicals, automobiles, iron and steel, tobacco and merchant ships. The credit will go for raw materials badly needed by these industries, which have a recognized export market in which to obtain the foreign exchange needed to repay the credit.

The Export-Import Bank reportedly agreed to this plan at a meeting of top administration strategists last night.

The credit, plus additional assurances of economic aid, were the main aims of de Gasperi's trip. The promise undoubtedly strengthened his position in the Italian coalition government, now threatened with a crisis by a split in the socialist party.

ITALY PROMISED AMERICAN CREDIT OF $100,000,000

Aid Is Made Dependent on Stable Conditions in Borrowing Country.

Washington, Jan. 14 (A. P.).—The United States gave the Italian Premier, Alcide de Gasperi, farewell assurances of $100,000,000 in credits for his country today as he prepared to return to Rome. Less than three hours before De Gasperi was scheduled to board a plane for the return trip, the Export-Import Bank announced that it had decided to "earmark" such a sum to help "specific segments of Italian industry."

The bank told the Italian Foreign Trade Minister, Pieto Campilli, however, that the extension of a series of "individual credits" to Italian industry depend "upon conditions in Italy of stability and upon its ability to provide for other imports essential to the maintenance of its economy."

Government officials saw this statement as an implied warning to the Italians that political disturbances may cause the bank to change its mind. Heretofore, the bank had opposed the idea of an outright loan to Italy.

Under the formula laid down by the Export-Import Bank Italian industries which can expand their exports and thus earn the foreign exchange needed to repay will be the ones that will get financial assistance.

Martin Announces Credit.

The bank's announcement was made by Chairman William McChesney Martin Jr.

Martin told Campilli that the bank had decided that "it must bring to an end its program of large emergency reconstruction loans" and that it was therefore impossible for the board to approve a central credit of $100,000,000 to Italy, but then Martin added:

"As a result, however, of our discussions with you and your associates and of our further studies of the Italian problem, the board of directors of the Export-Import Bank is willing to consider the extension during 1947 of credits, with maturities appropriate to the circumstances in each case, for the purpose of assisting specific segments of Italian industry to restore and expand their markets, and the bank has earmarked for such purpose a total of $100,000,000."

French Oil Protest To Get U. S. Reply

Plea Against Arabia Deal Hasn't Been Rejected

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP).—A State Department official, reversing a previous announcement, said today that the United States is giving full consideration to a French protest against a transaction by American and other oil companies in Saudi Arabia.

Lincoln White, department press officer, said that the United States has not rejected the protest delivered last week by Ambassador Henri Bonnet, and that a reply will be made after this government's position has been determined.

Mr. White told reporters there has been no reconsideration of the previous announcement that the dispute involved private concerns and was not on an inter-governmental level, but said he had been "misinformed" earlier.

The French protested against an arrangement of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the Socony-Vacuum Company to take over a 40 per cent interest in Saudi Arabia oil concessions owned by the Arabian-American Oil Company. The French contended this violated a 1920 agreement by which British, French, American and Dutch concerns undertook not to act separately in this area.

U. S. Will Return 6 Ships to Finland

Washington, Jan. 14 (A. P.).—President Truman today directed the Maritime Commission to arrange for the immediate return of six vessels taken from Finland during the war. The order leaves for later determination the question of any compensation to the Finnish owners.

These merchant vessels are now tied up in this country. They are the M. S. Saimaa, the S. S. Aacot, the S. S. Olivia, the S. S. Advance, the S. S. Kuurtanes, and the S. S. Koura.

The President's order said the Finnish Government asked for the immediate return of the ships and added that "the United States no longer has need for the said vessels."

Donald Russell Resigns, First of Byrnes's Aids

Assistant Was Long-Time Associate of Chief; Cohen and Acheson May Leave

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP).—Assistant Secretary of State Donald Russell, close friend and long-time associate of James F. Byrnes, retiring Secretary of State resigned today.

It was the first of an expected series of changes in the State Department under the leadership of General George C. Marshall.

Mr. Russell, forty, had been associated with Mr. Byrnes in various war-time posts, including the Office of War Mobilization.

As for other possible resignations, Benjamin Cohen, one-time idea man for the late President Roosevelt, who was also brought into the department by Mr. Byrnes, has been most frequently mentioned in speculation.

General Marshall will also have an opportunity to decide whether he wants to retain other top department authorities, including Assistant Secretary of State Spruille Braden, whose management of Argentine policy has been in controversy for months, and Assistant Secretary of State William Benton, known for his development of an international information program.

Under Secretary of State Dean Acheson has signified his determination to return to private law practice, but recently he assured President Truman that if General Marshall wanted him—he would stay on for a few months.

Meanwhile, confirmation of Willard L. Thorp, of Connecticut to be an Assistant Secretary of State was recommended by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The committee approved an additional assignment for Warren Austin, United States representative on the United Nations Security Council. Mr. Austin will serve as this nation's representative on the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission.

Also approved was the nomination of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, to be the American member of the Human Rights Commission of the U. N. Economic and Social Council for a term of four years.

Probe Units' Existence Hit

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP)—Senate Democrats aimed a political haymaker today at the War Investigating Committee, hoping to defeat the Republican majority in the first true test vote of the new Congress.

Democratic leaders lined up what some prospective members described as a "Young Guard" policy committee, its chief business being to take apart Republican legislation. This group also will defend in general the lawmaking program recommended by President Truman.

Punches Already Thrown

Without awaiting formal appointment, some senators who expect to be on the new committee already are throwing punches at the Republican proposal to continue the life of the War Investigating Committee through 1947.

Senator Tydings (Md.) and O'Mahoney (Wyo.) have voiced sharp opposition on the grounds that to set up special committees to take over the work of standing committees would violate the spirit if not the letter of the Congressional Reorganization Act.

Tydings Possible Member

Tydings and O'Mahoney are reported under consideration for appointment to the new Democratic policy group, which also may include Senators Russell of Georgia, Hatch of New Mexico, Hill of Alabama and Green of Rhode Island. Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) would be chairman.

If it is chosen officially, it will be its job, some prospective members said, to be on hand to fight just such proposals as that made by the Republicans to keep the War Investigating and Small Business committees in existence.

Test May Come Tomorrow

How well they have functioned in an informal way may be demonstrated tomorrow when the Senate takes up this question again. Neither party, each with about a half-dozen absentees, was ready to vote yesterday.

Republicans were to discuss the situation at a meeting of all party members late this afternoon.

Couple Is Convicted Of Helping Nazi Escape

Detroit, Jan. 14 (AP)—Joan McBride and her husband, James, were convicted today of conspiring to aid in the escape of Rudolph Soelch, a German prisoner of war.

A jury of twelve women in Federal court found the couple guilty on both counts of an indictment charging conspiracy to assist Soelch in escaping from a California prison camp and of harboring him.

THE BROADCAST, BASED ON A TASS DISPATCH, ALSO CREDITED "AUTHORITATIVE SOVIET CIRCLES" WITH THE STATEMENT THAT THE 1920 SPITSBERGEN TREATY "CANNOT REMAIN VALID."

AMONG THE POWERS WHICH SIGNED THE 1920 TREATY, THE BROADCAST SAID, WERE "STATES WHICH FOUGHT AGAINST THE ALLIES" IN THE SECOND WORLD WAR. RUSSIA WAS NOT APARTY TO THAT PACT WHICH WAS SIGNED IN PARIS.

"THE (1920) TREATY UTTERLY DISREGARDS THE INTERESTS OF SECURITY OF THE U.S.S.R. IN THE NORTH AS WELL AS IMPORTANT ECONOMIC INTERESTS OF THE SOVIET UNION," THE BROADCAST SAID.

THE ARCHIPELAGO OF SPITSBERGEN, LOCATED BETWEEN GREENLAND AND NOVAYA ZEMLYA, HAS A TOTAL AREA OF 25,000 SQUARE MILES. THE MAIN ISLANDS ARE WEST SPITSBERGEN, NORTH-EAST LAND, EDGE ISLAND, BARENTS ISLAND, PRINCE CHARLES FORELAND, HOPE ISLAND AND THE WICHE ISLAND GROUP.

NUMEROUS FJORDS PENETRATE FAR INLAND IN WEST SPITSBERGEN, THE LARGEST ISLAND OF THE ARCHIPELAGO. GLACIERS FILL THE VALLEYS EXCEPT IN THE SOUTHERN INTERMIOR WHERE THEY HAVE RECEDED. THE SEA AROUND THE ISLANDS IS SHALLOW AND ICE READILY ACCUMULATES ALONG THE SHORES.

SINCE ABOUT 1870 THE QUESTION OF POLITICAL CONTROL OF THE ISLANDS HAS BEEN DISCUSSED AT VARIOUS TIMES BY NORWAY, SWEDEN AND RUSSIA.

THE SIGNATORIES OF THE 1920 TREATY, TO WHICH THE MOSCOW BROADCAST REFERRED, WERE GREAT BRITAIN AND THE BRITISH DOMINIONS, FRANCE, ITALY, THE UNITED STATES, JAPAN, THE NETHERLANDS, DENMARK, NORWAY AND SWEDEN. RATIFICATION WAS DELAYED, HOWEVER, AND NORWEGIAN SOVEREIGNTY DID NOT BECOME EFFECTIVE UNTIL AUGUST, 1925. SUBSEQUENTLY RUSSIA ADHERED TO THE TREATY.

U.N.

BY JOHN A. PARRIS, JR.

NEW YORK, JAN. 14-(AP)-AUTHORITATIVE SOURCES SAID TODAY PRESIDENT TRUMAN WOULD SUBMIT TO CONGRESS WITHIN TWO WEEKS A COMPLETE REPORT ON AMERICAN OPERATIONS IN THE UNITED NATIONS, PROBABLY PLACING SHARP EMPHASIS ON ATOMIC ENERGY CONTROL.

THE PRESIDENT, THESE SOURCES SAID, MAY TAKE THE OPPORTUNITY OF SPOTLIGHTING THE ATOMIC CONTROL QUESTION IN A LETTER ACCOMPANYING THE REPORT.

THE REPORT IS NOW BEING DRAFTED BY THE AMERICAN U.N. DELEGATION AND IS EXPECTED TO BE COMPLETED THIS WEEK. IT WILL COVER ALL FIELDS OF WORK IN THE UNITED NATIONS.

MEANWHILE, THE SECURITY COUNCIL PREPARED TO MEET TOMORROW AT 11 A.M. (EST) TO CONTINUE DISCUSSIONS ON ATOMIC ENERGY CONTROL AND WORLD DISARMAMENT.

AT THAT TIME, THE BASIC ARGUMENT BETWEEN RUSSIA AND THE UNITED STATES OVER PRIORITY FOR ATOMIC ENERGY CONTROL OR GENERAL DISARMAMENT MAY BE RESOLVED.

AUTHORITATIVE SOURCES SAID GREAT BRITAIN WOULD SUPPORT THE U.S. IN INSISTING THAT ATOMIC ENERGY CONTROL BE GIVEN PRIORITY IF THERE IS A SHOWDOWN WITH RUSSIA.

RUSSIA IS INSISTING THAT "ALL PHASES" OF WORLD DISARMAMENT BE TAKEN UP IMMEDIATELY. ATOMIC ENERGY WOULD BE INCLUDED, BUT WITHOUT ANY SPECIAL PRIORITY WHICH THE AMERICANS DEEM NECESSARY.

MOST SECURITY COUNCIL DELEGATIONS BELIEVED IT UNLIKELY THAT ANY ACTION WOULD BE TAKEN IN TOMORROW'S SESSION. THE MOST THEY EXPECTED WAS "A LOT OF DISCUSSION."

IT WAS POINTED OUT THAT THE U.S. IS NOW IN THE MIDST OF A SERIES OF ADMINISTRATIVE CHANGES THAT INVOLVE BOTH THE ATOMIC CONTROL AND DISARMAMENT DISCUSSIONS.

THESE CHANGES INCLUDE GEN. GEORGE MARSHALL'S APPOINTMENT TO SUCCEED JAMES BYRNES AS SECRETARY OF STATE AND WARREN R. AUSTIN'S ASSUMPTION OF THE POST HELD BY BERNARD M. BARUCH ON THE ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION.

BUT AMERICAN SOURCES SAID THEY DID NOT EXPECT ANY CHANGE IN U.S. POLICY ON ATOMIC ENERGY CONTROL WHEN MARSHALL AND AUSTIN ASSUME THEIR NEW DUTIES.

THEY POINTED OUT THAT THE U.S. HAS A "FIRM" POLICY ON ATOMIC ENERGY, A POLICY THEY EXPLAINED THAT WAS NOT THE BRAIN-CHILD OF ANY ONE MAN BUT HAD BEEN AGREED UPON BY "ALL UP AND DOWN THE LINE."

A20

AUSTIN CONFERRED FOR MORE THAN 45 MINUTES YESTERDAY WITH BARUCH IN NEW YORK. AUTHORITATIVE SOURCES SAID BARUCH CLARIFIED FOR AUSTIN SEVERAL PARTS OF THE U.S. ATOMIC ENERGY CONTROL PLAN NOW BEFORE THE SECURITY COUNCIL.

THESE SOURCES SAID THAT AUSTIN AGREED WITH BARUCH THAT THE VETO SHOULD NOT BE USED TO PREVENT PUNISHMENT FOR VIOLATORS OF ATOMIC LAW. THE RUSSIANS HAVE OBJECTED TO A PROVISION IN THE AMERICAN PLAN FOR ABOLITION OF THE GREAT POWER VETO IN CONNECTION WITH ATOMIC CONTROL VIOLATORS.

MEMBERS OF THE BRITISH DELEGATION SAID THEY HOPED THAT THE ATOMIC ENERGY CONTROL AND GENERAL DISARMAMENT COULD BE DISCUSSED AND HANDLED SIMULTANEOUSLY BY THE SECURITY COUNCIL. THEY SAID, HOWEVER, THAT ATOMIC CONTROL SHOULD HAVE PRIORITY OVER GENERAL DISARMAMENT.

"WE HOPE THAT THE ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION WILL BE TOLD TO GO AHEAD WITH ITS WORK AND THAT SOME COMMISSION WILL BE SET UP TO DELVE INTO THE FIELD OF GENERAL DISARMAMENT," ONE BRITISH SOURCE SAID.

ROME, JAN.14-(AP)-THE ITALIAN FOREIGN OFFICE SAID TODAY THAT FOREIGN MINISTER PIETRO NENNI, ACTING PREMIER, PROBABLY WOULD POSTPONE "FOR A FEW DAYS" HIS VISIT TO LONDON, WHICH WAS SCHEDULED TO START NEXT MONDAY.

A WELL-INFORMED SOURCE ATTRIBUTED THE ACTING PREMIER'S DECISION TO DELAY THE TRIP, WHICH WAS BEING ARRANGED AT THE INVITATION OF BRITISH FOREIGN SECRETARY ERNEST BEVIN, TO THE CONFUSED POLITICAL SITUATION GROWING OUT OF LAST WEEK'S SPLIT IN NENNI'S SOCIALIST PARTY OVER HIS POLICY OF COLLABORATION WITH THE COMMUNISTS.

THIS INFORMANT ALSO SAID PREMIER ALCIDE DE GASPERI PROBABLY WOULD FIND A FULL-FLEDGED CABINET CRISIS AWAITING HIM UPON HIS RETURN FROM THE UNITED STATES.

THE SECRETARY OF GIUSEPPE SARAGAT, LEADER OF THE ANTI-COMMUNIST SOCIALIST INSURGENTS, ANNOUNCED LAST NIGHT THAT SARAGAT HAD SUBMITTED HIS RESIGNATION AS PRESIDENT OF ITALY'S CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY. NENNI SAID THE WITHDRAWAL OF THE ANTI-COMMUNISTS FROM THE SOCIALIST PARTY HAD MADE IT CLEAR THE PARTY'S PACT OF UNITED ACTION WITH THE COMMUNISTS HENCEFORTH "CEASES TO BE A FORMULA AND BECOMES A CONCRETE FACT."

HIS REAFFIRMATION OF THE SOCIALIST-COMMUNIST WORKING AGREEMENT CAME AS THE SOCIALISTS ENDED THEIR 25TH CONGRESS, WHICH WAS HIGHLIGHTED BY THE SPLIT OVER COMMUNIST-SOCIALIST COOPERATION.

WARSAW, POLAND, JAN.14-(AP)-PRESIDENT BOLESLAW BIERUT DESCRIBED AS "UNFOUNDED" TONIGHT CHARGES IN U.S. AND BRITISH NOTES THAT CONDITIONS IN POLAND VIRTUALLY PRECLUDED A FREE ELECTION NEXT SUNDAY.

THE CHIEF OPPONENT OF THE MOSCOW-SPONSORED GOVERNMENT, VICE-PREMIER STANISLAW MIKOLAJCZYK, SAID THE BIERUT REGIME HAD ERASED THE LAST CHANCE OF A FREE VOTE AND THAT THE RESPONSIBILITY WAS DIRECTLY UP TO THE SIGNATORIES OF THE YALTA AND POTSDAM AGREEMENTS--THE UNITED STATES, RUSSIA AND BRITAIN.

THE POLISH FOREIGN MINISTER DELIVERED A NOTE LATE TODAY TO U.S. AMBASSADOR ARTHUR B.LANE WHICH, AN AUTHORITATIVE SOURCE SAID, REMINDED THE UNITED STATES THAT POLAND CONSIDERED THE ELECTION AN INTERNAL AFFAIR AND NOT AN ISSUA FOR OUTSIDE INTERFERENCE.

THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH NOTES CHARGED SUPPRESSION, COERCION AND INTIMIDATION OF MIKOLAJCZYK'S POLISH PEASANT PARTY. ASKED FOR COMMENT, BIERUT ASSERTED:

"THOSE CHARGES ARE OF A GENERAL CHARACTER AND NOT THOSE OF DOCUMENTED EVIDENCE. I CONSIDER THOSE CHARGES UNFOUNDED."

HE SAID HE DID NOT KNOW "WHAT KIND OF CIVIL LIBERTIES MIKOLAJCZYK WOULD ALLOW IF HIS PARTY WON THE ELECTION." HE CHARGED THAT BEFORE THE WAR, POLAND "HAD LESS CIVIL LIBERTIES THAN NOW, AND MIKOLAJCZYK THEN WAS A POLITICAL LEADER, AND HE SHOWED NO KEENNESS TO FIGHT FOR CIVIL LIBERTIES."

MIKOLAJCZYK TOLD ANOTHER NEWS CONFERENCE EARLIER THAT GROSS IRREGULARITIES WERE OCCURRING IN ALL PARTS OF POLAND AND THAT FIVE PROMINENT MEMBERS OF HIS PARTY HAD DIED FROM BEATINGS AND TORTURE ADMINISTERED BY SECURITY POLICE AND GOVERNMENT ADHERENTS.

1947

HE SAID ARMED GANGS OF PRO-GOVERNMENT AGITATORS WERE ROARMING THE STREETS OF WARSAW AND THAT SECURITY POLICE HAD BEATEN UP NEWSBOYS SELLING MIKOLAJCZYK'S NEWSPAPER, GAZETA LUDOWA, AND TORN DOWN POSTERS OF THE OPPOSITION POLISH PEASANT PARTY WHICH HE HEADS. THE GAZETA LUDOWA BUILDING IN CENTRAL WARSAW HAS BEEN ATTACKED TWICE BY ARMED GANGS, HE SAID.

HE CHARGED, MOREOVER, THAT SECRET POLICE IN MANY LEADING POLISH CITIES HAD RAIDED POLISH PEASANT PARTY OFFICES AND SEIZED ALL PRINTED MATERIAL. OFFICES IN KATOWICE AND THE WARSAW SUBURB OF PRAGA WERE DAMAGED SERIOUSLY, HE SAID.

MIKOLAJCZYK, WHO ONCE HEADED THE EXILED POLISH GOVERNMENT IN LONDON, SAID 135 OF HIS PARTY'S CANDIDATES FOR PARLIAMENT HAD BEEN IMPRISONED AND THAT 250 WERE STRICKEN OFF ELECTION LISTS. MOSCOW, JAN 14-(AP)-SIGNS OF DEMOBILIZATION CAN BE SEEN ALMOST DAILY IN MOSCOW. SINCE A LARGE PART OF RUSSIA'S TRANSPORT MOVES THROUGH OR INTO THE CAPITAL, THIS IS A GOOD PLACE TO GET AN IDEA OF TROOP MOVEMENTS.

HERE ARE SOME OF THE IMPRESSIONS GAINED BY ANYONE WHO VISITS THE RAILWAY STATIONS OR MANY MOBILIZATION STATIONS ABOUT MOSCOW:

TROOPS ARRIVE ALMOST DAILY FROM THE WEST. THEY SEEM TO BE OF MANY AGE GROUPS. WHEN INTERVIEWED THEY TALK FREELY OF GOING HOME, BACK TO FACTORY OR FARM. THEY SPEAK OF OTHER SOLDIERS FROM THEIR AREAS WHO ARE TO COME SHORTLY. THEY ALSO SPEAK OF BEING ANXIOUS TO GET BACK INTO PEACETIME WORK AND TO HELP WITH THE COMING SPRING SOWING OR GETTING GOOD INDUSTRIAL JOBS UNDER THE NEW FIVE-YEAR PLAN.

THE WRITER KNOWS PERSONALLY OF SEVERAL SOVIET FAMILIES WHO SINCE EARLY DECEMBER HAVE WELCOMED HOME SONS, HUSBANDS, UNCLES OR OTHER RELATIVES FROM THE WEST. THE WRITER HAS HEARD OF NO FAMILIES WHO ARE SENDING SONS INTO THE ARMY.

LIVING IN MOSCOW IT IS DIFFICULT TO ESCAPE AN IMPRESSION OF A GENERAL DESIRE TO ADJUST THE ENTIRE SOVIET SYSTEM TO A FULL PEACETIME PRODUCTION, WITH AS FEW MEN IN THE ARMY AS POSSIBLE.

THERE ARE NO RECRUITING CAMPAIGNS GOING ON AT PRESENT. THERE IS NO GLORIFICATION OF THE LIFE OF THE SOLDIER. THE EMPHASIS IS ON PEACETIME LIFE.

THE RUSSIANS ARE ANXIOUS TO PRODUCE A HUGE GRAIN CROP THIS YEAR AND THEY NEED MEN AND MACHINES TO DO THIS. MANPOWER IS SHORT EVERYWHERE; THERE IS A SHORTAGE OF TRACTORS; MEN ARE NEEDED TO MANUFACTURE, REPAIR AND OPERATE TRACTORS. PRAVDA, ORGAN OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY, RECENTLY DEVOTED ITS PRINCIPAL EDITORIAL TO THE URGENCY OF REPAIRING AND MAKING TRACTORS.

THIS WRITER KNOWS OF NO TIME IN THE LAST FIVE AND A HALF YEARS (THE PERIOD OF HIS RESIDENCE IN MOSCOW) WHEN THERE HAS BEEN:

SO FEW MEN IN UNIFORM ON THE STREETS OF CITIES OF THE SOVIET UNION;

SO LITTLE TALK ABOUT THE POSSIBILITIES OF WAR;

SO MUCH TALK ABOUT A PERMANENT PEACE;

SO MUCH TALK ABOUT COLLABORATION BETWEEN THE SOVIET UNION AND ITS ALLIES OF THE WAR.

RUSSIA STILL IS SEVERELY HURT BY THE EFFECTS OF THE WAR. SEVEN MILLION MEN HAVE BEEN LOST AND BILLIONS OF DOLLARS WORTH OF PROPERTY DESTROYED OR REMOVED.

CROPS WERE NOT GOOD LAST YEAR BECAUSE OF DROUGHT. THERE IS STILL SUFFERING HERE.

MOSCOW, JAN.14-(AP)-PAUL WHITE, CHIEF OF THE UNRRA MISSION IN THE UKRAINE, TODAY ACCUSED JOHN FISCHER, FORMER MEMBER OF THE MISSION, OF COMMITTING A BREACH OF CONFIDENCE BY WRITING EXTENSIVELY OF HIS EXPERIENCES AFTER HIS RETURN TO THE UNITED STATES.

WHITE SAID IN A NEWS CONFERENCE THAT FISHER HAD BEEN OFFERED A TEMPORARY JOB AS A REPORTS OFFICER ON THE MISSION WITH THE EXPLICIT AGREEMENT HE WOULD NOT WRITE FOR PUBLICATION ON HIS IMPRESSIONS IN THIS COUNTRY UNTIL THE MISSION WAS CONCLUDED. WHITE SAID FISCHER HAD AGREED TO SUBMIT HIS COPY TO UNRRA OFFICIALS FOR APPROVAL IN THE EVENT HE ELECTED TO PUBLISH HIS IMPRESSIONS BEFORE THE MISSION WAS CONCLUDED IN KIEV BUT HAD IGNORED THIS AGREEMENT BY PUBLISHING A SERIES OF ARTICLES IN HARPER'S MAGAZINE, OF WHICH HE IS AN ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

(IN NEW YORK, FISCHER SAID HE WAS "A LITTLE SURPRISED" AT THE ACCUSATION.

("I WAS QUITE AWARE THAT ANYBODY WHO WANTED TO WRITE THE TRUTH ABOUT RUSSIA WOULD BE SUBJECT TO ATTACK BY THOSE WHO DID NOT WANT TO SEE IT WRITTEN," HE SAID, "BUT I WISH TO MAKE A SPECIFIC DENIAL THAT I MADE ANY BREACH OF A COMMITMENT. I NEVER MADE ANY COMMITMENT NOT TO WRITE MY IMPRESSIONS UNTIL THE MISSION WAS COMPLETED. ON THE OTHER HAND, I WENT THERE WITH THE EXPLICIT UNDERSTANDING THAT I COULD WRITE. I DISCUSSED WHAT I WAS GOING TO WRITE WITH UNRRA OFFICIALS, BUT I DID NOT SHOW THEM THE COPY. THERE WAS NO OBJECTION AT THE TIME, AND THERE HAD BEEN NONE SINCE FROM ANYONE IN UNRRA. AS A MATTER OF FACT, THE ARTICLES HAVE BEEN RATHER HIGHLY PRAISED BY PEOPLE WITH LONG EXPERIENCE IN RUSSIA."

(FISCHER WROTE IN HARPER'S MAGAZINE LAST JULY THAT "A SENSE OF FEAR QUITE PLAINLY IS ONE OF THE DOMINATING FACTS" IN THE SOVIET UNION WHICH WAS "SHAPING -- OR WARPING -- THE ENTIRE SOVIET FOREIGN POLICY." HE SAID THE MOST OBVIOUS SYMPTOM OF THIS "WAS THE RED ARMY -- STILL MOBILIZED FOUR AND A HALF MILLION STRONG IN SPITE OF RUSSIA'S DESPERATE NEED FOR MANPOWER.")

FISCHER IS WRITING A BOOK, SOON TO BE PUBLISHED, UNDER THE TITLE, "SCARED MEN IN THE KREMLIN."

"WE FEEL," WHITE SAID, "HE HAS TAKEN ADVANTAGE OF UNRRA, WHICH BROUGHT HIM HERE AS AN INTERNATIONAL EMPLOYE OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT, WHICH GAVE HIM A PASSPORT TO COME HERE AS SUCH, AND THAT OUR MISSION HAS BEEN EMBARRASSED IN ITS RELATIONS WITH THE UKRAINIAN GOVERNMENT BY HIS KISS-AND-TELL JOURNALISM."

HE ADDED THAT UKRAINIAN GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS HAD MADE NO OFFICIAL

PROTEST CONCERNING FISCHER'S WRITINGS.

WHITE SAID FISCHER HAD SPENT, IN ALL, 62 DAYS IN THE SOVIET UNION AND DID NOT SPEAK A WORD OF THE RUSSIAN LANGUAGE. HE SAID FISCHER'S TRAVELS IN THE UKRAINE HAD BEEN LIMITED TO TWO OFFICIAL TRIPS -- ONE OF THREE DAYS' AND THE OTHER OF FIVE DAYS' DURATION.

THE UNRRA MISSION CHIEF SAID THERE WERE "ERRORS OF FACT" IN FISCHER'S ARTICLES. HE SAID FISCHER WROTE THAT THE DEPUTIES TO THE SUPREME SOVIET IN MOSCOW IN MARCH, 1946, HAD VOTED AUTOMATICALLY. ACTUALLY, WHITE SAID, NO VOTE WAS TAKEN AT THE SESSION WITNESSED BY FISCHER.

WHITE ALSO CONTESTED THE FACTUAL VALIDITY OF FISCHER'S STATEMENTS THAT THE DEPUTIES WERE UNABLE TO ENTER THE KREMLIN CARRYING PORTFOLIOS, THAT LARGE NUMBERS OF WARPLANES COULD BE SEEN AT UKRAINIAN AIRPORTS, AND THAT MEN WITH TOMMYGUNS WERE A COMMON SIGHT IN MOTION PICTURE THEATERS.

BUDAPEST, HUNGARY, JAN.14-(AP)-AN OFFICIAL CLOSE TO PREMIER FERENC NAGY SAID TODAY THAT THE COMMUNIST MINISTER OF INTERIOR, LASZLO RAJK, HAD TOLD HIM HE INTENDED TO "EXPEL EVERY FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT FROM HUNGARY" BECAUSE OF NEWS DISPATCHES ABOUT AN ALLEGED "HORTHYIST" REVOLUTIONARY PLOT.

AMERICAN SOURCES SAID THAT, UNTIL A PEACE TREATY IS SIGNED, NEITHER RAJK NOR "ANY OTHER HUNGARIAN" HAD THE RIGHT TO EXPEL FOREIGN REPORTERS.

RAJK WAS INSTRUMENTAL IN EXPOSING THE ALLEGED PLOT. THE OFFICIAL CLOSE TO THE PREMIER SAID RAJK DECLARED HE DID NOT LIKE THE "TONE" OF DISPATCHES SENT BY FOREIGN REPORTERS, ASSERTING THAT MOST DISPATCHES HAD QUOTED THE COMMUNISTS' OPPONENTS AS SAYING THE COMMUNISTS EXAGGERATED THE ACCUSATIONS IN AN EFFORT TO DISCREDIT THE SMALL LANDHOLDERS PARTY AND FURTHER ENTRENCH THE CURRENT COMMUNIST-DOMINATED POLITICAL ORDER.

Tehran, Iran, Jan. 13-(ap)-Government troops cordoned off a square-mile area around the shah's palace today, apparently to prevent any increase in the ranks of some 200 to 300 opposition demonstrators staging a persian-style sitdown in protest against current national elections.

troops armed with bayonets blocked streets leading to the marble palace, and unarmed imperial guardsmen more than six feet tall stood three deep in front of the demonstrators to hide them from passersby.

The [redacted] sitdowners strung up tents in front of the palace and slept on the sidewalks.

Six opposition leaders, also protesting against the elections, were reported to [redacted] have "taken refuge" within the palace and to be planning to stay there until the shah took action on their demands. They were said to have been fed and assigned quarters.

Under persian tradition, citizens may take refuge in the palace until "the king hears their petition."

Demonstrators in favor of the palace put up tents and slept on the sidewalks.

Hassan zaeem, opposition leader and an independent candidate for parliament in the elections, said the demonstrators were petitioning the shah, mohammed reza pahlavi, to "halt the election farce and give the people a chance to name their own leaders."

"new democrats"

Zaeem accused premier ahmed qavam and his party with permitting multiple voting among their followers, falsifying records and intimidating members of the opposition.

POLICE SAID THE RAIDS, WHICH BEGAN AT DAWN AND CONTINUED FOR 10 HOURS, WERE IN CONNECTION WITH AN ARTICLE PUBLISHED MONTHS AGO BY THE PARTY NEWSPAPER, PEOPLE'S AGE, AT A TIME WHEN THE INDIAN INTERIM GOVERNMENT WAS TAKING OFFICE. THE AUTHORITIES SAID THE ARTICLE CONTAINED SECRET INSTRUCTIONS TO MILITARY AND AIR FORCES.

THE EDITOR OF PEOPLE'S AGE AND HIS ASSISTANT WERE ARRESTED AND RELEASED IN BAIL.

NEW DELHI, JAN.14-(AP)-MOHANDAS K.GANDHI CONTINUED HIS MARCH THROUGH EAST BENGAL TODAY, CARRYING HIS AHIMSA (NON-VIOLENCE) DOCTRINE INTO THE NOAKHALI DISTRICT, SWEPT BY HINDU-MOSLEM CONFLICT LAST OCTOBER.

THERE IS NO RAIL COMMUNICATION IN THE AREA WHERE THE 77-YEAR-OLD PATRIARCH IS TRAVELLING AND THE ROADS ARE POOR. MESSENGERS BROUGHT OUT DISPATCHES SAYING THAT ON JAN.12 HE WAS AT KARPARA.

THE VILLAGES IN THE NOAKHALI DISTRICT ARE CLOSE TO ONE ANOTHER AND GANDHI RARELY TRAVELS MORE THAN TWO MILES TO THE NEXT RESTING PLACE. WITH HIM GO HIS FOUR BLACK GOATS AND SMALL RETINUE OF PERSONAL FOLLOWERS. FROM VILLAGE TO VILLAGE HIS FOLLOWERS SING HYMNS AND AT THE ENTRANCE TO MANY HAMLETS THE GIRLS BLOW ON CONCH SHELLS, THE TRADITIONAL SIGNAL IN BENGAL.

VARYING OPINIONS HAVE BEEN EXPRESSED ASTO WHETHER GANDHI IS SUCCEEDING WITH HIS DEMONSTRATION OF THE FORCE OF TRUTH AND NON-VIOLENCE. NEWSPAPERS LOYAL TO HIM ASSERT THAT HE IS BRINGING RELIEF TO HINDUS RECENTLY HARASSED BY MOSLEMS, WHO ARE IN THE MAJORITY THERE, AND THAT HE IS ALSO RESTORING PEACE AND GOOD WILL. IN CONTRAST MOSLEM PAPERS DESCRIBE HIS TOUR AS A FAILURE.

PRESS REPORTS FROM GHANDHI'S CAMPS INDICATE THAT HIS STATEMENTS HAVE BEEN TEMPERATE. HE HAS ALREADY EXTENDED HIS TOUR SEVERAL TIMES AND LATEST REPORTS SAY THAT HE INTENDS TO CONTINUE UNTIL LATE FEBRUARY OR EARLY MARCH.

HIS TOUR HAS BEEN LIENED TO HIS FAMOUS WALK IN 1930 TO BREAK THE SALT LAW, WHEN HE WADED INTO THE GULF OF CAMBRAY, DIPPED UP WATER AND BOILED OUT ILLEGAL SALT. HE WAS JAILED, BUT THE EPISODE EVENTUALLY LED TO A SERIES OF ROUND-TABLE CONFERENCES IN LONDON AND BRITISH PROMISES OF DOMINION STATUS FOR IMDIA.

NEW DELHI, JAN 14-(AP)-A PROPOSAL FOR NATIONAL CONTROL OF EXPORTABLE MINERALS IN ORDER TO PROTECT SUPPLIES AND ASSURE ADEQUATE RETURNS WAS PUT BEFORE THE NATIONAL MINERAL POLICY CONFERENCE AT NEW DELHI TODAY.

AMONG THE MINERALS SPECIFICALLY MENTIONED WERE MANGANESE ORES, MICA AND URANIUM ORES, WHICH ARE HEAVILY EXPORTED TO AMERICAN AND EUROPE.

P.N.WADIA, ADVISOR ON MINERAL DEVELOPMENT TO THE GOVERNMENT, RECOMMENDED THAT EXPORT CONTROLS BE ARRANGED SO THAT INDIA COULD GET COMPENSATING IMPORTS OF MINERALS SHE NEEDED FROM OTHER COUNTRIES.

SPECIFICALLY HE RECOMMENDED BRITAIN BE REQUIRED TO PROVIDE NICKEL, COPPER, PLATINUM, TIN AND ASBESTOS.

THE UNITED STATES IN TURN WOULD BE ASKED TO PROVIDE PETROLEUM PRODUCTS, FLUORITE, SULPHUR, PHOSPHATES, ZINC, COPPER, SILVER, MOLYBDENUM AND ALLOY STEELS MAINLY IN RETURN FOR LARGE SHIPMENTS OF MICA AND MANGANESE NOW GOING TO AMERICA.

NEXT TO RUSSIA, INDIA IS THE LARGEST WORLD PRODUCER OF MANGANESE.

OVER A TWENTY YEAR PERIOD INDIA HAS PRODUCED 450,000 TO 1,129,000 TONS OF MANGANESE PER YEAR OF WHICH THE UNITED KINGDOM, FRANCE, BELGIUM, UNITED STATES AND JAPAN HAVE BEEN THE LARGEST PURCHASERS.

WADIA POINTED OUT THAT INDIA WAS LOSING MUCH BY PERMITTING EXPORT OF RAW MATERIALS IN AN UNPROCESSED STATE.

IN DISCUSSIONS, IT WAS INDICATED THERE WAS NO DISPOSITION ON THE PART OF INDIA TO CHOKE OFF SUPPLIES BUT THE INTENTION WAS TO OBTAIN BETTER PRICES BY REGULATED EXPORT AND ULTIMATELY BY PROCESSING IN INDIA.

LEGISLATION FOR JOINT CONTROL OF THESE MINERALS BY THE CENTRAL GOVERNMENT AND BY THE PROVINCES AND PRINCELY STATES WAS EXPECTED TO BE RECOMMENDED BY THE CONFERENCE.

Britain, France Agree To Sign Alliance Pact As Bar to Aggression

TREATY TO PROVIDE CONTROLS AGAINST 'GERMAN MENACE'

WM. E. MACKLIN

Document Will Be Negotiated at 'Earliest Possible Moment.'

TRADE LINKS SEEN

Steps Seen Necessary to Prevent Economic Rebuilding of Germany.

LONDON, Jan. 15—(AP) Britain announced tonight that she and France had agreed to conclude a treaty of alliance "at the earliest possible moment"—thus continuing the historic partnership which has bound them as allies in two wars in this century.

An announcement from Prime Minister Attlee's residence said the decision was reached during the past 48 hours during the visit of French Premier Leon Blum.

Have 'Equal Interests'

"It was recognized," the statement said, "that the two countries, having been twice attacked by Germany in a period of 25 years, have equal interest in protecting themselves against a fresh German menace.

"It was therefore agreed that in these circumstances a treaty of alliance should be concluded between them at the earliest possible moment within the framework of article 52 of the charter of the United Nations and with the object of preventing any further aggression by Germany and of preserving peace and security."

The announcement added that the "two governments were furthermore convinced that the conclusion of such a treaty would facilitate the settlement, in a spirit of mutual understanding, of all questions arising" between them.

Closer Economic Links Seen

While the announcement was interpreted as being directed primarily at the military aspects of the alliance, the possibility of closer economic links between the two western European powers also was suggested in this section of the statement:

"In view of the close links which exist between the two countries in the commercial and industrial fields, it was agreed that directions should be given to the French and British representatives on the Anglo-French Economic committee to press on urgently with their task of examining their respective reconstruction and modernization plans with a view to preventing conflicts between them."

Britain and France recently abolished the use of the visa for residents of the two countries travelling across the 22 miles of channel which separates them at Dover.

Note Use of 'Alliance?'

Observers in London attached considerable significance to the use of the word "alliance" in the announcement.

British diplomatic circles were enthusiastic in their comment on the announcement.

"It makes a magnificent triangle in post-war treaties linking eastern and western Europe," a foreign office spokesman said. "There is the Anglo-Soviet pact of 1942, the French-Soviet pact of 1944 and now to complete the triangle the Anglo-French alliance of 1947. We think it is a very favorable combination and hope it will be seen in that light."

During the Blum visit, the statement said, it was "recognised on both sides that it was in the interest of the two countries that effective steps should be taken to prevent the economic reconstruction of Germany, though necessary from many points of view, becoming once again a menace to the peace of the world."

Economic Group to Meet

The two governments also agreed to direct the French and British representatives on the Anglo-French economic committee to "press on urgently with their task of examining their respective reconstruction and modernization plans with a view to preventing conflicts between them."

The committee will meet in Paris in a few days.

"It was recognized," the statement said, "that increased imports of coal were necessary to the economic recovery of France and that increased coal production in the Ruhr was an essential factor in European reconstruction.

"It was admitted, however, that no immediate increase in exports from the Ruhr was possible and that, in order to ensure the rehabilitation of the Ruhr mines and a progressive increase in exports from Germany, adequate quantities of coal must be retained on the spot.

U. S., Russia Informed

"Nevertheless, it was noted with satisfaction that, provided production rose at the rate at present anticipated, the authorities in Germany envisaged the restoration by the end of 1947 of the level of exports in force before the cuts of last November.

"This first result once achieved, all efforts will continue to be made to increase progressively both production and exports until the vital needs of France and other importing countries can be met."

The British Press association said that both the United States and Russia were informed before the publication of the announcement from No. 10 Downing street.

The agency said the new Anglo-French alliance would follow those already existing between Britain and Russia and between France and Russia, and would provide for military aid in the event of a threat of aggression by Germany or any powers associated with Germany.

The British Statement

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP)—The text of the announcement by Prime Minister Attlee's office concerning the Anglo-French agreement to conclude a treaty of alliance follows:

The visit which Monsieur Léon Blum, President of the French Government, has just paid to London, has provided an opportunity for a joint examination of a number of problems of common interest to the Governments of France and the United Kingdom and for a most useful exchange of views on a variety of questions.

The question of the policy to be followed in regard to Germany was thoroughly examined. In the course of this examination it was recognized on both sides that it was in the interests of the two countries that effective steps should be taken to prevent the economic reconstruction of Germany, though necessary from many points of view, becoming once again a menace to the peace of the world.

It was recognized that increased imports of coal were necessary to the economic recovery of France and that increased coal production in the Ruhr was an essential factor in European reconstruction. It was admitted, however, that no immediate increase in exports from the Ruhr was possible and that in order to insure the rehabilitation of the Ruhr mines and a progressive increase in exports from Germany adequate quantities of coal must be retained on the spot.

Nevertheless it was noted with satisfaction that, provided production rose at the rate at present anticipated, the authorities in Germany envisaged the restoration by the end of April, 1947, of the level of exports in force before the cuts of last November.

This first result once achieved, all efforts will continue to be made to increase progressively both production and exports until the vital needs of France and other importing countries can be met.

It was recognized that the two countries, having been twice attacked by Germany in a period of twenty-five years, have an equal interest in protecting themselves against a fresh German menace. It was therefore agreed that in these circumstances a treaty of alliance should be concluded between them at the earliest possible moment, within the framework of Article 52 of the Charter of the United Nations and with the object of preventing any further aggression by Germany and of preserving peace and security. It was agreed that negotiations to this end should be opened as soon as possible.

The two Governments were furthermore convinced that the conclusion of such a treaty would facilitate the settlement in a spirit of mutual understanding of all questions arising between the two countries.

In view of the close links which exist between the two countries in the commercial and industrial fields it was agreed that directions should be given to the French and British representatives on the Anglo-French Economic Committee to press on urgently with their task of examining their respective reconstruction and modernization plans with a view to preventing conflicts between them.

It was noted with satisfaction that the committee would meet in Paris in a few days' time and that this would afford an opportunity of discussing the full implications of the Monnet plan. It was arranged that there should be a further meeting as soon as the British Economic White Paper had been debated in Parliament.

Blum's Strength Increased

PARIS, Jan. 15 (AP)—The announcement that Britain and France had agreed to conclude a treaty of alliance was seen in Paris tonight as a major diplomatic achievement for Premier Blum, increasing greatly his chances of receiving an offer of the Premiership in France's first permanent Government of the Fourth Republic.

The 74-year-old Socialist is to resign formally on Friday his interim Premiership after a thirty-one-day tenure. A new Premier to serve under the new Constitutional Government will be selected then.

Even before the announcement of the treaty agreement with Britain, M. Blum's political stock stood at a surprisingly high level because of the success of his 5 per cent price cut program, designed to halt inflation and stabilize France's domestic economy.

The first reaction in Paris to the treaty announcement was generally favorable although official comment was lacking. M. Blum, who is Foreign Minister as well as Premier in the Interim Government, issued an edict when he took office forbidding official Government comment until he had given permission. This regulation tied the tongues of key French officials.

M. Blum, due back from London, will preside at the last meeting of his interim Cabinet tomorrow.

The French public, with its traditional fear of a strong Germany, generally applauded the announced purpose of the pact—a move to prevent future German aggression. In addition, many Frenchmen still feel a deep friendship for Britain from wartime associations.

While a last-minute hitch was possible, France's political parties appeared to be lining up for the election of Socialist Vincent Auriol to the presidency of the fourth republic when parliament meets at 2 p.m. (8 a.m., E.S.T.) tomorrow at Versailles.

Auriol, 64-year-old lawyer and former newspaperman who was elected president of the National Assembly yesterday, appeared sure of 423 Communist-Socialist votes if the deputies and members of the council of the republic vote as they did yesterday. The joint session will total about 838 legislators. Its maximum strength is 932, but all of the council's members have not yet been elected. For election the winner must have half the votes plus one, or 420.

TREATY MOVE HAILED IN U.S.

Soviet Attitude, However, Suggested As Obstacle

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—American officials welcomed tonight the Blum-Attlee announcement of intention to negotiate a Franco-British alliance, but foresaw two obstacles in the way of carrying out the plan.

First, there is the fact that Socialist Leon Blum heads a French Government which is on its way out. The organization of a new regime begins tomorrow under the new constitution. It is impossible to tell whether Blum will be succeeded by a leader determined to carry through his commitment.

Second, the Communists are expected to oppose, directly or indirectly, any move which tightens the relationship of western European powers among themselves rather than with Russia.

Reaction Unofficial

American reaction was largely unofficial. The State Department said it had no comment on the announcement of the results of the conference in London between Blum and British Prime Minister Attlee.

However, diplomatic authorities did not hesitate to say privately that this Government regards as good anything that brings Britain and France closer together.

Senator Hatch (D., N.M.), a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he "would prefer to see united action of all of the nations rather than individual alliances."

Senator George (D., Ga.), also a member of the committee, called the alliance a "logical step" dictated, he said, by the two countries' community of interest in many parts of the world.

Viewed As Constructive

Senator Brewster (R., Maine) said he regarded the action as "constructive," inasmuch as it was taken within the framework of the United Nations.

It was too early to tell whether, if an alliance can be completed, it would alter the basic power relationships in the world. There might be a change if the alliance became the nucleus for a system of treaties binding together several western European countries.

Some authorities expressed belief that, if there is outright Soviet opposition to the alliance idea, it would be related to claims of an effort to form a western European bloc against Russia. Actually American officials who had been informed of the proceedings in London said that they saw no reason to believe that any western bloc was intended.

In fact, most immediate significance to the alliance idea was measured here in terms of internal French politics.

The existence of an alliance between France and Britain is traditional in the relationship of the two countries in this century. For approximately 45 years such an alliance has been a cornerstone of French foreign policy and talk of reviving the arrangement has been popular in postwar France.

This fact may make it somewhat difficult for the Communist or any other party which might not favor the idea to come out bluntly against it.

SPITSBERGEN CLAIM DOUBTED (N)

London Challenges Reassertion Of Russian Demands

JACK SMITH

London, Jan. 15 (AP)—A Foreign Office spokesman challenged today any reassertion of Russian claims in the strategic Spitsbergen Archipelago, and said that Britain had no knowledge of a Soviet-Norwegian "understanding" on joint defense of the Arctic islands.

Commenting on a Soviet announcement of such an understanding, the spokesman said that Russia was bound by a 1920 international treaty which gave Spitsbergen to Norway and prohibited the use of the islands for "warlike purposes."

The official Russian statement issued in Moscow said Bear Island "actually was a Russian island" and that the treaty of 1920 which specifically included the island in the Spitsbergen group awarded to Norway, "cannot remain valid."

Claimed By Several

This appeared to be a reassertion of Russian claims. Before 1920 Spitsbergen was a sort of no-man's land claimed by Russia, Norway and some other nations. Before World war I Russia took about 400,000 tons of coal annually from the islands.

The Soviet announcement created a stir in Norway and Washington.

Halvard M. Lange, Foreign Minister of Norway, was closeted for three hours with foreign experts in Oslo. The Norwegian Foreign Office finally said there would be no comment today.

The matter will be discussed in a private session of Norway's Storting (Parliament) tomorrow.

The Moscow anonuncement of an understanding about joint Russian-Norwegian defense of the islands was the first official indication that Russia might be seeking bases. Last Friday the Norwegians had announced only that Russia had sought special privileges while the last war was in progress.

Washington Consultation

The State Department in Washington said it would demand to be consulted on any Russian-Norwegian agreement affecting the 1920 treaty. Spitsbergen is 3,500 airline miles from industrial cities of northeastern America and a way-station over the North Pole.

Washington diplomatic authorities said that the United States State Department had been keeping a wary eye on Moscow's moves toward the archipelago, and that America doubtless would maintain that the 1920 treaty could not be altered without consent of its 30 signatories.

The British Foreign Office spokesman said: "We are unaware that the Soviet Union have any claim to any island in that region. That is Norwegian territory."

Italy, Japan Included

Russia claimed that the 1920 treaty "cannot remain valid" because Italy and Japan, which fought against the Allies in World War II, were among the signatories.

The British spokesman said that view could not be accepted, since many other international treaties now in effect—such as the Hague Convention and the Montreux Convention—bore the signatures of former enemies.

The 1920 pact was signed by Britain, the United States, France, The Netherlands, Denmark, Norway and Sweden, among others. Russia did not sign but subsequently adhered to the treaty, which became effective in 1925.

Swedish Interest High

The British spokesman said that Russia had accepted the treaty and "must, therefore, be bound by it."

Stockholm dispatches said Swedish officials were following the situation with the closest interest. Swedish newspapers drew a parallel between Russian claims on Spitzsbergen and the interest shown by the United States in Iceland and Greenland.

The Liberal Goeteborgs Handelstidning said that Moscow has been anxious to counter the interests Americans have displayed in Greenland and Iceland which—the Russians ought to be allowed to say this—is rather intrusive."

Stockholm Comparison

The Stockholm Tidningen also compared Russian claims with "American wishes for Iceland bases," adding that "it is important for Sweden that no great power obtain bases in the Scandinavian area."

The United States asked Iceland at the close of the war for permission to retain the rights to airbases which the Americans had built on that island. The request subsequently was dropped because of Norwegian objections and the last United States troops are scheduled to be withdrawn in a few months.

British Dispute Russ Arctic (D) Isle Claim

London, Jan. 15 (AP)—A Foreign Office spokesman challenged today a new Soviet claim to the Arctic island of Medvezhi, in the strategic Spitzbergen archipelago, and said Russia remained bound by the 1920 international treaty demilitarizing the islands.

The Soviet news agency Tass, quoting "authoritative Soviet circles," said Medvezhi "actually was a Russian island" and announced that Russia and Norway had agreed on "the necessity of joint defense" in the area.

"We are unaware that the Soviet Union has any valid claim to any island in that region," the spokesman said. "That is Norwegian territory." INS

Validity Questioned

Tass said the 1920 treaty could not remain valid because its signatories included nations which fought against the Allies in World War II. These were Italy and Japan.

The Foreign Office official said Britain could not accept that view. He remarked that many existing treaties bore the signatures of ex-enemy states, including the Montreux convention and The Hague convention, and said "it has never hitherto been suggested that they be renegotiated because of this fact."

Britain has no knowledge of any Soviet-Norwegian agreement on the necessity of joint defense, the spokesman said. The 1920 treaty, he added, provided that the islands should not be used for what he called "warlike purposes."

Story Broadcast

The Tass story was broadcast by the Moscow radio last night.

Negotiations for revision of the treaty, the broadcast said, were instituted by the Russians with Norwegian representatives in 1944 and 1945 and an "understanding was reached" about the necessity for joint defense of the islands.

Further discussions took place in New York last November between Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and Norwegian Foreign Minister H. M. Lange, the broadcast added.

Lange was not available for comment in Oslo, but a high-ranking Foreign Office spokesman there said the Foreign Office had not received the text of the Russian communique concerning Spitsbergen and would not comment until then.

Warsaw Expresses Intention to Run Election Without Advice on Ballot Freedom.

London, Jan. 15 (A. P.)—Moscow announced today that "the Soviet Government cannot agree" with the United States and Britain that tactics of the Polish Provisional Government made it unlikely that Sunday's scheduled elections could be free and unfettered.

The Moscow radio said that Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov on Monday handed to United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith a Russian answer to an American request to the Soviet Goverment to join in the protest to Poland. The United States request, sent in conjunction with a stiff note to Poland herself, was delivered in Moscow early this month.

Molotov's Reply Quoted.

This, the Moscow radio said, was Molotov's reply:

"The Soviet Government cannot agree with the charges contained in the note against the Provisional Polish Government of National Unity of violating the pledges laid on it by the decisions of the Yalta and Berlin (Potsdam) conferences, providing for the holding of free and unfettered elections in Poland on the basis of a universal electoral law with secret ballot, whereby all democratic, anti-Nazi parties will have the right to participate and put forward candidates."

The British Foreign Office released the text of a third British note to Warsaw, stating that the conduct of the Polish election campaign threatened a breach of the Potsdam Agreement.

Disclaiming any British right to intervene in "matters of purely Polish domestic concern," the note declared: "But the essential fact is that the manner of holding elections in Poland is the subject of international agreements and is more than a purely domestic concern.

"The Polish Provisional Government are bound by the undertakings they entered into in return for recognition as well as by the Potsdam agreement, not only to his Majesty's Government but also to the United States Government and Soviet Government, to hold free and unfettered elections on certain conditions."

The note was delivered to the Polish Provisional Government yesterday by the British Chargé d'Affaires in Warsaw.

300 Poles Get Argentine Visas

London, Jan. 15 (AP)—A group of more than 300 former soldiers of Lieut. Gen. Wladyslaw Anders's Polish Corps received visas today to go to Argentina and 1,500 others were expected to have their documents in order within a few days.

The Argentine consulate reported that 1,800 visas were authorized recently by the Buenos Aires authorities, which at the same time sent a special immigration mission, now sitting in Rome, to arrange for a large scale migratory movement from Europe.

Shipping difficulties may delay the departure of the Poles, the consulate said, but it was understood that the Polish authorities here—despite the protests of the Warsaw Government which held that no Poles should be encouraged to resettle abroad—were trying to get British support.

Jewish Leader Defies Ban, Enters Britain by Plane

LONDON, Jan. 15—(AP) Prof Johan Smertenko, vice president of the American League for a Free Palestine, flew from Paris to Britain today in defiance of an order banning him from this country—and was promptly placed in jail.

The Russian-born Jewish leader, accused in the House of Commons recently of "openly financing terrorist organizations in Palestine," is slated to be sent back to Paris tomorrow.

A home office official said that Smertenko would have been deported this afternoon, except for the fact that the weather became cloudy and the small, chartered plane on which he arrived here did not have a radio.

Chartered Small Plane

Consequently, he was confined in Wallington police station for the night.

Unable to book passage to London on a regularly scheduled plane because of the British ban, Smertenko chartered the small private plane, piloted by Michael Lespine, who instructed Free French pilots in the United States during the war.

Lespine reportedly did not know, when he agreed to fly Smertenko to Britain, that the Jewish leader had been forbidden to enter the country. The pilot was not detained.

Smertenko was smiling as he alighted from the single engine plane at Croyden airport—and stepped right into the arms of immigration authorities. He was closeted with British officials for three hours before he was removed to jail. Reporters were not allowed to interview him.

Wants to Pick Up Files

Smertenko announced in Rome Jan. 8 he would return to Britain, despite the ban, and the British have kept a watch at all of their airports ever since.

The Jewish leader maintained that his remarks in Britain had been "grotesquely distorted," and said that he wanted to return to London to pick up files and other data from his offices and apartment there.

The American embassy in London declined any comment on the case of the Woodbury, Conn., man. It was explained informally, however, that exclusion of foreigners deemed undesirable was a right assumed by all foreign states—one the United States exercises by screening immigrants at Ellis Island.

Smertenko Held in British Jail

Deportation Expected to Follow Paris to London Flight in Defiance of Ban

London, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Johan J. Smertenko, vice-president of the American League for a Free Palestine, was arrested and taken to jail as an unwanted visitor to Britain shortly after he flew from Paris to Croydon Airport in a chartered plane today. Immigration authorities met him at the airport.

Smertenko, a Russian-born United States citizen who knew that the British planned to exclude him, arrived at the airport early in the afternoon.

Smertenko was detained in the Wallington Police station.

A Home Office announcement said: "Prof. Smertenko was refused permission to land under the aliens order, and has to go back. As the plane does not leave until tomorrow, he has been detained overnight. Had the plane been returning tonight, he would have gone on it."

Michel Lespine, the pilot, was detrained briefly and then released.

U. S. Embassy Is Silent.

Two American newspaper men who accompanied Smertenko said that they planned to return to Paris if and when he was sent back.

The United States embassy declined comment for the present on Smertenko's difficulties. Informally, it was explained that the exclusion on undesired foreigners is a right assumed by all sovereign States.

Smertenko visited London early last month and held a news conference in which he discussed conditions in Palestine. Shortly thereafter, Will Nally, a Laborite member of Parliament, charged in the House of Commons that Smertenko was "openly financing terrorist organizations in Palestine."

Nally asked at the time whether the Government intended to permit this American citizen to remain in Britain and carry out a stated intention of forming a branch of his organization in the United Kingdom. The Laborite member received the assurance of a Home Office spokesman that "this foreign visitor left this country on December 18, and steps have been taken to exclude him for the future." Smertenko later said that his words had been "grossly distorted."

London Paper Says Russia Got New Atomic Material

London, Thursday, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Daily Express said today that United States scientists are producing a new secret atomic explosive—uranium 233—from thorium and asserted that samples of the new substance had been turned over to Russia by Dr. Alan Nunn May.

Dr. May, a British scientist, was sentenced last May 1 to ten years in prison for giving atom secrets to unidentified persons.

The article, by Chapman Pincher, scientific writer of the Express, said uranium 233 was bringing the cost of the atomic bomb "far below" that of the bombs used on Japan and in the Bikini tests.

Too Secret For Tests

Pincher's article on the front page of the newspaper said:

"It can now be revealed that Dr. Alan Nunn May, the atomic scientist convicted of official secrets offenses last year, gave a sample of this top secret material to Russian agents in Canada.

"It was probably, therefore, to uranium 233 that Sir Hartley Shawcross, the Attorney General, referred at the Old Bailey when he said that Dr. May's statement contained symbols so highly secret that they could not be read in (the British) court.

"According to official Canadian documents, Dr May got his sample of the explosive from the Canadian atomic research station near Montreal where he worked during the war.

Flown To Russia At Once

"The Russian agents considered it so important that they flew the sample to Moscow at once."

Pincher said no bombs yet have been made from uranium 233 but that "full manufacturing details have been worked out in America as a defense measure."

According to the article in the Express, uranium 233 is not made from uranium ores like uranium 235 and plutonium but from thorium ores—now used to strengthen incandescent lamp mantles.

The British directorate of atomic energy, Pincher said, at present is carrying out research on uranium 233 for power production.

D'ARGENLIEU ASKS RED CROSS AID FOR INDOCHINA VICTIMS

PARIS, Jan. 15. — (AP) Adm. Georges Thierry D'Argenlieu, high commissioner for Indochina, has appealed to the International Red Cross to intercede in behalf of 425 French civilians and thousands of Chinese seized as "hostages" by the Viet-Namese, dispatches from the Orient said today.

The French said 10,000 Chinese were being held in one section of Hanoi, battle center in northern Indochina, where French troops have surrounded about 1,000 Viet-Namese belonging to the "TU VE" or youth group of nationalists. The French said they considered the French and Chinese hostages because the Viet-Namese have refused to evacuate them.

Refused Suggestion

Yesterday the Viet-Namese refused the suggestion of emissaries that they withdraw the youth soldiers from the strategic area where they command communications between central Hanoi and the airfield.

The French general staff announced that the Viet-Namese had been turned back in a drive to carry the warfare into Laos, one of the five states of Indochina.

The announcement said Viet-Namese who crossed the Laos border from Annam had been driven back into Annam at Quang Tri, 85 miles southwest of Hanoi. Annam borders Laos on the east. Siam is west of Laos.

Another clash was reported at Langson on the Chinese frontier where the French communique said "Chinese pirates" attempted depredations.

Censorship Reported

From Bangkok, Siam, came dispatches saying that "Free Cambodian headquarters" had announced it was sending documents to the United Nations asserting its case for Cambodian independence and seeking endorsement for setting up a monarchial government. Prince Narodhom Chandharang Sri, a relative of the present king of Cambodia, is head of the movement, the dispatch said. Cambodia borders Siam on the southeast.

Associated Press Correspondent Leif Erickson reported from Hanoi in a dispatch dated Jan. 13 that a "blind" censorship had been imposed by French authorities on press dispatches for security reasons.

Correspondents were not advised what deletions or changes were made in their stories, whether they were delayed or whether they were sent at all, Erickson said. In addition all French military and civil authorities were instructed not to give interviews or information to newspaper correspondents for direct quotation.

Viet-Nam Border Defeat Reported

Paris, Jan. 15 (AP)—Dispatches from Saigon reported today that Viet-Nam forces which tried to cross the Laos-Annam border had been thrown back into Annamese territory by French troops near Quang Tri, 85 miles southwest of Hanoi.

Laos is one of the five states of the Indo-China Federation and lies between Annam and Siam.

Meanwhile, reinforcements were dispatched to Indo-China on the French liner Athos II, which left Marseille last night with 1,700 troops.

Tourane Fighting Denied

An agency France-Presse dispatch from Saigon denied Viet-Namese reports of fighting at Tourane, where the Viet-Namese said French troops had landed in an effort to relieve the besieged French garrison at Hue, 60 miles away.

The agency said the Viet-Namese had broadcast these rumors in the hope of learning French military plans. The AFP confirmed, however, that troop movements were proceeding in the Hue-Tourane region.

German Staff Facing Trial

BERLIN, Jan. 15 (AP).—The American Military Government said officially tonight that members of the German General Staff and other organizations acquitted of criminal charges by the International Military Tribunal at Nuernberg will be held for trial before de-Nazification tribunals. At Least 18 Dead In Berlin Cold Wave

Berlin, Jan. 15 (AP)—The City Health Ministry announced today that at least twelve Berlin residents froze to death and six others died as a result of exposure during the recent subzero cold wave.

Eighty persons required hospitalization for frostbite and 3,400 received first aid, the Ministry added.

Fifteen of the eighteen deaths occurred in the Russian sector of the city, two in the American and one in the British.

The cold wave appeared definitely broken after two days of rain, but traffic was hazardous on icy streets.

Spain Executes 2 For Revolt Plot

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Jan. 15.—A firing squad executed two men, convicted of plotting a military rebellion against the Franco government, in Carabanchel prison yesterday. They were Jose Antonio Lierandi, propaganda secretary of the underground Democratic Alliance, and Jose Isasa Olaizola, who testified he came from Argentina to head a guerrilla army.

Olaizola, 36, was former jai alai champion of the Basque provinces. Lierandi, 30, was a native of Cuba.

Italian Press Hits Stage Censorship

Rome, Jan. 15 (AP)—Rigid censorship of stage shows in Italy to eliminate slighting references to the new Government drew fire from the press today, right wing papers recalling similar legislation passed by the Mussolini regime.

The Government said the "bad taste" of some theatrical companies "in casting ridicule upon the republican institutions and organs" had led it to order the Office of Theatrical Censorship "to eliminate everything that might be an offense to the new institutions."

Censors were ordered to keep strict watch to ensure that actors followed approved texts.

Coalition Bid Saves Greek Cabinet

Athens, Jan. 15 (AP)—Premier Constantin Tsaldaris saved his Government in a four-hour Cabinet session ending early today by wooing the wavering National Liberals back to its support.

Vice Premier Stylianos Gonatos previously had told intimates he planned to withdraw support of the National Liberals from the Government, also under heavy fire from Tsaldaris's own Populist party.

Crisis Dissolved

The political crisis was dissolved, temporarily at least, against a background of continued strife between authorities and partisan fighters.

Official and press reports said a railway line and bridge had been blown up near Kilkis, due north of Salonika; seven insurgents were killed and twelve wounded in a fight near Gravina; four Rightists were killed near Larisa; and a telegraph line was cut in western Macedonia midway between Castoria and Amyntaion.

Other Reports Of Violence

A newspaper dispatch said 100 Leftists struck at the village of Alogonia, in the Kalamata district of the southern Peloponnesus, blew up the police station and school, and killed the mayor.

A hand grenade was thrown yesterday at Themistocles Tamvakas, prosecutor of the Salonika Military Court, killing a pedestrian. Several persons were arrested.

Newspaper reports listed twenty-one killings in northern Greece.

OPPOSITION RAPS POLISH OFFICIALS

WARSAW, Jan. 15—(AP) Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, leader of the opposition Polish Peasant party, urged Polish voters in a radio speech tonight to defeat government officials who use "rifle, bludgeon and jail against defenseless people."

Calling for a victory of his forces in the national elections next Sunday, Mikolajczyk accused government leaders of a 'venomous greed for power" and of ordering "warfare by the military against the people."

The vice premier said that he favored an alliance with Russia and that he also believed that good relations should be maintained with America, Britain and France. Poland's present borders with Germany—along the Oder-Neisse — must stand, he declared.

The government, meanwhile, charged that the opposition—not the authorities — were responsible for pre-election violence which has caused both Britain and the United States to protest that the election campaign has not been free and fair.

A foreign ministry spokesman said that underground bands killed 59 election officials and volunteer militia men during December and the first 10 days of January.

The spokesman also asserted that underground members had distributed anti-semitic literature designed to touch off outbreaks.

The government announced that it had received from Britain a third note about Sunday's elections, but did not disclose the text.

(In London, it was announced the British note voiced a "trust that the Polish provisional government will permit" full publication of the document in Poland.)

Poland Rebuffs U. S.

Warsaw, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Poland's Communist-backed Provisional Government told the United States today that it intended to run Sunday's parliamentary elections its own way regardless of whether Britain and America liked it.

The new note, handed to United States Ambassador Arthur Bliss Lane by the Foreign Minister, rejected as "unfounded" allegations by the Western Powers that suppression, coercion and intimidation of voters and repressive measures against Vice-Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk's Polish Peasant party violated Potsdam and Yalta guaranties of free and unfettered elections.

The Government contended that it was fulfilling all obligations undertaken at Potsdam and commented that the election of parliamentary representatives was a matter within the exclusive province of the Polish people. The note crisply concluded with the observation that sice the balloting is scheduled for Sunday, further discussion would be fruitless.

Government Victory Foreseen.

The new note was much shorter than the one recently submitted to Britain, in which the Government maintained that it was Britain—not Poland—that was failing to live up to international obligations agreed to at Potsdam. British Ambassador Victor Cavendish-Bentinck now is in London for conferences concerning Sunday's voting.

This new diplomatic snub seemed to crush what little doubt remained that the Communist-dominated Government bloc parties would sweep the elections, as Government leaders have been predicting for some time.

'Pravda' Says Bevin Disavows Anglo-Red Pact

Cites 'No Ties to Anybody' Speech; Seen as Bid to Get a 'Stronger Accord

MOSCOW, Jan. 15 (AP).—A commentator in "Pravda," Communist party organ, accused British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin today of repudiating the Anglo-Soviet treaty of alliance of 1942.

The commentator, signing his article with the initials "N. N.," reminded "Pravda's" readers that Bevin in a speech Dec. 22 declared Great Britain "does not tie herself to anybody," asked if he had forgotten the treaty of alliance, and asserted this meant that his proposal last year to extend the twenty-year treaty to fifty years was not meant seriously.

[The Soviet monitor in London first translated a Moscow broadcast of the article as saying Bevin had "renounced" the treaty, and then changed it to "disavowed."

[A British Foreign Office spokesman in London quickly denied that Bevin had "disavowed" the pact in his speech answering criticism of some Laborites that Britain's foreign policy was too closely linked with the United States. The spokesman said the commentator had taken out of its context the statement that Britain "does not tie herself to anybody."

[London dispatches said the attack caused considerable concern in British government circles, where it was noted that "Pravda's" blast followed the return of Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery from a visit to Moscow, which hao raised hopes of strengthened relations with the Soviet Union. One British source said the attack could indicate that Russia was preparing to demand revision of the alliance pact and other treaties.]

Bid for Closer Ties Seen

While the "Pravda" article was an assault on Bevin and the foreign policy of the Labor government, it appeared in truth to be a definite bid for strengthening the mutual aid pact. The visit of Field Marshal Montgomery has emphasized in many ways that the Russians apparently want closer relations with London, and that they believe the British people also desire this.

The hasty departure of Frank Roberts, British Minister, for London on Montgomery's plane Saturday—something which had not been contemplated a few days previously—appeared to be growing more significant daily, and led foreign observers to expect that Montgomery's visit will bear important fruit.

Soviet writers from time to time have accused the Labor government of following the foreign policy of Winston Churchill, but never before of repudiating a treaty.

Declaring that the foreign policy of Bevin did not contain what Labor voters had been led to expect, namely, "a firm line of collaboration and friendship not only with the United States but also with the Soviet Union," and had not fulfilled pre-election promises, "Pravda's" article said Bevin at length had been forced to answer his critics in the speech Dec. 22.

Perplexed by Bevin Speech

But Bevin's explanation, the article added, has caused "perplexity."

"It obscures the question of how Bevin actually looks upon England's international pledges," the writer continued. "No one is going to dispute the right of English diplomacy to have 'an independent mind,' but in the field of international relations each state leader who respects his people and country also respects international pledges the country takes upon itself.

"When Bevin emphasizes that England 'does not tie itself to any one,' one question arises: Has Bevin forgotten that England is connected with the Soviet Union by agreement on an alliance in the war against Hitlerite Germany and its adherents in Europe and on collaboration and mutual aid after the war? Has Bevin forgotten that this treaty was signed May 26, 1942, in London, and the terms of its validity were established for twenty years?

"Bevin proposed a prolongation of the Anglo-Soviet treaty for fifty years, and today Bevin ignores the very existence of the agreement.

"This proposal was not serious, and did not express a real desire to strengthen relations with the Soviet Union."

The commentator concluded by declaring that Bevin's words do not always correspond with what actually takes place in British foreign policy, but that one thing is "entirely obvious—Bevin is repudiating the Anglo-Soviet treaty of mutual aid."

London Says Charge Won't Impress Public

London, Jan. 15 (AP)—A British Foreign Office spokesman said tonight that if Pravda's attack on Ernest Bevin, Foreign Secretary, was designed to strengthen the British-Soviet mutual-aid pact of 1942, "it may be a clever move but it will not impress the British public."

The assertion of the Moscow newspaper that Bevin had disavowed the mutual assistance treaty was interpreted in some Soviet quarters as an effort by Russia to bring closer relations with Britain by appealing directly to the British people and thus strengthening the pact.

"I don't think the British people are so gullible as to swallow that," the Foreign Office spokesman said. "If they did it would be an unfavorable impression. They will know more about it when they read the rest of the story and its interpretation by newspaper correspondents."

Referring To U.S.

The spokesman said that when Pravda quoted Bevin as saying Britain "does not tie herself to anybody" it lifted this phrase out of the context of Bevin's speech on December 22 without explaining to which country the British Foreign Secretary referred.

Bevin was referring, the spokesman explained, to the United States following the attack of Labor party "rebels" on British foreign policy as being too close to the United States.

"If, in fact, Bevin meant what Pravda interpreted it as," the spokesman said, "that would mean he was repudiating all treaties signed by this country with all other countries. Clearly, he didn't mean that, and therefore it is a complete misinterpretation.

"The British Government repeatedly has made its views known to Russia, that it would like to have the pact renewed, and there has been no response from Russia. When the time comes we hope it will be possible to extend the pact."

Russia Eases Grain Curb

Lets Farmers Who Met '46 Quotas Sell Surplus to Public

MOSCOW, Jan. 15 (AP).—A Council of Ministers decree today granted permission to all collective farms and farmers in districts which have complied as a whole with the state plan for deliveries of 1946-harvest grain to engage in free sale of grain "on the side" in 1947 until the new harvest begins.

The decree represents an effort on the part of the Soviet government to encourage the peasantry, in districts which are not in arrears to the state on 1946 grain deliveries, to put surplus grain into direct channels to urban consumers.

Wounded Arab Dies

JERUSALEM, Jan. 15 (AP)—The death of a wounded Arab constable today raised to five the fatalities from a bomb blast that wrecked the Haifa police station on Jan. 12. More than 140 persons were injured in the bombing.

The police said that persons "believed to be Jews" fired on three Arab laborers near a Jewish village in the vicinity of Jerusalem today, and set off an investigation that led to the discovery of a substantial cache of bombs and arms in the village. None of the Arabs was hit.

Singapore Censors Ban 12 American Films

Singapore, Jan. 15 (AP)—Singapore film censors announced today that twelve films, including the American Academy Award winner, "The Lost Weekend," had been banned here for the past sixteen months. No reason was given for the ban.

Among the Hollywood releases which came under the order were the March of Time report on Greece, "The General Died at Dawn," "The Island of Doomed Men," "Prison Without Bars," "Two Thousand Women," "Last Days of the Gangsters," "White Cargo" and "Objective Burma."

COMMUNIST CHIEF HITS MARSHALL IN CHINA POLICY TALK

H. K. Hicks

NANKING, Jan. 15—(AP) Qualified observers in this government capital found no hint of compromise today in a policy speech at Yenan by Gen. Chou En-Lai, chief Communist negotiator, sharply replying to General Marshall, the next United States Secretary of State.

As Chou's tart remarks on "mistakes of change in United States government policy" were studied, an unconfirmed press dispatch from Peiping said that 100,000 Communist troops in Manchuria had opened a long-rumored offensive aimed at the capital city of Changchun.

Blames United States

Chou's speech, transmitted in two parts on successive days by Yenan radio, repeated Communist arguments blaming the Kuomintang (government party) and United States supporters for continuation of the civil war.

Chou noted that General Marshall, in winding up 13 months of mediation efforts, was particularly "bitter against propagands of the Chinese Communist party."

"It is true," Chou was quoted by Yenan radio, "that since last March the Chinese Communist party incessantly has exposed mistakes of change in United States government policy towards China. It especially exposed and protested against stationing American troops in China, American intervention in internal affairs and penetration into liberated (Communist-held) areas."

Chou said the Communists still sought compromise with American mediators after July of last year "but Chiang Kai-shek, with infinite greed, wanted a yard when given an inch and endlessly raised unreasonable demands."

Hits U.S. Mediators

"American mediators, from beginning to end, did not raise a word of censure against Chiang Kai-shek but instead issued two statements blaming the Communists for not accepting American mediation," Chou said.

Today a Nanking dispatch of the Peiping newspaper Hsin Min Pao alleged that Marshall three times had rejected offers from Soviet Ambassador Apollon Petrov to participate in the mediation efforts.

(There were no comments forthcoming on the dispatch from the State department at Washington or from Marshall's party, in Honolulu.)

The report of the Manchurian offensive was published at Peiping by the newspaper Chih Shih Jih Pao. It said that Communist troops strung along the Sungari river in the north had struck toward the Changchun-Kirin railroad. The Sungari river line is approximately 70 to 80 miles north-northeast of Changchun.

The same newspaper said the Chinese government had moved reinforcements into the embattled areas of Shantung province in north China. Field dispatches told of substantial government concentrations along the Shantung-Kiangsu border.

road.

Tehhui Reported Surrounded

Other reports said 20,000 Communists were converging on Tehhui, 55 miles northeast of Changchun. The Hsin Min Pao said Tehhui was surrounded.

Field dispatches reported that substantial National troop concentrations had been thrown into the Kiangsu-Shantung border fighting after the Chinese Communists captured Yihsien, eighteen miles northwest of Taierchwang.

A dispatch from Chinkiang to the newspaper Hsin Min Pao said Government commanders had moved the reinforcements into the area and had captured three townships in their approach toward Taierchwang.

1937 Victory Recalled

Taierchwang, in southern Shantung, was the scene of the first major Chinese victory over the Japanese in the undeclared war that began in 1937.

In Peiping, Gen. Cheng Chang-kai, chief of the Government's 11th War Zone, said National troops had reopened the Peiping-Tientsin highway and that reports of last week's fighting in this area were "somewhat exaggerated."

He said the Communist attacks that captured eight villages and threatened others were designed merely to loot and to destroy what they could not carry off. The guerrillas withdrew yesterday.

Peiping Paper Tells Of Red Offensive 1947

Peiping, Jan. 15 (AP)—The official newspaper Chih Shih Jih Pao today said 100,000 Communists strung along the Sungari River in northern Manchuria had opened their long-anticipated winter offensive.

The report was not confirmed. The Chinese press has several times in the past two months reported that Communist Commander Lin Piao had opened an offensive with Changchun, the Manchurian capital, as the objective, but no offensive materialized.

Chih Shih Jih Pao's dispatch said the Communists were driving along a 100-mile front, striking toward the Changchun-Kirin rail-

Jet Planes Go 700 Miles In 1 Hour 40 Minutes

Tokyo, Jan. 15 (AP)—Far East Air Force headquarters today announced that four P-80's flew yesterday from the Philippines to Okinawa—about 700 miles—in an hour and 40 minutes in the first long-distance Pacific flight by jet planes.

The P-80's, which averaged 430 miles an hour, were piloted by Col. H. A. Boushey, of San Francisco; Major W. S. Harrell, of Selma, Ala.; Capt. Franklyn Moffett, of Oakland, Cal., and Lieut. Robert Dwan, of Benton Harbor, Mich.

Four Jet Fighters Fly 700 Miles In 1¾ Hours

Manila, Thursday, Jan. 16 (AP)—Four Shooting Star jet fighter planes flew the 700 miles from Luzon to Okinawa in an hour and 40 minutes, the Far East Air Forces Command announced today.

The first demonstration of long-distance potentialities of the jet planes in the Pacific won praise of the Far East commander, Lieut. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead.

8th Army VD Rate Drops

Tokyo, Jan. 15 (AP)—The venereal disease rate in the United States 8th Army has dropped from one case in every 193 men to one in every 363, Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger said today.

psuedo-militaristic calisthenics. They goose-stepped down the parade ground, arms swinging to the rhythm of a chant barked by their leader.

Fires Go Out Anyway

The climax came when fires were started on small shacks built atop two 40-foot towers covered with evergreen branches.

Despite valiant efforts, the hoseman couldn't quite get the water up to the shacks.

"If we leave them alone, the fires will go out," consoled an official.

They consumed the shacks—and went out.

P. S.—Fire losses in Tokyo average about 144,000,000 yen (nearly $10,000,000) anually.

Marshall Devours Books As He Rests in Honolulu

By The Associated Press.

HONOLULU, Jan. 15—Gen. George C. Marshall, resting in Honolulu before going to Washington to become Secretary of State, is reading at the rate of three to four books daily—mysteries, Westerns, anything handy.

He read so many he had to call on the Army to replenish his stock. The Army responded with a case of Armed Forces editions.

"He can polish off four a day without any strain," commented an admiring subordinate.

"In the middle of one, he may decide it is no good but he goes ahead and finishes it anyway."

There still was no word as to when the general expected to leave for Washington. He flew ehre from China, where he recently wound up thirteen months of work as special envoy of President Truman, seeking to mediate China's still prevailing stalemate between the Government and Communists.

UNRRA Aid's Home Costs China $120,000

Shanghai, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—The official Central News Agency today reported—and a CNRRA spokesman confirmed—that the Chinese National Relief and Rehabilitation Administration has purchased a house in Shanghai for Major-Gen. Glen E. Edgerton, director general of UNRRA's China office, at a cost of about $120,000.

The CNRRA spokesman said that terms of the UNRRA agreement with the Chinese Government provided that adequate housing should be provided for UNRRA's director general. He said that the house easily could be resold for the same or a higher price after it is vacated.

Fire Burns Out, Spectators Quenched, At Jap Jamboree

Tokyo, Jan. 15 (AP)—Tokyo's smoke eaters today staged their first postwar Fire Department Day—a galant show winding up with the firemen demonstrating how (not) to fight fires.

Two shacks were destroyed by flames despite the tons of water the firemen sprayed at their targets and on spectators.

It was a great show, despite the venerable engines, some 29 years old, and leaking nozzles and hoses.

Aerial Trapeze Show

All of Tokyo's fire engines were parade through the Imperial Palace Plaza and past a reviewing stand on which stood Police Inspector Minoru Suzuki, who also gives orders to the firemen.

Then volunteer firemen had their moment. Epuipped with split-toed, rubber-soled canvas shoes and kimonos that flared widely in the brisk, chill wind, they swarmed atop 30-foot bamboo ladders where they put on an aerial trapeze and acrobatics show.

BRUTAL JAP TO DIE

Manila, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Sadaki Konishi, tuberculous little warrant officer, labeled No. 3 Japanese war criminal in the Philippines because of brutalities to more than 3,000 Allied nationals, was convicted today of five atrocity charges and sentenced to be hanged. Gens. Homma and Yamashita, already executed, were the No. 1 and No. 2 criminals.

The United States military court said that it had sufficient evidence to prove Konishi participated in or ordered the execution of at least 100 persons, including David and Florence Gardner and their 5-year-old son, Jimmy, and a Pan American Airways employee, George Louis. It held Konishi responsible for the gradual starving of 3,000 Allied prisoners at Los Banos in the five months preceding their rescue by American paratroops in February, 1945.

U.S. ASKS HALT IN ARMS STUDY (N)

United Nations Urged To Put Off Action Until Feb. 4

L. HAVER

Lake Success, N.Y., Jan. 15 (AP)—The United States advised the United Nations Security Council tonight that it was not ready to discuss any arms reductions proposals at this time and pleaded for postponement of the whole question until February 4.

The Soviet Union strongly opposed the move and the Security Council adjourned after six hours of debate without voting. Another session was called for Friday for a decision on the American request for delay.

Trusts To Private Talks

Herschel V. Johnson, deputy United States delegate, said he was "merely requesting that these complicated questions be deferred for further consideration." He added that he felt that private consultations between now and February 4 would bring a wider area of agreement.

"The United States delegation is not prepared to discuss substantive matters (on arms reduction) at this time either in the Council or in a committee," Johnson declared.

Warren R. Austin, new United States delegate who officially took his seat today, put forward the surprise proposal after failing to reach agreement with Russia on procedure at a 30-minute private parley.

Sought Atom Plan Priority

Austin originally had insisted that the Security Council give priority to the problem of control of atomic energy and the Soviet delegate, Andrei A. Gromyko, had in turn insisted on immediate setting up of a commission to start work on implementing the General Assembly's basic arms reduction resolution.

The postponement plea also was opposed by Oscar Lange, Polish delegate, who said that the question of disarmament was of "such paramount importance that it should not be subjected to the usual tangles of diplomatic procedure."

"To hell with small diplomatic procedure, to hell with high-power politics, to hell with all technical obstacles," Lange shouted in an appeal for action.

Four Motions Already

The Security Council already had four motions on how to approach the problem and Austin said delegates needed more time for study. He also called attention to the resignation of James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State, and said the incoming secretary should have an opportunity to study the various plans.

The surprise United States move came after Australia urged the Security Council to set up a 11-nation disarmament commission to report by April 30 on plans to implement the Assembly resolution.

The Australian plan, set forth by Norman J. O. Makin, chairman of the Security Council and Ambassador to Washington, also provided for reports on control of atomic energy and the machinery of an international military force by the same deadline.

To Reconcile Difference

Submitted to reconcile original differences between Russia and the United States on the approach to the arms and atomic problems, Makin's plan in effect covered points raised by both countries.

"Work in both fields must proceed side by side and each division of our task must be closely related to the other," Makin said of the two problems.

30.24-7377

He specifically called for the Atomic Energy Commission to continue its work without waiting for Security Council indorsement of its first report, which was adopted in the commission 10 to 0, with Russia and Poland abstaining. In this way, he said, the whole arms program would not be held up but he cautioned that the Security Council must expedite its atomic consideration.

Terms Of Resolution

Makin's resolution provided:

1. For a disarmament commission to work out arms limitation proposals.

2. For the Atomic Energy Commission to continue its work on atomic controls.

3. For the Military Staff Committee to draft proposals for the United Nations international police force to preserve world order.

4. For all three units to report by April 30.

5. For the Security Council to expedite consideration of the first report of the Atomic Commission, which contains the basic United States plan for atomic control.

The Australian proposal would have the eleven members of the disarmament commission represent the nations on the Security Council — Russia, United States, Great Britain, France, China, Syria, Poland, Colombia, Brazil, Belgium and Australia.

Makin spoke after China had favored principles of both the American and Soviet plans.

Atomic Deadline Plan May Snarl U.N. Debate (1)

CARPENTER

Lake Success, N.Y., Jan. 15 (AP)—The United Nations arms-reduction fight was complicated further today by a United States plan to set February 4 as the deadline for the beginning of Security Council discussions on specific atomic control measures.

As the Council delegates were called into session, informed quarters said United States Delegate Warren R. Austin was ready to propose that the deadline be added to an earlier American resolution that would assure atomic control of top priority in any arms-reduction program.

Britain Seeks Compromise

Great Britain was reported to be hopeful, despite the new development, that the Council could combine the conflicting United States and Soviet proposals on arms reduction to form an acceptable compromise.

While Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko had insisted the Council should act immediately on the broader question of a general arms reduction, British sources expressed belief the American-Russian deadlock might be broken without major concession on either side.

The British reportedly felt that no major question of principle was involved, that atomic control should be given top priority, but that the Council might do this without sidetracking the Soviet proposal for immediately creating a commission to study general arms reduction. The Council could act on the Atomic Energy Commission's recommendations, now before it, while the other commission was getting started.

Two other important issues, caught in the log-jam, may come up later this week. They are:

1. Great Britain's complaint against Albania, charging that Albania laid mines in Corfu Straits, and as a result caused the death of 44 British sailors.

2. Election of a governor for the proposed free territory of Trieste.

WOULD KEEP LUXURY TAXES

Grant (R., Ind.) To File Bill In House Today 1947

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—Representative Grant (R., Ind.) announced today he would introduce tomorrow his bill to continue beyond July 1 the so-called luxury taxes on liquor, furs, jewelry, lipstick and other items.

Promptly, Chairman Knutson (R., Minn.), of the tax-framing House Ways and Means Committee, announced Grant's measure would be given priority over all other tax legislation, and might be approved at the first committee meeting on Friday.

Meanwhile, House Democrats, with statements chiding Republicans who previously favored letting the wartime excise rates die July 1, swung into step with the GOP's surprise drive to continue them indefinitely.

Will Get Doughton Vote

Representative Doughton (D., N.C.), leading Democratic tax man in the House, said, "this proposition is sure to get my vote." He said:

"Sure, we should continue the extra tax on liquor and such things. Since the Republicans now have decided to follow President Truman on this issue, they might find some merit in his other recommendations on fiscal matters."

The President, in his $37,500,000,000 budget message to Congress last week, asked for continuation of the high excise rates for a year beyond the scheduled July 1 rollback. He also took a firm stand against the Republican proposal to slash individual income taxes twenty per cent.

Should Change On Tax Cut

"I don't know whether they will change their minds about the twenty per cent cut," Doughton said, "but they might find it necessary if we are going to balance the budget and make a good payment on the national debt."

The House Democratic whip, Representative McCormack, of Massachusetts, commented:

"Having changed their position once, the Republicans ought now to change their position on the twenty per cent windfall reduction of income taxes. They now should apply any revenue surpluses to the reduction of our national debt."

The new Republican move apparently was calculated in part to make room for their promised twenty per cent income-tax slash.

House Democratic ranks appeared to be closing tightly against the Republican proposal to cut income levies by twenty per cent. Some dissention in Republican quarters cast doubt also on whether such legislation can pass.

Some Tax Easing Likely

However, it appears likely that some sort of legislation easing individual tax loads will be approved by Congress.

Some Republicans, while opposing a straight twenty per cent cut, indicated they would go along with a bill that would give the greater percentage of relief to low-income groups.

Representative Gearhart (R., Cal.), Ways and Means member, said he favors a bill that would ease the take "from the little fellow's bread-and-meat money," while giving lesser percentage relief to larger incomes.

At the Treasury, Secretary Snyder maintained the Administration's position that the Government cannot grant tax reductions now because it requires the revenue obtained from present taxes to balance the budget and reduce the national debt.

Snyder told a news conference the Treasury favors a "careful study of all areas" of potential tax reductions—when it can be afforded—so the benefits will be "most useful in maintaining purchasing power and in providing incentives" for high-level production.

Asked if there was a contradiction in providing tax incentives for a business man "to go out and expand and make more money" and in "stimulating purchasing power in the lower brackets," Snyder replied:

"I didn't say necessarily to go out and make more money; the incentive is to have him put his efforts out to create new processes and new services in large production, and that in turn will employ people, which will increase the purchasing power."

SNYDER URGES TAX STUDY

Would Cover 'All Areas' for Most Useful Cuts in Future

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—John W. Snyder, Secretary of the Treasury, asserted today that the Government could not grant tax reductions because it required the revenue obtained from present levies to balance the budget and cut the national debt.

He told a news conference that the Treasury favored a "careful study of all areas" of potential tax reduction, when it could be afforded, so the benefits would be "most useful in maintaining purchasing power" and providing high level production.

Asked if there was a contradiction in providing tax incentives for a business man "to go out and expand and make more money" and in "stimulating purchasing power in the lower brackets," Mr. Snyder replied:

"I didn't say necessarily to go out and make more money, the incentive is to have him put his efforts out to create new processes and new services in large production and that in turn will employ people which will increase the purchasing power."

G.O.P. BACKS TAFT TO HEAD ECONOMIC STUDY COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 — (AP) Senate Republican leaders agreed today to back Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) for the chairmanship of the Senate-House committee on the Economic Report and to spread three membership appointments geographically.

This group is charged with telling Congress what it ought to do about President Truman's economic recommendations. As G.O.P. members, Presiding Officer Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) was expected to name Senators Flanders of Vermont, Ball of Minnesota and Watkins of Utah.

With Senator Bridges (R.-N.H.) withdrawing from membership because of his duties as chairman of the Senate Appropriations committee, this lineup would give recognition to two Senate "freshmen," Flanders and Watkins.

Control With G.O.P.

Control of the group will rest with the Republicans as a result of their new majorities in both Houses.

Senate Democrats have one vacancy on the committee, but Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) said he doubted it could be filled before Friday despite a scheduled meeting of the group tomorrow.

Senate O'Mahoney (D.-Wyo.), retiring chairman, called for the incomplete committee to meet then with the assertion that Congress cannot afford to ignore the President's "solemn warning that the increasing mergers of business firms and the uninterrupted growth of big business have now proceeded to the point where the people are no longer able to rely upon normal competitive forces to regulate prices and the volume of production."

O'Mahoney noted that the law required that the Senate-House committee report back its recommendations about the President's suggestions by Feb. 1.

But Taft told a reporter he thinks it would be impossible for an unstaffed group to make any analysis of the President's program and have findings ready by that time.

"The President doesn't recommend anything very specific and I think that the committee's report can wait until later in the session," the Ohio senator said. He added that when the Republicans formally take control, he will urge that the committee ask for an extension of time.

In his report, Mr. Truman called for reduced prices, wage adjustments on an individual basis, restriction of monopoly, continuation of a home building program, extension of rent control and no reduction in taxes.

New Committee Plans Security 1947 Needs Study

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—The House Armed Services Committee today planned a full-scale review of the nation's foreign relations and the peace-keeping potential of the United Nations.

Chairman Andrews (R., N.Y.), said the committee needs that information before it can begin mapping security legislation.

Other Proposals

Discussing his plans for the new group which takes over the duties formerly assigned to separate Military and Naval committees, Andrews also:

1. Disclosed plans to set up eleven subcommittees to concentrate on a wide variety of military problems, ranging from pay and personnel to atomic energy.

2. Expressed conviction that the presidential-imposed "gag" on the Navy in connection with the armed services merger dispute should be extended to the Army.

3. Served notice that members do not intend "to let the Army and Navy" do the committee's work; hence all professional help will be drawn from civilian ranks. This, however, will not bar those who have left the service from working for the committee.

4. Announced that there will be no formal consideration of extending the draft at least until February when the committee expects a full analysis of the effort to meet manpower needs through voluntary enlistments.

To Scan Foreign Relations

Andrews said the committee should start off its legislative program by determining "what is the present state of our foreign relations." From there, he said, it should go on to find out the nation's commitments under United Nations, and what the present situation is on disarmament.

Andrews indicated that he will try to steer the Armed Services Committee away from direct involvement in the merger controversy.

Congress Gets Navy Requests

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Navy asked Congress today for legislation emphasizing research and possible standardization of armaments with foreign governments.

Several of the Navy's recommendations would continue certain wartime powers. Others renewed requests on which the Navy has been turned down at previous sessions.

Among other things, the Navy again asked for a postgraduate academy at Monterey, Cal., which would cost $28,750,000, and a $12,000,000 airport for the Navy Academy at Annapolis, Md. The airport was recommended as "essential to the training of midshipmen."

All the bills were sent to Congress with letters signed by James V. Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy, or an acting secretary. They were referred by Speaker Martin (R., Mass.) to the House Armed Services Committee.

Would Sell, Lend Or Give

On the other side of the Capitol, Chairman Gurney (R., S.D.), of the Senate Armed Services Committee, introduced legislation for the Annapolis airport and Monterey Academy.

One bill the Navy sent to the House would permit the Navy to "sell, lend or give" ordnance materials to foreign governments, and receive them from foreign navies under the same conditions.

"At present," the Navy's letter said, "the Navy is interested in obtaining from foreign governments such naval ordnance as armor, large-calibre armor-piercing projectiles, items relating to fire control, underwater ordnance" and some minor items.

Permission to sell or give the materials is needed, the Navy explained, in the case of materials developed jointly with another country but manufactured solely in the United States. Without that authority for our Navy, the other country could not obtain an article it had helped develop.

Information Invaluable

Exchanges of this type were made during the war under lend-lease agreements, the Navy said, and "the information gained through such experimental tests has proved invaluable."

The Navy also asked authority to build approximately 4,000 tons of submarine vessels for experimental purposes.

"Developments in submarine warfare during World War II, both by our Navy and the navies of other nations, have indicated certain radical advancements in the design, construction, operation and employment of submarine vessels," the Navy commented in making the request.

NAVY TO UNWRAP SKYSTREAK PLANE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15. — (AP) The Navy's first bid to fly as fast as sound travels is wrapped up in the Douglas D-558 (Skystreak) which will get a public showing Feb. 5, the Navy said today.

The Skystreak is a jet-propelled, single-seater experiment which has never flown. It will be assembled for the first time, the Navy statement said, for the exhibit to be held in the Douglas plant at El Segundo, Calif.

The Navy hopes the Skystreak will reveal some of the peculiarities of the 600-800 miles per hour speed--of-sound belt which has been virtually a mystery in the world of flying until recently.

Research so far has shown that conventional aircraft knowledge does not apply to this belt, termed the trans-sonic field. Airplanes or guided missiles that are designed for the super-sonic 1500-mile per hour speeds will have to crash through the trans-sonic barrier. No one knows how they will react as they pass through the sound wall.

After the Skystreak's exhibition it will be taken to Muroc, Calif. for extensive flight testing, the Navy said.

Air Admirals View Planes At Patuxent

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—The nation's air admirals today gathered at Patuxent, Md., for a peek at secret equipment and planes being developed by the Bureau of Aeronautics.

The two-day demonstration of new ideas and equipment that are expected to show up in naval aviation three or four years hence, was announced by the Navy Department.

Although no details of the meeting were released by the Navy Department, it was understood that the admirals would get the latest word on jet airplanes, radio-controlled flight and supersonic research.

Admiral Fitch Gives Up Command at Annapolis

He Praises U. N. in Farewell Address to Midshipmen

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 15 (AP).—Vice-Admiral Aubrey W. Fitch, relinquishing command of the United States Naval Academy, declared today that the United Nations is a driving force with "the hopes and aspirations of all the peoples and nations . . . focused on it."

Admiral Fitch, in a farewell address after turning over the command to Rear Admiral James L. Holloway jr., also paid tribute to the spirit of the brigade of midshipmen—a spirit he described as "traditionally the unique quality of the Naval Academy graduate."

Admiral Fitch will become special assistant to John L. Sullivan, Under Secretary of the Navy, next month.

He told the 2,963 midshipmen, assembled with their 382 officers and 153 civilian instructors in Dahlgren Hall, that the nation had seen that spirit exemplified in the Army-Navy football game last November.

FERGUSON TELLS OF BIG PROFITS IN WAR INQUIRY PLEA

1947

Says Treasury Branch Paid Middlemen $2,000,000 Excess on Hardware.

Washington, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Senator Ferguson (R.-Mich.) declared today that "inordinate profits" were made on sales of small hardware items to the Treasury procurement branch for lend-lease during the war. He told the Senate that the War Investigating Committee has turned up instances "where contractors having no manufacturing facilities were paid prices 50 to 1,000 per cent higher than the manufacturers' price."

He spoke in favor of extending the life of the special committee. "In the cases examinod by the committee, doing business in this fashion has cost the Government $2,000,000 over the manufacturers' actual price," he said.

Senator Elbert Thomas (D.-Utah), who was a member of the joint committee which drafted the Congressional Reorganization act, spoke at length against continuing the committee.

"One of the reasons Congress loses control of itself is that it divides itself up into so many committees," he said. "An investigating committee is a never-ending affair."

Case of the 57,000 Pins.

Senator Ferguson, saying the hardware sales cases were in the committee's files and not explored in public hearings, described one instance in which he said 57,000 "small steel pins, approximately three inches long," were bought by Treasury procurement from a firm with no manufacturing facilities. This firm sublet the entire production to a factory which received 3 cents a pin, while the contract holders collected 34 cents a pin, Brewster said.

"In this case the middlemen's profit, which the Government paid, was 955 per cent over the manufacturer's price," he declared.

Ferguson declined to name the company, saying it would be unfair until the committee "has determined a full public hearing."

He told the Senate the committee had found that nearly $500,000 was spent "in resurfacing the highways in Bermuda."

"This was done without any express appropriation from the Congress for that purpose and without advising the Congress of this expenditure," he said.

"When I was in Bermuda recently, I learned that Bermuda had passed a law limiting the use of Bermuda roads to cars of ten horse power or less, which means that only British cars may be used there, since American cars are all of higher horse power."

With the Senate preparing to decide the fate of the committee, which Brewster would head as chairman, the Senator declared: "The real question before the Senate is whether or not the Senate and the people want to know any more about how their agents discharged their public trust in handling of the vast powers and spending hundreds of billions of dollars during the war."

Says Truman Favors Continuance.

Republicans cited remarks of President Truman to indicate that he may favor continuance of the War Investigating Committee. Brewster said that when he conferred with Mr. Truman after being named chairman of the special committee, "the President suggested that we ((the committee) had wide experience in that field."

Ferguson, also a member of the committee, referred in a long speech to a statement Mr. Truman made in the Senate in August, 1944, when he retired as chairman of the War Investigating Committee. Ferguson quoted the President as saying then that the accomplishments of the committee "present an example of the results that can be obtained from making a factual investigation with a good staff," and that "similar accomplishments can be made by other special committees."

When Brewster hinted that perhaps some opponents of continuing the committee didn't want any investigation made of war contracts, Senator Tydings (D.-Md.) announced that he will propose that such an inquiry be made by the Armed Services Committee.

"The men who are going to write the corrective legislation legislation should be the men whose minds are saturated with the facts at first hand," Tydings declared.

WAA OFFICIAL SEIZED BY FBI

Ex-Convict Also Held In Alleged $72,000 Excess Goods P

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, today disclosed the arrest of a War Assets Administration official and an ex-convict trapped in an alleged plot to defraud the Government of $72,000 in surplus war materials.

Hoover said the Federal worker, Louis V. Dionne, 38-year-old WAA expediter, received $7,000 as his share.

Document Forging Charged

The ex-convict was identified as George A. Gormley, 50. Hoover said Gormley was sentenced in Washington on November 27, 1933, to serve a four-to-eight-year sentence for grand larceny and that the sentence was later changed to a straight eight-year term.

Hoover said in a statement that both men were charged with violation of the "fraud against the Government" statute for causing a forged document to be presented to the Government.

The scheme was concocted in a Washington bar last November, Hoover said, and involved the "alteration of sales documents" obtained in a genuine purchase of surplus war materials sold at Alexandria, Virginia.

"The plan called for Dionne to raise or increase the yardage figures on the shipping order when it crossed his desk in routine fashion," Hoover said.

"The investigation thus far has resulted in the recovery of textiles costing the Government $144,000. This amount of goods was seized in a New York storage firm after being traced from a terminal of a trucking firm."

Wool Material Involved

Hoover said Gormley purchased 10,000 yards of wool clothing material from a WAA salesman in Alexandria last December 6, paying $24,000 for the goods, which originally cost the Government $3.60 per yard, or $36.000.

"The sales document was altered during routine processing to reflect Gormley's purchase as 40,000 yards and the amount paid to the Government as $96,000,'" Hoover said.

"The altered documen' was forwarded to the warehouse and on December 10, 1946, 40,000 yards of textiles consigned to Gormley were trucked from the warehouse to a Washington (D.C.) truck terminal." From there, the goods were hauled to a New York city warehouse, it was said.

Meanwhile, Hoover said, Gormley sold the whole 40,000 yards to an unidentified "new owner" for $53,000, or a profit of $29,000 on Gormley's original $24,000 investment.

Dionne Hired Last August

Hoover did not disclose how the FBI got on the trail, but said his agents investigated and made the seizure January 13.

The FBI chief said Dionne was employed as a WAA expediter in the traffic division last August, assigned to handle shipments of goods from war surplus sales.

Previously, Dionne had been employed by the War Department as a field inspector in the Philadelphia Quartermaster Corps.

PEPPER ASSAILS U.S. POLICY TALK BY VANDENBERG

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—Senator Pepper (D-Fla) protested on the Senate floor today that Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) had "contradicted" official foreign policies of this government toward China and Argentina.

Pepper said he was calling attention of the Senate and the world to Vandenberg's remarks because, he said, they might be misunderstood in view of Vandenberg's new position as chairman of the Foreign Relations committee and his close association with Secretary of State Byrnes in post-war negotiations.

Refers to Speech

The Florida Democrat referred to Vandenberg's recent speech in Cleveland in which Vandenberg called for (1) a "shift" in American policy toward support of non-Communist groups in China and (2) prompt calling of a conference with other American Republics.

Pepper said the first action differed with the recommendations of General George C. Marshall, newly selected Secretary of State, that this government cooperate with "liberals" in China.

Pepper said Vandenberg's demand for the inter-American session differed with the recommendation by Secretary Byrnes that such a session be delayed until Argentina "met her commitments."

Pepper said that Vandenberg made it plain he was offering his "personal" opinions but Pepper believed that these might be misunderstood elsewhere because of Vandenberg's prominence.

Vandenberg's suggestions as to China, the Floridan argued, would link this country with "reactionaries and corruption."

As to the conference with South American nations, Pepper said Vandenberg's proposal was "in direct contradiction to the declared policy of the State department" and came before Marshall had a chance to set his policy.

Supports Peron, He Says

"It would give support to the Peron government," Pepper told the Senate, adding that he was "unwilling to embrace Argentina until it has purged itself of the iniquitous association with Nazism during the war."

This, Pepper suggested was "not helpful" to the new Secretary of State.

Pepper said the two suggestions of Vandenberg would place the United States "closer to reactionary" forces "if not to the feudal and some time corrupt and some times fascist" influences of other nations.

Vandenberg was presiding as president pro tempore at the time of the Pepper remarks and made no reply. After the session, he said he had no comment to make.

PAULEY SEES NO CHANGE IN U. S. FOREIGN POLICY

HONOLULU Jan. 15 (AP)—Edwin W. Pauley, arriving aboard the Matsonia for an inspection of Coconut island in which he has an interest, today acclaimed as "excellent" General Marshall's appointment as Secretary of State.

"There couldn't have been a better choice," said Pauley, U.S. representative on the Allied Reparations commission.

He predicted no change in U.S. foreign policy.

Coconut Island, described as an international resort for a select group from the upper business and political strata, is expected to open in March.

Peace Group Leader Fears Marshall Policy

Philadelphia, Jan. 15 (AP)—The national president of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom says appointment of Gen. George C. Marshall as Secretary of State indicates America may be traveling on another road to war.

Mrs. Alexander Stewart, of Chicago, in an address dedicating the opening of her group's new national headquarters here yesterday, said Marshall's appointment is a "deplorable trend which only centralizes the power in military groups and doesn't encourage the world to have faith that we want to disarm."

U. S. DISCLOSES WHAT HE GOT

More Coal to Be Sent as Well as Grain—Pre-UNRRA Debt to Be Canceled.

Washington, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Alcide de Gasperi of Italy left by plane for Rome today, ending an eleven-day mission which he termed a great success.. On the Air Transport Command plane with the Italian Premier and his party were ten newspaper and radio editors, bound for inspection of the European occupation zones.

30.24-7379

De Gasperi told a reporter at the airport that he considered his visit "a great success, both from the concrete and moral standpoint" He issued a statement thanking the American people for his reception.

The United States has promised increased relief assistance to Italy as a result of the Premier's visit, the State Department said this afternoon. The department announced that the United States plans to increase its wheat shipments to Italy on February 1, and to increase, if possible its shipments of coal.

The United States also informed De Gasperi that it is prepared to wipe out the Italian debt for food and relief supplies furnished through American military channels before UNRRA started operations. Discussions toward that end, the State Department announcement said, will begin "as soon as possible," and the unblocking of Italian assets here will be taken up at the same time.

"It was considered," the announcement said, "that the revival of trade between the two countries was most encouraging." Further to improve trade relations, it was agreed by the Italian Prime Minister and American officials that negotiations for a new commercial treaty should start as quickly as possible.

This would replace a previous treaty signed in 1938. "Signor de Gasperi was assured by this Government of its continuing concern for the early restoration of the Italian economy, and of its desire to assist the Prime Minister's Government in its work of reconstruction," the department said. The statement said that the Premier's visit emphasized the determination of the Italians to build a stable and democratic nation "which will once again play an important role in a peaceful and prosperous world."

Governmental officials said that they hope to ship 220,000 tons of grain to Italy during February, and about 400,000 to 450,000 tons of coal. These officials said that Italy's urgent requirement could be met by shipments of such size.

In elaborating on the State Department's announcement, these officials said that the United States held about $60,000,000 in Italian assets. The United States, they pointed out, already has promised to release these as soon as minor claims are made. Discusions with the Italians on financial matters probably will begin after the peace treaty with Italy has been signed, they said.

DE GASPERI'S STATEMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Text of the statement issued today by Italian Premier de Gasperi shortly before leaving by plane for Rome:

1947

American friends:

I am addressing you once again at the end of my ten days' stay in your wonderful country where I had the pleasure of meeting American statesmen, officials, technicians, men and women of your noble people—industrialists and workers.

They all contributed in giving me a vivid feeling of a spontaneous interest and of the sincere friendship, of the spiritual solidarity which binds together the American and Italian nations.

The points discussed and the understanding reached on many subjects directly interesting the two countries already have been announced. I want now to express my deepest and most heartfelt gratitude to the American nation and to its representatives, first of all to President Truman and to the officials and to those who have given me in any way such a cordial welcome.

I want to address also a particular greeting to the Americans of Italian extraction who have given me so many evidences of good-will and warm support.

I feel ultimately confident after this journey that the traditional friendship between America and Italy has been strengthened and fostered these days on a basis of mutual respect of common ideals of freedom, justice and peace in the frame of a sound and honest international cooperation. I go back to my country conscious of this fact and happy to report to my people they can count on it.

U. S. Acts to Bolster De Gasperi Regime

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Two quick moves by the United States to alleviate hunger and industrial distress in Italy were viewed by diplomats today as American attempts to strengthen the hand of Premier Alcide De Gasperi and his middle-of-the-road Christian Democratic party.

The two actions took this form:

1. The Export-Import Bank, under State Department urging, announced it will set aside $100,000,000 to aid Italian industry.

2. The War Department disclosed it has diverted six Germany-bound shiploads of wheat to ports in Italy.

Premier De Gasperi leaves for Rome today after a 10-day economic mission here.

1947

BOSTON, Jan. 15 — (AP) Maj. Gen. J. Lawton Collins said today that "Russia still has three times our strength in military troops."

"Russia and the United States," the General said, "are the two great military powers in the world today."

Considering briefly the military strength of the world's leading nations, Collins, chief of public information for the War department, described Great Britain as "weakened x x x but still a tremendous factor" and France as "relatively impotent, militaristically."

He told the Association of American Colleges that the United States has demobilzed "about 90 per cent" of military troops and that his nation must be prepared in event of surprise attack to mobilize five and a half million men immediately.

"This should be expandable by further mobilization to eight million men x x x somewhat smaller than the V-E day strength of the army," the general said.

He declared that England "probably never will have again the full use of her colonial troops" and added:

"Japan and Germany have been utterly reduced and I hope they remain that way."

In any future war, he continued, civilians may be attacked by death-dealing radio-active materials produced by means other than the atomic bomb which would make the areas of attack uninhabitable.

He did not go into details of such radio-active substances but listed them in guided missiles and bacteriological warfare as the real perils in future conflicts.

Brig. Gen. Arthur C. Trudeau of the War department general staff, told the educators that a system of universal military training is essential to meet mobilization requirements as outlined by Collins.

U. S. CITES STAND ON BRITISH LOAN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder said today the United States wants Great Britain to comply fully with terms of the agreement under which it obtained a $3,750,000,000 loan from this country.

His remarks were made at a press conference in response to questions about whether terms of that loan agreement were violated by a later British-Argentine trade agreement.

Snyder declined to discuss either the alleged violation or the correspondence he has had with the British government concerning it. He stated the U. S. position in this way:

"We signed the loan agreement with them some time ago, and we just want them to live up to their agreement."

The loan agreement with Britain provides that after next June, one year from the time the loan became effective, all blocked sterling released to Britain's wartime creditors should be freely convertible to any currency, and expendable anywhere.

The British-Argentine agreement contains a clause providing that in any year that Argentina buys more from Britain than it sells to it, the British will release enough of Argentina's blocked sterling to cover the difference. It stipulates that Argentina must spend it in the sterling area.

The British, when questioned by this country over the apparent conflict reportedly admitted a "technical" violation, explaining that Argentina always sells Britain far more than it buys from it.

Foreign Securities Deals Freed of U. S. Restrictions

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—The Treasury today removed restrictions on acquiring and importing foreign securities, either government or corporate, which are located outside this country and payable in other currencies.

Throughout the war such securities could be acquired or imported only after issuance of a Treasury license. The purpose was to prevent enemy countries placing them on this country's markets.

The Treasury today also specifically unblocked Austrian assets in this country. They were valued at $6,000,000 when frozen six months before Pearl Harbor. The Treasury said there is no data on any change in value since. Claimants must be certified by the Austrian National Bank.

Austrian Assets in U. S. Released by Treasury

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—The Treasury Department unblocked today Austrian assets in this country.

They were valued at $6,000,000 when frozen six months before Pearl Harbor. The Treasury said there was no data on any change in value since.

Claimants must be certified by the Austrian National Bank, designated by the Austrian Government as certifying agent to prevent the assets falling into hands of former enemies.

U. N. R. R. A. Lists Shipments

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP).—The United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration reported today that shipments of relief supplies through Dec. 31 totaled 19,257,970 tons costing $2,281,759,000. These supplies were from all sources, including the United States. Remaining to be shipped to wind up the U. N. R. R. A. program are supplies costing $661,949,000.

Officials of the agency estimated that shipments would continue to Europe probably until April and to China until July.

Shipments, by countries, up to Jan. 1 included: Albania, $17,795,000; Austria, $99,659,000; Byelo-Russia, $49,206,000; China, $265,881,000; Czechoslovakia, $224,586,000; Dodecanese Islands, $4,006,000; Ethiopia, $366,000; Finland, $2,196,000; Greece, $325,522,000; Hungary, $2,806,000; Italy, $314,430,000; Korea, $178,000; Philippines, $6,095,000; Poland, $407,026,000; San Marino, $30,000; Ukraine, $159,576,000; Yugoslavia, $368,556,000; special projects, including displaced persons camps, $33,845,000.

F.D.R., Jr., Attacks Reds

New York, Jan. 13 (AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., national housing chairman of the American Veterans Committee, says that Communists have moved into the A.V.C. and changed it from "a flowering, inspiring group of young Americans interested in the nation's welfare" into an organization "tattered and torn and factionalized."

"We are now bewildered and confused by the lies and tactics thrown at us by people who would not admit they were Commies but who at every turn of the road hewed to the Daily Worker (Communist newspaper) line," he declared at a meeting yesterday.

Charges Growth Stopped

The A.V.C. now numbers between 75,000 and 80,000 members and has stopped growing, he said, in addressing the women's division of Friends of Democracy, Inc.

"About six months ago," he said, "we noted that the Daily Worker was advising its members and its fellow travelers not to go into the American Legion but into an up-and-coming organization called the A.V.C. The people of America have lost faith in us because we are Commie-infiltrated."

Then he added, "We must decide—what now?"

Gardner Sworn In As Envoy to Britain

Washington, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Max Gardner, former Under-Secretary of the Treasury, was sworn in today as the new United States Ambassador to Great Britain. Chief Justice Fred Vinson administered the oath at the State Department while Secretary Byrnes and about twenty other top ranking department officials looked on.

Gardner, who succeeds W. Averell Harriman, now Secretary of Commerce is scheduled to leave for his new port on February 6 aboard the liner America.

SenateGetsAtomicNominations

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP).—President Truman today sent to the Senate the formal nomination of David E. Lilienthal to be chairman of the United States Atomic Energy Commission, along with other members, Robert F. Bacher, Sumner T. Pike, Lewis L. Strauss and William W. Waymack.

GEN. TWINING SLATED FOR CARIBBEAN POST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Government officials said tonight that Lieut. Gen. Nathan F. Twining was slated to be named commanding general of the Panama Canal Department and Caribbean Defense Command in about three weeks. Lieut. Gen. Willis D. Crittenberger has commanded the area since October, 1945.

The shift in commanders means, according to some officials, that the Caribbean-Panama sector will be continued as a strategic air theater and not revert to its pre-war status as a ground forces command.

General Twining is a veteran Regular Army officer. He was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1918 and is 50 years old.

In the Pacific in 1943 he served as Allied air commander under Fleet Admiral William F. Halsey, heading combined operations of Army, Navy, Marine and Allied Air Forces. Later, he took over the Fifteenth Strategic Air Force in Italy.

Last July, General Twining was assigned to a headquarters job in the Air Technical Services command, Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio.

Reece Assails Truman's State-Of-Union Message

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—Carroll Reece, Republican national chairman, today termed President Truman's State-of-the-Union message a mass of "generalities" and said the nation will have to look to the Republicans for leadership in the next two years.

He asserted the President might have been looking to his political fortunes in 1948 because the message delivered January 6, "avoided the middle of the road and traveled both the right and left sides simultaneously."

Reece's appraisal was contained in a 1,300 word letter to 7,500 Republican office-holders, party officials and leaders throughout the country.

U. S. WILL JUNK AND SELL SOME CANOL ASSETS

Canada Agrees to Let Us Dispose of Part of Project Piecemeal.

DOMINION MAY BE A BUYER

Accord Covers Oil Pipeline and Refinery—War Enterprise Cost $133,000,000.

Washington, Jan. 15 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Byrnes disclosed today that Canada has agreed to let the United States junk and sell piecemeal part of a $133,000,000 wartime white elephant—the Canol oil refinery and pipe line project. Under a pact reached last Friday, the United States may sell all or part of Canol project No. 1 to the Canadian Government or other buyers, remove what it can't sell, or merely abandon it.

The agreement, Byrnes said in a report to Congress, covers a pipe line running from Norman Wells, northwest territory, to White Horse, Yukon territory, a refinery at White Horse, and related facilities. It does not cover Canol projects No. 2, 3 and 4—systems set up to distribute the refinery's finished products—because the Army has not declared these surplus.

Byrnes reported that an investigation disclosed it is doubtful that "any governmental or private agency will desire to acquire the pipe line and refinery for use in place."

The Canol project was intended by the Joint Chiefs of Staffs to develop an oil field in northern Canada to supply fuel for an Alaskan aerial offensive against Japan. The offensive never materialized.

Denounced as a 'Flaming Waste.'

The Senate War Investigating Committee denounced the enterprise in a report last fall as a "flaming waste." The committee said the action of Admiral Ernest J. King and Gen. Brehon Somervell of the Joint Staff in persisting with the project was a "blot on the record of two otherwise able officers." King later protested that the report imputed to him personally decisions on Canol which were reached by the Chiefs of Staff as a group.

Byrnes's report was submitted in accordance with a provision of the surplus property act requiring submission to Congress of plans for disposing of pipe lines and other petroleum transport facilities costing in excess of $5,000,000. The report said sales will be made by sealed bids which will be opened March 20.

U.S. Explains Rent Increases Cited By Private Owners

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—The announcement of a widespread boost in public housing rents was cited by a spokesman for some private property owners today as "convincing proof" that private rentals also should be permitted to rise.

William J. Davis, executive director of the National Home and Property Owners Foundation, declared Government housing charges had risen as much as $30 a month while "frozen" rent ceilings prevail on private property.

An official of the Federal Public Housing Authority said the increases were part of a program of reconverting war housing to its original purpose—low-rent, subsidized dwelling units for low-income families.

FHPA Explains

The latest round of rent increases ordered by FPHA will affect tenants in 53 projects in eleven states, mainly in the West and Hawaii.

The FPHA official said the projects had been used as war housing with the understanding that they would be converted to low-rent status after the war.

The wartime rent was intended to pay operating costs but not return a profit. The rent was therefore often lower than OPA ceilings for comparable accommodations. The occupants' income was not taken into consideration, as is in low-rent, subsidized public housing. Now, the official said, families whose high income disqualifies them are being asked to move.

How Boosts Are Possible

When they are unable to move for lack of other accommodations, their rent is increased on the basis of their ability to pay, up to the OPA ceiling rate. A boost from $35 to $65 as cited by Davis would thus be possible, the official said.

Last February, 133 projects containing 33,822 rental units were converted to low-rent status, and a survey last September showed that 35 per cent of the tenants could not qualify as low-income families. In later conversion groups, officials said they had no estimate on the percentage of families who could not qualify for low rent.

WASHINGTON, JAN.15-(AP)-THE STATE DEPARTMENT MADE CLEAR TODAY IT EXPECTS TO BE CONSULTED ON ANY SOVIET-NORWEGIAN AGREEMENT WHICH WOULD AFFECT THE 1920 TREATY DEMILITARIZING THE SPITSBERGEN ARCHIPELAGO.

THIS POSITION WAS ANNOUNCED TO REPORTERS BY MICHAEL J. MCDERMOTT, SECRETARY BYRNES' PRESS ASSISTANT.

MCDERMOTT SAID THAT FAR THE STATE DEPARTMENT HAS NOT BEEN INFORMED OF ANY FORMAL AGREEMENT BETWEEN NORWAY AND RUSSIA ON "THE NECESSITY OF JOINT DEFENSE" OF SPITSBERGEN. HE SAID THE DEPARTMENT LIKEWISE HAS NO INFORMATION THAT THE SOVIETS HAD DENOUNCED THE 1920 TREATY, BUT ADDED:

"AS WE ARE A PARTY TO THE TREATY, WE HAVE NO DOUBT AT ALL THAT WE WILL BE CONSULTED IN CASE NORWAY AND SOVIET RUSSIA REACH AGREEMENT THAT A MODIFICATION OF THE TREATY IS DESIRABLE."

ON THE RADIO MOSCOW REPORT THAT RUSSIA AND NORWAY HAVE AGREED ON THE "NECESSITY" FOR JOINT DEFENSE" OF THE ISLANDS, MCDERMOTT NOTED THE NORWEGIAN GOVERNMENT IN A STATEMENT JANUARY 10 HAD SAID THAT ANY REVISION OF THE TREATY WOULD HAVE TO BE MADE BY ALL PARTIES TO THE PACT.

PENDING FORMAL NOTIFIGATION THAT A DEFINITE UNDERSTANDING HAS BEEN REACHED BY THE SOVIETS IN NORWAY, HOWEVER, OFFICIALS INDICATED NO ACTION BY THE UNITED STATES IS LIKELY.

A MOSCOW BROADCAST QUOTING THE TASS NEWS AGENCY SAID THAT MEDVEZHI OR BEAR ISLAND PRIOR TO THE TREATY "ACTUALLY WAS A RUSSIAN ISLAND." THE TREATY SPECIFICALLY INCLUDED THIS ISLAND AMONG OTHERS IN THE ARCHIPELAGO, WHICH WAS PLACED UNDER NORWAY'S SOVEREIGNTY WITH A PROVISO THAT NO NAVAL BASES SHOULD BE BUILT.

BECAUSE OF SPITZBERGEN'S KEY LOCATION ATHWART THE SEA APPROACHES TO NORTHERN RUSSIA AND SOME 3,500 AIR LINE MILES FROM THE INDUSTRIAL NORTHEAST CITIES OF THE UNITED STATES, THE STATE DEPARTMENT HAS BEEN KEEPING A WARY EYE ON MOSCOW'S MOVES IN ITS DIRECTION.
